NOTE.—The following volume, page & number references are to BANKRUPTCY, Vols. IV. & V.

Bankruptcy of firm or partner generally.]—See Vol. IV., pp. 420 et seq.

Act of bankruptcy—Fraudulent conveyance of partnership property.]—See Vol. IV., p. 56, No. 479.

Failure to comply with summons or notice.]—See Vol. IV., p. 89, No. 804.

Service of summons or notice.]—See Vol. IV., p. 98, No. 887.

The petition—Who may petition.]—See Vol. IV., p. 113, No. 1018.

—— In respect of what debts.]—See Vol. IV., p. 114, Nos. 1033, 1035, 1039.

The trustee—Mode of appointment.]—See Vol. IV., p. 208, No. 1921.

Proof of debts.]—See Vol. IV., p. 246, Nos. 2330–2331.

Mutual credit & set-off.]—See Vol. IV., pp. 389, 390, 391, 394, Nos. 3563–3565, 3569, 3570, 3577, 3578, 3581, 3611.

Priority of debts.]—See Vol. IV., pp. 483, 484, Nos. 4343–4357.

Property available for distribution amongst creditors.]—See Vol. V., pp. 649, 658, 711–719, 756, 784–786, 942, Nos. 5807, 5865–5868, 6218–6260, 6511, 6726–6737, 7710.

Actions by trustee.]—See Vol. V., p. 984, No. 8051.

Composition deed.]—See Vol. V., p. 1137, No. 9241.

PART PERFORMANCE.

See CONTRACT; LANDLORD AND TENANT; SALE OF LAND; SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

PARTY AND PARTY COSTS.

See PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE; SOLICITORS.

PARTY-WALLS.

See BOUNDARIES, FENCES AND PARTY-WALLS.

PASSAGE BROKERS.

See SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION.

PASSAGE COURT.

See ADMIRALTY; COURTS; INTERPLEADER.

PASSENGERS.

See CARRIERS; NEGLIGENCE; RAILWAYS AND CANALS; SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION.

PASSING-OFF.

See MISREPRESENTATION AND FRAUD; TRADE MARKS, TRADE NAMES, AND DESIGNS.

PASSIVE TRUST.

See TRUSTS AND TRUSTEES.

PASSPORT.

See ALIENS; CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE.

PASTURE.

See AGRICULTURE; COMMONS AND RIGHTS OF COMMON.

PATENTS AND INVENTIONS.

PAGE

PART I. DEFINITIONS 533
SECT. 1. "PATENT" 533
SECT. 2. "MONOPOLY" 534
SECT. 3. "PATENTEE" 534

PART II. CAPACITY TO OBTAIN LETTERS PATENT 535

PART III. "TRUE AND FIRST INVENTOR" . . . . . .
SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 535
SECT. 2. AS BETWEEN MASTER AND SERVANT 538
SUB-SECT. 1. RIGHTS OF MASTER 538
SUB-SECT. 2. RIGHTS OF SERVANT 539
SECT. 3. INVENTION COMMUNICATED FROM ABROAD 540

PART IV. SUBJECT-MATTER OF PATENT 542
SECT. 1. WHAT CONSTITUTES SUBJECT-MATTER 542
SUB-SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 542
SUB-SECT. 2. "MANNER OF NEW MANUFACTURE" 543
SUB-SECT. 3. "INVENTION" 545
A. In General 545
B. Necessity for 546
C. Existence of "Invention" 546
(a) In General 546
(b) Matter for Consideration 547
SUB-SECT. 4. DISCOVERY AND APPLICATION OF PRINCIPLES 548
A. In General 548
B. Process of Utilising Principle 551
(a) In General 551
(b) New Principle 552
(c) Known Principle 552
SUB-SECT. 5. IMPROVEMENT ON SOMETHING KNOWN 554
A. In General 554
B. What Constitutes Improvement 555
SUB-SECT. 6. ADDITIONS 562
SUB-SECT. 7. NEW COMBINATION OF MATTER ALREADY KNOWN 562
A. In General 562
B. Essentials of Combination 565
(a) Novelty 565
(b) Utility 567
(c) Exercise of Invention 569
SUB-SECT. 8. SELECTION OF ONE OF A CLASS OF THINGS OR PROCESSES . . . 571
SUB-SECT. 9. APPLICATION OF OLD CONTRIVANCE OR PROCESS 572
A. Application in Old Way to Analogous Subject 572
B. Application Involving Exercise of Invention 578
SUB-SECT. 10. TOOLS 581
A. In General 581
B. New Use for Old Tools 581
SUB-SECT. 11. PRODUCT OF MANUFACTURE 581

PAGE

SECT. 2. NOVELTY 582
SUB-SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 582
SUB-SECT. 2. AVOIDANCE BY ANTICIPATION OR PRIOR PUBLIC KNOWLEDGE . . 585
A. In General 585
B. Prior User 588
(a) In General 588
(b) What Amounts to Prior User 591
i. In General 591
ii. Public User 591
iii. Experimental User. 593
iv. Manufacture and Offer for Sale 595
v. Manufacture and Sale 595
C. Prior Publication 597
(a) In General 597
(b) Publication in Book, Document or Picture 598
(c) Publication in Specification 599
(d) Paper Read before Learned Society 604
SECT. 3. UTILITY. 604
SUB-SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 604
SUB-SECT. 2. EVIDENCE OF WANT OF UTILITY 607

PART V. APPLICATION FOR PATENT 607
SECT. 1. WHO MAY APPLY 607
SECT. 2. FORM AND DATE OF APPLICATION 607
SECT. 3. SAMPLES 607
SECT. 4. SPECIFICATION 607
SECT. 5. PROCEDURE 607
SUB-SECT. 1. POWERS AND DUTIES OF COMPTROLLER 607
SUB-SECT. 2. FILING OF SPECIFICATION 608
SUB-SECT. 3. EXAMINATION OF APPLICATION 608
SUB-SECT. 4. HEARING BEFORE COMPTROLLER 609
SUB-SECT. 5. APPEAL FROM COMPTROLLER 609
A. In General 609
B. Costs 609
SECT. 6. ACCEPTANCE OF SPECIFICATION 609
SECT. 7. WITHDRAWAL OF APPLICATION 609

PART VI. SPECIFICATIONS 610
SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 610
SECT. 2. TITLE 610
SECT. 3. PROVISIONAL SPECIFICATION 611
SECT. 4. COMPLETE SPECIFICATION 613
SUB-SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 613
SUB-SECT. 2. ESSENTIALS 613
A. Certainty of Description 613
(a) In General 613
(b) Degree of Certainty Required 614
B. Sufficiency of Description 616
(a) In General 616
(b) Degree of Sufficiency Required 619
i. In General 619
ii. To Whom Specification Addressed 619
iii. Must be Sufficient in Itself 620
(c) Drawings 621
C. Good Faith. 621
(a) In General 621
(b) Full Disclosure 621
D. Conformity with Provisional Specification 622
(a) In General 622
(b) What may be added to Provisional Specification 624
(c) Effect of Disconformity. 625

PAGE

SUB-SECT. 3. REFERENCE TO PRIOR SPECIFICATION 627
SUB-SECT. 4. PATENTS FOR IMPROVEMENTS AND COMBINATIONS 627
SUB-SECT. 5. FOREIGN PATENTS 629
SECT. 5. THE CLAIM 630
SUB-SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 630
SUB-SECT. 2. WHAT MAY BE CLAIMED 631
SUB-SECT. 3. CONSTRUCTION OF CLAIM 633
SECT. 6. CONSTRUCTION 636
SUB-SECT. 1. QUESTION FOR JUDGE OR JURY 636
A. In General 636
B. What may be left to Jury 638
SUB-SECT. 2. RULES OF CONSTRUCTION 638
A. In General 638
B. Specification Construed as a Whole 639
(a) In General 639
(b) Reference to Particular Parts 640
C. Fair and Candid Construction 640
D. Ut res magis valeat quam pereat 642
E. Meaning of Words 642
(a) In General 642
(b) Particular Instances 642
SUB-SECT. 3. ADMISSIBILITY OF EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE 643
SECT. 7. AMENDMENT 644
SUB-SECT. 1. AT INSTANCE OF COMPTROLLER 644
SUB-SECT. 2. AT INSTANCE OF APPLICANT OR PATENTEE 644
A. Forms and Function of Amendment 644
B. Jurisdiction of Court 646
C. The Application 646
(a) In General 646
(b) By and to Whom Made 647
(c) In Proceedings for Infringement or Revocation 649
(d) Time for Making 649
D. What Amendments Allowed 649
(a) Substantial Alteration of Original 649
(b) Correction of Clerical Errors 650
(c) Amendments to Remove Ambiguity 651
(d) Other Cases 651
E. Conditions Imposed on Allowing Amendments 652
(a) Jurisdiction of Court to Impose Conditions 652
(b) What Conditions may be Imposed 653
i. Amended Specification Not Receivable in Evidence 653
ii. Payment of Costs 653
iii. Condition against Action for Infringement 654
iv. Stay or Discontinuance of Proceedings 655
v. Other Cases 655
F. Effect of Amendment 655
G. Time from which Amendment Operative 656
H. Costs 656

PART VII. GRANT OF PATENT 657
SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 657
SECT. 2. OPPOSITION TO GRANT 658
SUB-SECT. 1. WHO MAY OPPOSE 658
SUB-SECT. 2. GROUNDS OF OPPOSITION 660
A. Invention Obtained from Opponent 660
(a) In General 660
(b) Remedies of Opponent 660

PAGE

B. Prior Publication 661
(a) Prior Specification 661
(b) Document making Invention Available to Public 663
(c) Remedies of Opponent 663
i. Disclaimer 663
ii. Specific Reference to Prior Patent 664
C. Insufficient Description in Complete Specification 664
D. Opponent's Invention Incorporated in Complete Specification 665
SUB-SECT. 3. POWERS OF COMPTROLLER 665
SUB-SECT. 4. APPEAL TO LAW OFFICER 666
SUB-SECT. 5. PRACTICE 666
SUB-SECT. 6. COSTS 667
PART VIII. REGISTER OF PATENTS 668
PART IX. MAINTENANCE OF PATENT 668
PART X. ASSIGNMENT AND DEVOLUTION OF PATENTS 669
SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 669
SECT. 2. WHAT MAY BE ASSIGNED 669
SECT. 3. CONSTRUCTION OF ASSIGNMENT 671
SECT. 4. ASSIGNEE WITH NOTICE 674
SECT. 5. REGISTRATION OF ASSIGNMENT 674
SECT. 6. RIGHTS OF ASSIGNEES 676
SECT. 7. BANKRUPTCY OR INSOLVENCY OF PATENTEE 676
SECT. 8. DEATH OF PATENTEE 676
SECT. 9. VESTING ORDER 676
SECT. 10. STAMPS 676
PART XI. LICENCES 677
SECT. 1. VOLUNTARY LICENCE 677
SUB-SECT. 1. EXPRESS LICENCE 677
SUB-SECT. 2. IMPLIED LINCENCE 678
SUB-SECT. 3. FORMALITIES 679
SUB-SECT. 4. CONDITIONS 680
SUB-SECT. 5. RIGHTS OF LICENCEES 680
A. Right to Sue 680
B. Right to Deny Validity of Patent 680
SUB-SECT. 6. ASSIGNMENT OF LICENCE 683
SUB-SECT. 7. REVOCATION OF LICENCE 683
SUB-SECT. 8. ROYALTIES 684
SECT. 2. COMPULSORY LICENCE 688
SUB-SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 688
SUB-SECT. 2. PROCEEDINGS 690
SECT. 3. LICENCE FOR PRODUCTION OF FOOD OR MEDICINE 690
SECT. 4. RIGHTS OF CROWN 690
PART XII. TERM OF PATENT 691
SECT. 1. DURATION OF ORIGINAL GRANT 691
SECT. 2. EXTENSION OF TERM 692
SUB-SECT. 1. PARTIES 692
A. To Petition 692
B. Other Parties 692
SUB-SECT. 2. CONTENTS OF PETITION 692
SUB-SECT. 3. ASSIGNEES 694
A. Right to be Petitioner 694
B. Principles on which Extension Granted 694
C. Accounts 695
D. Losses due to Hostilities 696

PAGE

SUB-SECT. 4. FOREIGN IMPORTER 696
SUB-SECT. 5. GROUNDS FOR GRANTING OR REFUSING 697
A. In General 697
B. Discretion of Court 697
C. Public Benefit 698
D. Validity of Patent 699
E. Lapse of Foreign Patent 700
F. Nature and Merit 701
(a) Utility 701
i. In General 701
ii. Presumption of Inutility 701
(b) Merit 702
i. In General 702
ii. What amounts to Merit 703
G. Adequacy and Inadequacy of Remuneration 703
(a) In General 703
(b) Inadequacy 705
i. Invention of Exceptional Merit 705
ii. Fault of Patentee 706
iii. Patent having Limited Market 707
iv. Other Cases 708
(c) Accounts Showing Remuneration 708
H. Non-Disclosure of Material Facts in Petition 708
SUB-SECT. 6. THE ORDER 708
A. In General 708
B. Conditions 709
(a) In favour of Patentee or His Estate 709
(b) In favour of Crown 710
(c) Licencees 710
(d) Registration of Licences 711
(e) Extension of Expired Patent 711
SUB-SECT. 7. ACCOUNTS 711
A. Proper and Sufficient Account 711
B. Profits to be Shown 713
C. Deductions from Profits 714
D. Patentee also Manufacturer 714
E. Assignees 714
F. Licencees 714
G. Practice 714
SUB-SECT. 8. PRACTICE 715
A. In General 715
B. Advertisements 715
C. Time for Proceedings 716
(a) In General 716
(b) Application for Extension after Expiry 716
D. Accounts 718
E. Appeal 718
F. Loss due to Hostilities 718
G. Costs 718
(a) Petitioner Successful 718
(b) Petition Abandoned 718
(c) Successful Opposition 719
(d) On Originating Summons 719
SUB-SECT. 9. LOSS DUE TO HOSTILITIES 719
A. In General 719
B. Personal Services 721
C. Works becoming Controlled Establishment 722
D. General Interference with Development of Patent 723
E. Length of Extension 724
F. Assignee 725
G. Practice 725

PAGE
SUB-SECT. 10. APPLICATIONS RESPECTING TWO OR MORE PATENTS 726
SUB-SECT. 11. FURTHER EXTENSIONS 726
SECT. 3. PATENTS OF ADDITION 726

PART XIII. REVOCATION 727
SECT. 1. BY THE COURT 727
SUB-SECT. 1. THE PETITIONER 727
A. Private Person 727
B. Attorney-General 727
SUB-SECT. 2. GROUNDS FOR REVOCATION 728
A. Fraud 728
B. Want of Novelty 729
C. First and True Invention 730
D. Want of Subject-Matter 730
E. Prior User 731
F. Other Grounds 731
SUB-SECT. 3. PRACTICE 731
A. In General 731
B. Service out of Jurisdiction 732
C. The Order 732
(a) In General 732
(b) Consent Order 733
D. Expiry of Patent 733
'33
SUB-SECT. 4. REVOCATION OF EXTENDED PATENT 733
SECT. 2. BY THE COMPTROLLER 734
SUB-SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 734
SUB-SECT. 2. PATENT WORKED MAINLY ABROAD 734
A. In General 734
B. Who may Apply 735
C. Manufacture Abroad 735
D. Adequate Manufacture in England 736
E. Satisfactory Reasons 736
F. Practice 737
(a) In General 737
(b) Costs 738
SUB-SECT. 3. GROUND ON WHICH GRANT MIGHT HAVE BEEN OPPOSED . . . 738
SUB-SECT. 4. APPEALS 739

PART XIV. INFRINGEMENT . . . . . .
SECT. 1. WHAT CONSTITUTES INFRINGEMENT . . . . . .
SUB-SECT. 1. IN GENERAL . . . . . .
SUB-SECT. 2. INTENTION OR KNOWLEDGE OF INFRINGER . . . . . .
SUB-SECT. 3. MANUFACTURE . . . . . .
A. In General . . . . . .
B. Repair . . . . . .
SUB-SECT. 4. USER . . . . . .
SUB-SECT. 5. IMPORTATION . . . . . .
SUB-SECT. 6. SALE . . . . . .
A. In General . . . . . .
B. Sale Below Minimum Price . . . . . .
SUB-SECT. 7. SCOPE OF INVENTION . . . . . .
A. Ascertainment from Specification . . . . . .
B. Patents of Narrow Scope . . . . . .
(a) In General . . . . . .
(b) Patents of Apparatus or Machinery . . . . . .
SUB-SECT. 8. INVENTION TAKEN IN SUBSTANCE . . . . . .
SUB-SECT. 9. ATTAINMENT OF SAME RESULT . . . . . .
SUB-SECT. 10. ATTAINMENT OF DIFFERENT RESULT . . . . . .

PAGE

SUB-SECT. 11. PATENTS POSSESSING ESSENTIAL FEATURE 759
SUB-SECT. 12. PATENTS OF PRINCIPLE 762
SUB-SECT. 13. PATENTS OF COMBINATION 764
A. In General 764
B. New Combination producing New Results 766
C. New Combination producing Known Result 767
D. Combination of Old and New Features 769
E. Combination the Only Novel Feature 770
SUB-SECT. 14. EQUIVALENTS 771
SUB-SECT. 15. IMPROVEMENTS 772
SECT. 2. LEGAL PROCEEDINGS IN RESPECT OF INFRINGEMENT 773
SUB-SECT. 1. PARTIES 773
A. Plaintiffs 773
B. Defendants 774
C. Third Parties 776
SUB-SECT. 2. SERVICE OF WRIT 776
SUB-SECT. 3. PLEADINGS 777
A. Statement of Claim 777
B. Particulars of Breaches 778
(a) In General 778
(b) Further Particulars 781
C. Defence 781
(a) In General 781
(b) Estoppel as to Validity 785
D. Particulars of Objections 786
(a) In General 786
(b) Want of Novelty 787
i. In General 787
ii. Prior Publication 788
iii. Prior User 789
(c) Common Public Knowledge 790
(d) Insufficiency of Description 790
(e) Further Particulars 791
(f) Amendment 792
i. In General 792
ii. When Allowed 792
iii. What Amendments may be Allowed 792
iv. Terms on Which Allowed 793
v. Effect of Amendment 793
SUB-SECT. 4. INTERLOCUTORY INJUNCTION 793
A. Grounds for Granting or Refusing 793
(a) In General 793
(b) Primâ facie Case of Validity and Infringement 795
(c) Validity Established in Previous Action 796
(d) Undisturbed User for Period of Time 797
(e) Recency of Patent 799
(f) Conduct of Parties 800
i. In General 800
ii. Delay 800
(g) Prevention of Irreparable Injury 801
(h) Balance of Convenience 801
B. Against Whom Granted 801
C. Evidence 802
D. Terms Imposed 802
(a) Account in lieu of Injunction 802
(b) Undertaking as to Damages 803
E. Breach of Injunction and Remedies 803
F. Costs 803
SUB-SECT. 5. DISCOVERY, INSPECTION AND PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS . . . 803
SUB-SECT. 6. INTERROGATORIES 805

PAGE

SUB-SECT. 7. INSPECTION OF PROCESSES, APPARATUS AND MACHINERY . . . 805
A. In General 805
B. When Ordered 805
(a) Primâ facie Case of Infringement 805
(b) Inspection Necessary for Purpose of Case 806
C. Who may Carry out Inspection 807
D. Extent of Inspection Ordered 808
E. Samples 808
SUB-SECT. 8. THE HEARING 808
A. In General 808
B. Mode of Trial 809
C. Reference to Expert 810
SUB-SECT. 9. EVIDENCE 811
A. In General 811
B. Admissibility 812
(a) In General 812
(b) Defence of Want of Novelty 812
C. Onus of Proof and Weight of Evidence 813
D. Evidence on Appeal 814
SUB-SECT. 10. RELIEF 815
A. In General 815
B. Interlocutory Injunction 815
C. Perpetual Injunction 815
(a) In General 815
(b) Grounds for Granting or Refusing 816
i. In General 816
ii. Expiration of Patent 817
(c) Breach of Injunction 818
D. Damages 819
(a) In General 819
(b) Loss of Profits as Measure of Damages 819
i. In General 819
ii. Number of Infringing Articles Sold or Used 820
iii. Reduction of Price by Illegal Competition 822
iv. Loss of Royalties 822
(c) Inquiry as to Damages 823
E. Account of Profits 824
F. Delivery up or Destruction of Infringing Articles 826
G. Certificate of Validity 826
(a) In General 826
(b) Finality of Certificate 827
(c) On What Issues Granted 828
(d) When Granted 829
i. In General 829
ii. Defendant Consenting to Judgment 829
iii. Defendant Not Appearing 830
H. Revocation 831
SUB-SECT. 11. COSTS 831
A. In General 831
B. Apportionment of Costs 832
(a) In General 832
(b) Plaintiff Unsuccessful except as to Issue of Validity 832
(c) Plaintiff Unsuccessful except as to Issue of Infringement 832
(d) Actions on More than One Patent 833
C. Certificate of Reasonableness of Particulars of Objections 834
(a) In General 834
(b) Application for Certificate 835
(c) Action Proceeding to Trial 835
i. When Certificate Granted 835
ii. For What Particulars Certificate Granted 836
(d) Action Not Proceeding to Trial 837

PAGE
D. Certificate of Reasonableness of Particulars of Breaches 839
E. Effect of Certificate of Validity 839
F. Undertaking or Arrangement Offered 841
G. Costs on Higher Scale 841
H. Costs on Discontinuance 842
I. Security for Costs 842
J. Particular Items of Costs 842
PART XV. LEGAL PROCEEDINGS 843
SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 843
SECT. 2. IN RESPECT OF INFRINGEMENT 844
SECT. 3. IN RESPECT OF THREAT OF LEGAL PROCEEDINGS 844
SUB-SECT. 1. IN GENERAL 844
SUB-SECT. 2. WHO MAY SUE 845
SUB-SECT. 3. WHO MAY BE SUED 846
SUB-SECT. 4. WHAT AMOUNTS TO A THREAT 847
SUB-SECT. 5. RIGHT TO INJUNCTION 849
A. In General 849
B. Necessity for Non-Infringement by Plaintiff 849
C. Motive of Defendant 849
D. Commencement of Infringement Action as Bar to Right 851
(a) In General 851
(b) What Amounts to Action 851
(c) Due Diligence 853
SUB-SECT. 6. DAMAGES 854
PART XVI. INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL ARRANGEMENTS . . . 855
PART XVII. PATENT AGENTS 856
PART XVIII. OFFENCES 856

Copyright . . . See COPYRIGHT.
Designs . . . ,, TRADE MARKS.
Merchandise Marks . ,, TRADE MARKS.
Passing Off . . See MISREPRESENTATION AND FRAUD; TRADE MARKS.
Trade Marks . . ,, TRADE MARKS.
Trade Names . . ,, TRADE MARKS.

Part I.—Definitions.

SECT. 1.—"PATENT."

Statutory definition.]—See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 93.

1. Letters patent included in Statute of Monopolies—Defect in specification capable of amendment by disclaimer.]—The proviso contained in Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), s. 6, which exempts letters patent for new inventions from the operation of the Act is to be construed as including in the exemption letters patent for new inventions which by reason of some defect in the specification capable of amendment by disclaimer, cannot for the time being & until the necessary disclaimer has been filed, be enforced.—PECK & CO. v. HINDES, LTD. (1898), 67 L. J. Q. B. 272; 14 T. L. R. 164; 15 R. P. C. 113.

2. Nature of patentee's right—Exclusive user.]—What is the right which a patentee has or patentees have? . . . The tenth is that letters patent do not give the patentee any right to use the invention—they do not confer upon him a right to manufacture according to his invention. That is a right which he would have equally effectually if there were no letters patent at all; only in that case all the world would equally have the right. What the letters patent confer is the right to exclude others from manufacturing in a particular way, & using a particular invention (LORD HERSCHELL, C.).—STEERS v. ROGERS, [1893] A. C. 232; 62 L. J. Ch. 671; 68 L. T. 726; 1 R. 173; 10 R. P. C. 245, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Heyl-Dia v. Edmunds (1899), 81 L. T. 579. Distd. Diamond Coal Cutting Co. v. Mining

PART I. SECT. 1.

a. Statutory definition.]—By Patents Acts, 1903–1909, s. 4, the term "patent" is defined to mean, except where otherwise clearly intended, "letters patent for an invention granted in the Commonwealth":—Held: words "in the Commonwealth" in that definition are geographical, &, the definition includes patents granted under a State Act as well as those granted under the Commonwealth Act.—WESTRALIAN POWELL WOOD PROCESS, LTD. v. R. (1921), 29 C. L. R. 458.—AUS.

Sect. 1.—"Patent." Sects. 2 & 3. Parts II. III. Sect. 1.]

Appliances Co. (1915), 85 L. J. Ch. 232. Refd. National Soc. for Distribution of Electricity by Secondary Generators v. Gibbs, [1899] 2 Ch. 289; Edwards v. Picard, 2 K. B. 903; Re Heath's Patent (1912), 56 Sol. Jo. 538.

3. —— ——.]—The right which the owner of a patented chattel has under his letters patent of making & using the patented chattel & licencing others to use the same is a right of an incorporeal nature. It is a chose in action, at any rate not in possession, distinct from the right of property in the chattel itself, & incapable of seizure under a distress for rent.—BRITISH MUTOSCOPE & BIOGRAPH CO., LTD. v. HOMER, [1901] 1 Ch. 671; 70 L. J. Ch. 279; 84 L. T. 26; 49 W. R. 277; 17 T. L. R. 213; 18 R. P. C. 177.

Annotations:—Consd. Edwards v. Picard, [1909] 2 K. B. 903. Refd. National Phonograph Co. of Australia v. Menck, [1911] A. C. 336. Mentd. Barker v. Stickney, [1918] 2 K. B. 356.

4. —— Chose in action.]—BRITISH MUTOSCOPE & BIOGRAPH CO., LTD. v. HOMER, No. 3, ante.

5. —— ——.]—Now, what is the right of the patentee? It is a chose in action, created by the exercise of the Royal Prerogative, & entirely distinct from the right of property in a chattel created under it; & the patentee's right under the patent, being a chose in action, cannot be taken under a fi. fa., or levari facias, since it has no locality, & therefore cannot be found upon the premises (VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J.).—EDWARDS & CO. v. PICARD, [1909] 2 K. B. 903; 78 L. J. K. B. 1108; 101 L. T. 416; 25 T. L. R. 815, C. A.

6. —— ——.]—Patent rights being choses in action, the ct. has jurisdiction under Trustee Act, 1893 (c. 53), s. 35, to make an order vesting them in such person as the ct may appoint.—Re HEATH'S PATENT (1912), 56 Sol. Jo. 538; 29 R. P. C. 389.

Compare COPYRIGHT, Vol. XIII., pp. 199, 200, Nos. 344–352.

Equitable execution—Profits of patent.]—See EXECUTION, Vol. XXI., pp. 669, 670, No. 2492.

Distinguished from monopoly.]—See Sect. 2, post.

SECT. 2.—"MONOPOLY."

See Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3).

7. "Patent" & "Monopoly" distinguished.] MONOPOLIES (1684), 10 2 Show. 366; 90 E. R.

:—Refd. Merchant's Adventurers v. Rebow (1686), Comb. 53. Mentd. Omichund v. Barker (1744), Willes, 538; Rogers v. Rajendro Dutt (1860), 8 Moo. Ind. App. 103.

SECT. 3.—"PATENTEE."

See Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 19.

8. Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 93.] An application was made on Oct. 27, 1909, by G., the grantee of letters patent No. [illegible] of 1903, for leave to amend [illegible] specification & by substituting for two claims relating respectively to a special form of capsule, & to a special means of removing the capsule, a claim for a combination of the two elements in one piece. The application was opposed by the Goldy Stopper Syndicate, on the grounds (a) that the application was bad ab initio inasmuch as the appct. was not the patentee" within Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 21 (1), & the Goldy Stopper co., who were purchasers of the patent from G. under an agreement of sale, were necessary parties to the application; (b) that the amendment would make the specification claim a substantially different invention from the invention originally claimed, & on the further grounds that it would make the specification ambiguous & defective, & that the original invention was wholly included in Forastieri's Specification, No. 26528 of 1901:—Held: (1) upon the proper construction of the agreement of sale the Goldy Stopper co. had an equitable interest in the patent & ought to have been joined, but that, inasmuch as the purchase-money had not been paid within the time stipulated & time was of the essence of the contract, such interest had now reverted to the original grantee; the application was not bad ab initio, but only defective for want of parties & that the proper parties were now before the ct.; (2) looking at the unamended specification as a whole, the combination was clearly indicated therein, & no different invention was therefore claimed in the specification as amended; & the opponents failed also on the other grounds of opposition.

With regard to the meaning of "patentee," I can find no clear decision as to what is the true meaning of the definition of "patentee" in above sect. 93, namely, "the person for the time being entitled to the benefit of a patent." The words must, of course, be read as meaning "person or persons," & after careful consideration I do not think they ought to be confined merely to the person or persons holding beneficial interests. I think a wider construction is necessary, & that they should be held to include any one who can lawfully claim, by any act or assurance known to the law, an actual interest in, or right to, the monopoly granted (COMPTROLLER-GENERAL).

I have come to the conclusion that where two [illegible] ately & independently, these two features were intended to be used in combination, & would in fact be so used & so constructed by any competent workman, that in such a case, a combination claim can subsequently be substituted by amendment. . . . If this is correct, a fortiori the claim may be allowed where there is any claim in the original specification which by any legitimate construction may be held to comprise the two factors in combination (COMPTROLLER-GENERAL).—Re GOLTSTEIN'S APPLICATION (1910), 27 R. P. C. 289.

Part II.—Capacity to Obtain Letters Patent.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 1; & Part V., Sect. 1, post.

9. Who may obtain—Alien.]—Re VAN DE POELE'S PATENT (1889), 7 R. P. C. 69.

—— ——.]—See, also, ALIENS, Vol. II., pp. 177, 178, Nos. 90–92, 417.

—— Infants.]—See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 83.

—— Lunatics.]—See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 83.

10. Who may not obtain—Member of official commission—Patent embodying result of official investigation.]—If an invention becomes, without fraud, known to the public, no subsequent patent can be granted for it. It is not necessary that it should have been used by the public, as well as known to the public. Where a report, on a particular subject, is made to a public office, by referees specially appointed under an Act of Parliament to inquire into & report on such subject, the knowledge contained in that report being fully possessed by the referees, it must, from that moment, be treated as absolutely the property of the public & as being publicly known, although, in fact, the report was not formally published till some days afterwards. If the knowledge thus obtained in the course of the discharge of his duty by one referee, was by his communication of it to his colleagues, possessed by all the referees, the moment they became possessed of it, it became public property & they had no power whatever to agree among themselves to treat its communication as confidential, nor would their doing so enable one of their number to take out a patent in regard to it.—PATTERSON v. GAS LIGHT & COKE CO. (1877), 3 App. Cas. 239; 47 L. J. Ch. 402; 38 L. T. 303; 26 W. R. 482, H. L.

Annotations:—Refd. Lister v. Norton (1886), 3 R. P. C. 199; Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse & Rawson (1887), 3 T. L. R. 327; Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416; Humpherson v. Syer (1887), 4 R. P. C. 407; Partington v. Hartlepools Pulp & Paper Co. (1895), 12 R. P. C. 295; British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Collier (1908), 25 T. L. R. 74. Mentd. Nant-Y-Glo & Blaina Ironworks Co. v. Grave (1878), 12 Ch. D. 738.

11. —— Personal representative.]—(1) The communication, made in England by one British subject to another, of an invention does not make the person to whom the communication is made the first & true inventor, within Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), so as to enable him to take out letters patent for the invention.

(2) The legal personal representative of a person who has made an invention, but not taken out letters patent for it, cannot take out such letters patent.—MARSDEN v. SAVILLE STREET CO. (1878), 3 Ex. D. 203; 26 W. R. 784; sub nom. DALTON v. SAVILLE-STREET FOUNDRY & ENGINEERING CO., 39 L. T. 97, C. A.

Annotation:—As to (1) Distd. Pilkington v. Yeakley Vacuum Hammer Co. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 459.

See, now, Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 43.

12. Trustee for alien enemy.]—(1) It being objected, that a specification, enrolled pursuant to a patent for an invention, contained French terms: —Held: an inventor of a machine is not tied down to make such a specification, as by words only, would enable a skilful mechanic to make the machine, but he is allowed to call in aid the drawings that he may annex to the specification; & if by a comparison of the words & the drawings, the one will explain the other sufficiently to enable a skilful mechanic to perform the work, such a specification is sufficient.

(2) If a servant, while in the employ of his master, makes an invention, that invention belongs to the servant & not to the master; but semble: if the master employs a skilful person for the express purpose of inventing, the inventions made by him will so much belong to the master, as to enable him to take out a patent for them.

(3) Qu.: if a patent be taken out by a British subject, on a secret trust, to hold it for the benefit of the real inventor, the patent stating that the patentee has obtained the invention from a certain foreigner; whether, if such inventor, for whom it is held, be an alien enemy at the time, that will annul the patent, without its being necessary to sue out a sci. fa. for its repeal.—BLOXAM v. ELSEE (1825), 1 C. & P. 558; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 434; Ry. & M. 187, N. P.; subsequent proceedings (1827), 6 B. & C. 169.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Neilson v. Harford (1841), 8 M. & W. 806; Palmer v. Wagstaff (1854), 9 Exch. 494. As to (2) Refd. Allen v. Rawson (1845), 1 C. B. 551. As to (3) Refd. Beard v. Egerton (1846), 3 C. B. 97. Generally, Refd. Ward v. Hill (1903), 20 R. P. C. 189. Mentd. Slatterie v. Pooley (1840), 6 M. & W. 664.

Suspension of patents of alien enemies—On outbreak of hostilities.]—See ALIENS, Vol. II., p. 148, Nos. 212, 213.

International & colonial agreements.]—See Part XVI., post.

Part III.—"True and First Inventor."

SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

See Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), s. 6; Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 93.

13. Person entitled to patent.]—(1) A person, to be entitled to a patent for an invention, must be the first & true inventor; & there must not be any public use thereof by himself or others, prior to the granting of the patent.

(2) Trials of an incomplete invention, by way of experiment, are not evidence of "prior use" for the purpose of invalidating a patent. Prior use, for that purpose, means public use & exercise of the invention. Evidence of the existence of a completed invention, once in public use, although abandoned or the use long discontinued but not altogether lost sight of, is sufficient to invalidate a patent subsequently granted for the same invention.

(3) On the trial of an issue "whether an invention described in a patent is not the original

PART II.

b. Who may obtain—How far residence in Canada necessary.]—DRIGGS v. BAND (1856), 13 U. C. R. 642.—CAN.

PART III. SECT. 1.

13 i. Person entitled to patent.]—A patent must be declared null & void, if it be not established that the patentee is the sole & only inventor of the thing patented, or if it be not established that such patentee is the first inventor. —RITCHIE v. JOLLY (1861), 12 L. C. R. 49.—CAN.

Sect. 1.—In general.]

invention of the patentee" :—Held: it was an erroneous direction in law to the jury to charge them that the evidence of prior public use, to invalidate the patent, must show that "the use was continued to the time when the patent was granted; not to the very exact period, but that it must have been known & used as a useful thing at the time."—HOUSEHILL COAL & IRON CO. v. NEILSON (1843), 9 Cl. & Fin. 788; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 673, 718, n.; 8 E. R. 616, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Stead v. Williams (1844), 3 L. T. O. S. 262. Refd. United Telephone Co. v. Harrison, Cox, Walker (1882), 46 L. T. 620. As to (2) Refd. Betts v. Menzies (1862), 10 H. L. Cas. 118; Tangye v. Stott (1866), 14 W. R. 386. Generally, Refd. Hill v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288; Neilson v. Betts (1871), L. R. 5 H. L. 1; Plimpton v. Malcolmson (1876), 3 Ch. D. 531; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (1883), 24 Ch. D. 156; Easterbrook v. G. W. Ry. (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 81; Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416; Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 6 R. P. C. 243.

14. Meaning of "true & first invention"—Necessity for novelty in every part.]—(1) The specification intended to teach the public, must fully disclose the secret, & contain nothing materially false or defective.

(2) Any material alteration must be stated.

(3) Specification insufficient if information must be derived from other sources. If additions be requisite, the specification is insufficient.

(4) The insertion of more things than requisite a fatal defect.

(5) Anything material & new, & an improvement in the trade, will support a patent. The alteration must be such as leads to a material improvement. If new, the question of materiality & utility arises.—R. v. ARKWRIGHT (1785), Dav. Pat. Cas. 61; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 64; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 53; Printed Case, Folio London 1785; Bull N. P. 76c.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Morgan v. Seaward (1836), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 170. Refd. Neilson v. Harford (1841), 8 M. & W. 806; Thomas v. Welch (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 192. As to (5) Apld. Hill v. Thompson (1818), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 239. Refd. Hills v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288.

—— ——.]—TENNANT v. ——, No. 21, post.

16. —— ——.]—(1) If one of several things claimed be not new, or an improvement, the patent is void.

(2) Whether an improvement is trifling & insignificant or not, is a question for the jury.

(3) The publicly making & selling an article, though there be no demand or use for it, will vitiate a subsequent patent.

(4) There is a material distinction between applying a new contrivance to an old object, & an old contrivance to a new object.

(5) The application of an old wheel to railroads, is not the subject-matter of a patent.

(6) The simple use of a known thing, not a subject-matter.

The law on the subject is this: that you cannot have a patent for applying a well known thing which might be applied to fifty thousand different purposes, for applying it to an operation which is exactly analogous to what was done before (LORD ABINGER, C.B.).—LOSH v. HAGUE (1838), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 202.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Booth v. Kennard (1856), 5 W. R. 85; Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse (1887), 3 T. L. R. 367. As to (6) Apld. R. v. Cutler (1847), Macr. 124; Tetley v. Easton (1857), 2 C. B. N. S. 706. Distd. Morgan v. Windover (1887), 3 T. L. R. 748. Consd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429. Generally, Refd. Brook & Hirst v. Aston (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 1025.

—— ——.]—(1) Pltfs. therefore are bound to show that each of those eight several distinct heads into which they have divided their process, is new & of public utility (TINDAL, C.J.).

(2) The jury have decided that there is no novelty in the alleged invention, nor any new combination, & that there is no novelty in the process but an improvement only. . . . The verdict ought to be entered for deft. (TINDAL, C.J.).—GIBSON v. BRAND (1842), 4 Man. & G. 179; 4 Scott, N. R. 844; 11 L. J. C. P. 177; 134 E. R. 74.

—— Originator of idea.]—JONES v. PEARCE (1832), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 122; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 524.

Annotations:—Consd. Stead v. Williams (1843), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 126; Murray v Clayton (1872), 7 Ch. App. 570. Refd. Minter v. Williams (1835), 1 Har. & W. 585; Carpenter v. Smith (1842), 9 M. & W. 300; Household Coal & Iron Co. v. Neilson (1843), 9 Cl. & Fin. 788; Heath v. Smith (1854), 3 E. & B. 256; Tangye v. Stott (1866), 14 W. R. 386; Wright v. Hitchcock (1870), L. R. 5 Exch. 37.

19. —— Idea borrowed from source open to public.]—Question whether pltf. is true & first inventor or not depends on whether he borrowed invention from a service open to the public.—WALTON v. POTTER (1841), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 585; 1 Goodeve's Patent Cases, 488; subsequent proceedings, 3 Man. & G. 411.

Annotations:—Apld. Thorn v. Worthing Skating Rink Co. (1876), 6 Ch. D. 415, n. Refd. Betts v. Walker (1849), 14 Jur. 647; Bateman v. Gray (1853), Macr. 93; Hill v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288; Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 90.

20. —— ——.]—(1) A party who derives his information from foreign countries may be the true inventor, for the purpose of obtaining a patent: but if he derives his information either from books or from oral communication in this country which had been given to the public, or which some person had given to him, or from some common stock of knowledge in this country, he is not the true inventor, & not entitled to a patent.

(2) Where it appears that the same information as that contained in pltf.'s specification is also contained in scientific books which had been published to the world long before the date of the patent, in order to prove that pltf. is not the true inventor, it is necessary to bring home to him the fact of his having seen these publications; &, in the absence of such evidence, it is a question for the jury whether he derived his knowledge from some stock of knowledge common in this country.

(3) The invention of paving with wood is a new manufacture, so as to be the subject matter of a patent.

(4) A private gentleman, before the date of the patent, had the vestibule of his house paved with wood, so as to form a road for carriages:—Held:

13 ii. ——.]—To be entitled to a patent in Canada, the patentee must be the first inventor in Canada or elsewhere.—SMITH v. GOLDIE (1882), 9 S. C. R. 46.—CAN.

c. Meaning of "true & first inventor"—Idea borrowed from other sources.]—Where one who says he is the inventor of anything has had an opportunity to hear of it from other sources, & especially where delay has occurred on his part in patenting his invention, his claim that he is a true inventor ought to be carefully weighed.—AMERICAN DUNLOP TIRE CO. v. GOOLD BICYCLE CO., LTD. (1899), 6 Exch. C. R. 223.—CAN.

d. —— ——.]—That "first inventor" within Patent Act means not the first discoverer of the thing or the first to conceive the same, but the first to if that was substantially the same pavement as pltf.'s, there had been a public use of it before the date of the patent, so as to avoid the patent; & that whether it had been used by one or more persons made no difference.

(5) Now as to its being publicly known in this country, I take it that there is a great difference between the knowledge of it as a thing that would answer, & was in use, & the knowledge of it as a mere experiment that had been found to be a failure & thrown aside. If you are dealing with an article of merchandise, or with an article of ordinary use, if a person has had a scheme in his head & has carried it out, but after a trial has thrown it aside, & the thing is forgotten & gone by, then another person reintroducing it may within the meaning of this Act be the inventor & first user of it so as to justify a patent (CRESSWELL, J.).—STEAD v. WILLIAMS (1843), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 126; 2 L. T. O. S. 34, 99; subsequent proceedings (1844), 7 Man. & G. 818.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Stead v. Anderson (1846), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 147. Consd. Plimpton v. Malcolmson (1876), 3 Ch. D. 531. Refd. Plimpton v. Spiller (1877), 6 Ch. D. 412. As to (4) Expld. Stead v. Anderson (1847), 4 C. B. 806.

21. —— Idea suggested by another person.]—TENNANT v. —— (1802), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 125, n.; Dav. Pat. Cas. 429; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 177.

Annotations:—Consd. Hill v. Thompson (1818), 8 Taunt. 375. Refd. Robertson v. Purdey (1907), 23 T. L. R. 343.

22. —— ——.]—MARSDEN v. SAVILLE STREET CO., No. 11, ante.

23. ——.]—Re EADIE'S APPLICATION (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 279.

24. —— Idea taken from book.]—R. v. ARKWRIGHT, No. 14, ante.

25. —— ——.]—In order to establish the validity of a patent for improvement or discovery, it should state in substance what is set out in detail in the specification, & if it be taken out for more than is strictly the inventor's own addition, or improvement, or for discovery, when it is merely addition or improvement it is bad, & such invention must be both new & useful, & the discovery not confined to the knowledge of the party making it, & must be accurately described in the specification, which, if it seek to cover more than is actually new & useful vitiates the patent. Therefore, where pltf., having obtained a patent for "The invention of certain improvements in the smelting & working of iron," in the specification described the improvements to consist of various processes by which iron contained in slags or cinders might be extracted, & by the admixture of mine rubbish, be converted into bar iron, & that by the further application of lime, subsequently to the operation of the blast furnace, the quality called "cold short" might be prevented; & then having described the combinations & proportions of materials to be used, the patentee declared that he had discovered that lime would prevent the "cold short" in iron, & render it more tough when cold; it having been proved at the trial, that iron had before been extracted from slags, & that the application of lime had been previously discovered to remedy the "cold short" & that defts. had not worked according to pltf.'s combinations, proportions & processes:—Held: (1) the patent was void, the invention not being new & useful; & there had been no infringement by defts.

(2) As to the work so often referred to, if in substance it informs the public of what the specification in the patent professes to do, this will undoubtedly be the first discovery; as in R. v. Arkwright, No. 14, ante, it was agreed, that a book produced, printed & published previous to the patent, constituted the discovery so as to negative invention by the patentee (DALLAS, J.).—HILL v. THOMPSON (1818), 8 Taunt. 375; 2 Moore, C. P. 424; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 239; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 381; 129 E. R. 427.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Brunton v. Hawkes (1821), 4 B. & Ald. 541; Campion v. Benyon (1821), 6 Moore, C. P. 71. Refd. Morgan v. Seaward (1837), 2 M. & W. 544; Bovill v. Goodier (1866), 35 Beav. 427. As to (2) Refd. Bovill v. Finch (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 523. Generally, Refd. Bloxam v. Elsee (1825), 1 C. & P. 558.

26. —— ——.]—(1) If the patentee has taken the invention from an old book he is not the true & first inventor.

(2) If the invention may have been borrowed from a prior specification, the patent is invalid.—MUNTZ v. FOSTER (1844), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 96.

Annotations:—As to (2) Refd. Hills v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288. Generally, Refd. Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse (1887), 3 T. L. R. 367; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 431.

27. —— ——.]—STEAD v. WILLIAMS, No. 20, ante.

28. —— Publisher.]—The publisher is the true & first inventor within Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3).—DOLLAND v. —— (1766), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 43; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 28.

Annotations:—Consd. Boulton v. Bull (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463; Hill v. Thompson & Forman (1818), 2 Moore, C. P. 424. Refd. Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292.

29. —— ——.]—FORSYTH v. RIVIERE (1819), 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 401; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 97.

30. —— ——.]—MINTER v. WELLS, No. 42, post.

31. —— ——.]—GIBSON v. BRAND, No. 17, ante.

32. —— ——.]—(1) The rule, that the application to a substance of a process which has been previously applied to an analogous substance cannot be the subject of a patent, does not hold where the process is a chemical process.

(2) The man who discovers the method of supplying the market with a substance is the inventor of that substance within the meaning of the patent laws.

(3) The ct. in the exercise of its discretion will refuse to consider the questions arising on the construction of the specification of a patent, until the evidence on the whole of the case has been heard.—YOUNG v. FERNIE (1864), 4 Giff. 577; 4 New Rep. 218; 10 L. T. 861; 10 Jur. N. S. 926; 12 W. R. 901; 66 E. R. 836; on appeal, sub nom. FERNIE v. YOUNG (1866), L. R. 1 H. L. 63, H. L.

Annotations:—Generally, Mentd. Langmead v. Maple (1865), 13 W. R. 469; Ryves v. A.-G. (1868), 19 L. T. 217; Roskell v. Whitworth (1870), 5 Ch. App. 459; Re Simpson, Ex p. Morgan (1876), 2 Ch. D. 72; Sugden v. St. Leonards (1876), 1 P. D. 154; Krehl v. Burrell (1878), 10 Ch. D. 420; MacAndrew v. Barker (1878), 37 L. T. 810; Dollman v. Jones (1879), 12 Ch. 553; Re Harrison, Ex p. Butters (1880), 14 Ch. D. 265.

Importer—Invention in use abroad.]—See Sect. 3, post.

33. —— Whether mode of discovery material—Accidental discovery.]—CRANE v. PRICE, No. 315, post.

34. —— Whether discoverer of principle included.]—MINTER v. WELLS, No. 42, post.

---

publish the same, such inventor, however, must be the true inventor & must not have borrowed the idea from anybody else.—GERRARD WIRE TYING MACHINES CO., LTD. OF CANADA v. CARY MANUFACTURING CO., [1926] 3 D. L. R. 374; [1926] Exch. C. R. 170.—CAN.

e. —— Time taken to perfect invention—Invention meanwhile given to public by another.]—CANADIAN RAYBESTOS CO., LTD. v. BRAKE SERVICE CORPN., [1926] Exch. C. R. 187; [1926] 3 D. L. R. 497.—CAN.

Sect. 1.—In general. Sect. 2 : Sub-sects. 1 & 2.]

35. —— ——.]—ELIAS v. GROVESEND TIN-PLATE CO., No. 367, post.

36. —— —— Principle discarded as useless.]—STEAD v. WILLIAMS, No. 20, ante.

37. —— Simultaneous discovery by several persons.]—CORNISH & SIEVIER v. KEENE & NICKELS, No. 481, post.

38. ——.]—A patentee of "Improvements in points & crossings for tramways," brought an action against deft. co. alleging infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was bad on the grounds (inter alia), that the invention did not possess utility, that pltf. was not the first & true inventor, & that the invention had been anticipated :—Held : (1) the invention was not useful ; (2) subject to the question of anticipation, pltf. was the first & true inventor ; (3) there had been anticipation ; (4) defts. had not infringed, the action must be dismissed with costs.—WINBY v. MANCHESTER, ETC. STEAM TRAMWAYS CO. (1890), 8 R. P. C. 61.

39. ——.]—Pltf. K. sought in this action (inter alia) a declaration that Letters Patent No. 166184 of 1918, the complete specification of which was accepted on July 14, 1921, subject to a reference under Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), & 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (4), to letters patent No. 6320 of 1911 granted to Le Grand, & to a reference (under Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), & 1919 (c. 80), s. 8 (2), to the Letters Patent No. 139230 granted to Handley Page, were valid. The invention was for the placing at the extreme end of the fuselage behind the rudder & tail planes of an aeroplane a tail-gun pit with accommodation for guns & gunners, & the main features of the aeroplanes were that it was much larger than the aeroplanes then in general use in this country having a totally enclosed fuselage with a gangway 6 feet high down the centre which would enable a man to walk from the extreme nose to the extreme tail of the machine. Defts. contended that K. was not the first & true inventor, but that C. had suggested the idea to him, that there had been a prior grant to Handley Page (Letters Patent 139230), as the first of the six claiming clauses in K.'s Specification was the only material claim, the others being dependent & subsidiary to that claim, & that that was for a provision in an aeroplane of a tail-gun pit capable of accommodating a gunner & gun mounting which was the idea patented by Handley Page. Pltfs. alleged that it was a claim for the idea of a tail-gun pit combined with the method of constructing an aeroplane capable of putting that idea to practical use & especially capable of maintaining stability in flight with a moving to & from the extremity of the tail :—Held : the essential feature of the patented invention was the provision of an aeroplane with a tail-gun ; K. was not the first & true inventor of the tail-gun pit, & the patent not being one for working out the details from which it would be possible to build an aeroplane in which a tail-gun pit could be used, it was therefore unnecessary to determine whether there was proper subject-matter, a question which, however, was open to great doubt ; further, assuming this was a combination patent for putting in a tail-gun pit, & for details of construction of an aeroplane by which that idea was to be carried out, there was no evidence of any user by defts. of any such invention ; therefore the claim for a declaration of validity failed.—ROWLAND & KENNEDY v. AIR COUNCIL (1925), 42 R. P. C. 433.

Effect of prior user.]—See Part IV., Sect. 2, sub-sect. 2, B., post.

SECT. 2.—AS BETWEEN MASTER AND SERVANT.

SUB-SECT. 1.—RIGHTS OF MASTER.

40. When master entitled to benefit of invention—Servant employed for express purpose of inventing.]—BLOXAM v. ELSEE, No. 12, ante.

41. —— —— Employment in research.]—E. was a chemist & nothing else ; that is, he took no part in the commercial business of the firm, but devoted himself to the work in the laboratory. . . . For all purposes, except that of being the first & true inventor, he was the agent of his employers. His labours were theirs, he worked in their laboratory & with their materials, as well as with their assistance, & the benefits of his discovery, morally & legally, belonged to them (KEKEWICH, J.).—KURTZ & CO. v. SPENCE & SONS (1887), as reported in 5 R. P. C. 161.

Annotation :—Mentd. Willoughby v. Taylor (1893), 11 R. P. C. 45.

42. —— Principle of invention suggested by master—& carried out with assistance of servant.]—The introducer is primâ facie the inventor, the person who suggests the principle is the true & first inventor. If S. suggested the principle to M., then he [S.], would be the inventor. If, on the other hand, M. suggested the principle to S., & S. was assisting him, then M. would be the true inventor & S. would be a machine, so to speak, which M. uses for the purpose of enabling him to carry his original conception into effect (ALDERSON, B.).—MINTER v. WELLS (1834), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 127 ; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 622 ; subsequent proceedings, 1 Cr. M. & R. 505.

Annotations :—Refd. Household Coal & Iron Co. v. Neilson (1843), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 673 ; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569.

43. —— —— Subordinate improvement due to servant.]—(1) The adoption by an inventor of a suggestion made in the course of experiments, of something calculated more easily to carry his conceptions into effect, does not affect the validity of the patent.

(2) It would be difficult to define how far the suggestions of a workman employed in the construction of a machine are to be considered as distinct inventions by him, so as to avoid a patent incorporating them taken out by his employer. Each case must depend upon its own merits. But, when we see that the principle & object of the invention are complete without it, I think it is too much that a suggestion of a workman employed in the course of the experiments, of something calculated more easily to carry into effect the conceptions of the inventor, should render patent void (TINDAL, C.J.).—ALLEN v. RAWSON (1845), 1 C. B. 551 ; 135 E. R. 656.

Annotations :—As to (2) Apld. Re Smith's Patent (1904), 22 R. P. C. 57. Refd. Hatton v. Kean (1859), 7 C. B. N. S. 268.

44. —— —— ——.]—In 1903 letters patent were granted to S. for "Improvements in cotton gins & wool burrers." Y. presented a petition for revocation, alleging that S. was not the first & true inventor, & that the patent was obtained in fraud of Y.'s rights. S. had been, before the application for the patent, receiving moneys from Y., & one of the questions between the parties was whether he had been employed by Y. to carry out Y.'s invention, or had received gratuitous payments from Y. whilst engaged in inventing :—Held : Y. had employed S. to carry out Y.'s ideas, & the payments were for so doing, & S. had, by the patent, obtained the benefit of that to which Y. was entitled.—Re SMITH'S PATENT (1904), 22 R. P. C. 57.

45. —— Servant in position of trustee for master.]—The mere existence of a contract of service, does not, per se, disqualify a servant from taking out a patent for an invention made by him during his term of service, even though the invention may relate to subject-matter germane to, & useful for his employers in their business, & that even though the servant may have made use of his employers' time & servants & materials in bringing his invention to completion, & may have allowed his employers to use the invention while in their employment (BYRNE, J.).—WORTHINGTON PUMPING ENGINE CO. v. MOORE (1902), 19 T. L. R. 84 ; 20 R. P. C. 41.

Annotations :—Consd. Richmond v. Wrightson (1904), 22 R. P. C. 25. Folld. Hop Extract Co. v. Horst (1919), 36 R. P. C. 177.

46. —— ——.]—J. R. & co. were manufacturers of certain machinery to the order of R. W. & co. Deft. was employed by J. R. & co., as draughtsman & designer. Various discussions & interviews took place between the various parties as to overcoming certain difficulties, & a certain machine was designed & made. Deft. applied for a patent for it in his own name, & sometime afterwards informed his employers of his application. Arrangements were then made as to taking out foreign & colonial patents & completing the British grant, J. R. & co. paying the fees. Deft. left the pltfs.' employment, & then claimed to be the inventor of the new machine. Pltfs. brought an action for a declaration as to the foreign & colonial patents, & opposed the sealing of the British patent. The law officer when hearing the opposition suggested that the issue as to the British patent should be included in the action & the pleadings were amended by consent accordingly. At the trial there was conflicting evidence as to who the original inventor was. An application was made during the trial to add R. W. & co. as co-pltfs., which application was granted :—Held : under the circumstances no injustice would be done by adding R. W. & co. as pltfs., & the pleadings were amended accordingly. A declaration was made that deft. was trustee of all the patents for the invention for J. R. & co., & R. W. & co.—RICHMOND & CO., LTD. v. WRIGHTSON (1904), 22 R. P. C. 25.

47. —— ——.]—F. was in the employ of pltf. co., first as a workman & then as the manager of the department for moulding cylinders for phonograph records. Whilst in such employ, he & the general manager of pltf. co. took out in their own names two patents, relating to such mouldings, for inventions made wholly or partly by deft. F. The patents were taken out through the patent agent of the co., & the co. paid all the expenses of taking them out. The general manager did not claim, & admittedly had not, any beneficial interest in the patents, & had assigned his share to pltf. co. The co. claimed that deft. F. was a trustee for them of his interest in the patents, but this deft. denied, & the co. brought an action against F. & against a co. with which he was connected & to which it was alleged he had granted a licence, for a declaration that he was a trustee, & for other relief :—Held : deft. F. was employed to do his best by his skill, knowledge, & inventive powers to improve the manufacture of the cylinders, & made the inventions in the execution of his duty, receiving suggestions from the general manager, &, on the facts as to the taking out of the particular patents, & apart from any general inference to be drawn as to his duty to the co., F. was a trustee for the co.—EDISONIA, LTD. v. FORSE (1908), 25 R. P. C. 546.

Annotations :—Refd. British Reinforced Concrete Engineering Co. v. Lind (1917), 86 L. J. Ch. 486 ; Mellor v. Beardmore (1926), 43 R. P. C. 361.

48. —— ——.]—An assistant engineer to pltf. co., whose duty it was to design the best method of carrying out certain work of the co., discovered in the course of his employment a method by which his employers could more effectually carry out the work. For this invention he obtained a patent, & claimed to retain the benefit of it for his own use :—Held : the terms of his particular employment imposed upon him an obligation to produce the best design he could, & he was a trustee of the patent for pltf. co.—BRITISH REINFORCED CONCRETE ENGINEERING CO. v. LIND (1917), 86 L. J. Ch. 468 ; 116 L. T. 243 ; 33 T. L. R. 170 ; 34 R. P. C. 101.

Annotation :—Refd. Mellor v. Beardmore (1926), 43 R. P. C. 361.

49. —— ——.]—HOP EXTRACT CO., LTD. v. HORST (1919), 36 R. P. C. 177.

50. ——.]—A calico printer is entitled, after having discharged his head colourman, to the book in which that servant has entered the processes for mixing colours during his service, although many of the processes were the invention of the head colourman himself.—MAKEPEACE v. JACKSON (1813), 4 Taunt. 770 ; 128 E. R. 534.

SUB-SECT. 2.—RIGHTS OF SERVANT.

51. Whether servant entitled to benefit of invention.]—BARBER v. WALDUCK (1823), cited in 1 C. & P. at p. 567 ; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. p. 438 ; sub nom. BARKER & HARRIS v. SHAW, 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 126.

52. ——.]—BLOXAM v. ELSEE, No. 12, ante.

53. ——.]—The mere fact of his being the superintendent of the signalling department did not prevent him inventing & patenting a new signalling apparatus. If he obtained a patent it would not belong to the co., but to himself (JESSEL, M.R.).—SAXBY v. GLOUCESTER WAGON CO. (1882), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 54, C. A. ; on appeal (1883), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), p. 56, H. L.

Annotations :—Mentd. Lane Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424 ; Acetylene Illuminating Co. v. United Alkali Co. (1904), 20 R. P. C. 161.

54. ——.]—An employer is not necessarily entitled to the benefit of an invention made by his servant.—Re HEALD'S PATENTS (1891), 8 R. P. C. 429.

Annotation :—Refd. Mellor v. Beardmore (1926), 43 R. P. C. 361.

55. —— Question of fact.]—Re SMITH'S PATENT (1904), 22 R. P. C. 57.

56. —— Invention made in employer's time—& at employer's expense.]—W. presented a petition for revocation of a patent granted to M. & N. in 1898, on the ground that he was the first & true inventor, & they had obtained the grant in fraud of his rights. W. was a workman in the employment of a co. of which M. & N. were

---

PART III. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.

51 i. Whether servant entitled to benefit of invention.]—Pltf., having been employed by defts. expressly to make or improve a machine, could not claim to be the inventor as against them.—BONATHAN v. BOWMANVILLE FURNITURE MANUFACTURING CO. (1871), 31 U. C. R. 413.—CAN.

51 ii. ——.]—Where a skilled person is employed to make experiments the result of his labours belong to his employer, & the adoption & use of the invention by the employer is no infringement where the invention has been patented by the employee.—FOX v. MCKAY (1864), 5 Nfld. L. R. 35.—NFLD.

f. —— Implied undertaking by master to pay for use of invention.]—MELLOR v. BEARDMORE (WILLIAM) & CO., LTD. (1926), 43 R. P. C. 361.—SCOT.

Sect. 2.—As between master and servant: Sub-sect. 2. Sect. 3.]

directors. M. had asked W. to invent a tap which would, by the introduction of steam into cold water, give hot, warm, or cold water as required. W. worked up the invention, made the drawings & models & perfected the tap in all details. M. paid him £10 for overtime work on the models:—Held: M. & N. were not the first & true inventors; W. was the first & true inventor; the patent must be revoked; & M. & N. had obtained the invention from W., & had obtained the grant of the patent in fraud of the right of W. —Re MARSHALL & NAYLOR'S PATENT (1900), 17 R. P. C. 553.

Annotations:—Refd. Edisonia v. Forse (1908), 25 R. P. C. 546; British Reinforced Concrete Engineering Co. v. Lind (1917), 86 L. J. Ch. 486; Mellor v. Beardmore (1926), 43 R. P. C. 361.

57. —— —— ——.]—WORTHINGTON PUMPING ENGINE CO. v. MOORE, No. 45, ante.

58. —— Invention patented in joint names of master & servant.]—Pltf., who entered defts.' employ as a tool maker, was given the work, at the beginning of 1897 of endeavouring to make improvements in the existing machinery & plant of defts., & to invent new appliances. Some of the improvements & appliances invented by him were patented in the joint names of pltf. & defts., while others were not made the subject of letters patent. In Mar. 1902, defts. dismissed pltf. from their service, & he then claimed £1,428 15*s.* in respect of said inventions & improvements under an agreement with defts. for his remuneration, or, alternatively, an account of profits made by defts. by the sale & use of the invented machines & payment to him of a moiety of such profits when ascertained. Defts., while denying liability, were willing to give a bonus in respect of said matters, &, in addition to having paid £50 to pltf., they brought £200 into ct. The jury found, that pltf. was entitled to £260 in addition to the £50, which he had already received in respect of his interest in the patents; that he was entitled to nothing for the improvements which had not been patented. —PASHLEY v. LINOTYPE CO., LTD. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 633.

SECT. 3.—INVENTION COMMUNICATED FROM ABROAD.

59. Importer of process worked abroad — Whether true & first inventor.]—DARCY v. ALLIN, No. 436, post.

60. —— ——.] — IPSWICH CLOTHWORKERS' CASE, No. 437, post.

61. —— ——.] — CALTHORPE'S ADMINISTRATORS v. WAYMANS (1676), 3 Keb. 710; 84 E. R. 966.

62. —— ——.] — EDGEBERRY v. STEPHENS (1693), Holt, K. B. 475; 2 Salk. 447; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 35; Dav. Pat. Cas. 36; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 35; 90 E. R. 1162.

Annotations:—Consd. Boulton v. Bull (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463. Apld. Beard v. Egerton (1846), 3 C. B. 97. Refd. Chappell v. Purday (1845), 14 M. & W. 303; Jefferys v. Boosey (1854), 4 H. L. Cas. 815.

63. —— ——.]—The "public use & exercise" of an invention, which prevents it from being considered a novelty, is a use in public, so as to come to the knowledge of others than the inventor, as contradistinguished from the use of it by himself in private; & does not mean a use by the public generally.

Where an improved lock, for which pltf. has a patent, had previously been used by an individual on a gate adjoining a public road, for several years, & several dozens of a similar lock had been made at Birmingham from a pattern received from America, & sent abroad:—Held: this constituted such a public use & exercise of the invention as to avoid the patent.—CARPENTER v. SMITH (1842), 9 M. & W. 300; 11 L. J. Ex. 213; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 540; 152 E. R. 127.

Annotations:—Consd. Household Coal & Iron Co. v. Neilson (1843), 9 Cl. & Fin. 788; Heath v. Smith (1854), 3 E. & B. 256; Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 2 B. & S. 194. Apld. Betts v. Neilson (1868), 3 Ch. App. 429. Consd. Gill v. Coutts & Cutler (1895), 13 R. P. C. 136. Refd. Stead v. Williams (1844), 7 Man. & G. 818; Tangye v. Stott (1866), 14 W. R. 386; Elias v. Grovesend Tinplate Co. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 455.

64. —— ——.]—(1) The user which will vitiate letters patent must be public, & not by way of experiment.

(2) The old article must have the same properties as the patent article, & have been known & in use.

(3) If a user be limited & abandoned, the question will be, whether it was not by way of experiment.

(4) The tests of a new manufacture. The specification must give the best mode known to the inventor, & must not mislead.

(5) The want of utility not admissible under the plea denying the invention to be a new manufacture.

(6) The party obtaining the patent must be the true & first inventor in this country. If he import from a foreign country that "which others at the time of the makng of such letters patent & grants did not use," it will suffice (CRESSWELL, J.

(7) I think that there is a new principle developed, carried out, & embodied in the mode of using that principle, & in availing himself of that which is sufficient to sustain the patent right in this case (CRESSWELL, J.).—WALTON v. BATEMAN (1842), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 613; 1 Goodeve's Patent Cases, 490.

Annotation:—Generally, Refd. Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse (1887), 3 T. L. R. 367.

65. —— ——.]—A person who has learnt an invention abroad, & imported it into this country, where it was not understood or known before, is the first & true inventor within Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 23); & that, even though the person be not a meritorious importer, but a mere clerk, servant, or agent to whom the communication is made.—BEARD v. EGERTON (1846), 3 C. B. 97; 15 L. J. C. P. 270; 7 L. T. O. S. 228; 10 Jur. 643; 136 E. R. 39.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Avery's Patent (1887), 36 Ch. D. 307.

66. —— ——.]—In case for the infringement of a patent, the declaration alleged that pltf. was the inventor of certain improvements in machinery for covering fibres, applicable in the manufacture of braid & other fabrics; that the Queen had granted him a patent for his invention; & that deft. infringed it. Deft. pleaded that, before the granting of the patent, pltf. represented to Her Majesty, that, in consequence of a communication made to him by a certain foreigner, residing abroad, he, pltf., was in possession of an invention of improvements in machinery for covering fibres, applicable in the manufacture of braid & other

PART III. SECT. 3.

59 i. Importer of process worked abroad—Whether true & first inventor.]—A mere importer of an invention which has been patented for some years previously in the United States by some other parties is not an inventor or discoverer thereof under Patent Act, 1869.—WOODRUFF v. MOSELY (1875), 19 L. C. J. 169.—CAN.

fabrics; that Her Majesty, believing, & confiding in the truth, & acting upon the suggestion so made by pltf. as aforesaid, & in consideration thereof, granted the letters patent in the declaration mentioned; & that such representation was false; whereby the letters patent were null & void:—Held: pltf. was entitled to a verdict on the issue joined on the plea, without any proof that the invention was communicated to him by a foreigner residing abroad, as alleged in the petition recited in the specification, a party availing himself of information from abroad, being an inventor, within the meaning of Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), s. 6.—NICKELS v. ROSS (1849), 8 C. B. 679; 13 L. T. O. S. 467; 137 E. R. 674.

Annotations:—Apld. Re Avery's Patent (1887), 36 Ch. D. 307. Refd. Smith v. Neale (1857), 2 C. B. N. S. 67.

67. —— ——.]—(1) Where a patent is taken out as for an original invention, the subject of the patent being in fact a communication from a British subject resident abroad, the patent is void.

(2) Semble: an agent in this country of an inventor abroad receiving a confidential communication of an invention, not in a practically useful state, may take out a patent for his own benefit, if he, pursuing the idea thus thrown out, discovers a practical way of carrying it into effect.—MILLIGAN v. MARSH (1856), 2 Jur. N. S. 1083; subsequent proceedings, sub nom. MARSH v. MILLIGAN (1857), 3 Jur. N. S. 979.

Annotation:—As to (1) Dbtd. Re Avery's Patent (1887), 36 Ch. D. 307.

—In a suit to restrain the infringement of a patent dated Aug. 25, 1865, relating to roller skates, deft. set up the defence of want of novelty under the following circumstances. Pltf. took out an American patent for a similar invention in the year 1863, & a copy of the claim in the American specification appeared in the Comrs. of Patents Journal published in England on Feb. 6, 1863, & the claim, together with a short description of the invention, also appeared in an American publication called the "Scientific American" of Jan. 24, 1863, a copy of which was received in the library of the Patent Office in Feb. 1863. One of the drawings in the American specification appeared in a book published in America by Messrs. Jewitt, a copy of which was received in the library of the Patent Office on July 20, 1865, & placed in one of the private rooms attached to the library, but it was accidentally omitted to be entered in the list of books, & there was no evidence that the book had ever been seen by any of the public prior to Mar. 1875. Deft. alleged that an ordinary skilled workman could make pltf.'s invention from the notice which appeared in the "Scientific American" together with the drawing in Messrs. Jewitt's book, though not from the letterpress alone, & that the patent was therefore invalid:—Held: (1) the drawing in Messrs. Jewitt's book had not, before the date of pltf.'s English patent, become part of the common stock of public knowledge in England so as to be a sufficient prior publication to avoid pltf.'s patent; (2) the letterpress & drawing together did not afford a sufficient description to enable a workman of ordinary skill to make the patented invention & therefore that, even if there had been a prior publication of Messrs. Jewitt's book, pltf.'s patent would nevertheless be valid.

(3) As I understand, shortly after the passing of the statute [of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3)], the question arose whether a man could be called a first & true inventor who, in the popular sense, had never invented anything, but who, having learned abroad (that is, out of the realm, in a foreign country, because it has been decided that Scotland is within the realm for this purpose) that somebody else had invented something, quietly copied the invention, & brought it over to this country, & then took out a patent. As I said before, in the popular sense he had invented nothing. But it was decided . . . that he was a first & true inventor within the statute, if the invention, being in other respects novel & useful, was not previously known in this country (JESSEL, M.R.).

(4) The specifications . . . is not addressed to people who are ignorant of the subject-matter. It is addressed to people who know something about it. But there are various kinds of people know something about it. If it is a mechanical invention . . . you have first of all scientific mechanicians of the first class, eminent engineers: then you have scientific mechanicians of the second class, managers of great manufactories, great employers of labour, persons who have studied mechanics—not to the same extent as the first class, the scientific engineers, but still to a great extent . . . & in this class I should include foremen, being men of superior intelligence, who like their masters would be capable of invention, & like the scientific engineers would be able to find out what was meant even from slight hints, & still more from imperfect descriptions, & would be able to supplement, so as to succeed even from a defective description, & even more than that, would be able to correct an erroneous description. . . . The other class consists of the ordinary workman, using that amount of skill & intelligence which is fairly to be expected from him. . . . Now, as I understand, to be a good specification it must be intelligible to the third class I have mentioned, & that is the result of the law (JESSEL, M.R.).—PLIMPTON v. MALCOLMSON (1876), 3 Ch. D. 531; 45 L. J. Ch. 505; 34 L. T. 340; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 374; previous proceedings, sub nom. PLYMPTON v. MALCOLMSON (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 37.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Plimpton v. Spiller (1877), 6 Ch. D. 412. Consd. Otto v. Steel (1885), 31 Ch. D. 241. Distd. Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416. Apld. Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569. Refd. Croysdale v. Fisher (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 73; Guilbert-Martin v. Kerr & Jubb (1886), 3 T. L. R. 87. As to (2) Consd. Re Lewis & Stirckler's Patent (1896), 14 R. P. C. 24. Refd. Edge v. Niccolls, [1911] 1 Ch. 5. As to (3) Distd. Dalton v. Saville-Street Foundry & Engineering Co. (1878), 39 L. T. 97. Apld. Re Avery's Patent (1887), 36 Ch. D. 307. As to (4) Refd. Thorn v. Worthing Skating Rink Co. (1876), 6 Ch. D. 415, n.; Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 6 R. P. C. 243; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95; Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 39 R. P. C. 3. Generally, Refd. Wegmann v. Corcoran, Witt (1878), 39 L. T. 563; Coles v. Baylis, Lewis (1886), 3 R. P. C. 178; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1924), 41 R. P. C. 241.

69. —— ——.]—Re ABEL'S APPLICATION (1876), Johnson's Patentee's Manuel, 169.

70. —— ——.]—Re EDMUNDS' PATENT (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 281.

Annotations:—Consd. Re Higgins' Patent (1891), 9 R. P. C. 74; Re McNeil's Application (1907), 24 R. P. C. 680. Refd. Re Gascoigne's Patent (1909), 27 R. P. C. 78.

71. —— ——.]—Re LAKE'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 415.

72. What is "abroad"—Scotland.]—Found a good objection to a Scottish patent that, previous to its being granted, the art was known & practised in England.—ROEBUCK v. STIRLING & SON (1774), 8 Cl. & Fin. 446, n.; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 45; 8 E. R. 174, H. L.

Annotation:—Apld. Brown v. Annandale (1842), 8 Cl. & Fin. 437.

73. —— ——.]—(1) It is essential to the validity of a Scottish patent that the invention or improvement for which it is granted should be new in England as well as in Scotland.

Sect. 3.—Invention communicated from abroad. Part IV. Sect. 1: Sub-sects. 1 & 2.]

Accordingly, evidence of the use of an invention in England previous to the date of a patent for it in Scotland, is admissible, & sufficient to make the patent void; et vice versâ.

(2) Semble: the use of an invention in any of the colonies abroad would invalidate subsequent letters patent.—BROWN v. ANNANDALE (1842), 8 Cl. & Fin. 437; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 433; 8 E. R. 170, H. L.

Annotation:—As to (1) Consd. Rolls v. Isaacs (1881), 19 Ch. D. 268.

74. —— Colonies.]—BROWN v. ANNANDALE, No. 73, ante.

75. —— ——.]—The district of Natal is a British colony with a separate govt., under a Governor appointed by the Crown; & a law has been passed by the Legislative Council of Natal, providing for the granting, in the colony, of patents for inventions:—Held: the validity of letters patent under the Great Seal for licence to use an invention in the United Kingdom of Great Britain & Ireland, the Channel Islands, & the Isle of Man, would not be impeached by the fact, if proved, of prior use of the invention in Natal.—ROLLS v. ISAACS (1881), 19 Ch. D. 268; 51 L. J. Ch. 170; 45 L. T. 704; 30 W. R. 243.

76. What amounts to communication—Question of fact.]—STEAD v. WILLIAMS, No. 20, ante.

77. —— Oral communication within realm by agent of foreigner resident abroad.]—PILKINGTON v. YEAKLEY VACUUM HAMMER CO. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 459, C. A.

78. —— ——.]—Re JAMESON'S PATENT (1902), 19 R. P. C. 246.

79. Sufficiency of communication.]—Though the grantee of a patent for an invention communicated to him by a foreigner resident abroad is only bound to tell the public all that he himself knows, yet, if the original inventor has not told him enough to enable him so to describe the invention as that it can be constructed by the aid only of the specification, the patent will be invalid.—WEGMANN v. CORCORAN (1879), 13 Ch. D. 65; 41 L. T. 358; 28 W. R. 331, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (1885), 29 Ch. D. 366.

Part IV.—Subject-Matter of Patent.

SECT. 1.—WHAT CONSTITUTES SUBJECT-MATTER.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

See Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), s. 5; & Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 93.

80. Subject-matter at common law—"New trade" or "engine tending to the furtherance of trade."]—DARCY v. ALLIN, No. 436, post.

81. —— "New invention" or "new trade."]—IPSWICH CLOTHWORKERS' CASE, No. 437, post.

82. Subject-matter under statute—New "art."]—A grant of the sole use of a new invented art, & this is good, being indulged for the encouragement of ingenuity; but this is tied up by Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), s. 6, to the term of fourteen years; for after that time it is presumed to be a known trade, & to have spread itself among the people (PARKE, C.J.).—MITCHEL v. REYNOLDS (1713), 1 P. Wms. 181; 10 Mod. Rep. 130; 24 E. R. 347.

Annotations:—Refd. Mouchell v. Cubitt (1907), 24 R. P. C. 194. Mentd. Shelton v. Sire (1719), 11 Mod. Rep. 310; Chesman v. Nainby (1726), 2 Stra. 739; Cheesman v. Ramby (1728), Fortes. Rep. 297; Gunmakers' Co. v. Fell (1742), Willes, 384; Low v. Peers (1770), Wilm. 364; Davis v. Mason (1793), 5 Term Rep. 118; Gale v. Reed (1806), 8 East, 80; Hayward v. Young (1818), 2 Chit. 407; Homer v. Ashford (1825), 3 Bing. 322; Wickens v. Evans (1829), 3 Y. & J. 318; Horner v. Graves (1831), 7 Bing. 735; Young v. Timmins (1831), 1 Cr. & J. 331; Keppel v. Bailey (1834), 2 My. & K. 517; Hitchcock v. Coker (1837), 6 Ad. & El. 438; Wallis v. Day (1837), 2 M. & W. 273; Ward v. Byrne (1839), 5 M. & W. 548; Mallan v. May (1843), 11 M. & W. 653; Tallis v. Tallis (1853), 1 E. & B. 391; Dendy v. Henderson (1855), 11 Exch. 194; Catt v. Tourle (1869), 4 Ch. App. 654; Wilkinson v. Wilkinson (1871), L. R. 12 Eq. 604; Gravely v. Barnard (1874), L. R. 18 Eq. 518; Collins v. Locke (1879), 4 App. Cas. 674; Rousillon v. Rousillon (1880), 14 Ch. D. 351; Davies v. Davies (1887), 36 Ch. D. 359; Clegg v. Hands (1889), 44 Ch. D. 506, n.; Mogul S.S. Co. v. McGregor, Gow (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 598; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Schott, Segner, [1892] 3 Ch. 447; Nordenfelt v. Maxim Nordenfelt Guns & Ammunition Co., [1894] A. C. 535; Kruse v. Johnson, [1898] 2 Q. B. 91; Robinson v. Heuer (1898), 67 L. J. Ch. 644; Haynes v. Doman [1899] 2 Ch. 13; Re Hollis' Hospital Trustees & Hague's Contract (1899), 47 W. R. 691; Dowden v. Pook, [1904] 1 K. B. 45; Re Morgan, Dowson v. Davey (1910), 26 T. L. R. 398; North-Western Salt Co. v. Electrolytic Alkali Co. (1912), 107 L. T. 439; Neville v. Dominion of Canada News Co., [1915] 3 K. B. 556; Morris v. Saxelby, [1916] 1 A. C. 688; Horwood v. Millar's Timber & Trading Co., [1917] 1 K. B. 305; Rodriquez v. Speyer, [1919] A. C. 59; Hepworth Manufacturing Co. v. Ryott, [1920] 1 Ch. 1.

83. Apparatus admitting of greatest improvements.]—Patent for "an improved application of air to produce heat in fires, forges, & furnaces where bellows or other blowing apparatus are required." The specification stated, that a blast or current of air was to be produced by bellows or other blowing apparatus, in the ordinary way, & passed from the bellows into an air vessel, & through that vessel, by means of a tube, into the fire, forge, or furnace. The vessel was to be air tight, except as to the apertures for the admission & emission of air, &, during the continuance of the blast was to be kept heated to a considerable temperature. It would be better that the temperature should be kept at a red heat, or nearly so; but so high a temperature was not absolutely necessary, to produce a beneficial effect. The air vessel might be of iron, or other materials; the size would depend upon the blast, & on the heat to be produced. "The form or shape of the vessel or receptacle is immaterial to the effect, & may be adapted to the local circumstances or situation." Defts., in their fourth plea, set out the above specification, & then pleaded that pltf. did not, "by the said instrument in writing, particularly describe & ascertain the nature of his supposed invention, & in what manner the same was to be performed":—Held: (1) the title of the patent was good, & was sufficiently explained by the specification; (2) pltfs., in this specification, had not merely claimed a principle, but a machine

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.

g. Subject-matter under statute—"Composition of matter."]—The words "composition of matter" in Patent Act, s. 7, include all composite articles, whether they be the result of chemical union or of mechanical mixture, & the latter may therefore be the subject-matter of a patent.—ELECTRIC FIRE PROOFING CO. v. ELECTRIC FIRE-PROOFING CO. OF CANADA (1907), Q. R. 31 S. C. 34.—CAN.

h. Apparatus not reduced to practical shape.]—In order to prove an "invention" capable of being patented under embodying a principle; (3) it is the province of the ct. to construe all written documents, as soon as the surrounding circumstances, if any, or the technical or mercantile language in which they may be couched, shall have been ascertained as facts by the jury. The ct., therefore, & not the jury, is to construe the meaning of the specification; (4) a specification, to be valid, must be such as would enable a competent workman fairly following it out, without invention or addition, to produce the machine for which the patent is taken out; (5) the meaning of the words in the specification, "the form or shape of the vessel or receptacle is immaterial to the effect," was, that provided the air in the air vessel were raised to a sufficient temperature, a beneficial effect on the furnace would be produced, whatever might be the manner of applying the heat to the air vessel; &, the jury having found that the description would enable a competent workman to make such an air vessel as should produce a beneficial effect, the specification was good, & the patent might be supported.—NEILSON v. HARFORD (1841), 8 M. & W. 806; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 331; 11 L. J. Ex. 20; 151 E. R. 1266.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Stead v. Williams (1844), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 137. As to (2) Consd. Ticket Punch Register Co. v. Colley's Patents (1895), 12 R. P. C. 171; Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Tubeless Pneumatic Tyre & Capon Heaton (1898), 14 T. L. R. 341. As to (3) Apld. Allen v. Rawson (1845), 1 C. B. 551; Hill v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288. Betts v. Menzies (1862), 10 H. L. Cas. 118. Refd. Beard v. Egerton (1849), 8 C. B. 165; Hills v. London Gas Light Co. (1860), 5 H. & N. 312; Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1888), 4 T. L. R. 686. As to (4) Refd. Cook v. Pearce (1844), 13 L. J. Q. B. 189. Generally, Refd. Crane v. Price (1842), 12 L. J. C. P. 81; Millengen v. Picken (1845), 1 C. B. 799; Unwin v. Heath (1855), 5 H. L. Cas. 505; Simpson v. Holliday (1865), 13 W. R. 577. Mentd. Hull v. Bolland (1856), 27 L. T. O. S. 221; Berwick v. Horsfall (1858), 4 C. B. N. S. 450; Peek v. North Staffordshire Ry. (1863), 10 H. L. Cas. 473; Lewis v. G. W. Ry. (1877), 47 L. J. Q. B. 131; Re North Western Rubber Co. & Hüttenbach, [1908] 2 K. B. 907.

84. Apparatus giving no beneficial result without further experiment.]—NEILSON v. HARFORD, No. 83, ante.

—— "Any manner of new manufacture."]—See Sub-sect. 2, post.

85. Delay in patenting article—After complete workable machine made.]—(1) If the inventor of a machine lend it to another in order to have its qualities tested, & that other use it for some weeks in a public workroom; this is not giving the invention such publicity as to deprive the inventor of his right to obtain letters patent therefor it.

(2) A machine does not cease to be the subject of a patent, merely because of the length of time during which the inventor may keep it by him, after it has been made a complete workable machine.—BENTLEY v. FLEMING (1844), 1 Car. & Kir. 587; 4 L. T. O. S. 95, N. P.; subsequent proceedings (1845), 1 C. B. 479.

Annotation:—As to (1) Refd. Re Newall, Elliot & Glass (1858), 4 C. B. N. S. 269.

86. Substitution of material never before used for particular purpose.]—In construing a specification, it is not competent to the inventor to pray in aid the provisional specification in order to explain or enlarge the meaning of the complete specification. Qu.: whether the application in the construction of a known machine of a material never before used for that purpose, for instance, iron instead of timber in the construction of floating-docks, can properly be the subject of a patent.—MACKELCAN v. RENNIE (1862), 13 C. B. N. S. 52; 143 E. R. 21.

87. Apparatus contrary to public policy.]—The question, however, arises whether, quite apart from sect. 75 [of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29)], the Crown in the exercise of its prerogative could possibly be expected to exercise its discretion to grant a patent for an article designed as an apparatus for the prevention of conception . . . I think these are not articles for which, whether the specification be amended or not, the Crown can be expected to exercise its discretion by way of granting a patent (SIR THOMAS INSKIP, S.-G.).—Re A. & H.'s APPLICATION (1927), 44 R. P. C. 298.

SUB-SECT. 2.—"MANNER OF NEW MANUFACTURE."

See Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), s. 5; & Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 93.

88. Question for jury.]—Prior to the date of pltf.'s patent granted to him in 1843, madder dye had been obtained from fresh madder by the application of hot water, but there still remained in the dye vats a residuum called "spent madder," which was known to contain some colouring matter, but which had never been extracted from it, & the "spent madder" was consequently thrown away as useless. Some time prior to pltf.'s patent a process was discovered, which, by the application of hot water & acid to fresh madder, produced a dye called garancine, which possessed different properties to the old madder dye. This process extracted the whole of the colouring matter from the fresh madder. Pltf. by his patent, claimed the application of this process to "spent madder," whereby he obtained garancine; & the "spent madder" thereby became of much value:—Held: as "spent madder" might be in its nature & properties the same as or different from "fresh madder" it did not follow, as matter of law, that pltf.'s patent was void; but it was a question of fact for the jury, whether pltf.'s invention was a new manufacture of garancine.

If, therefore, the patent be good, it must be on account of the old continuance being applied to a new object, under such circumstances as to support the patent. Now "spent madder" might be a very different thing from "fresh madder," in its properties chemical & otherwise. Or it might be in effect the same thing as "fresh madder," in its properties chemical & otherwise, with the difference only that part of its colouring matter had been already extracted (PATTERSON, J.).—STEINER v. HEALD (1851), 6 Exch. 607; 20 L. J. Ex. 410; 17 L. T. O. S. 131; 17 Jur. 875; 155 E. R. 686, Ex. Ch.

*Annotations:—Refd. Holmes v. L. & N. W. Ry. (1852), Macr. 4; Booth v. Kennard (1856), 1 H. & N. 527; Brook & Hirst v. Aston (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 1025.

89. How determined.]—WALTON v. BATEMAN, No. 64, ante.

90. Includes both mechanical & chemical discoveries.]—(1) A patent was granted to A. for a new invented method of using an old engine in a more beneficial manner than was before known. The specification stated that the method consisted of certain principles, & described the mode of applying those principles to the purposes of the invention, & an Act of Parliament reciting the patent to have been for the making & vending

Canadian Patent Act, s. 7, it is not sufficient to show that the alleged inventor thought of a process in his own mind, if he did not reduce it to a practical shape, or test it by experiments for that purpose.—PERMUTIT Co. v. BORROWMAN (1926), 95 L. J. P. C. 164; [1926] 4 D. L. R. 285.—CAN.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sects. 2 & 3, A.] certain engines by him invented, extended to A. for a longer term than fourteen years, the privilege of making, constructing & selling the engines. Qu.: whether, under these circumstances, the patent right was valid.

(2) Mechanical & chemical discoveries all come within the description of manufactures; & it is no objection to either of them that the articles of which they are composed were known & were in use before, provided the compound article which is the object of the invention is new (BULLER, J.).

(3) That which is the subject of a patent, ought to be specified, & it ought to be that which is vendible, otherwise it cannot be a manufacture (HEATH, J.).

(4) The word "manufacture" in the Statute [Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3)] was of extensive signification, it applied not only to things made, but to the practice of making, to principles carried into practice in a new manner, to new results of principles carried into practice (EYRE, C.J.).

(5) It can scarcely be supposed that a workman capable of constructing a fire engine would not be capable of making such additions to it as should be necessary to enable him to execute that which the specification requires him to do. . . . Can it be imagined that he would be so stupid as not to be able to execute this improvement, with the assistance of these plain directions? If any man could for a moment imagine that this was possible, I observe that this difficulty is put an end to, because the jury have found that a workman can execute this improvement in consequence of the specification (EYRE, C.J.).—BOULTON v. BULL (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 117; 126 E. R. 651.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Cambridge & Oxford Universities v. Richardson (1802), 6 Ves. 689. As to (4) Consd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429. Refd. Gibson v. Braud (1842), 4 Man. & G. 179; Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 5 T. L. R. 294. Generally, Refd. Harmer v. Plane (1807), 14 Ves. 130; Hill v. Thompson (1817), 3 Mer. 622; Jupe v. Pratt (1836), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 144; Neilson v. Harford (1841), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 331; Cook v. Pearce (1843), 8 Q. B. 1044. Mentd. Brown v. Annandale (1842), 8 Cl. & Fin. 437.

91. Must be vendible.] — BOULTON v. BULL, No. 90, ante.

92. ——.]—R. v. WHEELER, No. 149, post.

93. ——.] — CORNISH & SIEVIER v. KEENE & NICKELS, No. 481, post.

94. Must be associated with commerce & trade.]—I think, therefore, we must start with the assumption that an invention within the meaning of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), is an invention for a manner of new manufacture that is in some way associated with commerce & trade. It is quite plain that that does not merely mean that it must be a product. A manner of new manufacture may be a thing newly made, or a substance which, if made before, is improved in its manufacture, or, quite apart from that, it may be a machine or a process that can be used in making something that is, or may be, of commercial value (SIR STANLEY BUCKMASTER, S.-G.).—Re C. & W.'s APPLICATION (1914), 31 R. P. C. 235.

95. Whether process of making included.]—BOULTON v. BULL, No. 90, ante.

96. ——.]—R. v. WHEELER, No. 149, post.

97. ——.]—(1) The object of the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, was only to permit a disclaimer to amend the specification of a patent, by removing from it something superfluous, but not to allow the introduction of that which would convert a description, in itself unintelligible or impracticable, into a practicable description of a useful invention. The words "not being such a disclaimer as shall extend the exclusive right," do not mean in the ordinary sense of the word "extend," merely adding to or enlarging the original specification, but are also intended to describe, so confining & restricting its expressions as substantially to amount to a statement of something new.

(2) It is not every useful discovery that can be made the subject of a patent, but the words "new manufacture," in Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), will comprehend not only a production, but the means of producing it.

R. took out a patent for "Improvements in embossing & finishing woven fabrics, & in the machinery & apparatus employed therein." In his specification he said, "I employ a roller of metal, wood, or other suitable material, & groove, flute, engrave, mill, or otherwise indent upon it any desired design"; he caused this roller to revolve with a bowl at unequal velocities, moving the fabric transversely when fed into the machine, & by these means he proposed to calender or finish, & to emboss the fabric by one process instead of two, as then practised. He afterwards entered a "disclaimer," in which he disclaimed the words in the title, "& in the machinery or apparatus employed therein," disclaimed the word "wood" from the description of the roller, & restricted the grooves or flutes on the roller to those of a circular kind. Any other grooves would not only not produce the desired effect on the fabric but would destroy it:—Held: (3) the original specification read with the disclaimer did not describe anything which could properly be the subject of a patent such as he had taken out.

If we look at this patent, & inquire whether there is an improvement in embossing or finishing woven fabrics contained in this amended specification, I am bound to say, that having regard to existing knowledge at the time, I think there is no such improvement as amounts to a new manufacture, because this mode of producing a brilliant gloss upon the surface was perfectly well known; the operation of the differential velocity was also perfectly well known; that the same thing had been thought of for the purposes of producing a pattern was also perfectly well known (LORD WESTBURY, C.).

(4) The disclaimer here extended the exclusive right, & so had done what the statute did not intend to allow, & consequently was bad, & the patent could not be supported.—RALSTON v. SMITH (1865), 11 H. L. Cas. 223; 20 C. B. N. S. 28; 35 L. J. C. P. 49; 13 L. T. 1; 11 E. R. 1318, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Re Alsop's Patent, [1906] 1 Ch. 85; Re Stahlwerk Becker Akt. Patent, [1917] 2 Ch. 272. As to (2) Folld. Chamberlain & Hookham v. Bradford Corpn. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 673. As to (3) Distd. Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse & Rawson (1887), 3 T. L. R. 327. Apld. Re British Thomson-Houston Co.'s Patent (1919), 89 L. J. Ch. 194. Refd. Wegmann v. Corcoran (1879), 13 Ch. D. 65. Generally, Refd. Acetylene Illuminating Co. v. United Alkali Co. (1905), 22 R. P. C. 145.

98. —— Something that is or may be of commercial value.] — Re C. & W.'s APPLICATION, No. 94, ante.

99. What amounts to—Substance newly made or improved in manufacture.]—Re C. & W.'s APPLICATION, No. 94, ante.

100. —— New system or method must be employed—Paving with wood.]—STEAD v. WILLIAMS, No. 20, ante.

101. —— —— Construction of caisson.] — BUSH v. FOX, No. 616, post.

102. —— —— Correspondence cards.] — Re JOHNSON'S APPLICATION (1901), 19 R. P. C. 56.
Annotation :—Apld. Re Ward's Appln. (1911), 29 R. P. C. 79.

103. —— —— Blank space for folding newspaper.] — Re COOPER'S APPLICATION (1901), 19 R. P. C. 53.
Annotations :—Consd. Re Ward's Appln. (1911), 29 R. P. C. 79. Folld. Re D. A. & K.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

104. —— —— Indexing.] — Re WARD'S APPLICATION (1911), 29 R. P. C. 79.
Annotation :—Consd. Re D. A. & K.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

105. —— —— Extracting lead from human bodies.]—Re C. & W.'s APPLICATION, No. 94, ante.

106. —— —— Musical notation.] — Re C.'s APPLICATION (1919), 37 R. P. C. 247.
Annotation :—Consd. Re D. A. & K.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

107. —— —— Camouflage.]—Re T.'s APPLICATION (1919), 37 R. P. C. 109.

108. —— —— Defence & attack against submarines.] — Re F.'s APPLICATION (1920), 37 R. P. C. 112.

109. —— —— Operating high compression internal combustion engine.] — Re D. Co.'s APPLICATION (1921), 38 R. P. C. 397.

110. —— —— Enriching atmosphere round plants.]—Re B. R.'s APPLICATION (1923), 40 R. P. C 469.

111. —— —— Utilising impure & exhaust gases.]—Re A. R.'s APPLICATION (1923), 40 R. P. C. 467.

112. —— —— Selection of contents of side of gramophone record.]—Re S.'s APPLICATION (1923), 40 R. P. C. 461.
Annotation :—Refd. Re D. A. & K.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

113. —— —— Indication on odometer.]—Re A. E. W.'s APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 529.

114. —— —— Arrangement of well-known objects—Buoys.]—In order to determine that [i.e. whether the arrangement in question is an invention], I turn to Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 93, & find that "invention" means "any manner of new manufacture the subject of letters patent," & that it also includes an "alleged invention." . . . I cannot see that it is an invention that involves any manner of new manufacture at all. It is nothing but an arrangement of well known forms of signals so that the position of any one of such signals may be known by a number painted on its face (SIR STANLEY BUCKMASTER, S.-G.).—Re W.'s APPLICATION (1914), 31 R. P. C. 141.
Annotation :—Refd. Re D. A. & K.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

115. —— —— —— To facilitate reference.]—Re W. R.'s APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 216.
Annotation :—Consd. Re D. A. & K.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

Apparatus for icing cakes.]
Re D. A. & K.'s APPLICATION (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

SUB-SECT. 3.—"INVENTION."

A. In General.

Statutory definition.]—See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 39), s. 93.

117. Invention & discovery distinguished.]—(1) Pltf., an electrician, took out, in 1878, a patent for "Improvements in obtaining light by Electricity, & in conveying, distributing, measuring, & regulating the electric current for the same, & in the means or appliances employed therein." He subsequently disclaimed his claims in respect of measuring, conveying, distributing, & regulating by means of the electrometer, & only claimed in respect of an invention for keeping the electromotive force of the electric current in the mains constant by means of the employment of Planté's secondary batteries, in combination with dynamos, & in conjunction with a regulator :—Held : pltf.'s invention was novel ; but his patent, as amended, was invalid upon the grounds (a) that the original patent was granted for an invention different from that for which he claimed protection after the disclaimers, (b) that it was not, in 1878, useful for the main purpose for which it was designated, viz., the practical lighting of large districts, & (c) that the specification was insufficient to enable an electrician, of ordinary competence & skill in 1878, to carry it out without further experiments & invention.

(2) An invention is not the same thing as a discovery. When Volta discovered the effect of an electric current from his battery on a frog's leg he made a great discovery, but no patentable invention. Again, a man who discovers that a known machine can produce effects which no one before him knew could be produced by it, may make a great & useful discovery ; but if he does no more, his discovery is not a patentable invention. A patentee must make some addition, not only to knowledge, but to previously known inventions, & must so use his knowledge & ingenuity as to produce either a new & useful thing or result, or a new & useful method of producing an old thing or result.—LANE FOX v. KENSINGTON & KNIGHTSBRIDGE ELECTRIC LIGHTING CO., [1892] 3 Ch. 424 ; 67 L. T. 440 ; 8 T. L. R. 798 ; 9 R. P. C. 413, C. A.
Annotations :—As to (1) Refd. Re Alsop's Patent (1907), 24 R. P. C. 733 ; Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239 ; Higginson & Arundel v. Pyman (1926), 43 R. P. C. 291. As to (2) Apld. Moser v. Marsden (1893), 9 T. L. R. 584 ; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429 ; Acetylene Illuminating Co. v. United Alkali Co. (1904), 22 R. P. C. 145 ; Jandus Arc Lamp & Electric Co. v. Arc Lamps (1905), 21 T. L. R. 308 ; Re Deutsche Gasglühlicht Akt. Appln. (1908), 26 R. P. C. 101 ; Benton & Stone v. Denston (1925), 42 R. P. C. 284. Refd. Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569 ; Mouchel v. Coignet (1907), 24 R. P. C. 229 ; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95.

118. ——.] — Invention & discovery are different things. You may discover that a thing which you know very well is useful for another purpose. As I understand the law that is not an invention. You may so apply your judgment as to employ old materials for new & useful purposes ; but you cannot have a patent for that. . . . To take old tools & apply them to new purposes may be a new discovery, but it is not a new patentable invention ; you must, as I understand the law, by the use of inventive faculties arrive at what is, within the patent law, a new manufacture (BUCKLEY, J.).—CASE v. CRESSY (1900), 17 R. P. C. 255 ; affd. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 417, C. A.
Annotation :—Refd. Hill v. Thomas (1907), 24 R. P. C. 415.

119. ——.] — A patent was granted to R. for improvements in means for repairing pneumatic tyres, consisting of using a strip of canvas with a piece of india rubber attached thereto, adapted to be fixed round the outside of a damaged pneumatic tyre, & to have its ends gripped between the outer cover & the rim. An action having been brought for infringement of this patent, deft., in addition to denying infringement, alleged want of novelty & want of subject matter :—

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 3, A., B. & C. (a) & (b).]

Held: the patentee had not suggested anything new in the particular article which he had patented, & failed on subject matter & on novelty.

The difference between discovery & invention is very familiar. Discovery adds to the amount of human knowledge. . . . Invention also adds to human knowledge, but not merely by disclosing something. Invention necessarily involves also the suggestion of an act to be done & it must be an act which results in a new product or a new result or a new process, or a new combination for producing an old product or an old result (BUCKLEY, J.).—REYNOLDS v. HERBERT SMITH & CO., LTD. (1902), 20 R. P. C. 123; affd. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 410, C. A.

Annotation:— Apld. Mouchel v. Colgnet (1907), 24 R. P. C. 229.

120. ——.]—The owners of a patent for "Improvements in electricity meters, parts of which improvements are applicable to dynamo electric generators & motors," sued the Mayor, etc. of Bradford for infringement. Defts. pleaded non-infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid by reason of insufficiency, want of utility, prior publication, & disconformity:—Held: defts. had not infringed.

It is not every useful discovery which will constitute a patentable invention, & to tell a man who has been in the habit of using magnets of various forms for various purposes that one particular form has a useful property which was unknown to him before is not in any sense to invent a new manufacture (LORD DAVEY).

The question in every case is, in what consists the originality . . . of the patented invention? If that includes the discovery . . . of a new principle as well as the means of carrying it into effect, an infringer is not entitled to take the principle although he uses somewhat different machinery for the application of it to a practical purpose (LORD DAVEY).—CHAMBERLAIN & HOOKHAM, LTD. v. BRADFORD CORPN. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 673, H. L.

Annotations:—Refd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Simon Collier (1908), 25 T. L. R. 74; Crosfield v. Techno-Chemical Laboratories (1913), 29 T. L. R. 378; Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239.

121. ——.]—You cannot take out a patent for the discovery that ferro-cemented piles will resist percussion strains; the only thing you can take out a patent for, in such a matter, would be a pile of a particular form, so as to get the benefit of that new truth which is thus so first "discovered" (FARWELL, L.J.).—MOUCHEL v. COIGNET (1907), 24 R. P. C. 229, C. A.

B. Necessity for.

See Sect. 2, post.

C. Existence of "Invention."

(a) In General.

122. Question of fact.]—VICKERS, SONS & CO. v. SIDDELL, No. 910, post.

123. ——.]—LYON v. GODDARD, No. 561, post.

124. Improved process.]—It would not be sufficient to destroy the patent to show, that learned persons in their studies had foreseen, or had found out this discovery, that is afterwards made public, or that a man in his private warehouse had by various experiments endeavoured to discover it & failed, & had given it up. But if . . . the thing which is now sought to be protected by the patent has been used, & for a considerable period, & used so far to the benefit of the public as to be sold to any body that thought proper to purchase it of those who made it, then it becomes a material question, whether such mode of user is not in your judgment a public using of the article, of the process, or of the invention, before the letters patent were granted (TINDAL, C.J.).—GIBSON v. BRAND (1841), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 627.

125. New material to produce known article.]—Pltf. obtained a patent for the use of animal fibre, by preference Russian wool, or wool of a coarse texture, in the manufacture of artificial hair to be made up as ladies' headdresses, & for upholstery, & other like purposes. Upon bill filed to restrain an infringement of the patent:—Held: the specification was too extensive; even the use of a new material to produce a known article could not be the subject of a patent unless some invention & ingenuity were displayed in the adaptation; in this case a prior use of wool for the same purpose was proved by the evidence, & the bill must be dismissed with costs.—RUSHTON v. CRAWLEY (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 522.

Annotations:—Refd. Rollins v. Hinks (1872), L. R. 13 Eq. 355; Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239.

126. New use of known product.]—Re A. F.'s APPLICATION (1913), 31 R. P. C. 58.

Annotation:—Refd. Re D. A. & K.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

127. Alleged invention nothing more than fundamental principle.]—A patent was granted for "Improvement in clocks, tell-tales, alarums & the like." The first claim was as follows. "In a gravity clock having the driving pinion of the clockwork engaging a vertical rack down which the clock in working falls, the addition of a weight to the clock, the clock together with the weight being so balanced & guided that practically the entire weight of the clock & supplementary weight act at the point of contact of the pinion on the vertical rack substantially as described." A further patent for "Improvements relating to clocks" was applied for by the same inventor after the complete specification of the first patent had been lodged, but before it had been accepted. The first claim of the second patent was as follows: "In a gravity clock of the kind claimed in specification of letters Patent No. 23,149 of 1910 arranging or disposing the additional weight, or providing means, so that the centre of gravity of the additional weight & clock is substantially in the same plane as the driving pinion for the clockwork mechanism & the vertical rack substantially as hereinbefore described." In an action for infringement of both patents defts. alleged (inter alia) want of novelty, utility & subject-matter:—Held: infringement being admitted & proved, as regards the first patent (a) the suggestion to add such

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 3.—C. (a).

k. General rule.]—A patent must be for a thing invented, as well as new & useful; a process which any skilful mechanic or chemist would suggest when required, or the result of judgment & skill in the selection & adaptation of materials, is no invention.—Re ALLAN & REED (1888), 14 Q. L. R. 126.—CAN.

122 i. Question of fact.]—SMITH v. MUTCHMORE (1862), 11 C. P. 458.—CAN.

122 ii. ——.]—KEMP v. CHOWN & CO. (1902), 7 Exch. C. R. 306; 22 C. L. T. 89.—CAN.

122 iii. ——.]—An invention is not capable of exact definition & is always a question of fact.—WRIGHT & CORSON v. BRAKE SERVICE, LTD., [1925] Exch. C. R. 127.—CAN.

1. Solution of problem hitherto thought insoluble.]—The Comr. of Patents should not refuse to accept an application & specification in respect of an alleged invention that is said to solve a problem which hitherto has been thought to be insoluble, merely additional weight as might be necessary to the clock was nothing more than a recognition & statement of the most fundamental principle or axiom in the designing of any clock; (b) the alleged element of invention consisting in the direction so to balance & guide the clock that the total weight should act at the point of contact of the pinion on the rack was only recognising & insisting on an obvious addition of efficiency familiar to any clock designer with ordinary mechanical knowledge & experience; (c) the alleged element of invention consisting in the balancing & guiding by means of a column other than & additional to that containing the rack was quite insufficient for the purpose & produced no appreciable advantage so far as time-keeping was concerned; & as regards the second patent, (d) the legal result of the patent having been applied for after the date of the lodging of the complete specification of the first patent but before its acceptance was the same as if such complete specification had been accepted before the date of application for the second patent; (e) the alleged element of invention consisting in bringing the centre of gravity of the weighted clock into the plane of the rack & driving pinions was merely a correction of an obvious defect in the machine described in the first specification & could not be considered an invention; & both patents were invalid for want of subject-matter.—BLOXHAM v. KEE-LESS CLOCK CO. (1922), 39 R. P. C. 195.

128. Alleged invention merely matter of design.]—SAFVEANS AKTIE BOLAG v. FORD MOTOR CO. (ENGLAND), LTD. (1926), 44 R. P. C. 49.

(b) Matter for Consideration.

129. Mode of invention—Accident or design.]—LIARDET v. JOHNSON (1778), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 53; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 35; Bull. N. P. 76 b; subsequent proceedings (1780), 1 Y. & C. Ch. Cas. 527, n.

Annotations:—Mentd. Harmar v. Playne (1809), 11 East, 101; Lewis v. Marling (1829), 8 L. J. O. S. K. B. 46; Morgan v. Seaward (1836), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 170.

130. —— ——.]—CRANE v. PRICE, No. 315, post.

131. —— ——.]—An invention is none the less an invention because it required but small inventive powers to enable him to do it (BRAMWELL, L.J.).—HAYWARD v. HAMILTON (1881), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 115, C. A.

Annotations:—Distd. Blakey v. Latham (1889), 5 T. L. R. 301. Consd. Williams v. Nye (1890), 7 R. P. C. 62; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569. Refd. Reynolds v. Amos (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886) 201; Thomson v. American Braided Wire Co. (1889), 6 R. P. C. 518; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 431; Hill v. Thomas (1907), 24 R. P. C. 415.

132. —— Degree of labour & amount of expense involved.]—CRANE v. PRICE, No. 315, post.

133. Commercial utility.]—If, within a short time of the first manufacture & sale of an article of commerce, protected by letters patent, such article commands a ready & extensive market, that fact, which is proof of utility, must also be accepted as evidence—not conclusive, but cogent —of novelty.—EHRLICH v. IHLEE (1888), 4 T. L. R. 337; 5 R. P. C. 198; affd., 5 R. P. C. 437, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Gadd v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Cassel Gold Extracting Co. v. Cyanide Gold Recovery Syndicate (1895), 11 T. L. R. 345; Shrewsbury & Talbot S. T. Cab Co. v. Sterckx (1895), 12 T. L. R. 122; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Leicester Pneumatic Tyre & Automatic Valve Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 50, 531.

134. ——.]—LONGBOTTOM v. SHAW (1891), 8 R. P. C. 333, H. L.

Annotation:—Mentd. Mandleberg v. Morley (1895), 64 L. J. Ch. 245.

135. ——.]—RIEKMANN v. THIERRY, No. 372, post.

136. ——.]—THERMOS, LTD. v. ISOLA, LTD., No. 377, post.

137. Existence of long unsatisfied demand.]—Where there has been for some time a long unsatisfied demand, & then suddenly an article springs into existence & satisfies it, the length of time during which the demand has remained uncomplied with is matter from which it may be inferred that it is ingenuity alone which has enabled the inventor to surmount that obstacle which otherwise would seem, from the mere existence of the long unsatisfied demand, to have existed somewhere or in some shape. But it may be that the demand itself is quite new, & that the novelty of the demand has produced immediately, & without any operation of ingenuity, an obvious article to satisfy it.—GOSNELL v. BISHOP (1888), 4 T. L. R. 397; 5 R. P. C. 151, C. A.

Annotations:—Consd. Auster v. Perfecta Motor Equipments (1924), 41 R. P. C. 482. Refd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1924), 41 R. P. C. 241.

138. ——.]—TAYLOR & SCOTT v. ANNAND & NORTHERN PRESS & ENGINEERING CO., LTD. (1900), 18 R. P. C. 53, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Benton & Stone v. Denston (1925), 42 R. P. C. 284. Refd. Van Berkel v. Simpson (1906), 24 R. P. C. 117.

139. ——.]—A patent was granted to B. for improvements relating to the extraction of dust from carpets, etc. The owners of the patent brought an action for infringement against the S. co., the L. co. & J. S. who was the secretary & manager of, &, as pltfs. alleged, a shareholder in the S. co. Defts. denied infringement & set up the invalidity of the patent. In the course of the trial the action was dismissed against the L. co. with costs:—Held: according to the true construction of the specification the patent was for an instrument to carry out a particular process, & was valid; & the S. co. had infringed, & an injunction was granted against them; but no case had been made out against J. S., & the action was dismissed as against him with costs.

Although utility & novelty are two distinct things, still the fact of utility, when it takes the shape of a sudden & great success for a newly produced article, is some evidence of the novelty of the means or process by which that so useful article was produced. If it had not required invention of a sort, it might be well said that the world would long before have discovered what it then found it wanted so much (FARWELL, J.).—BRITISH VACUUM CLEANER CO., LTD. v. SUCTION CLEANERS, LTD. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 303.

because the alleged invention is very similar to a contrivance intended to effect the same object which was patented in the Commonwealth many years ago.—CALDWELL v. PATENTS COMR. (1916), 22 C. L. R. 187.—AUS.

m. Must be more than mere use of known device.]—Where a process was not a mere use of known devices without any inventive exertion of the mind:—Held: a patent ought not to be granted.—HENRY BERRY & CO., PROPERTY, LTD. v. POTTER (1924), 35 C. L. R. 132; 31 Argus L. R. 4.—AUS.

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 3.—C. (b).

133 i. Commercial utility.]—AMERICAN ARCH CO. v. CANUCK SUPPLY CO., LTD., [1924] 3 D. L. R. 567; 30 R. L. N. S. 449.—CAN.

133 ii. ——.]—Where a patent has been adopted & imitated by other makers because it remedies certain defects in the previously existing cup-headed & other roofing-nails, which defects have been recognised as existing for some considerable time, & have not been overcome by other makers, these facts are sufficient to show that there has been on the part of the patentee such an exercise of the inventive faculty as justifies the grant of a patent.—STOKES v. DAVENPORT & SON (1893), 11 N. Z. L. R. 321.—N.Z.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 3, C. (b); sub-sect. 4, A.]

140. ——.]—That invention was required appears from this, that, although there was a demand for a machine such as pltfs.', & attempts had been made to produce one, no person prior to the production of pltfs.' machine had been thoroughly successful in those attempts (ROMER, L.J.).—GAMMONS v. BATTERSBY (1904), 21 R. P. C. 322, C. A.

Annotations :—Refd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Thompson (1904), 22 R. P. C. 175; Gammons v. Singer Manufacturing Co. (1905), 22 R. P. C. 452.

141. ——.]—A patent was granted for improvements in or relating to safety devices or lifeguards for motor vehicles." One of the claims was for "a guard for a motor vehicle consisting of a frame or the like carried along the side of the vehicle & crossing the path of the rear wheels at a slight inclination, substantially as & for the purpose described." At the trial of an action for infringement of the patent, the only defences raised were want of novelty & of subject-matter:—Held: the evidence did not establish a want long unsatisfied & the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.—BONNARD v. LONDON GENERAL OMNIBUS CO., LTD. (1920), 38 R. P. C. 1, H. L.

Annotation :—Consd. Bowen v. Pearson (1924), 42 R. P. C. 101.

142. ——.]—A patent was granted for "improvements in or relating to the wind or weather screens of motor cars & other vehicles." Claim 1 of the specification as amended, was as follows: "In wind screens for the back seats of side entrance motor & other vehicles the employment of screen mountings or supports, comprising pairs of jointed & inwardly-folding arms arranged to extend & collapse or fold in a horizontal plane & which admit of the adjustment or transposition of the screen & its supports by an occupant of the seat protected by said screen, substantially as herein described." Claim 3 was for the use of lock-action joints in connecting the screen to its supports. In an action for infringement, pltfs. alleged (inter alia) that the patent had been held valid in a prior action. Defts. admitted infringement of claims 1, 5 & 6, but denied infringement of claim 3, & alleged (inter alia) that the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter, & that the alleged invention claimed was a mere selection among possible alternatives, & a selection made for the first time on the amendment of the specification. They also alleged that the grantee was not the true & first inventor, & that the alleged invention had been made by a workman employed by the grantee:—Held: pltfs.' device was useful, & had satisfied a long-standing demand; it required some ingenuity for its production; the grantee had not made a mere selection among possible alternatives; the defence of want of subject-matter failed; that claims 1, 5 & 6 were valid; that claim 3 had not been infringed; & that the grantee was the true & first inventor.—AUSTER, LTD. v. PERFECTA MOTOR EQUIPMENTS, LTD. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 482.

143. Smallness or simplicity of invention—No bar to patent right.]—A claim for a patent for improvements in the mode of doing something by a known process, is sufficient to entitle claimant to a patent for his improvements, when applied either to the process as known at the time of the claim, or to the same process altered & improved by discoveries not known at the time of the claim, so long as it remains identical with regard to improvements claimed, & their application.

The jury found that "the sending of signals to intermediate stations" was a new invention of the patentees & had been adopted by defts. There was a distinct claim in the specification for this improvement, & the method of carrying it into effect was pointed out:—Held: this was the proper subject of a patent; & the idea & method being obvious & simple did not make any difference.—ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH CO. v. BRETT (1851), 10 C. B. 838; 20 L. J. C. P. 123; 17 L. T. O. S. 107; 15 Jur. 579; 138 E. R. 331.

Annotation :—Refd. Unwin v. Heath (1855), 5 H. L. Cas. 505.

144. —— ——.]—RIEKMANN v. THIERRY, No. 372, post.

145. —— ——.]—PARKER & SMITH v. SATCHWELL & CO., LTD., No. 304, post.

146. —— ——.]—HAYWARD v. HAMILTON, No. 131, ante.

147. —— ——.]—Pltfs. were the registered proprietors of letters patent granted for an invention of "improvements in tin openers," relating to tin openers of the kind in which a toothed member rotates round the side of the tin & drags with it a cutter operating on the top of the tin; & the invention provided for a laterally extending part associated with the toothed member, adapted to project over the edge of the tin & to rest on the top thereof. In an action for infringement of the patent deft. alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds of anticipation, want of subject-matter, want of utility & insufficiency, & at the trial relied particularly on a specification of S. as an anticipation:—Held: of the two alleged anticipations, one specification did not contain any similarity to pltfs.' invention, & S. was a mere paper anticipation, it contained no suggestion that it was desirable to have a laterally extending portion at or near the toothed wheel for the purpose described in pltfs.' specification, there was no evidence that it had ever been used, it would not perform the functions of pltfs.' invention, the knife was fixed in an entirely different manner from that shown by pltfs.' specification; the invention was useful; the description & claims in the specification were plain & free from ambiguity; the invention was not obvious, & a patent for an invention, however simple, if it was not obvious & not a mere workshop improvement on a well known tool, should be supported; & the defts. had infringed.—GIUSTI PATENTS & ENGINEERING WORKS, LTD. v. REES (1923), 40 R. P. C. 206.

Annotation :—Distd. Shaw v. Burnet (1924), 41 R. P. C. 432.

148. Absence of mechanical difficulty.]—PLACE v. BLACKBURN LOOM & WEAVING MACHINERY MAKING CO., LTD. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 587.

Novelty.]—See Sect. 2, post.

SUB-SECT. 4.—DISCOVERY AND APPLICATION OF PRINCIPLES.

A. In General.

149. General rule—Discovery of principle not patentable.]—Patent for "a new or improved

143 i Smallness or simplicity of invention—No bar to patent right.]—SMITH v. BALL (1861), 21 U. C. R. 122.—CAN.

143 ii. —— ——.]—The simplicity of an invention is no reason why a patent therefor should not be protected.—POWELL v. BEGLEY (1867), 13 Gr. 381.—CAN.

143 iii. —— ——.]—SUMMERS v. ABELL (1869), 15 Gr. 532.—CAN.

143 iv. —— ——.]—WHITE v. BERTRAMS, LTD. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 735.—SCOT.

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 4.—A.

149 i. General rule—Discovery of principle not patentable.]—There is no presumption in law in favour of the validity of a patent; & a patent for a principle & not a process is void.—Re ALLAN & REED (1888), 14 Q. L. R. 126.—CAN.

method of drying & preparing malt." In the specification it was stated, that the invention consisted in exposing malt previously made to a very high degree of heat: but it did not describe any new machine invented for that purpose; nor the state, whether moist or dry, in which the malt was originally to be taken for the purpose of being subjected to the process; nor the utmost degree of heat which might be safely used; nor the length of time to be employed; nor the exact criterion by which it might be known when the process was accomplished:—Held: (1) the patent was void; the specification was not sufficiently precise; & the patent appeared to be for a different thing from that mentioned in the specification; (2) as the word malt was here not to be taken in its usual sense, viz. of an article used in the brewing, but only in the colouring of beer, in the patent here it was necessary to have stated the purpose to which the prepared malt was to be applied, & to have said that it was obtained for a new method of drying & preparing malt to be used in the colouring of beer.

(3) Qu.: whether a patent can be good if obtained for a mere process to be carried on by known implements or elements acting upon known substances; inasmuch as the word "manufacture," in Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), seems rather to be confined either to some new article or to some new instrument, or part of an instrument, to be used in making an article previously well known, & at all events no merely philosophical or abstract principle can answer to that word, or be the subject of a patent.

The word "manufactures" has been generally understood to denote either a thing made, which is useful for its own sake, & vendible as such, as a medicine, a stove, a telescope, & many others (ABBOTT, C.J.).—R. v. WHEELER (1819), 2 B. & Ald. 345; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 394; 106 E. R. 392.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Morgan v. Seaward (1836), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 170. Distd. Neilson v. Harford (1841), 8 M. & W. 806. Consd. Cook v. Pearce (1844), 8 Q. B. 1054. Apld. Stevens v. Keating (1848), 2 Exch. 772. As to (3) Apld. Crane v. Price (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580; Gibson v. Brand (1842), 4 Man. & G. 179; Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 2 B. & S. 194. Refd. Murray v. Clayton (1872), 20 W. R. 649.

150. —— ——.]—(1) Novelty is the price paid to the public by a patentee for his monopoly. If the invention has been previously in use, the patent is void, although the patentee was not aware of such prior use.

(2) A patent cannot be granted for a principle.—GITTINS v. SYMES (1854), Macr. 300.

151. —— ——.]—(1) Where there is a principle first applied in a machine capable of carrying it into effect, the ct. looks more narrowly at those who carry out the same principle, & say they do it by a different mode, & look to see whether, in effect, although the mode is not exactly the same, it is only a colourable difference (COTTON, L.J.).

(2) A patent for a principle in one sense of the word cannot of course be taken out. Patents, instead of being beneficial to the public & beneficial to the patentees, would be intolerable nuisances if a man could patent a principle & exclude everybody from attaining the same end when they seize the idea which has actuated him (LINDLEY, L.J.).—AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO. v. KNIGHT (1889), 5 T. L. R. 359; 6 R. P. C. 297, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (2) Consd. Ticket Punch Register Co. v. Colley's Patent (1895), 12 R. P. C. 171; Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Tubeless Pneumatic Tyre & Capon Heaton (1898), 14 T. L. R. 341. Generally, Refd. Higginson & Arundel v. Pyman, Same v. Same (1926), 43 R. P. C. 291.

152. —— ——.]—In 1893 letters patent were granted to M. for "improvements in the method of producing the explosive mixture in hydrocarbon engines." The specification claimed "the method of producing the explosive mixture in hydrocarbon engines, consisting in sucking liquid hydrocarbon by the air sucked by the working piston, substantially as described"; & "the method of producing the explosive mixture in hydrocarbon-engines, consisting in sucking liquid hydrocarbon out of a nozzle." The owners of the patent having brought an action for infringement, deft. denied infringement & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the grounds of want of novelty, want of utility, want of subject-matter. Pltfs. contended that the claim was substantially for the use of the apparatus described:—Held: the claim was for a method & not for a machine, & the references to the drawings were for the purpose of illustration only & not by way of restriction; unless the patent was for a method defined & illustrated by reference to any nozzle, etc., it was bad for want of subject-matter.—BRITISH MOTOR TRACTION CO., LTD. v. FRISWELL (1901), 18 R. P. C. 497.

153. —— —— Unless coupled with discovery of mode of putting principle into practice.]—BOULTON v. BULL (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 117; 126 E. R. 651.

Annotations:—Apld. Neilson v. Harford (1841), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 331. Consd. Gibson v. Brand (1842), 4 Man. & G. 179; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429. Refd. Oxford & Cambridge Universities v. Richardson (1802), 6 Ves. 689; Jupe v. Pratt (1836), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 144; Cook v. Pearce (1843), 8 Q. B. 1044; Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 5 T. L. R. 294. Mentd. Harmer v. Plane (1807), 14 Ves. 130; Brown v. Annandale (1842), 8 Cl. & Fin. 437.

154. —— —— ——.]—A patent was granted by the Crown for fourteen years to A. for his "method of lessening the consumption of steam & fuel in fire engines"; the specification stated that the "method consisted of the following principles" (describing the mode in which those principles were applied to the purposes of the invention); afterwards an Act of Parliament was passed to extend the patentee's term, the title of which was An Act for Vesting the Sole Property, etc. "of certain Steam Engines called Fire Engines, of his Invention," etc.; & after reciting that the patent was "for making & vending certain engines by him invented for lessening the consumption of steam & fuel in fire engines," etc., it granted him the sole right of "making & selling the said engines":—Held: (1) the invention was the subject of a patent, &, the patentee having in his specification described his invention, the patentee's right under the patent & Act of Parliament was valid.

(2) I am inclined . . . to think that a patent cannot be granted for a mere principle; but I think that, although in words the privilege granted is to exercise a method of making or doing anything, yet if that thing is to be made or done by a manufacture, & the mode of making that manufacture is described, it then becomes in effect . . . not a patent for a mere principle, but for a manufacture for the thing so made, & not merely for the principle upon which it is made (GROSE, J.).

This is not a patent for a mere principle, but for the working & making of a new manufacture within the words & meaning of the statute [Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3)] (GROSE, J.).—HORNBLOWER v. BOULTON (1799), 8 Term Rep. 95; Dav. Pat. Cas. 221; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 156; 101 E. R. 1285.

Annotation:—As to (2) Apld. R. v. Wheeler (1819), 2 B. & Ald. 345.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 4, A. & B. (a).]

155. —— —— ——.]—MINTER v. WELLS, No. 42, ante.

156. —— —— ——.]—JUPE v. PRATT (1837), Goodeve's Patent Cases, 274; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 145.

Annotations:—Apld. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (1883), 24 Ch. D. 156. Consd. Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1888), 4 T. L. R. 686. Apld. Chamberlain & Hookham v. Bradford Corpn. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 673. Consd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Collier (1908), 25 T. L. R. 74. Apld. Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239. Refd. Easterbrook v. G. W. Ry. (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 81; Automatic Weighing Machine Co. v. Knight (1889), 6 R. P. C. 297; Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Tubeless Pneumatic Tyre & Capon Heaton (1898), 14 T. L. R. 341.

157. —— —— ——.]—NEILSON v. HARFORD, No. 83, ante.

158. —— —— ——.]—WALTON v. BATEMAN, No. 64, ante.

159. —— —— ——.]—(1) A. obtained a patent for an improvement in packing hydraulic & other machines, by means of a lining of soft metal, & thereby of rendering certain parts of such machines air & fluid tight. B. afterwards discovered that soft metal had the property of diminishing friction, & of preventing the evolution of heat when applied to the surfaces in contact of machines in rapid motion & subject to pressure, & he embodied the application of that discovery to machines in a patent:—Held: the application of the soft metal by B. differed essentially from that of A.; & B.'s patent was new.

I think the discovery of the person under whom pltf. [A.] claims, is not merely a discovery of a new principle, but of a new principle embodied in a new machine. Then that being so, if pltf. [A.] claims a patent for that new principle embodied in a new machine . . . that patent is perfectly good (PARKE, B.).

(2) Had it not been for the title of this patent, by which pltf. [A.] appears to me to confine his invention to bearings, there would be strong reason to contend that he applied it also to cases in which rods or bars were to slide. But, reading it in conjunction with the title, I think pltf.'s [A.] patent does not extend so far, & consequently that it is not void upon that ground (PARKE, B.).—NEWTON v. VAUCHER (1852), 6 Exch. 859; 21 L. J. Ex. 305; 155 E. R. 794.

Annotation:—As to (1) Refd. Maxim-Nordenfelt Guns & Ammunition Co. & Hiram Stevens Maxim v. Anderson (1897), 13 T. L. R. 262.

160. —— —— ——.]—A patent cannot be granted for a principle; to be patented it must be embodied in some machine or manufacture which is the only subject of a patent.—CROSSLEY v. POTTER (1853), Macr. 240.

161. —— —— ——.]—CANNINGTON v. NUTTALL, No. 320, post.

162. —— —— ——.]—(1) The discoverer of a new principle or idea as regards any art or manufacture who shows a mode of carrying it into practice, as by a machine, may patent the combination of principle & mode, although the idea or the machine would not alone be the proper subject of a patent.

(2) Although it is primâ facie evidence of want of utility that the patentee does not make & vend his machine, evidence of non-user & non-sale is not sufficient to prove want of utility if immediately afterwards the patentee has improved upon his machine & made & vended the improved machine.

(3) Where want of novelty in a patented invention is set up, & the alleged anticipation is in writing alone, e.g., the specification of another person's prior patent, no existence of a prior machine being shown, the interpretation of the prior writing is for the ct., & it is not sufficient to establish want of novelty to show that, if a machine had been made by a person who had read that writing & such machine had been used, something in it would by user have been an anticipation; but it must be shown that a person conversant with such matters would, on reading the writing, find in such writing alone a reasonably clear description of the impeached invention.

(4) There should be a benevolent interpretation of specifications. What does that mean? I think, as I have explained elsewhere, it means this: when the judges are convinced that there is a genuine, great, & important invention, which, as in some cases, one might almost say, produces a revolution in a given art or manufacture, the judges are not to be astute to find defects in the specifications; but, on the contrary, if it is possible, consistently with the ordinary rules of construction, to put such a construction on the patent as will support it. They are to prefer that construction to another which might possibly commend itself to their minds if the patent was of little worth & of very little importance. That has been carried out over & over again, not only by the Lord Chancellor on appeal, but by the House of Lords. There is, if I may say so, & I think there ought to be, a bias, as between two different constructions, in favour of the real improvement & genuine invention, to adopt that construction which supports an invention. Beyond that I think the rule ought not to go; but that is what I understand is the meaning of "a benevolent construction" (JESSEL, M.R.).—OTTO v. LINFORD (1882), 46 L. T. 35; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 343, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429. As to (3) Apld. Ellington v. Clark, Bunnett (1887), 58 L. T. 40; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Cassel Gold Extracting Co. v. Cyanide Gold Recovery Syndicate (1895), 11 T. L. R. 345; Shrewsbury & Talbot S. T Cab. Co. v. Storckx (1895), 12 T. L. R. 122; Re Lewis & Stirckler's Patent (1896), 14 R. P. C. 24; Taylor & Scott v. Annand & Northern Press & Engineering Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 547; Metropolitan Vickers Electrical Co. v. British Thomson-Houston Co. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 76. As to (4) Consd. Thomson v. American Braided Wire Co. (1889), 5 R. P. C. 113. Apld. True & Variable Electric Lamp Syndicate v. Bryant Trading Syndicate (1908), 25 R. P. C. 461. Generally, Mentd. Otto v. Steel, Otto v. Sterne (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 179.

163. —— —— ——.]—In an action to restrain the infringement of a patent for producing colouring matters for dyeing & printing by means of a chemical process, described in the specification. As to validity:—Held: a man cannot have a patent for a principle alone, but may have one for a principle coupled with a process by which the principle may be carried into effect; he can only claim to wash out his process by means of materials known at the date of the patent; he cannot claim the use of materials discovered subsequently, & his specification will be construed with regard to this consideration.—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. LEVINSTEIN (1883), 24 Ch. D. 156; 52 L. J. Ch. 704; 48 L. T. 822; 31 W. R. 913; on appeal (1885), 29 Ch. D. 366, C. A.; (1887), 12 App. Cas. 710, H. L.

Annotations:—Refd. Easterbrook v. G. W. Ry. (1885), 2 R. P. C. 201; Haslam Foundry & Engineering Co. v. Hall (1887), 4 T. L. R. 154; Kurtz v. Spence (1887), 58 L. T. 438; Cole v. Saqui & Lawrence (1888), 40 Ch. D. 132; Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 5 T. L. R. 294; Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292; Lane Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424; Atkins & Applegarth v. Castner-Kellner Alkali Co. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 281; Osram Lamp Works v Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369. Mentd. Malan v. Young (1889), 6 T. L. R. 38; Re Martindale, [1894] 3 Ch. 193; Scott v. Scott, [1913] A. C. 417.

164. —— —— ——.]—MOUCHEL v. COIGNET, No. 121, ante.

165. —— —— ——.]—The mere statement that a claim is to a method of test or observation is not decisive, provided that the method claimed necessitates the use of novel combinations or constructions of apparatus, & that the tests or observations can be regarded as applicable in guiding & controlling manufacturing processes; but, in cases where there is no novel combination or construction of apparatus, a mere claim to a method for using a known combination or apparatus for a purpose which is not in itself a manufacturing process is not properly patentable.—Re W. L.'S APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 617.

166. What amounts to claim to a principle.]—NEILSON v. HARFORD, No. 83, ante.

B. Process of Utilising Principle.

(a) In General.

167. General rule — Patentable.] — HALL v. BOOT (1822), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 100.

Annotations :—Refd. Losh v. Hague (1838), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 202; Crane v. Price (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580; Brook & Hirst v. Aston (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 1025.

168. —— ——.]—LOSH v. HAGUE, No. 16, ante.

169. —— ——.]—CRANE v. PRICE, No. 315, post.

170. —— ——.]—Where two specifications, or different dates, relating to the same external objects, contain terms of art, though the expressions used in both are identical, their construction cannot be declared to be the same without the meaning & use of the terms of art employed therein being first ascertained by evidence, & being shown to be the same at the date of both the specifications.

An antecedent specification declaring a principle, but not disclosing a practical mode of obtaining a result, is not to be held to be an anticipation of a subsequent specification relating to the same matter which does disclose a practicable mode of producing the result. If the latter specification alone supplies that practicable mode, it forms the groundwork for a valid patent.

D. in 1804 took out a patent for making "a new article of trade, which I denominate Albion Metal, & which I apply" to various purposes, such as the facings of cisterns, coffin furniture, "& other things which are required to be made of a flexible," etc., substance. D. stated in his specification the principle of his invention, & that he proposed to unite lead & tin by pressure, but he did not state the exact proportions of the two metals, nor give with precision the mode by which they were to be combined. It did not appear that the patent had been acted on. In 1849 B. took out a patent for "A new manufacture of capsules, & of a material to be employed therein, & for other purposes." The new material was to be composed of lead & tin combined. B. specified the proportions of the two metals, gave the details of the mode of working in order to combine them, & did not claim the production of the new material except according to the directions he had given for its production :—Held : (1) this was not a case in which the ct. looking at the two instruments, could determine the validity of the latter patent as a matter of construction only; evidence must be resorted to; (2) it was apparent that the earlier patent only stated a principle, & the latter patent, as it did not claim the discovery of the principle, but only a new mode of carrying it into effect, was valid.—BETTS v. MENZIES (1862), 10 H. L. Cas. 117; 31 L. J. Q. B. 233; 7 L. T. 110; 9 Jur. N. S. 29; 11 W. R. 1; 11 E. R. 970, H. L.; revsg. (1860), 1 E. & E. 1020, Ex. Ch.; subsequent proceedings, 1 New Rep. 87.

Annotations :—As to (2) Apld. Plimpton v. Malcolmson (1876), 3 Ch. D. 531; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1924), 41 R. P. C. 241. Refd. Neilson v. Betts (1871), L. R. 5 H. L. 1; Patterson v. Gaslight & Coke Co. (1877), 3 App. Cas. 239; Otto v. Linford (1882), 46 L. T. 35; Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Leicester Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Automatic Valve Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 50; Higginson & Arundel v. Pyman (1926), 43 R. P. C. 291. Generally, Refd. Newall v. Elliott & Glass (1861), 4 New Rep. 429; Saxby v. Gloucester Wagon Co. (1883), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 54. Mentd. Betts v. Clifford (1860), 1 John. & H. 74; Kennedy v. Broun (1863), 13 C. B. N. S. 677; A.-G. v. Bradford Canal Proprietors (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 71.

—.]—If, having a particular purpose in view, a person takes the general principles of mechanics, & applies one or other of them to a manufacture to which it has not before been applied, this is sufficient ground to warrant an application for a patent; assuming such manufacture to be new, desirable, & of public utility.—DANGERFIELD v. JONES (1865), 13 L. T. 142; on appeal, 14 W. R. 356, L. C.

172. —— ——.]—This was an action for infringement of a patent for phonographs. A large number of claims were made by the specification, claim 1 being "in a phonograph attaching both the recording point & the reproducing point to the same diaphragm, means being provided whereby either of the points may be brought into operative position on the surface of the phonogram." Many of the claims were subsidiary. In a phonograph, at one stage, a single diaphragm was used with a single tool or point for recording & reproducing. Later, two diaphragms were used with separate recording & reproducing points, & a floating weight was applied to give the proper pressure to the reproducing point. The present patentee discovered that the floating weight might also be applied to the recording point & so allow the use of a single diaphragm with both the points on it. Defts. admitted the general utility of the invention & infringement, but they contended that the first claim was a claim for a principle & was too wide, & was not novel, & that certain of the subsidiary claims were invalid for want of subject-matter, utility, & novelty :—Held : (1) on the evidence the subsidiary claims were novel in their application to the phonograph & contributed to the general improvement of the machine, & they were valid; (2) the first claim claimed a monopoly of every form of phonograph in which the two points were attached to one diaphragm so that either point could be brought into operation, it was not a claim for a principle, but for a particular arrangement, & was novel & valid.

There remains the question whether the patent is invalidated by the first claim. That claim appears to me to be on the face of it, a claim of monopoly for every form of phonograph in which the two styles are attached to one diaphragm, so that either style can be brought to bear on the cylinder. It is said that such a claim is a claim to monopolise a principle. I think not. It is a claim for a particular arrangement of essential parts of a machine, which arrangement has obvious advantages, but has never before been made practicable, & which has now been found practicable in a way disclosed by the specification (WRIGHT, J.).—EDISON-BELL PHONOGRAPH CORPN., LTD. v. SMITH (1894), 11 R. P. C. 148; affd., 10 T. L. R. 522, C. A.

Annotation :—Generally, Refd. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 4, B. (a), (b) & (c).]

173. —— ——.]—RIEKMANN v. THIERRY, No. 372, post.

174. —— ——.]—No doubt the principle ot Bartlett's invention existed also in resps.' tyre, but that is not sufficient. I cannot admit that under our patent laws it is open to any one to appropriate a principle, though of course any particular application of a principle is entitled to legal protection (LORD HALSBURY, C.).—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. TUBELESS PNEUMATIC TYRE & CAPON HEATON, LTD. (1898), 15 T. L. R. 105, H. L.

175. —— ——.]—BRITISH VACUUM CLEANER CO., LTD. v. SUCTION CLEANERS, LTD., No. 139, ante.

As to "manufacture" signifying also "process."]—See No. 90, ante.

(b) New Principle.

176. Ambit of patent—Protection against other modes of utilising principle.] — JUPE v. PRATT (1837), Goodeve's Patent Cases, 274; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 145.

Annotations:—Apld. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (1883), 24 Ch. D. 156. Consd. Automatic Weighing Machine Co. v. Knight (1889), 6 R. P. C. 297. Dbtd. Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Anderson (1894), 11 R. P. C. 519. Apprvd. Chamberlain & Hookham v. Bradford Corpn. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 673. Refd. Easterbrook v. G. W. Ry. (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886) 81; Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1888), 4 T. L. R. 686; Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Tubeless Pneumatic Tyre & Capon Heaton (1898), 14 T. L. R. 341; British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Collier (1908), 25 T. L. R. 74; Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239.

177. —— ——.] — HOUSEHILL COAL & IRON CO. v. NEILSON, No. 13, ante.

178. —— ——.]—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. LEVINSTEIN, No. 163, ante.

179. —— ——.] — AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO. v. KNIGHT, No. 151, ante.

180. —— ——.]—(1) According to the dictum of ALDERSON, B., in Jupe v. Pratt, No. 176, ante, if a patentee has invented a new result & has described one method of obtaining that result, he may prevent anybody else from obtaining the same result by any other method. In my opinion that went much too far (KAY, L.J.).

(2) You have a right to know & to take into consideration the state of circumstances existing generally at the time with regard to the subject-matter of the instrument, including, of course, the general knowledge with regard to that subject-matter. If the words of the instrument are doubtful the consideration of those circumstances may lead the ct. to give them one meaning rather than another (ESHER, M.R.).—NOBEL'S EXPLOSIVES CO., LTD. v. ANDERSON (1894), 10 T. L. R. 599; 11 R. P. C. 519, C. A.; affd. (1895), 11 T. L. R. 266, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (2) Refd. Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239. Generally, Refd. Marconi & Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. British Radio-Telegraph & Telephone Co. (1911), 27 T. L. R. 274; Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369; Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. Mullard Radio Valve Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323.

181. —— ——.]—ASHWORTH v. ENGLISH CARD CLOTHING CO. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 790, H. L.

182. —— ——.]—(1) In an action for the infringement of a patent where it is alleged that deft. has taken the "substance" of the invention, the question is to be decided with reference to the existing state of knowledge of the subject at the date of the patent & the operation of the machine in question, & not simply by reading the specification.

(2) Where the merit of the invention consists in the principle which is embodied in it, a machine which carries the same principle into effect by different means may be an infringement, but where the merit lies in a new combination of known features, a machine which produces the same result with the omission of something which is a material element in the patented machine, not a mere detail, will not be held to be an infringement of the patent.—CONSOLIDATED CAR HEATING CO. v CAME, [1903] A. C. 509; 72 L. J. P. C. 110; 89 L. T. 224; 19 T. L. R. 692; 20 R. P. C. 745, P. C.

183. —— ——.]—CHAMBERLAIN & HOOKHAM, LTD. v. BRADFORD CORPN., No. 120, ante.

184. —— ——.]—S. Ltd., who were the proprietors of a patent granted to R. for "Improvements in dumb-bells for physical culture exercises," brought an action for infringement of same & of another patent not relied on at the trial. The invention consisted in a dumb-bell formed in two parts, divided longitudinally, with springs between them. In the provisional specifition the patentee expressly mentioned compressed air springs. The complete specification omitted any mention of them, but the second claim mentioned resilient means of expansion generally. Deft.'s dumb-bell had inflated india-rubber balls between the halves of the dumb-bell at each end. Deft. attacked the validity of the patent on various grounds, & denied infringement: —Held: the patentee had sufficiently ascertained & described the nature of his invention, the inference drawn by the Ct. of Appeal from a comparison of the provisional & complete specifications was not a legitimate one, & the patentee had not deliberately excluded air springs from his complete specification; & deft. had infringed.—SANDOW, LTD. v. SZALAY (1905), 23 R. P. C. 6, H. L.

See, further, Part XIV., Sect. 1.

(c) Known Principle.

185. Ambit of patent—Confined to particular means described.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent, pltf.'s specifications alleged that the invention was described by a statement & a drawing annexed, & stated that it consisted in submitting hosiery & similar goods to the finishing process of a press heated by steam, hot water, or other fluid in the manner thereinafter described. The drawing was then described, from which it appeared that the invention consisted of two cast

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 4.—B. (b).

176 i. Ambit of patent—Protection against other modes of utilising principle.]—If a person has discovered a new principle, & invented a mode of carrying it into effect, he may obtain a patent for that principle coupled with the mode of carrying it into effect, & he is thereby protected against persons carrying the principle into effect by other modes.—MINERALS SEPARATION, LTD. v. POTTER'S SULPHIDE ORE TREATMENT, LTD. (1909), 8 C. L. R. 779.—AUS.

176 ii. —— ——.] — DEFIANCE CHURN CO. v. TAIT (1894), 12 N. Z. L. R. 607.—N.Z.

n. —— —— What is process of utilising principle.]—Whether or not a machine is the reduction to practice of a new process, or whether it is a new instrument for the performance of an old process, is to be determined by the state of the art at the date of the invention, & if it is the former a process may be patentable, though the machine may be new, if the latter, only the machine can be patented.—HOSIERS, LTD. v. PENHAMS, LTD., [1925] Exch. C. R. 93.—CAN.

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 4.—B. (c).

185 i. Ambit of patent—Confined to particular means described.]—Re CAMPBELL'S APPLICATION (1891), 10 N. Z. L. R. 197.—N.Z.

iron boxes filled with steam, between the heated surfaces of which hosiery goods were introduced & subjected to pressure produced by hydraulic power. The pressure generally lasted three minutes, & might be produced either by a screw or by hydraulic power. The specification then stated that the patentee was aware that woollen cloths had been pressed by boxes or surfaces heated by steam or water, & that stockings, etc., had been placed between plates of iron heated by fires or ovens; that he did not therefore claim the finishing of such goods by heat generally, but what he did claim was the submitting of hosiery, etc., to the pressure of hot boxes or surfaces heated by steam, water, or other fluid as above described. Deft.'s machine consisted of rollers heated by steam, between which woollen fabrics similar to those of pltf. were introduced & subjected to pressure. The jury found that deft.'s rollers were not a colourable imitation of pltf.'s patent:—Held: deft. had not been guilty of an infringement of pltf.'s patent.—BARBER v. GRACE (1847), 1 Exch. 339; 17 L. J. Ex. 122; 154 E. R. 144.

Annotations:—Refd. Smith v. L. & N. W. Ry. (1853), Macr. 188; Smith v. L. & N. W. Ry. (1853), Macr. 203.

186. —— ——.]—BOVILL v. PIMM & RANDS, No. 1060, post.

187. —— ——.]—(1) A patent for an entire combination is not infringed by a different combination, for the same object, of the same elements though important, or of equivalents for them, if not a mere colourable evasion or imitation. Semble: in considering the question of colourable evasion, the ct. will look at the novelty of the object of the combination & of the parts combined.

(2) The principle which protects a patentee against the use by others of mechanical equivalents is inapplicable to a case where the whole invention depends entirely on the particular machinery by means of which a well known object is attained.

Pltf., by bill in Chancery, alleged an infringement of his patent. The patent was granted in 1854, & specified a combination of mechanism applicable to spinning mules; & the first claim was for "the novel construction, combination & application of mechanism hereinbefore described, whereby one half of the clutch or catch box, hereinfore described, or any mechanical equivalent therefor, is connected with or acts upon cams or other similar parts of mechanism direct." There were other claims, but in respect of these breaches were not alleged in pltf.'s particulars of breaches. Deft.'s patent, granted in 1860, specified a combination of mechanism which embodied the leading idea of pltf.'s patent, & by which one half of a clutch-box was made to act upon cams direct, & he adopted some of the elements combined by pltf., but he disposed them in a different manner. These were important parts of the prior combination, &, though old mechanical contrivances, were new in respect of the particular mode in which pltf. applied them; & the immediate object of their combination by him was new, viz., to make a clutch-box act on cams direct. The effect brought about by the direct action of the clutch-box on the cams had long previously been produced, but less advantageously, by other contrivances of various kinds. Deft.'s mode of combination effected the common object of each patent in a more beneficial manner than it was or could be effected by the mode of combination specified in pltf.'s patent, & it displayed an equal amount of inventive genius:—Held: (3) pltf. was bound by the particulars of breaches delivered, & the principle of Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 41, was applicable to trials in Chancery, in which particulars of breaches were ordered, as well as to trials at common law; (4) pltf.'s claim was limited to the entire combination claimed, as before described in his specification, & deft.'s combination was not a mere colourable evasion, & there was no infringement.—CURTIS v. PLATT (1866), L. R. 1 H. L. 337; 35 L. J. Ch. 852; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 144, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Adie v. Clark (1876), 3 Ch. D. 134. Distd. Proctor v. Bennis (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740; Thomson v. Moore (1890), 6 R. P. C. 426. Apld. Nettlefolds v. Reynolds (1892), 9 R. P. C. 270; Ticket Punch Register Co. v. Colley's Patents (1895), 12 R. P. C. 171. Consd. Akt. Separator v. Dairy Outfit Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 327. Distd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Thompson (1905), 22 R. P. C. 177. Refd. Murray v. Clayton (1873), 21 W. R. 498; Gosnell v. Bishop (1888), 4 T. L. R. 397; Jahncke v. Bell (1891), 9 R. P. C. 94; Miller & Co. v. Clyde Bridge Steel Co. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 470; Presto Gear Case & Components Co. v. Simplex Gear Case Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 635; Harrison Patents Co. v. Nicholson (1908), 25 R. P. C. 393. As to (2) Apld. Boyd v. Horrocks (1889), 6 R. P. C. 152. Refd. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (1883), 24 Ch. D. 156. Generally, Refd. Penn v. Bibby (1866), L. R. 1 Eq. 548; Siddell v. Vickers (1888), 39 Ch. D. 92.

188. —— ——.]—A patent for a mechanical arrangement whereby a particular operation may be performed for a particular purpose, the parts of the apparatus so arranged not being new in themselves, but thus first combined for that particular purpose, is not infringed by the adoption of the same arrangement or combination of parts for a similar purpose, if the mode of operation is sufficiently distinct, & different in principle from that which was described or claimed in the patent, & the object achieved is also sufficiently distinct or novel & does not form an essential part of the patent.

S. obtained in 1856 a patent for "an arrangement of mechanism by which the points & the signals used on railways should be simultaneously actuated by one movement & in such a manner that the points could not be wrong when the signals were right, nor the signals wrong when the points were right." The invention effected this by connecting the rods & pulleys which worked the signals with the lever which moved the points so that when the signalman pushed or pulled the lever to open or shut the points he must of necessity raise or depress the signal & place it so that it should rightly indicate the position of the points. After describing the invention in all its parts, the specification stated that the claim was for the mechanical arrangement thereinbefore described, whereby "the signals & the points of each line are worked by the motion of a signal lever, or any modification thereof," & it was declared that the inventor did not confine himself to the precise arrangement of the mechanical details, as the same might be varied without departing from the invention. In 1866, C. obtained a patent "for machinery for actuating railway points & signals," the object being "to effect a simultaneous adjustment of points & signals, agreeing together so as to prevent the possibility of accident by collision at railway junctions, & to ensure the efficient working of points & signals in combination." The system employed under C.'s patent was that the normal position of the signals should be at "danger," & they could only be changed to "safety" by the moving of a separate lever; they were not moved by the lever which moved the points. But the lever which moved the signals was connected with the lever which moved the points in such a way that when the line was not open the signal lever was locked, & it could not be moved, consequently the signal could not be changed from danger to safety. But when the point's lever was moved so as to open the line, the signal lever became at the same moment unlocked, & then the signalman might move it & so put the signal to safety. But the line might be opened or closed for shunting, etc., without moving the signal from danger. Thus C.'s invention was in fact one by which any two or more levers might be made to act upon each other & in communication, & not that one lever should act directly at the same moment upon both points & signals. The result, as described in his specification, was that "when one or more sets of levers were moved, such signals (it should have been signal levers) as might be required to be moved in accordance therewith were set at liberty, & all other signal levers which, if moved, would be antagonistic to the position of the points became locked & rendered incapable of motion." C.'s patent was more useful than that of S., but S.'s patent could have been made to effect C.'s result by a slight modification, & the introduction of another lever. The mechanical contrivances employed in the one patent were of course much the same as those used in the other:—Held: the working C.'s patent was not an infringement of S.'s patent; the principle of his invention, namely, of simultaneously moving the points & making it possible to move the signal lever, was not equivalent to S.'s principle of simultaneously moving the signals & the points; & C.'s invention was one of practical importance & distinct from that of S.—SAXBY v. CLUNES (1874), 43 L. J. Ex. 228, H. L.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 4, B. (c); sub-sect. 5, A. & B.]

189. —— ——.]—DUDGEON v. THOMSON, No. 1110, post.

190. —— ——.]—Pltfs. were patentees of improvements in machinery for filtering fluids, & brought their action on an allegation that defts. had infringed one of the clauses in their patent. Defts. denied the infringement, & pleaded that pltfs.' patent was bad for want of novelty. At the trial the judge held that pltfs.' invention had not been anticipated, & that defts. had infringed:—Held: the judgment of the ct. below, as to pltfs.' patent not being bad for want of novelty, should not be reversed, but defts. had not infringed.

What is the infringement of a combination of elements in a machine? There is not an infringement if you have produced the same results by a different combination of different elements. That is another & a different combination, & is not either an improvement or anything else of the other. It is absolutely & wholly different, if there is a different combination of different elements (BRETT, M.R.).

If any patent is capable of more constructions than one, the general rule would be applied that you would put upon it that construction which makes it a valid patent rather than a construction which renders it invalid (LINDLEY, L.J.).—NEEDHAM & KITE v. JOHNSON & CO. (1884), 1 Patent Cases (1884–1886), A.

191. —— ——.]—The patent does not cover y & every machine in which these several parts are combined; but only such combinations as are in form & arrangement practically the same those forms of apparatus, which it spe describes (LORD WATSON).—HOCKING [illegible] & CO., LTD. v. HOCKING (FRANKLIN) (1888), 6 R. P. C. 69, H. L.

192. —— ——.]—In 1904 a patent was granted for "Improvements relating to the manufacture of incandescent electric lamps." The improvements consisted in making filaments of pure tungsten by mixing finely divided tungsten, or its compounds, with an organic binding material, forming the filaments from the mixture in the usual manner, & then carbonising them, in some cases after denitration had been effected. The filaments were then raised to a high temperature by passing an electric current through them in an atmosphere of steam and hydrogen, & were rendered uniform or equalised by submitting them to the action of the current in an atmosphere of volatile tungsten compounds in the presence of a large quantity of hydrogen. At the trial of an action for infringement of the patent defts. contended that they did not infringe, in as much as they did not carbonise the filaments, & did not pass an electric current through them, but heated them in an electrically heated furnace, & that they did not use an atmosphere of steam & hydrogen for the removal of the carbon from the filaments, & did not equalise the filaments. Pltfs. contended that the purpose of passing the current through the filaments was only to raise them to a high temperature, & that defts.' heating process was equivalent to pltfs.', that defts. produced steam by the reaction taking place inside the tubes in which the filaments were heated & so in effect used an atmosphere of steam & hydrogen. Defts. contended that the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter & utility, & for insufficiency of directions in the specification; that the idea of making filaments of tungsten was old, & that the only evidence that it was possble to carry out successfully the directions was not to be accepted:—Held: the patent was valid & had been infringed.—OSRAM-ROBERTSON LAMP WORKS, LTD. v. POPE'S ELECTRIC LAMP CO., LTD. (1917), R. P. C. 369; 34 T. L. R. 24, H.

Infringement.]—See Part XIV., Sect. 1, post.

SUB-SECT. 5.—IMPROVEMENT ON SOMETHING KNOWN.

A. In General.

193. Whether subject-matter for patent.]—BIRCOT'S CASE (1573), 3 Co. Inst. 184, Ex. Ch.

Annotations:—Dbtd. Boulton v. Bull (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463; Hornblower v. Boulton (1799), 8 Term Rep. 95.

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 5.—A.

193 i. Whether subject-matter for patent.]—A party had effected an improvement in fire engines by a new combination of old parts, whereby greater results were obtained:—Held: entitled to take out & maintain letters patent for his exclusive right to such improvements.—MUIR v. PERRY (1852), 2 L. C. R. 305.—CAN.

193 ii. ——.]—The attainment of a better result than had been previously attained constitutes a new result, so as to make an instrument a new invention as distinguished from an improvement of an old & known instrument.—THOMPSON v. MOORE (1889), 23 L. R. Ir. 599.—IR.

193 iii. ——.]—Where a patent has been obtained for a machine which the patentee subsequently somewhat improves, a subsequent specification claiming the improved machine as a novel combination is bad, though the improvement might be claimed & protected as such.—KINMOND v. JACKSON, KINMOND v. LAWRIE, 1 C. L. R. 66.—IND.

193 iv. ——.]—A new idea, though ingrafted upon an old invention, if distinct from the conception which preceded it, is a patentable improvement.—HAY v. AFRICAN GOLD RECOVERY CO. (1896), 3 O. R. 244.—S. AF.

193 v. ——.]—A mere carrying forward or new or more extended application of the original thought, a change only in form, proportion or degree, the substitution of equivalents doing substantially the same thing in the same way by substantially the same means, with better results, is not such an invention as will sustain a patent.—WALSH v. SHEELEY, [1911] T. P. D. 1.—S. AF.

193 vi. ——.]—Any improvement of an existing & known process which is not obvious to a person skilled in the art to which it relates but which involves the exercise of invention is patentable. The alteration must possess novelty & utility.—TESTRUP v. CROSFIELD & SONS, LTD., [1913] App. D. 1.—S. AF.

194. ——.] — An addition or improvement a good subject-matter.—MORRIS v. BRAMSOM (1776), 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 30 ; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 51 ; Bull. N. P. 76 c.

Annotations :—Consd. Boulton v. Bull (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463. Refd. Hornblower v. Boulton (1799), 8 Term Rep. 95.

195. —R. v. ARKWRIGHT, No. 14, ante.

196. —BOULTON v. BULL, No. 90, ante.

197. — R. v. FUSSELL, R. v. DANIELL (1827), Godson on Patents, 2nd ed. 274 ; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 449, 453.

Annotation :—Refd. Crane v. Price (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580.

198. ——.]—HILL v. THOMPSON, No. 25, ante.

199. ——.]—R. v. BYNNER, No. 483, post.

200. ——.]—(1) If a patent invention be new & useful an action for an infringement may be maintained though the patentee has never made a machine according to it. But the limited use of an invention must not be excluded from consideration on the question of utility.

(2) If an invention be useful it is the subject of a patent though it be capable of improvement. A patent for an improved machine good, although capable of still further improvement.

(3) The substitution of a mere mechanical equivalent for part of a machine does not constitute a new invention. But it is otherwise if the substituted part be different, & requires science & skill to make it.—ECCLES & BRIERLY v. MCGREGOR (1853), Macr. 283.

201. ——.]—LONGBOTTOM v. SHAW, No. 134, ante.

202. ——.]—MCNAUGHT v. DAWSON, No. 499, post.

203. —— Irrespective of utility.] —MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, post.

204. —— Improvement giving more economical & beneficial enjoyment to public.]—CRANE v. PRICE, No. 315, post.

205. —— Improvement necessitating infringement of existing patent.]—CRANE v. PRICE, No. 315, post.

206. —— Improvement on existing patent.]—LISTER v. LEATHER, No. 278, post.

207. —— Improved result obtained.] — The owners of a patent for an improved lamp brought an action for infringement. Pltfs. claimed in their specification a combination & subordinate parts. Defts. denied infringement & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the grounds of want of novelty & of anticipation, & also by amendment at the trial, on the ground that the invention was not of such a meritorious character as to be patentable. Previously to the date of pltf.'s invention S. had published the importance of bringing heated air to an incandescent flame, & of heating the gas before it reached the burner. There were differences between pltfs.' lamp & that of defts.', & pltfs. had recently used a burner different from that described in their specification, & more like the defts.' burner :—Held : (1) pltfs.' invention was a method of bringing a supply of heated air to a particular point, the middle, of the flame, by which they obtained an improved result, & in a secondary degree of the addition of a cooling current of air round the lamp, & the invention was good subject-matter, & had not been anticipated ; (2) defts. had taken the pith & marrow of the invention, it being immaterial that they might have made improvements.—WENHAM GAS CO., LTD. v. CHAMPION GAS LAMP CO. (1891), 9 R. P. C. 49, C. A.

Annotation :—Generally, Refd. Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239.

B. What Constitutes Improvement.

208. Question of fact.]—LOSH v. HAGUE, No. 16, ante.

209. Must be improvement for all purposes.]—CORNISH & SIEVIER v. KEENE & NICKELS, No. 481, post.

210. Anything making machine more effective, useful & valuable.]—Anything which makes a patented machine more effective, useful, or valuable is an "improvement" to that machine, & falls under a covenant to "communicate" & "give the exclusive benefit of" every improvement to a patented machine though such improvement might be used without involving an infringement of the former patent.—HOPKINS v. LINOTYPE & MACHINERY, LTD. (1910), 101 L. T. 898 ; 26 T. L. R. 229 ; sub nom. LINOTYPE & MACHINERY, LTD. v. HOPKINS, 27 R. P. C. 109, H. L.

211. Producing no appreciable advantage.]—BLOXHAM v. KEE-LESS CLOCK CO., No. 127, ante.

212. Cheapness in production.] —CORNISH & SIEVIER v. KEENE & NICKELS, No. 481, post.

213. Alteration—Use voluntary & not essential.] —DOBBS v. PENN (1849), 3 Exch. 427 ; 13 L. T. O. S. 99 ; 154 E. R. 911.

Annotation :—Refd. Booth v. Kennard (1856), 5 W. R. 85.

214. ——.]—HALL v. BOOT (1822), 1 Web. Pat. Cas 100.

Annotations :—Refd. Losh v. Hague (1838), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 202 ; Crane v. Price (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580.

215. ——.] — The grantee of a patent for improvements in frames for woven or elastic wire web mattresses brought an action against defts., alleging infringement. Defts. denied the alleged infringement, & alleged the patent to be invalid on the grounds of (inter alia) want of subject-matter & anticipation of the alleged invention. The patent claimed a rectangular framework, which was substantially that of the old four post bedstead, & differed from that only (a) in not having any legs or posts, (b) in having the transverse sliding piece on the top of the sides instead of in grooves along the sides, & (c) in having the foot & head raised above instead of being flush with the sides :—Held : the alleged invention was not the subject-matter of a patent & had been anticipated.—ROWCLIFFE v. LONGFORD WIRE IRON & STEEL CO., LTD. (1887), 4 R. P. C. 281.

Annotation :—Refd. Mandleberg v. Morley (1895), 64 L. J. Ch. 245.

216. ——.] — In Oct. 1886, S., the grantee of a patent for improvements in pianoforte actions, including an improved method of centering the damper, issued threatening circulars ; & in Sept. 1887, he issued advertisements of a similar nature. On Oct. 12, 1887, pltfs. commenced an action against S., claiming an injunction to restrain such threats as libels & a declaration that the patent was invalid. On Nov. 14, 1887, S. commenced two actions against other persons, alleging infringement of his patent, & claiming the usual relief ; & on Dec. 23, 1887, he delivered a defence & counterclaim, alleging infringement of his patent by pltfs., & claiming the usual relief :—Held : the alleged invention was not subject-matter, & had been anticipated. If a person has drawn a picture of a machine without describing it, & published that picture in a book, & that picture was one which any mechanist could understand, & make a machine from that picture alone, then a person cannot take out a patent in respect of a machine substantially the same (BRETT, M.R.).

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 5, E

The mere alteration of the position of the centre of a bent lever is not subject-matter for a patent (FRY, L.J.).—HERRBURGER, SCHWANDER ET CIE. v. SQUIRE (1889), 6 R. P. C. 194, C. A.

Annotation:—Mentd. Colley v. Hart (1890), 44 Ch. D. 179.

217. ——.] — SLAZENGER & SONS v. FELTHAM & Co. (1889), 5 T. L. R. 364, C. A.

218. ——.] — The owners of a patent for "an improvement in sewing machine shuttles & shuttle drivers" brought an action for infringement. The invention consisted in the insertion of a buffer spring over the horns at both ends of the driver or carrier, in order to prevent the constant clicking noise caused by the shuttle coming against the carrier. Deft., among other objections, alleged that the invention was not new, & was anticipated by S.'s earlier patent for a shuttle carrier, which had a spring at one end of the carrier, & a leather buffer at the other. It appeared that this patent was a failure. Deft.'s evidence was not gone into: —Held: there was no patentable invention in putting a second spring in the place of the leather buffer.—DEUTSCHE NAHMASCHINEN FABRIK VORM. WERTHEIM v. PFAFF (1890), 7 R. P. C. 251, C. A.

219. ——.]—T., a patentee of improvements in locks, sued K. for infringement. K. alleged the invalidity of the patent for want of novelty & want of subject-matter, & denied that his lock was an infringement. Locks were proved to have been known prior to the date of the patent with a mechanism at the side, similar to pltf.'s, for moving a catch, whereas pltf.'s mechanism was on the face of the lock. Pltf. described his invention to be the making locks without projecting or protruding bolts. Deft.'s lock had projecting bolts:—Held: (1) (the whole ct.) there was no infringement; (2) (KAY, L.J.) there was no subject-matter.—TUCKER v. KAYE (1891), 8 R P. C. 230, C. A.

220. ——.] — The owner of a patent for an improved manufacture of sheet metal signs, brought an action for infringement & moved for an injunction. Pltf. claimed in effect a mode of making embossed metal by pressing the metal plate between a suitable punch & a yielding support instead of the ordinary matrix. On the motion, which was treated as the trial, defts. gave evidence to show that the use of a yielding substance for the female die or matrix was known & had been used in the case of flexible materials It was admitted that a sheet of metal had, prior to pltf.'s patent, been embossed by the use of hammers & punches applied to the sheet when laid on a soft & elastic bed:—Held: the modification of the previous processes by adapting the use of the yielding support to the case of metal sheets was not the subject-matter of an invention. —EMBOSSED METAL PLATE CO., LTD. v. SAUPE & BUSCH (1891), 8 R. P. C. 355.

221. ——.] — In 1897 letters patent were granted to B. for "improvements in mineral water bottles." The patentee claimed "in the manufacture of indented glass stoppered bottles for mineral & aerated waters, making the indent of such a shape as will form a curved channel for the passage of the ball instead of the present horizontal one, substantially as & for the purposes herein set forth & described & illustrated by Fig. 2 of the accompanying drawings." The specification alleged that the invention overcame certain disadvantages possessed by bottles having a horizontal indentation. B. having brought an action for infringement of the patent, defts. alleged the invalidity of the same on the grounds (inter alia) of want of invention & subject-matter & anticipation by, amongst others, J.'s specification:—Held: although some of the alleged advantages of B.'s bottle were to some extent proved, yet there was no invention, but merely adaptive skill & judgment in manufacture, & therefore the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter; even if there was subject-matter, the patent was anticipated by J.'s specification.—BEAVIS v. RYLANDS GLASS & ENGINEERING CO., LTD. (1899), 17 R. P. C. 93; affd. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 704, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Parker & Smith v. Satchwell (1901), 45 Sol. Jo. 502.

222. ——.]—Letters patent No. 21,333 of 1900 for "improvements in tyre inflator & other nozzles" were granted to A. & others. In an action for infringement deft. contended that the patent was invalid on the grounds (inter alia) of want of novelty & of subject-matter. In particular he relied on alleged prior users by A. & L. & prior publication by the specification of S., & want of subject-matter:—Held: there was no subject-matter & the patent was invalid.—ATKINSON v. BRITTON (1910), 27 R. P. C. 469, C. A.

223. Substitution—Of mechanical equivalent.] -ECCLES & BRIERLY v. MCGREGOR, No. 200, ante.

224. —— ——.]—In 1911 a patent was granted for "improvements in & relating to rotary engines." In an action for infringement of the patent, defts. denied infringement & alleged that the patent was invalid for want of novelty & subject-matter, & relied, in particular, upon the specification of B., describing a rotary engine with stepped teeth arranged in helical lines. At the trial it was held that defts. had infringed; but that pltfs.' engine did not give any new result, that it was not more economical in the consumption of motive fluid; or more inexpensive to manufacture, or more durable, than B.'s engine; that at the date of the patent smooth blades, such as those in pltfs.' engines, were a known equivalent of the stepped teeth in B.'s engine; & that the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter. The action was dismissed with costs, & a certificate as to some of the particulars of objections was granted. Pltfs. appealed, & at the hearing of the appeal defts. did not contest the allegation of infringement:—Held: (1) the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter; (2) (YOUNGER, L.J.) it had been anticipated by the specification of B.'s patent.—BRITISH SPIRO TURBINE, LTD. v. SULLIVAN MACHINERY CO. (1921), 38 R. P. C. 326, C. A.

225. ——.]—PARKES v. STEVENS, No. 287, post.

226. Correction of obvious defect.] — BLOXHAM v. KEE-LESS CLOCK CO., No. 127, ante.

227. Necessity for materiality.] — R. v. ARKWRIGHT, No. 14, ante.

228. ——.]—This was an action for infringement of a patent for improvements in the manufacture of wire rings suitable for use in securing elastic tyres on bicycle & other wheels. The claim in effect was for wire rings for use in securing elastic tyres on bicycle & other wheels, in which the joints were made by inserting the two ends of the wire into a longitudinal split tube, & then introducing solder along the split. Defts. alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds of want of subject-matter & want of novelty. Joints of the kind described by pltf. had been previously used in ordinary wire work for lamps, hats, & other purposes, but not for bicycles. Pltf. contended that there was invention in the application of such joints to bicycle wheels, as in their case there was a great strain along the wire. Defts.' evidence showed that such joints had been used for centrifugal machines revolving at the rate of one thousand turns a minute:—Held: though pltf. had made an improvement on the joints previously used for bicycle wheels, he had not shown the degree of invention necessary to support a patent.—SHAW v. BARTON & LOUDON (1895), 12 R. P. C. 282.

229. Necessity for exercise of invention.]—RALSTON v. SMITH, No. 97, ante.

230. ——.]—This was an action for infringement of an invention of "improvements applicable to trawl nets." The invention consisted in using a beam trawl, which has a square headed net, without the beam, substituting otter boards, otter trawls & beam trawls being the two kinds of trawls used in sea fishing, of a special character, all the ropes being affixed to the centre of the boards instead of to the top & bottom of the tail of the board, & with a metal bracket as a fixed point of attachment, instead of the ropes previously used. There were three claims, for the combination, for the metal bracket, & for the central attachment. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the invention was not new or useful or good subject-matter, & that it had been anticipated by prior user:—Held: there was no anticipation; pltf.'s improvements required invention, & had sufficient utility, though not great utility, to support a patent, & gave the public a useful choice, & the patent was valid; & as to infringement, defts. had not used the central attachment; &, though metal ropes, if so practically rigid as to be a mechanical equivalent of the metal bracket, might be an infringement, defts. had only used metal ropes of a pliable character, which were not so stiff as some hemp ropes which had been previously used, & had not infringed.—SCOTT v. HAMLING & CO., LTD. (1896), 14 R. P. C. 123.

231. ——.]—This was an action for the infringement of four patents:—The first for improvements relating to the base frame of cycle saddles; the second for improvements in the boss on the pillar of the cycle; the third for improved means of adjusting the tilt of the saddle. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patents were invalid on various grounds; No. 1, on the grounds of want of novelty & subject-matter, anticipation, want of utility & insufficiency; No. 2, on the grounds of want of novelty & subject-matter, insufficiency, variance, & anticipation; & No. 3, on the grounds of anticipation, want of subject-matter, variance & prior grant:—Held: the first patent was valid, since the words at the end of the first claim, "substantially as described & set forth," limited the claim for use in base frames of a trussed beam to the particular manner described in the specification, &, further, that this patent had been infringed; as to the second patent, figures 8, 9 & 10 were not within the provisional specification, &, further, defts. had not infringed this patent; &, as to the third patent, without deciding the question of validity, defts. had not infringed it.

We think that in dealing with patents for special arrangements of very familiar mechanical means, such as pins, washers, clips or gripping cheeks, nuts, etc., it is necessary to scrutinize the invention claimed with some nicety. By straining the doctrine of mechanical equivalents, a patent for a particular combination of well known appliances for fastening the framing rods of a saddle to a vertical pillar, might be made to cover almost any other combination (SMITH, L.J.).—BROOKS v. LAMPLUGH (1897), 15 R. P. C. 33, C. A.; on appeal (1898), 16 R. P. C. 41, H. L.

Annotation:—Apld. Van Berkel v. Simpson (1906), 24 R. P. C. 117.

232. ——.]—BEAVIS v. RYLANDS GLASS & ENGINEERING CO., LTD., No. 221, ante.

233. ——.]—In 1893, letters patent were granted to M. for an improved pedal for bicycles & other machines; the pedal described was adjustable so as to adapt its width to the required breadth of tread. The complete specification was accepted on Sept. 23, 1893. The patent subsequently became vested in W. On Sept. 25, 1893, W. applied for letters patent, which were also granted, for a new & improved width adjusting pedal for bicycles & velocipedes. W. commenced an action against a co. for infringement of these two patents, & of a third patent, subsequently abandoned. In the course of the trial it was admitted by one of pltfs.' expert witnesses that the alleged infringing pedal did not infringe M.'s patent. As regards W.'s patent, defts. disputed its validity on the ground of want of novelty by reason of anticipation by the specifications of M.'s patent & of several earlier patents:—Held: having regard to the alleged anticipations & especially to M.'s specification, there was not sufficient invention to support W.'s patent, & it was invalid for want of novelty.—WATERSON v. LLOYD'S (W. A.) CYCLE FITTINGS, LTD. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 277.

234. ——.]—Letters patent having been granted in 1894 for an invention of "improvements in felt handles for velocipedes, golf sticks, & for other articles, & in the manufacture of the handles," the owners of the patent in 1898 brought an action for infringement of the same. The first claim of the specification was "making felt handles for velocipedes, golf sticks, tennis rackets & other articles by first growing a piece of sheet felt longitudinally at intervals, then bending the same & securing the meeting edges together so as to form a felt cylinder grooved from end to end on the outside, which is or is not afterwards reduced towards the ends, all substantially as set forth"; the other claims being claims for the handles "made from sheet felt grooved longitudinally at intervals & bent into a cylinder with the grooves outside, etc." Deft., who sold handles made from sheet felt bent into a cylinder & afterwards grooved longitudinally, denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the grounds (inter alia) of want of novelty & want of subject-matter. It appeared that felt handles for the same purposes were old, but had been made out of a solid block of felt by boring & turning the same, & such handles had been grooved. It was alleged that a considerable economy was effected by the use of sheet felt, & a large sale of the patented handles was proved:—Held: the 229 i. Necessity for exercise of invention.]—A patent was granted to pltf. in respect of improvements. In an action for infringement, the deft. alleged want of proper subject-matter of a patent:—Held: although there was an improved result, & the utility was undoubted, ingenuity sufficient to constitute invention had not been shown & the patent was invalid.—WILLMANN v. PETERSEN, [1904] S. Q. R. 191.—AUS.

229 ii. ——.]—SERVIS RAILROAD TIE PLATE CO. OF CANADA, LTD. v. HAMILTON STEEL & IRON CO., LTD. (1904), 8 Exch. C. R. 381.—CAN.

229 iii. ——.]—The cts. look with favour upon any slight change whereby an improvement is effected & find invention in it if they can.—MATTICE v. BRANDON MACHINE WORKS CO. (1907), 17 Man. L. R. 105.—CAN.

229 iv. ——.]—SCHWER v. FULHAM & ROBINSON (1910), 11 C. L. R. 249.—AUS.

229 v. ——.]—ROSE'S PATENTS CO., LTD. v. BRABY & CO., LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 198.—SCOT.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 5, B.] patent was invalid for want both of novelty & invention, &, even if valid, deft. had not infringed, as grooving before bending the felt was of the essence of the invention.—COOPER & CO. (BIRMINGHAM), LTD. v. BAEDEKER (1900), 17 R. P. C. 209.

235. ——.]—In 1898 a patent was granted to W. for "improvements in attachments for 'corsets,'" consisting of an abdominal belt composed of two or more parts provided with vertical stiffening ribs, at each side of the top of which were eyelet holes through which safety pins could be fastened to attach the belt to a corset. In 1902 W. commenced an action against a co. for infringing the patent. Defts. denied infringement, & attacked the validity of the patent on the grounds of want of novelty & want of subject-matter. They also alleged various anticipations by divers specifications, & by cases of public manufacture & sale:—Held: although pltf. was entitled to the credit of having improved upon articles that were in the market before, & although defts. had distinctly & intentionally copied the alleged invention, yet there was not invention which the ct. could recognise; substantially the same thing had been in the market, either patented or within common knowledge & common use, for some years prior to 1898; & pltf.'s patent was therefore invalid.—WARDROPER v. GIBBS, LTD. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 355, C. A.

236. ——.] — The owners of letters patent for "improvements in & relating to electric 'spark-rupturing appliances,'" having brought an action for infringement, defts. relied mainly on want of subject-matter. By the first claim in the specification the patentee claimed: "in a magnetic arc rupturing device, a shield of insulating material located between the surfaces of the electrodes & adjacent conducting surfaces of the device by which the arc is disrupted, as & for the purpose described." The specification stated that the object of the invention was to increase the efficiency & certainty of the operation of the arc rupturing devices by permitting them to be brought very close to the point where the arc might form, & it explained that the insulating material prevented arcs forming at other points, & that an advantage was gained from the near approach of the poles to the electrodes as they enhanced very much the intensity of the field. At the date of the patent magnetic blow-outs for rupturing arcs were well known, & it was well known that close proximity of the magnet was important, but that such proximity increased the risk of sparking to the magnet, that the remedy was insulation, & that material which was an insulator to an electric current was not an insulator to magnetic influence: —Held: there was neither novelty or invention, & the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. MANCHESTER CORPN. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 461.

237. ——.]—BAXTER v. MARSDEN, No. 496, post.

238. ——.]—A patent was granted in 1905 for "improvements in transmission, change speed & reversing gear for automobile vehicles." The improvements consisted in employing a U-shaped locking plate, each arm of which had a tooth capable of engaging at one time in notches in two of the three push rods, thereby preventing those rods being moved by the operating arm by which the third push rod was moved. The locking plate was, in one form of the device, suspended vertically from the axle by means of which it was caused to slide into position & by which the operating arm was rotated, or, in a modification, it was fixed horizontally. An action for infringement of the patent having been brought, it was suggested by defts. at the trial that they were the inventors of the device. It was admitted by defts. that pltf.'s device was an effective simplification of certain previous devices described in specifications that were alleged to be anticipations, but they contended that the essential features of it were described in those specifications. Defts. also admitted that if the patent was valid they had infringed:—Held: there was no foundation for the suggestion that defts. were the inventors of pltf.'s device, but the four characteristics of pltf.'s locking plate were not new, either considered separately or in combination, & any departure made by him from what was known before required no exercise of inventive power.—STROUD v. HUMBER, LTD. (1906), 24 R. P. C. 141.

239. ——.]—In 1900 letters patent for 'improvements in gaiters or coverings for the legs" were granted to H. The novel feature of the patented article was the method of lacing up. In the action for (inter alia) infringement of the patent, defts. alleged anticipation & want of subject-matter against the validity of the patent: —Held: there was no invention & the patent was invalid.—HILL v. THOMAS & SONS (1907), 24 R. P. C. 415, C. A.

240. ——.]—The owner of a patent for "improvements in skeins of tape & the like" brought an action for infringement against K. & S., who denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter. The alleged invention consisted of a skein or coil of tape made in such a way that it could be drawn out without entangling on the inner end being pulled, & to obtain this the tape was wound into a coil, the circumference being pressed to the centre so as to assume an elongated shape & elastic bands slipped round either end:—Held: the function & purpose of the elastic bands were in no way different from their function & purpose when used in other ways, & there had been no exercise of the inventive faculty by the patentee.—WEST v. KEEVES (JAMES) & SONS, LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 474.

241. ——.]—Pltf., who was the patentee of an invention for "improvements in railway fog signals," brought an action for infringement against defts., who denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter. The invention claimed was, in a railway fog or signal holder which has two or more independent detonators fixed together on it side by side, & also has a metal strip to clip the rail, the employment between the detonators of an upwardly projecting rib or partition formed with or fixed to the plate or holder in either of the ways described in the specification so as to prevent the explosion of one detonator blowing the other detonators off the plate or holder:—Held: the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.—LUDLOW v. JENKINS (THOMAS) & CO. (1911), 29 R. P. C. 179.

242. ——.]—The owners of a patent for "improvements in pulling-over machines for boots & shoes" brought an action for infringement of the patent. The essence of the invention was that it enabled a person operating a boot making machine to keep the boot in view in a natural position during all the essential parts of the operation, & in particular when adjusting the upper & insole to the right place. Defts. contended that the patentee had chosen to claim a machine with a particular device, whether provision was made for the disengagement or not, & that a machine without that provision would obviously be useless & the claim was therefore void:—Held: the position of the boot in the patented machine was the position in which the hand laster views his work in order to see whether the tip line is correct: that the claim to a "master idea" was a claim to the exclusive right to a point of viewing in connection with a pulling-over machine; while it was true that the patented machine produced better results both in speed & quality than a prior machine, which was alleged to be an anticipation, there was no invention in the idea; there was no subject-matter, & the patent was therefore invalid. —BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. STANDARD ROTARY MACHINE CO., LTD. (1917), 35 R. P. C. 33, H. L.

Annotation:—Apld. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Unique Shoe Co. (1918), 36 R. P. C. 33.

243. ——.]—In 1912 a patent was granted for "improvements in or relating to the processes of making stitch-down boots & shoes, & to machines for lasting the same." The first of the claims was for "A process for permanently securing in lasted condition the upper of the stitch-down boot or shoe that comprises, as a characteristic conforming the upper to the shape of the last by successively presenting various points selected by the operator to a machine having a tool . . . which forces the material of the upper into the angle between the side of the last & the projecting sole margin or between equivalent parts of the shoe & securing each portion of the upper to the sole in lasted position whilst it is held in the angle by the tool by inserting an individual permanent fastner, for example a staple, in the angle through the upper & into the sole at the selected points." In an action for infringement of the patent defts. alleged (inter alia) that the patent was invalid for want of novelty & of subject-matter. At the trial it was proved that the effect & desirability of getting the fastening into the angle of the crease were well known, & that practicable permanent fastners in the form of light-wire staples had been used before the date of the patent:—Held: the idea comprised in the patent was capable of being described either as the work of a particular machine or as a process apart from any machine, & was not such as to be entitled to exceptional protection; & even if the process claimed by the first claim was confined to the use of the staple-driving tool, the patent was invalid; & the process was not so confined; & if a tool without the characteristic described in the third claim was employed in the process first claimed the process was not practicable by any means specified.—BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. UNIQUE SHOE CO. (1918), 36 R. P. C. 33.

244. ——.] — BLOXHAM v. KEE-LESS CLOCK CO. (1922), 39 R. P. C. 195.

245. ——.] — Pltfs. were the assignees of a patent for "improvements in warp thread & like selecting & separating mechanism." Claim 1 of the specification was as follows: "in warp thread & like selecting & separating apparatus of the kind herein referred to, & wherein the selector & separator mechanism is operated by mechanical or like power under the control of a feeler acted upon by the separated threads—operating the selector & separator mechanism by a continuously running prime mover & transmitting the motion of the prime mover to the selector & separator mechanism through a mechanical 'make & break' appliance which is subject to the control of the feeler acted upon by the separated threads." Claim 2 was as follows: "warp thread & like selecting & separating apparatus as claimed in claim one, wherein the prime mover is extraneous to the selector carriage." Claim 5 was as follows: "in warp thread & like selecting apparatus as claimed in Claims one, two or three, a sensitive feeler such as pivoted at one end of the selector carriage, extending at its other end across the bulk of the separator guide, & at a point in its length adapted to bear against the trip lever or other part by which the driving connection between the prime mover & the selector & separator mechanism is made or broken, substantially as herein set forth." In an action for the infringement of the patent defts. pleaded want of novelty & subject-matter, prior publication & insufficiency, & non-infringement:—Held: (1) in the circumstances defts. were not precluded from disputing the validity of pltfs.' patent; (2) the improvements forming the subject-matter of pltfs.' patent referred to mechanism which formed the subject of the prior patent No. 29477 of 1913 referred to in the specification of pltfs.' patent & not a much larger class of selecting & separating apparatus of which the mechanism covered by the patent of 1913 was only an example & consequently that defts. had not infringed; (3) after the publication of Von Meyenburg's specification & that of defts.' 1915 patent, assuming that the wide construction contended for by pltfs. was given to the specification of the patent in question, there was not in the invention sufficient subject-matter for a patent & the patent was therefore invalid.—WARD BROTHERS (BLACKBURN), LTD. v. MOORE & AVERY (BLACKBURN), LTD. (1922), 40 R. P. C. 247, C. A.

246. ——.]—A patent was granted for "improvements in or relating to abdominal supports for medical or surgical purposes." One of the claims was as follows: "an abdominal support for medical or surgical purposes, comprising two substantially triangular rigid metal plates, connected by means of a non-extensible flexible connection extending between two adjacent vertical edges of the plates & forming a hinge about which the said plates can turn." In an action for infringement of the patent defts. alleged (inter alia) that the patent was invalid on the grounds of want of novelty & subject-matter. At the trial pltfs. alleged that the need for an abdominal support more efficient than any then in use had been suggested to the patentee by a certain eminent surgeon, & that the patentee, acting on that suggestion, had invented a support that had been of very great use:—Held: the alleged invention was a natural & ordinary workshop improvement & development of a well-known type of apparatus, having regard to the requirements made known to the patentee by the surgeon upon whose suggestion he had acted, rather than an invention within the recognised principles of the patent law.—CURTIS (H. E.) & SON, LTD. v. HEWARD (R. H.) & CO. (1923), 40 R. P. C. 183, C. A.

247. ——.]—On Mar. 14, 1921, letters patent were granted for "improvements in or relating to devices for supplying lubricating oil to internal combustion engines." The claims were as follows: (a) A device for conveying lubricating oil to the crank chamber of an internal combustion engine, comprising a hopper shaped on one side to adapt it to be mounted on the engine, an aperture provided in the side to receive one of the bolts by which it is secured to the engine, a cover for said hopper & a cranked tube issuing from the hopper the vertical axis of the outlet orifice of said tube being offset to a suitable distance from the side of the hopper by which it is secured to the engine. (b) A form of construction of the device claimed in the preceding claim in which the hopper has the form of a rectangular inverted cone. (c) A device for conveying lubricating oil to the crank chamber of an internal combustion engine substantially as described & illustrated. On the same date a design was registered for a filler for supplying lubricating oil to internal combustion engines. The registered design was substantially the same as the illustration of the filler in the specification of the patent. In an action for infringement of the patent & of the design, pltf. complained in particular of the manufacture & sale by defts. of an oil filler constructed in accordance with the invention claimed & in infringement of the copyright in the design. Defts.' filler differed in appearance from the registered design (inter alia) in the following respects: it had six sides intead of four, a hinged lid instead of a sliding lid, & holes in the lid, whereas no such holes were shown in the registered design. Defts. contended that there was no infringement, that the patent was invalid for want of novelty & want of subject-matter & that the design was invalid for want of novelty. Pltf. contended that the invalidity of a design could not be raised unless there was a motion to rectify the register:—Held: (1) the invention described & claimed embodied two ideas, (a) the provision of a filler conveying lubricating oil from a place convenient for the purpose of pouring out the oil to a place inconvenient for that purpose; (b) the fixing of such a filler to the engine of a car; both these ideas were well known at the date of the patent; there was nothing novel in pltf.'s invention & nothing calling for more than the application of the most ordinary engineering knowledge; (2) defts. had proved that it was possible to fit a cone-shaped hopper to a car & the provision of a flat sided hopper did not call for any inventive ingenuity.—ROSE v. PICKAVANT (J. W.) & Co., LTD. (1923), 40 R. P. C. 320.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 5, B.]

248. ——.]—A patent was granted for "improvements in the manufacture of firelighters." The claims were as follows: (a) The method of manufacturing firelighters of the description herein referred to according to which the sticks & turnings or the like of which a plurality of firelighters are to be composed, are built up & pressed, then clamped together under pressure, & held clamped during the dipping process & until the combustible mixture into which they are dipped has set, substantially as herein set forth. (b) Means for making firelighters of the description herein referred to, constructed & employed in the manner substantially as herein set forth with reference to the accompanying drawing." In an action for infringement of that patent, & of another patent in respect of which notice of discontinuance has been given, pltf. was owner of a half share of the patent. Defts. alleged (inter alia) that the claims would cover a machine in which the pressing & clamping means were in one, & that the alleged invention had been anticipated by a certain prior user. It was proved that pltf.'s machine gave a greater output than any means previously in use had done:—Held: the claim was for an apparatus substantially the same as that described & illustrated by the drawings; the method & apparatus described & claimed were new & original; they were admittedly useful, & contained sufficient invention to support a patent.—TURNER v. BOWMAN (1924), 42 R. P. C. 29.

249. ——.]—A patent was granted for "improvements in & relating to the cutting of metals & the like by the oxy-acetylene process or similar methods." The first claim was for "an oxy-acetylene cutting appliance comprising a jointed frame capable of movement so as to bring its end into any position in a horizontal plane & an oxy-acetylene jet carried by the jointed frame, in combination with a template on former or adjustable guiding member mounted above the oxy-acetylene jet substantially as described." The eighth claim was for "the combinative with the machine according to first claim or second claim of an attachment for allowing the cutter head to be carried round in a circular path of any required size, attachment including a swing member adapted to be turned, for instance, by a worm gear, & carrying a socket member adjustable in a guide to any distance from the turning centre, substantially as described, for example with reference to the accompanying drawings." In an action for infringement defts. denied infringement & alleged that the patent was invalid for want of novelty & subject-matter. Defts.' machine comprised a bifurcated jointed arm, the lower branch of which carried the blowpipe & the upper branch a tracer wheel. The wheel was so mounted that movement of the tracer over any part of a drawing placed on a table mounted between the two branches could be exactly reproduced in the same scale by the blowpipe:—Held: pltf.'s patent had not been anticipated, the patentee had exercised ingenuity in avoiding the fouling of the cutter heading & the template & in getting the cut to reproduce exactly the contour of the template, & the patent was valid.—GODFREY v. HANCOCK & Co. (ENGINEERS), LTD. (1925), 42 R. P. C. 407.

Invention.]—See Sub-sect. 3, ante.

250. Necessity for novelty.] — Where letters patent were granted for improvements in apparatus for the manufacture of certain chemical substances, & the jury found that the apparatus was not new, but that the patentee's mode of connecting the parts of that apparatus was new, the ct. directed the verdict to be entered for deft. upon an issue taken upon the novelty of the invention.—GAMBLE v. KURTZ (1846), 3 C. B. 425; 7 L. T. O. S. 431; 136 E. R. 170.

251. ——.] — Ladies' mourning bonnet & hat falls having previously been made with the ornamental folds on the outside only, so that when

250 i. Necessity for novelty.]—Pltf. introduced into a drum stove, in addition to a spiral flue, which had been previously in use, a centre pipe closed at the sides & open at both bottom & top, as a means of producing a greater amount of heat, & obtained a patent for "the spiral flue in connection with the pipe in the centre": —Held: the improvement did not involve any new principle or new combination, & the patent was void.—NORTH v. WILLIAMS (1870), 17 Gr. 179. —CAN.

250 ii. ——.]—Pltf. had obtained a patent for an improved gearing for driving the cylinder of threshing machines, & the gearing was a considerable improvement; but it appeared that the same gearing had been previously used for other machines, though not before applied to threshing machines:—Held: the novelty was not sufficient to sustain the patent.—ABELL v. MCPHERSON (1870), 17 Gr. 23; 18 Gr. 437.—CAN.

250 iii. ——.]—HILDRETH v. MCCORMICK MANUFACTURING CO. (1909), 41 S. C. R. 246.—CAN.

250 iv. ——.]—A patent for an alleged invention relating to improvements in portable electric heaters was declared invalid because not a proper subject-matter for letters patent, having regard to the nature of the combination claimed, the state of the art, & common general knowledge at the date of the issue of the patent.—DURABLE ELECTRIC APPLIANCE CO., LTD. v. RENFREW ELECTRIC PRODUCTS, LTD., DURABLE ELECTRIC APPLIANCE CO., LTD. v. SUPERIOR ELECTRICS, LTD., [1926] 4 D. L. R. 1004; 59 O. L. R. 527.—CAN.

turned up a "wrong side" was exposed to view, pltf. introduced & patented an improved mode of making them with the folds on the inner side also, so as to form both sides alike, but there was no novelty in the process of manufacture:—Held: this was not a subject for a patent.—WHITE v. TOMS (1867), 37 L. J. Ch. 204; 17 L. T. 348.

252. ——.]—(1) The third point raised may be very shortly disposed of. It is that E.'s invention . . . is not commercially useful, & has never been in actual use. If this be so it does not follow necessarily that the patent is bad (NORTH, J.).

(2) I do not stop to consider in detail the various discoveries & inventions & the improvements upon which are the subject of the letters patent now before me. It is sufficient to say that before the date of that patent it was known that if two similar plates or tympans capable of vibrating were placed a short distance apart & were mechanically connected the vibrations caused in one of them by speaking to it would be reproduced in the other. . . . It was also known that by the use of the electric current certain sounds such as musical notes could be transmitted to considerable distances but no mode by which articulate speech could be reproduced at long distances had yet been worked out (NORTH, J.).—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. BASSANO (1886), 2 T. L. R. 459; Griffin's Patent Cases (1886), 220; 3 R. P. C. 295; on appeal, 3 R. P. C. 313, C. A.

253. ——.] — WINBY v. MANCHESTER, ETC. STEAM TRAMWAYS CO., No. 38, ante.

254. ——.]—COOPER & CO. (BIRMINGHAM), LTD. v. BAEDEKER, No. 234, ante.

255. ——.] — The patentee of an invention for "improvements in roundabouts" in his complete specification described & claimed certain mechanism consisting of rods & of guides sliding radially on a platform "so as to permit of the "model horses or the like moving either independently or collectively in a radial direction under centrifugal action" substantially as described. An action having been brought against B. & M. by the owners of the patent, deft. B. alleged its invalidity on the grounds (inter alia) of want of novelty & disconformity, & denied infringement. M. did not appear at the trial, but had consented to an injunction:—Held: the patent was bad for want of novelty, & also for disconformity.—SAVAGE BROTHERS, LTD. v. BRINDLE (1900), 17 R. P. C. 228.

256. ——.]—C. was the registered owner of a patent for "improvements in candlesticks," by making the sockets in one piece with fangs projecting above the nozzle to hold candles of different sizes. In the specification there was no provision as to the fixing of the socket on the base or bed of the candlestick, nor was it expressly stated that the socket & fangs should be made in one piece. In the complete specification, but not in the provisional specification, it was provided that small tits cut on the socket piece should overlap & hold the nozzle or grease-catcher. In 1901 C. commenced an action against L., who denied infringement, novelty, & subject-matter, & alleged disconformity & prior publication. It appeared that holders with similar fangs, fitting or standing in common candlesticks, were well known prior to C.'s patent. At the trial it was held that a socket with fangs in one piece was new; that the arrangement of tits for holding the nozzle was merely a method of carrying out the invention, & was therefore rightly added in the complete specification without disconformity; that there had been an infringement by deft.; & that the pltf. was entitled to the relief claimed:—Held: the only novelty was in attaching the socket made in one piece directly to the base of the candlestick, & there was no subject-matter.—CARTER v. LEYSON (TRADING AS PECKHAM BOX CO.) (1902), 19 R. P. C. 473.

257. ——.]—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. MANCHESTER CORPN., No. 236, ante.

258. ——.]—In 1899 a patent was granted to pltf. & another for "improved means applicable for use in the production of photoprints." The invention consisted essentially in mounting a cylinder, used in conjunction with an arc light for reproducing architects' & engineers' drawings by photography, upon trunnions, so that it could be placed in a horizontal position. The main defence was want of subject-matter:—Held: the invention was new, useful, & had not been anticipated, & it was good subject-matter for a patent.—HALDEN v. HALL (B. J.) & CO. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 609.

259. ——.] — BAXTER v. MARSDEN, No. 496, post.

260. ——.]—STROUD v. HUMBER, LTD., No. 238, ante.

261. ——.]—ROSE v. PICKAVANT (J. W.)& CO., LTD., No. 247, ante.

262. ——.]—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. CHARLESWORTH, PEEBLES & CO., SAME v. BRITISH INSULATED & HELSBY CABLES, LTD., No. 640, post.

Novelty.]—See Sect. 2, post.

263. Necessity for utility.]—R. v. ARKWRIGHT, No. 14, ante.

264. ——.]—This was an action for infringement of a patent for improvements in apparatus for making gas from coal, & for analogous purposes. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent on various grounds, including anticipation & want of utility & subject-matter. The system in use prior to the patent was one in which the retorts were horizontal, this being required in order that the coal should be of a level at the bottom of the retort, & not too deep, so that there should be room for the heated coal to expand, & for the gases to escape without having to struggle through heated coal. This method required great labour & some skill to charge & discharge the coal, & required several men to do it. Pltfs.' retort was put at an angle approximating to the angle of repose—that is, an angle so that the coal could enter the retort at a certain velocity, & distribute itself at an even layer on the bottom of the retort till it reached the stop, & it then gradually filled up to the right height & sufficiently level. The advantages of this system were that it dispensed with labour, & was cheaper; the charging was automatic, & the discharging was rapidly effected owing to the angle of the retort. Defts. contended at the trial that the patent was anticipated; that the invention, & particularly as described in the Specification, would not work so as to give a practical success, as it would not get a good even layer; that the angle of repose of coke was slightly greater than that of coal; & that, therefore, the double advantage of the automatic charging & quick discharge could not both take place; that the patentee only pointed to an angle of 29 degrees, which would not effect both the purposes of charging & discharging:—Held: the invention was good subject-matter of a patent, & had not been anticipated; the objections to the working of the invention failed; & that defts.' apparatus, though they had made modifications of & improvements on the invention, fell within the words & spirit of pltfs.' invention.—AUTOMATIC COAL GAS RETORT CO., LTD. v. SALFORD CORPN. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 450.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 5, B.; sub-sects. 6 & 7, A

Annotation:—Refd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Naamlooze Vennootschap Pope's Metaaldraadlampenfabriek, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth Peebles, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. King (1923), 40 R. P. C. 119.

265. ——.]—WINBY v. MANCHESTER, ETC. STEAM TRAMWAYS CO., No. 38, ante.

266. ——.]—HALDEN v. HALL (B. J.) & CO., No. 258, ante.

267. ——.]—The patentee of "an improvement in hair nets & the manufacture thereof" claimed by his specification: "(a) The improvement in the manufacture of hair nets produced from a continuous length of material, whereby the knotting of the ends of the lengths forming the nets to prevent unravelling is avoided, substantially as herein described. (b) A net for the hair having meshes of varying size substantially as & for the purpose stated." In an action for infringement deft. put in issue the validity of this patent, alleging want of subject-matter, want of novelty, & want of utility, & denied that he had infringed: —Held: the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter & utility, &, if the patent had been good, the deft. had not infringed.—MARSH v. WOLFF (1906), 23 R. P. C. 265.

Utility.]—See Sect. 3, post.

SUB-SECT. 6.—ADDITIONS.

268. General rule — Patentable.] — MORRIS v. BRAMSOM (1776), 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 30; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 51; Bull. N. P. 76 c.

Annotations:—Consd. Boulton v. Bull (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463; Hornblower v. Boulton (1799), 8 Term Rep. 95.

269. —— ——.]—BOULTON v. BULL, No. 90, ante.

Patents of addition.]—See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 19; 1919 (c. 80), sched.

SUB-SECT. 7.—NEW COMBINATION OF MATTER ALREADY KNOWN.

A. In General.

270. General rule — Patentable.] — HUDDART v. GRIMSHAW (1803), Dav. Pat. Cas. 265; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 200; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 85.

Annotations:—Refd. Bateman v. Gray (1853), Macr. 93. Mentd. Campion v. Benyon (1821), 6 Moore, C. P. 71.

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 7.—A.

270 i. General rule—Patentable.]—A patent is good for a combination of old or before-used inventions, as well as for an entirely new one, provided the patentee does not claim it as an invention now in all its parts, but merely for the improvement in the combination.—EMERY v. IREDALE, EMERY v. HODGE (1861), 11 C. P. 106. —CAN.

270 ii. —— ——.]—YATES v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1877), 24 Gr. 495.—CAN.

270 iii. —— ——.]—HUNTER v. CARRICK (1885), 28 Gr. 489; revsd., 10 A. R. 449; 11 S. C. R. 300.—CAN.

270 iv. —— ——.]—MITCHELL v. HANCOCK INSPIRATOR CO. (1886), 2 Exch. C. R. 539.—CAN.

270 v. —— ——.]—DANSEREAU v. BELLEMARE (1888), 16 S. C. R. 180.—CAN.

270 vi. —— ——.]—MATTICE v. BRANDON MACHINE WORKS CO. (1907), 17 Man. L. R. 105.—CAN.

270 vii. —— ——.]—ELECTRIC FIRE-PROOFING CO. v. ELECTRIC FIRE-PROOFING CO. OF CANADA (1907), Q. R. 31 S. C. 34.—CAN.

270 viii. —— ——.]—DOMINION FENCE CO. v. CLINTON WIRE CLOTH CO. (1907), 39 S. C. R. 535.—CAN.

270 ix. —— ——.]—UNITED INJECTOR CO. v. MORRISON (1913), 24 O. W. R. 608; 4 O. W. N. 1263; 10 D. L. R. 619.—CAN.

270 x. —— ——.]—CONCRETE APPLIANCES CO. v. ROURKE, MCDONALD, ETC. (1915), 8 W. W. R. 6.—CAN.

270 xi. —— ——.]—CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC CO., LTD. v. DALYTE ELECTRIC, LTD., [1925] 4 D. L. R. 874.—CAN.

270 xii. —— ——.]—WRIGHT & CORSON v. BRAKE SERVICE, LTD., [1925] Exch. C. R. 127.—CAN.

271. —— ——.]—HILL v. THOMPSON, No. 25, ante.

272. —— ——.]—(1) If the shearing of cloth from list to list by shears be known, & the shearing it from end to end by means of rotary cutters be also known, & a person construct a machine to shear from list to list by means of rotary cutters; this is a new invention, & will entitle the inventor to maintain a patent for it.

(2) If A. in 1818, take out a patent for improvements in a machine for which J. took out a patent in 1815; it is necessary for A. on the trial of an action for the infringement of his patent, to put in J.'s patent & specification; but it is not material whether a machine made according to the specification of J. would be useful or not, if it be shown that a machine constructed according to A.'s specification would be so.—LEWIS v. DAVIS (1829), 3 C. & P. 502; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 471; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 488.

Annotation:—As to (2) Refd. Crane v. Price (1842), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 393.

273. —— ——.]—MACINTOSH v. EVERINGTON (1836), 2 Carp. Pat. Cas. 186.

274. —— ——.]—A new adaptation of old materials, sufficient to ground an injunction against the infraction of a patent.

It is not the use of sulphuric acid & oxymuriate of potash or the tubes, but the discovery of the whole combination, consisting of four substances, described by regular steps in the specification, for which the patent is obtained & the compound is stated definitely enough in the specification. The evidence sufficiently proved the novelty of the adaptation (SHADWELL, V.-C.).—LUKIE v. ROBSON (1837), 2 Jur. 201; sub nom. LUKEY v. ROBSON, 2 Carp. Pat. Cas. 413.

275. —— ——.]—WALTON v. POTTER (1841), 3 Man & G. 411; 4 Scott, N. R. 91; 11 L. J. C. P. 138; 1 Goodeve's Patent Cases, 488; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 585; 133 E. R. 1203.

Annotations:—Refd. Bateman v. Gray (1853), Macr. 93. Mentd. Betts v. Walker (1849), 14 Jur. 647; Hill v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288; Thorn v. Worthing Skating Rink Co. (1876), 6 Ch. D. 415, n.; Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 90.

276. —— ——.]—(1) Though all the parts of an instrument are old, yet . . . it is competent for the Crown to grant a patent for the combination of old known things if they produce the effect for which the patent is taken out (MARTIN, B.).

(2) The law will not permit a person to take an article that has been patented & to give a substitute in place of it for the purpose of effecting the same end, by the use of equivalents, using the skill & knowledge which he may possess to

270 xiii. —— ——.]—DOWLING v. BILLINGTON (1890), 7 R. P. C. 191.—IR.

270 xiv. —— ——.]—PIRRIE v. YORK STREET FLAX SPINNING CO., LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429.—IR.

270 xv. —— ——.]—VAN BERKEL v. BOOTH BROTHERS (1906), 23 R. P. C. 573.—IR.

270 xvi. —— ——.]—LAKHPAT RAI v. SRI KISHAN DAS (1918), I. L. R. 41 All. 68.—IND.

270 xvii. —— ——.]—MORTON v. MIDDLETON (1863), 1 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) 718.—SCOT.

270 xviii. —— ——.]—VAN BERKEL v. SIMPSON (R. D.), LTD. (1906), 24 R. P. C. 117.—SCOT.

270 xix. —— ——.]—LYNCH v. PHILLIPS & CO., [1909] S. C. 884; 46 Sc. L. R. 606; [1909] 1 S. L. T. 454.—SCOT.

evade the patent (MARTIN, B.).—BATEMAN & MOORE v. GRAY (1853), Macr. 93; on appeal, 1 C. L. R. 512.

Annotations:—Generally, Mentd. Crossley v. Potter (1853), Macr. 240; Hancock v. Noyes (1854), 9 Exch. 388.

277. —— ——.]—(1) A patentee, in his specification, claimed, as his invention, exhausting from millstone cases the dusty air blown through between the grinding surfaces, by a blast of air; being a combination of a blast & an exhaust applied to the working of a mill. The claim was not restricted to any particular mode of creating or applying the blast of air, nor to any particular mode of producing the exhaust; & both blast & exhaust had previously been used separately in working mills:—Held: the invention of this combination & application of a blast & an exhaust might be made the subject of a patent.

(2) From the general description, it appeared that the upper stone was fixed & the lower stone was made to rotate; & some advantages were pointed out as resulting from this arrangement. Qu.: whether, according to the true construction of the specification, the claim should be limited to the application of a combination of a blast & an exhaust with a mill in which only the lower stone rotates:—Held: if the claim be so limited, the use of a new part of the combination, viz. a combination of blast & exhaust, though in connection with a mill in which the upper stone does rotate, may be an infringement of the patent.—BOVILL v. KEYWORTH (1857), 7 E. & B. 725; 29 L. T. O. S. 194; 3 Jur. N. S. 817; 5 W. R. 686; 119 E. R. 1413.

Annotations:—As to (2) Refd. Thomas v. Foxwell (1858), 5 Jur. N. S. 37. Generally, Consd. Bovill v. Goodier (1866), 35 Beav. 427. Mentd. Bovill v. Smith (1868), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 49.

278. —— —— Though each part of combination old.]—A patent for a combination does not import a claim that each of its parts is new; & the patent may be valid though each part is old:—Held: the use of a subordinate part only of a combination may be an infringement of a patent for the combination if the part so used be new & material.

. . . A patent for a combination is not a claim that each part thereof is new. On the contrary each part may be old, & yet a new & useful combination of such old parts may be valid, as has been often decided. Even if the specification contained no disclaimer, it would be a question of construction whether the patent was void. Did it claim as new that which was old? If so, it would be void: but unless that was the true construction of the instrument the patent might be valid. But, where there is either a disclaimer or an acknowledgment that a part is old, all ground for objection is gone . . . the patent for an improvement on an invention already the subject of a patent, if confined to the improvement, is not an infringement of the former patent. The use of the improvement with the former invention, during the existence of the former patent, without license, would be an infringement; but, with license, that also would be lawful, as is in constant experience. . . . The assertion, that all patents for improvements on existing patents must be void, is obviously untenable (LORD CAMPBELL, C.J.).—LISTER v. LEATHER (1858), 8 E. & B. 1004; 27 L. J. Q. B. 295; 4 Jur. N. S. 947; 120 E. R. 373, Ex. Ch.

Annotations:—Folld. Bovill v. Keyworth (1857), 7 E. & B. 725. Apld. Saxby v. Clunes (1874), 43 L. J. Ex. 228. Consd. Harrison v. Anderston Foundry Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 574; Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315. Consd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631. Refd. Thomas v. Foxwell (1858), 5 Jur. N. S. 37; Lister v. Eastwood (1864), 9 L. T. 766; Parkes v. Stevens (1869), 5 Ch. App. 36; Wright v. Hitchcock (1870), L. R. 5 Exch. 37; Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley (1904), 91 L. T. 40. Mentd. Betts v. Menzies & Wildey (1860), 6 Jur. N. S. 1290; Harrison v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 6 Jur. N. S. 993; Printing & Numerical Registering Co. v. Sampson (1875), 32 L. T. 354; Soc. Anon. Des Manufactures De Glaces v. Tilghman's Patent Sand Blast Co. (1883), 25 Ch. D. 1.

279. —— —— ——.]—On July 19, 1905, pltfs., the owners of a patent for "improvements in sound magnifying horns, for phonographs & the like," brought an action for infringement of the same. Defts. alleged that the patent was invalid on the ground of want of subject-matter:—Held: there was subject-matter, for a patent, the invention had not been anticipated, & defts. had infringed.—GRAMOPHONE & TYPEWRITER, LTD. v. ULLMANN (1906), 23 R. P. C. 752.

280. —— ——.]—In a suit for an injunction to restrain the infringement of a patent, the ct. directed four issues to be tried at law, one amongst them being, whether the invention was a new manufacture? The judge at common law, in the course of the trial of the issues, expressed his opinion that a question of law would arise; whether there was upon the facts a sufficiency of invention to warrant the granting of a patent. The judge, nevertheless, went on with the trial, & put two issues to the jury: Is the invention new? & Is it a substantial improvement? The jury found for pltf. in the affirmative upon both issues.

Upon the cause coming back to equity, the Master of the Rolls took up the point of law reserved, without considering the verdict of the jury, &, on the motion of defts., granted a new trial:—Held: the judge in equity ought to have considered the verdict of the jury, &, had he done so, the only point of law remaining would have been this—whether a combination of things previously well known which combination could be rightfully denominated a substantial improvement could be the subject of a patent? the answer to which must have been in the affirmative.—SPENCER v. JACK (1861), 11 L. T. 242, L. C.

Annotations:—Apld. Saxby v. Gloucester Waggon Co. (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 305. Folld. Re Fried Krupp Akt. Application (1908), 25 R. P. C. 809. Refd. Thompson v. James (1863), 32 Beav. 570. Mentd. Young v. Fernie (1863), 1 De G. J. & Sm. 353.

281. —— ——.]—(1) If the combination & application of old machinery be new & beneficial, the invention of this combination may be protected by patent.

If there is a patent for a combination, the combination itself is, ex necessitate, the novelty; & the combination is also the merit, if it be a merit, which remains to be proved by evidence. So also with regard to the discrimination between what is new & what is old. It is clear that the claim is for a combination, & nothing but a combination, there is no infringement unless the whole combination is used, & it is in that way immaterial whether any or which of the parts are new. If, indeed, it were left open on the specification to the patentee to claim, not merely the combinatioo of all the parts as a whole, but also certain subordinate or subsidiary parts of the combination, on the ground that such subordinate & subsidiary parts are new & material, as it was held a patentee might do in Lister v. Leather, No. 278, ante, then it might be necessary to see that the patentee had carefully distinguished those subordinate or subsidiary parts, & had not left it in dubio what claim to parts, in addition to the claim for combination, he meant to assert (LORD CAIRNS, C.).

---

278 i. —— —— Though each part of combination old.]—Re LAUERS (OR LAVERS) HEELS PATENT, LTD. (Ont.) (1918), 3 D. L. R. 1.—CAN.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 7, A. & B. (a).]

(2) In the construction of a specification, it appears to me that it ought not to be subjected to what has been called a benign interpretation or to a strict one. The language should be construed according to its ordinary meaning—the understanding of technical words being of course confined to those who are conversant with the subject-matter of the invention—& if the specification is thus sufficiently intelligible it performs all that is required of it (LORD CHELMSFORD).—HARRISON v. ANDERSTON FOUNDRY CO. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 574, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Perry v. Soc. des Lunetiers (1893), 13 R. P. C. 664. Consd. Kynock v. Webb (1899), 17 R. P. C. 100. Apld. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Thompson (1905), 22 R. P. C. 177; Harrison Patents Co. v. Nicholson (1908), 25 R. P. C. 393; United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 368; British Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. L. & S. W. Ry. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 309. Refd. Proctor v. Bennis (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740; Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley, [1904] 1 Ch. 612; Patent Exploitation v. Siemens (1904), 21 R. P. C. 541; International Harvester of America v. Peacock (1908), 25 R. P. C. 765. Mentd. Ellington v. Clark (1887), 58 L. T. 40; Leggott v. McGeogh (1893), 10 R. P. C. 429. Generally, Refd. Cartsburn Co. v. Sharp (1884), 1 R. P. C. 181; Moore v. Bennett (1884), 1 R. P. C. 129; Nordenfelt v. Gardner (1884), 1 R. P. C. 61; Hattersley v. Hodgson (1906), 23 R. P. C. 192. Mentd. Watling v. Stevens (1886), 3 R. P. C. 37; Miller v. Clyde Bridge Steel Co. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 470; Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. Mullard Radio Valve Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323.

282. —— ——.]—You may get in one patent the combination, & you may get all subordinate parts of that combination, so far as you claim to use them for one main purpose, but if you are going to claim a subordinate part, or one of the elements of the combination for a purpose independent of the purpose of the combination, then you have got an extra invention, & it is not all one.—Re JONES' PATENT (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 265.

283. —— ——.]—The owner of a patent for improvements in winding machines, by which he claimed as his invention not only an entire machine, but also a number of subordinate inventions, brought an action for infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid for want of novelty & utility, & also for want of subject-matter. They also alleged prior user & sale by the patentee. It was held at the trial, that the inventions claimed were new & useful & proper subject-matter for a patent, & defts. had infringed. Defts. appealed. In the Ct. of Appeal the only question discussed was that of infringement, & the ct. held that pltf.'s invention was for an improvement in a well known machine for effecting an old object in a better way, that he must be confined to the particular details invented by him, & that defts. had not infringed. Pltf. appealed to the House of Lords:—Held: the construction put upon the specification by the Ct. of Appeal was too narrow, the arrangement of pltf., though attaining an old result in a simpler way to an alleged anticipation, was simpler & more direct in its operation & was good subject-matter & novel, & defts. had infringed.—BOYD v. HORROCKS (1891), 9 R. P. C. 77, H. L.

Annotations:—Mentd. Longbottom v. Shaw (1889), 43 Ch. D. 46; Mandleberg v. Morley (1895), 64 L. J. Ch. 245.

284. —— ——.]—This was an action for infringement of a patent for an eyelet for boots, etc., made of metal, & coated both above & below the flange with celluloid, so as to provide a permanent facing for the eyelet, which might be of any desired colour. Deft. denied infringement, & admitted at the trial. In the anticipation relied on by deft., lacing hooks were shown, coated with celluloid, & also an eyelet coated on one side; but no such eyelet as pltfs.' had been produced on the market. There was, however, a demand for an eyelet which would stand wear. Pltfs. experimented for six years before arriving at their invention:—Held: (1) pltfs.' combination was new; it was admittedly useful, which afforded a presumption of novelty & ingenuity; (2) to constitute anticipation, the essential part of the invention must be found in the anticipation; & the anticipations did not show or lead to the particular combination of pltf.—THIERRY v. RICKMANN (1895), 12 R. P. C. 543; on appeal, sub nom.

Annotations:—Generally, Refd. Savage v. Harris (1896), 13 R. P. C. 364. Mentd. Van Beskel v. Simpson (1906), 23 R. P. C. 237.

285. —— ——.]—This was an action for infringement of a patent for fire-proof floors. The invention was for the purpose of constructing concrete floors more expeditiously; it consisted of hollow fireclay lintels resting on the lower flanges of parallel girders; the lintels were flat below; they projected under & covered the lower surface of the flanges; the lintels formed both a continuous ceiling below & also a support for concrete above. The hollows in the lintels formed hollow air spaces both below & above the flanges, which air spaces communicated. The concrete next the girders rested on the flange, & between the girders on the lintels, but when set the lintels were no longer necessary. The floor was light & strong, & the weight was thrown on the girders. The lintels supported the concrete till it was set; secondly, dispensed with all centring; thirdly, protected the lower parts of the girder from fire; & fourthly, formed continuous air passages. Defts. denied infringement, & denied the validity of the patent on various grounds, including anticipation by several prior patents, & want of subject-matter:—Held: the patentee had constructed, out of parts which were mostly old, a novel combination, which included a light self-supporting concrete floor, without the usual centring & of considerable utility, & the patent was good subject matter. The appeal was allowed, & judgment was given for pltfs. for an injunction & damages, with a certificate that the validity of the patent had come in question.

It does not take away from the merit of an invention to point out that one of its details is to be found in one obscure specification, & another detail in another, & so on, & to say that all the patentee had to do was to put these together; it is the getting of the idea & the putting together of the idea, with the mechanical means of attaining it, that constitutes invention (RIGBY, L.J.).—FAWCETT v. HOMAN (1896), 13 R. P. C. 398; 12 T. L. R. 507.

286. —— ——.]—Pltfs. having sued defts. for infringement of their Patent No. 2562 of 1914, the defence was as to the features infringed, want of novelty, utility, & subject matter. The ct. held that the patent had been infringed & was not invalid on any of the above grounds.

It is no criticism on the validity of a patent for a novel combination that the idea of it appears obvious when grasped, or that separate factors constituting it can, when isolated, be discovered in & extracted from previous specifications.

There was a definite exercise of invention in arriving at the idea of a magazine supporting frame (SARGANT, L.J.).—MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE CO. v. INTERTYPE CO., LTD. (1926), 43 R. P. C. 239; 42 T. L. R. 682, C. A.

287. Ambit of protection — Confined to novel parts.]—Under a patent for an arrangement & combination of parts, protection will not be given against the use of any particular part which is not novel. The adaptation of a sliding door to a spherical lamp, sliding doors having previously been applied to cylindrical lamps & to other glazed surfaces, cannot of itself be the subject of a patent.

A person having a patent for improvements in gas lamps, made further improvements in such lamps, & obtained a patent for the subsequent improvements. The specification to the second patent stated that the invention related to the construction of lamps of a class forming the subject of the former patent, & then described the mode of making the improved parts of the lamp :— Held: the specification was sufficient.—PARKES v. STEVENS (1869), 5 Ch. App. 36; 22 L. T. 635; 18 W. R. 233, L. C.

Annotations :—Mentd. Hill v. Hibbit (1872), 41 L. J. Ch. 703; Murray v. Clayton (1872), 7 Ch. App. 570; Clark v. Adie (1875), 10 Ch. App. 667; Harrison v. Anderston Foundry Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 574.

288. —— Confined to particular mode of combination.]—Upon the construction of a patent :— Held: (1) although the patent included matters some of which were new & some old, it might be upheld by limiting the claim, as in Seed v. Higgins, No. 1063, post, to the particular combination in the particular manner described in the specification. (2) The antecedent existence of an invention, not shown to have been brought to any successful result, & which was so far similar, that if subsequent in date to the patent it would have been held a colourable & clumsy imitation for the purpose of effecting the same result, did not invalidate the patent by anticipation.—DAW v. ELEY (1867), L. R. 3 Eq. 496; 36 L. J. Ch. 482; 15 L. T. 559.

Annotations :—As to (2) Apld. Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. East London Rubber Co. (1896), 75 L. T. 488. Refd. Murray [illegible] 25 Ch. D. 29; Parker v. Mort, Lidden (188[illegible] 325; Moss v. Malings (1886), 33 Ch. D. 603.

289. —— ——.]—As the only thing that could be patented was the mode of manufacture & the particular mode of combination, it was open to all the rest of the world to exercise their ingenuity in the same way to see if they could not invent some other mode (JAMES, L.J.).—BINNEY v. FELDTMAN (1875), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 49, C. A.; affd. Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), p. 51, H. L.

290. —— ——.]—What the patentee is improving is a ticket-punching apparatus in which the punch is held back, or set fast, & has to be released, & his improvement is in the mode of holding it back, or fastening it back, & then releasing it. The mechanism for holding or fastening the punch back is what he calls the locking device, & is very ingenious. It is so contrived that the punch is held back until it is released by the rising of a pin in it which rising of the pin is caused by the insertion of the ticket. But the fundamental idea of the patentee, & the essence of his invention is, first, to hold back the punch & then to release it, & to do both in a better way than before. . . . His patent really is for the combination of his peculiar device for first locking & then releasing the punch which perforates the ticket. Deft. starts from an entirely different point of view, & arrives at the same end by an essentially different process. Deft. does not lock or hold back his punch at all. His punch is always free to move, although, of course, it cannot make a hole in anything until something in which a hole can be made is put in front of it. It is true that deft. has availed himself of part, & of an important part of pltf.'s invention—viz., the idea of having a movable punch, accompanied by a pin, which is prevented by the ticket from descending when the punch comes down & makes a perforation. If pltf.'s patent was for the combination of a punch & pin made to move together, but so, nevertheless, that the pin should be kept up whilst the punch perforated the ticket, then deft. would have infringed the patent. But it is impossible to construe pltf.'s patent as a patent for this device except in combination with his locking device. Both are essential to his invention, & the combination patented by pltf. has not been taken by deft. (LINDLEY, L.J.).—TICKET PUNCH & REGISTER CO., LTD. v. COLLEY'S PATENTS, LTD. (1895), 12 R. P. C. 171; 11 T. L. R. 262, C. A.

Annotation :—Mentd. Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. De Mare Incandescent Gas Light System (1896), 13 R. P. C. 301.

291. —— Component parts—So far as directed to principle purpose.]—Re JONES' PATENT, No. 282, ante.

B. Essentials of Combination.

(a) Novelty.

292. Necessity for.]—BOULTON v. BULL, No. 90, ante.

293. ——.]—A patent for improvements in the construction of ships' anchors, windlasses, & chain cables, cannot be supported unless there is novelty in each invention; & therefore, where it turned out that there was no novelty in the construction of the anchors, it was held that the patent was wholly void.

Now, a patent for a machine, each part of which was in use before, but in which the combination of the different parts is new, & a new result produced, is good; because there is a novelty in the combination (ABBOTT, C.J.).—BRUNTON v. HAWKES (1821), 4 B. & Ald. 541; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 405; 106 E. R. 1034.

Annotations :—Consd. Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 2 B. & S. 194. Refd. Morgan v. Seaward (1837), 2 M. & W. 544; Cook v. Pearce (1844), 8 Q. B. 1054; Heath v. Unwin (1845), 13 M. & W. 883; Barber v. Grace (1847), 17 L. J. Ex. 122; Ormson v. Clarke (1863), 14 C. B. N. S. 475; Bovill v. Finch (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 523.

294. ——.]—Semble: a combination of two things which in themselves are not new, & which by the combination produce a new thing, will not support a patent, unless the new thing will produce a new result: its being a means of producing a result, which, by other means, could have been before produced, will not be sufficient.—SAUNDERS v. ASTON (1832), 3 B. & Ad. 881; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 510; 1 L. J. K. B. 265; 110 E. R. 324.

295. ——.]—LISTER v. LEATHER, No. 278, ante.

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 7.—B. (a).

292 i. Necessity for.]—MAY v. HIGGINS (1916), 21 C. L. R. 119.—AUS.

292 ii. ——.]—When a pretended invention constitutes neither a new process nor a new combination producing a result unknown before, it is not patentable.—DOMPIERRE v. BARIL (1889), 18 R. L. O. S. 597.—CAN.

292 iii. ——.]—FLEXLUME SIGN CO. v. MACEY SIGN CO. (Ont.), [1924] 4 D. L. R. 49.—CAN.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 7, B. (a) & (b).]

296. ——.]—CANNINGTON v. NUTTALL, No. 320, post.

297. ——.]—Pltf. obtained in 1874 a patent for certain improvements in interlocking apparatus for railway points & signals. Patents had been previously obtained in 1870 & 1871 for inventions of apparatus for similar purposes. In an action for infringement of pltf.'s patent of 1874 by defts., it was admitted by pltf.'s witnesses that, taking the two inventions of 1870 & 1871 together, & discarding all superfluous parts, every element of the patent of 1874 was to be found in one or other of those inventions; & that no new result was obtained by their combination in the patent of 1874 different from that which had been obtained by the previous inventions, but it was contended for pltf. that the combination of the two inventions of 1870 & 1871, effected by pltf.'s invention of 1874, required such an exercise of skill & ingenuity as to constitute the subject of a valid patent. There was, however, evidence, with which the ct. was satisfied, to show that any person of ordinary skill & knowledge of the subject, placing the two inventions of 1870 & 1871 side by side, could effect the combination of the two in a manner similar to that of pltf.'s invention without making any further experiments or obtaining any further information:—Held: pltf.'s invention was not of sufficient novelty to constitute the subject of a valid patent.—SAXBY v. GLOUCESTER WAGGON CO. (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 305; 50 L. J. Q. B. 577, D. C.; affd. (1883), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887) 56, H. L.

Annotation:—Refd. Lane Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424.

298. ——.]—PROCTOR v. BENNIS, No. 975, post.

299. ——.]—But the evidence shows that the Aberdeen machine has never worked successfully; it is inefficient; it wants something. Pltf.'s patent is a combination of the materials of the Aberdeen machine with that something which it wants. . . . I come to the conclusion that pltf.'s patent has not been anticipated, that it is not bad for want of novelty (LORD ESHER, M.R.).—LYON v. GODDARD (1893), 9 T. L. R. 546; 10 R. P. C. 334, C. A.; affd. sub nom. GODDARD v. LYON (1894), 11 R. P. C. 354, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Benton & Stone v. Denston (1925), 42 R. P. C. 284. Refd. Case v. Cressy (1901), 17 R. P. C. 255; Re Alsop's Patent (1907), 24 R. P. C. 733; Hatmaker v. Nathan (1917), 34 R. P. C. 317.

300. ——.]—This was an action for the infringement of a patent for waste water closets. The patentee's claim was substantially for a combination of a number of parts, not containing any essential novelty, but producing an effective result, which had procured a ready sale, & was easily adaptable to existing buildings & drains. Deft. pleaded that pltf.'s alleged improvements contained no invention & were anticipated by prior specifications & prior use:—Held: pltf.'s invention was not anticipated & following Hayward v. Hamilton, No. 131, ante, as a new commercial article though a combination of old parts, it was good subject-matter.—DUCKETTS, LTD. v. WHITEHEAD (1895), 12 R. P. C. 187.

301. ——.]—FAWCETT v. HOMAN, No. 285, ante.

302. ——.]—Inventors are not required to know or to point out the reasons or causes why beneficial results are produced by the means which they describe & claim as effective, & which are effective in causing them, nor to know or point out all the beneficial effects which may result. In other words, what is invented is the combination, & if that has been invented & is novel nothing more is required but utility for the general purpose which is the indicated object of the invention. Within the limits of that purpose the inventor of the combination need not disclose or prove any particular ground of utility of any particular ingredient: & it seems to me to follow that a person who makes use of the combination within the limits of that purpose cannot escape from the charge of infringement merely because his motives for using the ingredient are different from those of the inventor (WRIGHT, J.).—MAXIM-NORDENFELT GUNS & AMMUNITION CO. & HIRAM STEVENS MAXIM v. ANDERSON (1897), 13 T. L. R. 262; on appeal (1898), 14 L. R. 487, H. L.

303. ——.]—In 1885, letters patent were granted to A. for "the use of earthenware pipes in place of brickwork or other material in the formation of self-flushing water closets." The claim, as amended, was for "the use of pipes of the above form, constructed of earthenware to form, as hereabove stated & described, a direct communication of the water closet seat with the main drain." The patentee brought an action for infringement, in which defts. alleged (inter alia) non-infringement, want of subject-matter, & want of novelty. Pltf. alleged that his invention consisted in a combination of pipes performing a function not performed by the parts separately:—Held: the claim was for the use of the pipes in combination, that it was useful, but the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter, since the combination performed no function not performed by the parts separately, which functions so performed were not novel, & even if this were not so, the combination was not novel.—ALLEN v. OATES & GREEN, LTD. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 744.

304. ——.]—In 1895 a patent was granted for "an improved device for holding or retaining ladies' hair." The device was a combination of a hinged binder as a means of making a secure foundation for the coiffure, with arms or wings as a means of coiling or arranging the hair so as to form a complete edifice. Pltfs., who in 1898 became the registered proprietors of the patent, in that year commenced large sales of the devices, each mounted for the purpose of sale on a show card, the goods so mounted coming to be known in the trade as pltfs.' In 1900 defts., having been customers of pltfs., themselves offered for sale a similar device mounted in a similar manner, but not made by or for pltfs. Pltfs. brought an action for injunctions to restrain the infringement of their patent & "passing off," with other relief. Defts., at the trial, abandoned their defence as to "passing off," but contended that pltfs.' patent was invalid for want of novelty & lack of invention, & that it had been anticipated by certain prior specifications:—Held: the interim injunction as to "passing off," which had been granted should made perpetual, with the addition of the words applicable to the expiration of pltfs.' patent; pltfs.' patent was valid as claiming protection for a new & useful combination having the merit of ingenuity & invention, & was not vitiated either by the fact that two of the claims, which were clearly appendant to the "improved device" of the patent, were for old devices, or by the alleged anticipations; defts. had infringed the patent of pltfs., who were therefore also entitled to an injunction restraining infringement & to the usual certificates, as well as to an order for delivery up of the infringing articles & a direction for an account of profits.—PARKER & SMITH v. SATCHWELL & Co., LTD. (1901), 45 Sol. Jo. 502; 18 R. P. C. 299.

Annotation :—Refd. True & Variable Electric Lamp Syndicate v. Bryant Trading Syndicate (1908), 25 R. P. C. 461.

305. ——.]—In 1895 a patent was granted to J. for "improvements in cyclometers, revolution counters, or indicators." The first claim was as follows :—"In a cyclometer, revolution counter, or indicator the combination, with a chambered support & an actuating shaft, of index rings mounted to revolve on said support & adapted to transmit movement from each of said index rings to the next in order, the hubs of said gear being flattened, spring arms supported within the chamber & bearing upon the opposite flattened faces of said gear hubs, & means for actuating the first of said rings from said actuating shafts." There were four other claims for similar combinations, expressed in more detail & with additional modifications. In 1900 A. W. G., Ltd., presented a petition for revocation of the patent on the grounds of want of novelty & subject-matter :—Held : in the first claim the novelty depended on the squaring of the hub & the use of the spring arms in the minor combination which was the subject of the claim, & such combination was not new, useful, & good subject-matter for a patent.—Re JUSTICE'S PATENT (1901), 18 R. P. C. 241.

306. ——.]—MARCONI & MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. BRITISH RADIO-TELEGRAPH & TELEPHONE CO., LTD., No. 317, post.

307. ——.]—Pltfs. were the owners of a patent for "improvements in sample cards." Claim 1 of the complete specification was as follows :—"A sample card for displaying textile fabrics, comprising a body portion & an embossed panel struck up from the said body portion having a surface forming a replica of a sample of textile material." Claim 2 was as follows :—"A sample card for displaying textile fabrics, comprising a body portion, & an embossed panel struck up from the said body portion having a surface forming a replica of a sample of textile material & sharply defined edges raised above the body portion a distance substantially equalling the thickness of a sample of textile material." Claim 3 was substantially Claim 1 with the addition of the words "& a sample of textile material attached to said sample card." At the trial of an action for infringement of the patent defts. admitted infringement, but alleged that the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter. It was admitted by pltfs. that the striking up of panels & the embossing of the surface representation of the texture of the material were both old, but pltfs. contended that the combination was novel & produced a particular result which was commercially successful :—Held : in view of the existing common knowledge at the date of the patent, there was no subject-matter.—SIMPLEX LITHOGRAPH CO. v. CAUSTON (SIR JOSEPH) & SONS, LTD. (1921), 38 R. P. C. 403, C. A.

308. ——.] — HIGGINSON & ARUNDEL v. BENTLEY & BENTLEY, LTD., No. 636, post.

309. What constitutes novelty—Omission of part of old combination.]—A patent claimed the invention of manufacturing tubes by drawing them through rollers, using a maundril in the course of the operation. A later patent claimed the invention of manufacturing tubes by drawing them through fixed dies or holes, but the specification was silent as to the use of the maundril :—Held : the ct., taking the whole of the latter specification together, would infer that the maundril was not to be used, & the latter patent was good.—RUSSELL v. COWLEY (1835), 1 Cr. M. & R. 864; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 465.

Annotations :—Consd. Russell v. Ledsam (1845), 14 M. & W. 574; Beard v. Egerton (1849), 8 C. B. 165; Holmes v. L. & N.-W. Ry. (1852), 12 C. B. 831. Refd. Brook & Hirst v. Aston (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 1025; Betts v. Menzies (1860), 1 E. & E. 1020.

310. —— ——.] — An alteration by subtraction, if it were more than a colourable subtraction, would, as it seems to me, alter the combination. It would not be a combination of the same things; it would be a combination of different things; & if the combination were altered by a material subtraction, I should think it was a new combination. But an alteration by substitution, that is by substitution of one of the material elements of the original combination, must to my mind, be a new combination. The second combination, then, is a combination of different things from the first. There is the taking away of one of the elements, & a material element of the old combination, & a putting in of a new material element which is different from any of the elements of the former.

So long as the specification shows what part of the combination is new, it matters not where in particular it is shown to be so. The new part may be pointed out either in the body of the specification or in one of the claims (LINDLEY, L.J.).—NORDENFELT v. GARDNER (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 175; 1 R. P. C. 61, C. A.

Annotations :—Refd. Proctor v. Bennis (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740; Boyd v. Horrocks (1891), 9 R. P. C. 77.

311. —— Ascertained by construction of whole specification.]—Where a patent is granted for a combination of several things, some of which are old & some new, the question for the jury is whether, taking the specification altogether, that which is claimed as a whole is new; & the imitation by a chemical or mechanical equivalent of a part of the combination, which is both material & new, is an infringement.—NEWTON v. GRAND JUNCTION RY. CO. (1846), 5 Exch. 331; 20 L. J. Ex. 427, n.; 155 E. R. 141.

Annotations :—Consd. Holmes v. L. & N.-W. Ry. (1852), 12 C. B. 831; Lister v. Leather (1858), 8 E. & B. 1004; Clark v. Adie (1875), 10 Ch. App. 667. Refd. Smith v. L. & N.-W. Ry. (1853), 2 E. & B. 69; Totley v. Easton (1857), 2 C. B. N. S. 706; Betts v. De Vitre (1865), 11 Jur. N. S. 9.

312. —— Whether application of old apparatus to new purpose.]—BUSH v. FOX, No. 616, post.

313. —— ——.] — HIGGINSON & ARUNDEL v. BENTLEY & BENTLEY, LTD., No. 636, post.

314. —— Increased simplicity & directness.]—BOYD v. HORROCKS, No. 283, ante.

(b) Utility.

315. Necessity for — Production of better or cheaper article.]—It is no objection to the validity of a patent that the invention cannot be used except by means of a former patented invention; especially when the second patentee expressly disclaims any part of such former invention.

We are of the opinion, that if the result produced by . . . a combination is either a new article, or a better article, or a cheaper article, to the public than that produced before by the old method such combination . . . may well become the subject of a patent. . . . There are numerous instances of patents which have been granted where the invention consisted in no more than the use of things already known, the acting with them in a manner already known, the producing effects already known, but producing those effects so as to be more economically or beneficially enjoyed by the public. . . . In point of law, the labour of thought or experiment, & the expenditure of money, are not the essential grounds of consideration upon which the question, whether the invention is or is not the subject-matter of a patent, ought to depend; for if the invention be new & useful to the public, it is not material whether it is the result of long experiments & profound research, or whether of some sudden & lucky thought, or of mere accidental discovery (TINDAL, C.J.).—CRANE v. PRICE (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580; 5 Scott, N. R. 338; 12 L. J. C. P. 81; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 393; 134 E. R. 239.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 7, B. (b) & (c).]

Annotations:—Distd. Steiner v. Heald (1849), 2 Car. & Kir. 1022. Dbtd. Rushton v. Crawley (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 522. Consd. Murray v. Clayton (1872), 7 Ch. App. 570. Expld. Bamlett v. Picksley (1875), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 40. Apld. Morgan v. Windover (1887), 3 T. L. R. 748; Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 38 R. P. C. 199. Refd. Barber v. Grace (1847), 17 L. J. Ex. 122; Booth v. Kennard (1857), 26 L. J. Ex. 305; Horton v. Mabon (1862), 12 C. B. N. S. 437; Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1865), 11 H. L. Cas. 654; Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315; Lister v. Norton (1886), 3 R. P. C. 199; Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292; Goddard v. Lyon (1894), 11 R. P. C. 354; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429; Hatmaker v. Nathan (1917), 34 R. P. C. 317; Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239.

316. —— ——.]—Where a machine for which a patent had been granted was shown to produce work more expeditiously, more economically, & of a better quality than any previous machine:—Held: the patent could not be invalidated on the ground that the machine was formed by the mere arrangement of common elementary mechanical materials, producing results of the same nature as those previously accomplished by other mechanical arrangements & construction. The public exhibition of a machine in which there are defects, owing to which it proves an entire failure, does not affect the validity of a subsequent patent for a machine, in which, though similar in some of its details to the former, the defects are remedied so as to produce a serviceable machine.

It falls also within the doctrine laid down by LORD ELDON, that there may be a valid patent for a new combination of materials previously in use for the same purpose, or even for a new method of applying such materials (JAMES, L.J.).—MURRAY v. CLAYTON (1872), 7 Ch. App. 570; 27 L. T. 110; 20 W. R. 649, L. JJ.

Annotations:—Consd. Clark v. Adie (1875), 10 Ch. App. 667. Apld. Sykes v. Howarth (1879), 12 Ch. D. 826. Consd. Edison Co. v. Holland (1889), 6 R. P. C. 243. Refd. Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. East London Rubber Co. (1896), 75 L. T. 488; International Harvester of America v. Peacock (1908), 25 R. P. C. 765; Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239; Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 38 R. P. C. 199.

317. —— ——.]—No one who borrows the substance of a patented invention can escape the consequences of infringement by making immaterial variations. The question always is whether the infringing apparatus is substantially the same as the apparatus said to have been infringed. Where a patent is for a combination of parts or a process, & the combination or process, besides being itself new, produces new & useful results, every one who produces the same results by using the essential parts of the combination or process is an infringer, even though he has in fact altered the combination or process by omitting some unessential part or step, & substituting another part or step which is in fact equivalent to the part or step he has omitted. To ascertain the essential feature of an invention, the specification must be read & interpreted by the light of what was generally known at the date of the patent.—MARCONI & MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. BRITISH RADIO-TELEGRAPH & TELEPHONE CO., LTD. (1911), 27 T. L. R. 274; 28 R. P. C. 181.

Annotations:—Refd. Amalgamated Properties of Rhodesia (1913), Ltd. v. Globe & Phœnix Gold Mining Co. (1916), 116 L. T. 111; Follows v. Lench (1916), 34 R. P. C. 45; Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369.

318. ——.]—Patent granted where neither the material nor the shape of the article to be manufactured, nor the mode of making it was new, but where the three particulars were now usefully combined for the first time.—Re MARTIN & HYAMS' PATENT (1855), 25 L. T. O. S. 170; 3 W. R. 433, L. C.

319. ——.]—LISTER v. LEATHER, No. 278, ante.

320. ——.]—A patent may be sustained though each principle or process in it was previously well known to all persons engaged in the trade to which the patent relates, provided that the mode of combining these processes was new, & produced a beneficial result, & provided also, that the specification claimed not the old processes or any one of them, but only the new combination. A patent was taken out for an improvement in the mode of manufacturing glass. The old mode had been that of putting the materials which were to form the glass in pots placed on sieges, or benches, with the fire underneath, the rising flames of which played around them, & when they became too hot & cracked, they were removed from their position, & the overheated & cracked parts were presented to a current of cooling air, & the molten material was thus, partially at least, saved from waste, & the cracks in the pots were stopped up with a portion of it, & were thus preserved from destruction. The new method consisted in adopting some previous improvements, such as suppressing the fire pots, placing the materials in a tank, etc., to which the patentee laid no claim, & in combining these things with an improved furnace. His invention consisted of forming the sides of the tank or chamber containing the glassmaking materials hollow, in such wise that a current of refrigerating air may circulate & prevent any excessive heating of the sides. which retain or inclose the fused materials. Though all the principles upon which the new method was based were well known, the new form of combining them was shown to make the melting of the materials less subject to danger & less costly in use:—Held: (1) this new form of combination, being useful & valuable, constituted a valid ground for a patent; (2) a direction to a jury that, if the combination was new & was useful, the patent could be supported, though each separate process employed in it was previously known, was correct.

Now the only thing that appears to have been regarded by the patentee as a new discovery, apart from the apparatus, was the application of the external air to the sides of the tank. It was a discovery, certainly, but it was a thing for which,

---

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 7.—B. (b).

318 i. Necessity for.]—A patent may be sustained though each principle or process in it was previously well known, provided that the mode of combining them be new & produce a beneficial result, & that the specification claims, not the old processes or any of them, but only such new combination.—DION v. DUPUIS (1897), Q. R. 12 S. C. 465.—CAN.

318 ii. ——.]—GRIFFIN & BRINKERHOFF v. TORONTO RY. CO. & POWER (1902), 7 Exch. C. R. 411.—CAN.

318 iii. ——.]—Re LAVERS (OR LAUERS) HEELS PATENTS, LTD. (Ont.) (1919), 18 Exch. C. R. 199; 43 D. L. R. 1.—CAN.

independently of the other apparatus, probably no patent could have been obtained. I may construct an apparatus, & may, in point of fact, make the merit & the benefit of that apparatus depend upon the application of some natural force or property which is perfectly well known; but my invention consists in the construction of the apparatus in such a manner as to bring the natural agency or power to bear upon & effect the object which I desire to effect. . . . The Lord Justice did not observe where the disclaimer begins & he has confounded the introductory part or the reason for the disclaimer with the disclaimer itself. He has taken the preface & the reason given for the thing that was done, as if that preface & that reason had become incorporated into the specification by the operation of the disclaimer. . . . The reason for a disclaimer is no part of the disclaimer itself (LORD WESTBURY). —CANNINGTON v. NUTTALL (1871), L. R. 5 H. L. 205; 40 L. J. Ch. 739, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429. Refd. Re Gaulard & Gibb's Patent (1890), 7 R. P. C. 367; Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569. As to (2) Refd. Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. East London Rubber Co. (1896), 75 L. T. 488.

321. ——.]—MAXIM-NORDENFELT GUNS & AMMUNITION CO. & HIRAM STEVENS MAXIM v. ANDERSON, No. 302, ante.

322. ——.] — The owners of three patents for improvements in pocket automatic gas lighters commenced an action for infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patents were invalid by reason of being anticipated, of want of subject-matter, of novelty, & of utility. The writ as originally issued alleged infringement of one patent only. Subsequently it was amended by the inclusion of two others. From the statement of claim it appeared that, although pltfs. ultimately became the assignees of all the patents, at the time of the issue of the writ they were not the assignees of the two added under the order giving leave to amend. The particulars of breaches delivered related to articles sold before pltfs. had acquired a title to these two patents, & no amended particulars of breaches were delivered. Pltfs. were not able to bring their particulars of breaches within the first patent. Upon objection being taken to pltfs. proceeding, it was arranged by consent that the question of the validity of one only of the three patents, i.e., one of the two subsequently added, should be tried, together with the question of infringement thereof, pltfs. waiving any inquiry as to damages:—Held: the invention was a new application of an old form of protecting cover in combination with old & well known attributes of platinum black so as to produce a useful commercial article; the patent was valid; & defts. had infringed.—HEINE, SOLBY & CO. v. CONINCO INCANDESCENT LIGHT CO. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 202.

(c) Exercise of Invention.

323. Necessity for.] — SAXBY v. GLOUCESTER WAGGON CO., No. 297, ante.

324. ——.] — The owner of a patent for improvements in litho & letterpress printing machines brought an action for alleged infringement of the third claim of his specification. Defts. denied infringement, & denied the validity of the patent on the ground, amongst other things, that the alleged invention was not the subject of a patent. Pltf.'s evidence at the trial showed that pltf.'s first & second claims were for the combination of certain brackets & an intermediate frame cast together; there being nothing positively new in the shape or in the parts, but the invention being said to be in the construction which gave greater stability & rigidity, & enabled the frame to be withdrawn without disturbing the rest of the machine:—Held: the first & second claims were really for the mere casting together of things well known, & were not subject-matter, & the patent was invalid.—NEWSUM v. MANN (1890), 7 R. P. C. 307.

325. ——.] — W. took out a patent for an improved mincing machine which was in effect a combination of a mincing machine & a filling machine, both of which were old. He brought an action for infringement against N. & co., who put in issue the validity of the patent on the ground that the alleged invention consisted simply in joining two well known machines, & was not subject-matter:—Held: there was not sufficient invention to constitute subject-matter.

To maintain a patent there must be a substantial exercise of the inventive power or inventive genius, though it may be very slight alterations will produce important results, & in those slight alterations there may be great ingenuity (COTTON, L.J.).—WILLIAMS v. NYE (1890), 7 R. P. C. 62, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Northern Press & Engineering Co. & Annand v. Hoe (1906), 22 T. L. R. 453; Mergenthaler Linotype Co. v. Intertype Co. (1926), 42 T. L. R. 682.

326. ——.]—VICKERS, SONS & CO. v. SIDDELL, No. 910, post.

327. ——.] — The action was for infringement of two patents for improvements in pince nez double eyeglasses. Deft. denied infringement & alleged that the patents were invalid on various grounds, including want of novelty & subject-matter, & anticipation by prior specifications & prior user. At the trial, pltf. claimed that his invention was a combination of a rigid bridge, pivoted placquets, & spring arms:—Held: the combination was not such a novel invention as could form the subject-matter of a patent, & the invention, if any, was anticipated.—WOOD v. RAPHAEL (1897), 14 R. P. C. 496, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631; Mergenthaler Linotype Co. v. Intertype Co. (1926), 42 T. L. R. 682.

328. ——.] — BROOKS v. LAMPLUGH, No. 231, ante.

329. ——.] — The principle of using a small auxiliary cylinder was indeed known before, but pltfs.' combination was substantially a new process, which was the result of real invention (ROMER, L.J.).—TAYLOR & SCOTT v. ANNAND & NORTHERN PRESS & ENGINEERING CO., LTD. (1899), 17 R. P. C. 126; 16 T. L. R. 84; 44 Sol.

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 7.—B. (c).

323 i. Necessity for.]—A combination of two or more known mechanical appliances, the result of which is to effect a new purpose, or to effect an old purpose with greater efficiency or economy, may be the subject-matter of a patent if it involves some substantial exercise of the inventive faculty.—WILLMANN v. PETERSEN (1904), 2 C. L. R. 1.—AUS.

323 ii. ——.]—Where there is merely the substitution of one well known material, for another equally well known material, to produce the same result on the same principle in a more agreeable, & useful manner, or a mere mechanical equivalent for the use of the material, & it is void of invention, it is not the subject of a patent.—BALL v. CROMPTON CORSET CO. (1887), 13 S. C. R. 469.—CAN.

323 iii. ——.]—WISNER v. COULTHARD (1893), 22 S. C. R. 178.—CAN.

323 iv. ——.]—TAYLOR v. BRANDON MANUFACTURING CO. (1894), 21 A. R. 361.—CAN.

323 v. ——.] — VAN BERKEL v. SIMPSON (R. D.), LTD., [1907] S. C. 165; 44 Sc. L. R. 87; 14 S. L. T. 454. —SCOT.

323 vi. ——.]—WALSH v. SHEELEY, [1911] T. P. D. 1.—S. AF.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 7, B. (c); sub-sect. 8.]

Jo. 117, C. A.; on appeal (1900), 18 R. P. C. 53, H. L.

Annotation:—Refd. Benton & Stone v. Denston (1925), 42 R. P. C. 284.

330. ——.]—PARKER & SMITH v. SATCHWELL & CO., LTD., No. 304, ante.

331. ——.]—In 1893 a patent was granted to G. for "improvements in steam traps." In 1894 another patent was granted to G. for "improvements in steam traps." The traps in question were expansion traps. The 1894 patent was in effect for a combination of a lever & spring operating the valve of the steam trap. Defts. in an action for infringement of this patent pleaded a number of prior publications, & contended that all that pltf. had done was to take a well known mechanical contrivance & apply it to a subject to which it had not been hitherto applied, & that there was no invention:—Held: pltf.'s invention had not been anticipated, & the arrangement of his combination required the exercise of considerable ingenuity; the patent was valid, & pltf. entitled to succeed.—GEIPEL v. MANCHESTER CORPN. (1903), 21 R. P. C. 41.

332. ——.]—In 1894 a patent was granted for improvements in & relating to the suspension of incandescent gas lamps. The object of the patent was to avoid vibration & thus prevent the incandescent mantle from being destroyed. The patentee claimed "A gas burner fitting combined with a flexible connecting tube & suspended by one or more elastic cords or springs connected thereto, all arranged substantially in the manner as shown & described & for the purpose as hereinbefore set forth." In 1904 pltfs., in whom the patent had become vested, commenced an action for infringement of the same. Deft. pleaded that the alleged invention contained no improvement on or addition to the then state of public knowledge, but was merely the application of incandescent gas fittings of a device which was a matter of common knowledge in the case of every instrument which required to be suspended free from vibration, & he also alleged anticipation by certain prior users. There was evidence that the patented contrivance was more effectual for the purpose than any other in use:—Held: there was good subject-matter.—ANTI-VIBRATION INCANDESCENT LIGHTING CO., LTD. v. CROSSLEY (1905), 22 R. P. C. 441, C. A.

333. ——.]—The ct. held that a patent for the combination of two well known printing machines, erected end on with a space between them, & a single or double longitudinal folding machine placed in the space for folding the paper web or webs & passing the same on to any other machine, either for transverse folding, cutting, or delivery, or any two or three of these operations or processes, was not a valid patent, upon the ground that such an arrangement, having regard to the state of knowledge at the time, required no substantial exercise of invention, & did not furnish sufficient subject-matter for a patent.—NORTHERN PRESS & ENGINEERING CO., LTD. v. HOE & CO. (1906), 23 R. P. C. 613; 22 T. L. R. 723, C. A.

334. ——.]—DONNERSMARCKHÜTTE OBERSCHLESISCHE EISEN UND KOHLENWERKE ACT v. ELECTRIC CONSTRUCTION CO., LTD. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 774, C. A.

335. ——.]—BRITISH WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING CO. v. BRAULIK (1910), 27 R. P. C. 209, C. A.

336. ——.]—In an action for infringement of the patent, defts. alleged (inter alia) want of subject-matter, prior grant, & non-infringement. Defts.' device had a cap screwed into the inner hub part, so that the cap projected beyond the outer hub part, but the latter projected slightly beyond the inner hub part without the cap. At the trial, defts. contended that the cap was not a part of the inner hub part, & that the latter did not pass through the outer hub part, or that, if the cap was a part of the inner hub part, there was no lubricating device, & that in either case there was infringement. Defts. alleged a prior grant to pltf. by a patent, issued under No. 7530 of 1908, with provisional specifications dated respectively Apr. 4 & July 1, 1908:—Held: the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.—PUGH v. RILEY CYCLE CO., LTD. (1914), 31 R. P. C. 266, H. L.

337. ——.]—A patent was granted for "improvements in metal cutting blow pipe apparatus." The first claim was as follows:—In combination with metal cutting blow pipe apparatus, a lever operating the valve for controlling the supply, to the nozzle, of oxygen for cutting, the said lever having the part which acts upon the valve constituted by an adjustable screw; substantially as, & for the purposes, hereinbefore described." In an action for infringement of the patent pltfs. alleged infringement of that claim & a second claim. At the trial pltfs. alleged infringement of the first claim only, &, substantially, the only contest was as to the invalidity of that claim for want of novelty & of subject-matter. Pltfs. contended that the control-device in their apparatus operated upon a valve that was normally open, in contrast to earlier apparatus in which the valve was normally closed, & that, although all the elements of their device were old, the combination was new:—Held: a metal cutting blow pipe with all the parts of pltfs.' device had not been made before, &, in that sense, there was novelty, & the device had some utility; but there was not any inventive element in the combination, & the claim in question was invalid.—BRITISH OXYGEN CO., LTD. v. MAINE LIGHTING CO. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 176.

Annotation:—Refd. Harris v. Brandreth (1925), 42 R. P. C. 471.

338. ——.]—A patent was granted for a "spring re-inforcement for use with existing surface spring mattresses." Claims 1 & 2 were as follows:—"(1) In a re-inforcement for preventing & remedying sag in existing surface spring mattresses, of the kind consisting of compression springs having vertical axes & attached to bearers or equivalent supporting means adapted for attachment to the frame of a bed or mattress, a frame consisting of a collapsible trellis, to which each spring is attached by a spigot end substantially as herein described. (2) A re-inforcement as claimed in claim 1, the frame being adapted for suspension from a bed or mattress frame by bands or hoops perforated at their ends to form suspending loops easily adjustable in length to suit each particular case." In an action for infringement of the patent deft. alleged that the patent was invalid for want of utility, novelty & subject-matter, &, as to the two latter issues, relied upon (inter alia) prior specifications of D., referred to in pltf.'s specification, & M. He alleged also that his device was not collapsible in the sense in which the word was used in claim 1. Pltf. alleged that deft.'s device was substantially the same as pltf.'s, & had been sold in large quantities immediately after the publication of pltf.'s specification, & that a trellis work made collapsible or capable of being taken to pieces, springs fixed into the bearers by spigot ends & the use of a band or hoop as described by pltf., taken in combination with the other parts of the device constituted good subject-matter :—Held : if the patent was valid, it had been infringed ; assuming some utility in pltf.'s device, the combination of the features of that device was a work that any skilled workman with D.'s & M.'s specifications before him could carry out, & claims 1 & 2 could not be supported.—HARRIS v. BRANDRETH (1925), 42 R. P. C. 471.

339. ——.] — Pltfs. were the grantees & proprietors of a patent for "improvements in the liquid fuel supply arrangements of internal combustion engines." Claim 1 of the specification was as follows :—"In the liquid fuel supply arrangements of internal combustion engines, the combination with a main tank or vessel, of a supplementary chamber or vessel into which the liquid is drawn by suction from the main tank or vessel, & from which the liquid passes on its way to the carburettor through an automatically valve-controlled passage, & means for isolating said supplementary vessel from the source of suction & for placing same under atmospheric pressure, all arranged substantially as & for the purpose described." Claim 2 was as follows :—"In the liquid fuel supply arrangements of internal combustion engines, the provision between the main fuel supply, tank or vessel & the carburettor of a supplementary vessel in communication with said main tank & also with a source of suction, & an auxiliary vessel in communication with the atmosphere with said supplementary vessel through an automatically valve-controlled passage & with the carburettor, the whole arranged & operating substantially as & for the purposes described." In an action for infringement of the patent deft. denied infringement & pleaded that the patent was invalid by reason of lack of novelty & lack of subject-matter owing to common general knowledge & prior publication, want of utility, insufficiency & false suggestion in the specification, & he counterclaimed for revocation of the patent. In a previous action the patent had been attacked only on the ground of prior publication of two specifications, G. & V., & the issue of infringement had not been contested. In that action the patent had been held to be valid. At the trial it was contended by deft. that the ct. was bound by the prior decision only as to construction of the specification & not as to subject-matter, that the additional documents relied on showed features claimed in the specification not disclosed by G. or V., & that, owing to the issue of infringement not having been contested, it had been unnecessary for the ct. to define the ambit of the claims :—Held : (1) the decision in the previous action meant that pltfs.' invention lay in the idea of avoiding the drawbacks of both gravity & pressure feeds by using suction & gravity acting alternately for the purpose of feeding a carburettor &, though the mechanical appliances for giving practical effect to the idea were old, invention lay in the particular combination applied to & embodied in apparatus adapted to give effect to the idea, &, so understood, the patent was not anticipated by the specifications of G. or V. ; (2) the ct. was not strictly bound by a prior decision as to anticipation, & it was open to deft. to prove anticipation by documents not before the ct. in the previous action, but that the fresh documents did not introduce any further facts for consideration.—HIGGINSON & ARUNDEL v. PYMAN (1926), 43 R. P. C. 291, C. A.

340. ——.] — MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE CO. v. INTERTYPE CO., LTD., No. 286, ante.

SUB-SECT. 8.—SELECTION OF ONE OF A CLASS OF THINGS OR PROCESSES.

341. Patentable.] — Re HARTLEY'S PATENT (1777), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 54.

342. ——.]—(1) In the specification of a prior patent for purifying gas, dated in 1840, C., after speaking of the use of black oxide of manganese for purifying gas, went on to say, "The same effect may be produced by the application of the oxide of zinc, & the oxides of iron treated precisely in the way above described" :—Held : assuming that C. meant to claim all oxides of iron for purifying gas, inasmuch as some would not answer, the ct. could not say, as a matter of law, that a patent could not be had by a person who afterwards discovered that precipitated hydrated oxides were those which it was proper to use.

The jury, having found that C.'s specification did not disclose the use of hydrated oxides of iron, the ct. refused to grant a new trial.

(2) In working, for the purpose of completing the specification of his patent, C. had used oxides of iron for the purification of gas, & the gas purified by him—to the extent of 20,000 feet a day—had for many days been mixed with the ordinary gas, & supplied to the public from the mains of a gas co. He had renovated the material by exposing it to heat on the top of some retort beds. The oxides were originally in a hydrated state, & the heat used by him while so working was not sufficient to render them anhydrous ; but, not knowing the difference between hydrated & anhydrous oxides, & supposing that a better result would thereby be obtained, he directed in his specification that the material should be raised to a red heat, which would render the oxides anhydrous. The jury having found that what C. did was in the nature of an experiment & not a publication to the world, the ct. refused to disturb the verdict on that point.

It is true that C. said oxides of iron & it may be true that he meant all oxides. Take it to be so, that is not such a statement as precludes invention & discovery by pltf., because there are many oxides, the hydrated & anhydrous, the natural & the artificial, some of which will, & some will not, answer the purpose, & therefore it is a matter of investigation & experiment to see which will (BRAMWELL, B.).—HILLS v. LONDON GAS LIGHT CO. (1860), 5 H. & N. 312 ; 29 L. J. Ex. 409 ; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 244 ; 157 E. R. 1202.

Annotations :—As to (1) Consd. Betts v. Menzies (1860), 1 E. & E. 1020 ; Cassel Gold Extracting Co. v. Cyanide Gold Recovery Syndicate (1895), 11 T. L. R. 345 ; Re Wylie & Morton's Appln. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 97. Ref. Hills v. Liverpool United Gaslight Co. (1862), 32 L. J. Ch. 28. Dist. Hills v. London Gas Co. (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288.

343. ——. The object which pltfs. had in view, & which they attain by their two patents, was by the first to extract the gold from the crushed ore by getting the gold into a state of solution by means of the application of of cyanide of potassium, & then by their second, which was for an improvement in precipitation of gold by zinc, which was then well known, to extract the gold, & heretofore brought into a solution, out of it. . . . The selective action claimed by pltfs. for the application of a very

---

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 8.

o. Patentable — If involving new operation of parts selected.]—It is no invention to omit one of the parts of an existing thing, unless such omission causes a new mode of operation of the parts retained.—Re ALLAN & REED (1888), 14 Q. L. R. 126.—CAN.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sects. 8 & 9, A.] dilute solution containing an extremely small quantity of cyanide of potassium to ore containing gold has, in our judgment, been proved (SMITH, L.J.).—CASSEL GOLD EXTRACTING CO., LTD. v. CYANIDE GOLD RECOVERY SYNDICATE (1895), 11 T. L. R. 345; 12 R. P. C. 232, C. A.

Annotation:—Consd. Electric Construction Co. v. Imperial Tram. Co. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 537.

344. ——.]—I do not think that an inventor who specifies an efficient method of performing the desired operation but says that any other suitable method may be adopted, invalidates his patent if it should turn out that the method specified by him is the only suitable method. There seems to me a distinction between this case & the case of a patentee saying that any known method of producing a result indicated may be used when in fact one or more of such known methods would fail (NEVILLE, J.).—Re BROWN'S PATENT (1907), 24 R. P. C. 313.

345. —— Public knowledge & publication of process generally.]—VORWERK & SON v. EVANS & CO., No. 423, post.

346. —— If producing beneficial result.]—The making of a selection of ingredients & so producing a beneficial result may be invention.

Invention may consist in trying a number of things of common knowledge, & ascertaining that by a certain process a new & useful result may be arrived at.—LANCASHIRE EXPLOSIVES CO., LTD. v. ROBURITE EXPLOSIVES CO., LTD. (1895), 12 R. P. C. 470; 12 T. L. R. 35, C. A.

347. —— ——.]—Where different machines of a certain general class or character are well known, if a person selects one specially adapted for his purpose to effect a new object, & with the result of producing a new article, or the old article in a substantially more expeditious & economical way than it was produced before, then he may properly claim, as subject-matter of a patent, that machine as applied to the new object, even though he could not have claimed the machine per se, that is to say, without limitations as to its application.—ADAMANT STONE & PAVING CO., LTD. v. LIVERPOOL CORPN. (1896), 14 R. P. C. 21; on appeal (1897), 14 R. P. C. 264, C. A.

348. —— ——.]—In 1894 letters patent were granted for improvements in the manufacture of toluene sulpho chlorides. The specification stated (inter alia) that the manufacture of these chlorides from toluene, especially of ortho-toluene-sulpho-chloride used in the manufacture of saccharin, was a tedious operation involving a number of processes & producing a small yield; that according to the invention chlorsulphonic acid was made to react with toluene under certain specific conditions, whereby the whole of the toluene was converted into toluene-sulpho-chloride; that the action of chlorsulphonic acid upon toluene had been studied by C. & W. under other conditions & with different results, only about half the toluene being converted into toluene-sulpho-chlorides & half into toluene sulphonic acids; that the inventor had found that by keeping the temperature of the reacting mass between the limits of 0° & 5° C., & by employing a large excess of acid, the reaction took place according to an equation given. A convenient way of performing the operation was given, the quantities being on a commercial scale, & the process being described in detail, including a stirring of the mixture for twelve hours. The separation of the two forms of sulpho-chloride produced was described, but this was not alleged to be new. The specification stated that the amount of liquid chloride, ortho-toluene-sulpho-chloride, remaining constituted 60 per cent. of the theoretical yield of chlorides & claimed (a) the manufacture of toluene-sulpho-chloride by acting with chlorsulphonic acid in large excess on toluene at a temperature not exceeding 5° C., substantially as described; (b) the direct conversion of toluene by means of chlorsulphonic acid into toluene-sulpho-chlorides, mostly in liquid form, substantially as described. The Saccharin Corporation, Ltd., the owners of the patent, having brought an action for infringement, defts. admitted acts which if the patent was valid constituted infringement, but alleged the invalidity of the patent on the ground that having regard to the existing knowledge there was no subject-matter. They contended that the existing knowledge would have indicated to a chemist that to increase the yield of the ortho-toluene-sulpho-chloride an increase in the quantity of acid used must be made, & that neither the product nor the process was new, whilst they denied that a cheaper article was produced. There was evidence that by the patented process the yield of chlorides had been increased from about 51 to about 93 per cent., & the yield of the ortho-toluene-sulpho-chloride from 25 to about 60 per cent.:—Held: there was subject-matter to support the patent.

I am not aware of any principle or authority to the effect that a patent is bad merely because the most sanguine expectation of the patentee as to a favourable result is not realised in full (NORTH, J.).—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. CHEMICALS & DRUGS CO., LTD. (1899), 17 R. P. C. 28; subsequent proceedings, [1900] 2 Ch. 556, C. A.

349. —— —— Or avoiding disadvantage.]—A mere selection among possible alternatives is not subject-matter. A selection to be patentable must be a selection to secure some advantage or avoid some disadvantage; &, in describing such an invention, the advantages to be gained, or the disadvantages to be avoided, ought to be referred to (LORD PARKER).—CLYDE NAIL CO., LTD. v. RUSSELL (1916), 33 R. P. C. 291, H. L.

Annotations:—Expld. Auster v. Perfecta Motor Equipments (1924), 41 R. P. C. 482. Apld. Thomas v. South Wales Colliery Tramworks & Engineering Co. (1924), 42 R. P. C. 22.

350. —— ——.]—COMMERCIAL SOLVENTS CORPN. v. SYNTHETIC PRODUCTS CO., LTD. (1926), 43 R. P. C. 185.

351. —— If involving invention.]—Opposition to the grant of a patent for improvements relating to shuttle armatures in dynamo electric machines on the ground that the invention had been claimed in the specification of a patent of a prior date:—Held: a claim including the making of a shuttle armature of non-magnetic material should not be restricted to a claim for the materials specified by way of example only, & it included the use of non-magnetisable steel which had been selected by appct.—Re BOSCH'S APPLICATION (1909), 26 R. P. C. 710.

SUB-SECT. 9.—APPLICATION OF OLD CONTRIVANCE OR PROCESS.

A. Application in Old Way to Analogous Subject.

352. General rule—Not patentable.]—CROYSDALE v. FISHER (1884), 1 R. P. C. 17; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 73.

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 9.—A.

352 i. General rule—Not patentable.]—SAGE v. GLENCROSS (1888), 10 N. S. W. Eq. 1.—AUS.

352 ii. —— ——.]—An immaterial variation of a machine in general use cannot be the subject of a patent right; there must be at least a new

353. —— ——.]—LOSH v. HAGUE, No. 16, ante.

354. —— ——.]—A patent had been obtained for new & improved machinery for preparing & spinning flax, hemp, & other fibrous substances, by power. The improvement, as to the spinning, consisted in the placing of the retaining & drawing rollers nearer to each other, at the distance of 2½ inches, than they had been ever used before in flax spinning; the shortening of the reach being rendered practicable by the maceration of the flax in the new machinery for preparing it. But spinning machines, varying in the distance of the reach according to the length of the fibre of the substance to be spun, had been in use before the patent was obtained:—Held: the machinery for spinning was not a new invention, & the patent was not valid in point of law.

If he has discovered any means of using the spinning machine which the world had not known before, the benefit of that he has a right to secure to himself by means of a patent; but if this mode of using the spinning machine was known before . . . then pltf. cannot deprive them of having the benefit of that which they enjoyed before (LORD COTTENHAM, C.).—KAY v. MARSHALL (1841), 8 Cl. & Fin. 245; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 79; West, 682; 5 Jur. 1028; 8 E. R. 96, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Bovill v. Smith (1868), Griffin's Patent Cases (1888), 49. Distd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429. Consd. Jandus Arc Lamp & Electric Co. v. Arc Lamps (1905), 21 T. L. R. 308. Refd. Re Kay's Patent (1839), 3 Moo. P. C. C. 24; Re Martin's & Keating's Patents (1847), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 175; Steiner v. Heald (1851), 20 L. J. Ex. 410; Plimpton v. Malcolmson (1876), 3 Ch. D. 531; Easterbrook v. G. W. Ry. (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 81; Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse & Rawson (1887), 3 T. L. R. 327; Re Bosch's Appln. (1909), 26 R. P. C. 710.

355. —— ——.]—Patent for the invention of a nipping lever for causing the rotation of wheels, shafts, or cylinders, under certain circumstances. The specification claimed as the invention "the nipping lever, with its tusk & sliding box, before described, applied to a rimmed wheel, or to a rimmed flange, for the purpose of causing the same to rotate or move together with any shaft, cylinder, or other suitable machinery which may be attached thereto." The nipping lever was not new; but the application of it by means of the sliding box was new:—Held: it must also appear that the use of sliding boxes was essential to the invention.—POW v. TAUNTON (1845), 5 L. T. O. S. 346; 9 Jur. 1056.

356. —— ——.]—The application of a known article to a new use, the mode of application not being new, cannot be the subject of a patent.—R. v. CUTLER (1849), 3 Car. & Kir. 215; Macr. 124; 12 L. T. O. S. 512.

Annotations:—Refd. Booth v. Kennard (1856), 5 W. R. 85; Brook v. Aston (1857), 27 L. J. Q. B. 145.

357. —— ——.]—BUSH v. FOX, No. 616, post.

358. —— ——.]—A patent was taken out in 1853 for, amongst other things, improving the texture of the threads of cotton & linen yarns by exposing the threads in a distended state to the action of beaters, the effect of which was to polish the sides of the threads & produce smoothness & a glacé effect. In 1856 pltfs. took out a patent for, amongst other things, an improvement in the finishing yarns of wool or hair, by exposing their threads in a distended state to the action of machinery which, it was admitted, was substantially the same as the machinery described in the patent of 1853. The claim in pltfs.' specification was, amongst other things, to the invention of causing yarns of wool or hair whilst distended & kept separate to be subjected to the action of rotatory beaters or burnishers, whereby the fibre is closed & strengthened, & the surface effectually polished. On the trial of an action for the infringement of pltfs.' patent, it was proved that the process of the patentees of 1853 had not previously been applied to wool or hair; & evidence was given that the effect upon wool was not the same as upon linen:—Held: pltfs.' specification claimed what was merely the application of the old machinery in the old manner to an analogous subject, & was not the subject-matter for which a patent could be claimed, &, consequently, that pltfs.' patent was wholly void. Aliter if the claim had shown any novelty or invention in the mode of applying the old machinery to the new purpose.—BROOK v. ASTON (1859), 28 L. J. Q. B. 175; 32 L. T. O. S. 341; 5 Jur. N. S. 1025, Ex. Ch.

Annotations:—Consd. Penn v. Bibby (1866), 2 Ch. App. 127. Apld. Rushton v. Crawley (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 522. Distd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429. Consd. Rickmann v. Thierry (1896), 14 R. P. C. 105. Refd. Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1862), 2 B. & S. 222; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569.

359. —— ——.]—The pneumatic lever, a kind of bellows, was used in organs before 1851; the compensating valve was used in the pedal bellows of organs before 1851, for the purpose of easing their working, but had never been applied to the pneumatic lever; pltf., in 1851, took out a patent for the application of the compensating valve to the pneumatic lever, for the purpose of easing the working of the latter:—Held: pltf.'s contrivance was not such a new invention as was capable of becoming the subject of a patent.—WILLIS v. DAVISON (1863), 1 New Rep. 234.

360. —— ——.]—Before pltf.'s invention, tubular boilers were cast in several pieces, which were fastened together afterwards. Pltf. claimed, as a patent, the casting of boilers in one piece. This was found to be a beneficial way of making them. It was not suggested that they were cast by any new mode of casting:—Held: the casting of boilers in one piece was not the subject of a patent.—ORMSON v. CLARKE (1863), 14 C. B. N. S. 475; 2 New Rep. 192; 32 L. J. C. P. 291; 10 Jur. N. S. 128; 11 W. R. 787; 143 E. R. 531, Ex. Ch.

Annotations:—Apld. Trotman v. Wood (1864), 16 C. B. N. S. 479; Newsum v. Mann (1890), 7 R. P. C. 307. Refd. Thomson v. American Braided Wire Co. (1889), 6 R. P. C. 518; Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292.

361. —— ——.]—Letters patent were granted to W. for an alleged invention of fishes & fish-joints, for connecting the ends of rails used on railways. The fishes were made of iron, with a groove on the outer surface, for the purpose of preventing the square heads of the bolts passing through them & the rail, from turning round, & also for the purpose of procuring greater strength adaptation of a known principle or some change which has called forth the inventive faculty.—BARIL v. MASTERMAN (1881), 4 L. N. 181.—CAN.

---

352 iii. —— ——.]—SYLVESTER v. MASSON (1885), 12 A. R. 335.—CAN.

352 iv. —— ——.]—LAROSE v. AUBERTIN (1907), Q. R. 32 S. C. 430.—CAN.

352 v. —— ——.]—TREO CO. INC. v. DOMINION CORSET CO. (Que.) (1918), 18 Exch. C. R. 115; 42 D. L. R. 605.—CAN.

352 vi. —— ——.]—NORTHERN SHIRT CO., LTD. v. CLARK (Man.), [1919] 1 W. W. R. 178; 57 S. C. R. 607.—CAN.

352 vii. —— ——.]—R. v. TESSIER (1921), 21 Exch. C. R. 150.—CAN.

352 viii. —— ——.]—DURABLE ELECTRIC APPLIANCE CO., LTD. v. RENFREW ELECTRIC PRODUCTS, LTD., DURABLE ELECTRIC APPLIANCE CO., LTD. v. SUPERIOR ELECTRICS, LTD., [1926] 4 D. L. R. 1004; 59 O. L. R. 527.—CAN.

352 ix. —— ——.]—SHACKLOCK v. BRINSLEY (1898), 16 N. Z. L. R. 364.—N.Z.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect.

with an equal weight of metal than could have been obtained from a fish of the same thickness throughout. Before these letters patent had been granted, grooved iron plates with bolts let into the grooves had been used for the purpose of fastening timbers placed vertically upon one another, or placed horizontally side by side. In one case of a bridge, a channelled plate with bolts had been used for the purpose of fishing a scarf-joint where the ends of two timbers met together:—Held: there was no novelty in the patent, & therefore it was bad; the supposed invention had been in use previously to the date of the patent, not only in the case of a bridge but for other purposes, & a patent could not be upheld for the mere application of a well known mechanical contrivance to a purpose which was analogous to the manner or to the purpose in or to which it had been hitherto notoriously used or applied.—HARWOOD v. GREAT NORTHERN RY. CO. (1864), 11 H. L. Cas. 654; 35 L. J. Q. B. 27; 12 L. T. 771; 14 W. R. 1; 11 E. R. 1488, H. L.; affg. (1862), 2 B. & S. 222, Ex. Ch.; revsg. S. C. sub nom. HARRISON v. GREAT NORTHERN RY. CO. (1860), 6 Jur. N. S. 993.

Annotations:—Apld. Horton v. Mahon (1862), 12 C. B. N. S. 437; Ormson v. Clarke (1862), 13 C. B. N. S. 337; Willis v. Davison (1863), 1 New Rep. 234. Folld. Jordan v. Moore (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 624. Apld. Blakey v. Latham (1889), 5 T. L. R. 301; Thompson v. American Braided Wire Co. (1889), 5 T. L. R. 537. Consd. Elias v. Grovesend Tinplate Co. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 455; Morgan v. Windover (1890), 7 R. P. C. 131; Williams v. Nye (1890), 7 R. P. C. 62; Lane-Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424. Distd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429. Apld. Rickmann v. Thierry (1896), 14 R. P. C. 105. Consd. Case v. Cressy (1901), 18 R. P. C. 417; Acetylene Illuminating Co. v. United Alkali Co. (1904), 22 R. P. C. 145; Hill v. Thomas (1907), 24 R. P. C. 415; Shaw v. Burnet (1924), 41 R. P. C. 432. Refd. Penn v. Bibby (1866), 2 Ch. App. 127; White v. Toms (1867), 37 L. J. Ch. 204; Lister v. Norton (1886), 3 R. P. C. 199; Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse (1887), 3 T. L. R. 367; Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Van Berkel v. Simpson (1906), 24 R. P. C. 117; British Ore Concentration Syndicate v. Minerals Separation (1909), 27 R. P. C. 33; British Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. L. & S. W. Ry. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 309; Layland v. Baldy (1913), 30 R. P. C. 547; Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 38 R. P. C. 199.

362. —— ——.]—A. obtained a patent for "certain improvements in the construction of ships & other vessels navigating on water." By his specification he claimed as his invention, amongst others, (1) the construction of ships "with an iron frame, combined with an external covering of timber planking for the sides, bilges, & bottoms:" (6) "the construction of iron frames adapted to an external covering of timber for the sides, bilges, & bottoms, as described":—Held: the expression "iron frame" in the first claim was not confined to an iron frame such as that specified in the sixth claim, but comprehended whatever might, according to the ordinary use of language, be called "an iron frame"; &, inasmuch as the combination of iron & timber in the construction of ships was already well known & commonly used, the patent could not be sustained.—JORDAN v. MOORE (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 624; 35 L. J. C. P. 268; 12 Jur. N. S. 766; 14 W. R. 769.

Annotations:—Consd. Arnold v. Bradbury (1871), 6 Ch. App. 706; Parkinson v. Simon (1894), 11 R. P. C. 493. Distd. Edison Bell Phonograph Corpn. v. Smith & Young (1894), 11 R. P. C. 389.

363. —— ——.]—BAMLETT v. PICKSLEY (1875), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 40.

364. —— ——.]—(1) The grantee of a patent for an automatic dancing figure brought an action alleging infringement, & asking for an injunction. Defts. denied infringement, & denied the validity of the patent, on the ground that it was not the subject of a patent. The specification contained two claims, the first being for the whole combination, the second for the actuating mechanism:—Held: the second claim was an independent claim which was clearly old, & the patent was invalid. (2) The Ct. of Appeal, not being satisfied that pltfs. had not been deterred from asking one of their witnesses certain questions relative to the novelty of the claim by the expressed opinion of the learned judge, gave applts. an opportunity of calling such witness, & heard witnesses on behalf of resps. upon this point:—Held: the alleged invention claimed by the second claim was an obvious adaption of old mechanism not mentioned in the particulars, but of common knowledge, to effect an old purpose.—BRITAIN v. HIRSCH (1888), 5 R. P. C. 226.

Annotations:—Refd. Lane-Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424; Acetylene Illuminating Co. v. United Alkali Co. (1904), 22 R. P. C. 145.

365. —— ——.]—B. & co. sued L. & co. for infringement of letters patent for "an improved heel plate for boots & shoes," the invention being alleged to consist in the forming the heelplate with spikes permanently attached to it, properly shaped to fit the heel of a boot or shoe, & so as to be applicable by any person. Pltf.'s goods, which he called boot protectors, were intended for use for the soles as well as for the heels of boots. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid on the ground of anticipation by various prior specifications & certain arts. in actual use before the date of the patent:—Held: there was nothing patentable in the alleged invention.—BLAKEY & SONS v. LATHAM & CO. (1889), 5 T. L. R. 301; 6 R. P. C. 184, C. A.

Annotations:—Consd. Williams v. Nye (1890), 7 R. P. C. 62. Refd. Savage v. Harris (1896), 13 R. P. C. 364.

366. —— ——.]—LEADBEATER v. KITCHIN, No. 1092, post.

367. —— ——.]—This was an action for infringement brought by the patentee of an invention of improvements in the machinery used in the manufacture of tin plates, by means of which two plates could be taken at a time instead of one from the grease pot, thus effecting a saving of time & labour. Defts. alleged that the invention was merely a modification of an older machine invented by M.; that pltf. was not the true inventor, inasmuch as he communicated his "idea" to T., who mentioned it to H., who made a sketch of the proposed machine, & was therefore the sole or part inventor; prior publication by pltf. himself, who manufactured & used the invention commercially without secrecy before he applied for a patent:—Held: pltf.'s case failed, the patent being bad on all three grounds.

(2) A person who suggests an idea, without the means of carrying it into effect, to T., who procures H. to make a plan of the machine to be constructed, is not the true & first inventor.—ELIAS v. GROVESEND TINPLATE CO. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 455, C. A.

368. —— ——.]—The patentee of an invention of an improved horizontal tubular boiler made three claims in his specification, viz., for recessed water joints, for an improved elastic packing & mode of compressing the same, & for an improvement in the configuration of the casting. The patentee commenced an action for infringement. Deft. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the ground that the alleged invention was not novel or useful, & was anticipated. —Held: (1) pltf.'s water joint was substantially old, having been previously applied to coils, & the use in boilers was the mere use of the old thing for analogous purposes & not subject-matter; (2) if the patent was confined to the precise joint shown in the specification, that was not useful, & had not been used by pltf., & had not been taken by deft.; (3) the packing used by pltf. & his method of compression were both old; & (4) there was no novelty in the configuration. —BAKER v. KINNELL (1892), 9 R. P. C. 441.

369. —— ——.]—The patentee of an invention for a safety skirt for ladies' riding habits brought an action for infringement. The main feature of the invention was that the skirt had a seam running through the waist to the bottom of the skirt. This had special fasteners which burst open if a slight strain was on them, so that if the rider was thrown & her skirt caught on the pommels, her weight would cause the fastenings to give way, & she would fall clear of her skirt & not be in danger of being dragged. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the invention was not subject-matter, & was anticipated. It appeared that an earlier patentee had described a safety skirt with a burstable seam part of the way up, so that if this seam caught on the pommels it would burst & release the skirt from entanglement:—Held: pltf.'s alleged invention was the mere use of a known contrivance for a known purpose, being only a discovery that if the seam was extended further it would work better, & it was not good subject-matter of a patent.—NICOLL v. SWEARS & WELLS (1893), 69 L. T. 110; 9 T. L. R. 420.

370. —— ——.]—The assignees of a patent for shaping the heels of hose & socks, during the process of manufacture, by adding widenings to the upper portion of the backs thereof, brought an action for infringement. The defence relied on was that the patent was void for want of subject-matter:—Held: widening being an old process, & an obvious method of shaping the upper parts of the heels of hose, although it had never been so employed before the date of the patent, the invention, though useful, was not subject-matter. —SUDBURY v. LEE & GLEN (1894), 11 R. P. C. 58.

371. —— ——.]—S. & S., as owners of a patent for improvements in velocipedes having for its object to lock the steering wheel relatively to the remaining part of the machine so as to prevent a safety bicycle from falling down when resting against a wall, brought an action for infringement thereof against the R. Cycle co., who denied infringement & alleged that the invention was not novel & had been anticipated by the prior specifications of R. & C.:—Held: the patentees had, in substance, merely taken an old well known form of locking & applied it to a bicycle when wanted to be at rest, & this was not good subject-matter for a patent.—SINGER v. RUDGE CYCLE Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 585.

372. —— ——.]—(1) This was an action for infringement of a patent for an eyelet for boots, etc., made of metal & coated both above & below the flange with celluloid, so as to provide a permanent facing for the eyelet. Deft. denied infringement, and alleged that pltfs.' invention was anticipated or that, having regard to the state of knowledge, there was no subject-matter. Infringement was admitted at the trial. In the anticipations, metal hooks & studs were shown coated with celluloid, & also an eyelet coated on one side; but no such eyelet as pltfs.' had been produced on the market. There was, however, a demand for an eyelet which would stand wear. Pltfs. experimented for six years before arriving at their invention:—Held: the patentees, by their specification, disclaimed all right to their process, & claimed any eyelet of any metal if covered with celluloid or any similar material; while no smallness or simplicity will prevent a patent being valid, mere novelty of manufacture, or usefulness in the application of known materials to analogous uses, will not necessarily establish invention within the meaning of the patent law; metal studs & hooks, & metal studs & hooks covered with celluloid or a similar material, were old; & though pltfs. had succeeded in producing an improved eyelet, & there was some ingenuity in the mode of manufacture, there was not sufficient invention to form the subject-matter of a patent.

The law as to subject-matter in such a case is that laid down in Harwood v. G. N. R. Co., No. 361, ante, in which it was held that a mere application of an old contrivance in the ordinary way to an analogous subject, without any novelty in the mode of applying such old contrivance to the new purpose, does not make a valid subject-matter of a patent (LORD MACNAGHTEN, LORD DAVEY).

(2) Both a process & a product may be patentable.—RIEKMANN v. THIERRY (1896), 14 R. P. C. 105, H. L.; revsg. THIERRY v. RICKMANN (1895), 12 R. P. C. 543, C. A.

Annotation:—As to (1) Consd. Savage v. Harris (1896), 13 R. P. C. 364.

373. —— ——.] — CASE v. CRESSY, No. 118, ante.

374. —— ——.] — Pltfs. were the assignees of a patent for "improvements in the formation of solid ends on flexible or compound electrical conductors." The specification stated: "according to my invention, metal, which should be of the same kind as that of which the wires or strips are composed, is applied at the requisite temperature to the ends of the wires or strips. This is most conveniently effected by introducing the ends of the wires or strips, to be connected, to an extent necessary to ensure firm connection, into a mould of the form & size which the solid ends are to have & introducing molten metal into this mould." The claim was for: "flexible or compound electrical conductors provided with solid ends in the manner hereinbefore described." Pltfs. manufactured & sold an integral rail bond consisting of a flexible body made of strands of copper wire with solid ends of the same metal burnt on in a mould, i.e. the flexible wire being placed in a mould, the molten metal run through inlet & outlet holes prior to filling the mould, in order to remove the chill from the wires & effect fusion of the surface of the wire. Defts. manufactured & sold an integral rail bond produced by, (a) forging the ends; (b) drilling them & inserting the wires; & (c) by subjecting them to heat & pressure. Pltfs. claimed to have taught the world to produce a new art., viz., an integral flexible rail bond composed of copper, & alleged that defts. had infringed by producing a similar art. by an equivalent process, viz., welding:—Held: the patent was for a process: the process was an old process applied to substances to which it had been previously applied; & there was no invention.—GLOVER (W. T.) & Co., LTD. v. AMERICAN STEEL & WIRE Co. (1902), 19 R. P. C. 102.

375. —— ——.] — ACETYLENE ILLUMINATING Co., LTD. v. UNITED ALKALI Co., LTD., No. 457, post.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect.

376. —— ——.]—BRITISH LIQUID AIR CO., LTD. v. BRITISH OXYGEN CO., LTD., BRITISH OXYGEN CO., LTD. v. BRITISH LIQUID AIR CO., LTD., No. 408, post.

377. —— ——.]—The owners of a patent for "improvements in or relating to bottles, & the like" brought an action for infringement. Defts. relied at the trial upon the invalidity of the patent upon the ground that the specification did not disclose any novelty in the alleged invention but merely the adaptation for another purpose of an article well known & used for scientific purposes: —Held: having regard to the state of knowledge at the time, the alleged invention was not subject matter for a patent.

There is no doubt that the article which he put upon the market proved a very great success; & I think that the idea, if it was his idea, was a good one. But the question is whether, because the idea is commercially good, it, therefore, involves the exercise of the inventive faculty. It seems to me that though in many, & one may say in most cases it does, it does not in all (NEVILLE, J.).—THERMOS, LTD. v. ISOLA, LTD. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 388.

Annotation:—Mentd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Duram, [1915] 1 Ch. 823.

378. —— ——.]—A patent was granted in 1907 for "improvements in pipe joints." The pipes were stoneware pipes used for drains & sewers, & the specification stated that the invention related to the joints of pipes in which one end of the pipe was provided with a socket, such joints being made by filling in the space between the outside of the spigot & the inside of the socket with Portland cement grout, such grout being held in position by a ring of canvas secured to the two pipes. Claim 1 was for "a pipe joint consisting of a socket, a spigot entering the socket & having a collar at such a distance from its end that a space is left between the end of the socket & the collar, & an external band of porous material having its edges secured to the socket & spigot & covering over this space except at the top substantially as described." In 1897 S. obtained a patent for an improvement to a well known joint known as the Hassell joint. The Hassell joint was made with two rings of bituminous material in the socket & two similar ones on the spigot end, so arranged that when the spigot was forced into the socket an annulus was left between the two bituminous seals, & this was filled with cement grout poured in through two holes in the exterior of the socket. In S.'s joint the pipes were made with a stoneware collar on the spigot; against this collar rested the bituminous material of the outer seal, having in it a wedge shaped projection of the same material, & there was a corresponding V-shaped depression in the socket to receive this projection, so that when the pipes were pushed home the seal was completed. S.'s pipes were, however, also made without the bitumen forming the outer seal, & in that case, when the pipe was pushed home, there was a space between the end of the socket & the collar on the spigot. An outer seal was then used which was made of clay while the pipes were being laid. The use of canvas bands for the purpose of keeping the cement grout in position was admittedly well known before the date of the patent in 1907:—Held: the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.—DOULTON & CO., LTD. v. ALBION CLAY CO., LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 638, C. A.

379. —— ——.]—The owner of a patent for a luggage carrier for cycles & other vehicles having brought an action for infringement. Defts. denied infringement & alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds of anticipation & want of subject-matter. The first claim of the specification was for a luggage carrier constructed with a collapsible frame in two or more sections which were connected with one or more bolts as particularly described & illustrated. Before the date of the patent, practically the same thing but for a seat for a wall or counter had been patented by B.:—Held: the patentee had only put an old & well known joint in an old & well known form of luggage carrier; &, further, he had merely taken B.'s seat & fitted it on to a bicycle for a luggage carrier; & the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter having regard to previous knowledge.—MAIN v. ASHBY & CO. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 492.

380. —— ——.]—In an action for infringement pltfs. were the owners of letters patent for an invention relating to vibrating trough conveyors, the objects of which were to reduce vibration by balancing the conveyor trough, to reduce the power required to operate it, & to avoid the necessity of making the conveyor trough heavier towards the driving end in the case of long conveyors. For the first object the patentee divided the trough into sections, the adjacent sections being caused to move in opposite directions, thus reducing vibration. The defence relied on was mainly want of subject-matter in the patent:—Held: the balancing method for reducing vibration & the particular method of balancing were well known; &, in effect, the invention was one which had been used in a machine for the classification of goods; &, having regard to the state of knowledge, there was want of novelty, & the patent was invalid.—NORTON v. BARKER (W. H.) & SON (1913), 30 R. P. C. 741, C. A.

381. —— ——.]—A patent for the mere new use of a known contrivance without any additional ingenuity in overcoming fresh difficulties is bad & cannot be supported; but a patent for a new use of a known contrivance is good & can be supported if the new use involves practical difficulties which the patentee has been the first to see & overcome by some ingenuity of his own. An improved thing produced by a new & ingenious application of a known contrivance to an old thing is a manner of new manufacture within Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3).—LAYLAND v. BOLDY & SON, LTD. (1913), 29 T. L. R. 651; 30 R. P. C. 547, C. A.

382. —— ——.]—In 1904 a patent was granted for "improvements in printing." One of the claims was for the "method of effecting intaglio letterpress printing, that is to say, intaglio type printing in combination with the printing of illustrations for reproducing newspapers, periodicals, books, show cards, etc., the distinguishing feature being that the printing-matter is arranged on cylinders having doctors or colour wipers, colour in a light liquid form being employed." A petition for the revocation of the patent was presented. At the hearing it was proved that methods of producing illustrations similar to the methods described by the patentee were well known at the date of the patent, but resps. contended that there was novelty in the idea of applying the methods to the production of letterpress in combination with illustrations,

& in using colour in a light liquid form for the purpose :—Held : the patent was for putting known contrivances to a use that was new, but analogous to the uses to which they had previously been put, without overcoming any fresh difficulties; as to the use of a light liquid colour, the patentee merely suggested its use for letterpress printing by the intaglio process, & not for the production of pictures ; & the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.—Re MERTEN'S PATENT (1914), 31 R. P. C. 373.

383. —— ——.] — Re B. A.'S APPLICATION (1915), 32 R. P. C. 348.

Annotation :—Reld. Re D. A. & K.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

384. —— ——.] — A patent was in 1903 granted in New Zealand to G. for "an improvement in pneumatic milking apparatus." An action for infringement was commenced in New Zealand by G. against a co. The Supreme Ct. of New Zealand dismissed the action, holding the patent invalid, G. appealed to His Majesty in Council :—Held : G.'s alleged invention was simply the application to a milking apparatus of a well known physical law accomplished by the oldest & simplest method ; & was not subject-matter for a patent.—GILLIES v. GANE MILKING MACHINE CO. (1916), 34 R. P. C. 21, P. C.

385. —— ——.]—Letters patent were granted to B. & R. for "improved means for connecting tubular electric conduits together & to their fittings." The claim in the specification was for "an appliance for connecting the ends of two tubular electrical conduits or fittings, consisting of two longitudinally divided socket like clips formed together with a cross slot between them, said clips being made with lugs & tightening screws or bolts & of the proper internal diameter to suit the respective tubular conduits or fittings on to which they are to be clamped, substantially as set forth." In an action for infringement of the patent, defts. contended that the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter. It was admitted that the method of gripping employed at each end of the appliance was old :—Held : pltfs.' appliance was merely the duplication of two old results without any interaction between them, without the creation of a single new result, & there was no subject-matter ; &, further, pltfs.' device only differed from an earlier patented device in having the longitudinal opening narrower & the lugs more pronounced, which were matters of degree, & in that the earlier device had no adequate transverse slot, a defect which would be readily cured by persons possessing the common knowledge of the trade ; & on this ground also there was no subject-matter—READ v. STELLA CONDUIT CO. (1916), 33 R. P. C. 191, C. A.

386. —— ——.] — WILKINS v. MILLER (1918), 35 R. P. C. 257, C. A.

387. —— ——.] — A patent was granted in 1916 for "appliances for playing a race game." Claim 1 was as follows :—"an appliance for playing a game of skill comprising a number of units each of which is adapted to be moved along a course by a hand operated member & having a speed regulating member to release the connection between the latter & the corresponding unit if the speed of movement of the said member exceeds a predetermined value." In an action for infringement of the patent deft. denied infringement & alleged that the patent was invalid, on the grounds (inter alia) of want of novelty & subject-matter, & alleged common general knowledge :—Held : for an idea to be patentable it must involve invention & further must not limit the right of the public to do what they were previously able to do without invention & according to the natural development in the art relating to the subject-matter of the idea ; & the patentee had applied to a well known form of game apparatus the idea which had been previously published of having a critical predetermined speed in race games, & the patent was invalid.—CLORIUS v. TONNER (1922), 39 R. P. C. 242.

388. —— ——.] — HIGGINSON & ARUNDEL v. PYMAN, No. 339, ante.

389. —— —— Though result be production of known machine in cheaper or better manner.]— The application of a known article to a purpose analogous to those to which it had before been applied, is not the subject of a patent, although the result of its application to the new purpose may be the production of a known machine in a cheaper or better manner. For instance, the application of "double angle iron." a well known article, to the formation of hydraulic cups or joints to telescopic gasholders, instead of forming them, as had theretofore been done, by riveting two pieces of single angle iron to a plate.—HORTON v. MABON (1862), 12 C. B. N. S. 437 ; 31 L. J. C. P. 255 ; 6 L. T. 289 ; 10 W. R. 582 ; 142 E. R. 1213 ; affd. (1864), 16 C. B. N. S. 141 ; 4 New Rep. 66 ; 9 L. T. 815 ; 12 W. R. 491 ; 143 E. R. 1079, Ex. Ch.

Annotations :—Apld. Willis v. Davison (1863), 1 New Rep. 234 ; White v. Toms (1867), 37 L. J. Ch. 204. Reld. Ormson v. Clarke (1862), 13 C. B. N. S. 337 ; Lister v. Norton (1886), 3 R. P. C. 199 ; Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292 ; Lane-Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424 ; Acetylene Illuminated Co. v. United Alkali Co. (1904), 20 R. P. C. 161.

390. —— —— Though resulting in new advantages.]—The assignees of a patent for supporting the front of a four-wheel carriage by C springs brought an action for infringement thereof against W. & co. The main defences relied on were (a) want of novelty in the patented invention, inasmuch as it consisted in the applying of a known article to an analogous purpose ; (b) prior user of the invention by F. :—Held : (1) the invention was not subject-matter for a patent, being only the application of a known article to an analogous purpose without any ingenuity.

(2) If a known article is applied to an analogous purpose, the application is not patentable simply because it produced advantages not produced before.—MORGAN & CO., LTD. v. WINDOVER & CO., LTD. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 131, H. L.

Annotations :—As to (1) Apld. Layland v. Boldy (1913), 30 R. P. C. 547. Reld. Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292 ; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569 ; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 431 ; British Ore Concentration Syndicate v. Minerals Separation (1909), 27 R. P. C. 33 ; Bonnard v. London General Omnibus Co. (1920), 38 R. P. C. 1. As to (2) Apld. Elias v. Grovesend Tinplate Co. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 455. Generally, Reld. Goddard v. Lyon (1894), 11 R. P. C. 354 ; Gold Ore Treatment Co of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95.

391. —— —— ——.]—A patent was granted in 1903 for "improvements in the manufacture of tin plate & arts. therefrom." The alleged improvements consisted in omitting the usual cold rolling process, then tinning the plate, & afterwards forming, ornamenting, & finishing it upon the rough grain-like surface, & then manufacturing from the tin plate so obtained ornamental boxes & other arts. with an antique or oxidised silver effect. One of the claims in the specification was for the improved tin plate arts. & the method of producing the same. An action for infringement was brought by the owners of the patent & the patentee, claiming the usual relief:—Held: the production of the grained tin by the omission of the cold rolling process was well known at the date of the patent, & if the patentee had claimed the manufacture of tin plate in that way the patent would have been invalid for want of novelty, but that which he had claimed was the manufacture of ornamental arts. by the use of the tin plate described; there no invention in taking a well-known art. & applying to it ordinary processes & producing a new result; & the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.—HUDSON, SCOTT & CO., LTD. v. BARRINGER, WALLIS & MANNERS, LTD. (1906), 23 R. P. C. 502, C. A.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. B.]

392. ——.]—An action for infringement was brought by the owners of a patent granted to C. for "an improved joint for the rails of railways, tramways, & the like" against the London County Council. Defts. set up the invalidity of the patent on various grounds, including want of subject-matter & prior publication by a number of specifications & other documents including the specification of L. & also prior user:—Held: (1) the patentee's improved joint was described in L.'s specification; (2) if the invention was for adapting L.'s joint to tramways there was no such novelty as to constitute subject-matter.—COOPER PATENT ANCHOR RAIL JOINT CO., LTD. v. LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL (1906), 23 R. P. C. 289.

393. Exception to rule—Chemical processes.]—CALVERT v. ASHBURN (1862), cited 4 New Rep. at p. 219, Ex. Ch.

Annotation:—Refd. Young v. Fernie (1864), 4 New Rep. 218.

394. —— ——.]—YOUNG v. FERNIE, No. 32, ante.

B. Application Involving Exercise of Invention.

395. Patentable.]—CROYSDALE v. FISHER, No. 352, ante.

396. ——.]—MACINTOSH v. EVERINGTON (1836), 2 Carp. Pat. Cas. 186.

397. ——.]—KAY v. MARSHALL, No. 354, ante.

398. ——.]—CRANE v. PRICE, No. 315, ante.

399. ——.]—STEINER v. HEALD, No. 88, ante.

400. ——.]—BROOK v. ASTON, No. 358, ante.

401. ——.] — HARWOOD v. GREAT NORTHERN RY. CO., No. 361, ante.

402. ——.]—(1) A provisional specification, if allowed by the law officer of the Crown, cannot be impeached as being too general. The complete specification must not claim anything different from that which is included in the provisional specification, but need not extend to everything so included.

(2) The new application of any means or contrivance may be the subject of a patent if it lies so much out of the track of the former use as not naturally to suggest itself, but to require some application of thought & study.

(3) It seems clear . . . that the office of the provisional specification is to describe the nature of the invention (LORD CHELMSFORD, C.).—PENN v. BIBBY (1866), 2 Ch. App. 127; sub nom. PENN v. BIBBY, PENN v. JACK, 36 L. J. Ch. 455; 15 L. T. 399; 15 W. R. 208, L. C.

Annotations:—As to (1) Flld. Horrocks v. Stubbs (1886), 3 R. P. C. 221. Apld. Acetylene Illuminating Co. v. United Alkali Co. (1904), 22 R. P. C. 145. Refd. Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Leicester Pneumatic Tyre & Automatic Valve Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 159. As to (2) Consd. Blakey v. Latham (1889), 6 R. P. C. 184. Distd. Blakey v. Latham (1889), 5 T. L. R. 301. Apld. Elias v. Grovesend Tinplate Co. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 455; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; British Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. L. & S. W. Ry. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 309. Refd. Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429. Generally, Mentd. Ball v. Ray (1873), 30 L. T. 1; Dean v. Brown, [1909] 2 K. B. 573.

403. ——.] — In an action for infringement of a patent it appeared that pltf. had, on July 24, 1880, filed a provisional specification of an invention for improvements in the manufacture of pile fabrics in imitation of sealskin & other similar fabrics. This specification was abandoned by pltf., & on Jan. 21, 1881, he filed a second provisional specification of an invention for improvements in the manufacture of velvets & of pile fabrics in imitation of sealskin & other similar materials. On July 21, 1881, he obtained a grant of letters patent on his provisional specification of Jan. 21, 1881. The invention claimed by the specifications consisted in a new combination of materials, for use in the manufacture of the fabrics referred to, by the employment of a mixture of mohair & silk when in the raw state, by combining & blending before spinning:—Held: (1) the alleged invention, so far as it consisted of the application of a well known material to a new use with a new result, exhibited an amount of novelty of invention which, in the absence of anticipation, would entitle its inventor to a patent; but on the issues of fact defts. had shown both prior publication & prior user, & therefore the patent was invalid.

(2) The question whether the application of well known material to a new use is subject-matter depends on the circumstances of each case.

(3) If the public once becomes possessed of an invention by any means whatever, no subsequent patent for it can be granted either to the true & first inventor himself, or to any other person.

He, pltf., accordingly manufactures, without any conditions of secrecy, imitations, skins which he described as patent seals, & he openly offered them for sale, & sold some of them. . . . The argument that these were mere experiments to ascertain whether the goods would stand wear or to ascertain whether the buyer would take to the goods or some other such collateral purpose is wholly untenable (CHITTY, J.).—LISTER v. NORTON BROTHERS & CO. (1886), 3 R. P. C. 199; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 148.

Annotation:—As to (2) Consd. Morgan v. Windover (1887), 3 T. L R.. 748.

404. ——.]—R. & others were patentees of an invention for compressing & storing ensilage. By their specification they claimed as their invention the use of chains for the above-mentioned purpose in the manner described in the specification. They brought an action for infringement of their patent against A. & C., who also used chains for the purpose of compressing & storing ensilage. Defts. denied that there was any novelty in pltf.'s invention, & alleged that their apparatus was dissimilar from pltf.'s:—Held:

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 9.—B.

395 i. Patentable.]—The application to a new purpose of an old mechanical device is patentable when the new application lies so much out of the track of the former use as not naturally to suggest itself to a person turning his mind to the subject, but requires thought & study.—BICKNELL v. PETERSON (1897), 24 A. R. 427.—CAN.

395 ii. ——.]—LAIR v. AUTHIER (1907), Q. R. 33 S. C. 64.—CAN.

395 iii. ——.] — ELECTRIC FIRE-PROOFING CO. v. ELECTRIC FIRE-PROOFING CO. OF CANADA (1907), Q. R. 31 S. C. 34.—CAN.

395 iv. ——.]—CONCRETE APPLIANCES CO. v. ROURKE, MCDONALD, ETC. (1915), 8 W. W. R. 6.—CAN.

395 v. ——.]—An invention by which an old process is used for a new purpose is patentable.—USSHER v. CHAMBER OF MINES, [1912] T. P. D. 1075.—S. AF.

pltf.'s invention was novel & patentable, & defts. had infringed.—REYNOLDS v. AMOS (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 201; 3 R. P. C. 215.

Annotations:—Reld. Sharp v. Brauer (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 205; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429.

405. ——.]—The owners of a patent for improvements in bustles or dress improvers which consisted substantially in the application of tubular sections of braided hard wire to bustles brought an action against defts. alleging that they had infringed & asking for an injunction. Defts. admitted that they had made bustles identical with those made in accordance with the patent but denied infringement & alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds (inter alia) that the alleged invention was not useful & had been anticipated by prior use & publications including among the latter the specification of one J. which specified certain applications of braided wire to satchel handles & other articles & mentioned that the material might be applied to bustles. Defts. tendered no evidence in support of their allegations of inutility & prior use:—Held: the invention was not anticipated by either of the alleged prior publications of J. & L., & it was good subject-matter of a patent.—AMERICAN BRAIDED WIRE CO. v. THOMSON (1888), 4 T. L. R. 279; 5 R. P. C. 113, C. A.; affd., sub nom. THOMPSON & CO. v. AMERICAN BRAIDED WIRE CO., 5 T. L. R. 537, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Morgan v. Windover (1890), 7 R. P. C. 131; Vorwerk v. Evans (1890), 7 R. P. C. 167; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429; Savage v. Harris (1896), 12 T. L. R. 187; Kopp v. Rosenwald (1900), 19 R. P. C. 205. Reld. Ehrlich v. Ihlee & Sankey (1888), 4 T. L. R. 337; Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292; Williams v. Nye (1890), 7 R. P. C. 62; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Alexander v. Henry, Mitchell, Henry & Waller (1895), 12 R. P. C. 360; Case v. Cressy (1900), 17 R. P. C. 255; British Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. L. & S. W. Ry. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 309; British Thomson-Houston v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1924), 41 R. P. C. 241.

406. ——.]—GADD & MASON v. MANCHESTER CORPN., No. 921, post.

407. ——.]—VICKERS, SONS & CO. v. SIDDELL, No. 910, post.

408. ——.]—It is, of course, well settled law that the application of a known device to its ordinary purpose under analogous circumstances is not good subject-matter for letters patent, because it does not involve invention. But this principle does not apply when the circumstances are not analogous, or when invention is required to adopt the device to the new circumstances (FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J.).—BRITISH LIQUID AIR CO., LTD. v. BRITISH OXYGEN CO., LTD., BRITISH OXYGEN CO., LTD. v. BRITISH LIQUID AIR CO., LTD. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 577, C. A.; affd. (1909), 26 R. P. C. 509, H. L.

409. ——.]—The first claim of the specification of a patent for improvements in & relating to levers & go-through lace machines was: In the manufacture of lace on twist lace machines of the levers & go-through type, the traversing of the bobbins & carriages to & fro across the breadth or part of the breadth of lace being made for the purpose of equalising the thread drawn off each bobbin substantially as herein described. In an action against the P. & M. co., Ltd., & T. for infringement of the patent, defts. alleged, among other defences, that there was no subject-matter. The method of traversing described in the specification was by endwise movement of the comb-bars known as shogging. Traversing the carriages & bobbins in a lace machine by shogging the comb-bar was old, & equalising the bobbin threads by interchanging the bobbins by hand was old. Pltf. alleged that it was new to traverse in a levers & go-through machine that the alleged anticipations all related to net-making machines, & that in them traversing was for the purpose of making pattern & not of equalising. Defts. contended that, if this were so, yet that the use of the old device to effect equalising was not subject-matter for a patent, no ingenuity being required when once the idea was given. It was admitted that a considerable saving of yarn was effected. It was held at the trial, that traversing the bobbins by shogging the comb-bars in levers machines, in order to equalise the comsumption of thread, was new; that traversing by shogging in other lace machines was old, but not for the purpose of equalising the threads, although it was known that the movement did equalise the threads; that, on the evidence, when once the idea of shogging for equalising was suggested, there was no difficulty in carrying it into effect; & that, although there was commercial utility, there was no invention. The patent was held to be invalid for want of subject-matter, & the action as regards deft. co. was dismissed with costs, but judgment was given by consent against deft. T. Pltfs. appealed:—Held: the idea of equalising the use of threads by shogging the comb-bar was new & meritorious, &, there being invention in the idea, & a way of carrying it out being shown, there was good subject-matter for a patent, notwithstanding that there was no difficulty in carrying the idea into effect.

If you have got a new idea, a new conception of manufacturing something, or a new way of manufacturing something, & you suggest a way of carrying it out, that is patentable. Here the inventor makes the lace—an old thing; he makes it by cheaper means, because he saves the wasted thread in the bobbin & he does that by employing, for the first time in a new manner & for a new purpose, the old operation called shogging. . . . To my mind that is plainly patentable (BUCKLEY, L.J.).—HICKTON'S PATENT SYNDICATE v. PATENTS & MACHINE IMPROVEMENTS CO., LTD. (1909), 26 R. P. C. 339, C. A.

Annotations:—Reld. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Unique Shoe Co. (1918), 36 R. P. C. 33; Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 38 R. P. C. 199; Clorius v. Tonner (1922), 39 R. P. C. 242; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1923), 40 R. P. C. 426; Armstrong, Whitworth v. Hardcastle (1924), 41 R. P. C. 189; Higginson & Arundel v. Pyman (1926), 43 R. P. C. 291.

410. ——.]—LAYLAND v. BOLDY & SON, LTD., No. 381, ante.

——.]—A patent was granted for improvements in or relating to gyro-compasses. The chief object of the invention was stated in the specification to be the provision of the necessary gravitational control of the gyroscope giving the north seeking property without subjecting the gyroscope to appreciable disturbing forces due to rolling, pitching, or other short period motions of ships. Three of the claims were as follows: (a) A gyro-compass in which the pendulous or gravitational factor which controls the gyroscope acts through a relay or intermediate source of power, for the purpose specified. (b) A gyro-compass in which the gyro-casing together with the members carried by it is mounted in neutral equilibrium around its horizontal axis & the gravity control device acts upon the casing around the said axis through a relay or intermediate source of power, for the purpose specified. (c) A gyro-compass in which the pendulous or gravitational factor controls the gyro-casing through an intermediate source of power that displaces a controlling weight along a lever arm, for the purpose specified. At the trial of an action for infringement of the patent, & of another patent as to which pltf.'s case was abandoned, pltf.'s case was confined to an alleged infringement of the above three claims. Defts. alleged that the patent in suit was invalid by reason of want of utility, novelty & subject-matter, & they relied, in particular, on three prior specifications of Ach, Anschütz-Kaempfe & Ford & Tanner. Pltf. contended (inter alia) that defts.' instrument comprised a gyro-compass in which a gyro-wheel & casing were mounted in neutral equilibrium, & were controlled by a separate gravitational device acting through an intermediate source of power, that method of controlling the gyroscope being employed for the purpose of eliminating the error, known as quadrantal error, due to the rolling or pitching or other short motions of ships on courses, known as intercardinal courses, other than north-south or east-west, & that, therefore, defts. had infringed:—Held: the three claims could only be applicable to cases in which the pendulous or gravitational device was constructionally capable of severance from the gyroscope so as to admit of the interposition of an intermediate source of power, the invention was effective for the limited purpose for which it was intended, & the patent was not invalid for want of utility; the object & method of Ach were different from those of the grantees of the patent in suit; & his specification was not destructive of novelty or subject-matter; the grantees, in taking for another purpose the device used by Anschütz-Kaempfe for damping, had made an inventive step sufficient to constitute subject-matter; defts.' compass did not contain any separate gravitational device not producing a direct torque, or any intermediate source of power, & was not an infringement of any of the three claims; &, in consequence, no question of anticipation based upon the specification of Ford & Tanner arose.—BROWN v. SPERRY GYROSCOPE CO., LTD. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 1, C. A.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 9, B.; sub-sect. 10, A. & B.; sub-sect. 11.]

412. ——.]—Pltf. was the owner of letters patent for "Means of Indicating Variations of Temperature of the Cylinders of Internal Combustion Engines." The specification stated, "The object of my invention is to provide a temperature-indicating device for use on the radiator of an automobile whereof the engine has liquid-cooled cylinders, the device, which is designed for the purpose of constantly affording a visual indication of the temperature conditions prevailing within the so-called air space above the surface of the liquid in the radiator without imposing upon the driver the necessity of leaving his seat for the purpose of inspecting the indicator, being specially adapted for attracting the driver's attention by day or by night on the occurrence of an abnormal rise of temperature in the liquid within the cooling jacket of the engine cylinders," & the specification claimed, "The combination with the liquid-circulation cooling-system appertaining to the engine of an automobile, of means for indicating the temperature-conditions prevailing within the cooling jacket of the engine, said means comprising a thermometer the heat responsive element of which is exposed to the temperature conditions prevailing within the so-called air space immediately above the normal surface level of the liquid in said system, substantially as set forth." Pltf. manufactured & sold a device for utilising the invention, & this defts. purchased & fitted as a standard fitting to motor-cars manufactured & sold by them. After some time defts. ceased to fit pltf.'s device & began to fit another device known as the "Wilmot Calometer" to their motor-cars. Pltf. commenced an action for infringement & defts. alleged that the patent was invalid by reason of prior publication in certain specifications & by reason of two prior users wherein thermometers placed in the radiators of motor-cars had been used for testing the performance of the cars & settling their designs, & further by reason of prior common general knowledge. Defts. also alleged that there was no subject-matter & that the invention was not useful, because certain advantages which were alleged by patentee were not in fact obtained. They also denied infringement:—Held: the selection of the particular medium into which the thermometer was placed gave a real & practical advantage in communicating to the driver at the right moment the existence of danger, there was real exercise of the inventive faculty; the alleged prior user was at the most a mere casual, accidental, or incidental user in the course of a completely different investigation, & was not made use of, & also was not a public user, & the patent had not been anticipated, & had been infringed.—BOYCE v. MORRIS MOTORS, LTD. (1926), 44 R. P. C. 105, C. A.

413. Necessity for exercise of invention.]—SHAW v. BARTON & LOUDON, No. 228, ante.

414. ——.]—In 1899 a patent was granted for improvements in & relating to puttees or leg & other bandages, & in their construction or method of manufacture. The improvements consisted chiefly in making the materials of the puttees or bandages in a curved form, so as to fit the leg of the wearer more neatly than straight puttees, without the necessity for cross twists on the leg. In an action for infringement, defts. alleged that the patent had been anticipated by the specification of H.'s patent for gaiters which specification had been accepted a few days before, but had not been printed, at the date of pltf.'s patent. They gave evidence that the use of curvature of the outline of the material in fitting a curved surface was a matter of common knowledge, & that, if pltf. claimed the use of curvature generally, the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter; that, if the claim was limited to a particular curve, the specification gave insufficient directions for obtaining the curves required for fitting legs of different shapes; & that defts.' puttees were of different curvature from pltf.'s & were not an infringement:—Held: under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 9, there had been a publication of H.'s specification; pltf.'s patent was not for a particular curve, but was for a suitable curve, as illustrated by the drawings; the patent was valid; & the defts. had infringed.—FOX v. ASTRACHANS, LTD. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 377.

415. ——.]—The owner of a patent for improvements in wristlets for watches brought an action for infringement of the patent. The amended claim was as follows: A watch wristlet comprising a pair of straps adapted to be secured to one another & provided at their free ends with bent over portions or loops adapted to be passed through the watch loops & secured thereon by U-shaped spring clips fitted to the said looped ends, substantially as described & illustrated. Defts. by their defence alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds (inter alia) of want of novelty, prior user & want of subject-matter, & they denied infringement & counterclaimed for revocation of the patent:—Held: a watch wristlet in use before the date of the patent differed only from the patented article as sold & illustrated in that the spring metal was not covered with leather, that the spring bullets at the end of driving reins manufactured & sold by defts.' predecessors in business performed functions so analogous to the functions performed by the patented wristlet as to be practically the same & that it did not require the exercise of any inventive ingenuity to adapt the idea embodied in such reins to a watch wristlet; the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter & of novelty, & further even if the patent could be treated as valid, defts. had not infringed. The action was dismissed with costs & on the counter-claim an order was made for the revocation of the patent.—BOWEN v. PEARSON (E. J.) & SONS, LTD. (1924), 42 R. P. C. 101.

416. ——.]—A patent was granted for improvements in or relating to veil nets. The first claim was as follows: The combination with a veil net having an elastic thread run therein of a free elastic thread disposed so as to form with the run-in thread an endless elastic loop that can be passed over the crown of a hat to retain the veil net in position. In an action for infringement of the patent defts. alleged (inter alia) want of novelty, utility & subject-matter:—Held: deft. was using an elastic loop of exactly the same character as pltf.'s; but that on the construction of the claim the only question to be determined was whether adding a piece of elastic to an ordinary bag veil so as to prevent it slipping off a hat was sufficient subject-matter for a patent; the veil produced by pltf. was obviously useful & had been extremely successful, but the application of a perfectly common form of device to the veil was a mere workshop improvement not involving invention; & the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.—SHAW v. BURNET & CO. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 432.

SUB-SECT. 10.—TOOLS.

A. In General.

417. Whether subject-matter of patent — Cardboard pattern sleeve.]—Pltf. claimed copyright in a cardboard pattern sleeve containing upon it scales, figures, & descriptive words for adapting it to sleeves of any dimensions. Semble: it might be the subject of a patent as an instrument or tool.—HOLLINRAKE v. TRUSWELL, [1894] 3 Ch. 420; 63 L. J. Ch. 719; 71 L. T. 419; 10 T. L. R. 663; 38 Sol. Jo. 706; 7 R. 568, C. A.

Annotations:—Mentd. Boosey v. Whight, [1900] 1 Ch. 122; Walter v. Lane, [1900] A. C. 539; Warren v. Foster Clothing Co. (1906), 51 Sol. Jo. 145; Libraco v. Shaw Walker (1913), 30 T. L. R. 22; Anderson v. Lieber Code Co. (1917), 117 L. T. 361; McCrum v. Eisner (1917), 87 L. J. Ch. 99.

B. New Use for Old Tools.

418. Whether patentable.]—BOULTON v. BULL, No. 90, ante.

419. ——.]—LOSH v. HAGUE, No. 16, ante.

420. ——.]—BROOK v. ASTON, No. 358, ante.

421. ——.]—(1) The infringement of any part of a patent process is actionable, if that part is of itself new & useful, so as that it might be the subject-matter of a patent, & is used by the infringer to effect the object proposed by the patentee.

(2) But the application of a well known tool to work previously untried materials, or to produce new forms, is not the subject-matter of a patent. Pltfs. took out a patent for improvements in the manufacture of cases or envelopes for covering bottles, & in the specification the invention was stated to consist in an arrangement of apparatus by which lengths of rush, straw, or other suitable material may be readily tied together, so as to form cases or covers to protect bottles from breakage when packed. It then proceeded—For this purpose I take equal lengths of rush, straw, or other suitable material, & confine them at one end within a ring or cap, which I then place over the neck end of a mould or mandril, corresponding in form to the bottle for which the case or cover is intended. The mould is fixed to a frame, etc. Deft. made bottle envelopes out of similar materials somewhat differently applied, placing them upon a model of a bottle, or mandril, & fastening the material in a manner somewhat like pltfs.' method:—Held: the use of the mandril, which was admitted to have been long commonly used for producing given forms of pliable materials, was not an infringement of pltfs.' patent; for, that the application of a well known tool to work previously untried materials, or to produce new forms, is not the subject-matter of a patent.—PATENT BOTTLE ENVELOPE CO. v. SEYMER (1858), 5 C. B. N. S. 164; 28 L. J. C. P. 22; 141 E. R. 65; sub nom. BOTTLE ENVELOPE CO. v. SEYMOUR, 5 Jur. N. S. 174.

Annotations:—As to (2) Follid. Brook v. Aston (1859), 28 L. J. Q. B. 175. Refd. Horton v. Mabon (1862), 12 C. B. N. S. 437; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429.

422. ——.] — This was an action for infringement of a patent for a method of cutting, at one operation, necktie linings by means of a revolving band knife, the material being clamped firmly between two templets of identical form. The judge held that the invention claimed was not sufficient to form the subject-matter of a patent, being merely the application of the use of a band knife, in its ordinary function as a cutter of piles of substances, by applying it to necktie linings, when such linings to be cut were clamped together with guides:—Held: there was no invention which was patentable.

A more skilled application of well understood tools & well understood processes is not a patentable invention (LORD HALSBURY, C.).—DREDGE v. PARNELL (1899), 16 R. P. C. 625, H. L.

Annotations:—Refd. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95; British Oxygen Co. v. Maine Lighting Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 604; Harris v. Brandreth (1925), 42 R. P. C. 471.

SUB-SECT. 11.—PRODUCT OF MANUFACTURE.

See, now, Patent Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 11.

423. Whether good subject-matter of patent.]—The assignee of a patent for improvements in skirt waistbands, & in the method of & means for weaving webs suitable for such uses, brought an action for infringement. The specification stated that three conical rollers were used, a detailed description being given of this arrangement with drawings, & further on that two rollers, or any suitable number of rollers greater than three, might be used. No description, however, was given how to work with two or more than three rollers. The claims were (a) the waistband of the formation substantially as set forth; (b) the taking-up motion having conically formed rollers arranged & acting substantially as & for the purpose set forth. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged the patent was invalid on the ground that the alleged invention was not new; was the application of means previously well known & was not subject-matter; that the specification did not sufficiently describe the invention, & was ambiguous & misleading, in particular, in not ascertaining the form, shape, & position of the rollers where two or more then three rollers were employed, & that the invention had been previously published. It was proved that defts. sold waistbands precisely similar to pltf.'s, but made by a machine with two conical rollers:—Held: (1) the patentee claimed by his first claim a waistband formed in the manner described in his specification; (2) not treating B.'s specification as an anticipation, but having regard to the knowledge before him, & given by him, a patent could only be taken out for a particular method of affecting that which B. had given to the world, namely, the producing radial wefts by the differential drag of conical rollers, & that as defts. in this case produced the result by a method different from pltf.'s, they had not infringed; (3) a claim for a waistband might be perfectly good if the thing claimed was new & complied with the other requirements of the law. —VORWERK & SON v. EVANS & CO. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 265, C. A.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes subject-matter: Sub-sect. 11. Sect. 2: Sub-sect. 1.]

424. ——.]—RIEKMANN v. THIERRY, No. 372, ante.

425. ——.]—KOPP v. ROSENWALD BROTHERS, No. 814, post.

426. ——.]—ACETYLENE ILLUMINATING CO., LTD. v. UNITED ALKALI CO., LTD., No. 457, post.

427. —— Substance produced by chemical process or intended for food or medicine.]—Re S. CO.'S APPLICATION (1921), 38 R. P. C. 399.

Annotation:—Consd. Re H. E. P.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 150.

428. ——.]—Re W., K. J., & W., LTD.'s APPLICATIONS (1922), 39 R. P. C. 263.

.]—Re Q. O.'s APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 581.

S.'s APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 583.

.]—Re J. S.'s APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 585.

K.'s APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 587.

's APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 590.

434. —— ——.]—A patent was granted for "Improvements in or relating to the manufacture of alkyl resorcinols." Defts. alleged (inter alia) that the patent was invalid for want of novelty & subject-matter; that the methods described in the specification had been published before the date of the patent, or that the prior publications indicated methods to be adopted for obtaining homologous alkyl resorcinols higher than those theretofore obtained. Pltfs. contended that, by selection of processes & research, they had made an invention, it being not unusual in chemistry to find that a reaction that would produce a particular body would not produce the higher homologues of that body:—Held: pltfs. had not produced a new body such that the merit & the novelty of the invention would consist in the substance produced; there was not any inventive step in the subject of the patent, having regard to the prior publications; & the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.—SHARPE & DOHME INC. v. BOOTS PURE DRUG CO., LTD. (1927), 44 R. P. C. 69.

435. —— —— "Special" methods or process.]—"Special" in the phrase "the special methods or processes of manufacture" does not mean merely particular, but is used to connote a method or process which has such attributes that it is the proper subject of a claim for letters patent; one that has some intrinsic characteristics which are the invention of the inventor, & for which a patent may be properly & legitimately claimed & granted. —Re M.'s APPLICATION (1922), 39 R. P. C. 261.

SECT. 2.—NOVELTY.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

See Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), s. 6; Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 93.

436. General rule—Novelty essential to validity of patent.]—Where any man by his own charge & industry, or by his own wit or invention, doth bring any new trade into the realm, or any engine tending to the furtherance of a trade that never was used before, & that for the good of the realm, that in such cases the King may grant to him a monopoly patent, for some reasonable time until the subjects may learn the same, in consideration of the good that he doth bring by his invention to the commonwealth, otherwise not (per CUR.).—DARCY v. ALLIN (1602), Noy, 173; Moore, K. B. 671; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 1; 74 E. R. 1131; sub nom. CASE OF MONOPOLIES, 11 Co. Rep. 84 b.

Annotations:—Consd. Crane v. Price (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580; Marsden v. Saville Street Foundry & Engineering Co. (1878), 3 Ex. D. 203. Refd. Boulton v. Bull (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463; Beard v. Egerton (1846), 3 C. B. 97; Caldwell v. Vanvlissengen, Caldwell v. Verbeck, Caldwell v. Rolfe (1851), 9 Hare, 415; Young v. Fernie (1864), 4 Giff. 577; Murray v. Clayton (1872), 7 Ch. App. 573, n.; R. v. Halifax County Court Judge, [1891] 1 Q. B. 793. Mentd. London City Case (1610), 8 Co. Rep. 121 b; Norris v. Staps (1616), Hob. 210; Dublin Corpn. Case (1620), Palm. 1; R. v. Maidenhead Corpn. (1620), Palm. 76; Fleming v. Pitman (1623), Win. 63; R. v. Hampden (1637), 3 State Tr. 826; Thomas v. Sorrel (1673), 3 Keb. 143; Yarmouth v. Darrel (1686), 3 Mod. Rep. 75; Precedence, etc. of the Judges (1693), Fortes. Rep. 382; Rogers v. Rajendro Dutt (1860), 13 Moo. P. C. C. 209; G. E. Ry. v. Goldsmid (1884), 9 App. Cas. 927; Jenks v. Turpin (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 505; British South Africa Co. v. De Beers Consolidated Mines, [1910] 1 Ch. 354; North Western Salt Co. v. Electrolytic Alkali Co. (1912), 107 L. T. 439; A.-G. of Commonwealth of Australia v. Adelaide S.S. Co., [1913] A. C. 781.

to validity of patent.]—If a person has discovered a new principle, & invented a mode of carrying it into effect, he may obtain a patent for that principle coupled with the mode of carrying it into effect, & he is thereby protected against persons carrying the principle into effect by other modes.—MINERALS SEPARATION, LTD. v. POTTER'S SULPHIDE ORE TREATMENT, LTD. (1909), 8 C. L. R. 779.—AUS.

436 ii. —— ——.]—ROGERS v. PATENTS COMR. (1910), 10 C. L. R. 701.—AUS.

436 iii. —— ——.]—BROADBENT v. DAVIES (1916), 21 C. L. R. 253.—AUS.

436 iv. —— ——.]—The act or contrivance which is the subject of a patent must be new, & it is not sufficient that the object or application of a contrivance is new if the contrivance itself be old.—WATEROUS v. BISHOP (1869), 20 C. P. 29.—CAN.

436 v. —— ——.]—ALMOUR v. CABLE (1887), 31 L. C. J. 157.—CAN.

436 vi. —— ——.]—When a pretended invention constitutes neither a new process nor a new combination producing a result unknown before, it is not patentable.—DOMPIERRE v. BARIL (1889), 18 R. L. O. S. 597.—CAN.

436 vii. —— ——.]—COPELAND-CHATTERSON CO. v. PAQUETTE (1907), 27 C. L. T. 311; 38 S. C. R. 451.—CAN.

436 viii. —— ——.]—EASTERN HAT & CAP CO. v. WALMSLEY (N. S.) (1909), 5 E. L. R. 538; 6 E. L. R. 525.—CAN.

436 ix. —— ——.]—Where prior to a certain patent, persons had to resort to a dangerous practice to do that which was the object of the patent, although not a determining factor it strengthens the conclusion that the invention is a new & useful one.—ASHDOWN v. NICKSON CONSTRUCTION CO., LTD., [1924] 4 D. L. R. 868; 34 B. C. R. 351.—CAN.

436 x. —— ——.]—KINMOND v. KEAY (1903), 20 R. P. C. 497.—SCOT.

436 xi. —— ——.]—MURCHLAND v. NICHOLSON (1893), 20 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 1006; 30 Sc. L. R. 857; 1 S. L. T. 173.—SCOT.

437. —— ——.]—If a man has brought in a new invention & a new trade within the kingdom, in peril of his life, & consumption of his estate or stock, etc., or if a man has made a new discovery of anything, in such cases the King of his grace & favour, in recompense of his costs & travail, may grant by charter unto him, that he only shall use such a trade or traffic for a certain time, because at first the people of the kingdom are ignorant, & have not the knowledge or skill to use it; but when that patent is expired, the King cannot make a new grant thereof: for when the trade is become common, & others have been bound apprentices in the same trade, there is no reason that such should be forbidden to use it (per CUR.).—IPSWICH CLOTHWORKERS CASE (1614), Godb. 252; 11 Co. Rep. 53 a; 78 E. R. 147; sub nom. IPSWICH TAILORS v. SHERRING, 1 Roll. Rep. 4.

Annotations:—Consd. Marsden v. Saville Street Foundry & Engineering Co. (1878), 3 Ex. D. 203. Refd. Boulton v. Bull (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463; Beard v. Egerton (1846), 3 C. B. 97. Mentd. Norris v. Staps (1616), Hob. 210; Joliffe v. Brode (1621), W. Jo. 13; Thomas v. Sorrel (1673), 3 Keb. 223; Hacket v. Tilly (1706), 11 Mod. Rep. 93; Green v. Durham Corpn. (1757), 1 Burr. 127; French v. Adams (1763), 2 Wils. 168; Jefferys v. Boosey (1854), 4 H. L. Cas. 819; Rogers v. Rajendro Dutt (1860), 13 Moo. P. C. C. 209; Davies v. Davies (1887), 36 Ch. D. 359; Kruse v. Johnson, [1898] 2 Q. B. 91.

438. —— ——.]—MANTON v. MANTON (1815), Dav. Pat. Cas. 333; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 278.

439. —— ——.]—BRUNTON v. HAWKES, No. 293, ante.

440. —— ——.]—(1) The patentees of a shearing machine claimed in their specification four things, among which was a brush for raising the pile of the cloth. It was proved that the brush had only been used once by the patentees themselves, & that they had not sold one with a brush; &, that, as to some cloths, it was entirely useless:—Held: inasmuch as the brush had not been claimed as essential, the mention of it in the specification did not affect the patent; for that every substantive part of a patent need not be useful, although every part claimed must be new.

(2) The patentees claimed that they were the inventors of a machine for shearing cloth from list to list by means of a rotatory cutter. It was proved that the idea could be extracted from the specification of an older patent, that a specification of it had been received from America, & shown to several persons, that a model of such a machine had been in England before this patent, & seen by several persons, but no machine had been made from it, & also, that a similar machine had been made & used for a very short period, a long time ago:—Held: these circumstances did not amount to a publication, & consequently the patent was valid.

The prerogative of the Crown as to granting patents was restrained by statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), s. 6, to cases of grants, "to the true & first inventors of manufactures, which others at the time of granting the patent shall not use." The condition, therefore, is, that the thing shall be new, not that it shall be useful; & although the question of its utility has been sometimes left to a jury, I think the condition imposed by the statute has been complied with, when it has been proved to be new (PARKE, J.).—LEWIS v. MARLING (1829), 10 B. & C. 22; 4 C. & P. 52; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 493; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 478; L. & Welsb. 29; 5 Man. & Ry. K. B. 66; 8 L. J. O. S. K. B. 46; 109 E. R. 359.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Morgan v. Seaward (1837), 2 M. & W. 544. Distd. R. v. Cutler (1849), 3 Car. & Kir. 215. Apld. Poupard v. Fardell (1869), 21 L. T. 696. As to (2) Refd. Carpenter v. Smith (1842), 9 M. & W. 300; Heath v. Smith (1854), 3 E. & B. 256. Generally, Refd. Wegmann v. Corcoran (1879), 13 Ch. D. 65.

441. —— ——.]—LOSH v. HAGUE, No. 16, ante.

442. —— ——.]—(1) The degree of utility is not material; it is sufficient to support a patent if the invention be an improvement.

(2) The facts being undisputed, the question whether the invention is new is for the ct.

(3) The specification is to warn the public of what is prohibited, & to teach them the invention. The specification must be such as may be followed without invention or addition. The ordinary means of knowledge common to the trade may be required. If a competent engineer with ordinary knowledge could carry out the invention without solving a problem, the specification is sufficient. The most advantageous mode must be stated in the specification.

A specification merely suggesting something, so as to throw on the public the trouble of experiment, is bad. Information acquired from any other source than the specification must be excluded. Reasonable data must be given. All extreme or exaggerated cases should be discarded. Any circumstance conducive to the advantageous operations must be stated. The specifications is sufficient, if a workman by following the directions could execute an order.

(4) An invention not getting into general use, a presumption against its utility.

(5) It is sufficient if an invention be new, & of any use.—MORGAN v. SEAWARD (1836), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 170; 2 Carp. Pat. Cas. 37, N. P.; subsequent proceedings (1837), 2 M. & W. 544.

Annotations:—As to (3) Consd. Plimpton v. Malcolmson (1876), 34 L. T. 340. Refd. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95.

443. —— ——.]—NEWTON v. VAUCHER, No. 159, ante.

444. —— ——.]—BUSH v. FOX, No. 616, post.

445. —— ——.]—BOOTH v. KENNARD, No. 1062, post.

446. —— ——.]—Hoops of whalebone, cane & other substances, suspended from the waist & forming a petticoat, had long since been used by ladies. Pltfs. took out a patent for using, for the same purpose, hoops made of steel watch springs:—Held: this was not an invention which could properly be made the subject of a patent.

To constitute the subject of a patent there must be some real novelty in the invention, either by a new combination of old existing materials, or else by the discovery of something that did not exist before (ROMILLY, M.R.).—THOMPSON v. JAMES (1863), 32 Beav. 570; 55 E. R. 224.

Annotation:—Apld. White v. Toms (1867), 37 L. J. Ch. 204.

447. —— ——.]—F. obtained a patent for umbrella ribs, & enjoyed it uninterruptedly to its conclusion with the exception of an action for damages by H., another patentee, who recovered £300, & a manufacture & sale of the ribs by O. six months before it expired. F. filed a bill & restrained D.:—Held: F.'s invention was neither novel nor important, the two requisites to support a patent.—FOX v. DELLESTABLE, FOX v. JONES (1866), 15 W. R. 194.

Annotation:—Refd. Poupard v. Fardell (1869), 21 L. T. 696.

448. —— ——.]—The first thing a patentee has to do is to describe the nature of the invention, & when a question arises whether the invention is sufficiently described the first thing the ct. has to do is to ascertain what the invention is. . . . You must proceed to ascertain when the invention is from the specification & for this purpose . . .

Sect. 2.—Novelty: Sub-sects. 1 & 2, A.]

the specification is to be construed as any other document would be construed by a ct. of justice. . . . If in doing that the ct. arrives at the conclusion that the specification is unmeaning the patent is bad. If it arrives at the conclusion ex facie part of the invention or the whole of the invention is old, it would be bad. If it arrives at the conclusion ex facie that that which is claimed as an invention is no invention at all the patent would be bad. If it arrives at the conclusion ex facie . . . that there is not sufficient discrimination in the claim between the limits of what is old & what is new, then again the patent would be bad. . . .

It may then proceed to ascertain whether the patentee has sufficiently described the manner in which the invention is to be performed & for that purpose the ct. may naturally apply for evidence to workmen or to persons skilled in operations of a similar kind. But it will be seen that the ct. addresses itself to that further inquiry when, & only when, it has ascertained what the invention is (LORD CAIRNS, C.).—BOVILL v. SMITH (1868), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 49, L. C.

449. —— ——.]—The inventor of a painting machine, by his final specification, claimed the various parts of the machine, &, among others, "The shallow sliding tray T., arranged & used substantially in the manner & for the purpose specified," being, in fact, an ordinary movable tray, used for catching the drippings of the paint from the brushes & other parts of the machine, & being a thing commonly known & used before the date of the papers. He also claimed the general construction & combination of the several parts of the machine. Upon an action by the owner of the patent to restrain an alleged infringement:—Held: the patent was bad for want of novelty, inasmuch as it was impossible to construe the claim for the sliding tray otherwise than as a distinct claim for a separate invention.—ROBERTS v. HEYWOOD (1879), 27 W. R. 454.

450. —— ——.]—DOWNES v. FALCON ENGINE WORKS (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 77, C. A.

451. —— ——.]—SHARP v. BRAUER, BRAUER v. SHARP (1886), 3 R. P. C. 193; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 205.

452. —— ——.]—MOORE v. THOMSON (1890), 7 R. P. C. 325, H. L.

453. —— ——.]—The patentee of a fee water governor, described in his provisional specification, an apparatus acting by "a rod or other attachment"; in his complete, an apparatus acting by a "rod, wire, or other suitable means"; in the drawing attached to the complete the apparatus acted by a "rotatory spindle." The patentee brought an action for infringement, & deft. alleged that the patent was invalid. At the trial it appeared, from pltf.'s own evidence, that the rotatory spindle was the essential part of his invention, & that the rod was not suitable, & was not new:—Held: assuming that "rod or other attachment" included a rotatory spindle so that there was no variance, pltf. clearly, in his complete specification, stated that a rod & wire were suitable, & claimed these, & as these were not novel his patent was invalid.—PETHER v. SHAW (1893), 10 R. P. C. 293.

454. —— ——.]—ALLEN v. DUCKETT & SON (1893), 10 R. P. C. 397.

455. —— ——.]—BENNO JAFFÉ & DARMSTAEDTER LANOLIN FABRIK v. RICHARDSON (JOHN) & CO. (LEICESTER), LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 261; 10 T. L. R. 398, C. A.

Annotations:—Consd. Marconi & Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. British Radio Telegraph & Telephone Co. (1911), 27 T. L. R. 274. Apld. Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369.

456. —— ——.]—This action was for the infringement of a patent relating to various methods of opening & closing fanlights, skylights, ventilators & analogous articles. Deft. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the grounds of want of novelty, utility & subject-matter, & also of disconformity:—Held: pltf.'s letters patent were invalid on the ground of want of novelty, want of subject-matter & disconformity.

I do not think . . . that pltf. has successfully met the case of disconformity put forward by deft. An essential portion of the combination claimed in claims 1 & 2, figs. 1, 2 & 3, is the ratchet & pawl device. There is no trace of this in the provisional specification. The essential point in the provisional specification is the use of a spring in various ways therein described. Of the ratchet & pawl device there is no express mention & I cannot find it implied, as pltf. suggests that I ought to do, in the closing lines of p. 1 of the provisional specification & the top lines of p. 2 (KENNEDY, J.).—ADAMS v. STEVENS (1898), 16 R. P. C. 225.

457. —— ——.]—The owners of letters patent for an invention of "Improved metallic carbides applicable for use in the production of acetylene, & means for producing the same," having commenced an action for infringement, defts. denied infringement & alleged want of invention & novelty, relying on (inter alia) a United States patent of W. of 1892 & five papers by M. The first claim in the specification was for "the manufacture of crystalline calcium carbide by subjecting lime & carbonaceous matter in suitable proportions to the continued action of electrically generated heat, substantially as hereinbefore described." In the body of the specification the patentee said that he employed "a suitable electric furnace, such as a Siemens arc furnace." Pltfs.' case was that the patentee was the first person to show how to manufacture calcium carbide on a commercial scale; that the patent was confined to using an electric furnace so that the current passed through the material, but not to an arc furnace as distinguished from an incandescent furnace; that there were no sufficient directions in W.'s U.S. patent for the manufacture of calcium carbide; that M. only produced calcium carbide in minute quantities, & avoided electrolytic action, which the patentee discovered was harmless:—Held: the patent was anticipated, & moreover there was no subject-matter, the alleged invention being, at the most, the application of a known process to a purpose analogous to that for which it had been used.

If the only thing that can be put forward is the finding out that the actual passing of the arc through the materials produces no injurious electrolysis, it would be contrary to every principle which has ever been established in patent law that that discovery would be made the subject of a patent (LORD HALSBURY, J.).

I need scarcely say that if the patentee had discovered a new material of the character which he mentions, a material having the very valuable commercial properties which he ascribes to it, that would have been a good subject-matter for a patent, & there could have been no question, supposing he had done so, that his patent was a good one (LORD DAVEY).—ACETYLENE ILLUMINATING CO., LTD. v. UNITED ALKALI CO., LTD. (1904), 22 R. P. C. 145, H. L.

Annotation :—Reld. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1923), 40 R. P. C. 426.

458. —— ——.]—GRAMOPHONE CO., LTD. v. RUHL (1910), 28 R. P. C. 20, C. A.

459. —— ——.]—An Indian patent was granted for "Improvements in the manufacture of a medicinal preparation." The preparation was a substance "banslochan" or "bamboo camphor" that was made from a substance found in some bamboos & called "tabakshir" or "bamboo mannar." The claims were as follows:—"(a) In the preparation of the said substance, the treatment of the same when red hot with an acid. (b) An oven or stove substantially as described & illustrated for drying, heating, roasting or calcining the said substance." In an action for infringement of the patent it was proved that before the date of the patent, "banslochan" had been made by a process that included washing the crude material in water, treating it at some part of the process with sulphuric acid; & calcining the product in an iron stove at a high temperature:—Held: (1) the first claim was invalid on the grounds of want of novelty & prior user, & the patent was therefore invalid; (2) it was unnecessary to examine the second claim.—GOPI LAL v. LAKHPAT RAI, LAKHPAT RAI v. SRI KISHEN DAS (1923), 40 R. P. C. 147, P. C.

460. Test of novelty.]—Pltfs. were patentees of alleged improvements in the manufacture of stays & corsets, & claimed as their invention the manufacture of stays or corsets in which the seams that unite the several pieces composing the stays or corsets are arranged in a diagonal or oblique direction substantially as & for the purpose specified in their specification. Pltfs. brought their action against defts. for infringement of their patent, claiming an injunction & an account of profits or damages. Defts. denied that pltfs.' invention was novel or useful, & alleged that it had been anticipated by a patent previously granted to W. & B. & by sales prior to the grant of pltfs.' patent of stays & corsets similar to those specified for by pltfs. by W. & B. & other persons named in defts.' particulars of objections. Evidence was adduced in support of pltfs.' & defts.' cases, & the jury found that pltfs.' invention had been infringed, but that it was not novel or useful. Judgment was delivered for defts. with costs.

It was found necessary for the protection of the public that the patentee should enrol a specification, & in that he was required to describe the nature of his invention in order that the rest of the public might know what his invention really is, so that they may not unintentionally infringe it, & so that they may know what they are prohibited from using without his leave and licence. He must also describe the means of performing his invention, in order that when his patent expires people may know how to make it (GROVE, J.).

It must not only have been new in his invention, he must not only, so to speak, have "found it out," but he must have found something out which was not in use before, because if it was in public use before, even by one person, his patent is bad.

Mere private use in the closet, mere experimental working in a laboratory, without publishing the invention, but keeping it a secret with a view possibly of a patent being taken out, would not invalidate it (GROVE, J.).—YOUNG & NEILSON v. ROSENTHAL & CO. (1884), 1 R. P. C. 29; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 249.

Annotation :—Consd. Welsbach Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. New Incandescent Sunlight Patent Gas Lighting Co., [1900] 1 Ch. 843.

461. Existence of novelty — When question for judge or jury.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

462. —— ——.]—BREFFITT v. WINTERBOTTOM (1852), 20 L. T. O. S. 66.

463. —— ——.]—Whether the thing is new or not is a question of fact (LORD ESHER, M.R.).—EDISON-BELL PHONOGRAPH CORPN., LTD. v. SMITH (1894), 11 R. P. C. 389; 10 T. L. R. 522, C. A.

Annotations :—Reld. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95. Mentd. Hatmaker v. Nathan (1917), 35 R. P. C. 61.

Necessity for to constitute improvement.]—See Sect. 1, sub-sect. 5, B., ante.

Necessity for to constitute combination.]—See Sect. 1, sub-sect. 7, B. (a), ante.

SUB-SECT. 2.—AVOIDANCE BY ANTICIPATION OR PRIOR PUBLIC KNOWLEDGE.

A. In General.

464. Anticipation.]—LEADBEATER v. KITCHIN, No. 1092, post.

465. ——.]—BENNO JAFFE & DARMSTAEDTER LANOLIN FABRIK v. RICHARDSON (JOHN) & CO. (LEICESTER), LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 261; 10 T. L. R. 398, C. A.

Annotations :—Apld. Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369. Reld. Marconi & Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. British Radio-Telegraph & Telephone Co. (1911), 27 T. L. R. 274.

466. ——.]—R., the grantee of a patent for improvements in securing cleats on bulb angles, Z-frames, plain angle irons, & the like, brought an action, for infringement thereof, against P. & co. P. & co. contended (a) that the patent was anticipated by what they had themselves done prior to the date thereof; (b) that there was no utility in the invention, as it had never been put into practice; (c) that the patent was void for want of subject-matter:—Held: anticipation was not proved, want of utility was not established, but, having regard to prior knowledge, the patent was void for want of subject-matter.—ROCKLIFFE v. PRIESTMAN & CO. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 155.

467. ——.]—A patent was granted to N. in 1898 for "The manufacture or production of acetyl salicylic acid." The claims in the specification

460 i. Test of novelty.]—In deciding whether a machine, patented as an entire invention, is an imitation & piracy of another machine previously patented as an entire invention the question is—is the later patented machine substantially the same as the earlier one?—KINMOND v. JACKSON, KINMOND v. LAWRIE, 1 C. L. R. 66.—IND.

p. Existence of novelty—Effect of grant of foreign patent.]—Held: the grant of a foreign patent is conclusive in this colony as to the novelty & utility of the invention & the patentee's rights.—CABOT S. WHALING CO. v. NEWFOUNDLAND S. WHALING CO. (1905), 9 Nfld. L. R. 122.—NFLD.

PART IV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—A.

464 i. Anticipation.]—A patent for prisms intended for use in deflecting the course of rays of light falling obliquely or horizontally on glass placed vertically, as in the ordinary windows of houses or shops, is not void for anticipation by reason of prior patents for prisms for use where the light falls vertically or obliquely on glass placed horizontally, as in pavements.—LUXFER PRISM CO. v. WEBSTER & PARKES (1902), 8 Exch. C. R. 59; 22 C. L. T. 426.—CAN.

464 ii. ——.]—LAROSE v. AUBERTIN (1907), 4 E. L. R. 82.—CAN.

464 iii. ——.]—MURCHLAND v. NICHOLSON (1893), 10 R. P. C. 417.—SCOT.

464 iv. ——.]—ROSE'S PATENTS CO., LTD. v. BRABY & CO., LTD. (1894), 21 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 1107; 31 Sc. L. R. 474.—SCOT.

Sect. 2.—Novelty: Sub-sect. 2, A.]

were for two processes of manufacture of the acid for the alleged new body, & for its use for therapeutic purposes. Pltfs. alleged that, by the method of recrystallisation from dry chloroform adopted by them, the acid, which was sold under the name of "aspirin" & used in medicine, had been for the first time prepared in a state of purity. Defts. alleged that K. in 1869 had published a description of the preparation of the acid by one of the said processes, that as so prepared the acid contained a small proportion of impurity, but that this impurity did not produce any difference of therapeutic effect, & that it could be removed by recrystallisation from boiling water as described by K.:—Held: the patent was for acetyl salicylic acid as a new body & not for the process of purification, & the patent had been anticipated & was invalid.

Semble: the patent would have been invalid even if it had been confined to the process of purification adopted.—FARBENFABRIKEN VORMALS FRIEDRICH BAYER & Co. v. CHEMISCHE FABRIK VON HEYDON (1905), 22 R. P. C. 501.

468. —— Of part of invention.]—A specification is not invalid by reason of its describing an invention part of which was not new at the date of the patent, if, after eliminating what was old, a residue is left of sufficient utility, in which case the residue if properly claimed will be a proper subject-matter for the grant of letters patent.—FREARSON v. LOE (1878), 9 Ch. D. 48; 27 W. R. 183.

Annotation:—Refd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Simon Collier (1910), 26 R. P. C. 534.

469. —— —— Essential part.]—THIERRY v. RICKMANN, No. 284, ante.

470. —— —— Main claim.]—In cases where the main claim is shown to have been anticipated & the very minimum of invention is left, every precaution should be taken to limit the patent to so much of the claim as is in reality an invention, & the position of a master patent is not to be discussed in any narrow spirit.—Re SACHSE'S APPLICATION (1900), 18 R. P. C. 221.

471. —— By registration of trade design—By patentee or stranger.]—On Nov. 8, 1901, pltfs. applied for a patent for improvements in frames for motor cycles, & delivered a provisional specification. On Nov. 18, 1901, pltfs. obtained registration of a design for motor cycles. On Aug. 8, 1902, pltfs. delivered a complete specification for the patent which was accepted on Oct. 23, 1902, & the patent was afterwards granted bearing date Nov. 8, 1901. The complete specification contained a drawing identical with the registered design. In an action by pltfs. to restrain the infringement of the design:—Held: the validity of the registration of the design was not affected by the subsequent grant of the patent of prior date.

A patent right in an article & a copyright in a design for the same article may co-exist, but the registration of a design which secures mechanical advantages may, as an anticipation, prevent the grant of a subsequent valid patent for the article, & that whether appct. for the patent be the proprietor of the design or a stranger.

A patentee, who registers a design for an article after he has applied for a patent for it, & before the delivery of a complete specification containing a drawing of the article identical with the registered design, is not, by the subsequent grant of a patent bearing the date of his application, estopped from saying that the design was new & original at the date of registration.

In most cases it will be very difficult for a patent right in respect of a new article & a copyright in a registered design for the shape of the article to co-exist. But in such circumstances as those of the present case the two rights, being not necessarily the same, might co-exist, though the right which was second in point of date must be held subject to the first right. The grant of the patent in such a case does not destroy the effect of the registration of the design which was valid at the date when it took place, & this whether the owner of the patent & the owner of the design are the same person or different persons.—WERNER MOTORS, LTD. v. GAMAGE (A. W.), LTD., [1904] 2 Ch. 580; 73 L. J. Ch. 770; 91 L. T. 588; 53 W. R. 167; 20 T. L. R. [illegible] 21 R. P. C. 621, C. A.

Annotations:—Distd. Boustead v. Dempster Moore (1907), 25 R. P. C. 121. Refd. Rose v. Pickavant (1923), 40 R. P. C. 320.

472. —— Whether court bound by prior decisions as to—Admissibility of documents not previously before court.]—HIGGINSON & ARUNDEL v. PYMAN, No. 339, ante.

—— Prior user.]—See Sub-sect. 2, B., post.

Prior publication.]—See Sub-sect. 2, C., post.

473. Prior public knowledge.]—There are two modes by which an invention can be made public. The one is by a publication in fact, or by user, such as that by the user alone the invention becomes a part of the general stock of public information; the other is by a publication in law. There is a publication in law of an invention in this country when the inventor of it, whether an Englishman or a foreigner, makes, either by himself or his agent, a written description of it, puts that into a book, & sends it to a bookseller here to be published by him; & it is not necessary to prove further that any one volume of the book has been sold.

Where upon a bill filed by pltfs. for an injunction to restrain deft. from infringing a patent of theirs, it appeared that a plan identical with that of the pltfs. had been described in a work published in Paris & sent over here for sale, & a few copies of the work were actually sold here prior to the date of pltfs.' specification:—Held: they were not the first inventors of the plan, & the injunction was refused accordingly.—LANG v. GISBORNE (1862), 31 Beav. 133; 31 L. J. Ch. 769; 6 L. T. 771; 8 Jur. N. S. 736; 10 W. R. 638; 54 E. R. 1088.

Annotations:—Consd. Plimpton v. Malcolmson (1876), 3 Ch. D. 531; Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416. Refd. United Telephone, Co. v. Harrison, Cox, Walker (1882), 46 L. T. 620.

474. —— Exhibition in shop.]—Deft. was the owner of a patent for an invention similar to that of pltf., for which he obtained provisional protection about six weeks before the date of pltfs.' patent, & which he had used publicly before the

---

473 i. Prior public knowledge.]—Held: the alleged invention the subject of the application was substantially identical with that already known, & was therefore not novel.—LINOTYPE CO., LTD. v. MOUNSEY 1909), 9 C. L. R. 194.—AUS.

473 ii. ——.]—Validity of a patent must be decided according to the state of knowledge at the date of the patent.—BITULITHIC & CONTRACTING, LTD. v. CANADIAN MINERAL RUBBER CO. & CALGARY (1915), 8 W. W. R. 207; 25 D. L. R. 827.—CAN.

473 iii. ——.]—To determine whether an invention involves a new idea or not the invention must be viewed in the light of the knowledge possessed by people engaged in the class of business for which the invention is designed, at the time of application for a patent for the invention.—WALSH v. SHEELEY, [1911] T. P. D. 1.—S. AF.

same date :—Held : pltfs.' patent was invalid upon the ground that the alleged invention was the same combination as that which deft. had already used publicly, with a modification which was not the subject of a patent. Deft. had had an experimental article made for him which had been made in the shop of the person employed to make it & it was alleged that what had taken place had amounted to publication. The patent was invalid on the further ground that it was the fair conclusion from the evidence that some English people, under no obligation of secrecy arising from confidence, or good faith towards the patentee, knew of the invention at the date of the patent (FRY, L.J.).—HUMPHERSON v. SYER (1887), 4 R. P. C. 407, C. A.

Annotations :—Consd. Blank v. Footman, Pretty (1888), 39 Ch. D. 678 ; Tickelpenny v. Army & Navy Co-op. Soc. (1888), 5 R. P. C. 405. Refd. Elias v. Grovesend Tinplate Co. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 455 ; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569 ; Westley Richards v. Perkes (1893), 9 T. L. R. 351 ; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Stonebridge Electrical Co. (1916), 33 R. P. C. 166. Mentd. Davies v. Davies (1887), 56 L. J. Ch. 481.

475. ——.]—It being known that if paranitrotoluolsulpho-acid (called for shortness A) was treated with caustic soda lye a yellow colouring matter B was obtained, which, however, was not a fast dye, B., in 1886, patented a discovery that by treating B with zinc dust or other reducing agents a colourless product C was obtained, which was a valuable basis of colouring dyes. In 1888, B. discovered that if B was treated with oxidisable (dioxidising) substances, he obtained before reaching C a new & valuable dye fast to alkali. He took out a patent for this invention, stating in his specification that a number of oxidisable substances, which he mentioned, could be used & also others : he gave a number of examples of carrying out his process with certain oxidisable substances, & claimed, " The process of producing colouring matters fast to alkali, which will dye cotton yellow, orange to brown, without mordant by the action of suitable oxidisable substances & free alkalies upon A under heat, substantially as described." The owners of this patent brought the present action for infringement of this patent against K. K. had taken out a subsequent patent, but did not work exactly according to it. K. treated a product similar to B with ferro sulphate, an oxidisable substance, but not mentioned by B., & used two steps in the process instead of one. K. denied infringement, & alleged B.'s patent to be invalid on the ground (a) that the specification was ambiguous & misleading, because it showed no means for ascertaining what oxidisable substances were not suitable, because the proportions in which the various alternative oxidisable substances were to be used were not stated, nor how the process could be varied to produce the several shades of colour mentioned, & the specification entirely failed to state the chemical nature of the compound, the product of the processes ; (b) that the claiming clause was too general as it stated other oxidisable substances could be used which would include zinc dust, the action of which on A was already known, & while claiming colouring matters, did not indicate the processes to produce particular shades ; (c) that the alleged invention was not new ; & (d) was anticipated by B.'s 1886 specification & other publications ; (e) that owing to general public knowledge there was no subject-matter. K. also contended that the substance he started with was not identical with B, because produced at a special temperature, which was essential, there was a substantial difficulty in using ferro sulphate, & therefore it was not within the patent ; & there was also a substantial difficulty with regard to using zinc dust, because with that the process might be carried on to produce C instead of the new dye, as there was no sufficient direction in the specification :—Held : B.'s discovery of the new dye was a valuable & ingenious one ; it was not anticipated by B.'s previous patent, or the other publications, & there was no prior knowledge which took away the merit of the invention ; it was not necessary for the patentee to specify all the oxidisable substances which could be used, or to point out those which ought rather to be avoided ; ferro sulphate could be effectively used with pltf.'s process by taking ordinary precautions known to chemists ; with regard to zinc dust the patentee told the public to go on as long as the colouring matter was formed, & so gave a sufficient direction, & zinc dust was suitable with ordinary precautions, though not so suitable as other substances ; in giving the best methods to be used & examples of the best oxidisable substances, the patentee had given sufficient information, although he had not given a chemical theory of this operation ; as to the use of substances of which no examples were given, it was easy for chemists to work them by comparison with the given examples ; it was not necessary for the patentee to show how to obtain the various shades of colour, or to state the chemical nature of the compound ; the claim was not too general ; K., in effect, had taken the same substance as B & treated it with an oxidisable substance, which was within pltf.'s patent, using pltf.'s process, & obtaining pltf.'s result, & had infringed.—LEONHARDT & CO. v. KALLE & CO. (1895), 12 R. P. C. 103.

Annotation :—Refd. Crosfield v. Techno-Chemical Laboratories (1913), 29 T. L. R. 378.

476. ——.] — ROCKLIFFE v. PRIESTMAN & CO., No. 466, ante.

477. ——.] — The owner of letters patent for " Means or apparatus for effecting the simulation of flames of fire for spectacular purposes " having commenced an action for infringement, dett. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds of prior publication, prior user, & want of subject-matter. The first claim of the specification was : " In stage appliances, an openwork base, streamers attached to the said base, & means for directing currents of air to the base & for illuminating streamers through the base :—Held : the alleged invention was not disclosed as a whole in the prior specifications alleged as anticipations, but prior user was established, & at all events there was, in view of the common knowledge of the art, no subject-matter ; & deft., not using streamers, had not infringed.—FULLER v. HANDY (1903), 21 R. P. C. 6.

478. ——.]—In an action for infringement of letters patent for " Improvements in or relating to dust collecting apparatus " deft. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid by reason of want of novelty, & he relied on the prior publication of three specifications :—Held : patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.—BIMM v. SHOPPEE (1911), 28 R. P. C. 265.

479. ——.]—A patent was granted for " Improvements in or relating to electric switches." The claims, as amended, were as follows :—" (a) An electric switch adapted to operate by a quick make & break action by virtue of a compression spring element pivotally co-operating on the one hand with the contact arm & on the other hand with an operating member & which operating member is utilised also for positively displacing the contact arm both in the operation of breaking & in the operation of making throughout or substantially

B. Prior User.

(a) In General.

480. General rule.]—TENNANT v. —— (1802), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 125, n.; sub nom. Re TENNANT'S PATENT, 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 177.

Annotations:—Consd. Hill v. Thompson (1818), 8 Taunt. 375. Refd. Robertson v. Purdey (1907), 23 T. L. R. 343.

481. ——.]—(1) The invention must be an improvement for all purposes, not for one only. Cheapness is an improvement, but not alone to be considered.

(2) If known publicly, & practised openly, so that others might acquire the knowledge, the patent void.

(3) Unsuccessful experiment cannot vitiate.

(4) The user which will vitiate must not be such as can be classified as experiment, or secret, but must be public. The question of public use is entirely for the jury.

(5) The specification of a prior patent, enrolled after granting a subsequent patent, & containing part of the invention claimed by such subsequent patent, is not conclusive against its validity.

(6) There may be many discoverers starting at the same time, many rivals that may be running on the same road at the same time, & the first which comes to the Crown & takes out a patent, it not being generally known to the public, is the man who has a right to clothe himself with the authority of the patent, & enjoy its benefits (TINDAL, C.J.).

(7) If this . . . was at the time these letters were granted in any degree of general use; if it was known at all to the world publicly & practised openly, so that any other person might have the means of acquiring the knowledge of it, as well as

488. ——.]—Evidence was given on behalf of deft. of the user of almost the identical thing claimed by both patentees prior to the date of both patents:—Held: both patents bad.—HILL v. ADAMS (1893), 10 R. P. C. 102.

489. ——.]—The owners of a patent for improvements in fire grates brought an action for infringement. The first claim was for "the employment of an adjustable canopy A, to act as a flap or damper, whereby the distance of the said canopy A from the firebrick back G can be determined as desired substantially in the manner herein described & illustrated." Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that invalidity of the patent on various grounds, including want of novelty & anticipation by K.'s stove. Canopies & backs of pltf.'s shape were old at the date of the patent, & were also combined in the K. stove; but pltfs. alleged that their claim was confined to a stove in which the canopy was placed in a special position relatively to the back, namely, with the bottom of the canopy immediately level with the top of the back, that in K.'s stove the top of the back was above the level of the top of the canopy, & that this made a difference, inasmuch as in K.'s stove the canopy acted as a blower, in pltf.'s as a damper:—Held: on the true construction of the claim, the patentee claimed for the general combination of canopy & back, & his alleged invention was anticipated by K.'s stove.—CROSTHWAITE v. MOORWOOD, SONS & CO. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 555.

490. ——.]—In an action by S., the patentee of a patent for improvements in type or blocks for printing purposes, against J., the patent was held valid, & not anticipated by a previous specification of G., as there was no evidence that G.'s process could

---

PART IV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—B. (a).

480 i. General rule.]—On motion by the deft. for a new trial in an action for the alleged infringement of a patent right:—Held: setting where it was proved that the article patented was in public use or on sale in the province with the consent of the patentee at the time of the application for the patent, pltf. could not recover.—BERNIER v. BEAUCHEMIN (1858), 2 L. C. J. 289.—CAN.

480 ii. ——.]—Canadian patent is void if the invention has been in public use or on sale anywhere, with the consent or allowance of the inventor, for more than one year prior to the application for such patent.—CONCRETE APPLIANCES CO. v. ROURKE, MCDONALD, ETC. (1915), 8 W. W. R. 6.—CAN.

480 iii. ——.]—Held: if one of the parts of the process proved to have been in previous use, it would be sufficient to invalidate the patent.—TEMPLETON v. MACFARLANE (1848), 10 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.), 796; 20 Sc. Jur. 263.—SCOT.

be, or been, practically used. S. now brought an action against D. for infringement of the same patent: D. alleged anticipation by G., & brought evidence to show that G.'s invention was practically used. The processes of G. & S. were substantially similar, G.'s being confined to purposes of ornamentation, S. including that & also printing letterpress:—Held: S.'s patent covered the previous process of G., & as G.'s process had been commercially used, it was an anticipation.—SHAW v. DAY & COLLINS, LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 185.

491. ——.]—Pltfs. sued for infringement of a patent for an improved process of manufacture whereby resinous matters were removed from paper pulp by treatment with paraffin or similar oil. Defts. & others had previously used the same solvents in the same manner for another purpose, namely, softening the resinous deposits on the plant & machinery; but, when they started with perfectly clean plant, they attained pltfs.' result:—Held: the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.

A discovery that a process in use before the patent will have an extra benefit attached to it if the machinery to be used in the process is thoroughly cleaned is not patentable.—PARTINGTON v. HARTLEPOOLS PULP & PAPER CO., LTD. (1895), 12 R. P. C. 295.

492. ——.]—In 1886, a patent was granted to R. for "Improvements relating to the production of light by the incandescence of refractory materials." The patent was intended to meet the difficulty in the transmission of Welsbach mantles after ignition, & the specification stated "that the difficulty might be overcome by dipping the mantle after ignition into a liquid which would thoroughly penetrate the interstices of the material, & would afterwards set to such a degree of hardness as to protect the material from danger of breakage in packing or handling, & which could afterwards be removed without mechanical injury to the mantles & without leaving any objectionable residue." It then stated that a satisfactory method consisted in dipping into a hot solution of volatile hydrocarbon mixed with paraffin wax or paraffin alone, & described the process for paraffin. Then it continued, "Other materials may be employed so long as they set hard at ordinary temperatures, &, etc." The claims were (a) the treatment of the mantles after ignition by immersion in a liquid which will afterwards set & will burn away without prejudicial results to the mantles for the purposes set forth; (b) the use of paraffin substantially as described in the treatment claimed under the first claim. An action for infringement having been brought on this patent by the S. co. against the I. co., alleging infringement by the use of collodion with various solvents, the defences relied on at the trial were (a) that the patentees were not the true & first inventors, the invention having been communicated to them by W.; (b) non-infringement; (c) want of utility; (d) want of novelty by reason of anticipation by an invention of Bright in the year 1848 for stiffening the wicks of lamps by dipping into wax, & by the importation into this country of Clamond's magnesium baskets coated, for strengthening purposes, with dextrine or collodion, & the subsequent burning of them:—Held: according to the proper construction of the specification, it did not claim any setting except that effected by cooling; that the invention was not anticipated by Bright, & the importation & burning of Clamond's baskets, coated as mentioned, was not a publication of Clamond's process, although, if it had been, Clamond's process would have constituted an anticipation; that the alleged communication of the invention by W. was not established; that utility was established; the use of collodion was not an infringement, since the of collodion is not by cooling but by evaporation. — SUNLIGHT INCANDESCENT GAS LAMP CO., LTD. v. INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 757.

493. ——.]—The patentee of a patent for "Improvements in & connected with ice tanks" brought an action for infringement of his patent. The patentee had six claims claiming substantially for a combination of a number of parts. Defts. pleaded that pltf.'s alleged improvements contained no invention, & were anticipated by prior specifications, prior user, & prior publication:—Held: pltf.'s invention was anticipated, & his patent was invalid for want of subject-matter.—SIDDELEY v. LONDON HYGIENIC ICE CO., LTD. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 514.

494. ——.]—The owner of a patent for "Improvements in distributing electricity, & apparatus therefor" sued defts. for infringement. Defts. alleged that the patent was invalid by reason of anticipation in several documents, prior user, & want of subject-matter:—Held: the letters patent were invalid because of want of subject-matter, prior user had been established, & the alleged invention was contained in prior publications.—RUCKER v. LONDON ELECTRIC SUPPLY CORPN., LTD. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 279.

495. ——.]—This was an action for infringement of a patent for improvements in gaiters. Defts. alleged the invalidity of the patent on various grounds, including want of subject-matter & prior user:—Held: pltfs.' patent was bad for want of subject-matter, & two of the prior users alleged by defts. were proved.—STOHWASSER & WINTER v. HUMPHREYS & CROOK (1900), 18 R. P. C. 116.

496. ——.]—Letters patent having been granted in 1898 to B. for "improvements in & relating to stone breaking & ore crushing machines" the owners of this patent commenced in 1903 an action for infringement of the same. Deft. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the grounds (inter alia) of want of subject-matter & of anticipation by prior user. It appeared that in 1885 B. had obtained a patent for a stone breaking double screen machine driven from the bottom; that the 1898 patent sued on was for applying top driving instead of bottom driving in B.'s old machine; that top driving as applied to single screen machines was very common & had been used by deft. himself long before 1898; & that top driving & bottom driving were two interchangeable alternatives perfectly familiar to engineers. Evidence was also given that a machine had been erected & used by S. many years prior to 1898 at Leyburn Quarry which in all material respects resembled the patented machine:—Held: the action must be dismissed on the ground of want of invention, & prior user by S. had been established.—BAXTER v. MARSDEN (1904), 22 R. P. C. 18.

497. ——.]—In 1901, a patent was granted to M. for "Improvements in heat non-conducting materials." The claim was: "The use of the waste residue, obtained in the manufacture of tartaric acid, in combination with other non-conducting materials, especially with those of a fibrous nature, & with agglutinating substances so as to form a composition, easily applied to steam pipe boilers & other vessels to prevent the radiation of heat." In 1903, M. commenced an action for infringement against L. & co., Ltd., who denied infringement & alleged that the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter & novelty, & by reason of prior user, prior publication, & prior grant :—Held : the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter, & by reason of prior user of the invention.

Sect. 2.—Novelty : Sub-sect. 2, B. (a) & (b) i. ii.]

MCLAY v. LAWES & CO., LTD. (1905), 22 R. P. C. 199.

498. ——.]—The patentees of an invention of "Improvements in attaching bindings to brims of hats," who had been successful in an action against the users of a machine which they alleged to be an infringement of the patent, brought an action against the makers of the machine. Evidence was produced by defts. that the method of binding hats which was carried out by pltf.'s invention had for many years been practised in England by the use of other machines, which they alleged to be an anticipation of pltf.'s invention :—Held : the invention was anticipated, & pltf.'s patent was invalid.—GAMMONS v. SINGER MANUFACTURING CO. (1905), 22 R. P. C. 452.

499. ——.]—The owner of a patent for improvements in machinery for scouring & washing wool commenced an action for infringement, in which deft. alleged the invalidity of the patent on the grounds of want of subject-matter & prior user. Pltf. alleged that his patented combination was a washing tank, that such tanks formerly had an upper trough with a false bottom of perforated plates through which the dirt fell to the bottom of the tank, & that the plates had to be removed for the purpose of cleaning out the tank, & that the novel features of his combination were a clear space at the side of the tank through which brushes could be inserted without removing the plates, & that the bottom of the tank sloped laterally or was curved for the purpose of allowing the dirt to accumulate at one part of the bottom of the tank where it could be most easily reached. In one of the alleged prior users the washing trough was, for a purpose other than cleaning, made to taper & thus a tapering space was formed at one side, & deft. alleged that the tank was cleaned out by putting brooms down through this clear space. Pltf. contended that it was not possible so to clean out the tank in question. The tank had a curved bottom :—Held : there was no patentable invention, & therefore no subject-matter, & further, even if there was subject-matter, the invention had been anticipated by the prior user above referred to.—MCNAUGHT v. DAWSON (1906), 23 R. P. C. 219.

500. .]—NORTON v. BARKER (W. H.) & SON, No. 380, ante.

501. ——.]—GOPI LAL v. LAKHPAT RAI, LAKHPAT RAI v. SRI KISHEN DAS, No. 459, ante.

502. ——.]—In 1911 a patent was granted for "Improvements in & connected with cardboard boxes & the like." In 1922 a patent for "Improvement in & connected with cardboard fibre board containers & the like" was granted to one of the grantees of the patent of 1911. In two actions, tried together, for infringement of the patents, pltfs. alleged infringement & stated that their boxes were thief-proof, & had had in the case of the patent of 1911 a great, &, in the case of the patent of 1922, a substantial, commercial success. The patent of 1911 had been inadvertently allowed to lapse between the commencement of the action & the trial. Defts. contended that the patents were invalid for want of novelty & subject-matter :—Held : as to the patent of 1911, claim 1 was invalid by reason of prior user, & the alleged invention was not novel owing to the prior publication of certain specifications & to prior user ; & as to the patent of 1922, claims 2 & 3 were deficient in novelty & subject-matter.—COLE v. ALLIANCE BOX CO., LTD., COLE & SMALLDRIDGE v. SAME (1927), 44 R. P. C. 273.

503. User in ignorance—Of method of principle.]—The specification of a patent improved chair stated the invention to consist "in the application of a self-adjusting leverage to the back & seat of a chair, whereby the weight on the seat acts as a counterbalance to the pressure against the back." Before this patent was taken out, a chair had been made & sold by B. to which the same mechanical principle had been applied, although the operation of it was incumbered by some additional machinery :—Held : the patent could not be sustained, inasmuch as the specification claimed more than the patentee had invented, & would have precluded B. from making his own chair.

Semble : had the specification been for an improvement only in the application of the principle, it would have been good.—MINTER v. MOWER (1837), 6 Ad. & El. 735 ; 1 Nev. & P. K. B. 595 ; Will. Woll. & Dav. 262 ; 6 L. J. K. B. 183 ; 112 E. R. 282.

504. User in part.]—MINTER v. MOWER, No. 503, ante.

505. ——.]—A patent was taken out for "a new & improved mode of manufacturing silk, cotton, linen & woollen fabrics." The specification, & a disclaimer, subsequently filed under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, set forth that the patentees claimed "the mode hereinbefore described of producing or preparing stripes of silk, cotton, woollen, or linen, or of a mixture of two or more of these materials, in such a manner that the weft or lateral fibres of both cut edges of each stripe are all brought up on one side, & into close contact with each other, & the reweaving of such stripes with the whole fur or pile uppermost, into the surfaces of carpets, etc." It appeared that one of these processes was old. The judge directed the jury that if one was new, the patent could be supported for the combination of them, & would only be invalid if there had been a public use of both before the date of the patent :—Held : this direction was erroneous, & the patent was void.—TEMPLETON v. MACFARLANE (1848), 1 H. L. Cas. 595 ; 9 E. R. 893, H. L.

Annotation :—Apld. United Horse Nail Co. v. Stewart (1885), 2 R. P. C. 122.

506. ——.]—(1) A patent is not invalid because part of the invention claimed has been anticipated so long as there is a sufficient amount of utility & advantage to be derived from what remains after striking out the part so anticipated ; & in such a case the remaining part is a proper subject for the grant of letters patent.

(2) Though an invention protected by letters patent may be imitated with impunity by way of bonâ fide experiment, yet, where a right is claimed to the manufacture, even to a limited extent, of articles so protected for profit, & the experiments are conducted with a view thereto, such a proceeding is an infringement of the patent & will be restrained by injunction.—FREARSON v. LOE (1878), 9 Ch. D. 48 ; 27 W. R. 183.

Annotation :—As to (1) Refd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Collier (1910), 26 R. P. C. 534.

507. Sufficiency of user—User by one person.]—STEAD v. WILLIAMS, No. 20, ante.

508. Prior user followed by abandonment.]—HOUSEHILL COAL & IRON CO. v. NEILSON, No. 13, ante.

509. Length of user.]—HOUSEHILL COAL & IRON CO. v. NEILSON, No. 13, ante.

510. Secret user.]—YOUNG & NEILSON v. ROSENTHAL & CO., No. 460, ante.

511. User not amounting to publication.]—ROBERTSON v. PURDEY, No. 517, post.

512. Casual or accidental user.]—BOYCE v. MORRIS MOTORS, LTD., No. 412, ante.

(b) What Amounts to Prior User.

i. In General.

513. Question for jury.]—CORNISH & SIEVIER v. KEENE & NICKELS, No. 481, ante.

514. ——.]—(1) The question of public use is for the jury.

(2) Specification addressed to persons of skill.

The . . . point is, whether pltf. has given such a description in his specification as would enable a workman of competent skill (it would not enable me, of course, to make anything of the sort, or any person who is not a person of skill conversant with the trade) to carry the invention into effect (COLTMAN, J.).—ELLIOTT v. ASTON (1840), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 222.

515. Secret user.]—CORNISH & SIEVIER v. KEENE & NICKELS, No. 481, ante.

516. User for analogous purpose.]—PARTINGTON v. HARTLEPOOLS PULP & PAPER CO., LTD., No. 491, ante.

517. Evidence to be examined with great care—Where invention a commercial success.]—Where an invention has proved a commercial success, evidence of anticipation by prior user must be examined with the greatest care & caution.

The owner of a patent, No. 22,894 of 1894, for "improvements in drop-down guns" brought an action for infringement. The invention consisted of certain improvements in single trigger guns to prevent involuntary discharge of the second barrel after the firing of the first. A firer, on the recoil of the gun, unconsciously releases the trigger & involuntarily & subconsciously gives it a second pull. An interceptor was introduced by the patentee, which prevented the trigger mechanism from engaging the second barrel, but which was removed by the second or involuntary pull. Defts. pleaded (inter alia) that the patent was invalid: (a) by reason of the prior manufacture, use, & publication of certain guns containing the invention during the year 1883; (b) by reason of the manufacture & use of guns similarly constructed during the months of July to Nov. 1894; (c) that the patentee was not the true & first inventor, who was N.; & (d) by the prior grant to N. of a patent for the same invention, No. 13,130 of 1894. Pltf. in his reply stated that the alleged prior grant was (e) for a two-pull as distinguished from his three-pull mechanism; or (f) alternatively, if it was for a three-pull mechanism it was invalid for disconformity or for insufficiency of the specification; & (g) that the plea of prior grant was bad in law:—Held: prior invention by another will not of itself avoid a patent granted to a subsequent true inventor; N. had in fact invented pltf's device before the date of his patent, but it was not published before that date; the alleged user by firing the guns at a private range was not of such a nature as to invalidate the subsequent patent of pltf.; the plea of prior grant was good in law, but on the true construction of N.'s specification there was no prior grant of the patented invention, N.'s patent being invalid for insufficiency; there was prior user of the invention by the manufacture & use of the guns made in 1883, & the patent was invalid on that ground.—ROBERTSON v. PURDEY (1907), 23 T. L. R. 343; 24 R. P. C. 273.

Annotation:—Refd. Crosthwaite Fire Bar Syndicate v. Senior, [1909] 1 Ch. 801.

518. User of different material & ingredients.]—A patent was granted in 1901 for "improvements in conditioning or improving the quality of recently ground flour, semolina, or the like." One of the claims was as follows: "In the process of conditioning flour & the like, passing the same with full exposure through an atmosphere containing a gaseous oxide of nitrogen or chlorine or bromine oxidising agent in the gaseous or vapourised state." It was stated in the complete specification that, preferably, nitric acid or nitrogen peroxide was caused to act upon the flour by forcing a current of air over or through the oxidising agent employed, & into contact with the flour, & an apparatus for the purpose was described & shown. The use of ozone as an oxidising agent was excluded. In the provisional specification it was stated that "the invention consists essentially in exposing the flour to the action of nascent oxygen or a gaseous oxidising agent whereby nascent oxygen is produced in the flour," & that the oxidising agent preferred was air passed through nitric acid. In an action for infringement of the patent defts. alleged (inter alia) that the patent was invalid by reason of disconformity, inutility, insufficiency & false suggestion, but at the trial substantially their only allegation was want of novelty through prior public general knowledge, prior publication & prior user, & want of subject-matter in so far as it was involved in want of novelty. The alleged anticipations chiefly relied upon were the specifications of H. & F., & user by H. In all of these electrical methods were employed:—Held: notwithstanding new evidence as to F.'s process, & although the processes of H. & F. could be used to produce nitrogen peroxide, the specifications would not have led to the use of it, nitrogen peroxide being regarded as an impurity by F., & these specifications were not prior publications of pltfs.' invention; there was good subject-matter; in the instances of alleged prior user a brush & not a sparking discharge was used, & the predominant gas was ozone & not nitrogen peroxide & no prior user was established; the patent was valid & had been infringed.—FLOUR OXIDIZING CO., LTD. v. CARR & CO., LTD. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 428.

Annotation:—Refd. Metropolitan Vickers Electrical Co. v. British Thomson-Houston (1925), 43 R. P. C. 76.

ii. Public User.

519. Distinguished from secret or private use.]—CARPENTER v. SMITH, No. 574, post.

520. ——.]—(1) The specification of a patent may describe the process to be adopted so insufficiently as to invalidate the patent, & yet disclose enough to show that what is claimed by a subsequent patent is not new.

PART IV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.-B. (b) i.

q. User in different manufacture.—It is not sufficient, to establish prior use of a patent, that the invention patented had been employed in some different manufacture than that for which the patent had been taken out.—WILSON v. BLACK (1847), 10 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 1.—SCOT.

r. Proof of prior user.]—Held: the uncorroborated evidence of two persons interested in voiding the patent, to the effect that they had manufactured & sold articles for a limited period many years before the date of the patent sought to be impugned, could not in the circumstances be accepted as establishing more than an experiment.—DICK v. TULLIS (1896), 13 R. P. C. 149.—SCOT.

Sect. 2.—Novelty: Sub-sect. 2, B. (b) ii. & iii.]

(2) Whether a specification contains a sufficient description can only be ascertained by experiment; & in making the experiment knowledge & means may be employed which have been acquired since the date of the patent.

(3) A prior publication will not invalidate a patent, unless it has imparted information so as to enable any one working upon it to reckon with confidence on the result.

(4) In order to establish the prior public use of a patented article so as to invalidate the patent, it is not necessary to show that the article had been manufactured for sale.

(5) Where the subject of a patent in England is made in a foreign country, & applied to the purpose for which it was made, & under these circumstances is sent to this country for transmission to another foreign country:—Held: this is a sufficient user of the patent in England to constitute an infringement.

(6) Public use of an invention means an use in public, so as to come to a knowledge of others than the inventor, as contradistinguished from the use of it by himself in his chamber.

If, therefore, the evidence which I am about to examine establishes the fact that lead coated with tin by mechanical pressure, & capable of useful application, has upon any occasion been manufactured openly, not by way of experiment, but in the course of business, although not a single piece of the material was actually sold, I should hold that Betts's patent was invalidated (LORD CHELMSFORD, C.).—BETTS v. NEILSON, BETTS v. DE VITRE (1868), 3 Ch. App. 429; 37 L. J. Ch. 321, 325; 18 L. T. 159, 165; 32 J. P. 547; 16 W. R. 524, 529, L. C.; affd. sub nom NEILSON v. BETTS (1871), L. R. 5 H. L. 1, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Newman v. Pinto (1887), 57 L. T. 31. As to (3) Consd. Plimpton v. Malcolmson (1876), 3 Ch. D. 531; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569. Refd. Von Heyden v. Neustadt (1880), 50 L. J. Ch. 126. As to (5) Consd. Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones (1882), 8 App. Cas. 5. Refd. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Johnson & Basle Chemical Works, Bindschedler, [1897] 2 Ch. 322; British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122. As to (6) Refd. United Telephone Co. v. London & Globe Telephone & Maintenance Co. (1884), 51 L. T. 187. Generally, Consd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Sterling Accessories, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Crowther & Osborn, [1924] 2 Ch. 33. Refd. Elmslie v. Boursier (1869), L. R. 9 Eq. 217; Plimpton v. Spiller (1877), 6 Ch. D. 412; Watson v. Holliday (1882), 20 Ch. D. 780; United Horseshoe & Nail Co. v. Stewart (1888), 13 App. Cas. 401; Saccharin Corpn. v. Chemicals & Drugs Co., [1900] 2 Ch. 556; Belvedere Fish Guano Co. v. Rainham Chemical Works, Feldman & Partridge, Ind Coope v. Same, [1920] 2 K. B. 487.

521. What amounts to public user—Exhibition of model.]—LEWIS v. MARLING, No. 440, ante.

522. —— Exhibition of abortive machine.]—MURRAY v. CLAYTON, No. 316, ante.

523. ——.]—HUMPHERSON v. SYER, No. 474, ante.

524. —— User in private grounds.]—STEAD v. WILLIAMS, No. 20, ante.

525. —— Prolonged experimental user.]—A contractor for certain harbour works had in the progress of his undertaking invented an apparatus which greatly facilitated the works, but which could only be tested in a place accessible to the public. After having used the apparatus for four months in the progress of the works. he applied for a patent:—Held: such user amounted to a dedication to the public, & he was not entitled to a patent.—Re ADAMSON'S PATENT (1856), 6 De G. M. & G. 420; 25 L. J. Ch. 456; 27 L. T. O. S. 73; 4 W. R. 473; 43 E. R. 1296, L. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Newell & Elliot & Glass (1858), 4 C. B. N. S. 269.

Experimental user.]—See Sub-sect. 2, B. (b) iii., post.

526. —— User for profit.]—(1) The nature of an invention need only be described generally in the provisional specification, which need not give all the details as to the manner in which the invention is to be carried out.

(2) An experiment performed in the presence of others, which not only turns out to be successful, but actually beneficial in the particular instance, is not necessarily a gift of the invention to the world; but if the inventor on other & subsequent occasions use his invention, & unnecessarily delays his application for a patent, he gives his invention to the world.—Re NEWALL, ELLIOT & GLASS (1858), 4 C. B. N. S. 269; 140 E. R. 1087; sub nom. NEWALL v. ELLIOT, 27 L. J. C. P. 337; 31 L. T. O. S. 180; 4 Jur. N. S. 562; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 326.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co. (1887), 57 L. T. 142; Siddell v. Vickers (1888), 39 Ch. D. 92. Refd. Penn v. Bibby (1866), 2 Ch. App. 127; United Telephone Co. v. Harrison, Cox-Walker (1882), 21 Ch. D. 720; Lucas v. Miller (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86) 156; Nuttall v. Hargreaves, [1892] 1 Ch. 23; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Leicester Pneumatic Tyre Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 531. As to (2) Distd. Hoe v. Foster (1898), 16 R. P. C. 33. Refd. Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569.

527. —— User for purposes not contemplated by patent.]—HARWOOD v. GREAT NORTHERN RY. Co., No. 361, ante.

528. —— Unsuccessful user of similar invention.]—DAW v. ELEY, No. 288, ante.

529. —— User on highway—Mechanical device not visible.]—BRERETON v. RICHARDSON (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 54.

530. —— Discussion of plans with architects.]—Qu.: whether the mere preparation & discussion of plans between directors & their architects could be an anticipation doubted, especially having regard to Humpherson v. Syer, No. 474, ante.—TICKLEPENNY v. ARMY & NAVY CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY, LTD. (1888), 5 R. P. C. 405.

PART IV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—B. (b) ii.

521 i. What amounts to public user—Exhibition of model.]—LIFEBOAT Co. v. CHAMBERS BROTHERS & Co. (1891), 8 R. P. C. 418; 28 Sc. L. R. 674.—SCOT.

t. —— User abroad.]—Action for the infringement of a patent. Plea, that the invention was not new, but had been publicly used & vended in a foreign country:—Held: a good answer.—VANNORMAN v. LEONARD (1845), 2 U. C. R. 72.—CAN.

a. —— ——.]—LEAN v. HUSTON (1885), 8 O. R. 521.—CAN.

b. —— ——.]—A patent obtained for an invention in Scotland, is invalidated by proof of previous use in England.—ROEBUCK & GARBET v. STIRLING (1774), 2 Pat. App. 346.—SCOT.

c. —— ——.]—Use of an invention in England previous to the grant of a Scotch patent in regard to the same invention, voids the patent.—BROWN v. ANNANDALE & SON (1842), 1 Bell, Sc. App. 70.—SCOT.

d. —— User in workshop.]—SUMMERS v. ABELL (1869), 15 Gr. 532.—CAN.

-.]—BONATHAN MANVILLE FURNITURE MANUFACTURING Co. (1871), 31 U. C. R. 413.—CAN.

f. —— Partial user.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent verdict for patentee & observed that it is no evidence of prior use, if, while the patentee is perfecting his invention his workmen should divulge it, & a partial use of it thereupon take place.—TEMPLETON v. MACFARLANE (1847), 10 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 4.—SCOT.

523 i. ——.]—Public use does not mean a use or exercise by the public, but a use or exercise in a public manner.—CONCRETE APPLIANCES Co. v. ROURKE, MCDONALD, ETC. (1915), 8 W. W. R. 6.—CAN.

523 ii. ——.]—In order to support an objecton to the patent on the ground of the want of originality in the invention, founded on alleged discovery & prior use, the evidence must be sufficient to show that the actual invention, as disclosed & set forth in the specification, was not only discovered, but put to public use.—NEILSON v. BAIRD (WILLIAM) & Co. (1843), 6 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 51.—SCOT.

531. —— User by public without knowledge of invention.]—User of golf balls by members of the public held to constitute prior user of an invention relating to their mode of manufacture, although the persons using them may not have known, or did not know, the contents of the balls or how they were made.—HASKELL GOLF BALL CO., LTD. v. HUTCHINSON (No. 2) (1906), 23 R. P. C. 301, C. A.

—— Exhibition at industrial or international exhibitions.]—See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 45, & Patents Rules, 1920, r. 102.

iii. Experimental User.

532. Distinguished from trade user.] —WOOD v. ZIMMER (1815), Holt, N. P. 58 ; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 44, n. ; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 290, N. P.

Annotations :—Distd. Morgan v. Seaward (1837), 2 M. & W. 544 ; Bentley v. Fleming (1844), 1 Car. & Kir. 587.

533. ——.]—WALTON v. BATEMAN, No. 64, ante.

534. ——.]—HOUSEHILL COAL & IRON CO. v. NEILSON, No. 13, ante.

535. ——.]—The use of a process for the purpose of trade, & not of experiment, will invalidate subsequent patent.

To a declaration for infringement of a patent, deft. pleaded that the invention was not new, but had been publicly & generally practised & used in England before the date of the patent. It was proved that, before the date of the patent, five different persons had used the process independently, three of them without concealment, & all five had publicly & generally sold, for their own profit, the article thereby produced. It did not appear that there had been any other publication of the invention :—Held : the plea was proved.—HEATH v. SMITH (1854), 3 E. & B. 256 ; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 268 ; 2 C. L. R. 1584 ; 23 L. J. Q. B. 166 ; 22 L. T. O. S. 257 ; 18 Jur. 601 ; 2 W. R. 200 ; 118 E. R. 1136.

Annotations :—Apld. Westley Richards v. Perkes (1893), 9 T. L. R. 351. Consd. Robertson v. Purdey (1907), 23 T. L. R. 343.

536. ——.] —Re NEWALL, ELLIOT & GLASS, No. 526, ante.

537. ——.]—Pltf. as the grantee of a patent for improvements in the manufacture of manure sued deft., who was also the grantee of letters patent of a later date for an analogous invention, for infringement. Deft. alleged that pltf.'s invention was not new, &, among other objections to the validity of pltf.'s patent, alleged that prior to the date thereof pltf.'s letter patent had been used by certain specified firms or persons :—Held : deft.'s witnesses proved prior user, amounting to publication, & the deft. was entitled to a verdict & judgment with costs.

When it is said that a process has been disclosed or an invention has been disclosed by means of user, it is not necessary that such user should be a user by the public proper, provided only there is a user in public, that is to say, in such a way as contra-distinguished from a mere experimental user with a view of patenting a thing which may or may not be existing (POLLOCK, B.).—CROYSDALE v. FISHER (1884), 1 R. P. C. 17 ; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 73.

538. ——.]—LISTER v. NORTON BROTHERS & CO., No. 403, ante.

539. ——.]—In 1885, a patent was granted for improvements in a certain portion of web printing & folding machines, & in 1896 the proprietors of the patent commenced an action against a firm for infringement of the same, the particular part alleged to be infringed being the longitudinal folding apparatus. Defts. denied infringement & validity, alleging want of subject-matter & want of novelty by reason of the prior publication of the invention in several specifications & also prior publication by the importation of machines containing the mechanism in question, which machines were alleged to have been seen by divers persons & to have been used in the United Kingdom before the date of the patent. Pltfs. contended that if the machines were seen, they were seen under a pledge of confidence, & that any user of them was merely for the purpose of testing :—Held : the invention had been used within the realm prior to the date of the patent by others in conjunction with the patentees, & the patent was invalid.—HOE & Co. v. FOSTER & SONS (1898), 16 R. P. C. 33, C. A.

540. User followed by abandonment.]—JONES v. PEARCE (1832), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 122 ; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 524.

Annotations :—Consd. Household Coal & Iron Co. v. Neilson (1843), 9 Cl. & Fin. 788. Distd. Heath v. Smith (1854), 3 E. & B. 256. Folld. Tangye v. Stott (1866), 14 W. R. 386. Refd. Minter v. Williams (1835), 1 Har. & W. 585 ; Carpenter v. Smith (1842), 9 M. & W. 300 ; Wright v. Hitchcock (1870), L. R. 5 Exch. 37 ; Murray v. Clayton (1872), 7 Ch. App. 570.

541. ——.] —(1) As to the sufficiency of the specification. A studied or manifest ambiguity will vitiate.

(2) Experiment not brought to completion, or conducted to a fine result, will not vitiate the patent of a more successful person in the same line.

(3) Experiment abandoned or conducted to a successful issue, will not prejudice a more fortunate competitor, who adds the last or required link.

(4) But the main question on this point is for you (i.e. the jury), & that is, whether it is such a fair & clear statement, that a person with a competent degree of knowledge upon the subject-matter to which the patent relates, would be able to make that which pltf. now enjoys the exclusive privilege of (TINDAL, C.J.).—GALLOWAY v. BLEADEN (1839), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 521.

Annotations :—Refd. Penn v. Jack, Penn v. Bibby, Penn v. Fernie (1866), 14 W. R. 760 ; Bolingbroke v. Townsend (1873), L. R. 8 C. P. 645.

542. ——.]—STEAD v. WILLIAMS, No. 20, ante.

543. ——.]—Semble : a worthless & abandoned patent may be an anticipation of a subsequent invention if it describe such invention in terms which fully & sufficiently disclose it & the manner in which it is to be practised.—KAYE v. CHUBB & SONS, LTD. (1886), 5 R. P. C. 641, H. L.

Annotation :—Refd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429.

544. ——.] —WINBY v. MANCHESTER, ETC. STEAM TRAMWAYS CO., No. 38, ante.

545. ——.]—HOUSEHILL COAL & IRON CO. v. NEILSON, No. 13, ante.

546. Whether invalidating patent—After invention completed.]—The objection to D.'s patent was, that he was the inventor of the new method of making object glasses, but that H. had made the same discovery before him. But it was holden, that as H. had confined it to his closet, & the public were not acquainted with it, D. was to be considered as the inventor (BULLER, J.).—DOLLAND v. —— (1766), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 43.

Annotations :—Consd. Boulton v. Bull (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463. Refd. Hill v. Thompson & Forman (1818), 2 Moore, C. P. 424. Mentd. Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292.

547. —— Experimental user by person other than inventor.]—The patentee of an invention for "a new or improved bearing for the necks of rolls" brought an action for infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent, on the ground of want of subject-matter & novelty, but at the trial the only defence relied on was want of novelty. The action was tried before a judge & a common jury.

iv. & v.]

The judge directed the jury that, with the old arings, there was a difficulty that the contact of the bearing with the neck of one of the rolls produced much friction, & caused breakages; that pltf. invented a method of applying the bearing to the neck of the roll, namely, instead of making the bearing fit close to the neck of the roll, he took out a piece of the bearing next to the neck, so as to leave a hollow, by which the area of contact, & consequently the friction was reduced, & the danger of breakage diminished, that pltf.'s claim was not to be taken as limited to a claim for the special application of the invention to rolls, but was a claim to prevent friction generally by his means at the neck of the shaft or roll; that his invention would not be novel if previously used for shafts for the same purpose, though the use of something like it for shafts for a different purpose would be no anticipation; that experimental user by an inventor, who subsequently takes out a patent, is very different from experimental user by another person, & that such last user would prevent the inventor getting a patent; that the question was whether other persons had substantially used the invention, whether tentatively or not was immaterial prior to the patent; that defts. brought evidence to show that other persons & also defts. had used the invention for the purpose of diminishing friction on the rolls; that pltf. brought counter evidence to show that other persons did not use the invention, & that defts. did not do more than use something similar to pltf.'s invention for shafts only, & for a totally different purpose; & he left it to the jury to say whether defts. had used the invention on either shafts or rolls for the same purpose as pltf. The jury found for pltf., that the invention was novel. —WESTLEY v. TOLLEY, SONS & BOSTOCK, WESTLEY v. RICHARDS (W. H.) & CO. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 602.

548. ——.]—CORNISH & SIEVIER v. KEENE & NICKELS, No. 481, ante.

549. ——.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

550. ——.]—BENTLEY v. FLEMING, No. 85, ante.

551. ——.]—Patent invalidated by sale & use. Mere experiment will not invalidate a patent.

I think if that anchor of L.'s was sold in the regular way of business, although it turned out a failure, as possibly it may have been, if it was sold in the regular way of trade or business, there is an end of your case, & this patent cannot be supported (MARTIN, B.).—HONIBALL v. BLOOMER (1854), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 199.

552. ——.]—Re NEWALL, ELLIOT & GLASS, No. 526, ante.

553. ——.]—BETTS v. MENZIES, No. 170, ante.

554. ——.]—HILLS v. LONDON GAS LIGHT CO., No. 342, ante.

555. ——.]—TANGYE v. STOTT (1866), 14 W. R. 386.

556. ——.]—Prior publication to be anticipation must give really the same full & sufficiently precise information which is required in a specification. Although an article has been produced by laboratory experiments & the fact has been recorded in chemical publications, that is no anticipation of a process by which a person for the first time produces the article in quantity, so that it becomes of practical & public utility, & is manufactured as an article of commerce.—VON HEYDEN v. NEUSTADT (1880), 14 Ch. D. 230; 50 L. J. Ch. 126; 42 L. T. 300; 28 W. R. 496, C. A.

Annotations:—Consd. Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co. (1887), 57 L. T. 142. Reld. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Johnson & Basle Chemical Works, Bindschedler, [1897] 2 Ch. 322; British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1900] 1 Ch. 577; Saccharin Corpn. v. Reitmeyer, [1900] 2 Ch. 659; Saccharin Corpn. v. Anglo-Continental Chemical Works, [1901] 1 Ch. 414; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Hickson, [1906] A. C. 419; British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Johnson (1925), 42 R. P. C. 243; Mergenthaler Linotype Co. v. Intertype Co. (1926), 42 T. L. R. 682.

557. ——.]—YOUNG & NEILSON v. ROSENTHAL & CO., No. 460, ante.

558. ——.]—USEFUL PATENTS CO., LTD. v RYLANDS (1885), 2 R. P. C. 255; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886) 234.

Annotation:—Reld. Ashworth v. Law (1890), 7 R. P. C. 231.

559. ——.]—MORGAN & CO., LTD. v. WINDOVER & CO., LTD. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 131, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. British Ore Concentration Syndicate v. Minerals Separation (1909), 27 R. P. C. 33. Reld. Elias v. Grovesend Tinplate Co. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 455; Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Goddard v. Lyon (1894), 11 R. P. C. 354; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429; Layland v. Boldy (1913), 30 R. P. C. 547; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95; Bonnard v. London General Omnibus Co. (1920), 38 R. P. C. 1.

560. ——.]—An inventor is entitled to make experiments to test an invention, & for that purpose to employ others, &, if need be, a large number to assist in those experiments. Further, he may take others into his confidence & obtain their advice & opinions respecting the practical or useful character of the invention (KEKEWICH, J.).—GADD & MASON v. MANCHESTER CORPN. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 249; 67 L. T. 569; on appeal, 9 R. P. C. 516, C. A.

Annotations:—Reld. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429; Cassel Gold Extracting Co. v. Cyanide Gold Recovery Syndicate (1895), 11 T. L. R. 345; Shrewsbury & Talbot S. T. Cab Co. v. Sterckx (1895), 12 T. L. R. 122; Savage v. Harris (1896), 12 T. L. R. 187; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Leicester Pneumatic Tyre & Automatic Valve Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 50; Taylor & Scott v. Annand & Northern Press & Engineering Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 547; Layland v. Boldy (1913), 30 R. P. C. 547; Norton v. Barker (1913), 30 R. P. C. 741; Re Merten's Patent (1914), 31 R. P. C. 373; Mellor v. Beardmore (1926), 43 R. P. C. 361.

561. ——.] — The owner of a patent for apparatus for purifying, disinfecting, drying, & heating, brought an action for infringement. Pltf.'s patent substantially consisted in an arrangement of an inner chamber into which steam was admitted for disinfection, & the surrounding of the inner chamber by a steam jacket, also heated by steam, so that the steam in the inner chamber was prevented from condensing. The steam kept in the inner chamber at a certain degree of pressure, found by experience to be from 10 lbs. to 20 lbs., thoroughly penetrated the articles to be disinfected, & completely purified them without damage, Pltf.'s patent was twelve & a half years old, & was of great utility. Pltf.'s specification stated that the apparatus might be used without steam in the inner chamber for drying purposes. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent on various grounds, viz., (a) that pltf. claimed for the use of dry heat, which was old; (b) that he did not mention high pressure, & that without high pressure his invention was useless; (c) anticipation by a prior specification, & (d) by prior user:—Held: (1) pltf. did not claim the use for dry heat, but only that his machine for disinfecting was also useful for the other purposes, his invention was extremely useful & meritorious, & it was infringed; (2) the patent was valid & had not been anticipated, the machine specially relied on by way of prior user being held to have been too imperfect & of too experimental a character to be an anticipation.—LYON v. GODDARD (1893), 10 R. P. C. 121; affd., 9 T. L. R. 546; 10 R. P. C. 334, C. A.; affd., sub nom. GODDARD v. LYON (1894), 11 R. P. C. 354, H. L.

PART IV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—B. (b) iii.

548 i. Whether invalidating patent.]—The use of an invention by the inventor, or by other persons under his direction, by way of experiment, & in order to bring the invention to perfection, is not such a public use as, under the statute, defeats his right to a patent. —CONWAY v. OTTAWA ELECTRIC RY. CO. (1904), 8 Exch. C. R. 432.—CAN.

548 ii. ——.]—So long as an inventor is actually engaged in good faith in testing the operation of a machine, to ascertain if it will accomplish the desired result, & to show it to be a practicable invention, this is not a public use.—CONCRETE APPLIANCES CO. v. ROURKE, MCDONALD, ETC. (1915), 8 W. W. R. 6.—CAN.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Van Berkel v. Simpson (1906), 23 R. P. C. 237; Re Alsop's Patent (1907), 24 R. P. C. 733; Hatmaker v. Nathan (1917), 34 R. P. C. 317; Benton & Stone v. Denston (1925), 42 R. P. C. 284. As to (2) Refd. Re Andrews' Patent (1907), 24 R. P. C. 349. Generally, Refd. Case v. Cressy (1901), 17 R. P. C. 255.

562. ——.] — On Feb. 10, 1894, a patent for improvements in beer engines was granted to M. One of the claims was for tubes & gauze in the nozzles of beer engines, either separately or combined, for the purpose set forth. M. brought an action for infringement against P. & C., & certain other defts. who consented to a perpetual injunction before the trial. The defences relied on at the trial were the insufficiency of the specification & want of novelty by reason of prior user of the invention by defts.:—Held: the specification was sufficient, & the evidence did not satisfactorily establish the alleged prior user by defts.; but if such prior user took place in fact, it was experimental.—MATHEWS v. PARMENTER & CRAWLEY (1896), 13 R. P. C. 514.

563. ——.] — The owners of a patent for "improved apparatus for the electro-deposition of metals" brought an action for infringement against H. & co., who denied infringement, & attacked the validity of the patent on the grounds (inter alia) of anticipation by prior publication & prior user. The question of prior user was the main issue at the trial. B., some years before the date of the patent, had used an apparatus similar to that of pltfs.' for coating rifle bullets with nickel. Pltfs. contended that this was merely an experimental user:—Held: pltfs.' patent was not anticipated, either by the specifications cited or by B.'s user, which was merely experimental, though his apparatus was identical with pltfs.'; semble: evidence may be given of want of subject-matter, though it is not alleged in the particulars of objections, the objection of want of novelty being sufficient to cover it.—ELECTROLYTIC PLATING APPARATUS CO., LTD. v. HOLLAND (1901), 18 R. P. C. 521.

564. ——.]—ROBERTSON v. PURDEY, No. 517, ante.

Protected experimental user.]—See No. 525, ante.

iv. Manufacture and Offer for Sale.

565. As negativing novelty—Deposit in warehouse.]—The prior deposit of articles, of novel manufacture, in a warehouse for sale, is a sufficient publication to defeat a patentee's claim to novelty in the invention of similar articles.—MULLINS v. HART (1852), 3 Car. & Kir. 297, N. P.

566. —— No sale effected.]—(1) A patent was taken out for "certain improvements in the doors & sashes of carriages." In the specification, after describing it, the patentee said: "I have shown my invention as applied to railway carriage doors & window fittings, although they are equally applicable to the doors & windows of any other description of carriage, or in any position where windows & doors are subject to jar & vibration":—Held: the claim made in the specification was not larger than the title of the patent.

(2) One part of the invention was described as "a novel arrangement & mode of fitting & working sliding sashes, glass frames, blinds, & shutters for railway & other carriages," which consisted of a metal plate with a slot & a stud or pin working in a groove on each side of the sash or frame: & the patentee claimed "the metal fittings & the mode of applying the same, described herein as the second part of my invention":—Held: this was a claim, not for the metal fittings themselves, but for the mode of applying them; &, consequently, the patent was sustained by proof that the application was new, though the stud & plate themselves were old.

(3 The circumstance of the patentee having previously filed, but abandoned, a provisional specification describing in part the same invention, does not render a subsequent patent void, the filing of the previous provisional specification not being a publication within 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83.

(4) The manufacture of a patent article for the purpose of sale, & offering it for sale, although no sale is actually effected, is a user of the invention. Semble: it is equally a user though the article is made merely as a sample.

(5) The declaration alleged an agreement for the sale by pltf. to deft. of the exclusive right to the use of an invention of "improvements in elastic cushion fittings for carriage & other window frames," & also of "improvements in the arrangement of the stud & plate for carriage window-frames & for other purposes":—Held: the declaration was sustained by a specification in which the inventions were described as an invention of "improvements in the doors & windows of carriages," the claim being (a) for "the construction of elastic pads or cushions as herein described," (b) "the mode of applying vulcanised india-rubber or other elastic material to sliding sashes, glass frames, & doors, as herein described"; & also for "a novel arrangement & mode of fitting & making sliding sashes, etc. for railway & other carriages," etc., the descriptions being confined to carriages.—OXLEY v. HOLDEN (1860), 8 C. B. N. S. 666; 30 L. J. C. P. 68; 2 L. T. 464; 8 W. R. 626; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 350; 141 E. R. 1327.

Annotations:—As to (3) Refd. Lister v. Norton (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 148; Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416. As to (4) Consd. British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122.

567. —— ——.]—BETTS v. NEILSON, BETTS v. DE VITRE, No. 520, ante.

568. —— Article offered as sample.] — OXLEY v. HOLDEN, No. 566, ante.

569 —— ——.]—HUDSON, SCOTT & CO., LTD. v. BARRINGER, WALLIS & MANNERS, LTD., No. 391, ante.

570. —— Offer to ascertain trade value.] — LISTER v. NORTON BROTHERS & CO., No. 403, ante.

Experimental use.]—See Sub-sect. 2, B. (b) iii., ante.

v. Manufacture and Sale.

571. As negativing novelty.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

PART IV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—B. (b) v.

571 i. As negativing novelty.]—Where a patent is obtained for a process of manufacture, & there has been a prior public sale of the product of that manufacture, if the product is such that any person conversant with the subject & applying the common knowledge at the time of the sale, could have brought about the same result, the patent is

Sect. 2.—Novelty: Sub-sect. 2, B. (b) v., & C. (a).]

572. ——.]—LOSH v. HAGUE, No. 16, ante.

573. ——.] — (1) If they (defts.) have themselves sold an article of exactly the same fabric made in the same manner as that for which the patent was taken out, such sale may be considered as a using of the invention within the terms of the declaration (TINDAL, C.J.).

(2) All that I mean to leave to you is the question of fact . . . whether it [the specification] is so worded & such explanations are given in it that a person of a sufficient degree of understanding on the particular subject could carry the provisions of the specification into effect & obtain the proposed result (TINDAL, C.J.).—GIBSON v. BRAND (1841), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 627; on appeal (1842), 4 Man. & G. 179.

Annotation:—As to (1) Refd. Walton v. Lavator (1860), 8 C. B. N. S. 162.

574. ——.]—Here you have an article, manufactured by an English manufacturer, & sold, &, in my opinion, if it was sold even for the assumed purpose, of which there is no legal evidence, for the assumed purpose of being sent to America, I cannot but think that that would be a destruction of the novelty of pltf.'s invention. Here let me be clearly understood: I do not mean to say, that if a man in America employs an agent to see if he can get an article manufactured in England by a particular model, & chooses to take out a patent for it himself, but not with a view of making it public at all, I do not mean to say that that man is to be considered as not entitled to the invention afterwards (LORD ABINGER, C.B.).—CARPENTER v. SMITH (1841), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 530, N. P.; subsequent proceedings (1842), 9 M. & W. 300.

Annotations:—Refd. Heath v. Smith (1854), 3 E. & B. 256; Betts v. Menzie (1857), 3 Jur. N. S. 357; Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 2 B. & S. 194; Elias v. Grovesend Tinplate Co. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 455.

575. ——.] — HANCOCK v. SOMERVELL (1851), cited Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. XXII. at p. 143.

576. ——.]—HEATH v. SMITH, No. 535, ante.

577. ——.]—HONIBALL v. BLOOMER, No. 551, ante.

578. ——.]—J. in 1878 took out a patent for a lubricating apparatus, & in 1885 brought an action against S. for infringing this patent. It was proved at the trial that prior to the date of the patent (a) lubricators substantially similar to the patented invention had been sold in England by the agents of a foreign firm; (b) lubricators substantially similiar to the patented invention had been used by a firm of engineers in England on machines sold by them:—Held: the patent was invalid.—JENSEN v. SMITH (1885), 2 R. P. C. 249; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 136.

579. ——.] — Although it has been thought & may be thought by a certain class of persons to be hard law that the patentee must not make a beneficial use to himself of his invention before he takes out his patent, on the other hand it is to be remembered that if a patentee were to be at liberty to sell his mysterious & secret product first for a substantial period of time, & then go & obtain a patent for his own invention, he would be able to give himself a longer monopoly than the law gives him; he would be able first of all to give himself a monopoly during the time he was selling his product made secretly, & then he would be able to get the years of monopoly which the statute gives him; so that there is no particular reason to think that the law has been unintentionally left in the state in which it is (BOWEN, C.J.).—GERM MILLING CO., LTD. v. ROBINSON (1886), 3 R. P. C. 399; 3 T. L. R. 71, C. A.

580. ——.] — GUILBERT-MARTIN v. KERR & JUBB (1886), 3 T. L. R. 87.

581. ——.]—H. brought an action for infringement of a patent for a teapot against C. & co. The action was tried by a judge & jury. C. & co. proved that they had sold to three persons before the date of the patent, teapots similar to those of which pltf. complained as being infringements of his patent. The judge directed the jury that defts had proved anticipation, & the jury having returned a verdict for defts., the judge gave judgment for defts. with costs.—HOLLINS v. CAPPER & Co. (1888), 5 R. P. C. 289.

582. ——.] — ELIAS v. GROVESEND TINPLATE Co., No. 367, ante.

583. ——.] — Patentee of an invention for improvements in the extracting mechanism of drop-down small arms brought an action for infringement. The invention practically was for a combination of part of this ejecting mechanism with extracting mechanism or mechanism for partially extracting the cartridge so that it could then be removed by hand. The other claims were for combinations of different parts of patentee's mechanism.

Deft. alleged the invalidity of the patent on the ground that the first claim was anticipated by a prior specification of deft. & that the third, fourth & fifth claims were anticipated by a gun made in 1882 to the order of one M., by R. R. sent the order to B., a gun manufacturer, in whose shop the gun was made without secrecy. The gun was then sent on to R., by whom it was sold without secrecy to the agent of M. & by him transmitted to M., who was abroad. Evidence was given by one witness for pltfs. that the fore end of this gun, which was produced at the trial had in 1888 no extractor mechanism; deft.'s witnesses, by whom the gun was made, gave evidence that the fore end as originally made had the extractor mechanism:—Held: the first claim was for part of the ejecting mechanism with any extracting mechanism & was anticipated by deft.'s specification; the gun made by R. was completely published & as originally made had the extracting mechanism & was one anticipation of claims 4 & 5 & also of part of claim 3. The action was dismissed with costs including the costs of the issue of infringement.—WESTLEY, RICHARDS & CO. v. PERKES (1893), 10 R. P. C. 181, 382; 9 T. L. R. 351; on appeal, sub nom. DEELEY v. PERKES, [1896] A. C. 496, H. L.

Annotations:—Mentd. Re Dellwick's Patent, [1896] 2 Ch. 705; Ludington Cigarette Machine Co. v. Baron Cigarette Co., Re Pitt's Patent, [1900] 1 Ch. 508; Re Justice's Patent (1901), 18 R. P. C. 241; Re Geipel's Patent, [1903] 2 Ch. 715; Re Ralston's Patent, Re Preston & Ralston's Patent (1909), 100 L. T. 386; Porter v. Freudenberg, Kreglinger v. Samuel & Rosenfeld, Re Merten's Patents, [1915] 1 K. B. 857.

584. ——.] — In 1890, a patent was granted to M. for the manufacture of an alloy from certain metals, including bismuth, in the proportions stated in the specification, & for the use of sal ammoniac as part of the process. M., who was an American citizen, was trustee of the patent for an American co. of cos. H. presented a petition for revocation of this patent. After the petition invalidated.—CULLEN v. WELSBACH LIGHT CO. OF AUSTRALASIA, LTD. (1907), 4 C. L. R. 990.—AUS.

---

ii. ——.]—HESSIN v. COPPIN (1873), 19 Gr. 629.—CAN.

571 iii. ——.]—BARNETT MCQUEEN Co. v. CANADIAN STEWART CO. (1910), 9 E. L. R. 46.—CAN.

had been several times before the ct., it was established, to the satisfaction of the judge, that the patented alloy had been sold in England before the date of the patent. The American cos. were then desirous of intervening, & of raising the further point that the said sales of the patented alloy before the date of the patent were not a prior publication of the invention because at the dates of the sale a competent chemist, analysing the alloy, could not have discovered the presence of bismuth, bismuth being alleged to be the important ingredient in the alloy. This point was tried before the judge separately, with oral evidence:—Held: if reasonable care & reasonable skill were used by analysts before the date of the patent, the constituents & the proper proportions of the constituents of the alloy sold could have been ascertained, & therefore the patent was anticipated.—Re MILLER'S PATENT (1898), 15 R. P. C. 205, C. A.

Annotation:—Apprvd. Re Strahlwerk Becker Akt. (1918), 36 R. P. C. 13.

585. ——.]—A patent was granted in 1912 for "an improved high speed tool steel." The claim was for "a high speed tool steel produced by the addition of up to 15 per cent. of cobalt to the known compositions (steel, chromium & tungsten, with or without either or both of the metals vanadium & molybdenum), hitherto employed in the production of high speed tool steels, substantially as described." The following example was given in the complete specification of the production of a high speed tool steel of exceptional quality:—"An alloy of steel containing about 0.70 per cent. carbon, 5 per cent. chromium, 18 per cent. tungsten, 1 per cent. vanadium, 0.75 per cent. molybdenum, & about 4 per cent. cobalt," the inclusion of either vanadium or molybdenum, or both, being, however, optional. A petition was presented for the revocation of [illegible] on the grounds of prior user & want of subject-matter & utility. Petitioners alleged that from 1911 they had manufactured, &, after that year, but before the date of the patent, had sold a high speed tool steel, & that the fact that cobalt entered into its composition was known to workmen in petitioners' employment, who were not under any obligation to conceal the fact. Resps. did not deny that, if the composition of the steel had been published, the manufacture & sale of it was a prior user of the invention, but they contended that the user had been experimental, & that the composition of the steel had not been published:—Held: in order to establish prior public user it was enough to prove that the steel had been manufactured & sold before the patent was taken out, & any person who had purchased the steel could, by analysis, have known what the composition was; it was not necessary to establish that the composition had been in fact ascertained by analysis to show that there was a public knowledge or that the circumstances should show a probability that an analysis had been made.—Re STAHLWERK BECKER AKT.'s PATENT (1918), 36 R. P. C. 13, H. L.

C. Prior Publication.

(a) In General.

586. General rule—Prior publication invalidates patent.]—STEAD v. WILLIAMS, No. 20, ante.

587. —— ——.]—(1) The specification of a patent reaping machine described the improvements as having for their object the holding of the straw in a favourable position while being cut, & the more conveniently arranging, collecting & disposing of it when cut. Underneath a set of spearhead shaped fingers, placed at regular intervals apart from each other, was placed the cutting blade, formed of a thin plate of steel, toothed upon its front edge & fitted into a groove. the blade having perfect freedom to slide from one side of the machine to the other. Wheel gearing, being set in motion by the horse attached to the machine, caused a reel or gatherer to revolve & so prevent the straws from being pressed forward when coming in contact with the cutting blade, which had a rapid reciprocating motion imparted to it by the action of a crank & connecting rod; the straws were thus speedily cut through & fell backwards on the platform The blade was [illegible] the one blade zigzag or indented. "In every case, however, it has been found (the specification stated) to be of great advantage to have the cutting edge toothed somewhat similar to a sickle, & to have those teeth divided into sections [illegible] to the number of fingers, each section having one half of the teeth inclined in one direction, & the other half having the teeth i[illegible] direction." The inventor claimed "the construction of reaping machines according to the improvements before described; that is to say, the constructing & placing of holding fingers [illegible] blades & gathering reels respectively, as before described, & the embodiment of those parts as so constructed & placed, all or any of them, in machines for reaping purposes, whether such machines are constructed in other respects as [illegible] direction, & the other half & resembling the blades figured & described in the specification & capable of being used in the reaping machines, was not an infringement of the patent.

(2) The published description of a previous patent machine stated it to be "for improvements in that kind of the machine in which the grain is cut by the serrated edge of a straight & vibrating cutter operated by a crank, the grain being sustained by fingers. The blade is serrated like a sickle except that the angle of the teeth is reversed for every alternate tooth. . . . The fingers for supporting the grain are spear-formed":—Held: in an action for an infringement of the subsequent patent, deft. was, by reason of this prior publication, entitled to the verdict on the plea that the manufacture was not new. (3) In the absence of proof that the machine in its entirety was not new, pltf. was entitled to the verdict on that issue, notwithstanding the want of novelty in its separate parts.—MCCORMICK v. GRAY (1861), 7 H. & N. 25; 31 L. J. Ex. 42; 4 L. T. 832; 9 W. R. 809; 158 E. R. 377.

Annotation:—Refd. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley, [1904] 1 Ch. 164.

588. — .]—RUCKER v. LONDON ELECTRIC SUPPLY CORPN., LTD., No. 494, ante.

589. —— ——.]—A patent was granted in 1912 for "improvements in cylinders for internal combustion engines." One of the claims was for

---

PART IV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—C. (a).

586 1. General rule—Prior publication invalidates patent.]—If the secret of an invention has been previously publicly communicated to the world, either by the inventor or some one else, the invention is not patentable.—WALSH v. SHEELEY, [1911] T. P. D. 1.—S. AF.

Sect. 2.—Novelty: Sub-sect. 2, C. (a), (b) & (c).]

"steel cylinders for internal combustion engines made in one piece with lugs, bosses, flanges & the like, & having the cooling jacket fixed by welding to the bosses, lugs, & flanges on the cylinder, upon which latter no direct welding takes place, substantially as described." A petition was presented for the revocation of the patent on the grounds of prior publication & want of subject-matter. The patentees, an enemy firm, did not appear at the hearing, nor did a British co. claiming an interest in the patent under a contract with the enemy firm. Petitioners gave evidence of prior publication, & contended that there was not subject-matter in the application of a well known process, such as welding or autogenous soldering, to the construction of the cylinders:—Held: there had been prior publication.—Re DAIMLER-MOTOREN GESELLSCHAFT'S PATENT (1918), 35 R. P. C. 253.

590. Meaning of publication.] — "Generally known" means known to the public generally, or at least to that portion of the public whose attention is turned to such matters. But "published" means offered or dedicated to the public. Was the invention published or offered to the public to such an extent as that it was generally known amongst engineers & persons likely to take an interest in such a matter? (PARKE, B.).—STEAD v. ANDERSON (1846), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 147; 4 C. B. 806 at p. 823; 136 E. R. 732; subsequent proceedings (1847), 4 C. B. 806.

Annotations:—Apld. Plimpton v. Malcolmson (1876), 3 Ch. D. 531; Plimpton v. Spiller (1877), 6 Ch. D. 412.

591. Sufficiency of publication—Whether user also necessary.]—(1) Publication sufficient without user.

(2) No infringement unless evidence of a substantial resemblance in matters to which the exclusive right extends.

(3) Plea of public use good under the statute [of Monopolies]. Semble: a plea averring knowledge & publication only would be bad.—STEAD v. ANDERSON (1847), 4 C. B. 806; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 151; 16 L. J. C. P. 250; 9 L. T. O. S. 434; 11 Jur. 877; 136 E. R. 724; previous proceedings (1846), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 147.

Annotation:—Generally, Mentd. Embrey v. Owen (1851), 6 Exch. 353.

592. —— Mere suggestion.] — Mere suggestion in a work previously published immaterial. — Re WOODCROFT'S PATENT (1846), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 18; 10 Jur. 363, P. C.

593. —— Publication in terms of mere generality.]—(1) The question of the identity of two specifications, for the purpose of deciding as to the novelty of an invention, is one of fact, to be left to the jury.

(2) A specification of a patent does not differ from any other publication of an invention for the purpose of invalidating a subsequent patent for want of novelty.

(3) A prior publication, to have that effect, must be one from which a person with ordinary knowledge would be able practically to apply the discovery without further experiment. If something remains to be ascertained there is room for a valid patent.

(4) Publication of an invention in terms of mere generality or not true to their full extent will not invalidate a subsequent patent, the specification of which is limited & accurate & gives a specific rule of practical application.

(5) Prior knowledge must, in order to avoid a patent for want of novelty, be knowledge equal to that required to be given by a specification.

(6) The construction of a specification, as the construction of all other written instruments, belongs to the ct.; but the explanation of the words or technical terms of art, the phases used in commerce, & the proof & results of the processes which are described, & in a chemical patent the ascertainment of chemical equivalents are matters of fact upon which evidence may be given, contradictory testimony may be adduced, & upon which it is the province & right of a jury to decide.—HILL v. EVANS (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288; 31 L. J. Ch. 457; 6 L. T. 90; 8 Jur. N. S. 525; Goodeves Patent Cases, 248; 45 E. R. 1195, L. C.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Hills v. Liverpool United Gaslight Co. (1862), 32 L. J. Ch. 28. As to (3) Apld. Young v. Fernie (1864), 4 Giff. 577. Consd. Neilson v. Betts (1871), L. R. 5 H. L. 1. Foild. Plimpton v. Malcolmson (1876), 3 Ch. D. 531. Apld. Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co. (1887), 57 L. T. 142; American Braided Wire Co. v. Thomson (1888), 5 R. P. C. 113; Re Gaulard & Gibbs' Patent (1890), 7 R. P. C. 367; Shrewsbury & Talbot Cab Co. v. Sterckx (1895), 13 R. P. C. 44. Consd. Savage v. Harris (1896), 13 R. P. C. 364; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Leicester Pneumatic Tyre & Automatic Valve Co. (1898), 16 R. P. C. 50. Apld. Molassine Co. v. Townsend (1905), 23 R. P. C. 27. Consd. Flour Oxidizing Co. v. Carr (1908), 25 R. P. C. 428. Refd. Von Heyden v. Neustadt (1880), 50 L. J. Ch. 126; Otto v. Linford (1882), 46 L. T. 35; Lawrence v. Perry (1883), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 143; Ellington v. Clark, Bunnett (1887), 58 L. T. 40; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429; Cassel Gold Extracting Co. v. Cyanide Gold Recovery Syndicate (1895), 11 T. L. R. 345; Re Lewis & Stirckler's Patent (1896), 14 R. P. C. 24. As to (5) Refd. Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Metropolitan Vickers Electrical Co. v. British Thomson-Houston Co. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 76. Generally, Refd. De Vitre v. Betts (1873), L. R. 6 H. L. 319; Watson v. Holliday (1882), 20 Ch. D. 780; Craysdale v. Fisher (1884), 1 R. P. C. 17; Meters v. Metropolitan Gas Meters (1911), 104 L. T. 113. Mentd. Consett Industrial & Provident Soc. v. Consett Iron Co., [1922] 2 Ch. 135.

594. ——.] — BETTS v. NEILSON, BETTS v. DE VITRE, No. 520, ante.

595. ——.] — PLIMPTON v. MALCOLMSON, No. 68, ante.

596. ——.] — VON HEYDEN v. NEUSTADT, No. 556, ante.

597. Importation of foreign patent.]—SUNLIGHT INCANDESCENT GAS LAMP CO., LTD. v. INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD., No. 492, ante.

598. Publication covers component parts.]—PUGH v. RILEY CYCLE CO., LTD. (1914), 31 R. P. C. 266, H. L.

Publication without knowledge or consent of patentee.]—See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 41 (2), & 1919 (c. 80), s. 13.

(b) Publication in Book, Document or Picture.

599. Publication in book.] — Re WESTRUPP & GIBBINS' PATENT (1836), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 554, P. C.

Annotations:—Refd. Re Stead's Patent (1846), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 143; Re Honiball's Patent (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 378. Mentd. Re Wield's Patent (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 89.

600. —— Foreign book—On sale in England.]—LANG v. GISBORNE, No. 473, ante.

... of publication.]—For a previous description of an article to constitute a prior publication of the subject matter of a patent, it is not necessary that it should contain as full, precise, or detailed information as a specification of a patent is required to contain, so as to enable an ordinary skilled workman to make the article; it is enough if the description enables men of science & employers of labour, without any exercise of inventive ingenuity, to understand it & to give directions for its construction.—RODD v. HAMILTON MUNICIPALITY (1893), 14 N. S. W. Eq. 221; 10 N. S. W. W. N. 91.—AUS.

g. Question of fact.]—What constitutes publication is a question of fact, depending upon the circumstances of each case.—GERRARD WIRE TYING MACHINES CO., LTD. OF CANADA v. CARY MANUFACTURING CO., [1926] 3

601. —— —— ——.]—PICKARD & CURREY v. PRESCOTT, [1892] A. C. 263, H. L.

602. —— —— Seen in public library.]—(1) A witness had seen in a German journal in a public library in this country a description of an invention which he, though ignorant of German, by the aid of certain plates & technical words could make out:—Held: there had been publication of the invention.

(2) Words in a provisional specification explanatory of methods to carry out the invention:—Held: not to include a machine that might be referred to by such words, but which was not within the scope of the invention as indicated by other parts of the document or the "title," & therefore a claim in the complete specification for such machine invalidated the patent.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. HARRISON, COX-WALKER & CO. (1882), 21 Ch. D. 720; 51 L. J. Ch. 705; 46 L. T. 620; 30 W. R. 724.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416. As to (2) Consd. Horrocks v. Stubbs (1886), 3 R. P. C. 221; Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co. (1887), 57 L. T. 142. Distd. Re Everitt (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 27. Consd. Siddell v. Vickers (1888), 39 Ch. D. 92. Refd. Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. East London Rubber Co. (1896), 75 L. T. 488. Generally, Refd. United Telephone Co. v. Bassano & Slater (1886), 2 T. L. R. 840.

603. —— —— One copy in British Museum.]—A French treatise was placed in the British Museum library in 1863. The Museum catalogue is kept with reference to author's names; books are arranged according to subject-matter; readers can under guidance search for books on particular subjects:—Held: there was no prior publication in England of matter contained in the treatise so as to avoid a patent taken out in 1876.—OTTO v. STEEL (1885), 31 Ch. D. 241; 55 L. J. Ch. 196; 54 L. T. 157; 34 W. R. 289; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 179; 3 R. P. C. 109; subsequent proceedings, 3 R. P. C. p. 114.

Annotation:—Distd. Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416.

604. —— —— Available in English libraries.]—(1) In Dec. 1878, & Feb. 1880, the specifications, in the German language, with drawings, of two patents taken out in Germany, were deposited in the free public library of the Patent Office, & the journal published periodically by the Patent Comrs., amongst the list of patents granted in Germany, contained entries of the particular patents, with a note in each case that the specifications as well as the list of applications might be consulted in the free public library of the office. In Apr. 1880, a patent was obtained in this country for an invention similar to those for which the German patents had been granted:—Held: the fair & legitimate inference from the above facts was, that the public availed themselves of the facilities afforded to them for obtaining information as to the inventions, & accordingly that there was sufficient evidence of publication of the German specifications in this country prior to the date of the English patent of 1880 to avoid such patent; this inference was not affected by the fact that the prior specifications were in the German language.

(2) Primâ facie a patentee is not the first inventor if before the date of his patent an intelligible description of his invention, either in English or in any other language commonly known in this country, was known to exist in this country either in the Patent Office or in any other public library to which persons in search of information on the subject would naturally go for information. But if it be proved that the foreign publication, although in a public library, was not in fact known to be there, the existence of the publication in this country is not fatal to the patent. (3) The existence of the German specifications in the library of the Patent Office, where they were unreservedly accessible to every one, was in itself conclusive evidence of a prior publication.—HARRIS v. ROTHWELL (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416; 56 L. J. Ch. 459; 56 L. T. 552; 35 W. R. 581; 3 T. L. R. 553; 4 R. P. C. 225, C. A.

Annotation:—As to (2) Refd. Humpherson v. Sayer (1887), 4 R. P. C. 407.

605. —— By inventor or agent.] — LANG v. GISBORNE, No. 473, ante.

606. —— Book in Patent Office library — But not catalogued.]—PLIMPTON v. SPILLER, No. 1035 post.

607. —— —— But not known to be there.]—HARRIS v. ROTHWELL, No. 604, ante.

608. —— No copy of book issued or sold.]—LANG v. GISBORNE, No. 473, ante.

609. —— ——.] —PLIMPTON v. MALCOLMSON, No. 68, ante.

610. —— By suggestion.] —Re WOODCROFT'S PATENT, No. 592, ante.

611. Publication by picture.] —HERRBURGER, SCHWANDER ET CIE. v. SQUIRE, No. 216, ante.

612. Publication in official report.] —PATTERSON v. GAS LIGHT & COKE CO., No. 10, ante.

613. Publication in pamphlet—With exhibition of drawing.]—Re DICKINSON'S APPLICATION (1926), 44 R. P. C. 79.

Publication in connection with & for purposes of industrial exhibitions.]—See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 45.

(c) Publication in Specification.

See, now, Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 41 (1).

614. Whether amounting to prior publication—Specification enrolled after former patent sealed.] —CORNISH & SIEVIER v. KEENE & NICKELS, No. 481, ante.

615. ——.]—MUNTZ v. FOSTER, No. 26, ante.

616. ——.] — In an action for an alleged infringement of a patent where the defence is that the supposed invention is not new, the judge may compare pltf.'s specification with the specification of a previous patent, & may on such comparison direct the jury to find a verdict.

B. took out a patent which he described as relating to "means & apparatus for working under water in order to produce excavations & building foundations of lighthouses, piers, jetties, & other structures under water." There had been a previous patent taken out by another person, for

---

D. L. R. 374; [1926] Exch. C. R. 170. —CAN.

PART IV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—C. (b).

611 i. Publication by picture.] — Before the issue of the letters of registration of the patent for the machine, there had been published an illustrated advertisement of wire produced by the machine, & wire so produced had also been offered for sale. It was admitted that a skilled workman could not from seeing & examining the advertisement, or the wire offered for sale, construct the machine patented:—Held: there had been no prior publication or user invalidating the letters of registration. —BRISCOE & CO. v. WASHBURN & MOEN MANUFACTURING CO. (1891), 10 N. Z. L. R. 85.—N.Z.

PART IV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—C. (c).

615 i. Whether amounting to prior publication.]—Held: by the specification to his former patent appct. had disclosed the invention now claimed, & the same must be taken to have abandoned & dedicated to the public.—Re LEONARD'S PATENT (1913), 13 E. L. R. 280; 14 D. L. R. 361; 14 Exch. C. R. 351; 49 C. L. J. N. S. 752.—CAN.

615 ii. ——.]—SMITH v. DAVIDSON (1857), 19 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 691.—SCOT.

Sect. 2.—Novelty: Sub-sect. 2, C. (c).]

"An apparatus to facilitate excavating, sinking, & mining." On comparing the two patents, the judge at the trial was of opinion that both claimed substantially the same invention. The evidence showed some difference in the mode of working, but the witnesses said that both patents had substantially the same object. The judge thereon directed a verdict to be found for deft.:—Held: the direction was right.—BUSH v. FOX (1856), 5 H. L. Cas. 707; Macr. 179; 25 L. J. Ex. 251; 28 L. T. O. S. 240; 2 Jur. N. S. 1029; 4 W. R. 675; 10 E. R. 1080, H. L.

Annotations:—Apld. Booth v. Kennard (1857), 2 H. & N. 84. Distd. Betts v. Menzies (1862), 10 H. L. Cas. 118; Hill v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288. Refd. Brook v. Aston (1859), 28 L. J. Q. B. 175; Hills v. London Gas Light Co. (1860), 5 H. & N. 312; Patterson v. Gas Light & Coke Co. (1877), 3 App. Cas. 239; Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416.

617. ——.]—HILL v. EVANS, No. 593, ante.

618. ——.]—HUDDART v. GRIMSHAW (1803), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 85; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 200; Dav. Pat. Cas. 265.

Annotations:—Distd. Campion v. Benyon (1821), 6 Moore, C. P. 71. Refd. Bateman & Moore v. Gray (1853), Macr. 93; Murray v. Clayton (1872), 7 Ch. App. 573, n.; Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 5 L. R. 294.

619. ——.]—HARRIS v. ROTHWELL, No. 604, ante.

620. ——.]—AMERICAN BRAIDED WIRE CO. v. THOMSON, No. 405, ante.

621. ——.]—BLAKEY & SONS v. LATHAM & CO., No. 365, ante.

622. ——.]—THOMSON v. MACDONALD & CO. (1890), 8 R. P. C. 5.

623. ——.]—DAIRY v. BAILEY, No. 487, ante.

624. ——.]—The patentee of an improvement in sewing machines for boots, being a method of holding the thread at tension perpendicularly to the needle by means of a forked looper, brought an action for infringement. Defts. alleged anticipation by a previous specification of M., & denied infringement on the ground that the thread in their machine was not at tension; in argument they also relied on B.'s specification alone to show common knowledge. M.'s invention had a forked looper & an auxiliary looper, which pltf. dispensed with, & presented the thread to the point of the needle, this was shown by the evidence to be a defect leading to missed stitches, so that M.'s invention was not practically applicable to leather. It was held at the trial that M.'s invention was no anticipation, & that defts. infringed:—Held: pltf.'s invention, getting rid of the auxiliary looper & presenting the thread in a different place to M., namely, to the hook of the needle, so as to avoid the defects of M.'s method, required ingenuity & invention, & was not anticipated, & defts., though they retained M.'s auxiliary looper, had taken pltf.'s invention & infringed.—ENGLISH & AMERICAN MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. UNION BOOT & SHOE MACHINE CO., LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 367, C. A.; subsequent proceedings (1895), 13 R. P. C. 64.

Annotations:—Mentd. Sutcliffe v. Abbott (1902), 20 R. P. C. 50; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Stonebridge Electrical Co. (1916), 33 R. P. C. 166.

625. ——.]—S., in 1894, obtained a patent for an appliance for fastening a lady's hat upon the head. A patent had been granted to O. in 1893, in the United States, for a hat fastener, the publication of which in England was admitted. This was alleged to be an anticipation. H. & Sons subsequently brought out a hat fastener & patented it. S. then brought an action against H. & Sons, alleging it to be an infringement of her patent. For defts. it was contended that pltf.'s article was anticipated by O., & there was no invention in it:—Held: pltf.'s patent was anticipated by O.'s specification, & there was no invention in producing pltf.'s appliance, & pltf.'s patent was invalid.

There may be prior anticipation by publication, although the specification is defective in the directions given to the workman (LINDLEY, L.J.).—SAVAGE v. HARRIS (D. B.) & SONS (1896), 13 R. P. C. 364; 12 T. L. R. 332, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1923), 40 R. P. C. 426.

626. ——.]—In 1887, a patent was granted to D. & F. for improvements in feeding oil for lighting & heating. In Dec. 1895, an action was brought by the patentees & their sole licencees for infringement of this patent against S., who denied infringement, & put in issue the validity of the patent, but solely on a paper anticipation, viz., R.'s specification of 1872:—Held: the patent was not anticipated by R.'s specification, & judgment was given for pltfs.—DEFRIES & FEENY v. SHERWOOD & SONS (1897), 14 R. P. C. 313.

627. ——.]—SIDDELEY v. LONDON HYGIENIC ICE CO., LTD., No. 493, ante.

628. ——.]—On June 1, 1892, a patent for an improvement in electrical insulating sheets was granted to W. On the following day a patent for a similar invention was granted to D. The M. co., as proprietors, brought an action for infringement of both patents against the E. co., but subsequently dropped the claim in respect of W.'s patent. Defts. denied infringement of D.'s patent, & alleged that it was invalid on the following, among other, grounds: Prior grant to W., in his patent, anticipations by S. & T., & prior users of the invention. Pltfs., by their reply, denied the prior grant to W., & alleged that W.'s patent was invalid by reasons of the matters stated in defts.' original particulars of objections. Defts. rejoined that even if W.'s patent had been anticipated, that was no defence to the plea of prior grant. It was admitted at the trial that the specification of S. & T. anticipated W.'s patent:—Held: as S. & T. anticipated W., D.'s patent was not invalid on the ground of a prior grant to W., but, if so, then D.'s patent was anticipated by S. & T. & also certain prior users of the invention were proved.—MICA INSULATOR CO. v. ELECTRICAL CO., LTD. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 489.

629. ——.]—BRITISH MOTOR TRACTION CO., LTD. v. FRISWELL, No. 152, ante.

630. ——.]—The owner of a patent for "improvements in revolvable heel pads for boots & shoes" having brought an action for infringement, deft. denied infringement, & contended that pltf.'s patent was completely anticipated by several prior specifications for the construction of rubber heel pads. The claim was in effect for a heel pad, made of rubber composition, comprising a thin base piece, a surface piece, & between them a perforated metal plate extending nearly to the edge of the pad. The holes in the metal plate permitted the front & back surfaces to have attachment to each other. Deft. relied upon, among others, the specification of a prior patent for fixed heel pads, in which a perforated metal plate was inserted between two layers of rubber although not intended to form a revolving heel:—Held: anticipation had been proved, & pltf.'s patent was therefore invalid.—HICKSON v. REDFERN (1905), 22 R. P. C. 307.

631. ——.]—COOPER PATENT ANCHOR RAILWAY JOINT CO., LTD. v. LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL, No. 392, ante.

632. ——.]—Letters patent were granted to A. for an improvement in driving aprons, consisting in forming at the lower part of the apron horizontally projecting pockets or footholds into which the wearers' feet were inserted so as to be protected from the weather & which at the same time assisted in keeping the apron in position. In an action for infringement brought by A.:—Held: the patent had been anticipated by P.'s specification "of a covering for the lower part of the body & knees, which is continued down to the feet where it is adapted to receive & enclose them, opening thence above the heels on the under side upwards."—ARNOT v. DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 309, H. L.

633. ——.]—In 1901 a patent was granted for "an improved process for mounting photographs, engravings & the like, & means for carrying the same into practice." The first claim was for "a dry process for mounting photographs, engravings, or the like, on cardboard, bristol board or the like, consisting in interposing, between the two parts to be united, a thin layer of material made in the manner above described & capable of becoming adhesive under the action of heat, & then applying heat & pressure thereto substantially as described." The second claim was "for carrying into practice the process hereinbefore described, a pellicle which is adhesive when hot & consists of a thin sheet of paper or other carrier immersed in a solution of gum lac or other gum-resin, in such a manner that the adhesive material is incorporated in the carrier & covers the two faces thereof, substantially as described." In an action for infringement of the patent it was alleged by pltfs. that the second claim was for a pellicle intended to be used in the process described in the first claim, & that defts. had infringed by selling such a pellicle. Defts. contended that the first claim had been anticipated by the specifications of D., describing the use, with heat, of an adhesive material coated with gutta-percha, & the coating of such material by dipping it in a solution of gutta-percha. They contended that the second claim was for the pellicle, & that the sale by them of their pellicle was not an infringement, or, if the claim was for the manufacture of the pellicle, it had been anticipated by the specification of J.:—Held: the first claim had been anticipated by D.; the second claim was for the pellicle & had been anticipated as alleged.—ADHESIVE DRY MOUNTING CO., LTD. v. TRAPP & CO. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 341.

634. ——.]—In 1903 a patent was granted for "improvements in filters." One of the claims was as follows: "In a filtering system, the combination with a tank for containing the material to be filtered & a tank for containing a cleansing liquid, of a filter, means for introducing & removing the same into & from the first tank, & for introducing & removing the same into & from the second tank, means for drawing the material contained in first tank through the filtering medium while the filter is within the tank, & for drawing the liquid from the second tank through the filter while therein & means for passing a cleansing current through filter in an opposite direction to the movement of the filtered material." There were twenty-four other claims. In an action for infringement of the patent, defts. alleged (inter alia) that the patent was invalid because of want of utility, insufficiency of description, & want of novelty & of subject-matter, &, in particular, because the alleged invertion had been published in the prior specifications of T. & others They also alleged that the specification did not distinguish between what was new & what was old:—Held: in certain claims, subordinate parts of the combination of which the alleged invention consisted, were claimed & were old; as to one of the claims, it could not be found that that claim was useful; some of the combinations claimed would not work; some of the claims were wanting in subject-matter; & the patent was invalid.—MOORE FILTER CO. v. GREAT BOULDER PROPRIETARY GOLD MINES, LTD. (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239, P. C.

635. ——.]—BRITISH SPIRO TURBINE, LTD. v. SULLIVAN MACHINERY CO., No. 224, ante.

636. ——.] — Pltfs. were the grantees & proprietors of a patent for "improvements in the liquid fuel supply arrangements of internal combustion engines." Claim 1 of the specification was as follows: "In the liquid fuel supply arrangements of internal combustion engines, the combination with a main tank or vessel, of a supplementary chamber or vessel into which the liquid is drawn by suction from the said main tank or vessel, & from which the liquid passes on its way to the carburettor through an automatically valve-controlled passage, & means for isolating said supplementary vessel from the source of suction & for placing same under atmospheric pressure, all arranged substantially as & for the purposes described." Claim 2 was as follows: "In the liquid fuel supply arrangements of internal combustion engines, the provision between the main fuel supply tank of vessel & the carburettor, of a supplementary vessel in communication with said main tank & also with a source of suction, & an auxiliary vessel in communication with the atmosphere, with said supplementary vessel through an automatically valve-controlled passage & with the carburettor, the whole arranged & operating substantially as & for the purposes described." In an action for infringement of the patent defts. pleaded prior publication, insufficiency, lack of utility & non-infringement. At the trial defts. did not ultimately contest utility or infringement, but contended that the patent was invalid by reason of the prior publication of two specifications, G. & V. It was contended that G.'s specification had indicated the problem to be solved & disclosed the subject-matter of pltfs.' patent, & that V.'s specification was an actual anticipation, & that all that pltfs. had done was to use known equivalents in carrying out the idea. It was held at the trial that the object of pltfs.' invention was to afford a gravitational feed to the carburettor of a motor vehicle from a small auxiliary tank which could be readily placed so as to be above the carburettor on any road level; & that to meet difficulties of construction it was proposed to suck the petrol up from the main tank at a lower level, & ultimately to deposit it in a comparatively small auxiliary tank under normal atmospheric pressure, whence it could escape to the carburettor; that, if the main idea was novel in the connection for which it was used, & was carried into effect by a combination of known appliances devised for the purpose, that would primâ facie afford sufficient subject-matter to support a patent; that G.'s specification did not show the essential elements of & was not confined to the particular object of pltf.'s invention, that there was no evidence that G.'s invention had ever been successful, & that his specification did not disclose the subject-matter of pltfs.' patent; that, though V.'s apparatus was in some respects similar to pltfs.' it did not contain pltfs.' main idea & did not provide for a definite alternate periodicity of suction & atmospheric pressure, that it had not been shown that the apparatus would work successfully, & that it did not anticipate pltfs.' invention. Judgment was given for pltfs. Deft. appealed :—Held: (1) though the application of such a well known thing as a suction pump in a different manner & for a different purpose was not of itself subject-matter, the main idea of pltfs.' invention, namely, to make use of a pump to supply petrol to a carburettor & thereby to avoid the defects both of the gravitational & of the pressure feed, a thing not successfully done before, was novel in this connection & was carried into effect by a particular combination, devised for the purpose, of well known mechanical appliances, which combination, though in the abstract not of itself novel, was novel for the purpose for which it was used, & the patent was not invalid for want of subject-matter, & (2) V.'s specification had an object & an apparatus different from the object & apparatus of pltfs. & did not disclose one of the essential features of pltfs.' invention, & neither V.'s nor G.'s specification was an anticipation of pltfs.' patent.—HIGGINSON & ARUNDEL v. BENTLEY & BENTLEY, LTD. (1922), 39 R. P. C. 177, C. A.

Sect. 2.—Novelty: Sub-sect. 2, C. (c).]

637. ——.]—The S. G. co. were the proprietors of a patent granted to M. in respect of an invention of a "tablet for use in ascertaining the position of particular 'places.'" Claim (a) of the complete specification was as follows: "A tablet for ascertaining the positions of particular places, characterised by a chart or map with electric incandescent lamps arranged on the back of the same, by means of which different marked points on the map can be illuminated from the back, further by a switchboard connected with the map with references to the corresponding points in the map arranged in connection with the contact services for particular incandescent lamps." Q. applied by petition for the revocation of the patent on the grounds (inter alia) that he had invented, & applied for a patent in respect of, an advertising service consisting of a screen containing spaces for advertisements, a map of the locality in which the advertisers' premises are situated & having means of illuminating the map at points corresponding with the situation of the advertisers' premises; that the S. G. co. claimed to be entitled to restrain the manufacture, sale & exhibition of petitioner's invention; & that the S. G. co.'s patent was invalid by reason of the prior publication of the complete specifications of M., B., S., C. & P., prior common general knowledge, want of subject-matter & want of utility:—Held: the patented invention was obviously useful as evidenced by the admitted demand for the apparatus & for the apparatus in which petitioner was interested; the specification was capable of only one construction, viz., the patentee was merely dealing with a device of that kind which by means of a push-button temporarily closes a gap, whereby electrical contact is made, & on release of the button, opens the gap again, & the term "switchboard" in the specification was limited to such a contrivance, & the object of the inventor was to provide an apparatus which would give temporary information, & which, after so doing, would resume its original position; the specifications of M. & C. were irrelevant; the specifications of S. & B. were directed to altogether different objects; P.'s specification related to permanent electrical connections, & not temporary bridgings of a gap as in the case of M. W.'s patent.—Re MERK-WIRZ'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 270.

638. ——.]—GIUSTI PATENTS & ENGINEERING WORKS, LTD. v. REES, No. 147, ante.

639. ——.]—TUCKER v. WANDSWORTH ELECTRICAL MANUFACTURING CO., LTD., No. 479, ante.

640. ——.]—A patent was granted for "improvements in & relating to the treatment of tungsten to facilitate working." Two of the claims were as follows: "(a) A body of mechanically worked tungsten which is ductile at ordinary temperature. (b) The method which consists in the repeated working of a body of coherent tungsten while it is hot until it becomes ductile at ordinary temperature." An action for infringement of the patent was brought in Scotland against a co., & a similar action was subsequently brought in England against another co., the allegations in the two actions being substantially the same. In the English action defts. alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds of want of novelty & subject-matter, insufficiency of the specification & want of utility. In particular they alleged that the alleged invention had been anticipated by the publication of the specification of a patent of 1906 which had been held invalid for want of subject-matter. Pltfs. admitted that in the action on the 1906 patent they had contended that by following the directions in the specification of that patent a filament of drawn tungsten wire could be obtained. In the English action pltfs. contended that the essential features of the 1909 process were working the tungsten at 1,000 degrees to 1,300 degrees C., & by steps more numerous than would be used in the case of other metals, & that the specification of 1906 did not specify any temperature of working except by mentioning dull redness as a point to which the heating might be carried in air without oxidation, & did not indicate the necessity for repeated working, or the fact that the product was ductile cold. Defts. contended that the 1906 specification, with the common knowledge of the time, would enable a practical worker to obtain the results of the 1909 process. As to infringement, defts. contended that pltfs. had not shown that the metal upon which defts. had worked had not been purchased from one of pltfs.' licencees:—Held: the patent of 1909 was invalid on the ground that it was anticipated by the specification of 1906.

"I am unable to believe that repeated mechanical working was by itself a new discovery as a patentable invention. . . . Unless the ductile cold metal which was its product when the metal had been left to cool added the required element of novelty in the invention, the process for its production was not patentable; & I have already given my reasons for the conclusion that tungsten ductile cold, merely as such, was not a patentable result (LORD HALDANE).—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. CHARLESWORTH, PEEBLES & CO., SAME v. BRITISH INSULATED & HELSBY CABLES, LTD. (1925), 42 R. P. C. 180; sub nom. CHARLESWORTH, PEEBLES & CO. v. BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD., BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. BRITISH INSULATED & HELSBY CABLES, LTD., 41 T. L. R. 259, H. L.

641. ——.]—A patent was granted for a "method of making stiffened foreparts of boot & shoe uppers." Claim (a) was as follows: "The method of making stiffened foreparts of boot & shoe uppers, which consists in incorporating in the un-lasted upper a stiffener blank comprising absorbent fibrous material containing a stiffening composition or material adapted to be softened by a degree of heat which is not injurious to leather, & to be stiffened by cooling, heating the blank to soften the same, lasting the upper while the blank is heated & soft & thereby imparting to the blank the form of a box toe conforming to the toe portion of the last, & allowing the box toe to stiffen by cooling." Claim (b) was for a shoe having a box-toe made according to the method claimed in claim (a) & claims (c) & (d) were, shortly, for a box-toe blank of an absorbent material adapted to be softened by a temperature of approximately 110 degrees Fahrenheit. In an action for infringement, defts. alleged (inter alia) prior publication & prior user, & proved that a good toe-box could be made by following the directions given in a prior specification. Pltfs. proved that their toe-boxes, or toe-puffs, had had a great commercial success :—Held : the commercial success of pltfs.' toe-boxes was attributable to their convenience in manufacture ; claim (a) was exceedingly wide, & was invalid for want of subject-matter & want of novelty ; & all the other claims were invalid.—BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. JOHNSON (E. A.) & CO., LTD. (1925), 42 R. P. C. 243, C. A.

642. ——.]—COLE v. ALLIANCE BOX CO., LTD., COLE & SMALLDRIDGE v. SAME, No. 502, ante.

643. —— Specification substantially true—Though chemically incorrect.]—A patent was granted in 1894 for an "improved manufacture of cattle food." The alleged improvement consisted in mixing peat with molasses or similar saccharine liquids. It was stated in the specification that the detrimental action on the animal organism of the potassium salt in the molasses was thereby avoided, & the digestion of the molasses facilitated. In an action for infringement brought by the owners of the patent, it was alleged that the invention was not good subject-matter, that it had been anticipated by the specification of A., published in 1857, & that it was not useful. At the trial the defts. admitted, after evidence as to the beneficial character of the food had been given, that they could not further contest the validity of the patent :—Held : there was sufficient subject-matter, & the specification of A. was not such as to constitute an anticipation.—MOLASSINE CO., LTD. v. TOWNSEND (R.) & CO., LTD. (1905), 23 R. P. C. 27.

644. —— Prior specification abandoned.]—OXLEY v. HOLDEN, No. 566, ante.

645. —— ——.]—A provisional specification is not, in general, intended to give a complete description of an invention to the public, but only to protect the inventor until the description is perfected in the final specification. Where a provisional specification contained an incomplete description, part of which was omitted in the final specification :—Held : there was no prior publication of the part omitted so as to vitiate a subsequent patent of a similar invention on the ground of want of novelty.—STONER v. TODD (1876), 4 Ch. D. 58 ; 46 L. J. Ch. 32 ; 35 L. T. 661 ; 25 W. R. 38.

Annotations :—Consd. Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co. (1887), 57 L. T. 142. Distd. Sandow v. Szalay (1905), 23 R. P. C. 6. Refd. United Telephone Co. v. Harrison, Cox-Walker (1882), 21 Ch. D. 720.

646. —— ——.]—KAYE v. CHUBB & SONS, LTD., No. 543, ante.

647. —— Sufficiency of disclosure.]—HILL v. EVANS, No. 593, ante.

648. —— ——.]—OTTO v. LINFORD, No. 162, ante.

649. —— ——.]—Pltf., who was the grantee of a patent (1299 of 1882) for "Improvements in apparatus for use in drafting patterns for ladies' dresses & undergarments," brought an action against deft. for infringement of his patent by selling apparatus similar or practically similar to pltf.'s patent apparatus. Deft. denied the novelty & utility of pltf.'s invention, & alleged that it was not the subject of a patent. She also denied the sufficiency of the specification, & that she had infringed the patent :—Held : (1) pltf.'s specification had not particularly described & ascertained the nature of his invention, as it did not distinguish between what was old & what was new therein, & therefore the patent was void ; (2) if the patent was for the whole invention, parts thereof were included in certain previous American patents published in England, & if it was for part, the specification did not distinguish which part was claimed ; (3) if the patent was valid at all it must be as claiming a particular scale, & as deft. was not using that scale there was no infringement ; (4) taking the existing knowledge into consideration, pltfs.' alleged invention was only the application of a known method in a known way, & was not therefore the subject of a patent; (5) pltf.'s alleged invention was not devoid of utility.

It has been decided over & over again that the slightest amount of utility, I will not say an infinitesimal scintilla but a very slight amount of utility, is sufficient to sustain a patent, & that, for the purpose of utility, as indeed for the purpose of most of the other issues, you must take it by itself. I must suppose that this invention is new, that it is properly specified, & that it is subject-matter of a patent. I must assume all that in deciding the question of utility (GROVE, J.).

(6) A patentee, for the purpose of telling the public what his patent prevents their using without his licence for fourteen years, must give the nature of his invention in reasonably accurate language. . . . I do not say that he can possibly do it so as to prevent a critic finding some fault with it. Therefore I should read the specification liberally, & I should apply my mind to it in this way : Is the specification such that a fair man willing or wishing to understand it can reasonably gather from it what the patentee considers his invention & what he says he prohibits the public from using ? (GROVE, J.).

(7) My opinion is that there is not the same necessity for accurate description of how an invention shall be carried into effect, for the purpose of anticipating an invention, as there is for the purpose of sustaining a patent in the hands of a patentee, because in the latter case a description ought to be given which ought not to merely inform the minds of every skilled person or scientific person in the trade, but should inform the minds of ordinary people who are accustomed to work at the trade (GROVE, J.).—PHILPOTT v. HANBURY (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 185 ; 2 R. P. C. 33.

Annotations :—As to (1) Refd. Hollinrake v. Truswell, [1894] 3 Ch. 420. As to (6) Refd. Layland v. Boldy (1913), 30 R. P. C. 547 ; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1924), 41 R. P. C. 241. As to (7) Refd. Savage v. Harris (1896), 13 R. P. C. 364.

650. —— ——.]—The validity of a patent for making dynamo-electric machines was challenged on the ground of prior publications, founded upon a description in the specification in an earlier patent :—Held : the question whether the specification of the earlier patent was sufficient to disclose the invention to the public did not turn upon the sufficiency or insufficiency of the specification for the guidance of a skilled workman, for the patent might be void for incomplete directions to a workman of ordinary skill, & yet sufficient to inform the public of the invention, but the proper test was whether the description in the specification was sufficient to convey to men of science & employers of labour information which would enable them to understand the invention & give a workman specific directions for the making of the machine; &, applying such test, there had been prior publication.—ANGLO-AMERICAN BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHT CORPN. v. KING, BROWN & CO., [1892] A. C. 367; 9 R. P. C. 313, H. L.

Sect. 2.—Novelty: Sub-sect. 2, C. (c) & (d). Sect. 3: Sub-sect. 1.]

Annotations:—Follod. Wilfley Ore Concentrator Syndicate v Guthridge, [1906] A. C. 548. Refd. Savage v. Harris (1896), 13 R. P. C. 364; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1924), 41 R. P. C. 241.

651. —— ——.]—CASSEL GOLD EXTRACTING CO., LTD. v. CYANIDE GOLD RECOVERY SYNDICATE, No. 343, ante.

652. —— ——.]—FULLER v. HANDY, No. 477, ante.

653. —— ——.]—The law as laid down seems to their Lordships to be in entire accordance with the judgment of the House of Lords in the case of The Anglo-American Brush Electric Light Corpn. v. King, Brown & Co., No. 650, ante. Both the judgments of Lord Halsbury, then Lord Chancellor, & of Lord Watson expressly lay down that the specification is not required to contain "explanations or directions which would enable a workman of ordinary skill to construct" the patented invention. All that is required is that the specification of the patentee should "convey to men of science & employers of labour information which will enable them, without any exercise of inventive ingenuity, to understand his invention, & to give a workman the specific directions which he failed to communicate." Therefore, the construction of the document was a matter for the ct. (LORD DAVEY).—WILFLEY ORE CONCENTRATOR SYNDICATE, LTD. v. GUTHRIDGE (N.), LTD., [1906] A. C. 548; 75 L. J. P. C. 87; 95 L. T. 73; 23 R. P. C. 535, P. C.

654. —— Specification accepted but not printed —At date of plaintiff's patent.]—FOX v. ASTRACHANS, LTD., No. 414, ante.

655. —— Complete specification lodged — After application for second patent.]—BLOXHAM v. KEELESS CLOCK CO., No. 127, ante.

656. What specification must disclose — Practicable mode of producing article to be patented.]—BETTS v. MENZIES, No. 170, ante.

657. —— ——.]—We know what is necessary if there is said to be anticipation, not by the existence of an actual thing, but by description, either in a specification or otherwise, that the description must be of such a character as to enable any one competent to make the machine for which protection is claimed by the patentee to make it from the description given (COTTON, L.J.).—EHRLICH v. IHLEE (1888), 4 T. L. R. 337; 5 R. P. C. 437.

Annotations:—Consd. Gadd v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 516. Apld. Shrewsbury & Talbot Cab Co. v. Sterckx (1895), 13 R. P. C. 44. Refd. Cassel Gold Extracting Co. v. Cyanide Gold Recovery Syndicate (1895), 12 R. P. C. 232; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Leicester Pneumatic Tyre & Automatic Valve Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 50.

658. —— ——.]—Pltfs. were the proprietors of three patents for certain improvements in noiseless tyres for cabs, etc., & brought this action for infringement of the three patents. The first patent, which was the only one finally relied on by pltfs. at the trial, was for rolling the metal part of the tyres with a dovetail or undercut section, i.e., with a flat base & flanges at an acute angle, so as to secure the india rubber. Deft. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patents. Deft. specially relied on a prior specification of A. as either anticipating pltfs.' first patent, or disclosing so much that there was no novelty or invention in such patent. The principal object of A.'s invention was to roll large iron plates, with flanges at right angles, to be used for the plating of ships & other purposes:—Held: A.'s specification did not enable a skilled workman to perceive pltf.'s invention & carry it into practical use, & inventive ingenuity was required to bring about pltfs.' result, & pltf.'s patent was valid.—SHREWSBURY & TALBOT CAB CO., LTD. v. STERCKX (1895), 13 R. P. C. 44; 12 T. L. R. 122, C. A.

659. —— ——.]—A patent was granted to R. for "improvements relating to synchronous dynamo electric machines." Claim (a) of the specification was as follows: "Arrangement for starting synchronous dynamo electric machines by means of an electric motor, in which a series or electrically equivalent connection is provided between the windings of the starting motor & the synchronous machine, for the purpose of effecting in one operation both the speeding up & the synchronising of the synchronous machine with the supply current." Pltfs. alleged infringement of the claim by the sale by defts. of a rotary converter to West Hartlepool Corpn. Defts. alleged that the patent was invalid by reason of want of novelty & of subject-matter. At the trial defts. relied upon the publication of the specification of an United States patent which showed an arrangement which was capable of being used in the manner indicated by R. They also contended that the series connection in the alleged infringement did not perform the function specified in the claim. Pltfs. contended that the prior arrangement was not suitable for the purpose claimed, & that the patentee had selected useful members from a known class & applied them to a new object. The United States patent had not been used:—Held: the patent was not anticipated by the United States specification, & was valid.—METROPOLITAN VICKERS ELECTRICAL CO., LTD. v. BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 76, C. A.

660. Specification treating as impurity substance proposed to be used.]—FLOUR OXIDIZING CO., LTD. v. CARR & CO., LTD., No. 518, ante.

(d) Paper Read before Learned Society.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 45, & 1919 (c. 80) sched.; Patents Rules, 1920, r. 103.

SECT. 3.—UTILITY.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

661. Meaning of "utility."]—A very small amount of utility is sufficient to support a patent. Utility, in patent law, does not mean abstract, or comparative, or competitive, or commercial utility; but, as applied to an invention, it means that the invention is better than the preceding knowledge of the trade as to a particular fabric, better that is in some respect though not necessarily in every respect. For instance, an invention is useful by which an article good, though not so good as one previously known, can be produced

PART IV. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 1.

661 i. Meaning of "utility."]—Patent which provided a useful choice held not to be bad on the ground of inutility.—KELVIN v. WHYTE, THOMSON & CO. (1907), 25 R. P. C. 177.—SCOT.

661 ii. ——.]—The fact that a machine has been several times improved since the original patent was obtained is no argument against its more cheaply by a different process. An invention is useful when the public are thereby enabled to do something which they could not do before, or to do in a more advantageous manner something which they could do before, or in other words, an invention is patentable which offers the public a useful choice.—WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO. v. NEW INCANDESCENT (SUNLIGHT PATENT) GAS LIGHTING CO., [1900] 1 Ch. 843; 69 L. J. Ch. 343; 82 L. T. 293; 48 W. R. 362; 16 T. L. R. 205; 44 Sol. Jo. 262; 17 R. P. C. 237.

Atkins & Applegarth v. Castner [illegible], 18 R. P. C. 281. v. Whyte, Thomson (1907), 25 R. P. C. 177.

662. ——.]—(1) In 1890 letters patents were granted to A. & A. for "improved means & apparatus for separating alkaline & earthy metals from the salts of such metals or from other substances containing them." The object of the invention was to obtain by electrolysis that which they admitted had been already so obtained, but to obtain it on a practical scale, & with a saving of energy, by reducing the amount of counter electromotive force set up by the reaction. They used a continuously flowing mercury cathode with a metal basis upon which the mercury was to flow. The mercury was to remove the product from the electrolytic cell, but the speed or rate of flow was not specified or relied on as essential. They did not say whether in the electrolysis of common salt their principal product was sodium or caustic soda, though they expected to get both. In 1897 they commenced an action for infringement of their patent against the C. K. A. Co. Defts. denied infringement, & attacked the patent on the grounds of want of novelty & want of utility. They claimed to be working under patents granted to their predecessors in title in 1892 & 1893:—Held: though pltfs. were wrong in thinking that counter electromotive force was the obstacle they had to contend with, this did not per se invalidate their patent, but nevertheless their patent was invalid for want of novelty & want of utility, & also defts. had not infringed, as in their apparatus the cathode was of mercury only & the base of non-conducting material.

The fact that the patentees misconceive & misstate their theory does not, I think, invalidate their patent. Their theory may be wrong, but if their process & apparatus are right their patent may be supported notwithstanding their faulty theory. (BUCKLEY, J.).

(2) The utility I have to investigate is not necessarily commercial utility or competitive utility, but utility for the purposes of patent law. As regards this patent the essential utility consists in my judgment of two things. First, that the patentees, adopting a known process, undertake to show the public how to effect on a practical scale that which could be effected before, but not on a practical scale; & secondly, that the way they indicate shall be one which effects an economy of power (BUCKLEY, J.).—ATKINS & APPLEGARTH v. CASTNER-KELLNER ALKALI CO., LTD. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 281.

663. ——.]—"Utility" means having commercial existence as a process of manufacture (LORD HALSBURY, C.).—WILSON BROTHERS BOBBIN CO., LTD. v. WILSON & CO. (BARNSLEY), LTD. (1902), 20 R. P. C. 1.

664. Necessity for "utility."]—MANTON v. PARKER (1814), 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 274; Dav. Pat. Cas. 327; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 192, n.

665. ——.]—MANTON v. MANTON, No. 438, ante.

666. ——.]—The utility of the invention & the intelligibility of the specification are for the jury.—HILL v. THOMPSON (1817), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 237; 3 Mer. 622; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 377; subsequent proceedings (1818), 8 Taunt. 375.

Annotations:—Reid. Brunton v. Hawkes (1821), 4 B. & Ald. 541; Bickford v. Skewes (1827), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 211; Russell v. Barnsley (1834), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 472; Kay v. Marshall (1836), 1 My. & Cr. 373; Curtis v. Cutts (1839), 8 L. J. Ch. 184; Neilson v. Harford (1841), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 295; Crane v. Price (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580; Cook v. Pearce (1843), 8 Q. B. 1044; Electric Telegraph Co. v. Nott (1847), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 41; Newall v. Wilson (1852), 2 De G. M. & G. 282; Harwood v. G. N. Ry. Co. (1860), 2 B. & S. 194; Bovill v. Goodier (1866), 35 Beav. 427; Murray v. Clayton (1872), 20 W. R. 649; Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315; Coles v. Baylis (1886), 3 R. P. C. 180.

667. ——.]—LEWIS v. MARLING, No. 440, ante.

668. ——.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

669. ——.]—STEAD v. WILLIAMS, No. 20, ante.

670. ——.]—ECCLES & BRIERLY v. MCGREGOR, No. 200, ante.

671. ——.]—FOX v. DELLESTABLE, FOX v. JONES, No. 447, ante.

672. ——.]—BARLOW v. BAYLIS (1870), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 44, N. P.

673. ——.]—DOWNES v. FALCON ENGINE WORKS, No. 450, ante.

674. ——.]—LANE FOX v. KENSINGTON & KNIGHTSBRIDGE ELECTRIC LIGHTING CO., No. 117, ante.

675. ——.]—ALLEN v. DUCKETT & SON, No. 454, ante.

676. ——.]—In 1892 a patent was granted to S. for "Improvements in pneumatic tyres for velocipedes & other vehicles." In the provisional specification the patentee stated that he preferred to employ an endless band made of caoutchouc & cloth & moulded in the form of a tubular ring; after describing enlargements at the edge of the lower margin & at a convenient distance from the edge of the upper margin & stating that these enlargements lay in a recess at the bottom of the rim, the specification continued as follows: "When the tyre is inflated, the upper margin is pressed against the lower margin, an airtight joint resulting. The enlarged parts engage with the shoulders at the bottom of the rim, & thereby limit the expansion of the tubular band." It also stated: "Instead, however, of using a single band, two bands may be employed. The outer band would then have enlarged edges for engaging with the shoulders at the bottom of the rim, the inner band lying between the enlarged edges & having lateral flaps projecting over the margins of the outer band." The complete specification included a form of tyre in which the lateral flaps of the second band lay underneath the margins of the first band, & also a form of tyre in which the second band was omitted, but the margins of the one band did not meet; the specification stated that the band in this form had each of its margins forced by the being a useful invention.—KINMOND v. JACKSON, KINMOND v. LAWRIE, 1 C. L. R. 66.—IND.

664 i. Necessity for "utility."]—Where prior to a certain patent, persons had to resort to a dangerous practice to do that which was the object of the patent, although not a determining factor it strengthens the conclusion that the invention is a new & useful one.—ASHDOWN v. NICKSON CONSTRUCTION CO., LTD., [1924] 4 D. L. R. 868; 34 B. C. R. 351.—CAN.

664 ii. ——.]—Commercial success alone, without the solution of a difficulty, will not establish subject-matter.—DURABLE ELECTRIC APPLIANCE CO., LTD. v. RENFREW ELECTRIC PRODUCTS, LTD., DURABLE ELECTRIC APPLIANCE CO., LTD. v. SUPERIOR ELECTRICS, LTD., [1926] 4 D. L. R. 1004; 59 O. L. R. 527.—CAN.

664 iii. ——.]—WALLACE v. JACK & SON, LTD. (1904), 22 R. P. C. 581.—SCOT.

Sect. 3.—Utility: Sub-sects. 1 & 2. Part V. Sects. 1, 2, 3, 4 & 5: Sub-sect. 1.]

direct pressure of the compressed air against the bottom of the rim, & that the head of the spokes lay under the margins, & that no air could escape past the holes in the rim. In 1897 the owners of S.'s patent brought an action for infringement of the same against a co., who set up numerous defences, including disconformity, want of utility, insufficiency of description, & anticipation by the publication of a letter by B. in a cycling paper in 1890. In this letter B. suggested a tyre in one piece consisting alternately of rubber, canvas, & rubber, all vulcanised together, & stated that he had taken out a patent for a plan whereby the completely moulded tyre, made as above, should be cut longitudinally on the under side & provided with a non-return valve throughout the whole length & then the edges made up with canvas, & in that way he would be able to get at the inside & patch the hole in case of puncture. The application for this patent was not proceeded with. Pltfs. contended that S. was the first inventor of a detachable circumferentially air-sealed tyre. No tyres had been made under S.'s patent until 1896, & the tyres that had been made by pltfs. during & since that year were alleged by defts. to have certain features not disclosed by S.'s patent, & to owe their practicability to those features & to the employment of soft soap to produce an initial seal, soft soap not being at the date of the invention known for that purpose in connection with tyres:—Held: the patent was bad on account of disconformity & want of utility; on account of disconformity, because the complete specification included the form of tyre in which there was no overlapping of rubber on rubber, but a seal was stated to be obtained by the pressure of each of the margins of the tyre against the metal rim; & on accouut of want of utility, because the patented invention would not work except with the aid of subsequent discovery & invention.—TUBELESS PNEUMATIC TYRE & CAPON HEATON, LTD. v. TRENCH TUBELESS TYRE CO., LTD. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 291.

677. ——.] — ATKINS & APPLEGARTH v. CASTNER-KELLNER ALKALI CO., LTD., No. 662, ante.

678. ——.] — Hearing of appeal adjourned for further evidence as to the effect or non-effect of these processes:—Held: the evidence failed to establish that the difference created by these processes was a reasonably substantial & beneficial difference so as to justify the grant of a patent.—Re HODGKINS APPLICATION (1906), 23 R. P. C. 527.

679. ——.]—A patent was granted in 1895 for "An improved process for obtaining acetic acid from pyrolignate of lime." The claim was for a process for obtaining the pure acid by decomposing the pyrolignate with acids, & distilling over the released acetic acid in a vacuum, with the object of preventing any over distillation of the tar spirit or oils combined or mixed with the crude pyrolignate. At the trial of an action for infringement of the patent defts. alleged that the process was for obtaining the pure acid by a single distillation in a vacuum & gave evidence to show that the acid so produced contained tarry impurities & required a second distillation for its purification. The process used by defts. consisted in distilling in a vacuum & redistilling. Pltf. gave evidence to show that distillation of the pyrolignate in a vacuum reduced the quantity of sulphurous acid formed. Defts. contended that that advantage was not pointed out in the specification & that the patent was not limited to the use of sulphuric acid:—Held: pltf.'s process had not the useful result claimed for it; the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter; & if it had been valid, the process used by defts. would not have been an infringement.—VON DER LINDE v. BRUMMERSTAEDT & CO. (1909), 26 R. P. C. 289.

680. ——.] — Re MERK-WIRZ'S PATENT, No. 637, ante.

——Necessity for as constituting improvement.]—See Sect. 1, sub-sect. 5, B., ante.

——Necessity for as constituting combination.]—See Sect. 1, sub-sect. 7, B. (b), ante.

681. Question for jury.] — HILL v. THOMPSON, No. 666, ante.

682. Presumption against utility—Invention not in general use.]—(1) The term manufacture means either the machine or the mode of constructing the machine.

(2) The user of an invention by the patentee, for the purposes of commerce before the date of the patent will vitiate.

(3) The novelty of every part of the invention is the consideration of the grant.

(4) The inutility of parts of an invention will not vitiate if the result on the whole be useful, provided there be no false suggestion.

(5) It must be admitted that if the patentee himself had before his patent constructed machines for sale as an article of commerce, for gain to himself, & been in the practice of selling them publicly, that is, to any one of the public, who would buy, the invention would not be new at the date of the patent (PARKE, B.).—MORGAN v. SEAWARD (1837), 2 M. & W. 544; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 187; Murp. & H. 55; 2 Carp. Pat. Cas. 96; 6 L. J. Ex. 153; 1 Jur. 527; 150 E. R. 874.

Annotations:—As to (2) Consd. Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 2 B. & S. 194. As to (3) Consd. Bovill v. Finch (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 523. Generally, Reld. Heath v. Smith (1854), 3 E. & B. 256; Patterson v. Gas Light & Coke Co. (1877), 3 App. Cas. 239; United Horse Nail Co. v. Stewart (1885), 2 R. P. C. 122; Westley Richards v. Perkes (1893), 9 T. L. R. 351.

683. Degree of utility necessary to support patent—Effect of failure of part.]—HILL v. THOMPSON, No. 25, ante.

684. —— ——.] — MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

685. ——.]—PHILPOTT v. HANBURY, No. 649, ante.

686. ——.]—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. BASSANO, No. 252,

687. ——.] — WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO. v. NEW INCANDESCENT (SUNLIGHT PATENT) GAS LIGHTING CO., No. 661, ante.

688. ——.]—If there is a really good invention, & there is a minor claim for a subordinate part, a small amount of utility will support that minor claim (LORD ALVERSTONE, C.J.).—Re BROWN'S PATENT (1907), 25 R. P. C. 86, C. A.

689. Utility not specified in specification — For particular purpose—Sufficiency of showing any utility.]—(1) In an action for infringement of a patent for "Improvements in dobbins or apparatus for operating the healds of looms for weaving," defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid (inter alia) on the grounds of (a) the inutility of the invention claimed in the second claim; (b) that neither of the patentees was, but that J. was, the true & first inventor of the invention; (c) disconformity; (d) want of subject-matter; & (e) anticipation:—Held: neither disconformity nor want of utility was established.

(2) Where the alleged utility of a patent consists in presenting to the public an alternative or choice, there must be a useful alternative or a useful choice.

(3) If there is no representation in the specification as to utility for any particular purpose, it is sufficient if pltfs. can show any utility.—WARD BROTHERS v. HILL (JAMES) & SONS (1901), 18 R. P. C. 481; affd. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 189, C. A.

SUB-SECT. 2.—EVIDENCE OF WANT OF UTILITY.

690. Effect of non-user.]—MINTER v. MOWER (1835), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 138, N. P.; subsequent proceedings (1837), 6 Ad. & El. 735.

691. —— & non-sale.]—RAYNER v. LIVINGSTONE (1882), cited in 46 L. T. at p. 41.

Annotation:—Consd. Otto v. Linford (1882), 46 L. T. 35.

692. —— ——.]—OTTO v. LINFORD, No. 162, ante.

693. ——.]—Where an invention has not been brought into use during the term of the letters patent, but such non-user is satisfactorily accounted for, & the invention is one of great merit, an extension may be granted.—Re SOUTHBY'S PATENT, [1891] A. C. 432, P. C.

694. Limited user—Must be considered.]—ECCLES & BRIERLY v. MCGREGOR, No. 200, ante.

Part V.—Application for Patent.

SECT. 1.—WHO MAY APPLY.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 1 (1), (2), 43; Patent Rules, 1920, rr. 8–18.

Capacity to obtain letters patent.]—See Part II., ante.

Applications under international convention.] See Part XVI., post.

troller-General, acting under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 2 (5), required appct. to furnish samples; the requirements were only in part complied with. The chief examiner, acting for the Comptroller-General, required further samples to be furnished before acceptance of the complete specification.—Re J. Y. J.'s APPLICATIONS (1910), 28 R. P. C. 625.

SECT. 2.—FORM AND DATE OF APPLICATION.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 1, 2, 43, 91; 1919 (c. 80), Sched.; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 10–18.

695. Form—Application by foreign corporation.]—A foreign corpn. applied for a patent on form A., declaring that they were the true & first inventors of the invention. The Comptroller required the application to be amended. Form A. in the sched. to the Patent Rules is not applicable to the case of corpn., but is intended for personal appcts. who are true & first inventors; Form A. is intended for the use where there has been a communication from abroad, whether the communicator is a corpn. or private individual.—Re SOCIÉTÉ ANONYME DU GÉNÉRATEUR DU TEMPLE'S, APPLICATION (1895), 13 R. P. C. 54.

696. —— Co-applicants abroad—Where some have no equitable interest.]—NOTES OF OFFICIAL RULINGS, 1926 (A), No. 1056, post.

697. Date—Foreign patentee—Renewed application.]—Re VAN DE POELE'S PATENT (1889), 7 R. P. C. 69.

698. —— ——.]—Patent applied for under the convention must bear the same date as the appct.'s foreign patent.—Re SCOTT'S PATENT (1910), 27 R. P. C. 298.

699. —— Application left at Patent Office after hours.]—Re MATTHEWS & STRANGE'S APPLICATION (1910), 27 R. P. C. 288.

SECT. 3.—SAMPLES.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 2 (5); Patents Rules, 1920, r. 38.

700 Right of Comptroller to require samples—Chemical invention.]—On each of two applications for patents for chemical inventions the Comptroller-General, acting under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 2 (5), required appct. to furnish samples; the requirements were only in part complied with. The chief examiner, acting for the Comptroller-General, required further samples to be furnished before acceptance of the complete specification.—Re J. Y. J.'s APPLICATIONS (1910), 28 R. P. C. 625.

SECT. 4.—SPECIFICATION.

See Part VI., post.

SECT. 5.—PROCEDURE.

SUB-SECT. 1.—POWERS AND DUTIES OF COMPTROLLER.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 7 (1), 70, 74, 75, 78; Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), ss. 12, 17, sched.; & Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 10–18.

701. Reference of application to Examiner.]—Re C.'S APPLICATION, No. 712, post.

702. Matters for consideration of Comptroller—Whether a "manner of manufacture."]—Re COOPER'S APPLICATION, No. 103, ante.

703. —— ——.]—Re R.'S THREE APPLICATIONS (1923), 40 R. P. C. 465.

Annotation:—Refd. Re D. A. & K.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

704. —— ——.]—Re D. A. & K.'S APPLICATION (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

705. —— Whether an invention.]—Re A. F.'S APPLICATION (1913), 31 R. P. C. 58.

Annotation:—Apld. Re D. A. & K.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

706. —— Invention contravening known laws of mechanics.]—Re T. S.'S APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 530.

707. —— Whether invention obtained by fraud committed abroad—Application under international convention.]—On an opposition, under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11, to the grant of a patent on the grounds that the invention had been obtained from the opponent in the United States of America, & was the subject-matter of an application of the opponent made before the date of appct.'s application in the PART V. SECT. 2.

h. Delay caused by war.]—Re LOCOMOTIVE STOKER CORPN. LETTERS PATENT (1920), 20 Exch. C. R. 191.—CAN.

PART V. SECT. 3.

k. Necessity for filing model.]—The omission to file a model of an invention for which letters patent are applied for, is fatal to the validity of the patent issued without such model, & without any dispensation by the comr. of patents from filing a model.—CAMPBELL v. BATE (1883), 29 L. C. J. 47.—CAN.

PART V. SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 1.

l. Conflicting applications for patent—Power to appoint arbitrator.]—When there are more than two conflicting applications for any patent, & one of the appcts. has intimated to the comr.

Sect. 5.—Procedure: Sub-sects. 1, 2, 3, 4 & 5, A. & B. Sects. 6 & 7.]

United Kingdom, but after the date claimed by the appct. under the provisions of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 91, the opposition was dismissed by the Comptroller-General, who held that he had no jurisdiction to determine the issues raised, & that the opponent was not entitled to plead them in opposition to the grant of a patent:—Held: the decision of the Comptroller-General was right.—Re CURWEN'S APPLICATION (1912), 30 R. P. C. 128.

708. —— Disconformity between provisional & complete specification of prior patent.]—In considering whether a reference to a prior specification ought to be inserted in a later specification under Sect. 8 of Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), & 1919 (c. 80), on the ground that the invention claimed in the later specification has been wholly or in part claimed in the prior specification, the question of disconformity between the provisional & complete specifications of the prior patent is not a matter into which the law officer or the Comptroller ought to enter.—Re HANDLEY PAGE & HANDLEY PAGE, LTD.'S APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 109.

709. To accord earlier date to one of two identical specifications.]—A complete specification was filed under sect. 16 in respect of two provisional specifications, one of which was identical with an earlier provisional specification, & the date of the earlier specification was granted. The Examiner reported that the invention was in part claimed in the complete specification which had been filed in respect of the earlier provisional specification referred to. In order to avoid a statutory reference under sect. 8, two of co-appcts. agreed to convert the application into one for a patent of addition under sect. 19, but third appct. disagreed with this course. At a hearing under sect. 12 (1) (b) the Assistant-Comptroller decided that the application might proceed in the names of the two appcts. without the third. An appeal was lodged on the grounds that there was no dispute within the meaning of sect. 12 (1) (b) & that the earlier date should not have been accorded one of the provisional specifications. It was contended also that a provisional specification which had been cognated with another could not be again cognated. The Law Officer dismissed the appeal, holding that both grounds of appeal failed. —Re NOVOCRETES, LTD., CASE & GARROW'S APPLICATION (1926), 43 R. P. C. 171.

Amendment of specification.]—See Part VI., Sect. 7, post.

SUB-SECT. 2.—FILING OF SPECIFICATION.

Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 5; (c. 80), sched., Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 13, 30.

710. After time expired.] — Leave to file a specification, after the time for that purpose had expired, under the [illegible] (1886), 26 L. T. O. S. 90, L. JJ.

Mandatory order to compel filing—Refused on bonâ fide difference between parties.]—The [illegible]ers of two inventions relating to the same subject, for which provisional protection had been obtained, sold one third share of the inventions to pltf., & agreed to forthwith apply for patents for the inventions. Pltf. commenced an action for specific performance of this contract, & then moved for a mandatory order to compel defts. to file a complete specification in respect to the first invention. The nine months allowed for filing the complete specification would expire on May 1, 1894. Defts. put in evidence to show that it was useless to take out a patent for the first invention, & if it were done there might be great risk of rendering the second invalid. Pltf. disputed this, & alleged that it was to the interest of all parties to obtain a patent for the first invention:—Held: as there appeared to be a bonâ fide difference of opinion between the parties, & the evidence was conflicting, no order ought to be made, even if such an order could be made on motion.—PUNCHARD v. DADE (1894), 11 R. P. C. 257.

SUB-SECT. 3.—EXAMINATION OF APPLICATION.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 3 (1), (2), 6, 7 (1), 8 (1), 68; Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), sched., & Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 28–31.

712. Power of comptroller to refer.] — The question then arises, what are the powers of the Comptoller in such a case, & I should have thought that there was not much doubt upon the point, having regard to Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 5 (4), & s. 7 (1). Sect. 5 (4) provides that: "A complete specification, whether left on application or subsequently, must particularly describe & ascertain the nature of the invention, & in what manner it is to be performed, & must be accompanied by drawings if required," & that condition applies to the complete specification whether left originally or subsequently. There is then power in the Comptroller to refer these applications to Examiners. Under sect. 6, every application is reported upon by an Examiner, in order to ascertain whether the condition of sect. 5 (4) has been fulfilled. In my judgment the report of the Examiner is not to fetter the judgment of the Comptroller but to assist him, & if upon the face of the specification the Comptroller saw apart from the report of the Examiner that the specification was insufficient, it would be in his power to require an amendment. On reference to sect. 7 (1) it will be observed that the provision is that: "If the Examiner reports that the nature of the invention is not fairly "described," the Comptroller may refuse to accept the application or require that the application be amended before he proceeds. The amendment which is to be required is to be determined by the judicial act of the Comptroller, with an appeal to the law officer. Quite apart from any general practice, I should hold that it is not intended to relegate to the Examiner the function of deciding what the amendment is to be, though, undoubtedly, if the Examiner reports that there is a full & fair description, the application goes on (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re C.'S APPLICATION (1890), 7 R. P. C. 250.

713. Object of reference—Assistance of comptroller.]—Re C.'S APPLICATION, No. 712, ante.

714. —— Report on nature of invention.] — Re C.'S APPLICATION, No. 712, ante.

715. —— Conformity of complete specification to statutory requirements.]—Re C.'S APPLICATION, No. 712, ante.

that he will not unite with the other appcts. in appointing arbitrators, the appointment may be made by the comr. | without notice to or consultation of the wishes of the other appcts.—FALLER v. AYLEN (1904), 8 O. L. R. 70; 4 O. W. R. 97; 24 C. L. T. 322.—CAN.

716. Authority of examiner — To decide nature of amendment.]—Re C.'S APPLICATION, No. 712, ante.

717. —— To report alleged invention no invention.]—Appct. lodged an application for a patent & a provisional & a complete specification, & the application was referred by the Comptroller-General of patents to an Examiner under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 3. On the Examiner's report that the application did not refer to a manner of new manufacture & was therefore not within Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 93, the Comptroller refused to accept the application. A rule nisi having been obtained for a mandamus to the Comptroller to hear the application according to law, on the ground that in refusing it for the reason that it did not refer to a manner of new manufacture he had exceeded his jurisdiction:—Held: the rule must be discharged, (1) because the examiner was entitled under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 3 (2), to report that the alleged invention was not an invention at all, & (2) because the appropriate remedy was not by mandamus, but by appeal to the law officer.—R. v. COMPTROLLER-GENERAL OF PATENTS, Ex p. MUNTZ (1922), 127 L. T. 547; 38 T. L. R. 652; 66 Sol. Jo. 558; 39 R. P. C. 335, D. C.

Annotation:—As to (1) Refd. Re D. A. & K.'s Appln. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 154.

718. Report of examiner — Not binding on Comptroller.]—Re C.'S APPLICATION, No. 712, ante.

719. Investigation of previous specifications—What amounts to publication.]—On an application for a patent by P. & S. it was held by the Chief Examiner, acting for the Comptroller, that a specification which is open to public inspection under Patents Act, 1901 (c. 18), s. 1 (2), now re-enacted by Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 91 (3) (a), is "published" within the meaning of sect. 7 of the Act, & that a specification of T. was so published. Appcts. appealed:—Held: the decision of the Chief Examiner was right.—Re PARSONS & STONEY'S APPLICATION (1910), 27 R. P. C. 491.

Amendment by Comptroller.]—See Part VI., Sect. 7, post.

SUB-SECT. 4.—HEARING BEFORE COMPTROLLER.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 7, 8, 73, 77; 1919 (c. 80), sched.; Patents Rules, 1920, r. 34.

SUB-SECT. 5.—APPEAL FROM COMPTROLLER.

A. In General.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 3 (3), 6 (4), 7 (5), 40, 77; Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 17.

720. Appeal to law officer—Attorney-General not a court.]—The A.-G. could not by sub-sect. 8 [of Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57)] make a valid amendment if it made the specification substantially larger or substantially different from the invention claimed by the original specification. . . . Sub-sect. 9 [of Patents, Design & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57)] had not the effect of making an amendment wrongly allowed conclusive; & if any one attempted to enforce the patent so amended, he could be met by saying that the amendment was a nullity & could not alter the original specification. The words in sub-sect. 9, for all purposes, had not the effect of altering the law as it stood before the Act. The A.-G. though acting judicially in the matter, was not a ct., & no prohibition would lie (LORD ESHER, M.R.).—Ex p. SIMON (1888), 4 T. L. R. 754, C. A.

721. ——.]—R. v. COMPTROLLER-GENERAL OF PATENTS, Ex p. MUNTZ, No. 717, ante.

722. Admission of new evidence—Grounds of refusal—Acceptance of Comptroller's decision by applicant.]—Re HAMPTON & FACER (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 13.

723. —— —— Opportunity of filing declarations before Comptroller.]—Re PITT'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 343.

724. Cross-examination — Refused where opportunity of filing declarations before Comptroller.]—Re PITT'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 343.

B. Costs.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 40.

725. General rule.] — Under ordinary circumstances, where the parties are not successful in in appealing, I shall award costs against the unsuccessful party, but this is a case of a second disclaimer, & I have always held the opinion that second disclaimers are not to be encouraged if they can possibly be avoided, & therefore, as they must be narrowly watched, I shall make no order as to costs.—Re HADDAN'S PATENT (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 12.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Ashworth's Patent (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 6.

726. Power of law officer—Defined by statute.]—Re PIETSCHMANN'S PATENT, No. 1334, post.

On amendment.]—See Part VI., Sect. 7, subsect. 2, II., post.

SECT. 6.—ACCEPTANCE OF SPECIFICATION.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 6 (5), 7 (3), 9, 10; Patent Rules, 1920, rr. 39–41.

727. Injunction to restrain acceptance—"Lawful ground of objection"—Secret processes.]—REX CO. & REX RESEARCH CORPN. v. MUIRHEAD & CONTROLLER-GENERAL OF PATENTS (1926), 162 L. T. Jo. 409.

SECT. 7.—WITHDRAWAL OF APPLICATION.

728. Joint application — Threat of inventor to abandon.]—WOOL, HIDE & SKIN SYNDICATE, LTD. v. RICHES (1902), 19 R. P. C. 127.

Annotation:—Consd. Re A. & B.'s Appln. (1910), 28 R. P. C. 454.

729. —— Effect of abandonment by inventor.]—Re A. & B.'S APPLICATION (1910), 28 R. P. C. 454.

Part VI.—Specifications.

SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

730. Object of specification—To inform public.]—LIARDET v. JOHNSON, No. 844, post.

731. —— ——.]—R. v. ARKWRIGHT, No. 14, ante.

732. —— ——.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

733. —— ——.]—HOLMES v. LONDON & NORTH-WESTERN RY. CO., No. 1049, post.

734. —— ——.]—YOUNG & NEILSON v. ROSENTHAL & CO., No. 460, ante.

735. —— ——.]—A specification, although inartistically & in places inaccurately worded, held sufficiently to describe the patented invention so as to enable a reasonably well-informed artisan to make that which was patented.

Where a patentee in his specification describes his invention as being for improvements on what he has previously patented, the ct. will not readily construe the specification as claiming what the patentee had previously patented.

The meaning which I think, in my view of the patent law, has always been placed on the object & purpose of a specification is, that it is to enable, not any one, but a reasonably well-informed artisan dealing with a subject-matter with which he is familiar, to make the thing, so as to make it available for the public at the end of the protected period (LORD HALSBURY, C.).—TUBES, LTD. v. PERFECTA SEAMLESS STEEL TUBE CO., LTD. (1902), 20 R. P. C. 77, H. L.

736. —— ——.]—The patentee's obligation is not to be omniscient; the patentee's obligation is to put the public in the possession of his invention, & if he does that bonâ fide in such a way that they know its advantages practically, & they can obtain those advantages practically, the fact that he has formed an erroneous view in theory of that which procures those advantages, or the state of things in which those advantages occur, does not, in my opinion, militate against him. He does not thereby deceive the Crown in such a sense as to militate against the validity of the grant (FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J.).—"Z" ELECTRIC LAMP MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. v. MARPLES, LEACH & CO., LTD. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 737, C. A.

737. —— Protection of patentee's rights.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

738. —— ——.]—YOUNG & NEILSON v. ROSENTHAL & CO., No. 460, ante.

739. —— ——.]—HOLMES v. LONDON & NORTH-WESTERN RY. CO., No. 1049, post.

740. Effect of partial invalidity.]—KAY v. MARSHALL, No. 354, ante.

741. Effect of mistaken theory.]—ATKINS & APPLEGARTH v. CASTNER-KELLNER ALKALI CO., LTD., No. 662, ante.

742. Must not contain more than one invention.]—Re HEARSON'S PATENT (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 266.

743. ——.]—Re ROBINSON'S PATENT, No. 755, post.

744. ——.]—Re Z.'S APPLICATION (1910), 27 R. P. C. 285.

745. Must not include irrelevant matter.]—Re FRANCIS' APPLICATION, No. 1454, post.

SECT. 2.—TITLE.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 2 (4); Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 13, 14.

746. Right of patentee to frame—In accordance with statutory rules.]—The patentee is entitled to frame his title in his own way provided he does not infringe the rules of the statute, & I think, having regard to the narrow nature of the claims, the present title is sufficient. It must, of course, be distinctly understood that I express no opinion as to whether if the specification comes to be litigated he can claim anything more than that which is covered by his title & claims, but he has elected to stand upon his title, & his claims being thus specific I think the title is sufficient (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re BROWN (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 1.

747. Vagueness & generality—Must not be too vague.]—COCHRANE v. SMETHURST (1816), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 57; 1 Stark. 205; Dav. Pat. Cas. 354; 47 E. R. 1048, L. C.

Annotations:—Dbtd. Cook v. Pearce (1844), 8 Q. B. 1054. Refd. Platt v. Else (1853), 8 Exch. 364.

748. —— Crown may object on grounds of—Before patent granted.]—Mere vagueness & generality in the title of a patent is an objection which may be taken on the part of the Crown before it grants the patent, but does not afford a ground for holding the patent void after it has been granted, in the absence of any evidence of fraud upon the Crown, or prejudice to the public.—COOKE v. PEARCE (1844), 13 L. J. Q. B. 189; 2 L. T. O. S. 371; 8 Jur. 499, Ex. Ch.

Annotations:—Apld. Nickels v. Haslam (1844), 7 Man. & G. 378. Consd. Penn v. Bibby (1866), 2 Ch. App. 127. Refd. Stead v. Williams (1844), 7 Man. & G. 818; Wallington v. Dale (1852), 7 Exch. 888; Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 29 L. J. Q. B. 193.

749. —— Mere generality insufficient to vitiate patent—In absence of evidence of fraud—Or prejudice to public.]—COOKE v. PEARCE, No. 748, ante.

750. Must correctly describe invention.]—A brush differing from a common one in no other respect than in the circumstance that the hairs or bristles are purposely made of unequal lengths, is improperly described in a patent for a new invention as a tapering brush.—R. v. METCALF (1817), 2 Stark. 249; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 141, n.

Annotation:—Refd. Neilson v. Harford (1841), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 295.

751. Must not include previous discovery.]—A patent was taken out "for an improved method of making sailcloth without any starch whatever." The improvement or discovery, if any, consisted in a new mode of texture, & not in the exclusion of starch, the advantage of excluding which had been discovered & made public before:—Held: the patent was void, as claiming, in addition to what the patentee had discovered, the discovery of something already made public.—CAMPION v. BENYON (1821), 3 Brod. & Bing. 5; 6 Moore, C. P. 71; 129 E. R. 1184.

752. Must be consistent with specification.]—NEILSON v. HARFORD, No. 83, ante.

753. ——.]—Re BROWN, No. 746, ante.

754. —— What amounts to inconsistency—Not plural for singular.]—Pltf. obtained letters patent for "improvements in the manufacture of plaited fabrics": the specification described that which together amounted to but a single improvement in the mode of manufacture:—Held: this was not such an inconsistency between the title of the patent & the description in the specification as to invalidate the patent.—NICKELS v. HASLAM (1844), 7 Man. & G. 378; 8 Scott, N. R. 97; 13 L. J. C. P. 146; 3 L. T. O. S. 76; 8 Jur. 474; 135 E. R. 158.

Annotation:—Refd. Beard v. Egerton (1846), 3 C. B. 97.

755. Amendment of title—When more than one invention claimed.]—If you intend to claim as a combination the whole of this apparatus as one telegraphic apparatus, then it might all be included in one specification, but if you are including for all purposes the invention of "the appliance," then it is something different, which cannot be protected by the same patent. I should allow this if the whole was limited to telegraphy, because that would make an improved telegraphic arrangement, &, although consisting of several parts, I should allow it to be included in one patent; but if you have two separate things like this, which can only be allowed together because they all go to make up one better kind of instrument or machine, then I should never allow the use of a part of that for a purpose independent of the main purpose of that machine. It is, therefore, a question for you whether it answers your purpose better to protect "the appliance" for all purposes, or to protect improved telgraphic apparatus which consists in the employment of "the appliance" therein. I will allow either of those, but it is for you to say which will be the most to your advantage (HERSCHELL, S.-G.).

Appct. elected to take a patent for the general use of "the appliance." The Solicitor-General allowed the title to be amended to "improvements in the art of producing & utilising induced electrical currents," the description of the telegraphic apparatus being struck out from the provisional.—Re ROBINSON'S PATENT (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 267.

Amendment of specification.]—See Part VI., Sect. 7, post.

SECT. 3.—PROVISIONAL SPECIFICATION.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 2 (1).

756. Distinguished from complete specification.]—FOXWELL v. BOSTOCK, No. 909, post.

757. ——.]—The functions of the provisional & complete specifications are defined by sect. 2 of the Act of 1907 [Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29)]. The complete specification must particularly describe & ascertain the nature of the invention & the manner in which the same is to be performed. Less is demanded of the provisional specification, but it must describe the nature of the invention. The act by contrast with its requirements in regard to the complete specification impliedly permits some generality & some uncertainty in the provisional specification (SIR LESLIE SCOTT, S.-G.).—Re BRUCE'S APPLICATION (1922), 39 R. P. C. 341.

758. Function of provisional specification—Description of nature of invention.]—Re NEWALL, ELLIOT & GLASS, No. 526, ante.

759. —— ——.]—FOXWELL v. BOSTOCK, No. 909, post.

760. —— ——.]—PENN v. BIBBY, No. 402, ante.

761. —— ——.]—All that a patentee need do in his provisional specification is to describe his invention. He need not go on therein to describe any method of carrying out the invention, but, whether he do so or not, if a different or further mode of carrying out the invention is described in his complete specification, that will not invalidate the patent so long as such new method of carrying out is fairly within the invention as described in the provisional specification.

. . . It is clear that improvements in the arrangement of the mechanism, in the relative position & adaptation of the different parts, with a view of producing the same results, the substitution of mechanical equivalents, & modifications & developments within the scope of the invention set out in the provisional specification, are allowable, & cannot be successfully relied on for the purpose of invalidating a patent on the ground of nonconformity (LOPES, L.J.).—WOODWARD v. SANSUM & Co. (1887), 56 L. T. 347; 4 R. P. C. 166, C. A.

Annotations:—Apld. Siddell v. Vickers (1888), 39 Ch. D. 92. Consd. Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Leicester Pneumatic Tyre & Automatic Valve Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 159. Apld. Ward v. Hill (1903), 20 R. P. C. 189. Consd. Re Geipel's Patent (1904), 52 W. R. 339. Refd. Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co. (1887), 57 L. T. 142; Kelvin v. Whyte, Thomson (1907), 25 R. P. C. 177.

762. —— ——.]—In an action as to the validity of a patent for improvements in the manufacture of ornamental designs on waterproof fabrics & for infringement, pltf.'s patent was impeached on the ground of differences between the provisional & the complete specification, & that the alleged invention was not a proper subject-matter for a patent; & also on the grounds of prior publication & prior user:—Held: (1) the object of the provisional specification was only to describe the nature of the invention pursuant to Patent Law (Amendment) Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 8, that it was the creature of statute, & the object of its introduction was to enable the inventor to obtain protection for his invention for six months, during which time he might use & publish his invention without prejudice to any letters patent to be granted for the same; & that its object was only to describe generally & fairly the nature of the invention, & not to enter into all the minute details of the complete specification.

(2) If the patentee discovered in the interval between the filing of the provisional, & the complete specification, any improvement in the manner in which the invention was to be performed, he was not merely at liberty but was bound to give the public the benefit of his discovery.—MOSELEY v. VICTORIA RUBBER CO. (1887), 57 L. T. 142.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Morgan v. Windover (1887), 3 T. L. R. 748; Otto v. Singer (1889), 62 L. T. 220.

763. —— ——.]—It is since Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), no less than before, an essential condition of a good patent that the provisional specification should describe the true nature of the invention, & that the invention there described should be the same as that claimed in the complete specification; & non-compliance with the condition is a ground for revocation of the patent.

The patentee of an invention for tapping beer barrels, & preventing waste & leakage, described his invention in the provisional specification as a plug screwed into the barrel end with a valve, & spring, & guide to keep the valve in its place. In the complete specification he added a description of a gauze strainer to keep impurities from escaping into the tap. It was proved that the gauze strainer was the only thing really novel or useful in the invention:—Held: the provisional specification did not describe the true nature of the invention, & the patent was invalid. NUTTALL v. HARGREAVES, [1892] 1 Ch. 23; 61 L. J. Ch. 94; 65 L. T. 597; 40 W. R. 200; 36 Sol. Jo. 60, C. A.

Annotations:—Distd. Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn.

PART VI. SECT. 3.

n. Ambiguous description—Admissibility of evidence.]—If a provisional specification is ambiguous in the sense that the language is apt to describe two different things, evidence is admissible to show of which appct. was actually speaking.—DUNLOP v. COOPER (1908), 7 C. L. R. 146.—AUS.

Sect. 3.—Provisional specification. Sect. 4: Subsects. 1 & 2, A. (a).]

(1892), 67 L. T. 569. Refd. Lane Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 2 Ch. 66; Mandleberg v. Morley (1895), 64 L. J. Ch. 245.

764. —— ——.]—Re BRUCE'S APPLICATION, No. 757, ante.

765. —— Not description of method.]—Re NEWALL, ELLIOTT & GLASS, No. 526, ante.

766. —— ——.]—WOODWARD v. SANSUM & CO., No. 761, ante.

767. —— ——.]—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. EAST LONDON RUBBER CO., No. 930, post.

768. —— Not complete description.]—STONER v. TODD, No. 645, ante.

769. —— ——.]—Pltf. was the patentee of an invention for centering the recording index of a ship's telegraph. Defts. had devised a precisely similar arrangement. They put forward a number of alleged anticipations to show that part of pltf.'s was old, which was admitted, & had been used for analogous purposes, & that what was new was merely an obvious & necessary arrangement to enable the old part to work under new conditions. Some of the claims were alleged to be too wide, & to cover what was already well known. Three of the claims applied to a double sounding gong mechanism, which sounded almost on completion of the order; it was alleged that this device was not disclosed in the provisional specification. Objection was taken that the invention was not subject-matter, but in their particulars defts. only alluded expressly to the indicating device. The judge did not allow them to set up want of subject-matter in relation to the gong mechanism on the ground that their particulars were misleading, & they declined to avail themselves of the opportunity of amendment on certain terms:—Held: the invention was not anticipated; it was sufficiently disclosed in the provisional specification; & defts. had infringed.—CHADBURN v. MECHAN & SONS (1895), 12 R. P. C. 120.

770. —— Not to make claim.]—It is not the function of a provisional specification to claim anything. The claim is in point of fact a disclaimer; it shows what parts, & what parts only, of the whole invention you mean to protect by your patent. Here pltf. does not attempt to claim by his complete specification any new invention entirely separate & apart from that which was described in the provisional specification; but having described the mode of opening the lamp & barrel, it occurs to him that it would be an improvement upon that particular form of lamp to which this improvement is specially adapted, to have a rim within the barrel into which he could slide these washers. Now, is that an invention so completely apart from the invention described in the provisional specification that it makes the complete specification bad because it is a part of the claim in the complete specification? In my opinion it most clearly is not (KAY, J.).—LUCAS v. MILLER (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 156; 2 R. P. C. 155.

Annotations:—Distd. Horrocks v. Stubbs (1886), 3 R. P. C. 221. Refd. Osmonds v. Balmoral Cycle Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 505.

771. —— Not advantages of invention.]—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. EAST LONDON RUBBER CO., No. 930, post.

772. Effect of lodging provisional specification —Six months' protection—Without prejudice to issue of patent—To second applicant.]—Leaving a provisional specification & obtaining provisional protection does not prevent a second appct. from leaving a provisional specification of a similar invention, & obtaining valid letters patent for the invention before six months have elapsed from the time when the first provisional specification was left; & in such a case, letters patent will not be granted to first appct. for any part of his invention which is covered by the letters patent already obtained by second appct.—Ex p. BATES & REDGATE (1869), 4 Ch. App. 577; 38 L. J. Ch. 501; 21 L. T. 410; 17 W. R. 900, L. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Ex p. Manceaux (1870), 6 Ch. App. 272. Distd. Ex p. Scott & Young (1871), 6 Ch. App. 274. Folld. Ex p. Bailey (1872), 8 Ch. App. 60. Expld. Ex p. Henry (1872), 8 Ch. App. 167. Consd. Lee v. Walker (1872), L. R. 7 C. P. 121; Saxby v. Hennett (1873), 28 L. T. 639. Dbtd. & Distd. Re Dering's Patent (1879), 13 Ch. D. 393. Expld. Kurtz v. Spence (1887), 58 L. T. 438.

773. —— —— —— ——.]—The Crown will in some cases, after granting one patent, grant a second patent for a similar invention.

D. & R. independently applied on Apr. 29, 1879, for letters patent for inventions, which were, for the purpose of the decision, taken to be similar. R.'s letters patent were sealed on July 25, 1879, & on Aug. 5, 1879, he entered an opposition to the sealing of D.'s letters patent. There was no suggestion of fraud:—Held: D.'s letters patent ought to be sealed & be dated as of the day of application, which was also the date of R.'s letters patent.

Two appcts. apply in perfectly good faith upon the same day for patents for what I may call cognate inventions, made respectively by each appct. without any knowledge of what the other was doing or had done. I will assume now that to a greater or less extent those inventions are identical. Before the six months are out one of appcts. succeeds in getting his letters patent sealed. Now, what is the position of the Crown? & what should the Crown do in such a case? Primâ facie the Crown ought to seal both patents. The contract with each of them on provisional protection was that he should have six months' protection. Now, if it is true that both have acted in good faith, what right have I to confiscate the invention of one because it happens to be identical with the invention of the other? (LORD CAIRNS, C.).—Re DERING'S PATENT (1879), 13 Ch. D. 393; 42 L. T. 634; 28 W. R. 710, C. A.

Annotation:—Consd. Kurtz v. Spence (1887), 58 L. T. 438.

774. —— —— ——.]—MOSELEY v. VICTORIA RUBBER CO., No. 762, ante.

775. —— Protection until filing of complete specification.]—STONER v. TODD, No. 645, ante.

776. On what grounds impeachable — Not generality.]—It appears to me that the objections on the provisional are wholly out of place as to the question of invalidating the patent, except from one very particular & narrow point of view. If you really think you have a case in which you can establish that the patentee has done a very dishonest thing, taken out his patent before he has completed his invention, & therefore was not the inventor at the time he got his patent, it may be of use to you to help you when you have other evidence tending that way; it may be of use to you to eke that out, by showing that his provisional mentions nothing at all about it, &, therefore, you might say there is an additional probability that he knew nothing at all about it. But here I have the patentee produced; he has been cross-examined; he has fixed it as to the date, & he has sworn positively that he had completed his working model before he had applied for his patent. The fact that the provisional does not say enough is a matter for the law officer to consider when it is laid before him, but there is nothing in the Act of Parliament which says that the patent is invalid because the provisional is insufficient. It does say, that if the complete be sufficient the patent is valid, &, therefore, I have nothing to do with the provisional beyond bearing it in mind as a piece of evidence that can be produced to a very useful purpose upon the question I have adverted to, whether or not the invention has been made (WOOD, V.-C.).—CURTIS v. PLATT (1863), 3 Ch. D. 135, n.; 8 L. T. 657; Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 53: Goodeve's Patent Cases, 144; affd. (1864), 11 L. T. 245; (1866), L. R. 1 H. L. 337, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Siddell v. Vickers (1888), 39 Ch. D. 92. Refd. Foxwell v. Bostock (1864), 10 L. T. 144; Adie v. Clarke (1876), 3 Ch. D. 134; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (1883), 24 Ch. D. 156; Proctor v. Bennis (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740; Gosnell v. Bishop (1888), 5 R. P. C. 151; Thomson v. Moore (1889), 6 R. P. C. 426; Ticket Punch & Register Co. v. Colley's Patents (1895), 11 T. L. R. 262; Akt. Separator v. Dairy Outfit Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 327; British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Thompson (1904), 22 R. P. C. 177; Van Berkel v. Booth (1906), 23 R. P. C. 573; Harrison Patents Co. v. Nicholson (1908), 25 R. P. C. 393. Mentd. Murray v. Clayton (1873), 21 W. R. 498; Miller v. Clyde Bridge Steel Co. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 470.

777. ——— ———.]—PENN v. BIBBY, No. 402, ante.

778. When inspection granted—Not to patentees of similar invention.]—(1) An application under 16 & 17 Vict. c. 115, s. 2, for the inspection of the provisional specification of certain letters patent, on the ground that the subject-matter was the same as that for which appct. had obtained a patent, refused.

(2) Letters patent sealed in a case where the evidence showed great similarity between the alleged invention & one for which a patent was already in force.—Re TOLSON'S PATENT (1856), 6 De G. M. & G. 422; 27 L. T. O. S. 94; 4 W. R. 518; 43 E. R. 1297, L. C.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Re Spence's Patent (1859), 32 L. T. O. S. 326. Generally, Refd. Murray v. Clayton (1873), 21 W. R. 498.

779. Production in subsequent action for infringement—Jurisdiction of court to order.]—An action for infringement of a patent having been brought, defts. set up (inter alia) the defence of prior user. On deft. being called & cross-examined, pltfs.' counsel called an official from the Patent Office to produce the provisional specification of an invention, in respect of which said deft. had applied for letters patent, but had subsequently abandoned the application. Deft. questioned the jurisdiction of the ct. to allow production:—Held: notwithstanding Patent, Designs & Trade Marks (Amendment) Act, 1885 (c. 63), s. 4, the ct. could allow production of, & reference to, such provisional specification for the purposes of the administration of justice.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. ENGLISH CYCLE & TYRE CO. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 851.

Necessity for conformity with complete specification.]—See Part VI., Sect. 3, sub-sect. 2, D., post.

Duty to disclose subsequent discoveries.]—See Part VI., Sect. 4, sub-sect. 2, C. (b) & D. (b), post.

SECT. 4.—COMPLETE SPECIFICATION.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 1 (3), 2.

780. Function of complete specification—To describe nature of invention particularly—Distinguished from provisional specification.]—FOXWELL v. BOSTOCK, No. 909, post.

781. Effect of lodging complete specification—Six months' protection—Without prejudice to rights of previous applicant.]—(1) It is the duty of the law officer to hear & determine which of two rival appcts. for patents is entitled to a patent, & the question ought not to be remitted to the Lord Chancellor by directing warrants for both patents.

(2) An appct. for a patent does not, by lodging a complete specification & obtaining protection, acquire the rights of a patentee so as, during the six months' protection, to prevent any other person who had previously applied for a patent for a similar invention from obtaining a patent.

(3) It is no objection to the grant of a patent that another person has been making experiments & working towards a similar invention.—Ex p. HENRY (1872), 8 Ch. App. 167; sub nom. Re HENRY'S APPLICATION, Re FARQUHARSON'S APPLICATION, 42 L. J. Ch. 363; 21 W. R. 233, L. C.

Annotation:—Generally, Refd. Saxby v. Hennett (1873), 28 L. T. 639.

782. Who must sign—Signature of all applicants not necessary.]—The Comptroller-General refused to accept the complete specification because it had not been signed by both appcts. On appeal, the decision of Comptroller-General was reversed.—Re GRENFELL & MCEVOY'S PATENT (1889), 7 R. P. C. 151.

Annotation:—Distd. Re A. & B.'s Appln. (1910), 28 R. P. C. 454.

SUB-SECT. 2.—ESSENTIALS.

A. Certainty of Description.

(a) In General.

783. Must not contain more than requisite.]—R. v. ARKWRIGHT, No. 14, ante.

784. Must not be misleading.]—A patent is void, if the specification be ambiguous, or give directions which tend to mislead the public. TURNER v. WINTER (1787), Dav. Pat. Cas. 145; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 77; 1 Term Rep. 602; 99 E. R. 1274.

Annotations:—Consd. Hill v. Thompson (1818), 8 Taunt. 375; Derosne v. Fairie (1835), 2 Cr. M. & R. 476; Bickford v. Skewes (1841), 1 Q. B. 938. Apld. Re Alsop's Patent (1907), 24 R. P. C. 733. Refd. Boulton v. Bull (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463; Crompton v. Ibbotson (1828), Dan. & Ll. 33; Lewis v. Marling (1829), 10 B. & C. 22; Neilson v. Harford (1841), 8 M. & W. 806; Brown v. Annandale (1842), 8 Cl. & Fin. 437; Walton v. Bateman (1842), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 613; Wegmann v. Corcoran (1879), 13 Ch. D. 65; Hatmaker v. Nathan (1917), 35 R. P. C. 61.

785. ———.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

786. ———.]—HUDDART v. GRIMSHAW, No. 872, post.

787. ——— Erroneous theory.]—"Z" ELECTRIC LAMP MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. v. MARPLES, LEACH & CO., LTD., No. 736, ante.

788. ———.]—KNIGHT v. ARGYLLS, LTD., No. 1068, post.

789. ——— Result claimed not produced.]—A patent was granted for "improvements in drying & preserving milk & milk like products." In the specification one of the claims was for a process of drying milk consisting in delivering it in limited quantity upon a surface heated above 212 degrees Fahrenheit but not above 270; so that it boiled

PART VI. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.—A. (a).

784 i. Must not be misleading.]—Under the local Patent Act the same particularity as to specification is not required as that called for under the English Acts; errors of defect or excess, unless made to mislead, will not void the patent.—HARVEY v. MURRAY (1879), 6 Nfld. L. R. 183.—NFLD.

o. Intention to claim general principle—Must not be too general.]—Specifications containing in general terms a claim for the use of certain things already known & used for the same general purpose as that intended by the inventor are bad if the claim is so violently & in them exposing it in a thin layer or film upon a surface similarly heated until it was reduced to a solid but moist condition & it was stated that by drying milk rapidly by the employment of a high temperature as described the solids of milk were obtained in a dry but otherwise unaltered condition. In the first of two consolidated actions for infringement of the patent, pltf. alleged infringement in respect of the dry product of whole milk & in the second action infringement in respect of the product of separated milk. Defts. denied infringement & alleged that the patent was invalid for want of novelty & subject-matter & because the specification gave no sufficient directions to enable a product having the described properties to be obtained. At the trial it was held that the fat & casein in the milk were not by the patentee's process obtained in a dry but otherwise unaltered condition & that the patent was invalid by reason of a material representation as to the utility & result of the invention, contained in the specification, being inaccurate, & the result claimed & described not being produced. A certificate as to the specifications alleged to be anticipations was not given :—Held: the process described in the specification of the patent sued on did not produce the results which the patentee said that it did & the patent was invalid.—HATMAKER v. NATHAN (JOSEPH) & CO., LTD. (1919), 36 R. P. C. 231, H. L.

Sect. 4.—Complete specification: Sub-sect. 2, A. (a) & (b).]

790. Must not be ambiguous.]—TURNER v. WINTER, No. 784, ante.

791. ——.]—HILL v. THOMPSON, No. 25, ante.

792. ——.]—R. v. WHEELER, No. 149, ante.

793. ——.]—GALLOWAY v. BLEADEN, No. 541, ante.

794. ——.]—BEARD v. EGERTON, No. 1107, post.

795. ——.]—One observation refers to the extremely ambiguous & difficult character of the specification. The statute requires it to be a distinct statement of what is the invention. In construing a specification one has to remember that it is a document not only assuring a monopoly to the patentee, which but for the statute would be contrary to the common law, but so prohibiting any one, other than the patentee, doing what he would be free to do, but for the right which is granted, subject to the condition, among other things, that the patentee states distinctly what his invention is. If he designedly makes it ambiguous, in my judgment the patent would undoubtedly be bad on that ground; but even if negligently or unskilfully he fails to make distinct what his invention is, I am of opinion that the condition is not fulfilled & the consequence would be that the patent would be bad (LORD HALSBURY).—BRITISH ORE CONCENTRATION SYNDICATE, LTD. v. MINERALS SEPARATION, LTD. (1909), 27 R. P. C. 33, H. L.

Annotation:—Refd. Minerals Separation v. Ore Concentration Co. (1905), Ltd., [1909] 1 Ch. 744.

796. ——.]—NATURAL COLOUR KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD. v. BIOSCHEMES, LTD., No. 996, post.

797. Intention to claim general principle—Must be reasonably clear.]—ACKROYD & BEST, LTD. v. THOMAS & WILLIAMS, No. 1000, post.

798. Effect of ambiguity—Whole patent void.]—I think it is my duty to state explicitly that those who file & secure specifications must take the risk of having the whole thing declared void for ambiguity (LORD LOREBURN, C.).—LINOTYPE & MACHINERY, LTD. v. HOPKINS (1910), 27 R. P. C. 109; sub nom. HOPKINS v. LINOTYPE & MACHINERY, LTD., 101 L. T. 898; 26 T. L. R. 229, H. L.

(b) Degree of Certainty Required.

799. General principle.]—This question of vagueness as against a specification is often, of course, a serious question. But the principle of the matter can be expressed thus :—A patentee must not use language so vague as to enable him to secure a monopoly for more than his real invention, & so to invade the rights of free rivals. But, on the other hand, it is permissible to state the real invention in language of such generality as is essential to preserve it & to prevent those rivals from invading the rights of the patentee (LORD SHAW).—WATSON, LAIDLAW & CO., LTD. v. POTT, CASSELS & WILLIAMSON (1911), 28 R. P. C. 565, H. L.

Annotation:—Distd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Corona Lamp Works (1920), 37 R. P. C. 67.

800. As to materials.]—A patent was granted for a machine to sharpen knives & scissors, &, in the specification, this was directed to be done, by passing their edges backward & forward in an angle formed by the intersection of two circular files; & in the specification it was also stated that other materials might be used according to the delicacy of the edge. It was proved that, for scissors, there ought to be one circular file, & a smooth surface, but that two Turkey stones might also succeed :—Held: the specification was bad, as it neither directed the machines for scissors to be made with Turkey stones nor to be made with one circular file & a smooth surface.—FELTON v. GREAVES (1829), 3 C. & P. 611, N. P.

801. —— Some only effective.]—BICKFORD v. SKEWES, No. 868, post.

802. —— ——.]—In a patent for a process or method of combining various materials so as to form stuccoes, plasters & cements, & for the manufacture of artificial stones, marbles, etc., used in buildings, the specification, after stating the invention to consist in producing certain hard cements of the combination of the power of gypsum, powder of limestone & chalk, with other materials, such combinations being, subsequent to their mixing, submitted to heat, described the method or process of making a cement from gypsum to consist in mixing with powdered gypsum strong alkali, for instance, best American pearlash, dissolved in a certain proportion of water, this solution to be neutralised with acid, sulphuric acid being the best; the mass to be kept in agitation, & the acid to be added gradually till the effervescence should cease; & then a certain proportion of water to be added, if other alkali were used, the quantity to be varied in proportion to its strength; & the mixture having been brought to a proper consistence by the further addition of powdered gypsum, to be dried in moulds, & finally subjected to a furnace capable of producing a red general in its language as to cover any such other combinations of recognised methods of giving effect to a well-recognised principle.—TAYLOR v. CROWN IRONWORKS CO., LTD. (1902), 23 N. Z. L. R. 5.—N.Z.

p. Must not be uncertain.]—TAYLOR v. BRANDON MANUFACTURING CO. (1894), 21 A. R. 361.—CAN.

PART VI. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.—A. (b).

799 i. General principle.]—The description in the specification of an article patented must be sufficient not only to allow a skilled workman to construct it, but to show the public what they cannot use without infringing the patent.—MORTON v. MIDDLETON (1863), 1 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) 718; 35 Sc. Jur. 542.—SCOT.

q. As to method—Difficulty of use not described.]—DUDGEON v. THOMSON (1873), 11 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) 863; 45 Sc. Jur. 528.—SCOT.

heat. The description of the mode of making the cement differed little from that of the preceding process. The specification, after proceeding to state the mode of using the cement so made, stated in conclusion that other acids & alkalies besides those before mentioned would answer the purposes of the invention, though not so well; & that the inventor claimed the method or process thereinbefore described:—Held: the specification was bad; for that either the inventor claimed all acids & alkalies or those only which would answer the purpose; in the former of which cases, as some acids & alkalies would not answer the purposes of the invention, the specification was therefore bad; & in the latter case it was bad for not specifying those acids & alkalies which would be found to succeed.—STEVENS v. KEATING (1848), 2 Exch. 772; 19 L. J. Ex. 57; 154 E. R. 702.

Annotations:—Refd. Unwin v. Heath (1855), 5 H. L. Cas. 505; Young v. Fernie (1864), 4 New Rep. 218.

803. —— ——.]—G. took out a patent for improvements in belts or bands for driving machinery. The claim in the specification was for constructing belts or bands for driving machinery, of cotton canvas or duck woven hard & stitched, & saturated & soaked with oil, such as linseed oil or any combination thereof, as herein described or set forth, or any modification thereof. G. brought an action against K. & J. & R. & Co., alleging that R. & Co.'s belts were an infringement of his patent, & claiming the usual relief. It was proved at the trial that there were ten numbers of hard woven canvas & that belts for the purposes mentioned in the specification could not be made out of all of such numbers, but only out of some of them. The judge dismissed the action with costs so far as it related to the infringements of patent, holding the patent bad because the specification did not adequately describe the invention:—Held: the appeal must be dismissed with costs, on the ground that the specification was bad as not describing the real invention, which was not the manufacture of driving belts for the purposes specified of any kind of hard woven canvas, but only of a particular kind, & although this defect might have been cured by showing that a workman of ordinary skill would never have tried any other kind, there was no evidence of this before the ct.—GANDY v. REDDAWAY (1883), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 101; 2 R. P. C. 49, C. A.

804. —— ——.]—In 1906 a patent was granted for "improvements in & relating to kinematograph apparatus for the production of coloured pictures." One of the claims was as follows: "in connection with kinematograph apparatus, the employment of a succession of but two colour records, the records of one colour sensation alternating with those of the other colour sensation, so that the observer's persistence of vision causes him to apparently see superimposition, or blending, of the colours received from series of two colour records." On a petition for revocation of the patent, it was alleged by petitioners that (inter alia) the patent was invalid for insufficiency of description in that the specification did not point out which particular reds or greens were to be used:—Held: if, upon the true construction of the specification, the patentee stated that any red & any green screens might be used, the patent was invalid, because there were many reds & greens that would fail, or if he stated that any red or green that would answer the purpose might be used, the patent was invalid for insufficiency; he stated that, by means of the patented process, blue, or approximately blue, could be reproduced; that colour could not be reproduced; & the patent was therefore invalid.—NATURAL COLOUR KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD. v. BIOSCHEMES, LTD. (1915), 31 T. L. R. 324; 32 R. P. C. 256, H. L.; affg. S. C. sub nom. Re SMITH'S PATENT (1914), 31 R. P. C. 237, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Duram (1917), 34 R. P. C. 117; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Corona Lamp Works (1920), 37 R. P. C. 277; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1923), 40 R. P. C. 426.

805. As to method.]—JONES v. RIPLEY (1834), 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 611.

806. ——.]—PARKIN v. HARRISON (1840), 2 Carp. Pat. Cas. 677.

807. —— Two processes described—One ineffective.]—R. v. CUTLER (1849), 14 Q. B. 372, n.; Macr. 137; 3 Car. & Kir. 215; 12 L. T. O. S. 513; 117 E. R. 147.

Annotations:—Refd. Booth v. Kennard (1856), 5 W. R. 85; Brook v. Aston (1857), 27 L. J. Q. B. 145.

808. —— —— ——.]—Where a specification describes two processes for effecting the end proposed, which are both claimed as part of the invention, & one of such processes is effective & the other ineffective, if the inefficiency of the second process cannot be discovered from the specification itself, it will vitiate the patent.

The rules governing the construction of specifications are the ordinary rules for the interpretation of written instruments; but, unless a specification particularly describe the nature of a patentee's invention, & in what manner the same is to be performed, in such a manner as to be intelligible to a workman of ordinary knowledge, the grant of the letters patent is void.

If a specification alleges that a particular process, which may be slow, troublesome, & expensive, is effective, & the statement is untrue, the vice is not removed by the fact that the same specification also describes another process which is efficient & which is stated to be speedy, certain, & economical. When it is stated that an error in a specification which any workman of ordinary skill & experience would perceive & correct, will not vitiate a patent, it must be understood of errors which appear on the face of the specification, or the drawings it refers to; or which would be at once discovered & corrected in following out the instructions given for any process or manufacture; & the reason is, because such errors cannot possibly mislead. But the proposition is not a correct statement of the law, if applied to errors which are discoverable only by experiment & further inquiry. . . . The specification must be so expressed as to be perfectly intelligible to a workman of ordinary knowledge, & it must follow that if there be any obscurity or ambiguity in the specification which is likely to mislead, this defect ought not to be helped by any refined or secondary interpretation of the language (LORD WESTBURY, C.).—SIMPSON v. HOLLIDAY (1865), 5 New Rep. 340; 12 L. T. 99; 13 W. R. 577, L. C.; subsequent proceedings (1866), L. R. 1 H. L. 315, H. L.

Annotations:—Folld. United Horse Nail Co. v. Stewart (1885), 2 R. P. C. 122. Refd. Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1888), 4 T. L. R. 686; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95.

809. —— Use of known materials in new proportions—Proportions not limited.]—PATENT TYPE FOUNDING CO. v. RICHARD, No. 1134, post.

810. —— Erroneous implication.]—VIDAL DYES SYNDICATE, LTD. v. LEVINSTEIN, LTD., SAME v. REED HOLLIDAY & SONS, No. 833, post.

811. As to nature of claim.]—The specification of a patent for improved arrangements for raising ships' anchors, claimed as the invention of the patentee, a cable holder, which it described thus: The scolloped shell in which the iron chain cable appears in the drawing is upon a new plan, to hold, without slipping, a chain cable of any size, as shown by the opening form of the scollops at the top & bottom of figure 2. It also claimed as the invention of the patentee, the new form of a scolloped shell, in conjunction with the arrangements hereinbefore described. A drawing attached to the specification showed that the inner sides of the cable holder & the scollops were not to be parallel, but should converge towards the centre of the cableholder. In an action for an infringement of the patent, it was proved that the specification & drawings would enable a competent workman to make a cableholder which would hold chains of different sizes:—Held: the specification did not sufficiently describe the nature of the invention; it was at least ambiguous whether it was an invention of a cableholder to hold a chain & carry one size, or to hold cables of different sizes, & was therefore bad.—HASTINGS v. BROWN (1853), 1 E. & B. 450; 22 L. J. Q. B. 161; 17 Jur. 647; 113 E. R. 505.

Sect. 4.—Complete specification: Sub-sect. 2, A. (b), B. (a).]

Annotation:—Refd. Poupard v. Fardell (1869), 18 W. R. 127.

812. —— Whether for combination or specific parts.]—ROWCLIFFE v. MORRIS, No. 967, post.

813. ——.]—The ct. revoked a patent for an improvement in golf balls on the ground that the specification was so vague that it was impossible to say what invention was claimed & that even if the claim was sufficient the patent had been anticipated.—GAMAGE (A. W.) LTD. v. SPALDING (A. G.) & BROTHERS (1915), 31 T. L. R. 178.

814. As to essence of invention.]—The owners of a patent for new or improved manufacture of covered whalebone having threatened customers of K., the latter brought an action to restrain the threats. Defts. having justified the threats under the patent, pltfs. denied infringement & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the ground (inter alia) of want of subject-matter. The specification claimed the manufacture of the new material, strips of natural whalebone covered or braided with threads of fibrous materials applied substantially in the manner & by the means hereinbefore described with reference to & shown in the drawings. Braiding machines were old at the date of the patent. Defts. contended that the invention was the application of a particular type of a known machine in a particular way to produce an article that was new. It was held at the trial that the claim was for a process & not for a product, & that the claim was for something old, & that the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter:—Held: the claim was for a process of manufacture by which a better article was produced; the essence of invention, upon the evidence, was the use of such a form of braiding machine as required a specific number of heads & spindles for each particular case—that is to say, whether two or more whalebones were used; the patentee had failed to indicate the essence of his invention, & on this ground the patent was invalid.—KOPP v. ROSENWALD BROTHERS (1902), 20 R. P. C. 154, C. A.

B. Sufficiency of Description.

(a) In General.

815. Duty of court to consider sufficiency—Though insufficiency not pleaded.]—The real question which I have to determine & on which the validity or invalidity of this patent depends is whether there is a sufficient subject-matter in the patent, & that question resolves itself into another, namely, whether the patentee has, having regard to the state of the art to which the specification refers, described & claimed some specific improvement in the subject-matter of that which he has to deal. I . . . bear carefully in mind the fact that insufficiency of the specification is not pleaded, but in my opinion, the absence of that plea does not affect the proposition which I have just stated (WARRINGTON, J.).—Re TAYLOR'S PATENT (1915), 32 R. P. C. 93.

816. What must be described—Principle.]—The specification should distinctly state the principle as well as the mode of bringing it into operation. If the principle claimed be not clearly stated, but is only to be made out by construction, by comparing the several clauses of the specification, an injunction will not be granted.—BRIDSON v. M'ALPINE (1844), 3 L. T. O. S. 158; subsequent proceedings (1845), 8 Beav. 229.

817. —— —— Not results.]—WEDLAKE v. GARDNER, No. 1106, post.

818. —— Nature of invention.]—BOVILL v. SMITH, No. 448, ante.

819. —— ——.]—The owners of a patent for a wheel rim of a particular shape intended to hold a solid indiarubber tyre without pinching or cutting it, & without wires or bands to hold it in its place, claimed the wheel rim in combination with a tyre fitted into it, but not the tyre without the rim, & brought an action against a firm of indiarubber merchants for infringement of their patent. The specification said that the tyre was to be made so as to "approximately fit" the rim, but it appeared that while the base of the rim was flat the tyre would have to be made convex where it fitted on to the base of the rim, & would also have to be somewhat larger than the base of the rim, & would require to be forced into the rim of the machinery:—Held: the specification did not particularly describe & ascertain the nature of the invention, & the manner in which it was performed, & the patent was therefore bad.—SIRDAR RUBBER CO. v. WALLINGTON, WESTON & CO. (1907), 97 L. T. 113, H. L.

820. —— ——.]—A machine for making paper for newspapers embodied a device by which water containing fibre or pulp in suspension, called the stock, was poured out through a "slice" on to an endless wire sieve kept continually moving. The water drained away through the sieve, & the pulp became felted & subsequently more thoroughly dried by the sieve passing over vacuum chambers. A patent for improvements in this machine claimed, stating it shortly, depressing the further end of the sieve so that the stock tended to flow down the sieve by the action of gravity, thus, as alleged, (a) diminishing the dragging effect which produces bad paper; (b) increasing the efficiency of the machine in bringing about the felting of the paper; & (c) enabling rolls of newspaper to be manu-

PART VI. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.—B. (a).

818 i. What must be described—Nature of invention.]—FREE WHEEL CO., LTD. v. INGLIS BROTHERS (1903), 23 N. Z. L. R. 309.—N.Z.

r. Distinction between parts old & new.]—PATENT COMPOSITION PAVEMENT CO. v. RICHMOND CORPN. (1875), 1 V. L. R. (Eq.) 50.—AUS.

t. —— Combination of several parts.]—Where a patent is sought for a combination of several parts, it is not necessary in the specification to distinguish between those parts which are old & those which are new.—INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER CO. OF factured at a greatly increased rate of speed. In an action for infringement pltfs. alleged (inter alia) that defts. had adopted the device of putting the sieve on a slope; & defts. alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds (inter alia) of want of subject-matter, insufficiency of specification, & prior user at defts.' works:—Held: the patent was invalid because the specification did not sufficiently describe any invention at all, & if it did, there was prior user of the invention.—EUROPEAN EIBEL CO., LTD. v. LLOYD (EDWARD), LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 349.

821. —— ——.]—Re BRUCE'S APPLICATION, No. 757, ante.

822. —— Method of performance.]—R. v. ELSE, No. 1008, post.

823. —— ——.]—FOXWELL v. BOSTOCK, No. 909, post.

824. —— ——.]—A patent for "improvements in the preparation of red & purple dyes," thus described the process: "I mix aniline with dry arsenic acid, & allow the mixture to stand for some time; or I accelerate the operation by heating it to, or near to, its boiling point, until it assumes a rich purple colour." It was proved & not denied by the patentee that it was necessary to apply heat in order to produce the colour; but evidence was given that a competent workman would apply heat:—Held: this description in the specification was bad, & the patent founded thereon was invalid.—SIMPSON v. HOLLIDAY (1866), L. R. 1 H. L. 315; 35 L. J. Ch. 811, H. L.; previous proceedings (1865), 5 New Rep. 340, L. C.

Annotations:—Apld. Watson Laidlaw v. Potts Cassel & Williamson (1911), 28 R. P. C. 565. Folld. Vidal Dyes Syndicate v. Levinstein, Same v. Read, Holliday (1912), 29 R. P. C. 245. Refd. Wallace v. Jack (1905), 22 R. P. C. 581. Mentd. Fernie v. Young (1866), L. R. 1 H. L. 63; Re Simpson, Ex p. Morgan (1876), 3 Ch. D. 72.

825. —— ——.]—BOVILL v. SMITH, No. 448, ante.

826. —— ——.]—BETTS v. NEILSON, BETTS v. DE VITRE, No. 520, ante.

827. —— ——.]—BAILEY v. ROBERTON, No. 935, post.

828. —— ——.]—YOUNG & NEILSON v. ROSENTHAL & Co., No. 460, ante.

829. —— ——.]—The owner of a patent for improvements in gas cooking apparatus brought an action for infringement against defts., who alleged disconformity between the provisional & complete specifications, absence of subject-matter, & want of novelty, & relied as an anticipation upon an apparatus (Rippingille's), from which pltf.'s alleged invention only differed, in effect, in the substitution of a hinge or a pivot for a slide, as a means of attaching certain deflector plates to the apparatus. Defts. also denied infringement. In pltf.'s specification no description was given of the method to be adopted of making & actuating the hinged or pivoted plates. The plates in defts. apparatus were of a special construction, & produced results not claimed for pltf.'s alleged invention:—Held: the specification was insufficient.—FLETCHER v. ARDEN, HILL & Co. (1887), 5 R. P. C. 46.

830. —— ——.]—In 1887 a patent was granted to A. for improvements in duplicating writing apparatus. D. became owner of the patent, & in 1898 brought an action against defts. for infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & denied the validity of the patent on the grounds (inter alia) that the alleged invention was anticipated by several prior patents; that the description of the invention in the specification was insufficient; & that a person following A.'s directions would not obtain the result described in the specification:—Held: on the true construction of the specification the patent was invalid for insufficiency of description.—DICK v. ELLAM'S DUPLICATOR CO. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 196, C. A.

831. —— ——.]—SIRDAR RUBBER CO. v. WALLINGTON, WESTON & CO., No. 819, ante.

832. —— —— Method described giving no useful result—Method not described giving useful result.]—VON DER LINDE v. BRUMMERSTAEDT & CO., No. 679, ante.

833. —— —— Common knowledge.]—In 1896 a patent was granted for improvements in colouring matters. The claim was for improvements in the manufacture of black dyestuffs, consisting in causing sulphur to react, either alone or in the presence of sulphuret of sodium, upon diamidophenols & diamidonaphthols or upon dinitrophenols & dinitronaphthols, as described. Two examples of the application of the process to diamidophenol & dinitrophenol were given. The specification stated, as to the dinitrophenols, that it was necessary to reduce those bodies by means of sulphuret of sodium previously to heating them with sulphur, but as to the dinitronaphthols, that it would be also useful to reduce them. In two actions for infringement of the patent, tried together, defts. alleged (inter alia) that there had been prior publication by certain specifications, & that the directions in the specification were insufficient, in that no details were given as to the treatment of naphthol derivatives, & misleading, in that the processes described did not give black dyes. Pltfs. contended that the common knowledge of a dyechemist was sufficient to enable him to make the variations necessary for carrying out the processes. They alleged that defts.' dyes had been produced, as in one of pltfs.' experiments, by boiling sodium sulphide, sulphur, & dinitrophenol with a reflux condenser for a considerable time, & defts. admitted that their dyes had been prepared by a process indistinguishable from that of pltfs.' experiment, but contended that the process was not within the patent. It was held at the trial, that the prior specification did not suggest the use of any tri-substituted derivatives of benzene or naphthalene, & that they were not anticipations of the invention; that they formed part of the common knowledge of the art of sulphur dyeing; that the directions given in the specification were sufficient; that the claim covered the process by which defts.' dyes had been prepared; & that defts. had infringed. Judgment was given for pltfs., an inquiry as to damages was ordered, & costs on the higher scale were allowed. Defts. in both actions appealed to the Ct. of Appeal:—Held: (1) there was no common knowledge as to the effect of heating the bodies mentioned in the specification with sulphur, either alone or in the presence of sulphuret of sodium; as to diamidonaphthols, the specification was insufficient; as to the dinitronaphthols, the specification, in stating that it would be useful to reduce before treatment with sulphur, erroneously implied that the dye could be formed without previous reduction, & the directions given were insufficient; & the patent was invalid. (2) Defts.'

AMERICA v. PEACOCK (1908), 6 C. L. R. 287, P. C.—AUS.

a. Materials of construction—Whether description necessary.]—STOKES v. DAVENPORT & SON (1893), 11 N. Z. L. R. 321.—N.Z.

b. Question for jury.]—The jury are the judges of the sufficiency & intelligibility of the specification, as construed by the ct.—MORTON v. MIDDLETON (1863), 1 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) 718; 35 Sc. Jur. 542.—SCOT.

Sect. 4.—Complete specification: Sub-sect. 2, B. (a) & (b) i. & ii.

dye was a different substance from pltfs.' & was not produced by the process claimed.—VIDAL DYES SYNDICATE, LTD. v. LEVINSTEIN, LTD., SAME v. READ HOLLIDAY & SONS (1912), 29 R. P. C. 245, C. A.

Annotation:—Consd. Act. für Anilin Fabrikation in Berlin v. Levinstein (1921), 38 R. P. C. 277.

834. —— ——.] — A patent was granted in 1901 for "improvements relating to the extraction of dust from carpets & other materials." The specification stated that it was essential to practical success to drive by power the pump employed for producing a vacuum, & to maintain a vacuum of at least 5 lbs. per square inch in the filter on the side of the filtering medium where the air & dust entered, when the apparatus was at work, & that it was only to extractors working with a considerable vacuum that the claims related. In an action for infringement of the patent a certificate of validity had been granted. A subsequent action for infringement was brought, & pltfs. claimed costs as between solr. & client. Defts. denied infringement & validity, & made a counterclaim for revocation of the patent. Defts. contended that the direction to use a 5 lbs. vacuum was meaningless, as it was not stated at what part of the apparatus that vacuum was to be, that a vacuum of less than 5 lbs. at the nozzle was sufficient, & that there was no subject-matter. They also contended that forms of the apparatus for which an independent claim, claim 6, was made had been abandoned in practice as useless, & that the patent had been anticipated by the specification of H. & T., which described the use of an ejector for obtaining a vacuum:—Held: defts. had infringed; no publication before the date of the patent had indicated the importance of a tight joint at the carpet, or the vacuum required for efficient working; H. & T. had erronenously assumed that every ejector would give a sufficient vacuum, & the evidence of user of their apparatus failed; patentee intended the vacuum of 5 lbs. to be at the dust collector, as being the most convenient part; his specification gave sufficient directions for the construction of an efficient apparatus; & the fact that certain forms claimed had ceased to be used did not render the patent invalid.—BRITISH VACUUM CLEANER CO., LTD. v. LONDON & SOUTH WESTERN RY. CO. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 309, H. L.

835. —— ——.] — In 1894 a Western Australian patent was granted for "improvements in or relating to the extraction of precious metals from their ores." The patentees claimed (inter alia) the use of halogen compounds of cyanogen in a solvent for precious metals, & described a process in which those compounds, mixed with an aqueous solution of potassium cyanide were used for the extraction of gold from its ores. In 1900, a Western Australian patent, & in 1904, a corresponding Commonwealth patent, were granted for "an improved manufacture of cyanogen bromide." The manufacture consisted in mixing a solution of bromide, a cyanide, & an acid, with or without the addition of an oxidizing agent. In an action for infringement of the patents, defts. contended that the patent of 1894 was invalid because, amongst other reasons, no sufficient directions were given, & if the practice in using potassium cyanide for the extraction of gold were followed, the process would fail. As to the other patents, defts. alleged that the process described in the specification of those patents had been disclosed by the specification of the patent of 1894. At the trial it was held that the patent of 1894 was invalid by reason of the insufficiency of the specification & on other grounds, but that the patents of 1900 & 1904 were valid & had been infringed. Pltfs. appealed to the Privy Council as to the patent of 1894, & defts. appealed as to the other patents:—Held: the patent of 1894 was invalid for insufficiency.—GOLD ORE TREATMENT CO. OF WESTERN AUSTRALIA, LTD. (IN LIQUIDATION) v. GOLDEN HORSESHOE ESTATES CO., LTD., GOLDEN HORSESHOE ESTATES CO., LTD. v. GOLD ORE TREATMENT CO. OF WESTERN AUSTRALIA, LTD. (IN LIQUIDATION) (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95, P. C.

836. —— ——.] — Re BRUCE'S APPLICATION, No. 757, ante.

837. —— Application of invention.] — In a recital of a patent it was stated, that the patentee was the first & true inventor of certain improvements in extracting syrup & sugar from cane juice & other substances containing sugar, & in refining sugar & syrups. The specification alleged that the invention consisted in a means of discolouring syrups of every description by means of charcoal, produced by the distillation of bituminous schistus alone, or mixed with animal charcoal, or even of animal charcoal alone. It then alleged that the discoloration was to be effected by means of a filter made of charcoal, & that there was nothing particular in the carbonisation of the bituminous schistus, only that it was "convenient before the carbonisation, to separate the sulphurets of iron which are mixed with it." To an action of infringing this patent, deft. pleaded, that the patentee did not, by any instrument, particularly describe & ascertain the nature of his invention, & in what manner the same was to be & might be performed:—Held: the specification sufficiently described the invention stated in the title of the patent, it being shown that it was applicable with advantage to the extracting of syrup from cane juice, before it is baked to such a consistency as to granulated & become sugar.—DEROSNE v. FAIRIE (1835), 2 Cr. M. & R. 476; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 154; 1 Gale, 109; 1 Mood. & R. 457; 5 Tyr. 393; 150 E. R. 205.

Annotation:—Refd. Crane v. Price (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580.

838. —— Full details—Effect of omission.]—HINKS & SON v. SAFETY LIGHTING CO., No. 984, post.

839. —— Essence of invention.] — KOPP v. ROSENWALD BROTHERS, No. 814, ante.

840. —— Effect of invention—When necessary to define invention.]—A patent was granted to C. for improvements in fishing tackle. The object of the invention was stated to be to provide a trace or paternoster for angling purposes which would give greater advantages than those at present in use by affording a straight pull on a fish, when hooked, by the formation & arrangement of the booms or arms. The claim was for "a trace or paternoster consisting of one or more arms or booms connected by lengths of gut, metal, wire, or other material substantially as described & for the purpose specified." In an action for infringement of this patent defts. put in issue the validity of the patent on the ground (inter alia) of want of novelty & prior publication by a number of specifications & other documents, including a specification of K., & also by certain cases of manufacture, use, & sale:—Held: it being admitted that the patent could not be supported if the claim included forms of loop on a paternoster which did not bring a jerk when a fish is hooked, the fact that it brought a jerk was a necessary part of the delimitation of the invention, & necessary part was not to be found in the specification; therefore the specification was defective.

Counsel for pltf. urge the well known principle in patent law that a man need not state the effect or the advantage of his invention, if he describes his invention so as to produce it. But that is not true where he has to rely on the presence or absence of such effect or advantage as a part of the necessary delimitation. The fact that it is a mere consequence cannot be pleaded by him as an excuse for not putting it in, if the leaving it out leaves his invention inadequately defined (FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J.).—CLAY v. ALLCOCK & CO., LTD. (1906), 23 R. P. C. 745, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239.

841. —— Subject-matter of patent.]—Held: pltfs.' patent for an invention of a process & apparatus for the treatment of metallic tungsten & the manufacture of electric lamp filaments therefrom was invalid, as the specification neither described nor claimed an invention which could be the subject-matter of a patent.—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. DURAM, LTD. (1918), 35 R. P. C. 161; 34 T. L. R. 312, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Charlesworth, Peebles v. British Thomson-Houston Co., British Thomson-Houston Co. v. British Insulated & Helsby Cables (1925), 41 T. L. R. 259. Refd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. British Insulated & Helsby Cables, [1924] 1 Ch. 203; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1924), 41 R. P. C. 211.

842. Effect of insufficiency—Patent invalid.]—One very important question is whether the patentee has in his first claim claimed this stud or rivet as a separate thing, or whether he has claimed it only in combination with a disc or plate, also described in the specification, & with which it is clearly intended to be used. . . . The invention is so described in the body of the specification as to leave it quite open to the patentee to frame his claim in more ways than one. . . . Pltf.'s patent as it stands covers too much, & must be held invalid until amended (LINDLEY, M.R.).—DOWLER v. KEELING (1898), 14 T. L. R. 257, C. A.

843. Right to refer to other documents.]—It may perhaps be permissible for a patentee to say in his specification: "For the purpose of carrying my invention into effect, I refer you to such & such a publication in which you will find all necessary directions." I doubt if this would fulfil his obligations to the public, but, at all events, on turning to the publication indicated, you must find in clear & precise terms the very process which he claims, or one which, without further experiment, can be applied for the carrying into effect of his invention (NEVILLE, J.).—JOSEPH CROSFIELD & SONS, LTD. v. TECHNO-CHEMICAL LABORATORIES, LTD. (1913), 30 R. P. C. 297.

(b) Degree of Sufficiency Required.

i. In General.

844. Must enable invention to be used.]—LIARDET v. JOHNSON (1778), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 53; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 35; Bull. N. P. 76 b.

Annotations:—Refd. Harmar v. Playne (1809), 11 East, 101; Lewis v. Marling (1829), 8 L. J. O. S. K. B. 46; Morgan v. Seaward (1836), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 170.

845. ——.]—To support a patent the specification should be so clear as to enable all the world to use the invention from the moment of the expiration of the patent.—NEWBERY v. JAMES (1817), 2 Mer. 446; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 367; 35 E. R. 1011.

Annotations:—Refd. Green v. Church (1823), 1 L. J. O. S. Ch. 203; James v. James (1872), 20 W. R. 434; Amber Size & Chemical Co. v. Menzel, [1913] 2 Ch. 239. Mentd. Morison v. Moat (1851), 20 L. J. Ch. 513; Leather Cloth Co. v. American Leather Cloth Co. (1863), 4 De G. J. & Sm. 137.

846. Evidence of insufficiency—Subsequent improvements necessary.]—A patent being granted upon a specification, that the machine was capable of performing all the operations necessary to the perfection of the proposed invention; & it appearing that a second patent was taken out for improvements necessary to the efficient operation of the original machine:—Held: the consideration of the first patent having failed, both patents were void.—BLOXAM v. ELSEE (1827), 6 B. & C. 169; 9 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 215; 5 L. J. O. S. K. B. 104; 108 E. R. 415.

Annotations:—Refd. Neilson v. Harford (1841), 8 M. & W. 806; Allen v. Rawson (1845), 1 C. B. 551; Beard v. Egerton (1846), 3 C. B. 97; Palmer v. Wagstaff (1854), 9 Exch. 494; Ward v. Hill (1903), 20 R. P. C. 189. Mentd. Slatterie v. Pooley (1840), 6 M. & W. 664.

847. Of chemical patent.]—To require the patentee in a chemical patent to define rigidly the limits of variation of time or of proportions sufficient to ensure his result, would end in invalidating a large proportion of the patents which protect most valuable & meritorious chemical discoveries (SARGANT, J.).—ACT. FÜR ANILIN FABRIKATION IN BERLIN v. LEVINSTEIN, LTD. (1914), 31 R. P. C. 177; on appeal (1921), 38 R. P. C. 277, C. A.

ii. To Whom Specification Addressed.

848. Workman.]—BOULTON v. BULL, No. 90, ante.

849. ——.]—BOVILL v. MOORE (1816), Dav. Pat. Cas. 361; 2 Marsh. 211; 1 Goodeve's Patent Cases, 74.

Annotations:—Consd. Cook v. Pearce (1843), 8 Q. B. 1044. Refd. Germ Milling Co. v. Robinson (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 103.

850. ——.]—GIBSON v. BRAND, No. 573, ante.

851. —— Of ordinary competence.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

852. —— ——.]—ELLIOTT v. ASTON, No. 514, ante.

853. —— ——.]—NEILSON v. HARFORD, No. 83, ante.

854. —— ——.]—HOUSEHILL COAL & IRON CO. v. NEILSON, No. 13, ante.

855. —— ——.]—BEARD v. EGERTON, No. 1107, post

856. —— ——.]—FOXWELL v. BOSTOCK, No. 909, post.

857. —— ——.]—SIMPSON v. HOLLIDAY, No. 808, ante.

858. —— ——.]—PLIMPTON v. MALCOLMSON, No. 1107, post.

859. —— ——.]—PHILPOTT v. HANBURY, No. 649, ante.

860. —— ——.]—EDISON & SWAN ELECTRIC LIGHTING CO. v. WOODHOUSE & RAWSON, No. 1037, post.

861. Person skilled in particular trade.]—ARKWRIGHT v. MORDAUNT (1781), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 59.

862. ——.]—ARKWRIGHT v. NIGHTINGALE (1785), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 60; Dav. Pat. Cas. 37.

Annotation:—Consd. Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 6 R. P. C. 243.

PART VI. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.—B. (b) i.

c. Must enable others to make it up—Workman of ordinary knowledge.]—In judging of the sufficiency of a specification, it is necessary to see whether the patentee sets forth clearly the nature of his invention, & sets it forth so as to serve the double purpose, of showing a workman of ordinary knowledge & skill how he can construct the thing specified in the patent; & of showing persons who read the patent what they must avoid doing if they would not infringe the patent.—MORTON v. MIDDLETON (1863), 1 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) 718.—SCOT.

Sect. 4.—Complete specification: Sub-sect. 2, B. (b) ii. & iii., & (c), C. (a) & (b).]

863. ——.] — The question is whether the specification be such that a mechanist can make the machine from the description there given. The patent is to be considered as a bargain with the public & the specification is therefore to be construed on the same principle of good faith as that which regulates all other contracts. If, therefore, the disclosure be such that the invention can be communicated to the public the statute is satisfied (LORD ELDON, C.J.).—CARTWRIGHT v. EAMER (1800), Goodeve's Patent Cases, 112.

Annotation:—Folld. Harmer v. Plane (1807), 14 Ves. 130.

864. ——.]—It may not be necessary, indeed, in stating a specification of a patent for an improvement, to state precisely all the former known parts of the machine, & then to apply to those the improvement; but, on many occasions, it may be sufficient to refer generally to them. As in the instance of a common watch; it may be sufficient for the patentee to, say, take a common watch, & add or alter such & such parts, describing them. When Lord Mansfield said, in the case of Liardet v. Johnson, No. 844, ante, that the meaning of the specification was, that others might be taught to do the thing for which the patent was granted, it must be understood to enable persons of reasonably competent skill in such matters to make it; for no sort of specification would probably enable a ploughman, utterly ignorant of the whole art, to make a watch (LORD ELLENBOROUGH, C.J.).—HARMAR v. PLAYNE (1809), 11 East, 101; Dav. Pat. Cas. 311; 103 E. R. 943.

Annotations:—Consd. Foxwell v. Bostock (1864), 4 De G. J. & Sm. 298. Apld. Parkes v. Stevens (1869), 5 Ch. App. 36. Refd. Hill v. Thompson (1817), 3 Mer. 622; Neilson v. Harford (1841), 8 M. & W. 806; Crane v. Price (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580; Cook v. Pearce (1843), 8 Q. B. 1044; Holmes v. L. & N. W. Ry. (1852), 12 C. B. 831.

865. ——.]—BLOXAM v. ELSEE, No. 12, ante.

866. ——.]—STURZ v. DE LA RUE, No. 897, post.

867. ——.] — MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

868. ——.]—(1) All the substances which will answer need not be stated, if the public are not misled.

(2) But if a whole class of substances be stated as suitable, & one of them will not succeed, this will mislead.

(3) Some knowledge is required in the person reading the specification, which is addressed to artists of competent skill in the particular manufacture.

(4) The attention of pltf. must be clearly directed to the nature of the objection.

(5) The finding of the jury on an objection to the distinctness of the specification is conclusive.

(6) It lay upon deft. to show that port-fire was in fact a substance within the description [gunpowder or other combustible matter], & inapplicable to the purposes in question; & that these points were to be decided by the jury.—BICKFORD v. SKEWES (1841), 1 Q. B. 938; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 211; 1 Gal. & Dav. 736; 10 L. J. Q. B. 302; 6 Jur. 167; 113 E. R. 1391.

Annotation:—Generally, Refd. Rothwell v. King (1886), 3 R. P. C. 379.

869. ——.]—GALLOWAY v. BLEADEN, No. 541, ante.

870. ——.]—GIBSON v. BRAND, No. 573, ante.

871. ——.]—ONIONS v. CROWLEY (1853), Macr. 256.

872. ——.] — (1) Specification must be sufficient for persons skilled in the subject.

(2) The insertion of anything as important, which is not so in fact, will vitiate a specification.—HUDDART v. GRIMSHAW (1803), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 85; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 200; Dav. Pat. Cas. 265.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 5 T. L. R. 294. Generally, Refd. Murray v. Clayton (1872), 7 Ch. App. 573, n.

873. ——.] — PHILPOTT v. HANBURY, No. 649, ante.

874. ——.] — The owners of two patents, relating to the construction of incandescent electric lamps, brought an action for infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patents were invalid on the ground (inter alia) of insufficiency of specification, want of novelty, & utility: —Held: the objection of insufficiency failed, the directions contained in the specification being sufficient to enable a person having a reasonably competent knowledge of the subject, & reasonably competent skill, to make the article without further invention.—EDISON & SWAN UNITED ELECTRIC LIGHT CO. v. HOLLAND (1889), 5 T. L. R. 294; 6 R. P. C. 243, C. A.

Annotations:—Apld. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95. Refd. Lane Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424; Jandus Arc Lamp & Electric Co. v. Arc Lamps (1905), 21 T. L. R. 308; Layland v. Boldy (1913), 30 R. P. C. 547; Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369; Wallace v. Tullis, Russell (1921), 39 R. P. C. 3; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1924), 41 R. P. C. 241.

875. ——.] — TUBES, LTD. v. PERFECTA SEAMLESS STEEL TUBE CO., LTD., No. 735, ante.

876. Person of ordinary skill.] — MANTON v. MANTON, No. 438, ante.

iii. Must be Sufficient in Itself.

877. Effect of need for addition.] — R. v. ARKWRIGHT, No. 14, ante.

878. ——.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

879. ——.]—NEILSON v. HARFORD, No. 83, ante.

880. Effect of need for invention.] — R. v. FUSSELL, R. v. DANIELL (1827), 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 449.

881. ——.] — MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

882. ——.]—NEILSON v. HARFORD, No. 83, ante.

883. ——.]—PLIMPTON v. MALCOLMSON, No. 68, ante.

884. Effect of need for experiment.] — A specification will be bad, if it use terms calculated to encourage useless experiments to arrive at the desired object, although it give the proper means of arriving at it.

Thus, where a man in his specification used the following terms, "The invention consists in the using certain cloths, which may be made of any suitable material; but I prefer it to be made of linen warp, & woollen weft." The fact being, that he had unavailingly tried other materials, & had found none to answer but linen warp & woollen weft, it was held that the specification was bad.—CROMPTON v. IBBOTSON (1828), Dan. & Ll. 33; 6 L. J. O. S. K. B. 133; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 83; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 460.

Annotations:—Refd. Lewis v. Marling (1829), 10 B. & C. 22; Wegmann v. Corcoran, Witt (1878), 27 W. R. 357.

885. ——.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

886. ——.]—BRITISH DYNAMITE CO. v. KREBS (1879), 13 R. P. C. 190, H. L.

Annotations:—Apld. True & Variable Electric Lamp Syndicate v. Bryant Trading Syndicate (1908), 25 R. P. C. 461. Refd. Britain v. Hirsch (1888), 5 R. P. C. 226; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Casswell (1896), 13 R. P. C. 164; Dowler v. Keeling (1898), 14 T. L. R. 257; Parker & Smith v. Satchwell (1901), 45 Sol. Jo. 502; Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 39 R. P. C. 3.

887. ——.] — MAXIM-NORDENFELT GUNS & AMMUNITION CO. & HIRAM STEVENS MAXIM v. ANDERSON, No. 302, ante.

888. ——.]—WATSON LAIDLAW & CO., LTD. v. POTT CASSELS & WILLIAMSON, No. 799, ante.

889. —— Where proportions left to discretion of operator.]—There is no objection in law to a specification which, while giving a definite prescription, leaves the proportions of constituent materials which a particular operator may employ to his own discretion, informed possibly by actual experiment.—ACT. FÜR ANILIN FABRIKATION IN BERLIN v. LEVINSTEIN, LTD. (1921), 38 R. P. C. 277, C. A.

(c) Drawings.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 2 (3); Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 19–26.

890. Admissibility in aid of description.] — BLOXAM v. ELSEE, No. 12, ante.

891. —— Description too general.] — Where a specification in the first instance describes the invention in too general terms; but afterwards, in describing the method of performing the invention, refers to certain figures in drawings annexed thereto, & the claim made is for the manufacture of the invention described with reference to those figures, the specification is sufficient.—DAW v. ELEY (1865), L. R. 3 Eq. 500, n.; 13 L. T. 399; 11 Jur. N. S. 923; 14 W. R. 126.

892. —— Description insufficient.] —Semble: a specification of a patent may consist of figures, or one figure only, of a description aided by a figure or figures, & it is not bad if the specification is not complied with, irrespective of the drawings. —POUPARD v. FARDELL (1869), 21 L. T. 696; 18 W. R. 127.

893. —— Description ambiguous.]—J. H. obtained a patent for improvements in tramcar engines, partly applicable to other purposes, & brought an action against H. & R. for infringement of this patent:—Held: the specification did not sufficiently indicate what pltf. claimed as novel, & if he claimed a combination such claim was invalid, & the action must be dismissed.—FAIRBURN & HALL v. HOUSEHOLD & ROSHER (1886), 53 L. T. 513; 3 R. P. C. 263; 1 T. L. R. 681; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 96, C. A.

894. Effect of obvious error.] — An objection was alleged against the patent, viz., that as the lamp was stated in the provisional specification to be specially applicable to lamps in common use & it was clear that as shown in the drawings it could not be used in lamp holders in which the plungers were placed at a certain angle to the bayonet joints, which holders were commonly used at the date of the patent & that the invention lacked utility. A further objection was to a subordinate claim on the ground that it involved no invention as a claim in gross:—Held: the particular arrangement of the contact pieces shown in the drawings was a mere error which any workman could correct, & the contrivance was novel, useful & involved invention, & the second claim was not a claim in gross but merely subsidiary.—TRUE & VARIABLE ELECTRIC LAMP SYNDICATE v. BRYANT TRADING SYNDICATE (1908), 25 R. P. C. 461.

C. Good Faith.

(a) In General.

895. Specification must not be false.]—LIARDET v. JOHNSON, No. 844, ante.

896. ——.]—R. v. ARKWRIGHT, No. 14, ante.

897. Utmost good faith necessary.]—(1) On an application for an injunction to restrain the infringement of a patent the party must swear, that, at the time of making the application, he believes that at the date of the patent the invention was new, or had not been previously known or used in this kingdom.

It is a principle of patent law, that there must be the utmost good faith in the specification. It must describe the invention in such a way, that a person of ordinary skill in the trade shall be able to carry on the process (LORD LYNDHURST, C.).—STURZ v. DE LA RUE (1828), 5 Russ. 322; 7 L. J. O. S. Ch. 47; 38 E. R. 1048, L. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Hills v. London Gaslight Co. (1857), 27 L. J. Ex. 60.

Misleading specification.]—See Sub-sect. 2, A (a), ante.

(b) Full Disclosure.

898. General rule—Full disclosure necessary.]—R. v. ARKWRIGHT, No. 14, ante.

899. What must be disclosed — Most beneficial mode of production.]—WOOD v. ZIMMER, No. 532, ante.

900. —— ——.] — BOVILL v. MOORE (1816), Dav. Pat. Cas. 361; 2 Marsh. 211; 1 Goodeve's Patent Cases, 74.

Annotations:—Refd. Cook v. Pearce (1843), 8 Q. B. 1054; Germ Milling Co. v. Robinson (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 103.

901. —— ——.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

902. —— ——.] — If at the date of the specification, it was known to pltf. that, by the use of two common substances well known in commerce, more than one hundredfold cheaper than carburet of manganese, the same results precisely would be obtained as by the use of that material, the specification would have been bad, as not truly disclosing the invention (LORD CRANWORTH, C.).—UNWIN v. HEATH (1855), 5 H. L. Cas. 505; 16 C. B. 713; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 279; 25 L. J. C. P. 8; 26 L. T. O. S. 141; 3 W. R. 625; 10 E. R. 997, H. L.; revsg. S. C. sub nom. HEATH v. UNWIN (1852), 12 C. B. 522, Ex. Ch.

Annotations:—Consd. Marconi & Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. British Radio Telegraph & Telephone Co. (1911), 27 T. L. R. 274. Apld. Vidal Dyes Syndicate v. Levinstein (1912), 29 R. P. C. 245. Consd. Fellows v. Lench (1916), 34 R. P. C. 45. Refd. Heath v. Smith (1854), 3 E. & B. 256; De la Rue v. Dickenson (1857), 7 E. & B. 738; Higgins v. Seed (1858), 8 E. & B. 771; Hills v. London Gas Light Co. (1860), 5 H. & N. 312; Renard v. Levinstein (1865), 13 W. R. 382; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (1885), 29 Ch. D. 366; Edison Bell Phonograph Corpn. v. Smith & Young (1894), 11 R. P. C. 389; Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. De Mare Incandescent Gas Light System (1896), 13 R. P. C. 559; Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369; Act. fur Anilin Fabrikation in Berlin v. Levinstein (1921), 38 R. P. C. 277.

903. —— ——.]—(1) Pltfs. as owners of a patent brought an action for infringement, & moved for an interlocutory injunction to restrain defts. from infringing until the trial of the action. The only substantial defence was that the patent was void on the ground that the complete specification did not disclose all that pltfs. knew at the date thereof to be necessary for the purpose of working the invention. It was proved that competent workmen could carry out the invention with no other assistance than that derived from the specification:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to the injunction they moved for.

(2) Inventor must disclose all that he knows to be necessary for the purpose of the invention which he claims.

Is it to be said that the specification not lodged

Sect. 4.—Complete specification: Sub-sect. 2, C. & D. (a).]

by this person, but lodged by a person from whom he bought it, & therefore bought with all its infirmities, if it had any, because he knew a mode by which a stone prepared according to the specification may be more conveniently or more usefully worked than anybody but himself knew, that he was bound to put that into the specification. I know no authority for saying that (BACON, V.-C.).—COLES v. BAYLIS, LEWIS & CO. (1886), 3 R. P. C. 178; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 57.

904. —— Most improved state of invention.]—The patentee is bound to give in his specification the most improved state of his invention up to the time of enrolling his specification (TINDAL, C.J.).—JONES v. HEATON (prior to 1841), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 404, n.

905. —— Anything necessary for beneficial enjoyment.]—(1) If the apparatus described can be used beneficially in its simplest form, it is no objection that great improvements have been made.

(2) If experiments are necessary for the production of any beneficial effect, the patent is void.—NEILSON v. HARFORD (1841), 8 M. & W. 806; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 295; 11 L. J. Ex. 20; 151 E. R. 1266.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Unwin v. Heath (1855), 5 H. L. Cas. 505; Stoner v. Todd (1876), 4 Ch. D. 58; Ticket Punch Register Co. v. Colley's Patent (1895), 12 R. P. C. 171. Generally, Refd. Crane v. Price (1842), 12 L. J. C. P. 81; Household Coal & Iron Co. v. Neilson (1843), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 673; Cook v. Pearce (1844), 8 Q. B. 1054; Stead v. Williams (1844), 7 Man. & G. 818; Allen v. Rawson (1845), 1 C. B. 551; Millington v. Picken (1845), 1 C. B. 799; Beard v. Egerton (1849), 8 C. B. 165; Hull v. Bolland (1856), 27 L. T. O. S. 221; Berwick v. Horsfall (1858), 4 C. B. N. S. 450; Hills v. London Gas Light Co. (1860), 5 H. & N. 312; Betts v. Menzies (1862), 10 H. L. Cas. 117; Hill v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288; Simpson v. Holliday (1865), 5 New Rep. 340; Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1888), 4 T. L. R. 686; Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Tubeless Pneumatic Tyre & Capon Heaton (1898), 14 T. L. R. 341; British Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. L. & S. W. Ry. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 309. Mentd. Peck v. North Staffordshire Ry. (1863), 10 H. L. Cas. 473; Lewis v. G. W. Ry. (1877), 47 L. J. Q. B. 131; Re North Western Rubber Co. & Huttenbach, [1908] 2 K. B. 907.

906. —— Subject-matter of future patent—Though part of original invention—Carbon filaments of electric lamps.]—A patent, dated as to its final specification May, 1880, claimed an electric lamp with a carbon filament for its illuminating conductor. The patentee took out a subsequent patent, dated as to its provisional specification Dec. 1879, for a method of making carbon filaments for electric lamps:—Held: there had been no such want of disclosure as to avoid the first patent.—EDISON & SWAN ELECTRIC LIGHT CO. v. WOODHOUSE (1886), 32 Ch. D. 520; 55 L. J. Ch. 943; 55 L. T. 263; 34 W. R. 626; 2 T. L. R. 654; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 86; 3 R. P. C. 167; affd., 3 T. L. R. 327, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 5 T. L. R. 294.

907. —— —— Substitute for part of original invention.]—It was objected to a patent that the patentee had not disclosed all the knowledge he possessed, he admitting in evidence that at the date of the patent he had in his mind a substitute for one part of his invention which he subsequently patented. The patentee explained this by saying that at the date of the patent he did not think the substitute equally good, & that though he had afterwards patented it, he had now returned to the [illegible] this did not invalidate the patent.—

908. Effect of claim for subsidiary purpose.]—A patentee who discovers a valuable invention does not invalidate his patent merely because he claims for a subsidiary purpose far less valuable, unless the subsidiary claim has absolutely no utility or has been anticipated or required no invention.—ADAMANT STONE & PAVING CO., LTD. v. LIVERPOOL CORPN. (1896), 14 R. P. C. 11, 264.

D. Conformity with Provisional Specification.

(a) In General.

909. General rule—Must conform to provisional specification—As to nature of invention.]—The provisional specification was introduced by the statute of 1852 for a very important object, & with very definite regulations, stating what it should contain, & the purpose which it was intended to answer. In that Act a contrast was drawn between what was required of a patentee in the provisional specification & what were the rules for the construction of the complete specification; the contrast might be given in the words of the statute which directed that in the provisional specification, the nature of the invention should be described, but that the complete specification should particularly describe & ascertain the nature of the invention, & in what manner the same was to be performed. Now the description of the nature of the invention, which was the duty of the provisional specification, was contrasted with the description which was the duty of the complete specification, in this way—that one was to describe the nature generally, the other to describe it particularly; & further, the complete specification must not only describe it particularly, but must also ascertain in what manner the same was to be performed (LORD WESTBURY, C.).—FOXWELL v. BOSTOCK (1864), 4 De G. J. & Sm. 298; 3 New Rep. 546; 10 L. T. 144; 12 W. R. 723; 46 E. R. 934, L. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Murray v. Clayton (1872), 7 Ch. App. 570; Harrison v. Anderston Foundry Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 574; Moore v. Bennett (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86) 158; Perry v. Soc. des Lunetiers (1896), 13 R. P. C. 664; Kynoch v. Webb (1899), 17 R. P. C. 100; British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Thompson (1904), 22 R. P. C. 177; United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631. Refd. Daw v. Eley (1865), L. R. 3 Eq. 500, n.; Penn v. Jack (1866), 14 L. T. 495; Parkes v. Stevens (1869), 5 Ch. App. 36; Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315; Clark v. Adie (No 2) (1877), 2 App. Cas. 423; Nordenfelt v. Gardner & Gardner Gun Co. (1884), 1 R. P. C. 61; Watling v. Stevens (1886), 3 R. P. C. 37; Proctor v. Bennis (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740; British United Machinery Co. v. Thompson (1905), 22 R. P. C. 175 Lynch & Wilson v. Phillips (1909), 26 R. P. C. 389.

910. —— —— ——.]—(1) The enactment in Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 5 (5), that a complete specification must end with a distinct statement of the invention claimed, is directory only, & non-compliance with it does not invalidate a patent.

(2) It is an essential condition of a good patent that the invention described in the provisional should be the same as that in the complete specification, & non-compliance with this condition is by Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883

PART VI. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.—C. (b).

905 1. What must be disclosed—Anything necessary for beneficial enjoyment.]—A patentee, in return for the monopoly or privilege which is granted to him in respect of his inventions, must state in his specifications, clearly & plainly, what his invention is, so that others practising the art may learn & use it with facility at the expiration of the term of the patent. Uberrima fides is required in this respect.—BITULITHIC & CONTRACTING, LTD. v. CANADIAN MINERAL RUBBER CO. & CALGARY (1915), 8 W. W. R. 207; 25 D. L. R. 827.—CAN.

(c. 57), s. 26 (3), preserved as a ground upon which the infringement of a patent right may be defended & a patent may be revoked (LORD HALSBURY, C.).

(3) The question remains, whether this mode of dealing with forgings which require to be gradually turned was so obvious that it would at once occur to any one acquainted with the subject, & desirous of accomplishing the end, or whether it required some invention to devise it. There is no doubt about the law applicable to such a question, though it is often difficult to apply it to the circumstances of a particular case, & its application is perhaps most difficult when the alleged invention consists of a new apparatus combining known elements (LORD HERSCHELL).

The apparatus of pltf. was a new invention & a fit subject-matter for a patent, though I admit that the case is near the border line & that no great exercise of the inventive faculty was required for its production (LORD HERSCHELL).

He [the inventor] has invented a simple, useful & easily manageable apparatus for accomplishing this object [the turning of large forgings]. It may be quite true that every one knew the use of an endless chain & of a ratchet before; but it is clear to my mind that . . . however old the elements of the apparatus the combination was new (LORD HALSBURY, C.).—VICKERS, SONS & CO. v. SIDDELL (1890), 15 App. Cas. 496; 60 L. J. Ch. 105; 63 L. T. 590; 39 W. R. 385; 6 T. L. R. 482; 7 R. P. C. 292, H. L.; affg. S. C. sub nom. SIDDELL v. VICKERS (1888), 39 Ch. D. 92, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Kelly v. Heathman (1890), 45 Ch. D. 256. As to (2) Refd. Nuttall v. Hargreaves, [1892] 1 Ch. 23. As to (3) Consd. Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Taylor & Scott v. Annaud & Northern Press & Engineering Co. (1900), 18 R. P. C. 53; Auster v. Perfecta Motor Equipments (1924), 41 R. P. C. 482. Refd. Ehrlich v. Ihlee & Sankey (1888), 4 T. L. R. 337; Longbottom v. Shaw (1891), 8 R. P. C. 333; Nuttall v. Hargreaves, [1892] 1 Ch. 23; Savage v. Harris (1896), 12 T. L. R. 187; Tubes v. Perfecta Seamless Steel Tube Co. (1902), 20 R. P. C. 77; Patent Exploitation v. Siemens (1904), 21 R. P. C. 541; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95; Benton & Stone v. Denston (1925), 42 R. P. C. 284. Generally, Refd. Case v. Cressy (1901), 17 R. P. C. 255; Mellor v. Beardmore (1926), 43 R. P. C. 361.

911. —— —— ——.]—NUTTALL v. HARGREAVES, No. 763, ante.

912. —— —— As to claims.]—PENN v. No. 402, ante.

913. —— ——.]—Re LANCASTER'S APPLICATION, No. 1408, post.

914. Need not extend to everything in provisional specification.]—PENN v. BIBBY, No. 402, ante.

915. —— Where no fraud—If effect of remainder not altered.]—(1) Any part of a provisional specification of a patent may be omitted in the complete specification, if there is no fraud, & the effect of the remainder is not altered by the omission.

(2) All the claiming clauses may be struck out of the specification of a patent by a disclaimer, if there remain in the body of the specification words sufficiently distinguishing what the invention is which the patentee claims.

(3) An alteration, verbal merely & not substantive, by means of a disclaimer will not make a patent void.

(4) A specification to which drawings were attached after describing an instrument marked "g," continued, "It is the arranging an instrument 'g' as herein described, which, while it is the means of holding the fabric . . . is also the means by which the step by step movement is given to the fabric, which constitutes the peculiarity of my invention":—Held: this was not a claim of all instruments which were at once the means of holding & moving the fabric; nor, on the other hand, of the exact machine with all its arrangements contained in the drawings; but a claim to the exclusive right to use "g," or any similar instrument, for the purpose of holding & moving the fabric at the same time.—THOMAS v. WELCH (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 192; 35 L. J. C. P. 200; 12 Jur. N. S. 316.

916. ——.]—The sole question before me is one of law as to whether or not this complete can be rejected. As far as I can tell from the complete it is in accordance with the Act. Sect. 5 requires that the provisional should describe the nature of the invention. I am clear that this specification does describe the nature of the invention, & the only criticism that can be made on the complete is that it narrows the ambit of the provisional & does not enlarge it. With regard to the case cited on behalf of the office, United Telephone Co. v. Harrison, Cox-Walker & Co., No. 602, ante, that has no application, because there it was decided that as a matter of fact the phonograph on which FRY, J., invalidated the patent had been inserted in the complete & was not fairly covered by the provisional, therefore it was a distinct case of extension of the grant & not of cutting it down. With regard to the objection that persons may see complete specifications of other appcts. after filing the provisional it is undoubtedly true, but it must be distinctly understood that I do not decide this case on a question of fact at all. If in any case it was brought before me that the person filing the complete had access to other persons' inventions, or had made use of other persons' specifications or had made use of any invention derived from another source not his own, I should, of course, not allow the complete, but in this case there is no opponent other than the office. Such a question when it arises must be dealt with as one of fact, & I should not seal the patent if it should turn out that such an impropriety, there is none suggested here, had been committed by appct. Of course I can express no opinion as to whether or not this patent will be valid. All I can say is I am clearly of opinion that this is not a case in which the sub-sects. of the Act are infringed upon (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re EVERITT (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1888), 27.

917. Must be natural outcome of provisional specification.]—A complete specification is an excess upon a provisional specification if it contains anything not foreshadowed by or developed from the provisional specification.—HORROCKS v. STUBBS (1886), 3 R. P. C. 221.

918. ——.]—I will take first the question . . . whether there is any such variation between Mr. Morgan's provisional & complete specification as ought to prevent his relying on his patent in this action. . . . It might be a fair test of the difference between the two specifications to inquire whether in the opinion of practical men one mode of manufacture is or is not the natural outcome of the other, so that a competent workman having the one before him might without any process of invention produce the other (KEKEWICH, J.).—MORGAN & CO., LTD. v. WINDOVER & CO., LTD. (1887), 3 T. L. R. 748; 4 R. P. C. 417; affd. (1888), 4 T. L. R. 425, C. A.; revsd. on other grounds (1890), 7 R. P. C. 131, H. L.

Annotations:—Refd. Elias v. Grovesend Tinplate Co. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 455; Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292; Gadd v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Goddard v. Lyon (1894), 11 R. P. C. 354; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429; British Ore

Sect. 4.—Complete specification: Sub-sect. 2, D. (a), (b) & (c).]

Concentration Syndicate v. Minerals Separation (1909), 27 R. P. C. 33; Layland v. Boldy (1913), 30 R. P. C. 547; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95; Bonnard v. London General Omnibus Co. (1920), 38 R. P. C. 1.

(b) What may be added to Provisional Specification.

919. Matters of detail.]—BAILEY v. ROBERTON, No. 935, post.

920. ——.]—LUCAS v. MILLER, No. 770, ante.

921. ——.]—(1) A patent for the mere new use of a known contrivance without any additional ingenuity in overcoming fresh difficulties is bad & cannot be supported. If the new use involves no ingenuity but is in manner & purpose analogous to the old use although not quite the same, there is no invention, no manner of new manufacture within Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3). On the other hand, a patent for a new use of a known contrivance is good, & can be supported if the new use involves practical difficulties which the patentee has been the first to see & overcome by some ingenuity of his own. An improved thing produced by a new & ingenious application of a known contrivance to an old thing is a manner of new manufacture within the statute.

(2) The provisional specification described the invention, specified variations in the gearing, & concluded: other variations in detail may be made without departing from the peculiar character of the invention. In the complete specification the last sentence above quoted was thus added to: Which consists in connecting, by means of torsional or tensional gearing, a number of points round the bottom curb of a gasholder, in such manner that when one point thereof tends to rise or fall the same tendency is transmitted, through such gearing, round the circle to every other point:—Held: there was not such a want of conformity between the specifications as invalidated the patent.

The evidence of experts as to the construction of specifications is inadmissible, & that except as to the meaning of scientific terms when they occur, or as to the working of mechanical appliances, or as to what such working will bring about expert evidence should not be admitted (SMITH, L.J.).—GADD & MASON v. MANCHESTER CORPN. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; 9 R. P. C. 516; 9 T. L. R. 42, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Shrewsbury & Talbot S. T. Cab Co. v. Sterckx (1895), 12 T. L. R. 122; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Leicester Pneumatic Tyre & Automatic Valve Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 50. Distd. Taylor & Scott v. Annand & Northern Press & Engineering Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 547. Apld. Layland v. Boldy (1913), 29 T. L. R. 651; Norton v. Barker (1913), 30 R. P. C. 741; Re Merten's Patent (1914), 31 R. P. C. 373. Refd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 431; Savage v. Harris (1896), 12 T. L. R. 187; Mellor v. Beardmore (1926), 43 R. P. C. 361. As to (2) Apld. Cassel Gold Extracting Co. v. Cyanide Gold Recovery Syndicate (1895), 11 T. L. R. 345.

922. ——.]—In 1887, a patent was granted for improvements in the manufacture of explosives. According to the provisional specification, the invention consisted in the employment of a nitrated body such as nitrated woody matter or fibre, which is dissolved in a solvent such as ether & then dried & reduced to powder. In the complete specification, the patentee claimed, first, the manufacture of an explosive suited for use in small arms or ordnance by taking vegetable fibres, woody matters, cellulose, or the like . . . & nitrating them & then completely dissolving them in acetic ether or acetone or like solvents of equal strength, until they assume a gelatinous plastic consistency, & forming the mass into suitable shapes, & drying or allowing to dry or distilling off the solvent from the mass, & finally, when required, reducing the product to a powder or granular or other required form, with or without the use therewith of an oxygen yielding substance, or both an oxygen yielding substance & a hydrocarbon all substantially as hereinbefore described. H., in whom the patent had become vested, brought an action for infringement thereof against the S. co., who alleged want of novelty, want of subject-matter, insufficiency, disconformity, anticipation by (inter alia) publication of W.'s German patent. Defts., in their manufacture of powder, treated nitro-cellulose with acetone, but they alleged that the greater part of the fibre was not dissolved.

The evidence showed that it was known at the date of the patent that nitro-cellulose could be dissolved by the substance named by the patentee; that the solvents were of two classes—one, which included acetone, dissolving both trinitro-cellulose, & dinitro-cellulose & the other, which included ether-alcohol, dissolving dinitro-cellulose only; that the result of solution was to reduce the nitro-cellulose to an amorphous condition, although chemically unchanged, & that the solvent could be evaporated off. W.'s patent described the manufacture of cartridge cases out of an explosive material obtained by adding chlorate of potash to guncotton, drying & pouring such a quantity of collodion thereon until the saturation effected a dissolution of the cotton, & a gelantinous mass was produced:—Held: it was an essential feature of the invention that there should be complete dissolution of the fibre of the nitrocellulose; the provisional specification included both classes of nitro-cellulose & both classes of solvents, & there was no disconformity or insufficiency of description; that on the above-mentioned construction of the patent it was not shown to be anticipated except by W.'s patent, but was anticipated by that; & defts. had not infringed, since in their powder the fibre remained undissolved to a considerable extent.—HEIDEMANN v. SMOKELESS POWDER CO., LTD. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 306.

923. ——.]—In 1890 a patent was granted to W. for improvements in rubber tyres & metal rims or felloes of wheels for cycles & other light vehicles. The Pneumatic Tyre co., in whom this patent had become vested, brought an action for infringement against E. & S., trading as the L. co. Defts., in addition to special defences & counterclaims, denied infringement, novelty, utility, subject-matter, & that W. was the first inventor, & alleged disconformity. Prior to the commencement of the action, W.'s patent had been held valid in an action of Pneumatic Tyre Co., Ltd. v. Casswell, No. 1030, post, in which the question of disconformity had been decided; &, before trial, the same question had been decided by the Ct. Appeal in favour of the patent in Pneumatic Tyre Company, Ltd. v. East London Rubber Company, Ltd., No. 930, post:—Held: the evidence not having established different findings to those in the previous actions, the decisions as to disconformity were binding on the ct., & must be followed; also the patent had not been anticipated, & was good, & had been infringed. Defts. appealed against the judgment on the claim.

It is in the final specification only that it is required of a patentee that he shall state how his invention is to be carried out. If he gives in his provisional specification a wide enough description of the nature of his invention he is entitled to fill that up, & even to take advantage of knowledge which may come to him between the dates of the provisional specification & the final specification, in order to cover by his final specification matters of detail which he may not have known at the time when he drew up his provisional specification, but which are covered by the description he has given of the nature of his invention (LORD SHAND).—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. LEICESTER PNEUMATIC TYRE & AUTOMATIC VALVE CO. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 531, H. L.

Annotation:—Refd. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley & India Rubber & Tyre Repairing Co. (1903), 20 T. L. R. 85.

924. Improvements.] — (1) Where a patentee of certain gas apparatus, between the time of taking out the patent & enrolling the specification, made certain improvements in his apparatus, & in the specification claimed the machine so improved as his invention:—Held: this did not affect the validity of the patent.

It must be on some strict technical rule that a variance between a patent & the specification is to vitiate the patent. I am not aware of the existence of such a rule, & it would be very hard if a person were to lose the benefit of his invention because he has made it more valuable to the public (LITTLEDALE, J.).

(2) Improvements made during the interval for specifying should be described.

(3) The terms of a specification must be interpreted according to the state of knowledge at the time.—CROSSLEY v. BEVERLY (1829), 9 B. & C. 63; 3 C. & P. 513; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 112; 7 L. J. O. S. K. B. 127; 109 E. R. 24.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Jupe v. Pratt (1836), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 144. Refd. Household Coal & Iron Co. v. Neilson (1843), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 673; Foxwell v. Bostock (1864), 10 L. T. 144. Generally, Refd. Hills v. London Gas Light Co. (1860), 5 H. & N. 312.

925. ——.] — BAILEY v. ROBERTON, No. 935, post.

926. ——.]—LUCAS v. MILLER, No. 770, ante.

927. —— Duty to disclose.] — CROSSLEY v. BEVERLY, No. 924, ante.

928. —— ——.] — WOODWARD v. SANSUM & CO., No. 761, ante.

929. —— ——.] — MOSELEY v. VICTORIA RUBBER CO., No. 762, ante.

930. Subsequent discoveries by other inventors —May be referred to.]—(1) In a provisional specification the nature of the invention need not be described otherwise than roughly, though it must be described fairly, & the manner in which the invention is to be carried into effect need not be described. A patentee is not bound in his provisional specification to detail the advantages of his invention, & in stating in such specification his chief objects, he should not be taken to imply, where the invention consists of several parts that he obtains all these objects in every part of his invention, or that some parts of it may not have other advantages not expressly mentioned.

(2) Although a patented invention may, in consequence of subsequent discoveries made by other inventors, prove more valuable & have a wider field of usefulness than was contemplated by the patentee at the date of his invention, yet the patentee is entitled to the full benefit of the use of his invention if taken & applied for the purposes of these subsequent discoveries; & if the subsequent discoveries take place after the date of the provisional & before the date of the complete specification, there is nothing improper in the patentee referring to them in the complete specification, & thus showing the manner in which his invention could be best applied to them.

(3) If, in the provisional specification, which describes a valuable part of an invention, there is also described, as an alternative to that part, something which turns out not to be valuable & is abandoned in the final specification, such abandonment does not affect the validity of the claim for the invention disregarding the omitted alternative part or deprive the patentee of the right to say that he first discovered & gave to the public the benefit of the valuable part which was retained (ROMER, J.).—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. EAST LONDON RUBBER CO. (1896), 75 L. T. 488; 14 R. P. C. 77; 13 T. L. R. 97; affd. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 573; 13 T. L. R. 387, C. A.

Annotation:—Generally, Refd. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley & India Rubber & Tyre Repairing Co. (1903), 52 W. R. 189.

931. —— ——.]—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. LEICESTER PNEUMATIC TYRE & AUTOMATIC VALVE CO., No. 923, ante.

932. Drawings.]—In 1890, letters patent were granted to W. for an invention of improvements in rubber tyres & metal rims of bicycles. The tyres described in the provisional specification were of an arch-shape, & a method of fastening on by wires in the edges of the tyres was described. After describing special forms of rims, the patentee stated that his rubber tyres were applicable to wheels in present use, & in the Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. East London Rubber Co., No. 930, ante, these were held by the Ct. Appeal to include pneumatic tyres & to justify Fig. 15 of the complete specification. The provisional specification further stated that he might also fit his tyre to the ordinary rims by modifying the inner surface of the rubbers. Pltfs., in whom the patent was vested, commenced this action for infringement thereof. The alleged infringement was a rubber tyre with metal bands in pockets at the edges of it; these bands nearly met, when in position under the air tube, the rim being almost flat at the bottom & having edges somewhat inclined inwards. The bands overlapped longitudinally, but the ends were not fastened together. Defts. alleged disconformity & non-infringement, relying as to discomformity chiefly so far as the trial was concerned on Fig. 20 of the complete specification, on which no express decision had previously been given:—Held: there was no disconformity, & that the patent was valid, but that defts. did not infringe it inasmuch as in W.'s invention the tyre was held on by the inextensibility of the wires, whereas the bands in defts.' were not inextensible & were not in tension.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. IXION PATENT PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 853.

(c) Effect of Disconformity.

933. General rule—Specification bad.] — ONIONS v. CROWLEY, No. 871, ante.

934. —— ——.] — If the complete specification sets out & claims an invention independent of that which is in the provisional specification, besides also describing that invention which is in the provisional specification, then the complete specification is bad. It would be equally bad if the invention described in the complete specification were a wholly different invention from that PART VI. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.—D. (b).

924 i. Improvements.]—The addition of a simple mechanical contrivance, the use of which merely constituted an improvement held to be a legitimate development of the invention disclosed in the provisional specification. —KELVIN v. WHYTE, THOMSON & CO. (1907), 25 R. P. C. 177.—SCOT.

Sect. 4.—Complete specification: Sub-sect. 2, D. (c); sub-sects. 3 & 4.]

described in the provisional specification, because, as has been said, the patent is not given then for the invention which is described in the provisional specification. Therefore, if there were only one invention described in the provisional application, & only one in the complete specification, but those two inventions were wholly & substantially different, the patent would be bad. So if an invention is described in the provisional specification, which invention is also described in the complete specification; but in the complete specification another & distinct invention is described & claimed, then it is bad because with regard to the second invention so described & claimed in the complete specification, there would be no provisional specification to cover it (ESHER, M.R.).—WATLING v. STEVENS (1886), 3 R. P. C. 147; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 240, C. A.

935. Whether whole patent void.] —When the nature of an invention has been described in a provisional specification, it is no objection if the final specification describes the invention in greater detail, even to the extent of showing that further discoveries have been made, provided the nature of the invention remains the same.—BAILEY v. ROBERTON (1878), 3 App. Cas. 1055; 38 L. T. 854; 27 W. R. 17, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Lucas v. Miller (1885), 2 R. P. C. 155. Apld. Woodward v. Sansum (1887), 56 L. T. 347; Siddell v. Vickers (1888), 39 Ch. D. 92. Consd. Re Gaulard & Gibbs's Patent (1888), 4 T. L. R. 666; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Nuttall v. Hargreaves, [1892] 1 Ch. 23. Refd. United Telephone Co. v. Harrison, Cox-Walker (1882), 21 Ch. D. 720; Horrocks v. Stubbs (1886), 3 R. P. C. 221; Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co. (1887), 57 L. T. 142; Miller v. Clyde Bridge Steel Co. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 470; Ward v. Hill (1903), 20 R. P. C. 189.

936. ——.]—TUBELESS PNEUMATIC TYRE & CAPON HEATON, LTD. v. TRENCH TUBELESS TYRE CO., LTD., No. 676, ante.

937. ——.] — CASTNER-KELLNER ALKALI CO., LTD. v. COMMERCIAL DEVELOPMENT CORPN., LTD. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 593, H. L.

Annotation:—Refd. Kelvin v. Whyte, Thompson (1907), 25 R. P. C. 177.

938. Effect of addition.] — A patent was granted for improvements in the manufacture of gas, & in apparatus used when transmitting & measuring gas. The title as set out in the specification was for improvements in the manufacture of gas, & in apparatus used therein & when transmitting & measuring gas. The body of the specification described four things, & among them improvements in the setting & heating of retorts, & in the manufacture of clay retorts for making gas, & claimed these improvements as part of the subject of the patent:—Held: this was not a specification of the invention for which the patent was granted, but of a more extensive invention, & the patent was void.—CROLL v. EDGE (1850), 9 C. B. 479; 19 L. J. C. P. 261; 15 L. T. O. S. 66; 14 Jur. 553; 137 E. R. 978.

Annotations:—Distd. Hills v. London Gaslight Co. (1857), 27 L. J. Ex. 60; Oxley v. Holden (1860), 8 C. B. N. S. [illegible] R. v. Mill (1850), 10 C. B. 379; Newall v. Elliott (1858), 4 Jur. N. S. 562.

939. ——.]—The title of the patent being for improvements in the manufacture of frills or ruffles & the provisional specification describing the invention as relating to a particular manufacture of frills or ruffles, the complete specification described the invention as relating to a particular manufacture of frills, ruffles or trimmings:—Held: this was no such material variation as to render the patent invalid.—WRIGHT v. HITCHCOCK (1870), L. R. 5 Exch. 37; sub nom. WIGHT v. HITCHOCK, 39 L. J. Ex. 97.

Annotations:—Refd. Von Heyden v. Neustadt (1880), 14 Ch. D. 230; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Johnson & Basle Chemical Works, Bindschedler (1897), 76 L. T. 434; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Hickson, [1906] A. C. 419.

940. ——.]—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. HARRISON, COX-WALKER & CO., No. 602, ante.

941. ——.] — Re GREEN'S PATENT, No. 1406, post.

942. ——.] — WATLING v. STEVENS, No. 934, ante.

943. ——.]—Re GAULARD & GIBBS' PATENT, No. 1231, post.

944. ——.] — NUTTALL v. HARGREAVES, No 763, ante.

945. ——.]—ADAMS v. STEVENS, No. 456, ante.

946. ——.]—In 1894, a patent was granted for improvements in adjusting the driving chain for bicycles & other velocipedes. The first claim was for the improvements in driving chain adjusting mechanism of velocipedes hereinbefore described & illustrated in the accompanying drawings, that is to say, making the ends of the arms or branches of the chain stay hollow or tubular & longitudinally slotted on their inner sides, & arranging on the ends of the driving wheel spindle carrier blocks for taking into & working in the said hollow or tubular ends of the chain stay, the said carrier blocks being moved in the hollow or tubular chain stays in the ways hereinbefore described & illustrated. By his fifth claim, the patentee claimed the combination with the chain adjusting gear for velocipedes hereinbefore described & claimed, when used with semi-circular or semi-elliptical chain stay arms, of foot steps of the kind hereinbefore described & illustrated in Figures 22, 23, & 24 of the accompanying drawings. The provisional specification contained no reference to the foot steps. In 1897, a co., who were then the registered owners of the patent, commenced an action against another co. for infringement, alleging claim 1 to be infringed. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged (inter alia) defts.' arrangement had a chain stay with a tubular end which had two slots in it, one at the side through which the end of the driving wheel spindle passed, & on underneath for manipulating a nut which screwed on the end of the spindle inside the tubular chain stay; on the side of the latter nearest the wheel a draw-bolt was screwed on the spindle. Pltfs. contended that defts. had in substance their carrier block. It was held at the trial, that the defence of disconformity failed, & the patent was valid & had been infringed:—Held: the invention claimed claim 1 was the combination of the improved tubular end of the chain stay with the particular adjusting apparatus of which the carrier block was the essential feature; defts. had not infringed, & the patent was bad for disconformity, inasmuch as what was claimed claim 5 was not shadowed forth in the provisional specification.—OSMONDS v. BALMORAL CYCLE CO., LTD. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 505, C. A.

947. ——.] — SAVAGE BROTHERS, LTD. v. BRINDLE, No. 255, ante.

PART VI. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.—D. (c).

938 i. Effect of addition.]—HUTCHISON [illegible] 5 R. P. C. 351.—SCOT.

938 ii. ——.]—CERA LIGHT CO., LTD. v. DOBBIE & SON (1892), 11 R. P. C. 10.—SCOT.

d. Specification bad.]—DUNLOP v. COOPER (1908), 7 C. L. R. 146.—AUS.

e. ——.]—GILLIES v. DUNBAR (1877), 5 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 337; 15 Sc. L. R. [illegible] —SCOT.

948. Effect of omission—Whether intention to exclude presumed.]—STONER v. TODD, No. 645, ante.

949. —— ——.]—SANDOW, LTD. v. SZALAY, No. 184, ante.

950. —— Abandonment of useless alternative.]—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. EAST LONDON RUBBER CO., No. 930, ante.

Disconformity as defence to action for infringement.]—See Part XIV., Sect. 2, sub-sect. 3, D. (d), post.

Disconformity as ground for revocation.]—See Part XIII., Sect. 1, sub-sect. 2, F., post.

SUB-SECT. 3.—REFERENCE TO PRIOR SPECIFICATION.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 7 (4), 8 (2); 1919 (c. 80) sched.; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 32, 35.

951. Right to refer to prior specifications.]—PARKES v. STEVENS, No. 287, ante.

952. ——.]—A patentee has no right to try & put on the public what he believes to be the construction of the written document. He has a perfect right to give his own statement of the prior knowledge & say that he refers, in support of his statement, to any number of previous specifications (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re ATHERTON'S PATENT (1889), 6 R. P. C. 547.

953. Right to refer to defects—General allegation only allowed.]—Although general allegations of defects not allowed in a specification, an obligation of a particular defect in a prior patent will not be allowed.—Re GUEST & BARROW'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 312.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Brockie's Appln. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 813.

954. Party applying invention deemed to know prior specifications—Patent for improvement on well known process.]—LISTER v. LEATHER, No. 278, ante.

SUB-SECT. 4.—PATENTS FOR IMPROVEMENTS AND COMBINATIONS.

955. Whether necessary to distinguish novelty or improvement—General rule.]—A specification of an invention that includes new as well as old matter is bad, unless it sets out clearly what is old & what new, & also a disclaimer by the patentee of such parts of the invention as are not new.—TETLEY v. EASTON (1853), 2 E. & B. 956; Macr. 82; 23 L. J. Q. B. 77; 22 L. T. O. S. 134; 18 Jur. 350; 2 W. R. 94; 118 E. R. 1024.

Annotation:—Refd. Newall v. Elliot (1864), 13 W. R. 11.

956. —— ——.]—BOVILL v. SMITH, No. 448, ante.

957. —— Claim for improvement.]—HARMAR v. PLAYNE, No. 864, ante.

958. —— ——.]—In the specification of a patent for an improved instrument it is essential to point out precisely what is new, & what is old, & it is not sufficient to give a general description of the construction of the instrument without making such distinction, although a plate is annexed, containing a detached & separate representation of the parts in which the improvement consists.—MACFARLANE v. PRICE (1816), 1 Stark. 199, N. P.

959. —— ——.]—HILL v. THOMPSON, No. 25, ante.

960. —— ——.]—FAIRBURN & HALL v. HOUSEHOLD & ROSHER, No. 893, ante.

961. —— ——.]—PHILPOTT v. HANBURY, No. 649, ante.

962. —— Claim for entirely new combination.]—Where a person obtains a patent for a machine, consisting of an entirely new combination of parts, though all the parts may have been used, separately, in former machines, the specification is correct in setting out the whole as the invention of the patentee. But if a combination of a certain number of those parts have previously existed up to a certain point, in former machines, the patentee merely adding other combinations, the specification should only state such improvements; though the effect produced be different throughout.—BOVILL v. MOORE (1816), 2 Marsh. 211; Gooderve's Patent Cases, 74.

Annotation:—Consd. Cook v. Pearce (1843), 8 Q. B. 1044.

963. —— ——.]—HOLMES v. LONDON & NORTH-WESTERN RY. CO., No. 1049, post.

964. —— ——.]—WATLING v. STEVENS, No. 934, ante.

965. —— ——.]—HARRISON v. ANDERSTON FOUNDRY CO., No. 281, ante.

966. —— —— Not for subordinate elements.]—Pltf., being patentee of improvements in machines for cutting & trimming the hairs or bristles of brushes, sued deft. for using a machine which pltf. alleged was an infringement of his patent. Deft. alleged (a) that pltf.'s patent was invalid because his specification was insufficient; (b) that deft.'s machine was not an infringement; (c) that such machine was in use before the date of the patent:—Held: the specification was sufficient, because where the claim is for a new combination only, & not also for subordinate elements included in that combination, then, if the combination & the mode of working it are properly described, it is not necessary to specify which of the subordinate elements are new.

When a claim is made for a general combination & arrangement of the different parts of a machine, if the ct. sees that the combination is not new, but that there is some particular improvement in some particular part, it will not do to claim the whole combination as new, but you must condescend upon that which is improved (LORD SELBORNE, C.).—MOORE v. BENNETT (1884), 1 R. P. C. 129; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 158, H. L.

Annotations:—Apld. Sugg v. Bray (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 210. Distd. Useful Patents Co. v. Rylands (1885), 2 R. P. C. 255. Refd. International Harvester Co. of America v. Peacock (1908), 25 R. P. C. 765; Lynch & Wilson v. Phillips (1909), 26 R. P. C. 389.

967. —— ——.]—In 1878 a patent was granted to pltf. for improvements in frames for woven or elastic wire web mattresses. He brought an action against deft. for infringing this patent by making & selling mattresses with frames, which were alleged to be infringements of pltf.'s. Pltf. claimed the usual relief. Deft. denied the alleged infringement, & put in issue the validity of the patent on the grounds of insufficiency of the specification & of the invention. Pltf.'s claim was for a framework constructed entirely of wood, & possessing certain advantages. The invention was in fact a combination of old parts, viz., (a) a rectangular frame, (b) a transverse adjustable bar resting on such frame, (c) adjustable screws

PART VI. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 4.

1. Improvement must be shown.

CARTSBURN SUGAR REFINING CO. v. SHARP (1884), 1 R. P. C. 181.—SCOT.

g. ——.]—The specification ought to show what the improvement is.—LEGGOTT v. MCGEOCH (1893), 10 R. P. C. 434.—SCOT.

passing into or through the transverse bar, & (d) webbing fixed to the end of the framework, & capable of being held in tension by the adjustable screws:—Held: (1) the specification was not such as to make it clear to the public that the claim was for the combination, & not for the specific things making up the combination, & the patent was invalid on that ground; (2) the patented invention had been anticipated.—ROWCLIFFE v. MORRIS (1885), 3 R. P. C. 17.

968. —— ——.]—The assignee of a patent for "improvements in photographic cameras & shutter arrangement for same" having commenced an action for infringement, defts. alleged the invalidity of the patent, on the grounds (inter alia) (a) that the patentee had not pointed out in what the novelty of his invention, which was held to be for a combination, consisted; (b) that an amendment of the specification had enlarged the patent; (c) that the patent had been anticipated; & (d) that, having regard to common & public knowledge, there was not sufficient novelty to support a patent:—Held: none of these objections to the validity of the patent had been made out, & pltf. was entitled to judgment.

Where there is a claim for a combination, & the combination is the novelty, the patentee need not point out how far he claims novelty for particular portions; but where there is only an improvement in some part, the patentee must claim for the improvement, & not for the whole combination.—PERRY v. SOCIÉTÉ DES LUNETIERS (1896), 13 R. P. C. 664.

969. —— ——.]—(1) Where a specification has been amended by disclaimer, the amended specification takes the place of the original specification.

(2) Foxwell v. Bostock, No. 972, post, is not overruled, & it is doubtful whether it is true to say, in the case of every invention embodied in a new combination described & ascertained in the specification which claims the whole combination as new, there is no obligation to distinguish what is old from what is new (VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J.).—BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. FUSSELL (A.) & SONS, LTD. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (1) Folld. Lynch & Wilson v. Phillips (1909), 26 R. P. C. 389. Generally, Refd. Read v. Stella Conduit Co. (1916), 33 R. P. C. 191.

970. —— ——.]—In the specification of a patent for "an improved method of, & apparatus for, producing fasteners from metal or wire, & inserting them in leather goods & the like" the first claim was for the method of making & setting a fastener composed of a single strand of wire, consisting of seven operations, described in such claim, substantially as described. The second claim was for a machine for making & setting such a fastener, characterised by three operations, in such claim described, substantially as described. The owners of the patent commenced an action for infringement, & deft. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the ground of anticipation, & by reason of the patentee not having defined the extent of the monopoly claimed. At the trial it was contended for deft. that the order of the operations was an essential feature of the first claim, that deft.'s machine had not been used to operate so as to infringe that claim, &, in particular, that, as used, it cut the wire before bending it, whereas the patented method was to bend before cutting, & that deft.'s machine, being substantially different from the machine described in the specification, was not an infringement of the second claim; that if it were within the second claim the claim was a claim by function, covering all machines obtaining the result, & was invalid; that the patentee had not sufficiently indicated what was novel in his invention:—Held: where the combination is the novelty, the patentee need not state what elements are new.—BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. THOMPSON (1904), 22 R. P. C. 177.

Annotations:—Consd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631. Apld. Lynch & Wilson v. Phillips (1909), 26 R. P. C. 389.

971. —— Claim for partly new combination.]—BOVILL v. MOORE, No. 819, ante.

972. —— ——.]—By 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, it is in effect provided that a disclaimer permitted to be entered under the provisions of that Act must not be such a disclaimer as will extend the exclusive right granted by the letters patent.

Semble: (1) the meaning of this enactment is, that the patent must not, by the operation of the disclaimer, be made to include or comprehend something which was not originally contained in it.

Semble: (2) if a disclaimer operates so as to extend the patent, & thus to transgress the statutory limit, it is not void to all intents & purposes, but only for the excess.

(3) Where a provisional specification described an invention for a particular purpose, & the completed specification described a combination of machinery whereby the purpose was fulfilled, it appearing upon the construction of the two that what was intended to be patented was the particular arrangement of parts, & not any particular piece of mechanism, upon a disclaimer disclaiming three of the auxiliary mechanical arrangements as inventions, but retaining drawings & descriptions of them as acting parts of the combined machine, so that the operation of the disclaimer was, that the combination described in the new specification was different from that described in the old, & that there was no specification remaining of the invention for which the original patent was granted, the amended specification, which formed part of the disclaimer, was held insufficient.

(4) Where a specification describes as an invention an improved combination of machinery, which is only another phrase for an improved machine, the specification must also proceed to describe the improvement, & to define wherein the novelty consists, otherwise than by a mere general description, if not, the specification will be insufficient.

(5) The law requires that a specification should be intelligible to a workman of ordinary skill & information on the subject (LORD WESTBURY, C.).—FOXWELL v. BOSTOCK (1864), 4 De G. J. & Sm. 298; 3 New Rep. 546; 10 L. T. 144; 12 W. R. 723; 46 E. R. 934, L. C.

Annotations:—As to (3) Refd. Daw v. Eley (1865), L. R. 3 Eq. 500, n. As to (4) Consd. Parkes v. Stevens (1869), 5 Ch. App. 36. Apld. Murray v. Clayton (1872), 7 Ch. App. 570. Expld. Harrison v. Anderston Foundry Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 574. Apld. Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315. Consd. Clark v. Adie (No. 2) (1877), 2 App. Cas. 423; Moore v. Bennett (1884), 1 R. P. C. 129; Perry v. Soc. des Lunetiers (1896), 13 R. P. C. 664; Kynoch v. Webb (1899), 17 R. P. C. 100. Distd. British United Machinery Co. v. Thompson (1905), 22 R. P. C. 177. Consd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631. Dbtd. Lynch & Wilson v. Phillips (1909), 26 R. P. C. 389. Refd. Nordenfelt v. Gardner & Gardner Gun Co. (1884), 1 R. P. C. 61; Watling v. Stevens (1886), 3 R. P. C. 37; Proctor v. Bennis (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740. Generally, Refd. Penn v. Jack (1866), 14 L. T. 495.

973. —— ——.]—(1) A patent may be granted not only in respect of a whole & complete thing described, but in respect, also, of a subordinate integer of that whole. But then the invention must be so described as to make it clear in respect of what, the whole or the integer, the patent has been asked for & granted.

(2) Where a person has invented an improvement in the form of a particular apparatus or machine, but combines that individual improvement with other things which are not his inventions, his specification must claim that particular individual thing, & not leave it doubtful whether the claim is made for the whole combination, of which that thing really only forms a part. In a drawing of a machine attached to a specification there was shown an intervening space, or opening, between two parts of the machine, the object of the patent; it was intended as the arching of a cutter-plate, but this was not referred to & explained in the specification. In the specification there was the statement of an evil in existing machines, & upon careful examination, by a skilful person, he might suppose that the space exhibited in the drawing was intended to obviate this evil, but there was no statement to that effect, nor was the form of the opening described, & described as a necessary quality of improvement in the machine. This form was afterwards relied on as one of the great improvements in the combination of the patented apparatus:—Held: as it had not been properly explained, described, & claimed, the specification was defective.

(3) There were three other things which, with this one, constituted a combination insisted upon as a novelty. Those three things were old, & the mere combination of the four without a clear & sufficient description of the purpose & use of that which might be claimed as new & valuable, & without a distinct claim in respect of the combination itself, even if such a claim would have been valid:—Held: not sufficient to support the patent.—CLARK v. ADIE (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315; 46 L. J. Ch. 585; 36 L. T. 923; 26 W. R. 45, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Cropper v. Smith (1884), 1 R. P. C. 81. Apld. Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. De Mare Incandescent Gas Light System (1896), 13 R. P. C. 559. Consd. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley (1904), 91 L. T. 49. Apld. Sirdar Rubber Co. v. Wallington, Weston, [1905] 1 Ch. 451. Consd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631. Refd. Proctor v. Bennis (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740; Dowler v. Keeling (1898), 14 T. L. R. 257; Harrison Patents Co. v. Nicholson (1908), 25 R. P. C. 393; Pugh v. Riley Cycle Co. (1914), 31 R. P. C. 266. As to (2) Consd. Hattersley v. Hodgson (1906), 23 R. P. C. 193. As to (3) Consd. Ellington v. Clark, Bunnett (1887), 58 L. T. 40. Generally, Refd. Dudgeon v. Thomson (1877), 3 App. Cas. 34; Thomson v. Moore (1889), 6 R. P. C. 426; Consolidated Car Heating Co. v. Came, [1903] A. C. 509; Patent Exploitation v. Siemens (1904), 21 R. P. C. 541; Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. Mullard Radio Valve Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323.

974. —— ——.]—MOORE v. BENNETT, No. 966, ante.

975. —— ——.]—(1) Where a patent is taken out for a combination, it is not material to its validity that the specification should point out what parts are old & what are new, though, if an alleged infringement consists only in taking part of the combination, it is necessary that the patentee should in his specification have claimed the part so taken as new. Neither is it necessary that the patentee should explain the novelty & the merit of the invention.

(2) In an action by P., patentee of a stoking machine, for infringement against persons who had purchased stoking machines made by B., it was proved that before the purchase P., knowing that they were going to set up stoking machines, went to them & asked them to try his machine, saying that they would find it a better machine than B.'s, without giving any intimation that he considered B.'s machine to be an infringement of his patent though he admitted that he did at that time consider it to be so & intended to take legal proceedings when he was in funds:—Held: as the purchasers did not depose that when they bought B.'s machines they were ignorant of P.'s patent, nor was there any reason to believe that they were ignorant of it or that P. supposed them to be so, P. had not on the ground of acquiescence or estoppel lost his right to sue them for an infringement in using B.'s machines, it not being the duty of a patentee to warn persons that what they are doing is an infringement, & P.'s conduct not amounting to a representation that it was not an infringement.—PROCTOR v. BENNIS (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740; 57 L. J. Ch. 11; 57 L. T. 662; 36 W. R. 456; 3 T. L. R. 820; 4 R. P. C. 333, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Automatic Weighing Machine Co. v. Combined Weighing Machine Co., Combined Weighing Machine Co. v. Automatic Weighing Machine Co. (1889), 6 R. P. C. 120; Perry v. Soc. des Lunetiers (1896), 13 R. P. C. 664. Generally, Refd. Gosnell v. Bishop (1888), 5 R. P. C. 151; Automatic Weighing Machine Co. v. Knight (1889), 6 R. P. C. 297; Boyd v. Horrocks (1889), 6 R. P. C. 152; Crampton v. Patents Investment Co. (1889), 6 R. P. C. 287; Thomson v. Moore (1889), 6 R. P. C. 426; Muirhead v. Commercial Cable Co. (1894), 12 R. P. C. 39; Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Anderson (1894), 11 R. P. C. 519; Ticket Punch & Register Co. v. Colley's Patents (1895), 11 T. L. R. 262; Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. De Mare Incandescent Gas Light System (1896), 13 R. P. C. 559; Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. Sunlight Incandescent Gas Lamp Co. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 333; Akt. Seperator v. Dairy Outfit Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 327; Presto Gear Case & Components Co. v. Simplex Gear Case Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 635; Consolidated Car Heating Co. v. Came, [1903] A. C. 509; British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Thompson (1904), 22 R. P. C. 177; Kelvin v. Whyte, Thomson (1907), 25 R. P. C. 177; Lynch & Wilson v. Phillips (1909) 26 R. P. C. 389; Roth v. Cracknell (1921), 38 R. P. C. 120.

976. —— —— May be in body of specification or in claim.] — NORDENFELT v. GARDNER, No. 310, ante.

977. Combination of known substances — Description by method of production—Not by known names.]—Patent for a mode of making a medicine by a particular combination of three known substances. The specification not describing those substances by their known names, but pointing out particular methods of producing them, held bad; those methods not being essential to the combination, nor part of the invention.—SAVORY v. PRICE (1823), Ry. & M. 1; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 83, n., N. P.

Annotation:—Consd. Holmes v. L. & N. W. Ry. (1852), 12 C. B. 831.

978. Partial uselessness of improvement described—Validity of patent—When not essential part.]—LEWIS v. MARLING, No. 440, ante.

979. Patent limited to terms of specification.]—Where a patent had been granted merely for improvements upon the mechanism of an old & known machine:—Held: the patentee's exclusive right thereto could not be permitted to exceed the exact terms of his specification; & defts.' improvements, which had the same object, but were effected in a manner not strictly corresponding to the specification, were not an infringement of his patent.—BROWN v. JACKSON, [1895] A. C. 446; 64 L. J. P. C. 180, P. C.

Whether claim limited to novelty.]—See Sect. 5, sub-sect. 2, post.

SUB-SECT. 5.—FOREIGN PATENTS.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 39), s. 91; 1919 (c. 80), sched.; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 15–18.

980. What may be claimed — Nothing not protected by foreign patent.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1910 (B) (1910), 27 R. P. C. App. ii.

Sect. 4.—Complete specification: Sub-sect. 5. Sect. 5: Sub-sects. 1 & 2.]

981. Effect of non-compliance with statutory requirements—Specification not open to public inspection—Error in date of foreign application given.]—The Comptroller-General decided that the requirements of Rule 14 not having been complied with, & the complete specification not having been open to public inspection at the expiration of twelve months from the date of the foreign application as a result of the error in the date, the priority claimed under the International Convention could not be given:—Held: the Comptroller-General had power to refuse to grant the application under the circumstances as the requirements, which should be treated as conditions precedent, had not been complied with.—Re APPLICATION UNDER SECTION 103 OF THE PATENTS ACT, 1883 (1906), 23 R. P. C. 788.

SECT. 5.—THE CLAIM.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 2.

982. Distinct from description of invention.]—KAY v. MARSHALL, No. 354, ante.

983. Object of claim.]—KAY v. MARSHALL, No. 354, ante.

984. —— To inform public.]—(1) A description in the specification of a lamp burner omitted to state where the hole for admission of air was to be:—Held: specification was insufficient.

(2) The office of the claim at the end of a specification is to tell the public exactly what the invention is, & when, according to the natural construction of the claim, a patent would be void for want of novelty, the patentee is not at liberty to refer to the descriptive part of & drawings accompanying the specification, for the purpose of validating the patent by showing that some other is the true construction.

(3) I am anxious . . . to support honest bonâ fide inventors who have actually invented something novel & useful, & to prevent their patents from being overturned on mere technical objections, or on mere cavillings with the language of their specification so as to deprive the inventor of the benefit of his invention. This is sometimes called a "benevolent" mode of construction. Perhaps that is not the best term to use, but it may be described as construing a specification fairly, with a judicial anxiety to support a really useful invention if it can be supported on a reasonable construction of the patent. Beyond that the "benevolent" mode of construction does not go (JESSEL, M.R.).—HINKS & SON v. SAFETY LIGHTING CO. (1876), 4 Ch. D. 607; 46 L. J. Ch. 185; 36 L. T. 391.

Annotations:—As to (3) Apld. Roberts v. Heywood (1879), 27 W. R. 454. Refd. Plimpton v. Spiller (1877), 6 Ch. D. 412; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429; Patent Exploitation v. Siemens (1904), 21 R. P. C. 541; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95. Generally, Refd. Halsey v. Brotherhood (1880), 15 Ch. D. 514; Rickmann v. Thierry (1896), 14 R. P. C. 105.

985. —— To define ambit of invention.]—PLIMPTON v. SPILLER, No. 1035, post.

986. —— ——.]—EDISON-BELL PHONOGRAPH CORPN., LTD. v. SMITH, No. 172, ante.

987. —— Security of patentees.]—Claims are for the security of patentees, to prevent it being said that the patentee has claimed more than can be really supported as his invention.—JACKSON v. WOLSTENHULMES (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 134; 1 R. P. C. 105, C. A.

Annotation:—Consd. Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. Mullard Radio Valve Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323.

988. —— ——.]—It is, however, as it appears to me, impossible for the patentee to go beyond the claim in his specification. The office of the claim is to protect the patentee from the danger of being supposed to make claims beyond those which he elects to make, & it must therefore limit his patent rights to what it fairly embraces (WILLS, J.).—EASTERBROOK v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 81; 2 R. P. C. 201.

989. Necessity for claim.]—LISTER v. LEATHER, No. 278, ante.

990. ——.]—Re VON BUCH, No. 1427, post.

991. ——.]—VICKERS, SONS & CO. v. SIDDELL, No. 910, ante.

992. Necessity for clear statement.]—Re VON BUCH, No. 1427, post.

993. ——.]—This point has been considered by the A.-G. in conjunction with myself; we have come to the conclusion that provided the specification ends with a statement of the invention claimed distinct from the description of the invention contained in the specification, is complied with, & that there is no power in the Patent Office to examine into the conformity of the claims put forward by the patentee with the description of the invention which he has given. I should only guard myself by saying this, that if the statement of the invention claimed were such as I claim the invention described in the specification, that would be regarded as a mere colourable compliance with the terms of the statute, & not as a distinct statement of the invention claimed because it would merely refer back to the previous description. Therefore, I think there must be a real statement of the invention claimed, but if there is such a statement I do not think it is competent to the Patent Office to inquire whether it goes beyond or in conformity with the description of the invention. There is no doubt a claim of a particular machine in saying, I claim the improved bicycle substantially as described, or I claim the improved incandescent light, or anything which clearly points to what the invention is. But merely to say I claim the invention described in the previous specification is a case in which, although it has the form of a claim, I should think it was not a distinct statement of the invention claimed (HERSCHELL, S.-G.).—Re SMITH'S PATENT (1883), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 268.

994. ——.]—VICKERS, SONS & CO. v. SIDDELL, No. 910, ante.

995. ——.]—Although each claim may in itself be clear & succinct, if the claims are not really & substantially separate the claims taken as a whole would not be clear & succinct. A specification may contain a great many claims separate in their nature which are justifiably made under Patent Rules, 1905, r. 4. So long as the statement of each claim is in itself clear & succinct, & so long as there is an absence of repetition in the separate claims, there is not necessarily any infringement of the rule merely owing to the fact that there are a great many claims. On an application for a patent a complete specification was left, which ended with 23 claims. The Examiner reported that the statement of the invention claimed was not clear & succinct as required by Patent Rules, 1905, r. 4. The Chief Examiner, acting for the Comptroller, decided that the statement of the invention claimed did not comply with r. 4, & unless a clear & succinct statement was substituted the specification would not be accepted.—Re BANCROFT'S APPLICATION (1905), 23 R. P. C. 89.

Annotation :—Consd. Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239.

996. ——.]—It is the duty of a patentee to state clearly & distinctly, either in direct words or by clear & distinct reference, the nature & limits of what he claims. If he uses language which, when fairly read, is avoidably obscure or ambiguous, the patent is invalid, whether the defect be due to design, or to carelessness or to want of skill. Where the invention is difficult to explain, due allowance will, of course, be made for any resulting difficulty in the language. But nothing can excuse the use of ambiguous language when simple language can easily be employed, & the only safe way is for the patentee to do his best to be clear & intelligible (LORD LOREBURN).

The ct. may, on its own initiative, declare the patent to be invalid [for ambiguity] (LORD PARKER).—NATURAL COLOUR KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD. v. BIOSCHEMES, LTD. (1915), 31 T. L. R. 324 ; 32 R. P. C. 256, H. L. ; affg. S. C. sub nom. Re SMITH'S PATENT (1914), 31 R. P. C. 237, C. A.

Annotations :—Refd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Duram (1917), 34 R. P. C. 117 ; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Corona Lamp Works (1920), 37 R. P. C. 277 ; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1923), 40 R. P. C. 426.

997. ——.]—BETTS v. REICHENBERG & CO. (1917), 35 R. P. C. 1.

998. ——.]—In 1913 a patent was granted for improvements relating to the making of chocolate pastry, & in 1914 a patent of addition was granted for improvements relating to the making of pastries. In an action for infringement of the patents, defts. denied infringement & alleged that the patents were invalid on the ground of prior public user, prior common general knowledge, & want of subject-matter :—Held : it was impossible to define what was the subject-matter of the claims ; there was no subject-matter to support the patents, & there was no evidence on which it could be held that the patents had been infringed.—DAWSON v. HAWLEY (H. B. & R.) (1920), LTD. (1923), 40 R. P. C. 143.

999. Claim of mechanical equivalent—Must be specially claimed.]—TWEEDALE v. ASHWORTH, No. 1043, post.

1000. Claim of general principle—Must be reasonably clear.]—If a patentee intends to claim a general principle, it is his duty to make that intention reasonably clear in his specification.—ACKROYD & BEST, LTD. v. THOMAS & WILLIAMS (1904), 21 R. P. C. 737.

Annotations :—Consd. Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. Mullard Radio Valve Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323. Refd. Ridd Milking Machine Co. v. Simplex Milking Machine Co., [1916] 2 A. C. 550 ; Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239 ; Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 39 R. P. C. 3.

1001. —— ——.]—HARRISON PATENTS CO., LTD. v. NICHOLSON (H. N.) & SONS, LTD. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 393, C. A.

1002. —— ——.]—If a patentee desires to claim a general principle as part of his patent, it is his duty to make that claim reasonably clear in the claim as stated in the specification ; it must not be left to be inferred from a general review of the specification, or to be spelt out from ambiguous language used therein.—RIDD MILKING MACHINE CO., LTD. v. SIMPLEX MILKING MACHINE CO., LTD., [1916] 2 A. C. 550 ; 85 L. J. P. C. 211 ; 115 L. T. 459 ; 33 R. P. C. 309.

Annotations :—Consd. Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. Mullard Radio Valve Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323. Refd. Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239 : Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 39 R. P. C. 3.

1003. —— Distinguished from claim for particular arrangements of parts.]—EDISON-BELL PHONOGRAPH CORPN., LTD. v. SMITH, No. 172, ante.

1004. May contain several claims—Each must be substantially separate.]—Re BANCROFT'S APPLICATION, No. 995, ante.

1005. Claim of subordinate integer—Must be clear.]—HARRISON PATENTS CO., LTD. v. NICHOLSON (H. N.) & SONS, LTD., No. 1001, ante.

1006. Effect of partial invalidity—Patent void.]—Re WORRALL'S PATENT (1918), 35 R. P. C. 226.

1007. —— ——.]—MOORE FILTER CO. v. GREAT BOULDER PROPRIETARY GOLD MINES, LTD., No. 634, ante.

SUB-SECT. 2.—WHAT MAY BE CLAIMED.

1008. Must not claim too much—General rule.]—R. v. ELSE (1785), Dav. Pat. Cas. 144 ; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 76 ; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 103.

Annotations :—Apld. Bovill v. Moore (1816), 2 Marsh. 211. Refd. Cook v. Pearce (1843), 8 Q. B. 1044 ; Harrison v. Anderston Foundry Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 574.

1009. —— ——.]—BOVILL v. MOORE (1816), Dav. Pat. Cas. 361 ; 2 Marsh. 211 ; 1 Goodeve's Patent Cases, 74.

Annotations :—Refd. Cook v. Pearce (1843), 8 Q. B. 1054. Mentd. Germ Milling Co. v. Robinson (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 103.

1010. —— ——.]—STEVENS v. KEATING, No. 802, ante.

1011. —— Claim for new notes on musical instrument—One note only produced.]—BAINBRIDGE v. WIGLEY (1810), 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 270.

1012. —— Claim for dowelling of paving blocks.]—PARKIN v. HARRISON, No. 806, ante.

1013. —— Claim for making gas—Without reference to method.]—BOOTH v. KENNARD, No. 1062, post.

1014. Claim must not be general.]—Re HAMILTON, HAMILTON & HAMILTON'S APPLICATION, No. 1422, post.

1015. ——.]—A patent was granted to R. for "improvements in fuse boxes for electricity supply mains." The patentee in his specification claimed, first, the construction & arrangement of electrical fuse or cut-out boxes or covers which automatically prevent access being obtained to more than one main at a time ; &, secondly, the construction & arrangement of electrical fuse or cut-out boxes substantially as described & shown in the figures. In an action for infringement brought by the owners of the patent, defts. alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds of want of novelty, want of utility, & want of subject-matter. Defts. relied on the user of interlocking apparatus in signals & other things, & also on the common knowledge that in certain positions doors interfered with one another in opening. Pltfs. alleged that the patentee had for a useful purpose adopted what had in other ways only been known as an inconvenience :—Held : the first claim was not confined to the particular construction & arrangement shown in the body of the specification, but was a general claim extending to boxes or covers

---

PART VI. SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 1.

1000 i. Claim of general principle—Must be reasonably clear.]—SCOTT BROTHERS, LTD. v. HEPBURN & SON, [1918] N. Z. L. R. 865.—N.Z.

1000 ii. —— ——.]—WALLACE v. TULLIS, RUSSELL & CO. (1921), 39 R. P. C. 3.—SCOT.

h. Claim for re-issue—Combination not in original patent.]—WITHROW v. MALCOLM (1884), 6 O. R. 12.—CAN.

k. Failure to claim essential part—Invention anticipated as claimed.]—WEIR v. DENNY, WORTHINGTON PUMPING ENGINE CO. v. WEIR (1894), 11 R. P. C. 657.—SCOT.

Sect. 5.—The claim: Sub-sects. 2 & 3.]

with lids, whether attached by hinges or not, & of any shape & arrangement provided that one lid, being opened, directly or indirectly prevented the other lid or lids being simultaneously opened, & the patent was invalid.—REASON MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. v. MOY (ERNEST F.), LTD. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 205, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Jandus Arc Lamp & Electric Co. v. Arc Lamp Co. (1908), 22 R. P. C. 277.

1016. Claim to whatever will succeed.] —STEVENS v. KEATING, No. 802, ante.

1017. Claim limited to that which public can use.] —TETLEY v. EASTON & AMOS, No. 1059, post.

1018. Claim to subject of speculation—Not actually invented by applicant.] — TETLEY v. EASTON & AMOS, No. 1059, post.

1019. Claim for improvement—Must be limited to novelty.]—R. v. ELSE, No. 1008, ante.

1020. —— ——.]—MINTER v. MOWER, No. 503, ante.

1021. —— ——.]—(1) The specification of a patent for "improvements in winnowing or dressing corn," stated the improvements to consist in "the substitution of a revolving screen, which is a cylinder of wire or other suitable material." It also stated that the drawings represented the improved machine "with a portion of the side removed to show the points of novelty." The drawings showed the screen to be used in the place of an ordinary screen, & to be constructed of circles of wire placed at proper distances from each other, but the specification stated that the patentees "did not confine themselves to the precise details," & concluded by claiming "the use of a revolving cylindrical screen for the purpose described":—Held: the claim was not confined to screens of the particular construction shown in the drawing; & as revolving cylindrical screens constructed of wirecloth, instead of circular wires had been previously in use, the claim was too large & the patent consequently void.

(2) I have been considering whether a proceeding might not be adopted in this case, which cannot be in a case where there is very complicated machinery & conflicting evidence. In this case I think the questions of the validity of the patent & the infringement will depend upon a comparison of pltf.'s specification with the specifications & the models showing what machines were in use before the date of the patent & the apparatus which defts. have used; & what I propose is, to reserve for the ct. all questions of law, & to leave the ct., upon the consideration & examination of these models & the specifications to say how the verdict should be entered upon the issues. I think, by adopting this course, the ct. would come to a more satisfactory conclusion as to the validity of the patent & the infringement of it, than by proceeding in the usual manner, which is often necessary, but which in this case does not apply (per CUR.).—NALDER v. CLAYTON & SHUTTLEWORTH (1859), Macr. 378; 33 L. T. O. S. 184.

1022. —— ——.]—The patentees of an invention for obtaining gold & silver from ores & other compounds brought an action for infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent on various grounds, including want of subject-matter & anticipation. Pltf.'s first claim was for the process of obtaining gold & silver from ores & other compounds, consisting in dissolving them out by treating the powdered ore or compound with a solution containing cyanogen or a cyanide or cyanogen yielding substance, substantially as described, & the second claim was for the process of obtaining gold & silver from ores & other compounds, consisting in dissolving them out by treating the powdered ore or compound with a dilute solution containing a quantity of cyanogen or a cyanide or cyanogen yielding substance, the cyanogen of which is proportioned to the gold or silver or gold & silver, substantially as hereinbefore described. Long before the date of pltfs.' patent it was known that a solution of cyanide of potassium would solve gold, though no one had in this country, prior to pltfs.' patent, commercially used such a solution to extract the fine gold from the powdered ore. Little gold ore, however, is found in this country, & ore is not imported for the gold to be extracted. At the date of the pltfs.' patent there was no successful mode known of extracting the gold from the solution, & pltfs.' invention was not used for nearly a year till such a method had been discovered. R., in a specification prior to pltfs.', described the use of a solution of cyanide to solve gold in the powdered ore, using, in addition to electricity to facilitate the action of the solution & to deposit the gold. S., in another prior specification, described a process similar to pltfs.', except that he added to the solution a small amount of carbonate of ammonia. Defts. used a similar process to pltfs., with the addition of an electric current, which they contended distinguished their process:—Held: (1) it was known that cyanide of potassium would act as a solvent of finely divided gold, but not known that it would act as a solvent of gold to extract it from ore by a method which left a large residuum in the tailings, & pltfs.' process enabled a large amount of this residuum to be recovered, at any rate, from South African gold; the problem to be solved was to get gold from the ore, leaving the baser metals behind; pltfs. had solved this problem by a dilute solution of cyanide of potassium, which had a selective action, i.e., taking out the gold before the baser metals; this solution was previously unknown, & defts. practically had no evidence to disprove the selective action; defts.' contention that pltfs. had abandoned the selective action in the ct. below, failed; the discovery of the selective action was novel & not anticipated.

(2) The law applicable to paper anticipations . . . if anticipations at all, is clear. It is this: That to constitute a paper anticipation the description in the prior specification must be such that a person skilled in the matter of reading it would find in it the invention which is sought to be protected by the patent, & unless this can be found in the writing itself, it is not an anticipation at all. In our judgment, the existence of a chemical patent, wherein the combined effect of two or more chemicals is claimed in order to bring about a desired result does not by any means constitute an anticipation of a subsequent discovery that by the use of any one of the named chemicals the desired result can be attained, & a fortiori, when the compound of the two or more has failed to do so, for, as stated by Professor Mills, there are any number of cases known in chemistry where two things when put together act very differently from what they do apart (SMITH, L.J.).—CASSEL GOLD EXTRACTING CO., LTD. v. CYANIDE GOLD RECOVERY SYNDICATE, (1895), 12 R. P. C. 232; 11 T. L. R. 345, C. A.

1023. —— Method of working known process.]—ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH CO. v. BRETT, No. 143, ante.

——.]—See, generally, Sect. 4, sub-sect. 4, ante.

1024. Claim to produce invention "by machinery"—Where operation never before performed by machinery.]—ARNOLD v. BRADBURY, No. 1034, post.

1025. Claim for applicability to other purposes.]—I have challenged defts.' counsel to produce any authority for holding that a man may not in a patent for an invention say "This invention is capable of application to other purposes beyond that for which I am now by this specification claiming protection." No authority of that kind has been produced. I am not aware of any myself; &, without authority produced to convince me, I should certainly be prepared to hold that a statement of that kind in this specification does not invalidate the patent (KEKEWICH, J.).—COLE v. SAQUI & LAWRENCE (1888), 40 Ch. D. 132; 58 L. J. Ch. 237; 59 L. T. 877; 37 W. R. 109; 5 T. L. R. 84; 5 R. P. C. 489, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Shoe Machinery Co. v. Cutlan, [1896] 1 Ch. 108.

1026. Claim for combination—In addition to specific inventions.]—The pltf. may be right in contending that this is a claim for a combination, but he claims something else as well. . . . Construing the specification most favourably to the pltf., it is a claim for a combination plus the three things specified. The specification is clearly bad (LINDLEY, M.R.).—HAWS v. HARDING & CO. (1897), 14 T. L. R. 73, C. A.

1027. —— Must be limited to novelty.]—A patent was granted for "improvements in & relating to liquid fuel 'burners.'" A petition for the revocation of the patent was presented by the owners of, & manufacturers under, a prior patent. Petitioners alleged that resp.'s patent was invalid for want of novelty, subject-matter & utility, & that the sale of petitioners' spraying nozzles had been interfered with by reason of the sale of nozzles made in accordance with resp.'s alleged invention. In resp.'s burner a filter was combined with the atomiser in the nozzle, while in petitioners' burner the filter was placed at a distance from the nozzle:—Held: the patentee had failed so to limit his first claim as to confine it to that which was the novelty, if any, of the invention, & accordingly the claim was so wide as to render the patent invalid.—Re ERICKSON'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 477, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Hale v. Coombes (1924), 41 R. P. C. 112.

1028. Claim to what is old—Where appendant to main claim.]—A. obtained a grant of a patent for an explosive. His specification described the materials from which the same was to be made, but not the proportions, & claimed the explosive & the means described in the specification for igniting the same, one of which means at least was old. The owners of this patent brought an action against K. for infringement:—Held: the description in the specification was sufficient, & on the true construction of the specification the patentee had not claimed that which was old outside his invention, & the patent was valid.—BRITISH DYNAMITE CO. v. KREBS (1879), 13 R. P. C. 190, H. L.

Annotations:—Distd. Britain v. Hirsch (1888), 5 R. P. C. 226. Consd. Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Casswell (1896), 13 R. P. C. 164. Refd. Dowler v. Keeling (1898), 14 T. L. R. 257; Parker & Smith v. Satchwell (1901), 45 Sol. Jo. 502; True & Variable Electric Lamp Syndicate v. Bryant Trading Syndicate (1908), 25 R. P. C. 461; Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 39 R. P. C. 3.

1029. Claim to method.]—WALKER v. HYDROCARBON SYNDICATE (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 238.

1030. —— When surplus to main claim.]—The addition to valid claims of claims for mere methods of application of the invention, which were surplusage, held not to invalidate the patent.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. CASSWELL (1896), 13 R. P. C. 164.

1031. Impossible process.]—This was an action for the infringement of a patent for the manufacture of new colouring matter or dyes. Defts. denied infringement & alleged that the patent was invalid, on the grounds that the specification was insufficient, that the invention was of no utilily, & had been anticipated:—Held: pltf. claimed the creation of a new metallic salt, the substitution of an alcoholic radicle for the metal of the salt, & the colouring matters obtained by the process described; defts. had not infringed pltf.'s process; the metallic salt was an impossible product, & it was not a valid claim, as pltf. was either claiming an impossible process or a process that he had not described, & the action was dismissed, with costs.—MONNET v. BECK (1897), 14 R. P. C. 777.

1032. Process not described.]—MONNET v. BECK, No. 1031, ante.

1033. Chemical invention — Application of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 38, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 11 (1).]—Re H. E. P.'S APPLICATION (1925), 43 R. P. C. 150.

SUB-SECT. 3.—CONSTRUCTION OF CLAIM.

1034. General rule—Construed with reference to whole context.]—The usual issues may be granted in a patent suit before the hearing of the cause, although deft. denies the validity of pltf.'s patent on the ground of the generality of the claim in the specification.

Where a patentee, in his specification, professes to do by machinery what has never been done before by machinery, & describes the machinery by which he does it, his claim is not too large on the face of it, because it claims generally to perform the operation "by machinery."

A patentee in his specification described an improved ruffle or frill, & the machinery by which he proposed to make such improved ruffle, & to fasten it to a plain fabric by a single series of stitches. By his claim he claimed the production by machinery of ruffles, & the simultaneous attachment of them to a plain fabric by a single series of stitches:—Held: the claim was not, on the face of it, too large.

I do not think that the proper way of dealing with this question is to look at the claims, & then see what the full description of the invention is, but rather first to read the description of the invention, in order that your mind may be prepared for what it is the inventor is about to claim (LORD HATHERLY, C.).—ARNOLD v. BRADBURY (1871), 6 Ch. App. 706, L. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Edison-Bell Phonograph Corpn. v. Smith (1894), 10 T. L. R. 522. Refd. Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239.

PART VI. SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 3.

l. General rule.]—According to the true canons of construction the claim of the patent should not be read without reference to the specification. The whole document must be looked at to see what the claim is.—JOHNSON v. OXFORD KNITTING CO. (1915), 15 Exch. C. R. 340; 25 D. L. R. 658.—CAN.

m. Claim for combination — Substantially as described.]—RICKERBY v. DUNCAN (1908), 25 R. P. C. 248.—SCOT.

n. —— Combination must be clear.]—TEMPLETON v. MACFARLANE (1848), 10 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 796; 20 Sc. Jur. 263.—SCOT.

Sect. 5.—The claim: Sub-sect. 3.]

1035. —— ——.]—(1) The object of a claim is not to claim anything which is not mentioned in the specification, but to disclaim something which might otherwise be supposed to be claimed, & it must always be construed with reference to the whole context of the specification.

A patentee of an improvement in skates, in his specification described his invention as relating to an improvement in attaching the rollers or runners to the stock or footstand of a skate, whereby the rollers or runners were made to turn or cant by the rocking of the stock or footstand, so as to facilitate the turning of the skate on the ice or floor; & he described also a mode of making the skate applicable to ice by substituting flat runners for rollers, & a mode of securing the runners by clamping them between pairs of discs, the runners having smooth angular edges so that they might be reversed when the inner edges lost their angularity by wear, & a fresh sharp edge obtained, & when both edges of one surface became worn, the runner might be inverted & two more sharp edges obtained; & he claimed first applying rollers or runners to the stock or footstand of a skate as described, so that the rollers or runners might be cramped or turned so as to cause the skate to be moved in a curved line; &, secondly, the mode of securing the runners & making them reversible as above described:—Held: the second part of the claim was to be read with reference only to the first part, & not as a substantive claim, & the want of novelty in the second part of the claim did not invalidate the patent.

(2) Where the only substantial evidence of prior publication of an invention lay in the fact that a single copy of an American book had been presented to the Patents Office library, where it had remained uncatalogued & unnoticed:—Held: this did not amount to a prior publication.

(3) It is the duty of the judge to construe a specification fairly with a judicial anxiety to support a really useful invention if it can be supported upon a reasonable interpretation of the patent; or as Mr. Aston said, a judge is not to be astute to find flaws in small matters in a specification with a view to overthrow it. . . . When the judge sees that there is a real substantial invention of great merit, & the description is fairly made, so that a competent workman can make the invention, it is not his duty to endeavour to construe the patent so as to make it claim that which it is utterly absurd to suppose would be claimed, because it is so well known as a matter of public notoriety, that nobody would think of claiming such a thing (JESSEL, M.R.).—PLIMPTON v. SPILLER (1877), 6 Ch. D. 412; 47 L. J. Ch. 211; 37 L. T. 56; 26 W. R. 285, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Cropper v. Smith (1884), 1 R. P. C. 81; Edison-Bell Phonograph Corpn. v. Smith & Young (1894), 11 R P. C. 389; Electric Construction Co. v. Imperial Tram. Co. (1900), 16 R. P. C. 631. As to (2) Distd. United Horse Nail Co. v. Stewart (1885), 2 R. P. C. 122; Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416. Refd. United Telephone Co. v. Harrison Cox-Walker (1882), 21 Ch. D. 720. As to (3) Refd. Wegmann v. Corcoran (1879), 13 Ch. D. 65; Van Berkel v. Simpson (1906), 23 R. P. C. 237.

1036. —— ——.]—Pltf., who brought his action originally in respect of the infringement by defts. of several patents, before & at the trial abandoned all claims except in respect of the inventions specified in claim 2, under his patent No. 1540 of 1874, & in claim 4 under his patent No. 3840 of 1873. At the trial the verdict of the jury on the questions submitted to them in regard to patent No. 3840 was in favour of pltf. but two questions were reserved for further consideration by the judge, viz., (a) whether pltf.'s patent No. 3840 was bad on the ground that the first claim in the specification was for three distinct inventions, one of which was admittedly old; (b) whether such patent was bad on the ground that the second claim in the specification was for an invention already patented:—Held: on the true construction of the specification the first claim was not for three distinct inventions, but for the particular combination therein referred to, the invention claimed in the second claim was not the same as that by which defts. alleged it had been anticipated, &, therefore, pltf.'s patent No. 3840 was good.

I think that it is necessary to look at the whole of the specification, & at the state of knowledge at the time of its publication, in order to decide whether a particular claim is a claim to a combination of several things, some new & some old, or a claim to several distinct inventions (DENMAN, J.).—WESTINGHOUSE v. LANCASHIRE & YORKSHIRE RY. CO. (1884), 1 R. P. C. 98; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 244.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Allen (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887).

1037. —— ——.]—Every claim in every patent must be read & construed with reference to the specification & not as if the claim were an isolated sentence having no connection with or reference to what precedes it.

If the language of a specification is clear enough to guide a competent workman & enable him to obtain the desired result, we cannot see how a ct. can hold the language insufficient in point of law. No doubt it is for the ct. & not for a workman to construe the specification; but if a workman says it is a sufficient guide to him & the ct. believes him, the ct. must hold that as regards clearness of description the specification is, in point of law, sufficient (LINDLEY, L.J.).—EDISON & SWAN ELECTRIC LIGHTING CO. v. WOODHOUSE & RAWSON (1887), 4 R. P. C. 99; 3 T. L. R. 367; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886) 90, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 5 T. L. R. 294; Edison-Bell Phonograph Corpn. v. Smith & Young (1894), 11 R. P. C. 389; Parkinson v. Simon (1894), 11 R. P. C. 493.

1038. —— ——.]—LEADBEATER v. KITCHIN, No. 1092, post.

1039. —— ——.]—TUBES, LTD. v. PERFECTA SEAMLESS STEEL TUBE CO., LTD., No. 735, ante.

1040. —— ——.]—Obviously the rest of the specification may be considered in order to assist in comprehending & construing a claim, but the claim must state, either by express words or by plain reference, what is the invention for which perfection is demanded. The idea of allowing a patentee to use perfectly general language in the claim, & subsequently to restrict, or expand, or qualify what is therein expressed by borrowing this or that gloss from other parts of the specification, is wholly inadmissible. I should have thought that it was also a wholly original pretension (LORD LOREBURN, C.).—INGERSOLL SERGEANT DRILL CO. v. CONSOLIDATED PNEUMATIC TOOL CO., LTD. (1907), 25 R. P. C. 61, H. L.

Annotations:—Refd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Collier (1908), 25 T. L. R. 74; Hale v. Coombes (1924), 41 R. P. C. 112.

1041. Claim confined to old principle—Though method of application new.]—A patentee in the specification sums up the principle in which his invention consists; if this principle be not new the patent cannot be supported, although it appear that the application of the principle, as described in the specification, is new.—R. v.

CUTLER (1816), 1 Stark. 354 ; Web. Pat. Cas. 76, n. ; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 351, N. P.

Annotation :—Refd. Brooke v. Aston (1857), 6 W. R. 42.

1042. Claim limited by preceding description.]—KAY v. MARSHALL, No. 354, ante.

1043. ——.]—The patentee of an invention of improvements in flats, & in fasteners for securing the card clothing thereon & thereto, brought an action for infringement against defts., also patentees of inventions for a similar object. Defts. denied infringement, & by their pleadings raised the ordinary objections to validity. At the trial they put forward the common dilemma that they had not infringed, or that pltf.'s patent was void, but the question of validity was not really gone into. The old method of attaching card clothing to the flat, & of stretching the foundation of the clothing was by drilling holes in the flat, riveting on the foundation on one side, then stretching the foundation tight by pincers, & riveting it on the other side when stretched. The disadvantages were, the foundation puckered between the rivets, the holes were numerous, & were expensive to make, the rivets collected dirt, & the edges of the foundation being exposed were frayed. In 1877 defts. substituted nicks for the holes, & sewed the foundation to the flat by wires. In 1886 they invented a method of fastening by a strip of metal under the heads of the rivets, turning it down over the edge of the foundation. Neither of these inventions were really successful or practically used. In pltf.'s invention, dated in 1888, the flat was made with a rib at each side of the under surface. The fasteners on each side consisted of a strip of metal, the top edge made in the form of a three sided recess or ⊃, gripping the foundation, the middle part of the fastener being flat, & the lower part bent round & grasping the rib under the flat. The lower part was bent round the rib after the ⊃ had been affixed, & in the process of fixing the fastener the requisite stretch was given to the foundation. In effect, pltf.'s fastener formed a continuous clamp of a special form, encasing the edges of the foundation & of the flat. It was successful in getting rid of the old difficulties. In his specification, pltf. laid great stress on the grip obtained by the ⊃, & also by the lower bent part. The alleged infringement was a third invention of defts. Their fastener was formed of continuous clamps, enclosing part of the foundation, the sides of that & of the flat, & was bent under the flat ; the upper part had a serrated edge ; there was no rib under the flat. One clamp was first fixed on, the foundation was then pushed tight & stretched by a steel comb, & the other clamp fixed on :—Held : the pltf.'s invention was for a new mechanical mode of obtaining an old result, viz., to fasten the foundation perfectly flat, & with an even stretch on the flat, that in effect pltf. had claimed the mode & thing he had described, & had, therefore, included in his invention the merit of stretching by the same operation, that the doctrine of mechanical equivalents did not apply, though the invention claimed was no doubt useful, ingenious, & meritorious, defts. had not infringed, as their fastener did not grip the edge of the foundation separately, & they did not stretch in the same manner as pltf.—TWEEDALE v. WORTH (1892), 9 R. P. C. 121, H. L.

Annotation :—Refd. Hale v. Coombes (1925), 42 R. P. C. 328.

1044. ——.]—LYON v. GODDARD, No. 561, ante.

1045. ——.]—In 1897 a patent was granted to B. for a machine for stropping razors. The patentee claimed : a machine for stropping razors consisting of a reciprocating flexible strop led around a pulley or the like a razor holder pivoted & adapted to be rocked from side to side about its pivot by means of the said strop so as to present the edges of the razor alternately to the strop during the reciprocating motion of the said strop substantially as described. B. brought an action against W. for infringement of the patent. Deft. among other anticipations relied on the previous specification of S. in which a machine to effect the like object was described. He alleged that the patentee's claim included this earlier invention, & that he had insufficiently described in what the novelty of his invention consisted. The two machines differed in certain details :—Held : the patentee's claim was confined to the form of machine he had particularly described ; that it did not include the earlier invention ; that there were material differences between the machine of pltf. & the machine of S. ; & that deft. had infringed. An injunction was awarded with costs, & an inquiry as to damages & delivery up of infringing arts. was ordered.—BESTON v. WATTS (1908), 25 R. P. C. 19, C. A.

Annotation :—Refd. Hale v. Coombes (1924), 41 R. P. C. 112.

1046. ——.]—Held : (1) (LORD BUCKMASTER) The words substantially as described in Claim 1 could not be ignored &, reading the specification as a whole, the true invention protected by the patent included the attachment of the device to the rear of & outside the head of the missile ; nothing of that kind has been previously disclosed, there was good subject-matter for the invention & that the patent was good as a whole ; (2) (LORD SUMNER) The words substantially as described in Claim 1 referred to the verbal descriptions of the projectile & of the various devices named in the claim, & that, having regard to passages in the specification, the words did not serve to restrict the scope of claim 1 within limits to which prior anticipation & common knowledge would not be a fatal answer.—HALE v. COOMBES (1925), 42 R. P. C. 328, H. L.

Annotation :—Refd. Tucker v. Wandsworth Electrical Manufacturing Co. (1925), 42 R. P. C. 531.

Reference to particular parts of specification.]—See Sect. 6, sub-sect. 2, B. (b), post.

1047. When reference to other part of specification not permissible—Claim primâ facie invalid.]—HINKS & SON v. SAFETY LIGHTING CO., No. 984, ante.

1048. —— Claim too general.] — INGERSOLL SERGEANT DRILL CO. v. CONSOLIDATED PNEUMATIC TOOL CO., LTD., No. 1040, ante.

1049. —— ——.]—(1) A specification claiming "the improved turning table hereinbefore described" must be construed as claiming the parts or elements of which that table is composed, as well as the table as a whole. A. the patentee obtained a patent for "an improved turning table," all the component parts of which, except one, were comprised in a prior patent, the specification of which was not enrolled until after the date of A.'s patent. A. in his specification claimed "the improved turning table hereinbefore described, "without showing that any part of it was old ; the jury found that the introduction of suspending rods made the table a new instrument :—Held : the specification of A.'s patent was bad, & that defts. were entitled to the verdict on an issue respecting the sufficiency of the specification, & pltf. was entitled to the verdict on an issue respecting the novelty of the invention.

(2) Twofold object in requiring a specification, that invention should be given to the public ; &

Sect. 5.—The claim: Sub-sect. 3. Sect. 6: Sub-sect. 1, A.]

that no person should inadvertently infringe the patentee's right.

(3) The claim being "for an improved turning table" will not alone make all that follows a combination. Parts described & not disclaimed must be considered as claimed. Specification construed as claiming all the parts equally.—HOLMES v. LONDON & NORTH WESTERN RY. CO. (1852), 12 C. B. 831; Macr. 13, 22 L. J. C. P. 57; 20 L. T. O. S. 112; 17 Jur. 304; 138 E. R. 1132.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Platt v. Else (1853), 17 Jur. 188; Gittins v. Symes (1854), Macr. 300. As to (2) Refd. Tetley v. Easton & Amos (1853), Macr 82.

1050. —— Not limited to single application.]—Pltf. in his specification claimed the application of a shuttle in combination with a needle, as shown in sheet 1 of the drawings, for forming & sewing loops of thread or other substance for the purpose of producing stitches either to unite or ornament various fabrics, whatever may be the means employed for working such shuttle & needle when employed together. By a disclaimer he stated: I do not claim the use in a machine of several needles & shuttles, nor do I claim any of the mechanical parts separately of which the machinery shown in the drawing is composed:—Held: pltf.'s claim was not confined to the single application of a shuttle in combination with a needle, as shown in sheet 1; but extended generally to the application of a shuttle in combination with a needle for the purpose of producing the effect stated in the specification.—THOMAS v. FOXWELL (1859), 32 L. T. O. S. 374; 6 Jur. N. S. 271.

1051. —— Not limited to combination.]—BOVILL v. CRATE (1867), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 46.

Annotations:—Refd. Bovill v. Smith (1868), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 49; North British Rubber Co. v. Gormully & Jeffory Manufacturing Co. (1894), 12 R. P. C. 17.

1052. —— "Substantially as described."]—The words "substantially as described" follow. It has been said in this ct. in previous cases—& I wish, as far as I am concerned, to repeat it—that when you condescend upon a number of elements in a claim & claim the combination of those elements "substantially as described" you must be taken to mean that the elements upon which you have condescended are to be substantially present in the combination which you say is within your grant (FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J.).—HOLMES v. ASSOCIATED NEWSPAPERS, LTD. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 136.

1053. Claim for method of construction—Construed as claim for article.]—BUSH v. FOX, No. 616, ante.

1054. Claim to subordinate integer—Not to be limited by matter outside claim.] — ELECTRIC CONSTRUCTION CO., LTD. v. IMPERIAL TRAMWAYS CO., LTD. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 537.

Annotation:—Refd. Van Berkel v. Simpson (1907), 24 R. P. C. 117.

1055. Several claims — Must be construed separately.]—The owners of a patent for improvements in boot nailing machines brought an action for infringement. The specification described improvements in details, each of which was made the subject of a separate claim. Pltfs. contended that the whole new machine was designed to accomplish certain specified objects which were new, & that each improvement claimed tended to the furtherance of those objects as a whole, & that therefore the claims should be limited in construction & be held valid. They alleged infringement in respect of the eighth claim only:—Held: the claims must be construed separately, & each must stand on its merits; certain of the claims involved no invention & others were anticipated; also on a wide construction the eighth claim would be invalid, while on a narrow construction there was no infringement. Judgment was given for defts.—BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. CLAUGHTON (HUGH), LTD. (1906), 23 R. P. C. 321.

1056. Claim to apparatus for playing game.]—NOTES OF OFFICIAL RULINGS 1926 (A) (1926), 43 R. P. C. App. I.

SECT. 6.—CONSTRUCTION.

SUB-SECT. 1.—QUESTION FOR JUDGE OR JURY.

A. In General.

1057. General rule—Question for judge.]—(1) It is unnecessary to trouble you [the jury] with any objection that arises on the face of the patent & the specification, because, as these are matters of construction, &, therefore, matters of law, they cannot in any way be assisted by the verdict, unless, indeed, terms of art are explained by evidence, & then it would be for you to consider whether the evidence produced satisfies you that the terms of art were used in the sense put upon them. Nothing of this kind necessarily arises in this case, & questions arising on the comparison of different parts of the specification with the patent, will be reserved for another occasion (LORD ABINGER, C.B.).

(2) The inaccurate use of words, if sense sufficiently clear, will not vitiate a specification.—DEROSNE v. FAIRIE (1835), 2 Cr. M. & R. 476; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 154; 1 Gale, 109; 1 Mood. & R. 457; 5 Tyr. 393.

Annotation:—Generally, Mentd. Crane v. Price (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580.

1058. —— ——.]—NEILSON v. HARFORD, No. 83, ante.

1059. —— —— Identity of two inventions.]—(1) To support a patent it is not necessary that its utility should be such as to exclude everything else of the kind.

(2) Specification sufficient if intelligible to a workman & the claim understood.

(3) The question as to the identity of two inventions described in specifications is for the ct.

(4) A patentee can only claim that which he can give the public the means & facility to use.

(5) A patentee cannot claim a mere subject of speculation not actually invented by him.

(6) Specifications are to be construed in a candid & fair spirit; & if any mistake in one part can be corrected by other parts of the specification such correction should be made.

(7) Full effect should be given to an invention, but not so as to include things not contemplated by the patentee. A patentee is bound to give the public the full benefit of his knowledge on the subject of his invention. By making a general claim, a patentee cannot claim improvements of which he was ignorant at the date of his patent.—TETLEY v. EASTON & AMOS (1852), Macr. 47.

1060. —— ——.]—In 1844, G. obtained a patent for "Improvements in grinding wheat & other grain." He described as his invention "the forcing & distributing of atmospheric air from the eye or centre of millstones, for the purpose of cooling the grain during the process of grinding"; this was effected by an air box placed below the millstones, into which air was forced by the rapid rotation of a fan or blower, which caused a current of air perpendicular to the axis of the fan; & the air was conducted by a pipe through the eye of the lower stone to the centre of the two stones, &

there distributed between them by an apparatus provided with fans or arms. In 1846, pltf. obtained a patent for "Improvements in manufacturing wheat & other grain into meal & flour." His invention consisted of the application of ventilating vanes or screws at the centre of the stones for supplying the air between the grinding surfaces; a portable ventilating machine, blowing by a screw vane, which caused a current of air parallel to the axis of the vane, was attached externally to the eye of the upper millstone; the screw vane being set in rapid motion, the air was compelled to pass through the eye into the centre of the two stones, & so find its way out between them. In 1851, deft. obtained a patent for "Improvements in grinding wheat," & his plan was to remove from the centre of both stones a large circular portion of each, & in this space, opposite to the separation of the two stones, to place a fan or blower, by the rapid rotation of which a centrifugal motion was given to the air, & it was driven between the stones:—Held: (1) deft.'s invention was no infringement of pltf.'s, but that each was a new method of accomplishing a well known object, viz. the cooling grinding substances by the common principle of obtaining a current of air by a rotating vane; (2) the construction of the specification was a question of law for the ct., & not for the jury.—BOVILL v. PIMM & RAND (1856), 11 Exch. 718; 26 L. T. O. S. 312; 156 E. R. 1019.

Annotation:—Generally, Mentd. Thomas v. Foxwell (1858), 5 Jur. N. S. 37.

1061. —— ——.]—Where the meaning of a document depends upon its terms & not on matters of fact dehors the document, the question will be for the judge, even although the terms are technical or scientific. But where an ambiguity is raised by evidence dehors the document, which is plain upon the face of it, the ambiguity being as to a term which imports one thing in a scientific sense, & another in a commercial sense:—Qu.: whether it is for the judge or the jury.

Thus, though the construction of a patent or specification is ordinarily for the judge, yet where pltf.'s specification mentioned the precipitated or hydrated oxides of iron, & there was, on the issue of novelty, a prior patent proved, the specification of which mentioned carbonate of iron, & the scientific evidence showed that real carbonate of iron was so difficult to be preserved that it was not commonly sold in the shops, though it existed as a chemical substance, & what was sold for it would be in fact a hydrate, through absorption, but that carbonate would not be understood chemically as meaning hydrate; the judge having ruled that the specification was to be construed commercially, not scientifically, that carbonate commercially meant the hydrate, & that on the issue of novelty pltf. must be consuited, the ct., after great doubt, set aside the nonsuit, & granted a new trial.—HILLS v. LONDON GASLIGHT CO. (1857), 27 L. J. Ex. 60; subsequent proceedings (1860), 5 H. & N. 312.

Annotations:—Dbtd. Hills v. Evans (1861), 6 L. T. 90. Refd. Betts v. Menzies (1860), 1 E. & E. 1020. Mentd. Hills v. Liverpool United Gaslight Co. (1862), 32 L. J. Ch. 28; Cassel Gold Extracting Co. v. Cyanide Gold Recovery Syndicate (1895), 11 T. L. R. 345; Re Wylie & Morton's Appln. (1897), 13 R. P. C. 97.

1062. —— ——.]—In 1852, pltf. obtained a patent for an invention of improvements in the manufacture of gas; which was stated in the specification to "consist in the direct use of seeds, leaves, flowers, branches, nuts, fruit, & other substances, & matters, containing oil, or oily or resinous matter," & it was also stated that the mode of using the materials, might be "the same as the apparatus used in the ordinary mode of making gas from coal." The claim was as follows: "I claim for making gas direct from seeds & matter herein named for practical illuminations or other useful purposes, instead of making it from the oils, resins, or gums, previously extracted from such substances." In 1829, H. had obtained a patent for improvements in illuminations or artificial light, & by his specification he proposed to use fatty substances, such as greaves or graves, also the residuum after the oil had been expressed from seeds, such as oil cake, also beech nuts, mast, cocoa nuts & other matters abounding in oil, & he proposed to use these substances separately & in combination. Pltf. having brought an action for the infringement of his patent:—Held: (1) H.'s specification showed that the making gas direct from seeds & other oily matters was not new at the date of pltf.'s patent; (2) as the want of novelty appeared distinctly from a written instrument, it was for the ct. & not the jury to determine the identity of the two supposed inventions; (3) the claim, being merely for making gas direct from seeds & matter stated in the specification, without reference to any method of doing it, was too large & general a claim & could not be supported.—BOOTH v. KENNARD (1857), 2 H. & N. 84; 26 L. J. Ex. 305; 29 L. T. O. S. 163; 5 W. R. 607.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Betts v. Menzies (1860), 1 E. & E. 1020. As to (2) Dbtd. Hills v. Evans (1861), 6 L. T. 90. Refd. Betts v. Menzies (1860), 1 E. & E. 1020.

1063. —— ——.]—Where the question of novelty or infringement depends merely on the construction of the specification, it is one entirely for the judge, but where it also depends on other circumstances, such as the degree of difference, or of similitude between two machines, it is a mixed question of law & fact: what the jurymen find to have been done is the matter of fact; but the judge must apply that fact according to the rules of law, & is entitled & bound to say whether what has been done amounts to an infringement.

Pltf. took out a patent for an improvement in machinery used for roving cotton. His specification appeared to claim the discovery of the application of the principle of centrifugal force for such a purpose, but he filed a disclaimer, declaring that he intended to claim only the application of centrifugal force in the particular manner described in the specification:—Held: taking these two instruments together they sustained the patent.

The construction of the specification is for the ct., with the aid of such facts as are admissible, to explain written documents (LORD WENSLEYDALE).—SEED v. HIGGINS (1860), 8 H. L. Cas. 550; Macr. 351; 30 L. J. Q. B. 314; 11 E. R. 544; sub nom. SEED v. HIGGINS, HIGGINS v. SEED, 3 L. T. 101; 6 Jur. N. S. 1264, H. L.

Annotations:—Apld. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 430. Refd. Nalder v. Clayton & Shuttleworth (1859), Macr. 378. Mentd. Potter v. Parr (1860), 2 B. & S. 216; Curtis v. Platt (1863), 3 Ch. D. 135, n.; Ralston v. Smith (1865), 11 H. L. Cas. 223; Daw v. Eley (1867), L. R. 3 Eq. 496; Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315; Plimpton v. Spiller (1877), 47 L. J. Ch. 211; Maxim-Nordenfelt Guns & Ammunition Co. & Hiram-Maxim v. Anderson (1897), 13 T. L. R. 262.

1064. —— ——.]—HILL v. EVANS, No. 593, ante.

1065. —— ——.]—EDISON & SWAN ELECTRIC LIGHTING CO. v. WOODHOUSE & RAWSON, No. 1037, ante.

1066. —— ——.]—WILFLEY ORE CONCENTRATOR SYNDICATE, LTD. v. GUTHRIDGE (N.), LTD., No. 653, ante.

1067. Expert witnesses—Examination as to construction not permissible.]—The practice of examining & cross-examining expert witnesses as to the construction of specifications, the existence of invention, & anticipation, is irregular & prejudicial to the proper trial of patent actions.—GRAPHIC ARTS CO. v. HUNTERS, LTD. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 677.

Sect. 6.—Construction: Sub-sect. 1, A. & B.; sub-sect. 2, A. & B. (a).]

1068. Whether specification misleading—Question of fact—Not reviewed on appeal.]—In 1905 a patent was granted for "Internal combustion engines.". One of the claims was afterwards amended. In an action for infringement of the patent, defts. alleged (inter alia) that the patent was invalid for want of novelty, several prior specifications being cited, & for want of subject-matter, & that the specification was insufficient. At the trial it was admitted that the drawings & part of the description were incorrect, but it was contended by pltfs. that the errors were not such as would mislead a competent gas engine engineer. In defts.' engine the sleeve that opened & closed the ports had not only a reciprocating movement, but also a simultaneous rotary oscillating movement. Defts. made a counterclaim for revocation of the patent. It was held at the trial that two of the prior specifications described four-stroke cycle engines in which a piston had attached to it a sleeve containing a port which by means of a rotary movement, applied to the piston & sleeve together, registered with a series of inlet & exhaust ports, or with slots placed on one side of the cylinder only, the sleeve making one revolution in four strokes; that the amendment of pltfs.' specification, if it had enlarged the claim, must be rejected as ultra vires; that defts.' device had a closer resemblance to the engines described in the two prior specifications than to pltfs.'; & that defts. had not infringed; &, further, that the specification was misleading. The counterclaim for revocation was ordered to stand over, with liberty to apply. Pltfs. appealed to the Ct. of Appeal:—Held: (1) defts. had not infringed. (2) (HAMILTON, L.J.) whether the specification was misleading was, in the present case, a question of fact depending upon the evidence given at the trial, & he was not prepared to differ from the finding below.—KNIGHT v. ARGYLLS, LTD. (1913), 30 R. P. C. 321, C. A.; previous proceedings (1912), 29 R. P. C. 593.

B. What may be left to Jury.

1069. Terms of art.]—DEROSNE v. FAIRIE, No. 1057, ante.

1070. ——.]—NEILSON v. HARFORD, No. 83, ante.

1071. ——.]—HILL v. EVANS, No. 593, ante.

1072. Commercial phrases.]—ELLIOTT v. TURNER, No. 1124, post.

1073. ——.]—HILL v. EVANS, No. 593, ante.

1074. Sufficiency of description of invention.]—(1) A patent was granted "for improvements in the manufacture of gelatinous substances, & in the apparatus to be used therein," with the usual proviso as to the enrolment of the specification within six months. Before the expiration of the six months, the grantee assigned all his interest in the patent. He then, by leave of the Solicitor-General, disclaimed that part of the title contained in the words "& in the apparatus to be used therein," a copy of which disclaimer was filed by the Clerk of the Patents of England, the original having been duly certified. In an action by the assignee of the grantee for an infringement, the declaration stated the patent to have been granted for "certain improvements in the manufacture of gelatinous substances & the apparatus to be used therein"; & also stated the specification, the disclaimer, & the assignment. Upon an issue as to the specification of the invention being enrolled:—Held: (2) no objection could be taken that the apparatus specified was not new; (2) the disclaimer by the grantee after the assignment was valid as soon as it was entered of record.

(3) Previous to the above patent being granted gelatine was obtained by submitting large pieces of hides to the action of caustic alkali or by reducing them to pulp in a paper machine & employing blood to purify the product. The invention claimed consisted in cutting the hides into shavings, thin slices, or films, whereby the use of blood in the process of purification became unnecessary. The specification did not state whether they were to be cut wet or dry, or to what degree of thinness, or what was the minimum of heat they ought to be subjected to in the subsequent processes. It was proved that they might be cut either wet or dry, & that the thinner they were cut the better if the fibrine texture was preserved, & that the most satisfactory result would be obtained if no more heat was used than would dissolve the gelatine in the shortest period. Deft. cut the hides wet & about twelve to the inch:—Held: the invention was the subject of a patent.—WALLINGTON v. DALE (1852), 7 Exch. 888; 23 L. J. Ex. 49; 19 L. T. O. S. 187.

Annotations:—Generally, Mentd. Roper v. Levy (1851), 7 Exch. 55; Chollet v. Hoffman (1857), 7 E. & B. 686; Garton v. G. W. Ry. (1859), E. B. & E. 846.

1075. Ambiguity of terms—Whether used commercially or scientifically.] — HILLS v. LONDON GASLIGHT CO., No. 1061, ante.

1076. Results of processes described.]—HILL v. EVANS, No. 593, ante.

1077. Chemical patent—Ascertainment of chemical equivalents.] — HILL v. EVANS, No. 593, ante.

1078. Purpose effected by materials prepared & applied in manner described.] — BICKFORD v. SKEWES, No. 868, ante.

SUB-SECT. 2.—RULES OF CONSTRUCTION.

A. In General.

See, generally, DEEDS, Vol. XVII., pp. 246 et seq.

1079. Rules same as for other written documents.]—SIMPSON v. HOLLIDAY, No. 808, ante.

1080. ——.]—BOVILL v. SMITH, 448, ante.

1081. ——.]—In construing the specification, we must construe it like all written documents, taking the words & seeing what is the meaning of those words when applied to the subject-matter; & in the case of a specification which is addressed not to the world at large but to a particular class, for instance, skilled mechanicians, possessing a certain amount of knowledge, it is material for the tribunal to put itself in the position of such a class, namely, skilled mechanicians, & to see what the words of the specification mean when applied to such a subject as skilled mechanicians would know, &, as the tribunal has now, by the admission of evidence or otherwise, put itself in a position to understand, & then to say what the words of the specification mean when applied to such a subject-matter (LORD BLACKBURN).—CLARK v. ADIE (No. 2) (1877), 2 App. Cas. 423; 46 L. J. Ch. 598; 37 L. T. 1; 26 W. R. 47, H. L.; affg. S. C. sub nom. ADIE v. CLARK (1876), 3 Ch. D. 134, C. A.

PART VI. SECT. 6, SUB-SECT. 2.—A. o. Rules same as for other written documents.]—A patent for invention should be construed in the same way as any other written instrument.—JOHNSON v. OXFORD KNITTING CO. (1915), 15 Exch. C. R. 340; 25 D. L. R. 658.—CAN.

Annotations:—Consd. Jandus Arc Lamps & Electric Co. v. Johnson (1900), 17 R. P. C. 361. Refd. Crosthwaite v. Steel (1889), 6 R. P. C. 190; Ashworth v. Law (1890), 7 R. P. C. 231; Van Berkel v. Booth (1906), 23 R. P. C. 573; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95. Mentd. Gosnell v. Bishop (1888), 4 T. L. R. 397; Eliot v. Bristol Corpn. (1894), 71 L. T. 659.

1082. Principle of good faith.]—CARTWRIGHT v. EAMER, No. 863, ante.

1083. According to state of knowledge at the time.]—CROSSLEY v. BEVERLY, No. 924, ante.

1084. According to language used.]—LEADBEATER v. KITCHIN, No. 1092, post.

1085. ——.]—I disclaim putting either a benevolent or malevolent interpretation on the specification, or being astute either to uphold or invalidate the patent. I am of opinion that a specification like any other document should be construed by the ct. according to the fair meaning of the language used after being informed by evidence of the nature of the subject-matter, the state of knowledge at the date of the patent, & the meaning of any scientific or technical words that are found in it (LORD DAVEY).—PATENT EXPLOITATION, LTD. v. SIEMENS BROTHERS & CO., LTD. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 541.

1086. Construction of House of Lords conclusive.]—The patentee of an invention for "improvements in flats & in fastenera for securing the card clothing thereon & thereto" sued deft. for infringement. Deft. denied infringement, & pleaded that the matter in controversy was res judicata; also that, although admitting that the patent was valid, the claims were restricted to fasteners which stretch the foundation in the manner described in his specification. In 1889 the patentee had brought an action against present deft.'s then firm on this same patent, in which the House of Lords had held that deft. had not infringed. Subsequently deft. varied the form of the fastener & pltfs. brought the present action:—Held: the construction placed by the House of Lords on the specification in the previous action was conclusive.—TWEEDALE v. ASHWORTH (1900), 17 R. P. C. 620, H. L.

1087. Construction by Court of Appeal—How far conclusive.]—O., as owner of a patent, brought an action for infringement against L., & obtained a judgment in his favour from the Ct. of Appeal, with a certificate of the validity of the patent having come in question in that action. He subsequently commenced an action for infringement against S., who admitted infringement, but alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds of the insufficiency of the specification & anticipation. Deft. sought to give in evidence, to prove anticipation, a book which was in the Inner Library of the British Museum, but the judge held that as deft. adduced no evidence of such book having been actually used, or of any other copies of it having been introduced into England, it was inadmissible. Ultimately the point for the decision of the ct. was as to the validity or invalidity of the first claim of pltf.'s patent:—Held: (1) deft. not being a party to the previous action was not bound by the decision therein; (2) the judge was bound to accept the construction of the specification adopted by the Ct. of Appeal in the first action, except where evidence was given in the second action, which was not before the ct. in the first action; (3) the first claim was valid; (4) anticipation of pltf.'s invention was not proved.—OTTO v. STEEL (1885), 3 R. P. C. 109; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 179; subsequent proceedings (1886), 3 R. P. C. 120, C. A.

1088. Not considered till evidence for whole case given.]—YOUNG v. FERNIE, No. 32, ante.

1089. Foreign specification—Application of principles governing English specifications.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1910 (B), No. 980, ante.

Construction of claim.]—See Sect. 5, sub-sect. 3, ante.

B. Specification Construed as a Whole.

(a) In General.

See, generally, DEEDS, Vol. XVII., pp. 259–263, Nos. 713–757.

1090. General rule.]—BEARD v. EGERTON, No. 1107, post.

1091. ——.]—The patent must be construed in the way in which all documents ought to be construed, by giving the ordinary & natural meaning to the words used, looking at the instrument as a whole, & having an explanation of any technical words requiring explanation; & if, so construing them, I find something old claimed, in clear & unambiguous words, I must read the claim as applying to what is old, even though the result of such a construction, if correct, would be that the patent must be held invalid in any proceedings taken to challenge its validity. If, however, I find the claim fairly capable of two constructions, one of which might be fatal to the validity of the patent, as making it claim something old, but the other of which construction would avoid such invalidation of the patent, I should certainly prefer to put, & should feel bound to put, such a construction upon the claim as would render the patent valid (NORTH, J.).—SUGG v. BRAY (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 210; 2 R. P. C. 223.

Annotation:—Mentd. Sharp v. Brauer (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 205.

1092. ——.]—The owner of a patent for improvements in protectors, guards or screens for the prevention of accidents where machinery is in motion brought an action for infringement. The specification described guards for machinery where belts & pulleys, & also where geared wheels were used, & referred to figures showing the application of the guard to machinery with belts & pulleys & with geared wheels. The claims were substantially for guards or protectors for the purposes set forth, & of the form & construction set forth & illustrated. Deft. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the ground of anticipation & want of subject-matter. The evidence showed that the invention was useful for the protection of life & limb, & supplied a want which had existed for a long period. A similar guard had been previously applied to geared wheels:—Held: (1) the specification must be construed like any other document according to the language used in it; the whole specification must be looked at & the claim interpreted thereby, & (2) the patentee claimed for guarding geared wheels as well as belt guards, & therefore the patent had been anticipated & was invalid; also (3) even if the claim was only for the guard as applied to belts, it was only for the use of an old thing for a strictly analogous purpose, & the patent was bad on that ground.—LEADBEATER v. KITCHIN (1890), 7 R. P. C. 235.

1093. ——.]—Now when you find a patent with several claims in it, you must, if you can, so construe these claims as to give an effective meaning to each of them.

Sect. 6.—Construction: Sub-sect. 2, B. (a) &

How are we to get at what is the real object of the pltf.'s patent? I think it is true to say that you may look for that purpose at the provisional specification (LORD ESHER, M.R.).—PARKINSON v. SIMON (1894), 11 R. P. C. 493, C. A.; affd., 12 R. P. C. 403, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Mergenthaler Linotype Co. v. Intertype Co. (1926), 42 T. L. R. 682. Refd. Horrocks v. Stubbs (1896), 74 L. T. 58.

1094. Correction of error—Correction of one part by another.]—TETLEY v. EASTON & AMOS, No. 1059, ante.

1095. —— —— Obvious error in drawings.]—Deft. alleged that a patent was invalid because one figure of the drawings showed a double action with only one thread, which would be unworkable:—Held: the figure must be looked at with the letterpress & this gave all the necessary information.

You must read the figures which are appended by the light of the text they are intended to illustrate & if you see in a particular figure that there is some error of the draughtsman, which a skilled workman would at once perceive to be an error, & such an error as he could correct, it is nothing more than like the mere misprint of a word which anybody could read, although it was so misprinted (BOWEN, L.J.).—MILLER (H.) & Co. v. SCARLE, BARKER & Co. (1893), 10 R. P. C. 106.

1096. —— Apparent on specification or drawings—Or in manufacture of patent.]—SIMPSON v. HOLLIDAY, No. 808, ante.

Correction of clerical errors.]—See Sect. 7, sub-sect. 2, D. (b), post.

Application of rule to construction of claims.]—See Sect. 5, sub-sect. 3, ante.

(b) Reference to Particular Parts.

1097. Title.]—NEWTON v. VAUCHER, No. 159, ante.

1098. ——.]—OXLEY v. HOLDEN, No. 566, ante.

1099. Drawings.]—MILLER (H.) & Co. v. SCARLE, BARKER & Co., No. 1095, ante.

1100. —— When letterpress struck out by amendment.]—Pltf. co., the owners of a patent for "improvements in dobby looms for weaving," sued deft. co. for infringement. It appeared on the evidence that in order to carry out the invention, it was necessary to incline the knife guides in a dobby, which before the date of the invention were always placed parallel to one another, at an angle to one another, & also to alter from their usual positions the centres of certain levers in the dobby known as the balk & jack levers. The specification was amended some time prior to the action, when one of the claims together with the whole of the letterpress relating to the position of the centres of the above levers, was struck out. The drawings attached to the specification, however, were not altered, & showed the centres of the levers in the required position for carrying out the invention:—Held: on the true construction of the specification the invention claimed was a dobby with the knife guides inclined to one another & having the system of centreing shown in the drawings, & the claim for this combination was good; the patent had not been anticipated, & was valid.—HATTERSLEY (GEORGE) & SONS, LTD. v. HODGSON (GEORGE), LTD. (1906), 23 R. P. C. 192, H. L.

Annotations:—Apld. Jandus Arc Lamp & Electric Co. v. Arc Lamp Co. (1908), 22 R. P. C. 277; British Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. L. & S. W. Ry. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 309; Re Serex's Patent (1912), 29 R. P. C. 284; Hale v. Coombes (1925), 42 R. P. C. 328. Refd. Lake & Elliott v. Rotax Motor Accessories (1911), 28 R. P. C. 532.

1101. —— Where not expressly referred to in specification.]—A patent was granted for "An improved bearing pedestal for trams, trollies & the like." The claim was for such a pedestal drop stamped in mild steel, & in the specification it was stated that "The advantages of the pedestal are as follows: Being unbreakable it would prevent accidents, loss of time & waste labour, owing to the large amount of breakages with the present pedestal, which is either cast iron or cast steel & therefore easily broken." At the trial of an action for infringement pltf. contended that the invention was for doing most of the shaping in the top die, as shown by the drawings, & so avoiding air lock. Defts. contended (inter alia) that the alleged invention consisted merely in the particular way of making the product, & that it was misleading to make the claim as if it were for the product:—Held: in construing a claim such as that in question, the drawings, unless they were, by express reference, imported into the method that was to be employed, must be taken as illustrations only, & the patent could not be confined to the particular form indicated in the drawings, unless the language of the specification had in terms limited it to that form; in the specification of the patent in question there was no such limitation, & the claim was one that could not be made good; & even on a construction of the specification more favourable to pltf., there was not subject-matter in putting the bulk of the shaping on the upper die; & the patent was invalid.—THOMAS v. SOUTH WALES COLLIERY TRAMWORKS & ENGINEERING CO., LTD. (1924), 42 R. P. C. 22.

1102. Part struck out by amendment.]—THOMAS v. WELCH, No. 915, ante.

1103. ——.]—HATTERSLEY (GEORGE) & SONS, LTD. v. HODGSON (GEORGE), LTD., No. 1100, ante.

1104. ——.]—Where part of a specification is struck out by amendment, it cannot be referred to on a question of construction.—LAKE & ELLIOT v. ROTAX MOTOR ACCESSORIES, LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 532, C. A.

C. Fair and Candid Construction.

1105. General rule.]—I think we ought to read this patent without a disposition to upset it, which has been too frequently the case in many instances on such subjects, that we ought to read it fairly, in order to understand what the meaning of the patentee is (PARKE, B.).

If that be the limited construction to be put on the whole of the specification, fairly & clearly & candidly taken together, which I think ought to be the construction put upon patents, we ought not to be understood to deprive people of advantages which their own ingenuity & talents entitle them to receive, we ought to give them a fair & candid construction, certainly not by any means being astute to pick holes in their specifications (ALDERSON, B.).—RUSSELL v. COWLEY (1835), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 465; 1 Cr. M. & R. 864; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 557; 149 E. R. 1331.

Annotations:—Consd. Beard v. Egerton (1849), 8 C. B. 165. Apld. Betts v. Menzies (1860), 1 E. & E. 1020. Refd. Holmes v. L. & N. W. Ry. (1852), 12 C. B. 831; Brook & Hirst v. Aston (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 1025. Mentd. Russell v. Ledsam (1845), 14 M. & W. 574.

.]—A patent was taken out for a certain improvement in a machine for cutting turnips; this improvement consisting in a peculiar diagonal arrangement of knives within a rotary drum cutter, by which arrangement the knives were brought successively into operation, thus obviating several objections to the rotary drum cutter which had previously existed. In an action brought for an infringement of the patent, it was objected that the terms of the specification were sufficiently comprehensive to include the drum cutter, which was an undoubtedly old invention, as well as the arrangement of the knives above mentioned, or that at all events it must be taken to include every arrangement of the knives on the diagonal principle, & that in either case the patent was void as claiming an old invention :—Held : the specification must be read in a fair & candid spirit, with a desire to be instructed by it, & not merely to discover defects in it ; & when so read, the specification must be taken to refer to that peculiar adaptation of the knives to the old invention, which was new, as appeared by the evidence at the trial. If a specification sufficiently explains the whole principle of the invention claimed by the patentee, it is not necessary to set forth the results of that principle.—WEDLAKE v. GARDNER (1846), 7 L. T. O. S. 283, Ex. Ch.

1107. ——.]—In the construction of a specification, the whole instrument must be taken together, & a fair & reasonable interpretation given to the words used in it.

A specification of a patent for "a new & improved method of obtaining the spontaneous reproduction of all the images received on the focus of the camera obscura," in describing the process, stated it to be divided into five operations. "The first consists in polishing & cleaning the silver surface of the plate, in order to properly prepare or qualify it for receiving the sensitive layer or coating (iodine), upon which the action of the light traces the design : the second operation is, the applying that sensitive layer or coating to the silver surface : the third, in submitting in the camera obscura the prepared surface or plate to the action of the light, so that it may receive the images : the fourth, in bringing out or making appear the image, picture, or representation which is not visible when the plate is first taken out of the camera obscura : the fifth & last operation is, that of removing the sensitive layer or coating, which would continue to be affected & undergo different changes from the action of light, this would necessarily tend to destroy the design or tracing so obtained in the camera obscura." It then proceeded to give a description of the first operation—preparing the silver surface of the plate ; the concluding part of which directed that nitric acid dissolved in water should be applied three different times, the plate being each time sprinkled with pounce & lightly rubbed with cotton : adding—"When the plate is not intended for inmediate use or operation, the acid may be used only twice upon its surface after being exposed to heat : the first part of the operation, that is, the preparation as far as the second application of the acid, may be done at any time : this will allow of a number of plates being kept prepared up to the last slight operation : it is, however, considered indispensable, that, just before the moment of using the plates in the camera, or the reproducing the design, to put at least once more some acid on the plate, & to rub it lightly with pounce, as before stated : finally, the plate must be cleaned with cotton from all pounce dust which may be on the surface, or its edges." In a subsequent part of the specification, having described the second operation, viz. the application of the iodine, the inventor observed : "After this second operation is completed, the plate is to be passed to the third operation, or that of the camera obscura : whenever it is possible, the one operation should immediately follow the other" :—Held : taking the whole specification together, the direction as to the third application of acid, was not to be understood to be a direction to apply the acid after the second operation, viz. the coating the plate with iodine, which, it was proved, would render the whole process abortive, but to apply it as part of the first operation ; & the specification gave sufficient information to an operator of reasonable skill.—BEARD v. EGERTON (1849), 8 C. B. 165 ; 19 L. J. C. P. 36 ; 13 L. T. O. S. 426 ; 13 Jur. 1004 ; 137 E. R. 471.

1108. ——.]—I must say that though at first I doubted whether the claim consisted of two parts or of one only, yet, on reading the specification with that candour & indulgence with which a specification should be read, it appears to me to consist of one only (POLLOCK, C.B.).—SELLERS v. DICKINSON (1850), 5 Exch. 312 ; 20 L. J. Ex. 417 ; 15 L. T. O. S. 163 ; 155 E. R. 134.

Annotations :—Refd. Holmes v. L. & N. W. Ry. (1852), 12 C. B. 831 ; Lister v. Leather (1858), 8 E. & B. 1004 ; Wren v. Weild (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 730 ; Thomson v. Moore (1889), 6 R. P. C. 426.

1109. ——.]—TETLEY v. EASTON & AMOS, No. 1059, ante.

1110. ——.]—(1) When a combination of instruments is the invention patented, an infringement of the patent must be an infringement of the combination.

(2) A patentee having altered his specification by disclaimer, lodged a complaint against certain manufacturers for breach of an interdict granted anterior to the disclaimer :—Held : the patentee ought to have instituted a new action ; &, although the instrument of the manufacturers was intended to execute the same work, it was no infringement ; & although it was cognate, it had not the characteristic feature of the patentee's invention.

Applt.'s invention as it stood before the disclaimer may have been new, useful, & legal, but it might not have been so under the altered specification. After the disclaimer the question of enforcing the old interdict could not be entertained.

The phrase "colourably" is very apt to mislead in these cases. If part of the property in the invention be really taken, there is an infringement, however much that may be disguised. What is claimed here is the "combination" of three instrumentalities, which are all that are absolutely essential.

(3) Whether it is for the interest of one side or the other, I apprehend the duty of the ct. is fairly & truly to construe the specification, neither favouring the one side nor the other, neither putting an unfair gloss or construction upon the specification for the purpose of saving a patent if it is said that the patent is void, nor putting an unfair gloss or construction upon it in order to extend the patent & make it take in something which you may think was an unhandsome taking of the fruits of his invention from the patentee if it is not really an infringement of the patent (LORD BLACKBURN).—DUDGEON v. THOMSON (1877), 3 App. Cas. 34, H. L.

Annotations :—As to (1) Refd. Miller v. Clyde Bridge Steel Co. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 470 ; Ticket Punch & Register Co. v. Colley's Patents (1895), 11 T. L. R. 262 ; Wallace v. Tullis, Russell (1921), 39 R. P. C. 3. As to (2) Consd. Automatic Weighing Machine Co. v. Knight (1889), 6 R. P. C. 297 ; Thomson v. Moore (1889), 6 R. P. C. 426 ; Harrison Patents Co. v. Nicholson (1908), 25 R. P. C. 393 ; Higginson & Arundel v. Pyman, Same v. Same (1926), 43 R. P. C. 291. Refd. Ellington v. Clark Burnett (1887), 58 L. T. 40. As to (3) Refd. Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. De Mare Incandescent Gas Light System, (1896), 13 R. P. C. 301. Generally, Refd. Re Konrick & Jefferson's Patent (1911), 29 R. P. C. 25.

1111. ——.]—PLIMPTON v. SPILLER, No. 1035, ante.

Sect. 6.—Construction: Sub-sect. 2, D. & E. (a) (b); sub-sect. 3.]

D. Ut res magis valeat quam pereat.

See, generally, DEEDS, Vol. XVII., pp. 287–290, Nos. 988–1015.

1112. Application of rule to specifications.]—HAWORTH v. HARDCASTLE (1834), 1 Bing. N. C. 182; 4 Moo. & S. 720; 3 L. J. C. P. 311; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 480; 131 E. R. 1087.

Annotations:—Apld. Tubes v. Perfecta Seamless Steel Tube Co. (1902), 20 R. P. C. 77. Refd. Beard v. Egerton (1849), 8 C. B. 165; Holmes v. L. & N. W. Ry. (1852), 12 C. B. 831.

1113. ——.]—HINKS & SON v. SAFETY LIGHTING CO., No. 984, ante.

1114. ——.]—HARRISON v. ANDERSTON FOUNDRY CO., No. 281, ante.

1115. ——.]—PLIMPTON v. SPILLER, No. 1035, ante.

1116. ——.]—OTTO v. LINFORD, No. 162, ante.

1117. —— When capable of more than one construction.]—NEEDHAM & KITE v. JOHNSON & CO., No. 190, ante.

1118. —— ——.]—SUGG v. BRAY, No. 1091, ante.

1119. ——.]—Reference has been made to an old principle of construction, which is not at all special to the subject-matter of patents, but applies to all documents . . . to the effect that the interpretation of a written document ought to be benevolent & benign (BOWEN, L.J.).—CROPPER v. SMITH (1884), as reported in 1 R. P. C. 81; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 60, C. A.; on appeal (1885), 10 App. Cas. 249, H. L.

Annotations:—Generally, Refd. Shoe Machinery Co. v. Cutlan, [1896] 1 Ch. 108. Mentd. Re Crighton & Law Car & General Insce. Corpn., [1910] 2 K. B. 738; Pirie v. Richardson (No. 1) (1926), 70 Sol. Jo. 1023.

1120. —— Where several claims.]—PARKINSON v. SIMON, No. 1093, ante.

1121. ——.]—Benevolent construction is not the proper way of construing a specification; it should be construed fairly to give its true meaning.—TOLSON & TOLSON v. SPEIGHT (JOHN) & SONS (1896), 13 R. P. C. 718.

1122. ——.]—If upon a fair construction of the specification, with the assistance of experts & other admissible evidence, you find it contains matters that are not new, you must give effect to it. You are not to put a forced construction on the specification, as not intending to claim something that is old, because it was foolish or suicidal of the patentee to claim it (LORD DAVEY).—KYNOCH & CO., LTD. v. WEBB (1899), 17 R. P. C. 100, H. L.

Annotations:—Refd. Beston v. Watts (1907), 24 R. P. C. 219; British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 368, 631.

1123. ——.]—PATENT EXPLOITATION, LTD. v. SIEMENS BROTHERS & CO., LTD., No. 1085, ante.

E. Meaning of Words.

(a) In General.

1124. General rule—Construed according to ordinary meaning.]—The words of a specification are to be construed according to their ordinary & proper meaning, unless it be shown by something in the context, which may be explained by evidence, that a different construction ought to be adopted.

In covenant on an indenture by which B. was licensed to make & sell buttons according to A.'s patent, the issue was whether certain buttons made by B. were made under the licence. The specification described the invention to consist in the application to the covering of buttons, of such figured woven fabrics "wherein the ground, or the face of the ground thereof, is produced by a warp of soft or organzine silk, such as is used in weaving satin & the classes of fabrics produced therefrom." The jury asked how they were to understand the word "or" in the specification; whether it was used disjunctively, or, whether "organzine" was the construction of the word "soft." The judge told them that, in his opinion, unless the silk were organzine, it was not within the patent:—Held: this direction was erroneous; for, the judge should not have told the jury that, in his opinion, soft & organzine silk were absolutely the same, but that the words were capable of being so construed, if the jury were satisfied that, at the date of the patent, there was only one description of soft silk, & that, organzine, used in satin weaving; but, otherwise the proper & ordinary sense of the word "or" was to be adopted, & the patent held to apply to every species of soft silk, as well as to organzine silk.—ELLIOTT v. TURNER (1845), 2 C. B. 446; 15 L. J. C. P. 49; 6 L. T. O. S. 219; 135 E. R. 1019, Ex. Ch.

Annotation:—Refd. Nickels v. Ross (1849), 8 C. B. 679.

1125. —— ——.]—HARRISON v. ANDERSTON FOUNDRY CO., No. 281, ante.

1126. —— ——.]—SUGG v. BRAY, No. 1091, ante.

1127. —— ——.]—A patent was granted for "Improvements in receivers for use in wireless telegraphy." Claim 3 of the specification was as follows: "A vacuum tube containing a hot filament, a grid formed as a closed cylinder completely surrounding the filament & a third electrode in the form of a cylinder surrounding the grid substantially as described." In an action for infringement of that patent, & of another patent not material for the purpose of this report, pltfs. alleged infringement of claim 3. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the manufacture & sale complained of had been, in part, by defts. as agents or contractors for His Majesty's Govt. They alleged that the patent was invalid by reason of (inter alia) want of novelty, & subject-matter. At the trial, defts. contended that the anode, as well as the grid, must be in the form of a closed cylinder completely surrounding the filament, & that their grid, which was a loose, open-ended cylinder, was not in that form. Pltfs. contended that the word "closed" meant "electrically closed," not "physically" or geometrically closed:—Held: it was impossible to read the word "closed" in the claim except in its ordinary & natural meaning, physically or geometrically closed.—MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. MULLARD RADIO VALVE CO., LTD. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323, H. L.

Annotation:—Mentd. Brown v. Sperry Gyroscope Co. (1925), 42 R. P. C. 111.

1128. Terms of art—Same terms used on two specifications—How far first construction binding.]—BETTS v. MENZIES, No. 170, ante.

(b) Particular Instances.

1129. "Any other known means"—Compression of air—Construed to cover two methods.]—COCHRANE & GALLOWAY (LORD) v. BRAITHWAITE & ERICSSON (1830), 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 493.

1130. "Manufacture"—The machine or mode of constructing it.]—MORGAN v. SEAWARD, No. 442, ante.

1131. "Float"—Term used in weaving—Not construed in technical sense.]—In 1888 letters patent were granted to L. & R. for "Improvements in the manufacture of velvet," & in 1889 letters patent were granted to R. for "improvements in the manufacture of double pile fabrics," the first claim being for a "double pile fabric each cloth of which has its wefts held between two sets of ground warps & the pile warps tied into the ground by a single pick of weft only & in which in addition the backs of the pile warps are covered by a warp or warps floated over them substantially as described." In 1897 the owners of these patents commenced an action against a firm of D., for infringement of the same. In the course of the trial the case upon the 1888 patent was withdrawn. Defts. contended that the word "float" as used in weaving of warps was a technical term signifying a passing over more than one weft, & alleged that the alleged infringing cloth had no floating warps & did not infringe the 1889 patent:—Held: the word "float" in the specification of the 1889 patent was used to describe the position of the backing warps relatively to the pile warps, & defts. infringed.—LISTER & CO., LTD. v. DIX BROTHERS (1898), 16 R. P. C. 89.

1132. "Aggregate co-efficient of expansion"—Manufacture of electric lamps—Construed to refer to lateral expansion.]—Letters patent were granted for "Improvements in & relating to evacuated vitreous containers having sealed-in conductors." Two of the claims were as follows: "(a) A container or envelope of vitreous material having a leading-in wire sealed therein provided with a coating of metal, the oxide of which is soluble in the vitreous material at a relatively low temperature, said composite wire having substantially the same co-efficient of expansion as the material. (b) A container having a composite leading-in wire sealed therein as claimed in claim (a), the outer coating of said composite leading-in wire being of copper." In the specification it was stated that, in carrying the invention into effect, a base metal, such as tungsten, might be coated with a metal, such as copper, the core & sleeve being so proportioned that its aggregate co-efficient of expansion was about the same as that of the glass in which it was to be sealed. In an action for infringement of the patent, pltfs. complained, in particular, of the sale by defts. of certain incandescent wire drawn electric lamps. Pltfs. alleged that the invention had resulted in a great economy in lamp making, by making it possible to avoid the necessity for using the expensive metal, platinum, for the leading-in wires. They contended that defts.' leading-in wires, which were composed of copper coated nickel iron wire, were infringements. Defts. contended that the patent was invalid for want of novelty, subject-matter & utility, & by reason of the ambiguity & insufficiency of the specification in that (inter alia) it did not give any directions as to whether the expansion of the wire was to be measured in the radial or the longitudinal direction:—Held: the patentees, in using the expression "aggregate co-efficient" must have been referring to the lateral expansion of the wire, not to its longitudinal expansion, &, on that construction, the lamps complained of were infringements of claims (a) & (b), the leading-in wires being constructed in accordance with the directions in the specification; & the patent was valid.—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. CORONA LAMP WORKS, LTD. (No. 2) (1922), 39 R. P. C. 212.

1133. "Closed"—Whether use ordinary or technical—Manufacture of wireless telegraphic instruments.]—MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. MULLARD RADIO VALVE CO., LTD., No. 1127, ante.

SUB-SECT. 3.—ADMISSIBILITY OF EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE.

See, generally, DEEDS, Vol. XVII., pp. 302–348, Nos. 1144–1588.

1134. Whether invention stated with sufficient precision—Evidence of persons acquainted with usual modes of manufacture.]—The specification of an invention, which consists in the use of known materials in new proportions, is not necessarily bad for uncertainty, though the patentee does not limit himself to the precise proportions recommended.

A specification stated in substance that the usual practice in the manufacture of type was to employ lead & antimony, & in some cases to add a small percentage of tin; that the object of the invention was to obtain tougher metal by employing tin in large proportions with antimony, greatly reducing or wholly omitting the use of lead; that the best proportions were seventy-five of tin & twenty-five of antimony, but that this might be, to some extent, varied; & that if lead were used it must not exceed fifty per cent. of the whole—one part of antimony to three of tin, or tin & lead, being the best:—Held: the specification was not bad on the face of it for uncertainty, & the evidence of persons acquainted with the usual modes of manufacture was necessary to determine whether the invention was stated with sufficient precision.—PATENT TYPE FOUNDING CO. v. RICHARD (1859), John. 381; 6 Jur. N. S. 39; 70 E. R. 470.

1135. —— ——.]—BOVILL v. SMITH, No. 448, ante.

1136. Facts admissible to explain written documents.]—SEED v. HIGGINS, No. 1063, ante.

1137. Evidence of patentee—To show intention.]—KAYE v. CHUBB & SONS, LTD., No. 543, ante.

1138. Provisional specification.]—MACKELCAN v. RENNIE, No. 86, ante.

1139. To explain technical terms.]—HILL v. EVANS, No. 593, ante.

1140. ——.]—HARRISON v. ANDERSTON FOUNDRY CO., No. 281, ante.

1141. ——.]—CLARK v. ADIE (No. 2), No. 1081, ante.

1142. ——.]—SUGG v. BRAY, No. 1091, ante.

1143. ——.]—PATENT EXPLOITATION, LTD. v. SIEMENS BROTHERS & CO., LTD., No. 1085, ante.

1144. —— Evidence of experts.]—GADD & MASON v. MANCHESTER CORPN., No. 921, ante.

1145. Results of processes described.]—HILL v. EVANS, No. 593, ante.

1146. Chemical equivalents.]—HILL v. EVANS, No. 593, ante.

1147. Former patents.]—It is true to say that if there be any doubt on the construction of pltf.'s patent you may look at former patents for the purpose of seeing what is the proper construction of pltf.'s patent (LORD ESHER, M.R.).—COUCHMAN v. GREENER (1883), as reported in 1 R. P. C. 197, C. A.; affd. (1884), 1 R. P. C. 202, H. L.

Annotation:—Refd. Crosthwaite v. Steel (1889), 6 R. P. C. 190.

1148. State of knowledge—Where claim ambiguous.]—WESTINGHOUSE v. LANCASHIRE & YORKSHIRE RY. CO., No. 1036, ante.

1149. —— ——.]—In an action on a licencing agreement, evidence as to the state of general public knowledge at the date of the patent is inadmissible, except in cases where the licencor's specification is ambiguous & requires explanation.—CROSTHWAITE v. STEEL (1889), 6 R. P. C. 190.

Annotation:—Refd. Ashworth v. Law (1890), 7 R. P. C. 231.

1150. —— ——.]—NOBEL'S EXPLOSIVES CO., LTD. v. ANDERSON, No. 180, ante.

Sect. 6.—Construction: Sub-sect. 3. Sect. 7: Sub-sects. 1 & 2, A.]

1151. —— To limit claim.]—GANDY v. REDDAWAY, No. 803, ante.

1152. —— ——.]—Licencees may refer to prior knowledge to show the true ambit of the claims of a specification.—YOUNG & BEILBY v. HERMAND OIL CO., LTD. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 373.

1153. ——.]—UNWIN v. HEATH, No. 902, ante.

1154. ——.]—A specification must be construed by critically examining what is said in the specification, illustrated by the common knowledge at the date of the patent.—INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. DE MARE INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT SYSTEM, LTD. (1896), 12 T. L. R. 495; 13 R. P. C. 559, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Crosfield v. Techno-Chemical Laboratories (1913), 29 T. L. R. 378.

1155. ——.]—PATENT EXPLOITATION, LTD. v. SIEMENS BROTHERS & CO., LTD., No. 1085, ante.

1156. Nature of subject-matter.] — PATENT EXPLOITATION, LTD. v. SIEMENS BROTHERS & CO., LTD., No. 1085, ante.

SECT. 7.—AMENDMENT.

SUB-SECT. 1.—AT INSTANCE OF COMPTROLLER.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 3 (2), (3), 6 (2), (3), (4), 7, 8, 73, & 1919 (c. 80), sched.; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 13, 30–36, 110.

1157. Power of Comptroller—Subject to appeal to law officer.]—Re C.'S APPLICATION, No. 712, ante.

1158. —— Amendment to prevent ambiguity.]—Re FRANCIS' APPLICATION, No. 1454, post.

1159. —— Amendment amounting to re-casting or re-writing specification.]—Re FRANCIS' APPLICATION, No. 1454, post.

1160. Reference to prior invention—Requirement of specific reference—Where prior patent expired.]—Re HALL & HALL'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 283.

1161. —— —— ——.]—Re RINFRETT'S APPLICATION (1918), 36 R. P. C. 21.

1162. —— —— ——.]—Re RICHARDS (GEORGE) & CO., LTD.'S APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 321.

1163. —— —— Similar inventions.] — The Comptroller required the insertion of a specific reference to a prior patent. On appeal, the law officer held that there was not sufficient identity to justify a specific reference, but that a disclaiming statement should be inserted following the terms of the claim of the prior patent, on which the opposition was based, without citing name, number, & date.—Re NEWTON'S APPLICATION (1899), 17 R. P. C. 123.

1164. —— —— ——.]—Re BROWN & BARLOW'S APPLICATION (1918), 36 R. P. C. 26.

1165. —— —— Specification published after date of foreign patent—But before date of application.]—A German co. applied in this country for a patent on Aug. 4, 1905, asking that the patent might be dated Aug. 13, 1904, which was the date of their German application. The Chief Examiner, acting for the Comptroller-General, decided under the Patents Act, 1902 (c. 34), to insert in appcts.' specification a reference to a specification which was accepted & published on May 11, 1905, on an application made on May 12, 1904. Appcts. appealed:—Held: the Chief Examiner's decision to be affirmed.—Re DEUTSCHE GOLD & SILBER-SCHEIDE ANSTALT VORM. RÖSSLER'S APPLICATION (1906), 24 R. P. C. 209.

1166. —— Form of reference.]—On an application for a patent the Chief Examiner acting for the Comptroller held that a reference, in the form prescribed by Patent Rules, 1905, r. 10, to a prior specification should be inserted in appct.'s specification, although appct. was prepared to insert a specific reference of his own to this prior specification.—Re P.'S APPLICATION (1906), 23 R. P. C. 644.

1167. —— Application for order to insert—What may be considered — Prior user.] — The question of prior user cannot be gone into for the purpose of defeating a claim on the part of an opponent that a specific reference should be inserted in appct.'s specification (SIR ERNEST M. POLLOCK, S.-G.).—Re BARRACLOUGH'S APPLICATION (1919), 37 R. P. C. 105.

1168. —— —— —— Disconformity between provisional & complete specifications of prior patent.]—In considering whether a reference to a prior specification ought to be inserted in a later specification under Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), & 1919 (c. 80), s. 8, on the ground that the invention claimed in the later specification has been wholly or in part claimed in the prior specification, the question of disconformity between the provisional & complete specifications of the prior patent is not a matter into which the law officer or the Comptroller ought to enter.—Re HANDLEY PAGE & HANDLEY PAGE, LTD.'S APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 109.

Amendment ordered on opposition to grant.]—See Part VII., Sect. 2, post.

SUB-SECT. 2.—AT INSTANCE OF APPLICANT OR PATENTEE.

A. Forms and Function of Amendment.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 21, 22, & 1919 (c. 80), sched.

1169. Disclaimer—Function of—Protection of patentee & public.]—Re GUEST & BARROW'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 312.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Brockie's Patents (1908), 25 R. P. C. 813.

1170. —— —— To excise parts imperilling patent.]—Where there are obligations that go only to a small & insignificant part of a patent, which, if sustained, would defeat it altogether, the patentee may relieve himself of the difficulty by a disclaimer (MAULE, J.).—R. v. MILL (1850), 10 C. B. 379; 1 L. M. & P. 695; 20 L. J. C. P. 16; 16 L. T. O. S. 214; 15 Jur. 59; 138 E. R. 153; subsequent proceedings (1851), 14 Beav. 312.

Annotations:—Refd. Wallington v. Dale (1852), 7 Exch. 888; Ralston v. Smith (1860), 9 C. B. N. S. 117.

1171. —— —— ——.]—RALSTON v. SMITH, No. 97, ante.

1172. —— —— ——.]—The question, however, in this particular case is, what is the proper course to be adopted where appct. desires to omit a part of his invention as covered by his original title prior to the time that the complete specification has been accepted by the office.

If appct. merely desires to omit part of the invention described in the original title & provisional specification, I do not see that any amendment of title & provisional specification is, of necessity, required, as I think that a proper disclaiming clause might be inserted in the complete indicating that part only of the invention originally covered by the title of the provisional was intended to be claimed, but should appct. think that some risk to the validity of his patent might be occasioned by such a course being adopted it is open to him to lodge a complete, omitting the part desired to be left out, & open to the Patent Office, under the powers of Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), ss. 7 & 9, to permit the original application & provisional to be amended by striking out the part which it is not longer desired to retain.

It must, however, be distinctly understood that such an amendment in the title & provisional ought, in my opinion, to be confined to excision only, & not to amendment or other explanation, & the excision must be such as does not extend the scope of the title (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re DART'S PATENT (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 307.

1173. —— —— ——.]—(1) If appct. has good subject-matter & the invention is not identically the same as that of the opponent appct. is entitled to have his patent sealed though an action for infringement may be with success brought by the opponent. I am not here to stop patents at the instigation of an opponent because there is some general principle of patent law which is infringed. I do not decide that in no case would such a point be taken notice of. I think, however, that the law officer might reasonably indicate to appct. as I do now that it would be well to consider such a point, but I do not express any considered opinion that I have jurisdiction to stop a patent on some objection taken by an opponent apart from the opponent's individual rights. There is, however, one other principle which must not be lost sight of, & that is that the law officer has always recognised that where there is an existing patent & he sees fair ground for supposing that the construction of the latter specification might interfere with the rights under the existing patent, the existing patentee is entitled to protection. That is commonly done by some disclaiming clause on the face of the later specification (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).

(2) I leave entirely to appcts. the question of whether they will consider the difference between the provisional & complete. I do not consider that it is for me, & I shall not at any rate on the present occasion put any terms upon them as to the alteration of their complete on that ground (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re NEWMAN'S APPLICATION (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 40; 5 R. P. C. 271; subsequent proceedings (1888), 5 R. P. C. 279.

1174. —— —— Whether explanatory—Of parts not struck out.]—A patentee describing his invention in the specification, is to be taken to claim as part of his invention all that he describes as the means by which it is to be carried into effect, unless he clearly expresses a contrary intention.

Pltf. obtained a patent for "certain improvements in machinery for raising & impelling water & other liquids"; & by his specification he described a machine for raising & impelling water by centrifugal force, the material parts of which were as follows:—"g g is an iron case made air-tight. In the interior of the case g g is placed a hollow wheel, having hollow spokes or radial arms, of which q q are two: r r I call the nave, which is hollow; & s s are two hollow shafts, one at each side of the wheel. In the interior of the nave r there is a boss or plate of metal, marked u, which is cast in at the time the wheel is cast, & which carries the wheel. The shaft i i passes through the centre of this plate, & is firmly keyed in." "In reference to the hollow wheel, I do not confine myself to the number or to the use of hollow spokes, but in some cases, propose to substitute circular discs, with a narrow water channel between them, & a valve or flexible valve or valves on the circumference, so as to have a channel or channels in the interior thereof for the passage of liquids, & adapted to neutralise the effects of suction, by having a corresponding or proportionate degree of suction at each side." "I shall now proceed to explain more particularly what I claim as my invention or inventions. I do not claim to be the discoverer that liquids may be raised by centrifugal force, nor do I claim in any way the sole application of machinery for raising water or other liquids by centrifugal force." He then introduced nine several distinct claims, the whole of which were subsequently by two memoranda of disclaimer struck out, except the following: "I claim as my invention & application the means of increasing the action of the machine by causing the liquid to enter the wheel at both sides." By one of the memoranda of disclaimer, pltf. stated,—"I disclaim any exclusive right to wheels, whether consisting of hollow spokes or of a channel or channels between discs, when considered apart or separately from the machinery described: I also disclaim any exclusive right to the parts of the machinery when they are each considered apart or separate from the machinery described":—Held: the effect of a disclaimer is, merely to strike out from the specification those parts of the machinery which are disclaimed: it cannot be read as explanatory of that which remains.—TETLEY v. EASTON (1857), 2 C. B. N. S. 706; 26 L. J. C. P. 269; 30 L. T. O. S. 133; 140 E. R. 593.

Annotations:—Refd. Patent Bottle Envelope Co. v. Seymour (1858), 5 C. B. N. S. 164; Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1862), 2 B. & S. 222: Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429. Mentd. Newall v. Elliott (1864), 13 W. R. 11.

1175. —— —— —— ——.] — Re DART'S PATENT, No. 1172, ante.

1176. —— —— Not to extend invention.]—FOXWELL v. BOSTOCK, No. 909, ante.

1177. —— —— ——.]—Re DART'S PATENT, No. 1172, ante.

1178. —— —— ——.]—Appcts. sought to amend their specification by converting the claims therein from claims to a monopoly in the working of all forms of coherent tungsten under the influence of heat into claims to a monopoly of so working certain forms only of coherent tungsten. The proposed amendment disclaimed any right of monopoly in respect of forms of agglomerated tungsten other than those specified in the amendment. The question was whether the specification as amended would claim an invention substantially different from the invention claimed by the specification as it stood before the amendment within Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 22:—Held: the real effect of the proposed amendment was to import into the specification for the first time the element of selection by rendering essential to the invention claimed that which in the original specification was only one of several means by which the coherent product might be obtained; & it was a device whereby contrary to Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 22, an amended specification would be produced which would claim an invention substantially different from that originally claimed.

The allowance or disallowance of an amendment is in the discretion of the ct. (WARRINGTON, L.J.). — Re BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD.'S PATENT (1919), 89 L. J. Ch. 194; 121 L. T. 323; 35 T. L. R. 582; 36 R. P. C. 251, C. A.

1179. —— —— To make insufficient description sufficient.]—Disclaimer is not to be used solely

B. Jurisdiction of Court.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 21 ; 1919 (c. 80), sched. ; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 64–68.

1182. Discretion of the court.]—Re BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD.'S PATENT, No. 1178, ante.

1183. Amendment must be allowed in cases of doubt.]—Re BATEMAN & MOORE'S DISCLAIMER (1854), Macr. 116.

1184. Jurisdiction of Master of Rolls—To expunge memorandum of alteration.]—Extent of the jurisdiction of the Master of the Rolls to alter the enrolments of the specifications of patents.

Under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, a patentee by the authority of the Solicitor-General, entered a memorandum of alteration of the enrolment of the specification, which it was alleged extended the patent & infringed upon another patent granted to petitioner :—Held : the Master of the Rolls had no jurisdiction to order such memorandum of alteration to be expunged.

Except for the purpose of correcting mere verbal or clerical errors, proved to have arisen from mistake or inadvertence, I am of opinion that I have no authority to make any alteration in the enrolment of the patent or specification (LORD LANGDALE, M.R.).—Re SHARP'S PATENT, Ex p. WORDSWORTH (1840), 3 Beav. 245 ; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 641 ; 10 L. J. Ch. 86 ; 49 E. R. 96.

Annotation :—Distd. Re Berdan's Patent (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 346.

1185. —— To take disclaimer off file—Where filed without consent of patentee.]—Where a disclaimer had been filed without the consent of the patentee : —Held : the Master of the Rolls had jurisdiction without bill filed to order it to be taken off the file.—Re BERDAN'S PATENT (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 346 ; 44 L. J. Ch. 544 ; sub nom. Re BIRDAN'S PATENTS, 23 W. R. 823.

Annotation :—Reld. Andrew v. Crossley, Crossley v. Andrew, [1892] 1 Ch. 492.

Annotations :—Reld. Yates v. Armstrong, Re Armstrong's Patent (1897), 77 L. T. 267. Mentd. Field v. Ommanney (1920), 36 T. L. R. 695.

1188. —— —— Subject to review.]—The discretion reposed in the ct. or a judge, by Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, to grant liberty to a patentee to apply at the Patent Office for leave to amend his specification by way of disclaimer, will not be interfered with by the Ct. of Appeal, unless that ct. be clearly of opinion that such discretion has been exercised upon a wrong principle.—YATES v. ARMSTRONG, Re ARMSTRONG'S PATENT (1897), 77 L. T. 267 ; 14 R. P. C. 747, C. A.

Annotations :—Reld. Re Owen's Patent, [1899] 1 Ch. 157 ; Re Alsop's Patent, [1906] 1 Ch. 85 ; Porter v. Freudenberg, Kreglinger v. Samuel & Rosenfeld, Re Merten's Patents, [1915] 1 K. B. 857.

To impose conditions on allowing amendment.]—See Sub-sect. 2, E. (a), post.

C. The Application.

(a) In General.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 21, 22 ; Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 20, sched. ; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 64–68 ; R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 21.

1189. Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 21, 22—Construction & application.]—Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), ss. 18, 19 [replaced by Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 21, 22], which relate to the amendment of a specification, must be read together. Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18, states what appct. may do before litigation, & Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, states what he may do while in litigation ; & if appct., whilst litigation is pending & without leave of the ct. under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, amends his specification under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18, by leave of the comptroller, the amendment is irregular & void notwithstanding p. Amendment not allowed at trial—After communication of opposing application.]—The ct., in allowing deft. to make a proposed amendment at the trial, after he had had communication of pltf.'s application, would be giving him an unfair & oppressive advantage over pltf. Such a judgment would be against the very spirit & letter of the Patent Act, which requires absolute secrecy until the full completion of the application.—PERMUTIT CO. v. BORROWMAN, [1924] Exch. C. R. 6, 8.—CAN.

PART VI. SECT. 7, SUB-SECT. 2.—B.

PART VI. SECT. 7, SUB-SECT. 2.—C. (a).

q. Barred by concurrent revocation proceedings.]—Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1889, s. 30 (8), has the effect of preventing an application under that sect. for leave to amend a Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18 (9).

Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18 (10) [replaced by Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 21 (8)], is not limited to litigation pending between the same parties at the time when the application to amend is made, but refers to any action for infringement or petition for revocation pending at that time in relation to the patent.—BROOKS (J. B.) & CO., LTD. v. LYCETT'S SADDLE & MOTOR ACCESSORY CO., LTD., [1904] 1 Ch. 512; 73 L. J. Ch. 319.

1190. —— When proceedings to be under sect. 21.]—Re GARE'S PATENT, No. 1186, ante.

1191. Matters to be considered on application—Only words of specification.]—Re BATEMAN & MOORE'S DISCLAIMER, No. 1183, ante.

1192. —— Disconformity.] — Re NEWMAN'S APPLICATION, No. 1173, ante.

1193. Second application—After previous application refused—No appeal from first refusal.]—Re ARNOLD (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 5.

1194. —— On fresh particulars of objections.]—CHATWOOD'S PATENT SAFE & LOCK CO. v. MERCANTILE BANK OF LANCASHIRE, LTD. (1899), 17 R. P. C. 23.

1195. Necessity for advertisement—Amendment before publication of specification.] — Re JONES' PATENT (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 313.

1196. ——.]—(1) An application under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 22, for leave to amend a specification does not fall within Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 92 (2), & therefore does not require to be made to the patent judge.

(2) Notice of an application under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 22, must be given to the Comptroller, & the proposed amendments must be advertised in the Official Journal, before the amendments are considered by the ct.; & the Comptroller will be entitled to his costs of appearing on the application.

(3) When amendments are allowed it will, as a general rule, be a term of the order that no injunction shall be asked in any action brought for infringement of the patent in respect of articles made prior to the date of the order allowing the amendments, unless the patentee shall establish to the satisfaction of the ct. that his original claim was framed in good faith & with reasonable skill & knowledge.—Re KLABER & STEINBERG'S PATENT, [1908] 1 Ch. 847; 77 L. J. Ch. 569; 99 L. T. 87; 24 T. L. R. 352, 482.

1197. Notice of motion—Whether service on Comptroller necessary.]—Re KLABER & STEINBERG'S PATENT, No. 1196, ante.

1198. Application defective for want of proper parties—Proper parties present at hearing—Application proceeded with.]—Re GOLTSTEIN'S APPLICATION, No. 8, ante.

1199. Subject-matter of specification not subject for patent.]—An application, under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 21, for leave to amend a specification was opposed on the ground that the amendments proposed would make the specification, as amended, claim an invention substantially larger than or different from the invention originally claimed. The specification had been considered both by the High Ct., the Ct. of Appeal, & the House of Lords with the result that the patent was held to be invalid. Amendment was refused by the Chief Examiner, acting on behalf of the Comptroller-General, in the exercise of his discretion on the ground that he ought not to allow the specification to be amended as the House of Lords had arrived at the conclusion that the matter described in the specification was not a subject for patent.—Re HENNEBIQUE'S PATENT (1910), 28 R. P. C. 41.

(b) By and to Whom Made.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 21, 22; Patents Rules, 1920, r. 64; R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 21; Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 20, sched.

1200. Who may make application—Patentee having parted with all interest.]—(1) The assignees of letters patent, in respect of which a disclaimer had been enrolled by a grantee, who, at the time of doing so, did not possess the entire patent, may maintain an action for infringement.

(2) A grantee of letters patent, though having entirely parted with his interest, may enter a disclaimer.—SPILSBURY v. CLOUGH (1842), 2 Q. B. 466; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 255; 2 Gal. & Dav. 17; 11 L. J. Q. B. 109; 6 Jur. 579; 114 E. R. 184.

Annotation:—Refd. Ledsam v. Russell (1847), 16 M. & W. 63.

1201. —— Alien enemy.]—Where the resp. to a petition for revocation of a patent is an alien enemy, that is no objection to an application by him under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29). s. 22, for leave to amend his specification by way of disclaimer, inasmuch as the application is by way of defence to the petition.

Semble: a patentee who is an alien enemy cannot make an initiative application under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 21, for leave to amend.—Re STAHLWERK BECKER AKT'S. PATENT, [1917] 2 Ch. 272; 86 L. J. Ch. 670; 117 L. T. 216; 33 T. L. R. 339; 61 Sol. Jo. 479; 34 R. P. C. 332.

1202. To whom application made—The Comptroller.]—Pltf. can apply to the Patent Office for leave to amend the specification by way of disclaimer without any leave from me (NORTH, J.).—LAWRENCE v. PERRY & CO., LTD. (1885), 2 R. P. C. 179; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 143.

1203. —— —— Where proceedings pending for infringement or revocation—Petition for revocation after application.]—An application for leave to amend the specification of a patent having been made to the Comptroller under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18:—Held: the subsequent presentation of a petition for revocation of the patent, before the Comptroller had given his decision, did not, by virtue of Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18 (10), operate to suspend his jurisdiction, but he could, notwithstanding the pendency of the petition, grant leave to amend. — WOOLFE v. AUTOMATIC PICTURE GALLERY, LTD., [1903] 1 Ch. 18; 72 L. J. Ch. 34; 87 L. T. 539; 19 T. L. R. 94, C. A.

Annotation:—Consd. Brooks v. Lycett's Saddle & Motor Accessory Co., [1904] 1 Ch. 512.

1204. —— —— ——.]—BROOKS (J. B.) & CO., LTD. v. LYCETT'S SADDLE & MOTOR ACCESSORY CO., LTD., No. 1189, ante.

specification from being proceeded with when a proceeding for revocation of the patent has been commenced, except with the leave of the ct. or a judge, under sect. 31, notwithstanding that the application under sect. 30 has been put in before, & was pending at the time of the commencement of, the proceeding for revocation.—Re CASSEL GOLD-EXTRACTING CO.'S PATENT (1896), 14 N. Z. L. R. 457.—N.Z.

r. Who may oppose—Attorney-General.]—The A.-G. is both a "person" & a "person entitled to be heard" in opposition to an application for leave to amend a specification, within Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1889, s. 30 (3).—Re CASSEL GOLD-EXTRACTING CO.'S PATENT (1897), 15 N. Z. L. R. 741.—N.Z.

Sect. 7.—Amendment: Sub-sect. 2, C. (b), (c) & (d), D. (a).]

1205. —— —— —— Effect of leave from Comptroller.]—Re OWEN'S PATENT, No. 1181, ante.

1206. —— The court—When proceedings pending for infringement or revocation.] — Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, applies to an action for infringement of a patent which was pending at the commencement of the Act, namely Jan. 1, 1884, & the ct. in any such action has power under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, to give pltf. liberty to apply to the Patent Office for leave to amend his specification by way of disclaimer.—SINGER v. HASSON (1884), 50 L. T. 326; varied, sub nom. SINGER v. STASSEN, 1 R. P. C. 121; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 207, C. A.

Annotations:—Consd. Bray v. Gardner (1887), 34 Ch. D. 668; Fusee Vesta Co. v. Bryant & May (1887), 34 Ch. D. 458; Re Woolfe's Patent, Woolfe v. Automatic Picture Gallery (1902), 87 L. T. 95. Refd. Re Hearson's Patent (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 309; Haslam Foundry & Engineering Co. v. Goodfellow & Matthews (1887), 57 L. T. 788.

1207. —— —— ——.] — An action having been commenced under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, for an injunction to restrain patentees from issuing threats of legal proceedings & for damages, the patentees brought a cross action for infringement of their patent. The patentees then applied in the cross action & obtained a judge's order under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, giving them liberty to apply to the Comptroller-General for leave to amend their specification by way of disclaimer. Upon an application for a writ of prohibition to the Comptroller-General to prevent him from hearing the application upon the order:—Held: the judge had jurisdiction to make the order, notwithstanding that the action under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, had not been concluded, & the application for a prohibition must be refused.—Re HALL (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 137; 57 L. J. Q. B. 494; 59 L. T. 37; 36 W. R. 892, D. C.

Annotation:—Mentd. R. v. Electricity Comrs., Ex p. London Electricity Joint Committee Co. (1920), Ltd., [1924] 1 K. B. 171.

1208. —— —— ——.]—GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR CO. v. GAMAGE (A. W.), LTD. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 808; 26 R. P. C. 745.

Annotation:—Refd. Gillette Safety Razor Co. v. Luna Safety Razor Co., [1910] 2 Ch. 373.

1209. —— —— —— What amounts to "pending."]—In an action for infringement of their patent, pltfs. obtained a judgment against defts. S. & H., but on appeal, that judgment was reversed as against S., but maintained as against H. Pltfs. afterwards applied under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18, for leave to amend their specification by way of disclaimer, which application was opposed by defts. Subsequently, H. lodged an appeal in the House of Lords against the decision of the Ct. of Appeal. The Comptroller-General then declined to proceed with pltfs.' application until the opinion of the ct. had been taken under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, as he doubted whether or not the appeal to the House of Lords was a pending litigation within Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18 (10), & pltfs. thereupon took out a summons that they might be at liberty to disclaim:—Held: the words "other legal proceeding in relation to a patent," in Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18 (10), refer to a proceeding for the revocation of a patent, & an "action for infringement . . . pending" means an action before judgment, & that being so there was no action for infringement or other legal proceeding pending, & the summons was dismissed.—CROPPER v. SMITH (No. 2) (1884), 28 Ch. D. 148; 54 L. J. Ch. 287; 52 L. T. 94; 33 W. R. 338; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), p. 72; 1 R. P. C. 254.

Annotations:—Refd. Re Hall (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 137. Mentd. Dowler v. Keeling (1898), 14 T. L. R. 257.

1210. —— —— —— What amounts to "proceedings."]—BROOKS (J. B.) & CO., LTD. v. LYCETT'S SADDLE & MOTOR ACCESSORY CO., LTD., No. 1189, ante.

1211. —— —— —— Suspension of judgment.]—The owners of a patent relating to a refrigerative apparatus brought an action for alleged infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds of anticipation & want of subject-matter. Before pltfs. became the owners of the patent, they had in various proceedings, either disputed, or made preparations for disputing its validity:—Held: the second claim had been anticipated by the B. machine, but the residue was new, & had been infringed. Pltfs. applying for leave to disclaim, judgment suspended, until a decision on such application.—HASLAM & CO. v. HALL (1887), 5 R. P. C. 1; on appeal, 20 Q. B. D. 491, C. A.

Annotations:—Mentd. Kane v. Guest (1899), 16 R. P. C. 433; Acetylene Illuminating Co. v. United Alkali Co., [1902] 1 Ch. 494.

1212. —— —— —— Commencement & discontinuance of action.]—In an action for infringement of a patent (there had been an amendment by disclaimer) for producing dyes, deft. denied infringement & by his particulars objected that owing to a previous specification the invention was not good subject-matter, that the invention shown in the original specification was enlarged by the disclaimer & that the specification contained misleading statements. At the trial he asked for a nonsuit on the ground that pltfs. had not proved infringement; he also objected that the amendment allowed was not that originally advertised & that the proceedings for amendment were vitiated by the commencement & discontinuance of an action during those proceedings:—Held: all these several objections were bad, infringement was proved, & an injunction was granted.—FARBENFABRIKEN VORM FR. BAYER & CO. v. BOWKER (1891), 8 R. P. C. 389.

Annotations:—Distd. Australian Gold Recovery Co. v. Lake View Consols (1900), 83 L. T. 541; Brooks v. Lycett's Saddle & Motor Accessory Co., [1904] 1 Ch. 512. Refd. Woolfe v. Automatic Picture Gallery (1902), 46 Sol. Jo. 633.

1213. —— —— —— Nature of proposed amendment.]—Upon an application by a patentee to the ct. under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, for liberty to apply at the Patent Office for leave to amend his specification by way of disclaimer, the ct. is not concerned with the terms of the proposed amendment except for the purpose of guiding it in the exercise of its discretion under the sect.

Consequently the ct. will not refuse an application under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, upon the ground that the proposed amendment is not an amendment by way of disclaimer as distinguished from correction or explanation unless it is satisfied that this is so by a mere perusal of the specification.—Re ALSOP'S PATENT, [1906] 1 Ch. 85; 75 L. J. Ch. 134; 94 L. T. 38; 54 W. R. 323; 22 T. L. R. 157; 23 R. P. C. 65, C. A.; subsequent proceedings (1907), 24 R. P. C. 733.

1214. —— —— Necessity for application to patent judge.] — Re KLABER & STEINBERG'S PATENT, No. 1196, ante.

(c) In Proceedings for Infringement or Revocation.

Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 22, & 1919 (c. 80), sched.; R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 21; & see Nos. 1203–1214, ante.

(d) Time for Making.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 21, & 1919 (c. 80), sched.

1215. After adverse judgment.]—DEROSNE v. FAIRIE, No. 1057, ante.

1216. —— Petition for revocation pending.]—A petition for revocation of a patent relating to certain process & apparatus for copying, duplicating, & printing writings, etc., by means of a transmitting printing sheet coated with a substance impervious to ink, having been presented, the owners of the patent applied to the ct. for liberty to apply to the Comptroller for leave to amend by way of disclaimer. On the application coming before the ct. appcts. contended that no terms except the usual terms as to costs should be imposed on them as a condition for granted liberty; resps. contended that in the special circumstances of the case a term should be imposed that no action for infringement should be brought against them or their customers. The patent was granted in 1887, & the specification contained originally fourteen claims. After threatening legal proceedings against resps. between 1892 & 1898 the owners of the patent amended, reducing the claims to five, & commenced proceedings against resps. for infringement; the patent was held at the trial to be bad, & an appeal was dismissed. The petition for revocation was then presented. The leave asked for was granted on the terms that no action should be brought against resps. or their customers in respect of certain paper used or sold up to the date of the hearing of the application, or in respect of any such paper bought or ordered before the date of the notice of motion, whether waxed or not, &, on the usual terms as to costs, leave to appeal being given. Appcts. appealed:—Held: the terms were within the jurisdiction of & a matter for the discretion of the judge before whom the application came, & his discretion should not be overruled.—Re ALLISON'S PATENT (1900), 17 R. P. C. 513, C. A.

1217. After assignment of patent.]—WALLINGTON v. DALE, No. 1074, ante.

1218. Effect of lapse of time—Four years.]—An application for the amendment of a patent granted in 1856 by rectifying an error in the spelling of the name of the patentee was refused on the ground of lapse of time.

Qu.: whether the ct. has power to make such an order under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 15.—Re BLAMOUD (1860), 3 L. T. 800, L. C.

1219. ——.]—(1) In an old patent like this I am very indisposed to make any alteration in the specification, but I do think that in this particular case justice does entitle appct. to have one. Fig. 3 stood upon the complete specification ever since it was filed, & looking at the provisional, I am satisfied that would include it. Therefore I think I shall not be wrong in allowing the description of that drawing to be inserted. I am clear that I am not entitled to allow any extended claim, & if it was not that I think that the original claim does cover it, I should not have allowed it (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).

(2) Application was made for a return of the stamp on the notice of appeal.

This was a case in which the Comptroller-General was quite right in declining to allow it in the first instance & to leave it to the law officer. There was quite sufficient difficulty about it. It is a ten year old patent & therefore I should not be disposed to make a special order (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re MORGAN (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 17

D. What Amendments Allowed.

(a) Substantial Alteration of Original.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 21 (c), 22 & 1919 (c. 80), s. 20, sched.

1220. Amendment not allowed.]—Re SHARP'S PATENT, Ex p. WORDSWORTH, No. 1184, ante.

1221. ——.]—Re WALKER (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 22.

1222. ——.]—Re CHEESBROUGH'S PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 303.

1223. ——.]—I am of opinion that I ought not to allow the amendments to be made, for in my judgment the specification, assuming it to be amended in the way now proposed, would be substantially different from the original specification (SIR E. CLARKE, S.-G.).—Re HEATH & FROST'S PATENT (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 310.

1224. ——.]—Re MORGAN, No. 1219, ante.

1225. ——.]—Re COCHRANE'S PATENT (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 304.

Annotations:—Consd. Re Goltstein's Appln. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 289. Refd. Re Hattersley & Jackson's Patent (1904), 21 R. P. C. 233.

1226. ——.]—Under ordinary circumstances it rests with appct. to take the responsibility of the question whether a proposed amendment will invalidate his patent. No doubt under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18 (8), the law officer is bound to see that the amendment would not make the specification, as amended, claim an invention substantially larger than or substantially different from the invention claimed by the specification as it stood before amendment, & of course if there is fairly substantial & clear evidence before the Comptroller-General or the law officer that the consequence of the amendment will be within the vice pointed out in that subsection he ought to decline to allow the amendment. But in any question of doubt it certainly is not the duty in my opinion of the law officer to disallow the amendment, because he may thereby deprive the patentee of valuable rights & if the patentee persists in an amendment he persists at PART VI. SECT. 7, SUB-SECT. 2.—D. (a).

1220 i. Amendment not allowed.]—Whether the invention claimed in the proposed amendments of the specification is the discovery of a new principle or a mere working direction for the use of existing apparatus, if it is substantially different from that claimed by the original specification, & within the prohibition of Patents Act, 1903, s. 78.—NEILSON v. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS FOR NEW SOUTH WALES (1914), 18 C. L. R. 423.—AUS.

1220 ii. ——.]—Where an amendment would not make the specification, as amended, claim an invention substantially larger than or substantially different from that originally claimed; it ought to be allowed, even if its effect would be, by cutting down the claim, to turn the claim, bad as being too wide, into a good claim.—Re CASSEL GOLD-EXTRACTING CO.'S PATENT (1897), 15 N. Z. L. R. 741.—N.Z.

1220 iii. ——.]—Re WHEELER'S APPLICATION (1892), 12 N. Z. L. R. 193.—N.Z.

1220 iv. ——.]—The only valid objection which can be taken to a proposed amendment of a specification is that it will make the specification claim an invention substantially larger than, or substantially different from, the invention claimed by the specification as it stood before amendment, contrary to Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1889, s. 30 (6).—Re OSBORNE'S PATENT (1894), 13 N. Z. L. R. 172.—N.Z.

Sect. 7.—Amendment: Sub-sect. 2, D. (a), (b), (c)

his peril, & if the patent is bad so much the worse for him (WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re LAKE (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 16.

1227. ——.]—Re ALLEN, No. 1247, post.

1228. ——.]—Ex p. SIMON, No. 720, ante.

1229. ——.]—Re GAULARD & GIBBS' PATENT, No. 1231, post.

1230. ——.]—In an opposition to the grant, extensive amendments are not to be encouraged.—Re GARNETT'S APPLICATION (1899), 16 R. P. C. 154.

1231. ——.]—G. & G. obtained a patent for a new system of distributing electricity for the production of light & power, claiming the employment of an alternating current of high tension for the generation in an unlimited number of secondary generators of induced currents individually utilised, & also claiming the special construction of the secondary generators described, which were induction coils having divided cores consisting of iron wires. F. presented a petition for revocation of this patent, alleging that the invention was devoid of novelty & utility, & had been anticipated, & that the complete specification was not in conformity with the provisional, & was insufficient in itself. G. & G. then, by leave, amended their specification, & struck out the word unlimited, & also the claim for the special generators. On the hearing of the petition the learned judge declared the patent void on account of the insufficiency of the complete specification. The Ct. of Appeal held the invention was useful & had not been anticipated, but that the patent was void because there was a discrepancy between the provisional & complete specifications, & because the amendment had extended the scope of the invention. The patentees having appealed to the House of Lords:—Held: the appeal must be dismissed with costs, two Lords holding, having regard to the prior specifications & state of public knowledge, there was no subject-matter for a patent in the alleged invention, & the third holding that the invention described in the complete specification after the amendment was not the same as that described in the provisional.—Re GAULARD & GIBBS' PATENT (1890), 7 R. P. C. 367, H. L.

Annotations:—Apld. Re Bridge's Appln. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 257. Refd. Re Owen's Patent, [1899] 1 Ch. 157; Donnersmarckhütte oberschlesische Eisen und Kolenwerke Gesellschaft v. Electric Construction Co. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 774; Holmes v. Associated Newspapers (1910), 27 R. P. C. 136.

1232. ——.]—Re LANG'S PATENT (1890), 7 R. P. C. 469.

Annotation:—Consd. Re Owen's Patent, [1899] 1 Ch. 157.

1233. ——.]—Re NAIRN'S PATENT (1891), 8 R. P. C. 444.

1234. ——.]—LANE FOX v. KENSINGTON & KNIGHTSBRIDGE ELECTRIC LIGHTING CO., No. 117, ante.

1235. ——.]—MARSDEN v. MOSER, No. 1248, post.

1236. ——.]—The amendment would make the specification claim an invention substantially different from that originally claimed, & was also, by the indefiniteness of its language, such as ought not to be allowed.—Re PARKINSON'S PATENT (1896), 13 R. P. C. 509.

Annotations:—Apld. Re British Thomson-Houston Co. (1919), 35 T. L. R. 469. Refd. A Ruling by the Comptroller, 1911 (A) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. 1.

1237. ——.]—Re JOHNSON'S PATENT, No. 1179, ante.

1238. ——.]—Re VIDAL'S PATENT (1898), 15 R. P. C. 721.

1239. ——.]—Re CRIST'S APPLICATION (1903), 20 R. P. C. 475.

1240. ——.]—Application for leave to amend specification. Opposition thereto on the ground that the amendment proposed would make the specification, as amended, claim an invention substantially larger than or different from the invention originally claimed:—Held: the amendment would make the specification claim an invention substantially different from that originally claimed, there being no claim to the combination asked for on amendment, all reference to one part of the combination having been omitted by an amendment already made.—Re HATTERSLEY & JACKSON'S PATENT (1904), 21 R. P. C. 233.

Annotations:—Apld. Re British Thomson-Houston Co. (1919), 35 T. L. R. 469. Refd. Re Goltstein's Appln. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 289.

1241. ——.]—KNIGHT v. ARGYLLS, LTD., No. 1068, ante.

1242. ——.]—Re BAMBER & CROPPER & CO., LTD.'S APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 417.

(b) Correction of Clerical Errors.

See Patents Rules, 1920, r. 96.

1243. Clerical error corrected — Reference numbers of figures.]—Re REDMUND'S PATENT (1828), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 649, n.; 5 Russ. 44; 6 L. J. O. S. Ch. 183; 38 E. R. 943.

Annotation:—Distd. Re Sharp's Patent (1840), 3 Beav. 245.

1244. —— Date of grant.]—Re RUBERRY'S PATENT (1837), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 649, n.

Annotation:—Apld. Re Dismore (1854), 18 Beav. 538.

1245. —— "Recovering" for "covering."]—Where letters patent for an invention & the enrolment contain the same error, the Master of the Rolls has no authority to order the enrolment to be amended until a corresponding amendment has been made in the letters patent & they have been resealed.

An application having been made to the Crown for the grant of a patent for an invention of machinery for covering fibrous substances, etc., & the Solicitor-General having certified in favour of such grant, the invention was, by a mistake of the copying clerk in the Home Office, misdescribed in the Queen's Warrant by inserting the word "recovering" for the word "covering"; & the error was adopted, without being observed, in the Queen's Bill, the Privy Seal Bill, & the letters patent. After the letters patent had been enrolled, the error was discovered, & the patentee having procured the Queen's Warrant, the Queen's Bill, & the Privy Seal Bill to be duly amended by the proper officers of the Crown, presented a petition to the Master of the Rolls, as Keeper of the Public Records, praying that the enrolment might be made to accord with the Privy Seal Bill as so amended; & the Master of the Rolls made an order accordingly. But, upon an appeal to the Lord Chancellor by a party, against whom the patentee had previously commenced an action for the infringement of the patent:—Held: the enrolment could on no account be allowed to represent what the letters patent did not contain; & the appeal petition was directed to stand over, with liberty to the patentee to make such application to the Lord Chancellor as he should be advised.—Re NICKEL'S PATENT (1841), 1 Ph. 36; 4 Beav. 563; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 656; 5 Jur. 882; 41 E. R. 544, L. C.; subsequent proceedings (1843), 2 L. T. O. S. 245, L. C.

1246. —— Christian name.]—Clerical error, consisting of the insertion of the name of "Charles" instead of "George" in the inrolment of a patent, ordered to be amended.—Re DISMORE (1854), 18 Beav. 538 ; 52 E. R. 211.

(c) Amendments to Remove Ambiguity.

1247. General rule.]—I think that my business in this case is to look at the specification, to take into consideration the declaration which has been made by the patentee as to the way in which he drew it up & as to his intention, & to exercise my judgment as to what I should fairly have considered upon reading the specification he intended to claim. I find no description anywhere of the novel form of these pipes. The pipes as described in the specification are certainly not of novel form. The first & the third are quite ordinary pipes, the second, the vertical taper pipe, was perfectly well known at the date of the patent. However clumsily the specification was expressed, I think that substantially it claimed the arrangement of the pipes & not the form of the particular pipes ; & I therefore think that the amendment will not enlarge the claim & will not make it a claim for a different invention, but will remove ambiguity rather than defect in the original claim. Therefore I shall allow the amendment to be made, but inasmuch as these proceedings have been rendered necessary by the misfortune, to say the least of it, of the patentee in preparing his specification in the way he did, of course I shall say nothing about costs (SIR EDWARD CLARKE, S.-G.).—Re ALLEN (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 3.

1248. ——.]—Where a specification has been amended the regularity of the amendment cannot be questioned, except on the ground of fraud.

The owner of a patent, communicated from abroad, the specification of which had been amended for raising fabrics, such as flannelettes, brought an action for infringement. Deft. alleged that the patent was invalid, on the ground of want of subject-matter, anticipation, & extension of the claim by amendment ; & also alleged that the patentee had added part of the invention, & should have declared this on making his application. It was held at the trial that the invention could not be subject-matter of a patent, & that the amendment had enlarged the scope of the claim, & thereby invalidated the patent, & the action was dismissed, with costs. Pltf. appealed to the Ct. of Appeal. It was held, on appeal, that pltf. had discovered a new mode of using the old raising machine by altering it, & in so doing had shown great inventive power & ingenuity, & his patent was therefore good ; that the amendment only removed an ambiguity, & did not enlarge the claim, & the appeal was allowed. Deft. appealed to the House of Lords :—Held : the amendment of the specification had not enlarged the claim ; the claim of the amended specification was not too wide ; the patent was valid ; & that the appeal must be dismissed, with costs.—MARSDEN v. MOSER (1895), 73 L. T. 667 ; sub nom. MOSER v. MARSDEN, 13 R. P. C. 24, H. L. ; affg. S. C. sub nom. MOSER v. (1893), 9 T. L. R. 584, C. A.

Annotations :—Consd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429 ; Re Dellwick's Patent, [1896] 2 Ch. 705 ; Re Parkinson's Patent (1896), 13 R. P. C. 509 ; Stepney Spare Motor Wheel Co. v. Hall, [1911] 1 Ch. 514. Refd. Australian Gold Recovery Co. v. Lake View Consols (1900), 83 L. T. 541 ; Jandus Arc Lamp & Electric Co. v. Arc Lamps (1905), 21 T. L. R. 308 ; Avery v. Ashworth (1915), 32 R. P. C. 463, 561.

1249. Limitation of claim to one of two possible constructions.]—Re RYLAND'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 665.

1250. Intention of patentee to be considered—Amendment by way of explanation.]—Application under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 21, to amend a specification by way of explanation. Opposition to amendment on the ground that the proposed amendments would make the specification, as amended, claim an invention substantially different from the invention claimed originally. The Comptroller-General refused to allow amendment. On appeal, amendment was allowed.—Re JOHNSON'S APPLICATION (1909), 26 R. P. C. 780.

(d) Other Cases.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 21 (6).

1251. Refusal on grounds for refusing grant.]—On an application for leave to amend a specification the Comptroller may refuse the application on similar grounds to those acted on in refusing the grant in opposition cases, including want of subject-matter.—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1911 (A) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. i.

1252. Subsequently ascertained knowledge — Adaptation of invention to engines not mentioned in original.]—Appct. very frankly admits that a good deal of this information is necessitated by the development of the discovery of the gas engine or by gas engines being more largely used & developed. My idea of the function of an explanation within Patents, Designs & Trades Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18, is to explain more clearly what is necessary to understand the meaning of the patentee at the time he patented the invention. I do not think it is intended that he should put in subsequently ascertained knowledge. I do not mean to lay down a hard & fast rule, but speaking broadly it was intended to permit a man to amend, correct & explain the enunciation of his invention as he intended originally to give it (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re BECK & JUSTICE (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 10.

Annotation :—Consd. Re Johnson's Appln. (1909), 26 R. P. C. 780.

1253. Unnecessary amendments.]—Now the amendment is sought to be justified on two grounds. It is first stated that it is desirable to put in some proportions, but appct. does not wish to be limited to those proportions, but would prefer to insert a statement that he did not limit himself to those quantities. It would not make any difference in my decision whether the statement had been put in or not if I had been prepared to allow the amendment ; I should have allowed appct. to insert the limiting words or not as he thought desirable. The other point in respect of which the amendment is requested is as to the character of the alloy in which the aluminium may be introduced if not introduced pure. To allow either of these amendments would be highly dangerous, & I consider that no case has been made for them. The ground is stated to be that the patentee desires the principle upon which his invention is based to be fully understood. Now if it was an invention, & for this purpose I will assume that it was, or rather a discovery that aluminium when put into the molten iron lowered the boiling point in such a way that the iron became practically superheated instantaneously or within a short space of time I think that the specification discloses a very valuable invention. I cannot, of course, tell, & I have not the least idea whether that is the true state of things or whether this is a case in which a known scientific fact or principle has been patented. If the putting in the aluminium into the molten iron or steel was the proper subject-matter of an invention & was not a mere example of a known scientific fact, as far as I can judge the specification is sufficiently describes & claims the invention, but under any circumstances, whether that be so or not, it is the duty of the patentee to fulfil the condition of the patent & to file a proper & sufficient specification. Of course I am well aware that when a disclaimer is required it is because there is a defect upon the face of the specification, but in my opinion that defect must be one which must be consistent with the patentee intending to fulfil the condition of the grant by properly describing his invention, & I cannot see if that condition has been fulfilled in this case that the first amendment is required. The same observations apply to the second amendment (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.C.).—Re NORDENFELT (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 18.

Sect. 7.—Amendment: Sub-sect. 2, D. (d), & E. (a) (b) i. & ii.]

1254. Striking out original claim—Substituting claim for subordinate arrangement.]—Re SERRELL'S PATENT (1888), 6 R. P. C. 101.

1255. Excision of some claim.]—A petition for the revocation of Alsop's Patent, No. 14006 of 1903, was presented by the Flour Oxidizing Co., Ltd., & in the course of the proceedings liberty was granted by the Ct. of Appeal to the Alsop Flour Process, Ltd., to apply at the Patent Office under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), for leave to amend the specification by way of disclaimer. The co. then applied to the Comptroller-General for leave. The amendments proposed were to excise certain of the claims & parts of the description relating thereto, such description & claims purporting to relate to a certain result of the process described in the specification which result did not in fact actually occur. The application was opposed. The Comptroller allowed the application as far as the excision of the claims was concerned but refused that part of the application which related to the excision of parts of the description.—Re APPLICATION TO AMEND THE SPECIFICATION OF ALSOP'S PATENT (1907), 24 R. P. C. 684.

1256. Combination of separate claims into one claim.]—A patent was granted for "a telescope ladder for domestic & other purposes." The invention consisted of two distinct ladders of equal length, one drawing up out of the other by pulling a cord, both ends of which were attached to the inner or sliding ladder, which could be adjusted at any height by means of a lever bracket, on which any of the steps of the sliding ladder could rest, thus keeping that ladder fixed in its place. The specification claimed—"(a) The two ladders occupying the space of one only. (b) The ready means of working by the cord. (c) The simple bracket lever by which the ladder is secured at any required length." The patentee afterwards obtained leave to amend his specification, & he amended it by striking out the whole of the claims numbered (a), (b), (c), & substituting for them the following as his claim: "The combination in a telescope ladder as herein described of means for raising, lowering, & stopping, all as herein described, & shown in accompanying drawings." In an action for the infringement of the patent:—Held: upon the construction of the whole specification as it stood before the amendment, the claim was really for a combination, &, consequently, the amendment was only a "correction or explanation," within Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18, & did not "make the specification, as amended, claim an invention substantially larger than or substantially different from the invention claimed by" the original specification, &, consequently, the amendment did not render the patent invalid.—KELLY v. HEATHMAN (1890), 45 Ch. D. 256; 60 L. J. Ch. 22; 63 L. T. 517; 39 W. R. 91; 7 R. P. C. 343.

Annotations:—Distd. Re Hattersley & Jackson's Patent (1904), 21 R. P. C. 233. Refd. Re Goltstein's Appln. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 289.

1257. ——.]—Re GOLTSTEIN'S APPLICATION, No. 8, ante.

1258. Amendment of letter press or drawings—Addition of new drawings.]—Re LANG'S PATENT (1890), 7 R. P. C. 469.

Annotation:—Consd. Re Owen's Patent, [1899] 1 Ch. 157.

1259. Substitution of distinctive matter—Invention anticipated by previous patent.] — Appct. whose claim as originally drawn is anticipated by the patent relied on by the opponent, but whose specification contains something that may distinguish his alleged invention from such patent will not be allowed to amend his claim by substituting such distinctive matter.—Re MILLS'S APPLICATION (1901), 18 R. P. C. 322.

1260. Excision of parts of description.] — Re APPLICATION TO AMEND THE SPECIFICATION OF ALSOP'S PATENT, No. 1255, ante.

1261. Explanation distinguishing invention from prior patent.] — Re SEFTON-JONES' APPLICATION (1918), 36 R. P. C. 23.

E. Conditions Imposed on Allowing Amendments.

(a) Jurisdiction of Court to Impose Conditions.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 21 (5), 22; 1919 (c. 80), Sched. R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 21.

1262. Discretion of court.] — Re HEARSON'S PATENT, No. 1285, post.

1263. ——.]—ALLEN v. DOULTON & Co. (1887), 3 T. L. R. 655; 4 R. P. C. 377, C. A.

Annotations:—Apld. Lang v. Whitecross Co. (1889), 62 L. T. 119. Refd. Gaulard v. Lindsay (1888), 38 Ch. D. 38.

1264. ——.]—An application to amend the specification of a patent was opposed mainly on the ground of alleged want of bona fides in appcts. Special terms were asked for by opponents:—Held: there was power to impose special terms by way of condition.—Re AINSWORTH'S PATENT (1896), 13 R. P. C. 76.

Annotation:—Refd. Notes of Rulings by the Comptroller-General, 1911 (A) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. i.

1265. ——.]—Opposition by H. to an application by S. S. M. W., Ltd., for leave to amend a specification. Contention by H. that the amendment if allowed, should be allowed only on condition that the amended specification be not used in an infringement action commenced by S. S. M. W., Ltd., against H. after the application for leave to amend. Certain amendments were allowed by the Comptroller-General unconditionally. The opponent appealed to the Law Officer:—Held: the decision of the Comptroller-General was right.—Re DAVIES & DAVIES' PATENT (1910), 28 R. P. C. 50.

1266. —— When subject to review.] — The owners of a patent brought an action for infringement against defts. After delivery of the defence pltfs. sought for leave to apply at the Patent Office to amend their specification by way of disclaimer under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19. The judge at chambers gave leave to apply & to put the amended specification in evidence on condition that no damages be recovered, or claim for injunction founded on anything done before disclaimer, the costs of the action up to the time, if disclaimer used, to be, deft.'s costs in the cause; the costs of the application & the costs caused in the action by the disclaimer to be deft.'s in any event, proceedings to be stayed pending the disclaimer:—Held: under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, the judge had the widest possible discretion as to the terms on which leave to apply for amendment should be granted, & that discretion should not be interfered with unless it had been exercised on absolutely wrong grounds, & in the present case it seemed to have been exercised properly.—LANG v. WHITECROSS WIRE & IRON CO. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 389, H. L.

1267. —— ——.]—Re ALLISON'S PATENT, No. 1216, ante.

1268. —— ——.]—In a proceeding for revocation of a patent, the Ct. of Appeal will not review the exercise by a judge of the discretion given to him by Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, as to the terms & conditions of an order for revocation where the judge has exercised his discretion with a full knowledge of all the circumstances of the case.—Re GEIPEL'S PATENT, [1904] 1 Ch. 239; 73 L. J. Ch. 215; 90 L. T. 70; 52 W. R. 339; 48 Sol. Jo. 245; 21 R. P. C. 379, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Re Alsop's Patent, [1906] 1 Ch. 85; Re Klaber & Steinberg's Letters Patent (No. 2) (1907), 24 T. L. R. 482; Re Klaber & Steinberg's Patent, [1908] 1 Ch. 847; Gillette Safety Razor Co. v. Luna Safety Razor Co., [1910] 2 Ch. 373.

(b) What Conditions may be Imposed.

i. Amended Specification Not Receivable in Evidence.

1269. Whether condition imposed.]—Pltf. in the action applied under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, for liberty to apply at the Patent Office for leave to amend the specification of his patent by way of disclaimer, & that in the meantime the trial of the action might be postponed. It appeared that pltf. had previously made an application to the Comptroller for leave to disclaim which was refused on the ground that the action was pending, & no leave to disclaim had been obtained from the ct.:—Held: the liberty applied for should be granted upon the terms that the specification when amended should not be given in evidence at the trial of the action, & that no evidence should be given of any infringement prior to the date of the filing of the amended specification, & that the costs of the motion & of the previous application to the Comptroller, & thrown away by reason of the amendment, be paid by pltf.—Re CODD'S PATENT, CODD v. BRATBY & HINCLIFFE (1884), 1 R. P. C. 209; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 56.

1270. ——.]—ALLEN v. DOULTON & CO., No. 1263, ante.

1271. ——.]—Where pltf. in an action for infringement of a patent asks for leave to apply at the Patent Office to amend his specification by way of disclaimer, the ct. will as a general rule impose the condition that the amended specification shall not be receivable in evidence in the action, though in particular cases less stringent terms may be imposed.—BRAY v. GARDNER (1887), 34 Ch. D. 668; 56 L. J. Ch. 497; 56 L. T. 292; 35 W. R. 341; 3 T. L. R. 352; 4 R. P. C. 40, C. A.

Annotations:—Consd. Allen v. Doulton (1887), 3 T. L. R. 655; Gaulard v. Lindsay (1888), 38 Ch. D. 38. Refd. Lang v. Whitecross Co. (1889), 62 L. T. 119.

ii. Payment of Costs.

1272. Whether condition imposed.]—ALLEN v. DOULTON & CO., No. 1263, ante.

1273. —— Costs of motion—& previous application.]—Re CODD'S PATENT, CODD v. BRATBY & HINCLIFFE, No. 1269, ante.

1274. —— —— & action.]—Pltfs. in 1883 began an action in the Palatine Ct. for infringement of their patent, & after the pleadings were closed moved, in 1884, for liberty to apply to the Patent Office under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, for leave to amend their specification by way of disclaimer:—Held: (1) the Palatine Ct. has jurisdiction to entertain such a motion; (2) such a motion could be made in an action commenced before the Act came into operation; (3) the liberty moved for ought to be granted upon pltfs. paying defts. the taxed costs of the motion & of the action, up to & inclusive of the hearing of the motion; (4) the proceedings in the action should be stayed pending the application to the Patent Office.—WINTER & IVERS v. BAYBUT, MADELEY & CO. (1884), 1 R. P. C. 76.

1275. —— —— ——.]—In a patent action for infringement, after all the pleadings had been delivered so that nothing remained to be done but to prepare the evidence for trial, pltfs. asked, under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, for liberty to apply for leave to disclaim one of the claims of their specification. The application was granted on the following terms: (1) Pltfs. to pay in any event the costs of the application, & the costs of action up to & occasioned by the disclaimer, except only so far as the proceedings in the action might be utilised for the purposes of the amended action.

(2) Pltfs. & defts. to be allowed to make all necessary amendments in their pleadings after disclaimer. (3) Pltfs. to undertake forthwith to amend their pleadings, confining the action to the specification as amended by the disclaimer or to consent to the action being dismissed with costs. (4) In the event of trial all other questions of costs reserved.—HASLAM FOUNDRY & ENGINEERING CO. v. GOODFELLOW (1887), 37 Ch. D. 118; 57 L. J. Ch. 245; 57 L. T. 788; 36 W. R. 391.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Ludington Cigarette Machine Co. v. Baron Cigarette Machine Co. (1900), 82 L. T. 173. Generally, Refd. Goulard v. Lindsay (1888), 59 L. T. 44; Lang v. Whitecross Co. (1889), 62 L. T. 119.

1276. —— —— ——.]—LANG v. WHITECROSS WIRE & IRON CO., No. 1266, ante.

1277. —— ——.]—In 1903 a patent was granted for "Improvements in or connected with appliances used in manifold writing," & in 1904 an injunction was granted against the M. co. in an action for the infringement of the patent. In 1911 a petition for revocation of the patent was presented by the M. co., ltd., the successors in business of the M. co. The patentees applied for leave to make certain amendments in their specification, & an order was made that they should be at liberty to proceed with their application. At the hearing of the application, the M. co. ltd. contended that leave ought not to be given, except upon condition that the injunction should be dissolved, & on other terms:—Held: appcts. should have leave to amend upon the terms of paying the costs of the application, & upon other terms specified, including an undertaking to submit to a dissolution of the injunction.—Re KENRICK & JEFFERSON'S APPLICATION (1911), 29 R. P. C. 25.

1278. —— Defendant's party & party costs.]—On a motion under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, by pltfs. in an action for infringement of their patent dated in 1885, for liberty to apply at the Patent Office for leave to amend their specification by disclaimer, an order was made granting the leave asked for on the following terms, no statement of claim or defence having yet been delivered:—(1) No further proceedings to be taken in the action until the disclaimer had been properly made, &, if so made, pltfs. to pay defts.' party & party costs of the action up to disclaimer; (2) pltfs. to undertake Annotation :—Reld. Re Alsop's Patent, [1906] 1 Ch. 85.

1281. ——— ———.]—As a general rule the ct. will not in the exercise of its discretion in allowing an amendment of a patent under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 22, impose a condition, in the absence of special circumstances, preventing appct. from maintaining any actions whatever in respect to matters prior to the date at which leave to amend is given ; but it will in some cases declare that, in addition to the restriction on recovery of damages provided by Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 23, the patentee shall not sue for an injunction in respect of the use of the invention before disclaimer, unless he establishes that his original claim was framed in good faith & with reasonable skill & knowledge.

Pltfs. in an action for infringement of their patent applied by motion for an order that they might be at liberty to amend their specification by way of disclaimer & that the specification so amended might be used in evidence at the trial of the action upon such terms as the ct. might think fit. On Nov. 26, 1909, an order was made by consent whereby, pltfs. undertaking not to proceed with &, if required, to consent to orders staying (pending the application) all proceedings in all their other pending actions for infringement of their patent, & to abide by the order of the ct. as to the terms which the ct. might thereafter think fit to impose as to the matters mentioned in R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 23 (b), including terms as to the costs of the action & all the other pending actions for infringement of the patent, & not in the meantime to threaten actions for infringement, & to give notice of this order to all defts. in the other pending actions for infringement, the ct. ordered that appcts. should be at liberty to proceed with their application for leave to amend, & that the application should be heard on affidavit evidence. The application now came on for hearing :—Held : (1) the proposed amendments came within Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 22, & they ought to be allowed upon the terms that appcts. should pay the costs of & occasioned by the application to amend, including costs of persons who had served notice of opposition under R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 23 ; (2) by consent all the other pending actions for infringement brought by appcts. should be discontinued, with the usual

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 23 ; Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 20, sched.

1283. Infringement prior to amendment.]—Re NICKEL'S PATENT (1843), 2 L. T. O. S. 245.

1284. ———.]—Re HARRISON'S PATENT (1853), Macr. 32.

1285. ———.]—Re HEARSON'S PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 309 ; 1 R. P. C. 213.

Annotation :—Reld. Re Ashworth (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 6.

1286. ———.]—GAULARD v. LINDSAY, No. 1282, ante.

1287. ———.]—LANG v. WHITECROSS WIRE & IRON CO., No. 1266, ante.

1288. ———.]—Under the peculiar circumstances of this case I think it would be right further to order, that if the specification be amended, no action shall be brought for infringement of the patent in respect of any guns or parts of guns made prior to the date when the hearing of this appeal was concluded (LORD HERSCHELL).—DEELEY v. PERKES, [1896] A. C. 496 ; 65 L. J. Ch. 912 ; 75 L. T. 233 ; 12 T. L. R. 547 ; 13 R. P. C. 581, H. L.

Annotations :—Consd. Ludington Cigarette Machine Co. v. Baron Cigarette Machine Co., [1900] 1 Ch. 508 ; Re Geipel's Patent, [1903] 2 Ch. 715. Reld. Re Dellwick's Patent, [1896] 2 Ch. 705 ; Shoe Machinery Co. v. Cutlan, [1896] 1 Ch. 108 ; Re Justice's Patent (1901), 18 R. P. C. 241 ; Re Ralston's Patent, Re Preston & Ralston's Patent (1909), 100 L. T. 386 ; Porter v. Freudenberg, Kreglinger v. Samuel & Rosenfold, Re Morton's Patents, [1915] 1 K. B. 857.

1289. ———.]—Re ALLISON'S PATENT, No. 1216, ante.

1290. ———.]—The owners of a patent for a machine having brought an action for its infringement, defts. presented a petition for its revocation. Pltfs. then asked for liberty to apply at the Patent Office for leave to amend their specification by way of disclaimer :—Held : under the special circumstances of the case, the ct. in giving the liberty asked for, ought to impose the condition that pltfs. should not bring or maintain any action for infringement of the patent in respect of any machines or parts of machines made prior to the date of the order.—LUDINGTON CIGARETTE MACHINE CO. v. BARON CIGARETTE MACHINE CO., Re PITT'S PATENT, [1900] 1 Ch. 508 ; 69 L. J. Ch. 321 ; 82 L. T. 173 ; 48 W. R. 505 ; 44 Sol. Jo.

293 ; 17 R. P. C. 215, C. A. ; on appeal, 17 R. P. C. 745, H. L.

Annotations :—Refd. Re Allison's Patent (1900), 17 R. P. C. 298 ; Re Geipel's Patent, [1903] 2 Ch. 715 ; Jandus Arc Lamp & Electric Co. v. Arc Lamp Co. (1903), 21 R. P. C. 115.

1291. ——.]—CORRIGALL v. ARMSTRONG, WHITWORTH & Co. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 523.

1292. ——.]—Re GEIPEL'S PATENT, No. 1268, ante.

1293. ——.]—Re KLABER & STEINBERG'S PATENT, No. 1196, ante.

1294. —— Discretion of court.]—GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR CO. v. LUNA SAFETY RAZOR CO., No. 1281, ante.

1295. —— Condition not confined to present opponents.]—All the provisoes in Patent Law (Amendment) Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 39, are, I think, intended to be enactments & I am of opinion that this sect. applies to all cases, & that it is for the law officer to certify in his fiat, should he so think fit, that an action may be brought in respect of infringements prior to the filing of the disclaimer ; but I shall only allow this disclaimer upon condition that an undertaking be given that no action shall be brought in respect of anything done prior to the hearing of this application for the disclaimer. This undertaking must be in the usual form, & must be general enough to include not only the present opponents, but every one. All are entitled to the same immunity, but I cannot go so far as to prevent the patentee from bringing an action in respect of any infringement committed after this date.—Re SMITH'S DISCLAIMER (1855), Macr. 232.

1296. —— On opponent furnishing statement of articles in use.]—Re WESTINGHOUSE'S PATENT (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 315.

1297. —— ——.]—I do not see why lamps made prior to Jan. 1 & unsold should not be protected. If the opponents had been making lamps after notice that the patentee was going to disclaim, there would be a great deal to be said for not protecting lamps in stock. But, supposing before they had any idea of any disclaimer on the part of the patentee, & at a time when the patentee could not have stopped it under his patent, the opponents had made lamps bonâ fide, they would now be left on their hands as useless, & they would be put to expense, so the equity of the thing would seem to be rather in favour of their being protected (SIR F. HERSCHELL, S.-G.). —Re CHEESBROUGH'S PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 303.

1298. —— Protection of continued user of infringing articles.]—Re CHEESBROUGH'S PATENT, No. 1297, ante.

1299. —— —— User by trade & by public.]—GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR CO. v. LUNA SAFETY RAZOR CO., No. 1281, ante.

1300. —— Protection of sale of unsold infringing articles.]—Re CHEESBROUGH'S PATENT, No. 1297, ante.

1301. —— Whether necessary condition.]—Re ASHWORTH (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1837), 6.

Annotation :—Refd. Re Davies & Davies' Patent (1910), 28 R. P. C. 50.

1302. —— Action for damages.] — GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR CO. v. LUNA SAFETY RAZOR CO., No. 1281, ante.

1303. —— Action for injunction—Original claim passed in good faith—With reasonable skill & knowledge.]—GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR CO. v. LUNA SAFETY RAZOR CO., No. 1281, ante.

1304. Infringement after amendment.] — Re SMITH'S DISCLAIMER, No. 1295, ante.

1305. Abandonment of pending action.] — Re NICKEL'S PATENT (1843), 2 L. T. O. S. 245.

1306. Action during continuance of patent.]—Re MEDLOCK'S PATENT (1865), cited in Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. XXII, p. 172.

iv. Stay or Discontinuance of Proceedings.

1307. Proceedings for infringement—Stay.]—WINTER & IVERS v. BAYBUT, MADELEY & CO., No. 1274, ante.

1308. —— ——.]—FUSEE VESTA CO. v. BRYANT & MAY, LTD., No. 1278, ante.

1309. —— Discontinuance.]—GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR CO. v. LUNA SAFETY RAZOR CO., No. 1281, ante.

v. Other Cases.

1310. Limitation of pending action to amended specification.]—HASLAM FOUNDRY & ENGINEERING CO. v. GOODFELLOW, No. 1275, ante.

1311. ——.]—FUSEE VESTA CO. v. BRYANT & MAY, LTD., No. 1278, ante.

1312. Diligent prosecution of proceedings to amend.]—FUSEE VESTA CO. v. BRYANT & MAY, LTD., No. 1278, ante.

1313. ——.]—Re GAULARD & GIBBS' PATENT, No. 1279, ante.

1314. Amendment of pleadings after disclaimer.] —HASLAM FOUNDRY & ENGINEERING CO. v. GOODFELLOW, No. 1275, ante.

1315. No proceedings to be threatened—Pending application.]—Re ANDREWS' PATENT, ALSOP FLOUR PROCESS, LTD. v. FLOUR OXIDIZING CO., LTD. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 477, H. L.

Annotations :—Consd. Watson, Laidlaw v. Pott, Cassels & Williamson (1909), 26 R. P. C. 349. Refd. Flour Oxidising Co. v. Hutchinson (1909), 26 R. P. C. 597.

1316. Submission to dissolution of existing injunction.]—Re KENRICK & JEFFERSON'S APPLICATION, No. 1277, ante.

F. Effect of Amendment.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 21 (7) ; Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 20, sched.

1317. Effect of disclaimer—On subsequent breach of injunction—Injunction granted before disclaimer.]—DUDGEON v. THOMSON, No. 1110, ante.

1318. —— To render subsequent patent void.]—A declaration stated the grant of letters patent, dated in 1836, to pltf., with the usual averment of the enrolment of a specification within six months ; that in 1844 pltf. disclaimed a part, & that after he had done so deft. infringed the part undisclaimed. Plea, that in 1840, & after the grant to pltf., but before his disclaimer, letters patent for certain improvements in water closets & stuffing boxes applicable to pumps were granted to B., who granted a licence to deft., & that the grievances complained of were the making, using, etc., the improvements in pumps, for which the letters patent were granted to B., & the licence was granted to deft. :—Held : (1) a patent granted after the date of a prior patent for the same thing, part of which is subsequently disclaimed, is void, inasmuch as the original patent is rendered valid from its original date by the disclaimer ; (2) the disclaimer only entitled the patentee to maintain actions in respect of acts done subsequently to the disclaimer.

Semble : the entering of a disclaimer is not an admission that the original patent was bad, as it may be entered to obviate a doubt.—STOCKER v. WARNER (1845), 1 C. & B. 148; 14 L. J. C. P. 90; 4 L. T. O. S. 315; 9 Jur. 136; 135 E. R. 493.

t. Original specification voidable.]—PEARSON v. SANATIVE CO. (1896), 14 N. Z. L. R. 548.—N.Z.

Sect. 7.—Amendment: Sub-sect. 2, F., G. & H. Part VII. Sect. 1.]

1319. —— To entitle patentee to maintain action.]—STOCKER v. WARNER, No. 1318, ante.

1320. —— No admission original patent bad.]—STOCKER v. WARNER, No. 1318, ante.

1321. Original specification constituting valid patent—Damages for infringement prior to amendment.]—Pltf. brought an action for infringement of a patent for "improvement in distributing electricity, & in apparatus to be employed for that purpose." In pltf.'s system there were two dynamos in series, which supplied two systems of appliances consuming electricity placed also in series between the main conductors with a third conductor connecting a point between the dynamos with points between the two systems of consuming appliances. Pltf. contended that on the true construction of the specification his invention was confined to cases in which the electricity was supplied to the consumers at a constant pressure or potential. Defts. alleged that it included a case of two or more arc lamps in series, lighted by a current from two dynamos in series, with a third conductor joining a point between the dynamos to the conductor between the lamps in series, & that it had been anticipated. They also contended that the directions as to necessity of the dynamos being coupled rigidly were insufficient, & that a regulator which was also claimed would not work in certain cases, constructed as described in the specification:—Held: the patent was valid & defts. failed on all points; the specification was, in its unamended form, framed with reasonable skill & knowledge. The usual relief was granted with costs on the higher scale.—HOPKINSON v. ST. JAMES'S & PALL-MALL ELECTRIC LIGHTING CO. (1893), 9 T. L. R. 173; 10 R. P. C. 46.

1322. Amendment cannot be questioned—Except on grounds of fraud.]—MARSDEN v. MOSER, No. 1248, ante.

1323. ——.] — FARBENFABRIKEN VORM FR. BAYER & CO. v. BOWKER, No. 1212, ante.

1324. Amended specification takes place of original.]—Where, in an action for infringement of their patent, patentees have amended the original specification by way of disclaimer under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, & established at the trial their claim for an infringement of the amended specification as it stands, the ct. will not, for the purpose of certifying under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 20, that the original specification was framed in good faith & with reasonable skill & knowledge, read the erased portions of the specification; to do so would be in effect to allow the plaintiffs to raise a fresh issue after judgment.—JANDUS ARC LAMP & ELECTRIC CO., LTD. v. ARC LAMPS, LTD. (1905), 92 L. T. 447; 21 T. L. R. 308; 22 R. P. C. 277.

1325. ——.]—BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. FUSSELL (A.) & SONS, LTD., No. 969, ante.

1326. ——.]—Where the writ in an action for infringement of a patent is issued after the patentee has applied to the Comptroller for leave to amend his specification, & leave to amend is granted to him after the issue of the writ, the proper specification to put in evidence & to refer to at the trial as a description of the invention is the specification as it stands after amendment.—STEPNEY SPARE MOTOR WHEEL CO., LTD. v. HALL, [1911] 1 Ch. 514; 80 L. J. Ch. 391; 104 L. T. 665; 27 T. L. R. 283.

G. Time from which Amendment Operative.

1327. Whether retrospective.]—Where a patent is originally void, but amended under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, by filing a disclaimer of part of the invention, that act has not a retrospective operation, so as to make a party liable for an infringement of the patent prior to the time of entering such disclaimer.—PERRY v. SKINNER (1837), 2 M. & W. 471; Murp. & H. 122; 6 L. J. Ex. 124; 1 Jur. 433; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 250; 150 E. R. 843.

Annotation:—Consd. Stocker v. Warner (1845), 1 C. B. 148; R. v. Mill (1850), 10 C. B. 379; Wallington v. Dale (1852), 7 Exch. 888; Woolfe v. Automatic Picture Gallery, [1903] 1 Ch. 18. Refd. Re Sharp's Patent (1840), 3 Beav. 245; Stead v. Carey (1845), 1 C. B. 496; Mid. Ry. v. Pye (1861), 10 C. B. N. S. 179; Bray v. Gardner (1887), 34 Ch. D. 668.

1328. ——.]—Re LUCAS' DISCLAIMER (1854), Macr. 234.

1329. ——.]—On June 9, 1890, the Comptroller gave C. leave to amend a specification, on condition, to which C. had assented, that C. should not sue A., who had opposed the amendment, for any infringement committed before 1884. On June 11, C. brought an action against A. for infringements alleged to have been committed since 1883. Subsequently the Patent Office sent C. a form of undertaking to observe the condition. C. signed the form, & the amendment was formally made on Aug. 26:—Held: the specification must be treated as having been amended on June 9; the Comptroller was not, under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 18 (10), precluded, by reason of the pendency of the action, from formally completing the amendment; & the amended specification was admissible in evidence in the action.—ANDREW v. CROSSLEY, CROSSLEY v. ANDREW, [1892] 1 Ch. 492; 61 L. J. Ch. 437; 66 L. T. 571; 40 W. R. 586; 8 T. L. R. 344; 36 Sol. Jo. 291; 9 R. P. C. 165, C. A.

Annotations:—Consd. Stepney Spare Motor Wheel Co. v. Hall, [1911] 1 Ch. 514. Refd. Woolfe v. Automatic Picture Gallery (1902), 46 Sol. Jo. 633.

H. Costs.

1330. Costs of appeals—From refusal to allow amendment.]—Re MORGAN, No. 1219, ante.

1331. —— Second appeal—First appeal withdrawn.]—Re CHANDLER'S PATENT (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 270.

1332. ——.]—Re HADDAN'S PATENT, No. 725, ante.

1333. Costs of proceedings to amend—Jurisdiction of law officer.]—A law officer of the Crown refusing leave to enter a disclaimer of part of the specification of a patent, under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 1, has no jurisdiction to order appct. to pay costs.—KYNOCH v. NATIONAL ARMS CO., LTD. (1877), 37 L. T. 31; 26 W. R. 22, C. A.

1334. —— ——.]—Re PIETSCHMANN'S PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 314.

1335. —— Second disclaimer.]—Re HADDAN'S PATENT, No. 725, ante.

1336. —— Proceedings caused by fault of patentee.]—Re ALLEN, No. 1247, ante.

1337. —— Comptroller's costs when appearing.]—Re KLABER & STEINBERG'S PATENT, No. 1196 ante.

Payment of costs as condition imposed on leave to amend.]—See Sub-sect. 2, E. (b) ii., ante.

Part VII.—Grant of Patent.

SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 12, 13, 14, 37, 44; Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 5, sched.; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 50, 51.

1338. Grant of two patents—Partial identity—Between existing & proposed patents.]—Where the law officer has reported that part of an invention for which a patent is sought is identical with part of an invention which is the subject of an existing patent, a second patent will not, except under special circumstances, be granted for that part, although the validity of the first patent is disputed.—Ex p. MANCEAUX (1870), 6 Ch. App. 272; 18 W. R. 1184, L. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Ex p. Sheffield (1872), 8 Ch. App. 237.

1339. —— Patent already granted to master—Priority of servant's provisional specification.]—Where a servant filed a provisional specification for an invention, after which the master filed a provisional specification for a similar invention, & subsequently filed a complete specification & obtained letters patent:—Held: under the circumstances, the Great Seal might be affixed to the latters patent for the servant's invention, & the letters patent might bear the date of his provisional specification.—Ex p. SCOTT & YOUNG (1871), 6 Ch. App. 274; 19 W. R. 425, L. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Saxby v. Hennett (1873), 28 L. T. 639.

1340. —— Of same date.]—Where rival appcts. had applied on the same day for patents, & had afterwards mutually agreed to withdraw opposition, letters patent, bearing date the day of application, were granted to one appct., although letters patent bearing that date had already been granted to the other.—Re GETHING (1874), 9 Ch. App. 633, L. C.

1341. —— To same applicant—For same invention.]—The Patents Acts do not appear to contemplate & provide for a situation such as has arisen in this case & I infer from the absence of provisions that it was not intended to allow one man to have two grants for the same invention. . . . To do so would lead to considerable public inconvenience & possibly to public damage (SIR THOMAS INSKIP, S.-G.).—Re DREYFUS' APPLICATIONS (1927), 44 R. P. C. 291.

1342. Grant of joint patent—Where not wholly invention of applicant.]—Re EADIE'S APPLICATION (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 279.

1343. Invention result of co-operation—Grant to one party—Prior application—Procedure for repeal.]—L. & W. were the inventors & patentees of certain machines, & were engaged in making experiments with them, when an accident happened, which suggested to both of them an improvement in the making of wheels. At the time of the accident neither expressed to the other any intention of acting upon what was so suggested, though they subsequently talked of an improvement, in furtherance of such suggestion. Two years afterwards L. applied for a patent, against the sealing of which W. entered a caveat:—Held: neither had a right to prevent the other from getting his patent sealed though the patent might be repealed by sci. fa.—Re LOWE'S PATENT (1856), 25 L. J. Ch. 454; 27 L. T. O. S. 49; 4 W. R. 429, L. C.

1344. Date of grant—Date of notice to proceed.]—In Mar. 1872, B. applied for letters patent for an invention for regulating heat. In Apr. C. applied for letters patent for an invention of a pyrometer. B. gave notice of his intention to proceed on May 21. Letters patent for C.'s invention were sealed on May 22, & on May 29 he entered a caveat against B. In Sept. B. presented a petition to have the Great Seal affixed to letters patent for his invention, & that they might bear date Mar. 30, 1872. That petition was now heard:—Held: the two inventions differed materially, although there was reasonable ground for supposing that B.'s specification covered part of C.'s invention; B. might have his letters patent bearing date May 21, the day when he gave notice to proceed.—Ex p. BAILEY (1872), 8 Ch. App. 60; 42 L. J. Ch. 264; 27 L. T. 430; 21 W. R. 31, L. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Kurtz v. Spence (1887), 58 L. T. 438.

1345. —— Date of application—Unaffected by prior sealing.]—Two patents for the same invention were applied for on July 20, & July 23, 1867, respectively. The patent applied for on July 23 was actually sealed before that applied for on July 20, but each patent was dated as of the day of application:—Held: under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 24, the patents took effect as upon the days on which they were applied for respectively, & therefore acts done by virtue of the patent applied for on July 22 were infringements of the patent applied for on July 20. —SAXBY v. HENNETT (1873), L. R. 8 Exch. 210; 42 L. J. Ex. 137; 28 L. T. 639; 22 W. R. 16.

1346. —— Date of patent—Not date of seal.]—By Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 25, it is enacted that where foreign letters patent are granted for a foreign invention before the grant of a patent for such invention in the United Kingdom, the rights under the English patent shall cease on the determination of the foreign patent. An English patent for a foreign invention was dated Sept. 17, but sealed on Dec. 17, & between the two dates a foreign patent was granted:—Held: the patent must be taken to have been

PART VII. SECT. 1.

a. Interpretation of grant.]—The granting of letters patent to inventors is not the creation of an unjust monopoly, nor the concession of a privilege by mere gratuitous favour, but it is a contract between the State & the discoverer, which, in favour of the latter, ought to receive a liberal interpretation.—BARTER v. SMITH (1877), 2 Exch. C. R. 455.—CAN.

b. Delivery of model—Time for—Whether before or after grant.]—35 Vict. c. 26 (D) does not require delivery of a model prior to the issue of a patent of invention.—R. v. SMITH (1885), 7 O. R. 440.—CAN.

c. Exclusive jurisdiction of Minister of Agriculture—To decide upon expiration of patent.]—TELEPHONE MANUFACTURING CO. OF TORONTO v. BELL TELEPHONE CO. OF CANADA (1886), 18 R. L. O. S. 463; 9 L. N. 27.—CAN.

d. Presumption of validity of subject-matter of patent.]—The issue of a patent of invention raises a presumption in favour of the patentee that the article is a valid subject-matter of a patent. The onus of proof is on the party who attacks the patent to establish the contrary.—ELECTRIC FIRE-PROOFING CO. v. ELECTRIC FIRE-PROOFING CO. OF CANADA (1907), Q. R. 31 S. C. 34.—CAN.

e. Whether Patent Act, 1923, retroactive.]—DANNER v. UNITED DRUG CO., [1924] Exch. C. R. 141.—CAN.

f. Application of Patents Act, 1870.]—Sect. 8 of the above Act requiring every invention protected by letters patent issued under the Act to be brought into actual & public use within the colony within the space of two years from the date of such letters patent, applies to an invention protected by letters of registration (issued under sect. 20 of the Act) of letters patent issued in some other country.—BRISCOE & CO. v. WASHBURN & MOEN MANUFACTURING CO. (1891), 10 N. Z. L. R. 85.—N.Z.

granted on Sept. 17, & therefore that sect. 25 was not applicable.—HOLSTE v. ROBERTSON (1876), 4 Ch. D. 9; 46 L. J. Ch. 1; 35 L. T. 457; 25 W. R. 35, C. A.

1347. Contemporaneous applications—Priority of patent first sealed.]—Ex p. DYER (1812), Holroyd on Patents, 59, n.

1348. Refusal to seal—Effect of.]—Unless a patent is clearly bad, the L. C. will not refuse to seal it, as the effect of such refusal, if erroneous, would be irremediable, whereas the sealing of a bad patent leaves everyone at liberty to dispute it. —Re SPENCE'S PATENT (1859), 3 De G. & J. 523; 32 L. T. O. S. 326; 7 W. R. 157; 44 E. R. 1370, L. C.

1349. Delay in sealing—Not caused by opposition —Or by appeal.]—Sealing of patent after the proper time had elapsed under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 20. Though the delay in sealing the patent was not caused by a caveat, or by an application to the Lord Chancellor within the terms of the provisions contained in Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 20, the Lord Chancellor considered that he might, in this case, order it to be sealed, special circumstances having brought it within them according to an equitable construction of the Act.—Re MACINTOSH'S PATENT (1856), 28 L. T. O. S. 280; 2 Jur. N. S. 1242; 5 W. R. 194, L. C.

1350. —— —— ——.]—Re NOVOCRETES, LTD., CASE, & GARROW'S APPLICATION, No. 709, ante.

1351. —— Applicant's carelessness.]—Re A. & B.'S APPLICATION (1896), 13 R. P. C. 63.

1352. —— Delay purposely caused—For ulterior object.]—Re A. B.'S APPLICATION (1902), 19 R. P. C. 556.

SECT. 2.—OPPOSITION TO GRANT.

SUB-SECT. 1.—WHO MAY OPPOSE.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11 (1); Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 4.

1353. Question for law officer.] — (1) The question whether a person who has, under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 11 (1), given notice of opposition to the grant of a patent on the ground that the alleged invention has been patented in this country on an application of prior date, may be heard before the Comptroller-General, is one to be decided ultimately by the law officer of the Crown.

(2) Where the Comptroller-General, after consulting the law officer, declined to hear such a person on the ground that he had no interest in the prior patent, the ct. refused to compel him by mandamus to do so.—R. v. COMPTROLLER-GENERAL OF PATENTS, [1899] 1 Q. B. 909; 68 L. J. Q. B. 568; 80 L. T. 777; 47 W. R. 567; 15 T. L. R. 310; 16 R. P. C. 233, C. A.

Annotations :—As to (1) Apld. R. v. Comptroller-General of Patents, Ex p. Muntz (1922), 38 T. L. R. 652. Generally, Refd. Re A. & B.'s Appln. (1910), 28 R. P. C. 454.

1354. Persons having interest—Member of the public.]—It seems to me to be perfectly clear from the Act that members of the public, as such, are not entitled to be heard in opposition before me. The Act expressly says that it must be the person giving notice, & being in the opinion of the law officer entitled to be heard in opposition, so that besides being a person who gives notice of opposition, you must also be a person who for some reason or other comes within the class of those persons entitled to be heard. It appears to me that by sect. 11 it is quite clear that the only class of persons who are entitled to be heard in opposition before the law officer are persons who are interested with a legitimate & real interest in the prior patent upon which an application is opposed, or persons who while they have not patented the invention have yet been the originators of it, from whom the person seeking the patent has obtained it. Therefore, I am sorry I must debar myself from hearing you on the substance of this application, by holding you are not a person entitled to be heard (CLARKE, S.-G.). —Re HEATH & FROST'S PATENT (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 288.

Annotations :—Apld. Re Hookham (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 32. Consd. Re Bell (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 10. Foll'd. Re Bairstow's Patent (1888), 5 R. P. C. 286. Apld. Re Stewart's Appln. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 627. Consd. R. v. Comptroller-General of Patents, Ex p. Tomlinson (1899), 68 L. J. Q. B. 568.

1355. —— ——.]—Re BELL (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887) 10.

Annotation :—Refd. R. v. Comptroller-General of Patents, Ex p. Tomlinson (1899), 16 R. P. C. 233.

1356. —— ——.]—I should not allow any person who merely comes forward as one of the public to claim to strike out certain paragraphs of a specification on the ground that it was included in a prior patent in which he had no interest (WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re HOOKHAM (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 32.

Annotations :—Apld. Re Stewart's Appln. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 627. Consd. R. v. Comptroller-General of Patents, Ex p. Tomlinson (1899), 68 L. J. Q. B. 568.

1357. —— In patent applied for—Or prior identical patent.]—R. v. COMPTROLLER-GENERAL OF PATENTS, No. 1353, ante.

1358. —— In prior patents.]—Re BELL, No. 1355, ante.

1359. —— —— Existing or lapsed.]—(1) Persons properly appearing before the Comptroller or the law officer to oppose may rely in support of their opposition upon specifications other than those in which they are interested.

(2) The persons entitled to be heard before the law officer, on appeal, in opposition to a grant, are the same as those entitled to be heard, on appeal, before the Comptroller.

(3) Prior patents on which an opposition is based may be subsisting, or may have lapsed or expired.

(4) Person entitled to appear & oppose must have, or have had, an interest in patents existing or lapsed.—Re STEWART'S APPLICATION (1896), 13 R. P. C. 627.

Annotations :—As to (1) Consd. Ruling of the Comptroller-General, 1911 (B) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. iii. As to (4) Consd. R. v. Comptroller-General of Patents, [1899] 1 Q. B. 909.

1360. —— Person intending to work expired patent.]—Opposition to sealing on the grounds (a) that the invention had been obtained from the opponent, & (b) that the invention had been patented on application of prior date.—Re BAIRSTOW'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 286.

Annotation :—Refd. Ruling by the Comptroller-General, 1911 (B) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. iii.

g. Effect of decision of Supreme Court.]—A decision by the Supreme Ct., on appeal from the Registrar of Patents, under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1889, s. 16, that the atent applied for ought to be granted, has the same effect only as a similar decision by the Registrar unappealed against, i.e. it amounts only to a decision that a sufficient primâ facie case has been made out for sealing the grant, & leaves appct. in a position of having to litigate the validity of the grant against all comers, including the person who has under sect. 16 opposed the application.—Re CAMPBELL'S APPLICATION (1891), 10 N. Z. L. R. 197.—N.Z.

1361. —— Prior complete specification accepted.]—Re L'OISEAU & PIERRARD (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 36.

Annotations :—Apld. Re Main's Patent (1888), 7 R. P. C. 13. Refd. Ruling by the Comptroller-General, 1912 (A) (1912), 29 R. P. C. App. i.

1362. —— Manufacturing interest — Within specification.]—Held : the opponents had established such a manufacturing interest that they were entitled to oppose under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11 (1) (b). Locus standi to oppose a grant must be allowed to any one who gives proof of the bonâ fide manufacture of an article or carrying on of a process which primâ facie appears to come within the claims of the specification.—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1911 (B) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. iii.

Annotation :—Refd. Notes of Rulings by the Comptroller-General, 1912 (B) (1912), 29 R. P. C. App. v.

1363. —— ——.]—Opposition to sealing of patent on the ground of the invention being comprised in prior patents by a person having no interest in such patents, but who had manufactured under one of them :—Held : such person was not entitled to oppose.—Re MACEVOY'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 285.

Annotation :—Consd. Ruling by the Comptroller-General, 1911 (B) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. iii.

1364. —— Trading interest—Real, definite, & substantial.]—A trading interest is sufficient to allow an opponent to be heard in opposition, provided the interest is real, definite & substantial. The question as to whether there is a real, definite & substantial interest must be decided on the facts of each case.—Re WHEELER'S APPLICATION (1925), 42 R. P. C. 509.

1365. —— Existing interest prejudicially affected.]—M. applied for a patent, the grant of which was opposed by T. on the ground that the alleged invention had been patented in this country on two applications of prior date—viz., one in 1879 & the other in 1897. T. had no legal or beneficial interest in the patents which were granted upon such applications. The Comptroller required evidence as to the facts, & it appeared that T. began to work under one of the prior patents, but being unable to continue without a license he stopped working, and under a search discovered the patent of 1879. He desired in his opposition to set up the contention that the invention, the subject of the present application, was identical with that described in the patents of 1879 & 1897. The Comptroller decided that the opponent had no right to be heard in opposition to the grant. On appeal, the Law Officer held that on the evidence the opponent was entitled to be heard A bonâ fide attempt to carry out the invention sought to be protected by a person who desires to oppose a patent, & proof that he may be damnified by the application which he desires to oppose, entitles such person to oppose the grant.—Re MEYER'S APPLICATION (1899), 16 R. P. C. 526.

Annotation :—Apld. Ruling by the Comptroller-General, 1911 (B) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. iii.

1366. —— ——.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1912 (B) (1912), 29 R. P. C. App. v.

Annotation :—Refd. Notes of Rulings by the Comptroller-General, 1912 (C) (1912), 29 R. P. C. App. vii.

1367. —— ——.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1912 (C) (1912), 29 R. P. C. App. vii.

1368. —— Possessor of article for which patent claimed.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1913 (B) (1913), 30 R. P. C. App. iii.

1369. —— ——.]—On an opposition to the grant of a patent on grounds (b) & (c) of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11 (1), the Comptroller-General, following the broad principle laid down in Rulings 1912 (B) & 1912 (C) that any person, who is bonâ fide & honestly in possession of an article which may reasonably be held to fall within the scope or claims of the specification of the patent applied for, has a sufficient interest to oppose the grant of the patent, held that as in this case there was no reason for doubting that the opponent had become possessed of such an article in the ordinary course of business, he had a sufficient interest to be heard in opposition to the grant :—Held : although the interest which an opponent must show in order to bring himself within the class of persons qualified to oppose under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11, is not confined to what is called a manufacturing interest, the interest must be a real, definite, & substantial interest, & must not arise from something the opponent proposes to do. The mere fact that a man is in possession of a particular article said to be covered by the patent applied for is insufficient.—Re NEW THINGS, LTD.'S APPLICATION (1913), 31 R. P. C. 45.

1370. Purchaser of prior patent—Though patent expired.]—Re GLOSSOP'S PATENT, No. 1493, post.

1371. Prior applicant in United Kingdom.]—I am of opinion that the only persons who can oppose under these words patented, etc., are persons who have made an application in the United Kingdom of prior date to the date of appct.'s patent. It is said that that will not give full effect to sect. 103, & that the date of the French application must also be taken as being the date of the application in England for the purposes of all proceedings under the English patent law (WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re EVERITT (1888), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 28.

1372. ——.]—Appcts. for a patent under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 103, sought to oppose, under sect. 11 of the Act, on the ground of prior patenting, an application for another patent made in this country at a date earlier than their application in this country, but later than the date claimed by them for their patent under sect. 103. The Chief Examiner, acting for the Comptroller-General, decided that the Act restricts opposition on the ground of prior patenting to an application in this country of prior date, held that the opponents had no locus standi to oppose, & dismissed the opposition :—Held : the application of prior date on which an opposition can be grounded means an application in this country.—Re JOHNSON'S APPLICATION (1907), 24 R. P. C. 694.

1373. ——.]—On opposition, under sect. 11 of the Patents, etc. Acts of 1883–1902, to the grant of a patent on the grounds that the invention had been obtained from the opponent in Germany, & was the subject-matter of applications of the opponent which, although made after the date of appct.'s application, were entitled under the International Convention to prior dates, the opposition was dismissed by Chief Examiner, acting for the Comptroller, on the ground that the opponent had no locus standi, & a patent was directed to be sealed. The opponent appealed from this decision so far as regards the first ground of opposition :—Held : the Chief Examiner's decision was right.—Re MEURS-GERKIN'S APPLICATION (1910), 27 R. P. C. 565.

Annotation :—Apld. Ruling by the Controller-General, 1912 (A) (1912), 29 R. P. C. App. i.

1374. Subsequent applicant for patent—Invention not included in provisional specification.]—

Sect. 2.—Opposition to grant: Sub-sects. 1 & 2, A. (a) & (b), & B. (a).]

Re ANDERSON & ANDERSON'S PATENT, No. 1475, post.

1375. —— In respect to same subject-matter.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1912 (C), No. 1367, ante.

1376. Legal representative—Assignee of prior patents.]—Opposition to sealing of patent by assignee of prior patents with benefit of improvements. Suggestion that the application included improvements of the inventions in the prior patents made by the prior patentee & communicated by him to appct. in fraud of his assignees. Opponents held not to be the legal representatives. —Re SPIEL'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 281.

Annotations:—Consd. Re Gascoigne's Appln. (1909), 27 R. P. C. 78. Refd. Re McNeil & Pearson Fire Alarm's Appln. (1907), 24 R. P. C. 680.

1377. —— Person having power of attorney.]—Re EDMUNDS' PATENT, No. 70, ante.

SUB-SECT. 2.—GROUNDS OF OPPOSITION.

A. Invention Obtained from Opponent.

(a) In General.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11 (1) (a).

1378. Whether good ground of opposition—General rule.]—Re LOTT'S APPLICATION (1853), cited Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. XXII. at p. 175.

1379. —— ——.]—Re MACFARLANE'S APPLICATION (1883), cited Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. XXII. at p. 175.

1380. —— ——.]—Re MARSHALL'S APPLICATION (1888), 5 R. P. C. 661.

1381. ——.]—Re GRIFFIN'S APPLICATION (1888), 6 R. P. C. 296.

1382. —— Different method.]—Re ANDERTON (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 25.

1383. —— Invention arrived at independently.]—Re ANDERSON & ANDERSON'S PATENT, No. 1475, post.

1384. What amounts to obtaining.]—I read those words ["obtained the invention" in Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1853 (c. 57), s. 11 (1)] to mean "obtained the invention which is purported to be patented," meaning thereby to refer to the identity of the invention, not the right of the person from whom it was obtained to be regarded as the first & true inventor (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re THWAITE'S APPLICATION (1892), 9 R. P. C. 515.

1385. ——.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1910 (A) (1910), 27 R. P. C. App. i.

1386. ——.]—COMMERCIAL SOLVENTS CORPN. v. SYNTHETIC PRODUCTS CO., LTD. (1926), 43 R. P. C. 185.

1387. Addition to opponent's patent.] — Re PATERSON'S PATENTS, Re DUNDON'S PATENT (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 295.

1388. ——.]—Re DUNDON'S PATENT (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 278.

1389. Patent obtained by fraud—Fraud outside United Kingdom.]—Re HIGGINS' PATENT (1891), 9 R. P. C. 74.

1390. —— ——.]—Opposition to grant of patent for improvements in electric fire alarms & thermo-indicators on the grounds (a) that appcts. obtained the invention from the opponent, & (b) prior patenting of the invention. The Chief Examiner, acting for the Comptroller-General, decided to seal a patent. He held that he had no jurisdiction to enter into allegations of fraud abroad, & that the invention claimed by appcts. had not been patented on the prior application relied on by the opponent. The opponent appealed. The law officer affirmed the decision of the Chief Examiner on both grounds, & dismissed the appeal with costs.—Re MCNEIL & PEARSON FIRE ALARM, LTD.'S APPLICATION (1907), 24 R. P. C. 680.

1391. Incidental claim to opponent's patent—In applicant's specification—Order to erase or amend.]—Incidental reference by appct. in his specification to an invention of opponents, & untrue statement that it was his own. Contention by appct. that as that invention was not claimed by him, the opponents had no locus standi. The Comptroller-General refused to seal until the incorrect description & drawings were erased or amended. — Re HETHERINGTON'S APPLICATION (1890), 7 R. P. C. 419.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Wadham's Appln. (1909), 27 R. P. C. 172.

1392. Patent obtained abroad.] — Re LAKE'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 415.

1393. ——.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1912 (A) (1912), 29 R. P. C. App. i.

1394. Novelty of invention—Prior specification to be considered.]—Held: (1) where an invention has been obtained from an opponent the novelty of such invention must be considered in the light of prior specifications; (2) the remedy will differ according to the importance or novelty of the part communicated, & may take the form either of giving a share of the patent to the opponent, or of deleting the part obtained from him, or making a complete disclaimer of such portion; (3) in the case of prior public user an opponent can have no personal remedy & the Comptroller's jurisdiction must be limited, where necessary, to confining appct. to his special improvements by a disclaimer or omission of the parts publicly used; (4) in the present case the opponent had a primâ facie right to some protection as the combination disclosed by a design which he had submitted to appcts. at their request, was novel, & had been incorporated by appcts. into their specification; (5) the opponent was not disentitled to protection because a machine made according to his design had been sold by him to applicants, & used at their instance, for some time at the Bolton Sewage Works; (6) having regard to the special facts appcts. must be restricted to claiming in their specification only the improvements they had made on the opponent's machine.—Re ASHTON & KNOWLES' APPLICATION (1910), 27 R. P. C. 181.

1395. Prior sale to applicant—Of machine made according to opponent's design.]—Re ASHTON & KNOWLES' APPLICATION, No. 1394. ante.

1396. Prior publication admitted by applicant.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1912 (E) (1912), 29 R. P. C. App. xi.

(b) Remedies of Opponent.

1397. Share of patent.] — Re ASHTON & KNOWLES' APPLICATION, No. 1394, ante.

1398. Deletion of part obtained.]—Re ASHTON & KNOWLES' APPLICATION, No. 1394, ante.

1381 i. Whether good ground of opposition.]—DUNLOP v. COOPER (1908), 7 C. L. R. 146.—AUS.

1399. Disclaimer of part obtained.]—Re ASHTON & KNOWLES' APPLICATION, No. 1394, ante.

1400. Effect of prior public user.]—Re ASHTON & KNOWLES' APPLICATION, No. 1394, ante.

B. Prior Publication.

(a) Prior Specification.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c 29), s. 11, (1) (b); 1919 (c. 80), s. 4.

1401. Whether good ground of opposition—Only in clear cases.]—The simple question before me is, has Mr. McH. in his specification patented an invention similar to that which has been patented, in this country, on an application of prior date? Now, I have oftan expressed the opinion in my decisions that it is only in clear cases that the law officer is justified in interfering, so as to prevent letters patent from including a claim to an invention which is covered by an earlier specification; but in a clear case the law officer cannot avoid the responsibility of acting (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re MCHARDY'S PATENT (1891), 8 R. P. C. 431.

1402. —— Prior provisional specification.]—Re BAILEY'S PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 269.

1403. —— —— Where invention not described.]—Where the provisional specification of the prior patent does not describe the invention it might be unjust to appct. to refuse the grant. Dates of filing provisional & complete specifications to be carefully considered.—Re BARTLETT'S APPLICATION (1892), 9 R. P. C. 511.

1404. —— Prior patent granted—Though patent expired.]—It makes no difference whether the patent has expired or not. The Act allows an application for a patent to be opposed on the ground that the invention has been previously patented (SIR JOHN GORST, S.-G.).—Re LANCASTER'S PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 293.

Annotations:—Refd. Re Stewart's Appln. (1806), 13 R. P. C. 627; Notes of Rulings by the Comptroller-General, 1911 (B) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. iii.

1405. —— —— ——.]—Re STEWART'S APPLICATION, No. 1359, ante.

1406. —— —— Though all parts of applicant's invention not included.]—The opponents' provisional was first in order of time, & therefore they were entitled to have their patent sealed as of the earlier date. It is said that the opponents have included in their complete [specification] subject-matter which was not in their provisional. If that is so, that is an objection to the validity of the opponents' patent, which will be available to appct. or to anybody else in the event of any proceedings being taken; but it is wholly impossible for me on the present application to alter, deal with, or interfere with the specification of the opponents' patent, as allowed. It may be a misfortune, but appct. is unfortunately in the position in which other appcts. have been. It may be that appct. will thereby lose the benefit of protection for something which he invented. That is a matter which I say again I cannot deal with. I can only deal with the application before me. Now, under sect. 11, if an application for a patent is opposed on the ground that the invention has been patented in this country on an application of prior date, the opposition to that extent will be successful if proved. It is not denied that the opponents' patent does not include the parts of appct.'s invention objected to. In fact his very fair argument before me is that the appeal is grounded not so much upon the reasons that those parts are not included by the opponents' patent, but that if the opponents' patent stands with its present specification appct. will not be able to get a patent for those particular parts. As I have said already, that may be a misfortune which has fallen upon him, but I cannot deal with it (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re GREEN'S PATENT (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 286.

1407. —— —— Where question of scientific anticipation.]—Re LAKE'S PATENT, No. 1452, post.

1408. —— ——.]—(1) Opposition to the grant of a patent on the ground that the invention had been patented upon applications of prior date. The Comptroller-General held that none of the claims could be allowed in their existing form, but permitted an amendment of one of them to more precisely define the invention, & then, subject to the insertion of a disclaimer, decided to seal a patent on the application:—Held: the Comptroller-General's decision be reversed & a patent be refused.

(2) A patent cannot be allowed for something absolutely different from what is described in the provisional specification.—Re LANCASTER'S APPLICATION (1902), 20 R. P. C. 366.

1409. —— Inventions identical.]—Re STUBBS' PATENT, No. 1512, post.

1410. —— Inventions substantially the same—Slight difference.]—Re CUMMING'S PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 277.

1411. —— ——.]—Where the law officer is forced to the conclusion that there is no substantial difference between the invention or combination described in appct.'s specification & an earlier specification, it has not only been the practice but it is the duty of the law officer to refuse the patent (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re TODD'S APPLICATION (1892), 9 R. P. C. 487.

1412. —— —— Mechanical equivalent.]—The only question before me is whether the matter which appct. brings forward as the subject of a patent is covered by the previous patent. In my opinion it is. It appears to me that the advantage of this joint is, to say the least of it, problematical, & I think it really is a mechanical equivalent, & is therefore covered by the words of the previous patent (SIR R. B. FINLAY, S.-G.).—Re WHITTAKER'S APPLICATION (1896), 13 R. P. C. 580.

1413. —— —— Mere lack of novelty not sufficient.]—It is not sufficient in order to stop a subsequent patent for an explosive that the range of proportions in a previous specification should be large enough to include what is sought to be patented. The main consideration for a patent is the information given to the public of the advantages possessed by the invention. A patent cannot be stopped merely on the ground that the PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.—B. (a).

1402 i. Whether good ground of opposition—Prior provisional specification.]—MOORE & HESKETH v. PHILLIPS (1907), 4 C. L. R. 1411.—AUS.

1402 ii. —— ——.]—INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER CO. OF AMERICA v. PEACOCK (1908), 25 R. P. C. 765.—AUS.

1402 iii. —— ——.]—BARTER v. HOWLAND (1878), 26 Gr. 135.—CAN.

1402 iv. —— ——.]—A former patent, while in force, operates as a bar to the application for a new patent, & the only remedy open to appct., if he is in a position to invoke it, is to apply for a re-issue of the former patent.—Re LEONARD'S PATENT (1913), 13 E. L. R. 280; 14 D. L. R. 364; 14 Exch. C. R. 351; 49 C. L. J. N. S. 752.—CAN.

1402 v. —— ——.]—PERMUTIT CO. v. BORROWMAN (1926), 43 R. P. C. 356.—CAN.

h. —— User in America before patentee's invention.]—WRIGHT v. BRAKE SERVICE, LTD., [1926] 3 D. L. R. 502; [1926] S. C. R. 434.—CAN.

Sect. 2.—Opposition to grant: Sub-sect. 2, B. (a), (b) & (c) i.]

invention is not new.—Re NAHNSEN'S APPLICATION (1900), 17 R. P. C. 203.

Annotation :—Refd. Notes of Rulings by the Comptroller-General, 1911 (B) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. iii.

1414. —— ——.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1912 (D) (1912), 29 R. P. C. App. ix.

1415. —— Claim inviting public to infringe prior patent.]—Re WEBSTER'S PATENT (1888), 6 R. P. C. 163.

1416. —— Invention covered by combination of different specifications.]—Where an opposition on the ground that the invention has been previously patented is supported by combining & piecing together claims in different specifications, a very clear case will be required to be made to stop the grant.—Re ROSS' PATENT (1891), 8 R. P. C. 477.

1417. —— ——.]—B. applied for a patent for a movable partition for schoolrooms, etc. The grant was opposed by W. The Comptroller held that the invention consisted of a combination of parts, all of which, taken separately, had been previously patented by the opponent & by others. He decided to seal a patent subject to amendment of the specification & claims. On appeal, the law officer held that there was no invention in putting the parts together in a combination where they were each only applied to what had been their original object.—Re BRIDGE'S APPLICATION (1901), 18 R. P. C. 257.

Annotations :—Distd. Re Fried-Krupp Akt. Germaniawerft's Appln. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 809. Refd. Notes of Rulings by the Comptroller-General, 1911 (A) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. i.

1418. —— ——.]—K. applied for a patent for improvements in ships or other vessels for carrying loose cargoes. The grant was opposed by M. on the ground that the invention had been patented on certain prior applications. The Comptroller held that as the subject-matter was of some magnitude there might be an invention of great practical value in combining known elements in the manner suggested. He decided to seal a patent, subject to the insertion of certain specific references or to amendment of the specification & claim.—Re FRIED KRUPP AKT. GERMANIAWERFT'S APPLICATION (1908), 25 R. P. C. 809.

1419. —— Invention covered by prior specification—No special advantage shown.]—Held : the patent should be refused, as no invention was shown in appcts.' process, for all they had done was to take one of many salts of chromium & one of many salts of iron from those covered by the opponent's specification, & no particular advantage was shown.—Re WYLIE & MORTON'S APPLICATION (1896), 13 R. P. C. 97.

Annotation :—Apld. Re Deutsche Gasglühlicht Akt. Appln. (1908), 26 R. P. C. 101.

1420. —— —— Selection of element.]—Opposition to the grant of a patent on the ground that the invention had been patented in this country on an application of prior date ; the Chief Examiner, acting for the Comptroller-General, allowed the grant. On appeal the grant was refused on the ground that the alleged invention was merely the selection of the better of two known elements for carrying out a process.—Re DEUTSCHE GASGLÜHLICHT AKT.'S APPLICATION (1908), 26 R. P. C. 101.

Annotation :—Expld. Re Bosch's Appln. (1909), 26 R. P. C. 710.

1421. —— Improvement on prior patent—Validity of prior patent immaterial.]—Re THORNBOROUGH & WILKS' PATENT, No. 1462, post.

1422. —— ——.]—The Chief Examiner, acting for the Comptroller-General, decided to seal a patent on the application, with certain amendments in the specification, including an extension of a disclaiming clause. The opponents appealed : —Held : the Chief Examiner's decision be varied by striking out some of the claims. Where the invention is an improvement on previously patented inventions general words, which may in any sense be taken to include anything that has been previously patented, are not to be used in the claims.—Re HAMILTON, HAMILTON & HAMILTON'S APPLICATION (1901), 19 R. P. C. 33.

1423. —— ——.]—Opposition to grant of a patent for " improvements in double walled vessels with a space for a vacuum between the walls " on the ground that the invention had been patented on applications of prior date. The Comptroller-General decided in favour of the grant subject to amendment :—Held : there was no patentable invention in reducing a number of supports to a single support in a vacuum insulated vessel & the patent should be refused.—Re VAN WYE'S APPLICATION (1909), 26 R. P. C. 490.

Annotation :—Refd. Notes of Rulings by the Comptroller-General, 1911 (A) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. i.

1424. —— Invention partially claimed in prior specification.]—Re WADHAM'S APPLICATION, No. 1488, post.

1425. Identity of specifications—Question for law officer.]—Where the sealing of a patent is objected to on the ground that the invention is a colourable imitation of one which is the subject of an existing patent, a reference will be made to the law officer whether, having regard to the prior patent, the seal ought to be affixed to the patent as applied for.—Ex p. YATES (1869), 5 Ch. App. 1 ; sub nom. Re YATES' PATENT, 18 W. R. 1, L. C.

Annotations :—Folld. Ex p. Manceaux (1870), 5 Ch. App. 518. Refd. Saxby v. Hennett (1873), 28 L. T. 639.

1426. —— ——.]—Re WALLIS & RATCLIFF'S APPLICATION (1888), 5 R. P. C. 347.

1427. What must be considered—Words of claim.]—Now it is a rule long established & of obvious justice & importance that only that is patented which the inventor claims. Sect. 5 of the Act requires that a complete [specification] shall end with a distinct statement of the invention claimed. Now on referring to Von Welsbach's complete I find he claims (the S.-G. read the claim). I am not at liberty to speculate as to the reason of these words being chosen. They may have been used inadvertently & it may have been intended to patent the gas appliance in its fullest sense, that is to say, the mode by which the cap is supported as well as the cap itself. But the words are there : I have no power to amend them or to give them anything but their plain & direct meaning, & I must therefore hold that the invention claimed by Von Buch had not been patented by Von Welsbach & I direct the patent to be sealed (SIR EDWARD CLARKE, S.-G.).—Re VON BUCH (1888), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 40.

1428. —— Dates of provisional & complete specifications.]—Re BARTLETT'S APPLICATION, No. 1403, ante.

1429. Application by foreign patentee—Right to prior date.]—Appct. alleged his right to have his application antedated under the International Convention. Opponent denied that appct. had such a right, because appct.'s foreign application was made before the country in which it was made had come under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 103 :—Held : appct. had a right to the prior date.—Re MAIN'S PATENT (1888), 7 R. P. C. 13.

1430. —— —— Invention obtained from applicant abroad.]—Opposition on the ground of a prior claim in the specification of a patent antedated under the International Convention. Allegation that the opponent obtained the invention from appct. abroad, & that in the foreign Patent Office it was held that appct., & not the opponent, was entitled to priority of date. The Comptroller-General decided to grant a patent with a statutory reference to the specification of the opponent's patent. Form of Order to be made under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11, where on an opposition a case of prior patenting is established. —Re HALSEY'S APPLICATION (1913), 31 R. P. C. 101.

1431. Duty of tribunal—To see opponent's specification not covered.]—Re CURTIS & ANDRE'S PATENT (1892), 9 R. P. C. 495.

1432. What specifications may be relied on—Interest of opponent not necessary.]—Re STEWART'S APPLICATION, No. 1359, ante.

1433. What evidence must be adduced by opponent—Single affidavit not sufficient.]—In a case where there was but one affidavit distinctly swearing to public use & sale of an alleged invention prior to the date of the application for a patent, the Great Seal was ordered to be affixed to the patent.—Re TOLHAUSEN'S PATENT (1866), 14 W. R. 551, C. A.

1434. —— State of knowledge.]—(1) At the hearing of an opposition to the grant of a patent on the ground that the invention had been patented on an application of prior date, the Chief Examiner ordered the insertion of a general disclaiming clause. The opponent appealed:—Held: the Chief Examiner's decision should be affirmed.

(2) An opponent to a grant who desires his patent to be construed as being a master patent & for a pioneer invention, must bring the state of knowledge before the Comptroller by evidence. —Re SOUTHWELL & HEAD'S APPLICATION (1899), 16 R. P. C. 361.

1435. Form of order.]—Re HALSEY'S APPLICATION, No. 1430, ante.

(b) Document making Invention Available to Public.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11 (1) (b), & 1919 (c. 80), s. 4.

1436. What constitutes.]—A document which in the ordinary sense of patent law has been published has been made available to the public if it reaches some party in a non-confidential manner in the ordinary course of business, as in this case (SIR HENRY SLESSER, S.-G.).—Re UNDERFEED STOKER CO., LTD. & ROBEY'S APPLICATION (1924), 41 R. P. C. 622.

1437. ——.]—Opposition to the grant of a patent on the ground of Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), & 1919 (c. 80), s. 11 (1) (b):—Held: "made available to the public" means something more than mere publication in the strictly legal sense, even if the publication is unaccompanied by any bond of secrecy either expressed or implied. —Re WEIR (G. & J.), LTD.'S APPLICATION (1925), 43 R. P. C. 39.

1438. ——.]—Re WOOD (E. D.) & CO. (PRINTERS), LTD.'S APPLICATION (1926), 43 R. P. C. 377.

1439. ——.]—Opposition to the grant on ground (b) of sect. 11 (1) of Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 & 1919, plant embodying the invention was exhibited publicly by appcts. & a descriptive pamphlet was distributed to the public prior to the application. The invention was also described & illustrated in a trade journal. An application for a patent was made by the contractors who built the plant, prior to its exhibition & unknown to the applicants. Grant refused despite argument that having regard to sect. 15 (1) the patent, if granted, might possibly be valid. Appeal dismissed with costs.—Re DICKINSON'S APPLICATION (1926), 44 R. P. C. 79.

1440. ——.]—I feel bound to hold that the invention was made available to the public by publication in the tracings sent to Mr. P., with which the blue print above mentioned was identical. The very purpose for which the tracing was sent was to spread the knowledge of the new device of a protection bolt, & incidentally, as I have decided, of the present invention, in those circles whose interest & duty it was to become acquainted with it. Obviously the expression "the public" does not require the inclusion of the whole world. I have therefore come to the conclusion that the words of sect. 11 (i) (b) [of Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 & 1919] are satisfied by the facts in this case (SIR THOMAS INSKIP, S.-G.).—Re MOONEY'S APPLICATION (1927), 44 R. P. C. 294.

(c) Remedies of Opponent.

i. Disclaimer.

1441. Principles governing insertion.] — The principles upon which the law officers have acted now for some years in allowing disclaiming clauses, are (a) if it appears that upon the invention claimed by the prior patentee there will be a repetition of the claim to the earlier invention in the later specification; & (b) if it is clear that the public would be misled by the later specification without disclaimer.—Re STELL'S PATENT (1891), 8 R. P. C. 235.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Brockie's Applns. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 813.

1442. When ordered to be inserted—General rule.]—Patent sealed where opponents' & appcts.' patents were nearly identical on a disclaiming clause being inserted in specification.—Re WELCH'S PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 300.

1443. —— ——.]—Opposition to sealing on the ground that the invention had been previously patented:—Held: a certain disclaiming reference to previous patents should be inserted.—Re GOZNEY'S APPLICATION (1888), 5 R. P. C. 597.

1444. —— ——.]—Re SIELAFF'S APPLICATION (1888), 5 R. P. C. 484.

1445. —— ——.]—Re AIREY'S APPLICATION (1888), 5 R. P. C. 348.

1446. —— ——.]—Re WELCH'S PATENT (1889), 8 R. P. C. 442.

1447. —— ——.]—Re BRAND'S APPLICATION (1894), 12 R. P. C. 102.

1448. —— ——.]—The Comptroller decided to seal a patent, but required the insertion of a general disclaimer in appct.'s specification. The law officer, on appeal, ordered the addition to the general disclaimer of a specific reference to one of the patents cited in opposition.—Re ADAM'S APPLICATION (1896), 13 R. P. C. 548.

1449. —— ——.]—Re SOUTHWELL & HEAD'S APPLICATION, No. 1434, ante.

1450. —— Slight variation in claims.] — Re LYNDE'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 663.

1451. —— ——.]—Re TATTERSALL'S PATENT (1891), 9 R. P. C. 150.

1452. —— Question of scientific anticipation.]—A patent will not be stopped where there is a strongly controverted question of scientific anticipation. Opposition to grant on the ground that the invention had been previously patented:—Held: a patent be sealed subject to the insertion of a disclaimer.—Re LAKE'S PATENT (1889), 6 R. P. C. 548.

Sect. 2.—Opposition to grant: Sub-sect. 2, B. (c) i. & ii., C. & D.: sub-sect. 3.]

1453. —— Where no subject matter remaining.]—Opposition to grant of patent on the ground that the invention had been patented on prior application :—Held : a patent be refused, as, after eliminating matters already in use, nothing remained which could form the subject of a patent. 's APPLICATION (1895), 12 R. P. C. 136.

Annotation :—Refd. Rulings by the Comptroller-General, 1911 (A) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. i.

1454. —— Opponent's invention included in description but not in claim.]—Opposition to grant of a patent on ground of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11 (1) (b). It was alleged that the opponent's invention was included in the description of the appcts.' invention though not in the claims :—Held : (1) the Comptroller has jurisdiction to require at any stage when the case comes before him any amendment of a specification which he considers necessary to prevent ambiguity ; (2) in the present case certain verbal obscurities in the statement of the invention & the claims must be removed by amendment ; (3) a specification which includes irrelevant matter does not contain a "fair" description of the invention ; (4) in the present case a disclaimer must be inserted in the specification of such parts of the description as were not relevant to the claims. Semble : alterations amounting to a recasting or rewriting of a specification should not be ordered by the Comptroller.—Re FRANCIS' APPLICATION (1909), 27 R. P. C. 86.

1455. Sufficiency of disclaimer.]—Re KILNER'S PATENT (1889), 8 R. P. C. 35.

1456. Form of disclaimer—Where other prior specifications.]—Re WELCH'S PATENT, No. 1442, ante.

ii. Specific Reference to Prior Patent.

1457. Principle governing insertion.]—Re HOPKINS' PATENT (1909), 27 R. P. C. 72.

1458. When ordered to be inserted—Where substantial difference.]—Re ANDERSON & MCKINNEL (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1888), 23.

When necessary for protection of public.]—I am always unwilling to insert a special reference unless there are such strong grounds for it that I think it is right that the public should be protected by their attention being called specifically to the named patents (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re KILNER'S PATENT (1889), 8 R. P. C. 35.

1460. ——.]—Opposition to grant of patent on the ground that the invention had been patented on an application of prior date. The Chief Examiner decided to seal the patent provided a reference to the opponent's patent were inserted in appct.'s specification.—Re BOULT'S APPLICATION (1893), 10 R. P. C. 275.

1461. ——.]—Opposition to grant of patent on the ground that the invention had been patented on an application of prior date. The Chief Examiner decided to seal the patent provided a reference to the opponent's patent were inserted in appct.'s specification.—Re MAXIM & SILVERMAN'S APPLICATION (1894), 11 R. P. C. 314.

Though former patent invalidated.]—(1) Opposition to grant of patent on the ground that the invention had been patented in this country on an application of prior date. The Comptroller-General was of opinion that the invention had not been patented as alleged ; but that, in the interests of the public, a general disclaimer should be inserted in appcts.' specification : —Held : a reference to the opponents' patent should be inserted in appcts.' specification.

(2) When a subsequent patent is opposed on the ground that a prior patent covers the whole or part of the invention which such subsequent patent is applied for, it is immaterial whether the prior patent is good or bad.—Re THORNBOROUGH & WILKS' PATENT (1896), 13 R. P. C. 115.

Annotations :—Consd. Rulings by the Comptroller-General, 1911 (C) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. viii ; Re Barraclough's Appln. (1920), 37 R. P. C. 105.

1463. —— When application might otherwise be refused.]—Re MARSDEN'S PATENT (1896), 14 R. P. C. 174.

Annotation :—Consd. Re Brockie's Applns. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 813.

1464. —— —— On refusal of applicant to insert.]—I was referred to the case of Marsden's Patent, No. 1463, ante. I think probably what it really does mean is this—that if the law officer is in such doubt that he would say to himself : I am not at all sure that I ought to allow the patent to go, but if I do allow it to go, I must direct the appct. to insert a specific reference, then if appct. refused to do so, the law officer might say : Well, upon the whole I will not allow this patent to go (SIR S. T. EVANS, S.-G.).—Re BROCKIE'S APPLICATIONS (1908), 25 R. P. C. 813.

1465. —— Not when different process.]—Opposition to the grant of letters patent for a process for producing sulphur dye stuffs on the ground of prior patenting of the invention. The Chief Examiner decided to seal a patent. He held that appct.'s process had not been patented by the patent on which the opponents' relied, & that, under the circumstances of the case, he would not be justified in requiring a reference to the opponents' patent.—Re MEYENBERG & CLAYTON ANILINE CO.'S APPLICATION (1905), 22 R. P. C. 353.

1466. ——.]—Re FRIED KRUPP AKT. GERMANIAWERFT'S APPLICATION, No. 1418, ante.

1467. —— Patent antedated under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 91.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1913 (C) (1913), 30 R. P. C. App. v.

1468. —— When absence would cause misunderstanding.]—Re WAKFER & PECK'S APPLICATION (1915), 32 R. P. C. 199.

1469. Effect of insertion.]—Re HOFFMAN'S PATENT (1890), 7 R. P. C. 92.

1470. Insertion in lieu of disclaimer.]—Opposition to grant on the ground that the patent invention had been patented on application of prior date. The Comptroller required the insertion of a clause disclaiming anything claimed in the prior patent. On appeal, the law officer decided that a reference to the existence of the prior patent should be inserted instead of the disclaimer.—Re VAN GELDER'S PATENT (1892), 9 R. P. C. 325.

1471. Insertion in addition to general disclaimer.]—Re ADAM'S APPLICATION, No. 1448, ante.

1472. Concurrent applications—Order to be conditional on grant of patent to earlier applicant.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1910 (G) (1910), 27 R. P. C. App. viii.

C. Insufficient Description in Complete Specification.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11 (1) (c).

1473. Specification confused & complicated—Amendment ordered—Where invention discernible.]

—If, in a specification of confused & complicated form, an invention that is sufficiently & fairly described can be discovered, the grant of a patent should not be refused simply because it is easy to see how much more clearly & how much more simply the invention might have been described.

The law officer allowed a patent to be granted, after amendment of the specification, by way of reference & omission of a certain passage.—Re SCHWARZKOPF'S APPLICATION (1914), 31 R. P. C. 437.

1474. Specification claiming several matters—References to provisional specifications of different dates—Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 16 (2).] —If it be necessary, as I think it is, to separate the various matters comprehended in the complete specification & relate them to the proper provisional specification &, if it is not possible to find any provisional specification which includes the element in the complete specification which is in question, I do not think it is possible to give any greater benefit to the opponent than he would have received if there had not been disconformity (SIR THOMAS INSKIP, S.-G.).—Re ROUND'S APPLICATION (1927), 44 R. P. C. 309.

D. Opponent's Invention Incorporated in Complete Specification.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907) (c. 29), s. 11 (1) (d).

1475. Whether ground for opposition.]—Opposition to grant on the grounds (a) that the complete specification describes & claims an invention other than that described in the provisional specification, & that such other invention forms the subject of an application filed by the opponents in the interval between the leaving of the provisional specification by appcts. & the leaving of the complete specification, (b) that the invention was obtained from opponents:—Held: (1) opponents had locus standi; (2) appcts. had arrived at the invention independently; (3) the complete specification did not exceed the provisional.—Re ANDERSON & ANDERSON'S PATENT (1890), 7 R. P. C. 323.

1476. ——.]—Opposition to grant on the ground that the complete specification described & claimed an invention other than that described in the provisional specification, & that such other invention formed the subject of an application made by the opponent in the interval between the leaving of the provisional & complete specifications:—Held: the opposition failed.—Re BIRT'S APPLICATION (1892), 9 R. P. C. 489.

1477. —— Development of prior specification.]—Opposition to grant on the ground that the complete specification described & claimed an invention other than that described in the provisional specification, & that such other invention formed the subject of an application made by the opponent in the interval between the leaving of the provisional specification & the leaving of the complete specification:—Held: the complete specification did not describe an invention other than that described in the provisional specification; 51 & 52 Vict. c. 50, makes no alteration in the law that appct. for a patent may develop his invention before lodging his complete specification.—Re EDWARDS' PATENT (1894), 11 R. P. C. 461.

1478. ——.]—Opposition to grant of patent on the ground that the complete specification describes or claims an invention other than that described in the provisional specification, & that such other invention forms the subject of an application made by the opponent, in the interval between the leaving of the provisional specification & the complete specification:—Held: the complete specification did not describe an invention other than that described in the provisional specification.—Re MILLAR'S & MILLER'S APPLICATION (1898), 15 R. P. C. 718.

1479. Remedy of opponent—Amendment of specification.]—Re WILSON'S APPLICATION (1892), 9 R. P. C. 512, n.

1480. Opponent's application made in interval—Meaning of—Specification filed under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 91.] — NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1913 (A) (1913), 30 R. P. C. App. i.

SUB-SECT. 3.—POWERS OF COMPTROLLER.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 73–75; 1919 (c. 80), s. 17; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 104–107, 110, 111, 114.

1481. Power to cross-examine witnesses.]—Re ANDERTON, No. 1382, ante.

1482. Power to direct examiner to report.]—Re PATERSON'S PATENTS, Re DUNDON'S PATENT, No. 1387, ante.

1483. Power to allow amendment.]—Re AIREY'S APPLICATION (1888), 5 R. P. C. 348.

1484. —— Of notice of opposition—Substitution of name of opponent—On death of party originally named.]—Re LAKE (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 35.

1485. —— —— Insertion of further specifications — After expiry of time limit.] — NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1910 (C) (1910), 27 R. P. C. App. ii.

1486. Power to refuse hearing.] — R. v. COMPTROLLER-GENERAL OF PATENTS, No. 1353, ante.

1487. Power to order amendment of specification —In public interest.]—Re FRIED KRUPP AKT. GERMANIAWERFT'S APPLICATION, No. 1418, ante.

1488. ——.]—Opposition to the grant of a patent on ground (b) of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11. The Comptroller considered that certain amendments of the specification were necessary. Appct. objected to the insertion of these amendments on the ground that they related to the descriptive part of the specification & did not affect the claims. The Comptroller refused to allow the grant of a patent unless the specification was amended.

In my view, therefore, provided that the opponent can show that the whole specification read together, description & claims, puts forward an invention which either wholly, partly, or in some definite way embodies or is dependent on, inventions claimed in prior specifications, he is entitled to ask for relief under this sub-sect. if his interests or the public interests are affected (COMPTROLLER-GENERAL).—Re WADHAM'S APPLICATION (1909), 27 R. P. C. 172.

1489. Power to consider prior specifications—Though not relied on by opponents.]—Patent

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.

1488 i. Power to order amendment of specification.]—GRIFFITH v. NEILSON (1911), 13 C. L. R. 131.—AUS.

k. Re-issue of patent—Jurisdiction of commissioner.]—To give the comr. jurisdiction to authorise the re-issue of a patent it is not necessary that the patent be defective or inoperative for some one of the reasons specified in Patent Act, s. 23. It is sufficient to support his jurisdiction that he deems the patent defective or inoperative for any such reasons, & his decision as to that is final & conclusive.—AUER INCANDESCENT LIGHT MANUFACTURING CO. v. O'BRIEN (1897), 5 Exch. C. R. 243.—CAN.

Sect. 2.—Opposition to grant: Sub-sects. 3, 4, 5 & 6.]

refused by Comptroller on the ground that the invention had been patented on another application of prior date to which his attention had been directed by the Examiner. Appeal by appcts. :—Held: the Comptroller's decision be affirmed.—Re HUGHES & KENNAUGH'S APPLICATION (1910), 27 R. P. C. 281.

——.]—See, further, Part VI., Sect. 7, sub-sect. 1, ante.

1490. Power to determine that invention obtained from opponent abroad—Application under international convention.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1912 (A), No. 1393, ante.

1491. Power to determine prior publication—Or prior user.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1912 (E), No. 1396, ante.

SUB-SECT. 4.—APPEAL TO LAW OFFICER.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 11 (3), 40; Patents Rules, 1920, Appendix.

1492. Regarded as rehearing.] — Re STUBBS' PATENT, No. 1512, post.

1493. Jurisdiction of law officer—To interfere with Comptroller's decision—Only in clear cases.]—In the present case the opponent purchased a prior patent which he says has anticipated the present invention, & he has been working under it, & he is a manufacturer who has been working machines in accordance with that patent. Although that patent has now become public property, I do not think that I ought to hold, whatever might be my view upon the first point, that he is a person not entitled to be heard. The question then comes whether the decision of the Comptroller ought to be affirmed. Now I own the case is to my mind by no means free from doubt. I think it is well open to argument, looking at the language at the earlier specification & seeing what must be included in the claim, that the present invention is an independent invention. But, at the same time, when the matter has been before the Comptroller & the Comptroller has allowed the grant, it is clear that, on an appeal of this description, the law officer ought not to interfere with the decision unless it is clearly established that the decision was wrong. I am not so clearly satisfied that the decision of the Comptroller was wrong as to justify me in reversing that decision & depriving appct. of his right to the patent. By leaving the decision standing I do not deprive the opponent entirely of his rights, because he will have a right of course to use all that he has used hitherto under the former patent, & if that be a mere mechanical equivalent, if the second patent be not a good one, he will be in no practical danger from the existence of the patent. I quite agree, that if the things were clearly the same, I ought on that ground to allow the second patent to proceed; but where the matter is in doubt & where the Comptroller has allowed the patent, I think I ought not to disallow the patent & reverse his decision unless the case is a perfectly clear one (HERSCHELL, S.-G.).—Re GLOSSOP'S PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 285.

Annotations:—Consd. Re Heath & Frost's Patent (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 288; R. v. Comptroller-General of Patents, [1899] 1 Q. B. 909. Refd. Re Hookham (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 32; Re Bell (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 10; Re Bairstow's Patent (1888), 5 R. P. C. 286; Re Stewart's Appln. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 627; Ruling by the Comptroller-General, 1911 (B) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. iii.

1494. —— —— —— Technical questions.]—I wish it to be understood that in cases of this character it is impossible for the law officer to approach the arguments which might be raised before a more expert tribunal in exactly the same way as such a tribunal would. I conceive [his] duties to be rather more limited; they are, to consider whether the Comptroller has made a mistake in interpreting or applying the law as contained in the Patents Acts. Where it can be demonstrated plainly to the law officer that the Comptroller has made a mistake on some technical matter, it is no doubt the duty of the law officer to express his own opinion; but it is not, I think, required of the law officer that he should undertake the decision of purely technical questions which are more fit to be considered by the Comptroller (SIR THOMAS INSKIP, S.-G.).—Re ZUCKER'S APPLICATION, Re TAKAHASHI'S APPLICATION (1927), 44 R. P. C. 257.

1495. —— To impose terms.]—Re L'OISEAU & PIERRARD (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 36.

Annotations:—Refd. Re Main's Patent (1888), 7 R. P. C. 13; Ruling by the Controller-General, 1912 (A) (1912), 29 R. P. C. App. i.

1496. —— To stop letters patent.]—I have the power of stopping the letters patent altogether . . . & I can let the letters patent go upon a specification, even if it is of a doubtful character (SIR EDWARD CLARKE, S.-G.).—Re LYNDE'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 663.

1497. Admissibility of evidence—When not filed—Allegation of fraud.]—Re HUTH'S PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 292.

1498. Who entitled to be heard—Same persons as entitled to be heard before Comptroller.]—Re STEWART'S APPLICATION, No. 1359, ante.

Costs of appeal.]—See Sect. 2, sub-sect. 6, post.

SUB-SECT. 5.—PRACTICE.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 42–48.

1499. Opposition entered out of time—Affidavits not admissible.]—Where a petition to have the Great Seal affixed to a patent had been filed, & resps. served with notice two months before the first day of Michaelmas term, for which day the petition was answered, & resps. only filed affidavits on the morning of that day:—Held: they could not be read; & the patent was ordered to be sealed. —Re M'KEAN'S PATENT (1859), 1 De G. F. & J. 2; 45 E. R. 259; sub nom. Re MACKEAN'S PETITION, 1 L. T. 19; 8 W. R. 1, L. C.

1500. —— When leave to oppose given—Delay accounted for.]—Leave was given to oppose the granting of letters patent, notwithstanding the time for entering an opposition had expired, the reason for the delay in entering such opposition being accounted for.—Re BRENNARD'S PATENT (1861), 3 De G. F. & J. 695; 4 L. T. 456; 7 Jur. N. S. 690; 45 E. R. 1048, L. C.

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 5.

l. Onus of proof of want of novelty.]—When an application for a patent is opposed on the ground of want of novelty under Patents Act, 1903, s. 56, the onus is on the opponent to establish that the patent granted would be clearly bad on that ground.—MCGLASHAN v. RABETT (1909), 9 C. L. R. 223.—AUS.

m. Further objections — When allowed.]—Where a person opposing the grant of a patent has given notice stating the grounds of his objection, & afterwards appct. for the patent has been allowed to amend his specification, the objector will be allowed to put in further objections to the application as amended.—Re WHEELER'S APPLICATION (No. 2) (1893), 12 N. Z. L. R. 682.—N.Z.

n. Jurisdiction of Supreme Court—

1501. Declarations—Effect of multiplicity.]—The costs will be the costs of resps., but I wish to say something with regard to these declarations. It appears to me that the case has been overlaid with declarations which have not been of the slightest assistance to us—at least, they have not to me. The counsel who has very skilfully laid this case before me explained the whole matter before he had alluded to any one of the declarations; indeed, when he referred to them, he referred to them generally with an apology for such reference, & pointed out that they raised matters which are not really material to the issue. I think it is well that I should give warning of the course that I shall pursue whenever these matters come before me in relation to this multiplicity of declarations. I shall endeavour, so far as I can, to fix the costs & the responsibility of these declarations on the persons who I feel are responsible for them. They have been of absolutely no service in this case. I do not make any special order in relation to the costs of this matter, because in this case it appears to me the fault is on both sides, & probably no warning, such as I am endeavouring to give now, has ever been given; but it is a warning which I hope will be attended to, because it is a warning which, eventually, as far as I am concerned, will be acted upon (SIR FRANK LOCKWOOD, S.-G.).—Re BRAND'S APPLICATION (1894), 12 R. P. C. 102.

1502. Proof of utility—Not to be required.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1910 (D) (1910), 27 R. P. C. App. iv.

1503. Statement of opponent—Right to specify alternative courses.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1910 (H) (1910), 27 R. P. C. App. x.

1504. Citation of foreign specification—To invalidate opponent's claim—Not permissible.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1911 (C) (1911), 28 R. P. C. App. viii.

1505. Counter-statement of applicant—Effect of failure to file.]—NOTES OF OFFICIAL RULINGS, 1927 (A) (1927), 44 R. P. C. App. i.

Amendment of notice.]—See Sect. 2, sub-sect. 3, ante.

SUB-SECT. 6.—COSTS.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 39, & 1919 (c. 80), s. 12; Patents Rules, 1920, r. 49.

1506. Unsuccessful opposition—Opposition not unreasonable—No costs awarded.]—Patent granted for an improved steam engine as not infringing upon an existing patent. If the improvements could not be used without the engine, for which a patent had been granted, they must wait the expiration of that patent. No costs, where the caveat was not unreasonable.—Ex p. FOX (1812), 1 Ves. & B. 67; 35 E. R. 26, L. C.

Annotations:—Refd. Re Prosser's Patent, Re Pinkus's Patent (1845), 4 L. T. O. S. 409; Re Fawcett's Patent (1852), 2 De G. M. & G. 439; Poupard v. Fardell (1869), 21 L. T. 696.

1507. —— Payment ordered before sealing.]—Costs incurred by a party opposing a patent in certain proceedings successfully prosecuted before the law officers of the Crown, were ordered to be paid before the patent was sealed.—Re TILLIE & HENDERSON'S PATENT (1854), 24 L. T. O. S. 29, L. C.

1508. Successful opposition—Right of opponent to costs.]—Re WESTRUPP & GIBBINS' PATENT, No. 599, ante.

1509. Withdrawal of opposition—Costs payable by opponent—Costs of petition.]—Objections to the issue of a patent had been filed, & subsequently withdrawn, & in consequence thereof the sealing of the letters patent were presented. The ct. on a petition for the sealing of the letters patent & for an extension of the time for filing the specification, ordered the objector to pay the costs.—Re ASHENHURST'S PATENT (1853), 22 L. T. O. S. 109; 2 W. R. 3, L. C.

1510. —— —— ——.]—Notice of objections to the sealing a patent were filed & afterwards withdrawn. The costs of the objections & of the petition rendered necessary by them were ordered to be paid by the objector.—Re COBLEY'S PATENT (1861), 31 L. J. Ch. 333; 5 L. T. 387; 8 Jur. N. S. 106, L. C.

1511. Opposition successful on alternative claim—Costs payable by applicant.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1910 (H), No. 1503, ante.

1512. Costs of appeal to law officer—General rule—Costs follow event.]—As this is the first case I have had to deal with, I should like to explain what I mean to do in these cases. Of course I need not remind you that stopping a patent is a very serious step, because there are no means whatever of an appct. getting that which he applies for if I stop it, & it must be distinctly understood that I shall not stop the patent unless I am satisfied that the inventions are identical. I shall not hesitate to stop it if I can see clearly they are identical. I further desire to say that I regard these appeals as rehearings. In cases before me where there is no fresh evidence, or where on the merits either the opponent succeeds or appct. succeeds, I shall, as a general rule, allow costs to follow the event, because I think it only right that, apart from special circumstances, costs should follow the event, but I wish it to be understood that that will not apply to cases where there may be further evidence brought forward, or special matters which ought to influence the judgment of the law officer (SIR RICHARD WEBSTER, A.-G.).—Re STUBBS' PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 298.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Haythornthwaite's Appln. (1889), 7 R. P. C. 70.

1513. —— —— ——.]—Re ANDERTON, No. 1382, ante.

1514. —— When disallowed—Absence of good faith.]—Re ANDERTON, No. 1382, ante.

1515. —— —— Mistake.]—Re WOODHEAD (1887), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 44.

1516. —— —— Indefinite result.]—I do not think there can be considered to be any such definite result of the appeal as would entitle either party to costs (SIR EDWARD CLARKE, S.-G.).—Re AIREY'S APPLICATION (1888), 5 R. P. C. 348.

1517. —— —— Reasonable case for discussion.]—Re LYNDE'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 663.

1518. —— —— ——.]—Re BRIDGE'S APPLICATION, No. 1417, ante.

1519. —— Liability of opponent—Appeal withdrawn.]—Re KNIGHT (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 35.

To make order extending time for sealing patent.]—Re OSBORNE'S APPLICATION (1894), 13 N. Z. L. R. 523.—N.Z.

o. Appeal from registrar—Time for.]—Re GAZE'S APPLICATION (1896), 14 N. Z. L. R. 434.—N.Z.

p. —— Whether petition necessary.]—Semble: the appeal [in the case of opposition to the grant of a patent] from the registrar of patents to the Supreme Ct. which is provided for in Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1889, ss. 115 & 116, must be brought by petition.—SAUNDERS v. CAMPBELL (1907), 27 N. Z. L. R. 454.—N.Z.

Part VIII.—Register of Patents.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 28, 66, 67, 70–72, 79, 1919 (c. 80), s. 16; Patents Rules, 1920, 86–96.

1520. What may be registered—Equitable assignment of patent.]—An equitable assignment of a patent or a share or interest in it may be put upon the Register. A. & B., joint owners of certain patents, wrote to C. as follows. In consideration of your services as the practical manager in working both our patents . . . we hereby agree to give you one-third share of the patents, the same to take effect from this date. A. & B. afterwards deposited the letters patent with C. to assist him in effecting a sale of the patents, which, however, did not take place. C. registered the above letter, & claimed to retain possession of the letters patent as co-owner of a third share therein:—Held: Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 85 only excluded notices of trusts; & the letter was an immediate equitable assignment of an interest in the patent, not defective for want of consideration, & was properly entered on the Register.—Re CASEY'S PATENTS, STEWART v. CASEY, [1892] 1 Ch. 104; 61 L. J. Ch. 61; 66 L. T. 93; 40 W. R. 180; 36 . Jo. 77; 9 R. P. C. 9. C. A.

1521. —— Share or interest in patent.]—Re CASEY'S PATENTS, STEWART v. CASEY, No. 1520, 1522. —— Notice of trust.] — Re CASEY'S PATENTS, STEWART v. CASEY, No. 1520, ante.

1523. Rectification of Register — Person aggrieved.]—S. agreed to purchase one-fourth share of M.'s patent, but, after paying part of the purchase-money, made default & became bkpt. P. paid the balance of the purchase-money & took from M. & S. an assignment of the one-fourth share, which was subsequently entered in the Register of Patents. C., who had subsequently agreed to purchase from M. one-eighth share in the patent, took out a summons asking that the Register might be rectified by expunging the entry of the assignment on the ground (inter alia) that it was executed by S. without the authority of the Ct. of Bkpcy. After the issue of the summons the trustee in bkpcy. assigned his interest in the patent to P., who denied that C. was a person aggrieved by the entry on the Register, & opposed the application:—Held: C. was a person aggrieved by the entry, which was originally wrongly made, but, the trustees having since confirmed the transaction, the application ought to be refused with costs.—Re MANNING'S PATENT (1902), 20 R. P. C. 74.

1524. —— Jurisdiction of court.]—The jurisdiction over the Register of patent proprietors which was conferred on the Master of the Rolls by Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83)] s. 38, is assigned to the High Ct. of Justice by Jud. Act, 1813 (c. 66), s. 16 (1), & is not retained by the Master of the Rolls under Jud. Act, 1873 (c. 66), s. 17 (6).—Re MORGAN'S PATENTS (1876), 24 W. R. 2

1525. —— ——.]—Re MYER'S PATENT, [1882] W. N. 53.

Part IX.—Maintenance of Patent.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 17 (1) (2), 20, & 1919 (c. 80), s. 6, sched., Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 58–63.

1526. Lapse through non-payment of fees—Order for restoration—Unintentional omission.]—The holder of a patent in respect of an invention applied for a fresh patent in respect of improvements on it, intending to include in it the old invention. Under the erroneous impression that the new patent would protect the original invention & that the patent already protecting it might be allowed to lapse, he omitted to pay the fee in respect of it & allowed it to lapse. On an application for restoration of the lapsed patent:—Held: the omission was not an "unintentional" one within Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 20, & the ct. had no jurisdiction to restore the patent.

Qu.: whether there is an appeal from the Comptroller-General until after there has been advertisement & opposition under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 20 (3).—Re LAND'S PATENT, [1910] 2 Ch. 236; 79 L. J. Ch. 594; 103 L. T. 102; 54 Sol. Jo. 680; 27 R. P. C. 481.

1527. —— —— Appeal from order.] — Re LAND'S PATENT, No. 1526, ante.

1528. —— —— Provisions for compensation—Treaty of Peace Act, 1919 (c. 33), s. 1.]—(1) An order, made under above Act, & under the Orders authorised by that Act, for the restoration of a lapsed patent, need not include such provisions for compensation as are provided for in the Patents Rules, 1908, r. 59.

(2) Where the patent is for a combination of manufactured parts & where the restoration order contains a provision protecting infringements between the date of the lapse & the date of the restoration, such provision does not protect the assembling, after the date of the restoration order, of parts manufactured between the date of the lapse & the date of the restoration order.—COOKSLEY v. CROWTHORNE ENGINEERING CO., LTD. (1921), 37 T. L. R. 864; 38 R. P. C. 294.

1529. —— —— Protection of infringements—Patent for combination.] — COOKSLEY v. CROWTHORNE ENGINEERING CO., LTD., No. 1528, ante.

PART VIII.

q. Sale of patent right for Canada—Right of seller to register in America.]—The sale of a patentable right for Canada does not deprive the seller of the privilege of registering it in his own name in the United States.—WARRELL v. RAILWAY ASBESTOS PACKING CO., LTD. (Que.) (1916), 22 R. L. N. S. 512.—CAN.

r. What is date of patent—Date of filing provisional specification.]—SMITH v. DAVIDSON (1857), 19 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 691; 29 Sc. Jur. 327.—SCOT.

Part X.—Assignment and Devolution of Patents.

SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

Assignment of choses in action generally, see CHOSES IN ACTION, Vol. VIII., pp. 424 et seq.

1530. Power to assign—Given by Crown.]—All monopolies are illegal unless allowed by a patent, which cannot be assigned at all unless power to that effect is given by the Crown (LITTLEDALE, J.).—DUVERGIER v. FELLOWS (1830), 10 B. & C. 826; L. & Welsb. 344; 8 L. J. O. S. K. B. 270; 109 E. R. 655; on appeal (1832), 1 Cl. & Fin. 39, H. L.

Annotations:—Refd. Re Mexican & South American Co., Re Aston (1859), 27 Beav. 474. Mentd. Blundell v. Winsor (1837), 8 Sim. 601; London Grand Junction Ry. v. Freeman (1841), 2 Man. & G. 606; Garrard v. Hardey (1843), 5 Man. & G. 471; Harrison v. Heathorn (1843), 6 Man. & G. 81; Sheppard v. Oxenford (1855), 1 K. & J. 491.

1531. Local assignment.]—In 1888 a German co. was incorporated for the purpose of purchasing & working certain patents belonging to R., relating to the grooving of cardboard. R. stipulated that he would transfer to the co. all further inventions or improvements or additional or independent patents having "reference to" these grooving patents which might be made by him before the expiration of such patents. In 1892, R. obtained two patents, Nos. 12043 & 23735 of 1892, for improvements in bending strawboard. In Jan. 1893, R. agreed to grant a licence to T. to work one of these patents. He subsequently granted T. several temporary licences to use both the bending patents. In 1899 [illegible] obtained orders of L. S. assigned it to a co., which went into liquidation. The liquidator assigned it to T. In 1899 the German co. commenced proceedings against R. in Germany. They were unsuccessful in the ct. of first instance, but in the Superior Ct., & in the ultimate Ct. of App. they obtained judgments for transfer of the two bending patents. R. consequently assigned them, & the German co. brought an action for infringement of the patents against T. T. set up his equity to a licence & the local assignment through S. He also denied infringements, & attacked the validity of the patents: —Held: (1) T. had failed to establish the existence of a right on his part to the licence he claimed as regards both patents, but was entitled to rely on the legal title he had acquired through S. to patent No. 12043 of 1892 in the district of L.: s. 14 (1).

1532. Assignment by agent—Necessity for authority by deed.]—HAZLEHURST v. RYLANDS, No. 1554, post.

1533. Assignment subject to licence—Licencee not necessary party.]—On July 17, 1902, D. & M. agreed to purchase from F. for £2,500 patent rights in a certain system. On July 21, 1902, F. obtained an option for a sole licence under the four patents. On Nov. 7, 1902, by an agreement to which the patentee was a party, D. & M. agree to pay the unpaid balance of the £2,500 on F. tendering the licence above referred to. On Oct. 24, 1902, the patents had been transferred to J. H. H. subject to the rights of F. under the agreement of July 21, 1902. D. & M. refused to pay the unpaid balance unless the licence tendered was executed by J. H. H. In an action by F. to recover the balance:—Held: it was not necessary that the licence should be executed by J. H. H., & pltf. was entitled to succeed.—FRENTZELL v. DOUGILL (1904), 21 R. P. C. 641.

1534. Assignment before grant — Equitable assignment.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1910 (E) (1910), 27 R. P. C. App. vi.

SECT. 2.—WHAT MAY BE ASSIGNED.

1535. Share of patent.]—It is competent to the assignee of a separate & distinct portion of a patent to sue for an infringement of that part, without joining one who has an interest in another part.—DUNNICLIFF & BAGLEY v. MALLET, DUNNICLIFF & BAGLEY v. BIRKIN (1859), 7 C. B. N. S. 209; 29 L. J. C. P. 70; 1 L. T. 514; 6 Jur. N. S. 252; 8 W. R. 260; 141 E. R. 795.

Annotation:—Folld. Walton v. Lavater (1860), 8 C. B. N. S. 162.

1536. ——.]—(1) The assignee of two several moieties of a patent has a sufficient legal interest in the patent to sue for its infringement.

(2) Deft., a patentee, assigned a moiety of the patent to pltf. at one time, & the remaining moiety to a third person at another time; pltf., having afterwards acquired, by assignment, such remaining moiety, was held entitled to sue deft. for a subsequent infringement without giving him previous notice of such last assignment.

(3) Evidence of importation & sale of articles in imitation of the patented articles, known to the importer to have been made from the patent, is evidence against him of an infringement. It would equally be evidence of an infringement, although the importer had not had such knowledge.

(4) The assignor of a patent who has sold it as valid, cannot, as between himself & the assignee to whom he sold it, raise any question as to the patent being void for want of novelty.—WALTON v. LAVATER (1860), 8 C. B. N. S. 162; 29 L. J. C. P. 275; 3 L. T. 272; 6 Jur. N. S. 1251; 141 E. R. 1127.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. National Soc. for Distribution of Electricity by Secondary Generators v. Gibbs, [1899] 2 Ch. 289. Generally, Refd. Elwood v. Christy (1865), 18 [illegible]

PART X. SECT. 1.

t. Whether contract to give assignment need be in writing.]—DALGLEISH v. CONBOY (1876), 26 C. P. 254.—CAN.

a. Right to recover—Under assignment of invalid patent.]—The mere attaching of the support of the handle of a pump higher or lower in position than that formerly in use, is not the subject of a patent; but P. having obtained a patent therefor, which he assigned to pltf., who again assigned to deft. subject to certain royalties:—Held: notwithstanding the invalidity of the patent he was entitled to recover the amounts payable to him under the agreement during the currency thereof. —OWENS v. TAYLOR (1881), 29 Gr. 210. —CAN.

b. Obligation to sell—After expiration of two years.]—Under Canadian Patent Act the holder of a patent is obliged, after the expiration of two years from its date, or an authorised extension of that period, to sell his invention to any person desiring to obtain it & cannot claim the right merely to lease it or license its use.—HILDRETH v. MCCORMICK MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. (1907), 39 S. C. R. 499.—CAN.

Sect. 2.—What may be assigned. Sect. 3.]

1537. Future patent rights—Of like nature.]—An agreement by the vendor of a patent to assign to the purchaser all future patent rights which the vendor may hereafter acquire of a like nature to the patent sold, is not contrary to public policy.—PRINTING & NUMERICAL REGISTERING CO. v. SAMPSON (1875), L. R. 19 Eq. 462; 44 L. J. Ch. 705; 32 L. T. 354; 23 W. R. 463.

Annotations:—Refd. Macdonald v. Eyles, [1921] 1 Ch. 631. Mentd. Rousillon v. Rousillon (1880), 14 Ch. D. 351; Badische Anilin Und Soda Fabrik v. Schott, Segner, [1892] 3 Ch. 447; Tullis v. Jacson, [1892] 3 Ch. 441; Maxim Nordenfelt Guns & Ammunition Co. v. Nordenfelt, [1893] 1 Ch. 630; Lamson Pneumatic Tube Co. v. Phillips (1904), 91 L. T. 363; Spiers v. Hunt, [1908] 1 K. B. 720; Wilson v. Carnley, [1908] 1 K. B. 729; Millers v. Steedman (1915), 84 L. J. K. B. 2057; Morris v. Saxelby, [1915] 2 Ch. 57; Horwood v. Millar's Timber & Trading Co., [1916] 2 K. B. 44; Weld-Blundell v. Stephens, [1919] 1 K. B. 520; Attwood v. Lamont, [1920] 2 K. B. 146; British Concrete Co. v. Schelff, [1921] 2 Ch. 563.

1538. Prospective patent—Where precisely described.]—It is very easy to imagine a document, executed immediately before the letters patent are issued, so clear & so precise as to leave no doubt whatever as to the proposed patent referred to in it (NORTH, J.).—Re PARNELL'S PATENT, HALKETT'S APPLICATION (1888), 4 T. L. R. 197; 5 R. P. C. 126.

1539. Future improvements on patent—Beneficial interest in improvements—Improvements patented by third party.]—D., a patentee, assigned certain inventions & the patents for the same to P., & covenanted that any improvement on the inventions which he should during the continuance of the patents become possessed of, should be held to be a part of the property assigned, & should be duly communicated by D. to P., & D. should do all necessary acts & deeds that might be required of him by P. to patent & vest the improvements in P. D. subsequently became, by purchase, interested with other persons, in two patents, not for his inventions, which it had been agreed between him & the other persons should be resold to a limited co. to be promoted. Pltfs., who had become possessed of P.'s interests, brought an action against D., asking that he might be ordered to assign the two patents to pltfs., & they now moved that he might be restrained from parting or dealing with the two patents:—Held: the covenant did not apply to the two patents.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. DUNLOP (1896), 12 T. L. R. 620; 13 R. P. C. 553, C. A.

1540. —— What amounts to improvement.]—In 1893, D. agreed to sell to the V. G. E. Syndicate, Ltd., certain patents & the benefits of all inventions which D. might then have have made, or be entitled to, or which he might thereafter make, being for improvements upon the inventions the subject of any of the patents, or applications for the same, thereby agreed to be assigned. The patents comprised two patents of D., of 1891, for "improvements in gas engines" & "improvements in gas or vapour engines" respectively, & the benefit of an application by C. in 1892 for a patent for "improvements in gas engines." In 1895, a patent was granted to D. for "improvements in oil engines." Actions were brought by D. against the syndicate & others, and by the syndicate against D., in both of which the question arose whether the syndicate was entitled to the patent of 1895. In the course of the trial D. was allowed to raise a claim to have the agreement rectified; but in the view taken by the judge it became unnecessary to decide the question so raised:—Held: the 1895 patent was for an improvement.—VALVELESS GAS ENGINE SYNDICATE, LTD. v. DAY (1898), 16 R. P. C. 97, C. A.

1541. —— ——.]—D. was the inventor of a new gunpowder for blasting purposes, afterwards known as "Argus" powder, in respect of which a provisional specification was lodged in Apr. 1898. In Jan. 1899, an agreement was made between D. & C. H. & co., Ltd., by which C. H. & co. agreed to pay D. during the continuance of the agreement, royalties on the manufacture of the "Argus" powder, & it was provided that improvements in & additions to D.'s invention should be within the agreement. C. & others were afterwards granted letters patent in respect of another gunpowder which afterwards came to be known as "Bulldog" powder. C. H. & co. proceeded to manufacture & sell this "Bulldog" powder. D. thereupon brought an action for royalties under the agreement contending that "Bulldog" was identical in composition with "Argus" powder, or, alternatively, was an improved modification of "Argus" & was subject to the agreement. At the trial it was held, that the use of lignite instead of ordinary charcoal as the source of carbon in the composition of the "Argus" powder was of the essence of pltf.'s patented invention & that defts. in manufacturing "Bulldog" powder without using lignite were only doing what all the world were entitled to do & without infringing D.'s patent; & the such manufacture did not come within the agreement; & also that "Bulldog" powder was not an improvement in or addition to the "Argus" invention:—Held: the essence of pltf.'s invention was the use of lignite, or lignite subjected to a carbonising operation, & that defts.' "Bulldog" powder was not an infringement of pltfs.' or an improvement, or addition to his invention.—DAVIES v. CURTIS & HARVEY, LTD. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 561, C. A.

1542. —— ——.]—L. & M., Ltd., who were the owners of patents for certain stereotype casting machinery, by deed, agreed with H., who was the owner of certain other patents, that in consideration of a ceaser of competition, H. granting an exclusive licence to make & sell his machine, they would pay royalties on all machines manufactured under either set of patents, or other machines of a similar type. H. also undertook to grant an exclusive licence to use any improvements in or additions to his machine. H. took out two subsequent patents for inventions, which could be used in connection with his machine. In an action by L. & M., Ltd., for a declaration of their right to use & for an exclusive licence to use these inventions, it was held at the trial, that the question whether the new inventions were infringements of the H. patents was not the test to be applied, but that they were improvements in or additions to the H. machine within the meaning of the deed of agreement, & a declaration was made accordingly; & an exclusive licence was directed to be granted pltfs. Deft. appealed. On

PART X. SECT. 2.

1540 i. Future improvements on patent—What amounts to improvement.]—JONES & MCGINTY v. RUSSELL (1896), 1 N. B. Eq. Rep. 232.—CAN.

1540 ii. —— ——.]—WATSON v. HARRIS (1899), 31 O. R. 134.—CAN.

1540 iii. —— ——.]—WILSON v. BARBOUR (1888), 5 R. P. C. 245, 675.—IR.

c. Right to obtain patent in Canada.]—The person who has taken out a patent for his invention in any other country may, without assigning or parting with his patent, assign to another person his right to obtain a patent in this country, & the holder by assignment of such right may obtain letters patent for Newfoundland, & is entitled to recover damages for infringement & to obtain an injunction.—CABOT S. WHALING CO. v. NEWFOUNDLAND S. WHALING CO. (1905), 9 Nfld. L. R. 122.—NFLD.

appeal it was contended that the word "improvement" could not be read to include a difference sufficient to protect on a claim for infringement:—Held: (1) an improvement of a patented machine includes any machine which, while retaining some of those essential or characteristic parts of the machine which are the subject of the monopoly claims, yet by addition, omission, or alteration better achieves the same or better results, whether such improvements infringe the monopoly claims for the patented machine or not; (2) the inventions in the two subsequent patents of H. were improvements on his original machine: an exclusive licence to use them must be given to L. & M., Ltd.—HOPKINS v. LINOTYPE & MACHINERY, LTD. (1910), 101 L. T. 898; 26 T. L. R. 229; 27 R. P. C. 109, H. L.; affg. S. C. sub nom. LINOTYPE & MACHINERY, LTD. v. HOPKINS (1908), 25 R. P. C. 665, C. A.

1543. —— ——.]—In 1903, letters patent were granted to pltf. for "improvements in & relating to water tube boilers." This patent was assigned by pltf. to deft. co. in 1905, & he covenanted that he would assign to the co. all improvements in the invention, & also that deft. co. should be entitled to inventions, useful in the manufacture of boilers, which he might make whilst in a certain employment, which ceased on or before Nov. 14, 1906. In 1907 pltf. took out letters patent for an invention of "improvements in & relating to water tube boilers," & deft. co. claimed this patent under both parts of the covenant. The action was brought by the patentee for a decision on these questions. Defts. counterclaimed & claimed the 1907 patent:—Held: the patent of 1907 was not an improvement on the patent of 1903, but was for a separate & distinct invention; the invention was made after Nov. 14, 1906.—DAVIES v. DAVIES' PATENT BOILER, LTD. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 23.

1544. —— ——.]—In 1912, a patent, hereinafter called patent No. 1, was granted under International Convention to a German co. for an "improvement relating to electric incandescent lamps." In 1913 a patent, hereinafter called patent No. 2, was granted under International Convention to the German co. for a "process & device for the production of electric glow lamp bulbs with reflectors." In 1914, a patent, hereinafter called patent No. 3, was applied for, under International Convention by the German co. for "improvements in & relating to electric incandescent lamps." On the outbreak of war the patents Nos. 1 & 2 were vested in, & the patent No. 3 was granted to, the Public Trustee as custodian. A British co. brought an action against the Public Trustee for a declaration that pltfs. were the beneficial owners of the patents, & for an order directing deft. to execute an assignment of the patents to pltfs. Pltfs. alleged that they were entitled to have the patents transferred to them under an agreement between the German co. & others, the vendors, & pltfs., the purchasers, by which agreement the vendors agreed to sell to pltfs. certain specified patents for inventions in connection with the manufacture of wolfram or molybdenum lamps, & any improvements on those inventions, & to communicate to pltfs., the experiences of the German co. in connection with the manufacture of lamps. Deft. contended that the patents were not within the scope of the agreement:—Held: all of the patents were within the scope of the agreement. It was ordered that deft. should transfer the patents to pltfs.—OSRAM-ROBERTSON LAMP WORKS, LTD. v. PUBLIC TRUSTEE (1920), 37 R. P. C. 189.

SECT. 3.—CONSTRUCTION OF ASSIGNMENT.

1545. Covenant for payment of royalties by assignees—While patent subsisting—No obligation to maintain patent — Or manufacture article patented.]—On the sale of a patent by the patentees to a limited co. a deed of assignment was executed by the parties, by which, after a recital that the patentees had agreed to sell the patent to the company for £250 "& for the other considerations therein appearing," the patentees assigned the patent to the co. absolutely: & after covenants for title by the patentees, including a covenant for quiet enjoyment of the patent "during the term subsisting herein," the co. covenanted to pay to the patentees a royalty for every article "which should be manufactured or sold by the co." under the patent "while subsisting," & also a proportion of the profits arising from the manufacture or sale & from licenses granted for the manufacture or sale of articles to be manufactured under the patent "while subsisting." The deed contained no express covenant by the co. to keep the patent on foot or to manufacture or sell articles under the patent. On the expiration of the first four years of the patent the co. duly paid the first renewal fee under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), but on the expiration of the fifth year they, through inadvertence, omitted to pay the second renewal fee within the time required by the Act & the rules thereunder, & consequently the patent lapsed. After an ineffectual attempt to obtain a private Act of Parliament to revive the patent, the company passed resolutions for a voluntary winding up, & the patentees thereupon sent in a claim for damages for the loss, through the lapse of the patent, of the royalties reserved by the assignment, contending that a covenant to keep the patent on foot should be implied in the assignment:—Held: no such covenant could be implied; & even if it could, the patentees could not obtain more than nominal damages, the co. being under no obligation, either express or implied, to manufacture the patented articles & being no longer able to carry on business.—Re RAILWAY & ELECTRIC APPLIANCES CO. (1888), 38 Ch. D. 597; 57 L. J. Ch. 1027; 36 W. R. 730; sub nom. Re RAILWAY & ELECTRIC APPLIANCES CO., LTD., Ex p. GILBERT & SINCLAIR, 59 L. T.

Annotation:—Mentd. Measures v. Measures, [1910] 2 Ch. 248.

1546. Covenant restricting manufacture by assignor — Validity.] — A patentee & manufacturer of guns & ammunition for purposes of war covenanted with a co. to which his patents & business had been transferred that he would not for twenty-five years engage except on behalf of the co. either directly or indirectly in the business of a manufacturer of guns or ammunition:—Held: the covenant though unrestricted as to space was not, having regard to the nature of the business & the limited number of the customers, namely the Govts. of this & other countries, wider than was necessary for the protection of the co., nor injurious to the public interests of this country; it was therefore valid & might be enforced by injunction.—NORDENFELT v. MAXIM NORDENFELT GUNS & AMMUNITION CO., [1894] A. C. 535; 63 L. J. Ch. 908; 71 L. T. 489; 10 T. L. R. 636; 11 R. 1, H. L.; affg. S. C. sub nom. MAXIM NORDENFELT GUNS & AMMUNITION CO. v. NORDENFELT, [1893] 1 Ch. 630, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Haynes v. Doman, [1899] 2 Ch. 13; Underwood v. Barker, [1899] 1 Ch. 300; Lamson Pneumatic Tube Co. v. Phillips (1904), 91 L. T. 363; Tivoli, Manchester v. Colley (1904), 52 W. R. 632; Hooper & Ashby v. Willis (1906), 94 L. T. 624; Mouchell v. Cubitt

Sect. 3.—Construction of assignment.]

(1907), 24 R. P. C. 194; Bromley v. Smith (1909), 78 L. J. K. B. 745; Leng v. Andrews, [1909] 1 Ch. 763; United Shoe Manufacturing Co. of Canada v. Brunet, [1909] A. C. 330; Morris v. Ryle (1910), 103 L. T. 545; Russell v. Carpenters & Joiners Amalgamated Soc., [1910] 1 K. B. 506; A.-G. of Australia v. Adelaide S.S. Co., [1913] A. C. 781; Continental Tyre & Rubber (Great Britain) Co. v. Heath (1913), 29 T. L. R. 308; Mason v. Provident Clothing & Supply Co., [1913] A. C. 724; Eastes v. Russ, [1914] 1 Ch. 468; Goldsoll v. Goldman, [1914] 2 Ch. 603; North Western Salt Co. v. Electrolytic Alkali Co., [1914] A. C. 461; Millers v. Steedman (1915), 84 L. J. K. B. 2057; Morris v. Saxelby, [1916] 1 A. C. 688; Evans v. Heathcote, [1917] 2 K. B. 336; Horwood v. Millar's Timber & Trading Co., [1917] 1 K. B. 305; Naylor, Benzon v. Krainische Industrie Gesellschaft, [1918] 1 K. B. 331; Whitmore v. King (1918), 87 L. J. Ch. 647; McEllistrim v. Ballymacelligott Co-op. Agricultural & Dairy Soc., [1919] A. C. 548; Rodriguez v. Speyer, [1919] A. C. 59; Ropeways v. Hoyle (1919), 120 L. T. 538; Attwood v. Lamont, [1920] 3 K. B. 571; Dewes v. Fitch, [1920] 2 Ch. 159; Hepworth Manufacturing Co. v. Ryott, [1920] 1 Ch. 1; British Concrete Co. v. Schelff, [1921] 2 Ch. 563; Rawlings v. General Trading Co., [1921] 1 K. B. 635. Mentd. Dubowski v. Goldstein, [1896] 1 Q. B. 478; Robinson v. Heuer (1898), 67 L. J. Ch. 644; Re Hollis' Hospital Trustees & Hague's Contract, [1899] 2 Ch. 540; Elliman v. Carrington (1901), 84 L. T. 858: Re Beard, Reversionary & General Securities Co. v. Hall, Re Beard, Beard v. Hall, [1908] 1 Ch. 383; Wilson v. Carnley, [1908] 1 K. B. 729; Stuart & Simpson v. Halstead (1911), 55 Sol. Jo. 598; Woodbridge v. Bellamy, [1911] 1 Ch. 326; Denny's Trustee v. Denny & Warr, [1919] 1 K. B. 583; Pratt v. British Medical Assocn., [1919] 1 K. B. 244; Pullen v. Pullen & Holding (1920), 123 L. T. 203.

See, further, TRADE & TRADE UNIONS.

1547. Covenant reserving right of manufacture & sale to assignor—Limited to exercise personally or by agents.]—S. assigned two patents to B. by separate deeds, reserving in each case a right to work the patent personally, which right was not to be transferable. After B.'s death, his business, including the patents, became vested in pltf. co. S. entered into partnership with E. & J., & by an agreement between S. & his firm he agreed to employ the firm, on certain specified terms, to manufacture articles under the patents on his behalf, & to sell them for him, which they did. Pltf. co. commenced an action against the firm for infringement of the two patents by working under said agreement:—Held: according to the true construction of the agreement, although the firm were the agents of S. as far as selling was concerned, they were manufacturing not as his agents, but as contractors for him, & had thereby infringed pltf.'s rights.—HOWARD & BULLOUGH, LTD. v. TWEEDALES & SMALLEY (1895), 12 T. L. R. 28; 40 Sol. Jo. 32; 12 R. P. C. 519.

1548. Validity of patent—Assignor bound by deed.]—OLDHAM v. LANGMEAD (1789), cited in 3 Term Rep. at p. 439; 100 E. R. 665.

Annotations:—Distd. Hayne v. Maltby (1789), 3 Term Rep. 438. Refd. Bowman v. Taylor (1834), 2 Ad. & El. 278.

1549. —— ——.]—WALTON v. LAVATER, No. 1536, ante.

1550. —— Right of assignee to dispute—In absence of fraud.]—An agreement between pltf. & defts. recited that pltf. had invented a method for the prevention of boiler explosions, & had obtained a patent for it, & assigned away half of his interest in it, & pltf. was desirous of taking out patents for other countries; & it provided that defts. should proceed to take out such patents, & should pay the sum of £2,500 in such manner as should be mutually agreed upon; in consideration whereof pltf. transferred to defts. the half of those patents when they should be obtained, & the remaining half of the English patent. A declaration, founded on this agreement averred, for a first breach that, though a reasonable time had elapsed, defts. refused to pay the money on request; &, for a second breach, that though a reasonable time had elapsed, defts. had refused to enter into any agreement as to the manner of payment. Defts. pleaded, first, as to the first breach, that when the action commenced no agreement had been made as to the manner in which the money was to be paid; secondly, to all the breaches, that the invention was not new in England & was worthless, & pltf. was not the first inventor; &, thirdly, to all the breaches, that, after agreement & before breach, defts., under a new agreement, paid, & pltf. received £200, as a balance in satisfaction:—Held: (1) there was in the agreement no warranty, express or implied, that the patent was indefeasible; & no fraud being alleged, & defts. having the same means of knowledge as to the novelty & value of the patent as pltf., the second plea was bad; (2) the second breach in the declaration was good, because, even if the entering into an agreement with respect to the manner of payment was a condition, the refusal by defts. to enter into such an agreement rendered the performance impossible; (3) the third plea, to all the breaches, was bad; it was not a traverse of the first breach, & was no answer, since that breach treated the money as payable immediately; (4) semble: the first plea to the first breach was bad, because, if no mode of payment was agreed on, the money, being then due, was payable as the law directs where there is no stipulation as to mode of payment.—HALL v. CONDER (1857), 2 C. B. N. S. 22; 26 L. J. C. P. 288; 29 L. T. O. S. 108, 389; 3 Jur. N. S. 963; 5 W. R. 742; 140 E. R. 318, Ex. Ch.

Annotations:—As to (1) Folld. Bessimer v. Wright (1858), 31 L. T. O. S. 213; Smith v. Scott (1859), 6 C. B. N. S. 771. Apld. Trotman v. Wood (1864), 16 C. B. N. S. 479. Refd. Smith v. Neale (1857), 2 C. B. N. S. 67; Eichholz v. Bannister (1864), 17 C. B. N. S. 708; Smith v. Buckingham (1870), 21 L. T. 819.

1551. —— ——.]—In an action to enforce a contract for the sale of a patent without warranty, it is not open to deft. by way of defence to put in issue the validity of the patent.—LIARDET v. HAMMOND ELECTRIC LIGHT & POWER CO. (1883), 31 W. R. 710, L. JJ.

—— ——.]—See ESTOPPEL, Vol. XXI., pp. 257, 284, Nos. 810, 994.

1552. —— Patent invalid—Right to repudiate assignment.]—The owner of a patent for automatic drain valves for use in steam engines entered into an agreement to sell it. The vendor in the agree-

PART X. SECT. 3.

1550 i. Validity of patent—Right of assignee to dispute—In absence of fraud.]—VERMILYEA v. CANNIFF (1886), 12 O. R. 164.—CAN.

d. —— Whether warranty of validity implied.]—Where no express agreement or special circumstances exist which might give rise to an implied warranty, an assignment of "all the right, title & interest" of the assignor in a patent of invention does not import any warranty on the part of the assignor as to the validity of the patent.—ELECTRIC FIREPROOFING CO. OF CANADA v. ELECTRIC FIREPROOFING CO. (1910), 43 S. C. R. 182; 30 C. L. T. 632.—CAN.

e. Covenant to terminate contract—On lapse of patent.]—A contract by which rights in a patent for an invention are assigned on condition, among other considerations, that the assignee shall account for his sales of the invention, with a covenant that the lapse of the patent shall give him the right to terminate the contract forthwith, is binding up to the time of notice by him to so terminate it for that reason.—MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE CO. v. DOUGALL, Q. R. 32 S. C. 187.—CAN.

f. Construction of covenants—To bring patent into use.]—STOVIN v. DEAN (1867), 26 U. C. R. 600.—CAN.

g. Construction of covenant to release—After assignment.]—MCGIVERIN v. TURNBULL (1872), 32 U. C. R. 407.—CAN.

h. Change in name of invention—By assignee—Without consent of assignor.]—WANDBY v. HEWITT (1877), 27 C. P. 571.—CAN.

k. What warranty implied—Invention

ment guaranteed the patent to be valid & in full force. The patent was to be sold, together with the rights, privileges, & benefits appertaining thereto, further improvements, & the full & unrestricted use of the vendor's name in connection therewith for the sum of £500, one moiety of which was to be paid at once & the other some months afterwards. The vendor was not to part absolutely with his patent until the whole of the price had been paid. The vendor also undertook to give all possible assistance to the purchaser in his business for a certain time. The purchaser paid £250 & took over the business, letter books, & books of orders. He carried on the business for some months, but on discovering that other similar valves had been previously in the market repudiated the agreement. In an action by the patentee for £250, the balance of the £500, deft. alleged that there was a breach of warranty as to the validity of the patent, which was invalid for want of novelty, utility, & subject-matter, & also that the agreement applied only to the patent rights. He counterclaimed for a declaration that the agreement was not binding on him, & for a return of the £250, or, in the alternative, damages :—Held : the patent was invalid & pltf. could not recover the £250 ; deft. was not entitled to rescission of the contract, but, as the business was only worth £240, he was entitled to £10 damages with costs.—BERCHEM v. WREN (1904), 21 R. P. C. 683.

1553. —— —— ——.]—The owner of certain patents entered into an agreement to sell them for a price to be paid partly in cash & partly in shares of a co. to be formed by the purchasers before the date fixed for completion. The assurance to the purchasers was to contain a covenant by the vendor guaranteeing the validity of the patents ; the purchasers were to buy some of the patented machines from the vendor. Some of these machines were delivered, & the purchasers by arrangement gave certain promissory notes for the part of the purchase moneys for the patents payable in cash. In consolidated actions by the vendor for the price of the machines delivered & on the promissory notes, defts. alleged that the guarantee of validity of the patents was in the nature of a condition, & that the same were invalid as having been anticipated & for want of subject-matter :—Held : the basis of the transaction was that the patents were valid so that deft. was entitled to contest their validity ; but they were invalid.—NADEL v. MARTIN (1905), 23 R. P. C. 41, H. L.

Annotation :—Folld. Henderson v. Shiels (1906), 24 R. P. C. 108.

1554. Assignment conditional on validity of patent—Construed as agreement to assign.]—(1) Patents having been granted to W. & L., W., & & W. & E., respectively, W. & L. authorised E. to negotiate a sale of their patents to R. E. negotiated such sales. By an indenture dated Nov. 2, 1889, expressed to be between W. & E. of the one part & R. of the other part, in consideration of £100 paid to W. & E., & of a further payment of £2,650 within the next twenty-eight days, which latter payment R. agreed to make immediately he had satisfied himself that the patents were valid, W. & E. assigned the patents to R., covenanting for validity. This indenture was executed by E. for W. & self. On Oct. 23, 1889, a payment of fees in respect of one patent was due. This was never made. R., after investigation being satisfied that the patents were not valid, declined to proceed further in the matter. W. & E. then commenced an action against R., claiming specific performance of the agreement for sale :—Held : the indenture was merely contractual so far as it related to the patents of W., & W. & L., the sum of £2,650 was not to be paid by R. if the patents, or any one of them, were invalid.

(2) An agent authorised to make a legal assignment of a patent must be authorised by deed (FRY, L.J.).—HAZLEHURST v. RYLANDS (1890), 9 R. P. C. 1, C. A.

1555. Agreement for assignment—Signature of specification by patentee—Condition precedent to assignment.] — The declaration stated that a petition had been presented by pltfs., at the request of deft., for the granting to deft. of a patent, that pltfs. had filed a provisional specification, at their own expense, upon condition that defts. should complete the specification within six months, & that afterwards it was agreed that deft. should sell to pltfs. his right in respect of the patent for the sum of £5, to be paid by pltfs. to deft. on their having completed at their own expense the patent ; that it thereupon became necessary in order to enable pltfs. to complete the patent in pursuance of the agreement, that deft. should sign & seal a complete specification ; that pltfs. tendered to deft. a complete specification for his signature. Deft. would not sign it :—Held : deft. was bound under this agreement, to sign the specification.—LEWIN v. BROWN (1866), 14 W. R. 640.

1556. —— Of improvements & future inventions —Right of assignees to enforce.]—By an agreement, made in 1914, the grantee of (inter alia) a patent of 1910 for an "Improved construction of lock-nut fastening" agreed to sell & a co. agreed to purchase certain patents & the benefit of all improvements & future inventions that should be made by the grantee in connection with the patented inventions, & the patents to be sold were assigned to the co. In 1921 the grantee obtained a patent for improvements in lock-nuts, & later he had an idea of a further invention that he ultimately admitted to be an improvement in connection with the patented inventions assigned to the co. In an action by the co. against the grantee for performance of deft.'s covenant by the assignment of the patent of 1921 & by the communication of information as to deft.'s idea of a further invention, deft. alleged that the specification of 1921 contemplated a form of spigot & socket different from that in the specification of 1910, & that the later invention was not an improvement upon the earlier invention. Also he contended that pltfs. had, by their alleged refusal to consider the later invention, estopped themselves from obtaining the relief claimed :—Held : the matter turned very largely upon the construction of the specifications of 1910 & 1921 ; the specification of 1910 extended to lock-nuts of new & useful.]—The sale of the right to use an invention contains a warranty that the invention is new & useful.—DERY v. HAMEL (1884), 7 L. N. 405.—CAN.

l. Right to extension of term—As well as current term.]—PECK v. POWELL, POWELL v. PECK (1885), 11 S. C. R. 494.—CAN.

m. Patent not actually granted—Mistake of one party to assignment.]—CHISHOLM v. PETERS (1898), 31 N. S. R. 16.—CAN.

n. Part of purchase-money paid—Refusal of assignee to pay rest—Variation from caveat—On application for American patent.]—BINGHAM v. MCMURRY (1899), 30 S. C. R. 159.—CAN.

o. Assignment for limited period—Whether right to sell exists after limited period.]—A person who is the assignee of a patented right for a limited period, with a right of purchase, but who at the expiration of such period elects not to purchase, & reassigns the patent, cannot thereafter sell the patented article, though made during the time he was assignee, his right to make & sell being restricted to such limited period. — BENNETT v. WORTMAN a type similar to that covered by the 1921 specification, & the 1921 invention was an improvement upon the 1910 invention: & pltfs.' conduct had not been such that there was any estoppel & deft., undertaking to furnish to pltfs. information as to the further invention, should assign to them the patent of 1921, & pay the costs of the action.—VISLOK, LTD. v. PETERS (1927), 44 R. P. C. 235.

Sect. 3.—Construction of assignment. Sects. 4 & 5.]

1557. —— Assignee undertaking maintenance—Assignment condition precedent.]—By an agreement between A. & B., it was agreed that A. should do all acts necessary, except the advance of money, for the purpose of procuring & perfecting certain letters patent, & should immediately after the same were procured execute an assignment of one-third share therein to B.; & B. agreed to pay all fees & disbursements that might be necessary for procuring the letters patent, enrolling the specification, & otherwise in perfecting the same. By 16 & 17 Vict. c. 5, s. 2, it is enacted that all letters patent shall be made subject to the condition that the same shall be void, & the privileges thereby granted shall cease & determine, at the end of three years & seven years respectively, unless there be paid before the expiration of the said three & seven years respectively two several sums of £50 & £100 as therein mentioned:—Held: the execution of an assignment by A. was the whole consideration for the undertaking of B. to pay the sums mentioned in that sect.; &, consequently, a condition precedent to his right to sue B. for the non-payment thereof.—HILL v. MOUNT (1856), 18 C. B. 72; 25 L. J. C. P. 190; 27 L. T. O. S. 107; 4 W. R. 563; 139 E. R. 1291.

SECT. 4.—ASSIGNEE WITH NOTICE.

1558. Contract by prior assignee—With assignor—For account of profits.]—A patentee assigned letters patent to A. & B. who covenanted with him that they, their exors. administrators, & assigns would use their best endeavours to introduce the invention by granting licences or working the patent or selling it, & that the patentee should be entitled to receive 5 per cent. of all net profits, whether arising from royalties, sale, or otherwise, which should be received by A. & B. or the survivor of them, or the exors. or administrators of the survivor, their or his assigns & that an account of profits should be rendered yearly to the patentee, & his share of profits paid to him by A. & B. & the survivor of them, & the exors. or administrators of such survivor, their or his assigns, with a proviso that after a sale had been made of the patent the interest of the patentee in the profits should cease, & a final account be come to.

A. & B. had taken the assignment with a view to forming a co. to work the patent. The co. was formed & the patent made over to them. The patentee sued the co. for an account of profits. The co. demurred, on the ground that there was no privity between them & pltf., & that pltf.'s right if any, was against A. & B. only:—Held: pltf. could sue the co. for an account of profits, for the stipulations of the assignment to A. & B. amounted to a contract that the owners for the time being of the patent should account for & pay to pltf. a share of profits unless a sale within the meaning of the deed was effected, & no person taking the patent with notice of this contract could refuse to give effect to it.—WERDERMAN v. SOCIÉTÉ GÉNÉRALÉ D'ÉLECTRICITÈ (1881), 19 Ch. D. 246; 45 L. T. 514; 30 W. R. 33, C. A.

Annotations:—Expld. Bagot Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Clipper Pneumatic Tyre Co., [1902] 1 Ch. 146. Folld. Dansk Rekylriffel Syndikat Akt. v. Snell, [1908] 2 Ch. 127. Expld. Barker v. Stickney, [1919] 1 K. B. 121. Mentd. Abouloff v. Oppenheimer (1882), 47 L. T. 702; Pilley v. Robinson (1887), 20 Q. B. D. 155.

—— —— For payment of royalties.]—See CONTRACT, Vol. XII., p. 348, No. 2893.

SECT. 5.—REGISTRATION OF ASSIGNMENT.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 71, & 1919 (c. 80), s. 16; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 86–95.

1559. Necessity for.]—To a declaration for infringement of a patent, brought by an alleged assignee by indenture of the patent, deft. pleaded, by denying the assignment modo et formâ. On the trial, it appeared that an instrument of assignment had been executed by the patentee, but that it had not been registered under Patent Law (Amendment) Act, 1852 (c. 83):—Held: as, by Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 35, the original patentee was until the entry of the registration, to be deemed & taken to be the sole & exclusive proprietor of the patent, deft. was entitled to a verdict.—CHOLLET v. HOFFMAN (1857), 7 E. & B. 686; 26 L. J. Q. B. 249; 29 L. T. O. S. 158; 3 Jur. N. S. 935; 5 W. R. 573; 119 E. R. 1400.

Annotations:—Consd. Hassall v. Wright (1870), 40 L. J. Ch. 145. Refd. Myers v. Baker (1858), 28 L. J. Ex. 90; Bowden's Patents Syndicate v. Herbert Smith, (1904), 73 L. J. Ch. 522.

1560. What may be registered—Legal assignment.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1910 (E), No. 1534, ante.

1561. —— Documents executed before grant.]—(1) Before the date of the grant of a patent to P., P. & H. signed a document referring to certain proposed dealings with patents to be obtained for a process said to be the invention for which the patent was granted. H. requested the Comptroller to enter his name on the Register of Patents as claiming to be entitled to one-half share of the patent under this document. The Comptroller refused to comply with this request on the ground that the document was dated before the grant of the patent. H. then moved that an entry of the document might be made on the Register of Patents as affecting the proprietorship of the patent:—Held: the motion must be refused with costs.

(2) Semble: there may be documents dated before the date of the grant of the patent which ought to be entered on the Register.—Re PARNELL'S PATENT, HALKETT'S APPLICATION (1888), 4 T. L. R. 197; 5 R. P. C. 126.

1562. —— Interest of mortgagee.]—V., the registered assignee of a patent, mortgaged it, & the mtgee. was registered "as mtgee." After p. Agreement for assignment—Concurrent conditions—Failure of performance of conditions by one party.]—SUTHERLAND v. WESTHAVER (1906), 39 N. S. R. 52.—CAN.

(1901), 2 O. L. R. 292; 21 C. L. T. 527.—CAN.

PART X. SECT. 5.

Effect of non-registration—Of ...ive transfers of patents.]—Non-registration, in the patent office at Ottawa, of successive transfers of a patent has not the effect of rendering the transfers null as between the parties thereto, the only effect of such want of registration being that the unregistered transfers or sales cannot be invoked against any subsequent transferee of the patent.—DOYON v. CANADIAN FIRE EXTINGUISHING CO. (1898), Q. R. 14 S. C. 367.—CAN.

r. Whether registration necessary—Conditional sale.]—The patentee of a this, V. sued an infringer without making the mtgee. a party. Deft. pleaded that V. was not the proprietor & could not sue. The mtgee. declined to be made a co-pltf., & was not added as deft. :—Held : (1) as the mtgee. was not registered as assignee or proprietor, Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 87, did not apply, & the case must be decided according to the general law as to mtges., & V. could sue without making the mtgee. a co-pltf. ; (2) Semble : even if the mtgee. had been registered as assignee or proprietor, Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 87, would not be read as taking away the mtgor.'s right to sue for infringement of the patent ; (3) if it had been necessary to have the mtgee. before the ct., it would not have been right to dismiss the action on the ground of his absence, but the ct. ought to have made him a party under Order 16, r. 11 ; (4) it was not necessary at present to have him before the ct.—VAN GELDER, APSIMON & CO. v. SOWERBY BRIDGE UNITED DISTRICT FLOUR SOCIETY (1890), 44 Ch. D. 374 ; 59 L. J. Ch. 583 ; 63 L. T. 132 ; 38 W. R. 625 ; 6 T. L. R. 338 ; 7 R. P. C. 208, C. A.

Annotation :—Refd. Re Goltstein's Appln. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 289.

1563. —— Document affecting proprietorship —Incomplete document.]—(1) Where there is no right of specific performance of an agreement relating to the sale of patents, & for division of the proceeds of sale, an injunction restraining the registered owner of the patents from dealing with them ought not to be granted.

(2) An entry on the Register of Patents of an agreement relating to a patent after the date of a modification of the agreement without any reference in the entry relating to the modification held to be clearly wrong & ordered to be expunged. —Re HUTCHINSON'S PATENT, HASLETT v. HUTCHINSON (1891), 8 R. P. C. 457, C. A.

Annotation :—As to (1) Apld. Re Fletcher's Patent (1893), 62 L. J. Ch. 938.

1564. —— —— ——.]—A patentee signed a letter agreeing to grant to L. exclusive licence to use his patent, on payment of a royalty to be mutually agreed upon. L. registered the document under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 23 :—Held : as the incomplete document did not give to L. any legal or equitable interest in or affect the proprietorship of the patent, it ought not to have been registered, & it was immaterial whether the amount of the royalty had in fact been subsequently agreed by parol.—Re FLETCHER'S PATENT (1893), 62 L. J. Ch. 938 ; 10 R. P. C. 252 ; 37 Sol. Jo. 509 ; 3 R. 626 ; sub nom. Re FLETCHER'S PATENT, LUMLEY v. FLETCHER, 69 L. T. 129.

1565. —— —— Equitable assignment.] Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 23, in conjunction with Patents Rules, 1883, rr. 65 & 68, an equitable assignment of a patent, or of a share or interest in a patent, may be entered in the Register of Patents as a document affecting the proprietorship of the patent.

(2) "Assignment" in Patents Rules, 1883, r. 65, includes an equitable assignment : but semble : "assignment" in Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), ss. 23 & 87, refers to legal assignment only.

(3) Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 87, only prohibits registration of simple notices of trusts. Documents which affect the proprietorship of a patent, whether by creating trusts or otherwise, are not excluded.—Re CASEY'S PATENTS, STEWART v. CASEY, [1892] 1 Ch. 104 ; 61 L. J. Ch. 61 ; 66 L. T. 93 ; 40 W. R. 180 ; 36 Sol. Jo. 77 ; 9 R. P. C. 9, C. A.

1566. Agreement to assign—Prior registration of licencee—Prior equity of assignee.]—Where the owner of a patent has entered into an agreement to assign it for value, & express notice of such agreement has been given to persons who subsequently obtain a licence from the owner for value, & register it before the registration of the agreement, the fact of such notice will enable the assignees of the patent under the agreement to set up their prior equity against the licensees, by virtue of the proviso in Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 87, which proviso keeps open all equities in respect of registered patents, so that they may be enforced in like manner as in respect of other personal property.—NEW IXION TYRE & CYCLE CO. v. SPILSBURY, [1898] 2 Ch. 484 ; 67 L. J. Ch. 557 ; 79 L. T. 229, C. A.

1567. Registration retrospective—To date of assignment.]—(1) W., a patentee, agreed with H. that H. should be the sole manufacturer under the patent. This agreement was embodied in a deed, which was prepared by the solr. of W., H. employing no legal adviser. The deed was not registered in compliance with the Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 35, until after bill filed. Subsequently W. granted a right of manufacture to M., who had full notice of the previous agreement with H. The grant to M. was also unregistered :—Held : under the circumstances W. could not avail himself of an objection based upon the non-registration of the agreement with H., & as the grant to M. was also unregistered, M. also was not entitled to take the objection.

(2) Semble : the subsequent registration had relation back to the date of the agreement.—HASSALL v. WRIGHT (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 509 ; 40 L. J. Ch. 145 ; 18 W. R. 821.

Annotations :—Generally, Refd. Ihlee v. Henshaw (1886), 55 L. J. Ch. 273 ; New Ixion Tyre & Cycle Co. v. Spilsbury, [1898] 2 Ch. 137.

1568. Effect of non-registration—Where notice of assignment given.]—HASSALL v. WRIGHT, No. 1567, ante.

1569. Registration of fraudulent assignment—Reference to prior assignment inserted.]—(1) As to the jurisdiction of the ct. to "expunge, vacate & vary" entries on the "Register of Proprietors" of patents under Patent Law (Amendment) Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 38, the ct. can, on motion, expunge an entry fraudulently made, & can direct any facts relating to the proprietorship to be inserted on the register ; but not the legal inferences to be drawn from them.

(2) A patentee assigned half the patent to A., & afterwards he assigned the whole to B., by a deed, reciting that he had already granted a licence to work & use to A. B.'s assignment was first registered :—Held : B. had constructive notice of A.'s rights, & an entry was ordered, on motion, to be made in the register that the licence referred to in B.'s assignment was the deed of assignment to A., subsequently entered.—Re MOREY'S PATENT machine & a certain firm executed an agreement (the patentee signing by an agent) by which the patentee agreed to sell & the firm agreed to purchase the patent upon the terms & subject to the conditions afterwards set forth. The purchase-money was to be payable on the performance of the conditions, which were that the vendor was to erect one of the machines, & it was to be tested on behalf of the purchasers ; & the vendor guaranteed a certain result :—Held : this was a conditional sale only, & the purchasers were not entitled to registration under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1889, s. 111.—Re MUNSON'S PATENT (1896), 14 N. Z. L. R. 421.—N.Z.

Sect. 5.—Registration of assignment. Sects. 6, 7, 8, 9 & 10. Part XI. Sect. 1: Sub-sect. 1.]

(1858), 25 Beav. 581; 6 W. R. 612; 53 E. R. 759.

Annotation:—As to (2) Refd. New Ixion Tyre & Cycle Co. v. Spilsbury, [1898] 2 Ch. 137.

1570. Validity of deed of assignment—Right of Comptroller to decide—On application for registration.]—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL, 1910 (E), No. 1534, ante.

Assignment by executors—Assignment registered before probate.]—See EXECUTORS, Vol. XXIII., p. 62, No. 424.

1571. Notice of application to register—Practice of Patent Office.]—VIOLA v. SHARPE (1904), 22 R. P. C. 23.

1572. Rectification of register—On ground of fraud & lack of consideration.]—A. as assignee, under an assignment from P. of a half share of a patent granted to P. & V., brought an action against the O. co. & P. for infringement, & moved for an interim injunction. The O. co. & P. thereupon moved to rectify the Register of Patents by expunging A.'s name, on the ground that the signature to the assignment was not P.'s, or if his, was obtained by fraud & without consideration:—Held: on the evidence pltf. was entitled to an injunction.—ANDERSON v. PATENT OXONITE CO., LTD. (1886), 3 R. P. C. 279.

SECT. 6.—RIGHTS OF ASSIGNEES.

See Partnership Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 71, & 1919 (c. 80), s. 16.

Right to sue for infringement.]—See Part XIV., Sect. 2, post.

Right to extension of terms.]—See Part XII., Sect. 2, post.

Right to apply for revocation.]—See Part XIII., post.

SECT. 7.—BANKRUPTCY OR INSOLVENCY OF PATENTEE.

1573. Effect of assignment to trustees—Patent not avoided.]—A patent is not avoided by an assignment to trustees for the benefit of creditors of the patentee, exceeding twelve in number.—M'ALPINE v. MANGNALL (1846), 3 C. B. 496; 15 L. J. C. P. 298; 7 L. T. O. S. 284; 136 E. R. 198, Ex. Ch.

Annotations:—Mentd. Beard v. Egerton (1849), 8 C. B. 165; Anderson v. Fitzgerald (1853), 4 H. L. Cas. 484; Gregory v. Cotterell (1855), 5 E. & B. 571; Cox v. Hickman (1860), 8 H. L. Cas. 268.

., pp. 660, 724, 727, Nos. 5877, 6292, 6308.

SECT. 8.—DEATH OF PATENTEE.

See Patents Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 37, 43, 71, & 1919 (c. 80), s. 16.

SECT. 9.—VESTING ORDER.

1574. Where no assignment made.] — The liquidators of a limited co. in process of winding up contracted to sell certain letters patent to a purchaser. The purchase-money was paid, but, by inadvertence, the co. was dissolved before the letters patent were assigned. A petition was presented asking for an order under Trustee Act, 1893 (c. 53), vesting the letters patent in the purchaser for all the estate of the co. therein:—Held: the legal estate in the letters patent having vested in the Crown, the ct. had no jurisdiction to make such an order.—Re TAYLOR'S AGREEMENT TRUSTS, [1904] 2 Ch. 737; 73 L. J. Ch. 557; 52 W. R. 602; 48 Sol. Jo. 560; sub nom. Re NIGER PATENT ELASTIC ENAMEL CO., 48 Sol. Jo. 476.

Annotations:—Distd. Re No. 9 Bomore Road, [1906] 1 Ch. 359. N.F. Re Dutton's Patents (1923), 67 Sol. Jo. 403. Refd. Hastings Corpn. v. Letton, [1908] 1 K. B. 378.

1575. ——.]—Letters patent for two inventions relating to "Improvements in call bells, audible automatic heat indicators, & burglar alarms & lamps & bells" were granted to H. By an agreement, dated May 24, 1911, H. had agreed with J. & W., in consideration of a sum of money, to use his best endeavours to obtain letters patent, &, when obtained, to execute a legal assignment of the same to them. The consideration money was paid, but no assignment was executed by H., who disappeared. J. & W. applied to the ct. for a vesting order under Trustee Act, 1893 (c. 53), s. 35, & Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 72:—Held: a patentee's right was a chose in action & entirely distinct from the right of property in a chattel. A vesting order was accordingly made.—Re HEATH'S PATENT (1912), 56 Sol. Jo. 538; 29 R. P. C. 389.

1576. ——.]—A. co., to which letters patent, dealing with an invention for improvements in connection with light railways, had been granted, was dissolved after agreeing to assign all its assets to a new co. The patent was, however, inadvertently not transferred to the new co. The new co., therefore, applied to the ct. by petition for a vesting order in respect of the patent:—Held: as the patent was a chose in action & had not ceased to exist, although it had become vested in the Crown, & as this was a case where a trustee could not be found, the new co. was entitled to a vesting order.—Re DUTTON'S PATENTS (1923), 67 Sol. Jo. 403; 40 R. P. C. 84.

See, also, TRUSTS & TRUSTEES.

SECT. 10.—STAMPS.

See, generally, REVENUE.

1577. Necessity for stamp—Foreign patent.]—A share in a patent granted in New South Wales, & a sole licence to use in a district of that colony the invention protected by the patent, are "property" within Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39), s. 59 (1), & do not come within the exception of "property locally situate out of the United Kingdom." An agreement made in England for the sale of such a share or licence is, therefore, liable to ad valorem stamp duty under Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39), s. 59 (1),

---

PART X. SECT. 6.

t. Right to sue assignor for breach of warranty—Of fitness of patent for purpose bought.]—The purchaser of a patent for things which for a number of years have been publicly used can recover damages from the vendor if he shows that the process for which he has bought the patent is unfit for the purpose for which he destined it, that it is not, & was not, worth anything at the time of the sale, & that it is of no practical utility.—DERY v. HAMEL (1884), 13 R. L. O. S. 50; 11 Q. L. R. 24.—CAN.

PART X. SECT. 8.

a. General rule.]—The grant of letters patent for an invention is a grant of a right to exclude others from manufacturing or using the particular invention within the territory of the State under whose laws it is granted, & the title to the right must devolve, as in the case of land, according to the laws of that State.—POTTER v. BROKEN HILL PROPRIETARY CO., LTD. 3 C. L. R. 479.—AUS.

as though it were an actual conveyance on sale.—SMELTING CO. OF AUSTRALIA v. INLAND REVENUE COMRS., [1897] 1 Q. B. 175; 66 L. J. Q. B. 137; 75 L. T. 534; 61 J. P. 116; 45 W. R. 203; 13 T. L. R. 84, C. A.

Annotations :—Apld. Danubian Sugar Factories v. I. R. Comrs., [1901] 1 K. B. 245. Consd. I. R. Comrs. v. Muller's Margarine, [1901] A. C. 217. Folld. Urban v. I. R. Comrs. (1913), 29 T. L. R. 476. Apld. Velazquez v. I. R. Comrs., [1914] 3 K. B. 458. Refd. New York Life Insce. v. Public Trustee, [1924] 2 Ch. 101.

1578. —— ——.]—Patent rights in foreign countries & the colonies are not "property locally situate out of the United Kingdom" within the exception in Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39), s. 59 (1), & therefore a memorandum agreement of sale of such rights made in this country is liable to an ad valorem conveyancing duty.—URBAN v. INLAND REVENUE COMRS. (1913), 29 T. L. R. 476, C. A.

Annotation :—Refd. Velazquez v. I. R. Comrs., [1914] 2 K. B. 404.

Part XI.—Licences.

SECT. 1.—VOLUNTARY LICENCE.

SUB-SECT. 1.—EXPRESS LICENCE.

1579. General licence—"Use & exercise."]—The words "use & exercise" in the grant of a licence confer, in the absence of anything limiting the construction of them, a full licence on the licencee.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. NORTH BRITISH RUBBER CO., LTD. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 161, C. A.

1580. Limited licence—As to place.]—Defts., who were the owners of patents in Belgium & England for an invention for making glass lamp globes, by a deed executed in Belgium granted a licence to pltfs. to manufacture articles under their invention in Belgium, but not elsewhere. The deed contained a clause for submitting disputes to arbn. Pltfs. under this licence manufactured articles in Belgium & sold them in England. Defts. issued a circular warning persons engaged in the trade that the importation & sale of articles made in foreign countries under their invention, except by themselves, would be a violation of their patent. Pltfs. brought an action to restrain the issue of this circular until the matters in dispute had been determined by arbn. :—Held : the grant of the licence to use the patent in Belgium did not imply permission to sell the manufactured article in England in violation of defts.' English patent.—SOCIÉTÉ ANONYME DES MANUFACTURES DE GLACES v. TILGHMAN'S PATENT SAND BLAST CO. (1883), 25 Ch. D. 1; 53 L. J. Ch. 1; 49 L. T. 451; 48 J. P. 68; 32 W. R. 71; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 209, C. A.

Annotations :—Refd. Household & Rosher v. Fairburn & Hall (1884), 51 L. T. 498; National Phonograph Co. of Australia v. Menck, [1911] A. C. 336.

1581. —— As to manufacture alone.]—G., a patentee of inventions relating to "gigantic wheels," entered into an agreement with B., giving him, subject to an existing licence, the sole right to construct wheels in accordance with the patents, subject as therein mentioned: if the patentee or persons claiming under or through him were desirous of erecting a wheel, they were to furnish B. with the specifications & B. was to have a certain time to say whether he would construct the works according to the specifications; if not, then others might be employed to do so: the price was to be settled by arbn. in the event of a difference. B. entered into negotiations with the B. W. G. co. for the construction of a wheel & the co. agreed to grant a lease of certain land to a projected co., to be nominated by B., which co. was to construct a gigantic wheel on such land. B. alleged that the wheel he was about to construct was not to be constructed in accordance with the patent. G. & his trustee in bkpcy. then brought an action against B. & the B. W. G. co., claiming an injunction to restrain defts., or either of them, from constructing or contracting to construct any wheel according to pltf.'s invention, except under the agreement or, in the alternative, an injunction against infringement :—Held : (1) B. had an absolute licence under the agreement to construct, but not to use, gigantic wheels; (2) the arbn. clause in the agreement did not include contracts by B. with third parties to construct wheels for them; (3) the declarations in the original order of the Ct. of Appeal ought to be varied, & the injunction thereby granted changed to an injunction restraining B. from constructing a wheel in accordance with the patents, except under the agreement.—BASSET v. GRAYDON (1897), 14 R. P. C. 701, H. L.

1582. —— As to use in particular manner.]—L. & B. the owners of a patent for improvements in lamps, granted a licence to H. to manufacture lamps according to the patent. Subsequently L. & B. began to apply their patented lamp to stoves. The licencee claimed that he was entitled under the licence to use the lamps in the stoves :—Held : on the true construction of the agreement, the licence was limited to the manufacture of lamps only, & an injunction granted to restrain the licencee from manufacturing anything under the licence except the lamp.—SOCIÉTÉ ANONYME POUR LA FABRICATION D'APPAREILS D'ECLAIRAGE v. MIDLAND LIGHTING CO., LTD., & ALTENDORF & WRIGHT (1897), 14 R. P. C. 419.

1583. —— As to time—Coterminous with patent.]—In 1903 pltf. granted to defts. a licence by deed to use, within a certain district, the inventions protected by three patents granted to H. in 1897 & relating to the employment of ferro-concrete in the construction of buildings. The deed contained a covenant by defts. that they would not at any time, without the written consent of pltf., carry out, or contract to carry out, & ferro-concrete or similar work which might be an infringement of the patents or be in competition with them. In an action to restrain breaches of the covenant, defts., who were builders having a large business both in, & outside of, the district, alleged that the covenant, if valid, would prevent them using at all in the United Kingdom in their business the modes of building construction which they had used before the date of the licence; they contended that the covenant was wider than was necessary for the protection of the patentee & injurious to the public interest, & was in undue restraint of trade, & void. They tendered evidence to show the scope of the patents, the modes of building

[illegible] Limited licence—As to place.]—IMPERIAL SUPPLY CO. v. GRAND TRUNK RY. CO. (1912), 11 E. L. R. 340; 14 [illegible]. R. 88.—CAN.

Sect. 1.—Voluntary licence: Sub-sects. 1, 2 & 3.]

prior to, & subsequent to, the date of the patents, the extent & nature of defts.' business at the date of the licence, & the effect which the covenant would have upon their business, & what, having regard to the nature of the patents, was necessary for the protection of the patentee. Defts. also contended that pltf. was, as the agent of H., incompetent to sue:—Held: pltf. was competent to sue; the restraint under the covenant continued only during the existence of the licence, which was coterminous with the patents, & did not extend beyond what was reasonably necessary for the protection of the trade of the covenantee, & was valid.—MOUCHEL v. CUBITT & CO. (1907), 24 R. P. C. 194.

1584. Exclusive licence—Nature of.]—An exclusive licence is a leave to do a thing, & a contract not to allow any one else to do the thing; but, unless coupled with a grant, it confers, no more than any other licence, any interest or property in the thing, & the licencee has no title to sue in his own name.

A patentee of machinery, by deed duly registered under the Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 23, granted to pltf. the full & exclusive licence to use & exercise the patented invention within a specified district for a limited period, & covenanted during that period not to sell or to grant any licence to exercise or use the invention to any other person in the same district; & in case the patent should be infringed, he covenanted to take all necessary proceedings for defending the same, & that in default of his so doing it should be lawful for pltf. to take such proceedings in his, the patentee's, name. The patentee afterwards sold two of the patented machines to firms outside the specified district, & these firms sold them to defts., who used them within the district; & it was in dispute whether or not defts. had actual notice of the exclusive licence at the time of their purchase:—Held: (1) actual notice had not been proved against defts.; (2) the exclusive licence, being simply an authority to do lawfully that which would otherwise have been unlawful, & not being a licence coupled with or equivalent to a grant, did not entitle the licencee to sue in his own name without joining the patentee.—HEAP v. HARTLEY (1889), 42 Ch. D. 461; 58 L. J. Ch. 790; 61 L. T. 538; 38 W. R. 136; 5 T. L. R. 710; 6 R. P. C. 495, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Re Apollinaris Co.'s Trade Marks "Apollinaris," "Friedrichshall," & "Hunyadi Janos" (1890), 63 L. T. 162; Scottish Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. Provincial Cinematograph Theatres (1915), 32 R. P. C. 353. As to (2) Refd. London Printing & Publishing Alliance v. Cox, [1891] 3 Ch. 291; Smelting Co. of Australia v. I. R. Comrs., [1896] 2 Q. B. 179; Fitzgerald v. Firbank, [1897] 2 Ch. 96; Neilson v. Horniman (1909), 26 T. L. R. 188; National Phonograph Co. of Australia v. Menck, [1911] A. C. 336; British Assocn. of Glass Bottle Manufacturers v. Forster (1917), 86 L. J. Ch. 489; British Actors Film Co. v. Glover, [1918] 1 K. B. 299.

1585. —— Number of licencees immaterial.]—The grant of an exclusive licence to use a patent does not invalidate the patent itself, although the patent may be vested in twelve persons; & it is wholly immaterial to its validity, in what number of persons such a licence is vested, whether exclusive or not. Such a licence would not be invalid, if the districts or district covered by the licence included the whole extent of the patent.—PROTHEROE v. MAY (1839), 5 M. & W. 675; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 414; 9 L. J. Ex. 121; 151 E. R. 286; previous proceedings, 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 60.

Annotation:—Refd. Bower v. Hodges (1853), 13 C. B. 765.

1586. —— Extent of licence immaterial.]—PROTHEROE v. MAY, No. 1585, ante.

1587. —— Irrevocable.]—A patentee, in consideration of a sum of money paid down & of royalties thereafter to be paid, by deed granted an exclusive licence for the manufacture & sale of the patented articles manufactured according to the patent. The licencees covenanted to pay the royalties & to push the invention, & were authorised to grant sub-licences. They had express power to revoke the licence, but no such power was reserved to the patentee. Disputes arose in consequence of improvements made by the licencees in the patented invention to which the patentee objected as deviations from the patent, & the royalty was withheld; thereupon the patentee by notice in writing purported to revoke the licence:—Held: (1) the licence was not revocable at the will of the patentee; (2) there had been no such breach of the conditions contained in the deed as would justify a revocation.—GUYOT v. THOMSON, [1894] 3 Ch. 388; 64 L. J. Ch. 32; 71 L. T. 124; 11 R. P. C. 541; 8 R. 810 on appeal, 71 L. T. 416, C. A.

SUB-SECT. 2.—IMPLIED LICENCE.

1588. Licence to use—Implied from unconditional sale.]—(1) In a suit to restrain the sale of a patented article, it is incumbent on pltf. not only to prove the sale, but to prove that the article was not made by himself or his agents. (2) Where the owner of a patent manufactures & sells the patented article in a foreign country as well as in England, the sale of the article in one country implies a licence to use it in the other. But if he has assigned his patent in either country, the article cannot be sold so as to defeat the rights of the assignee. The owner of an English patent manufactured the patented article in France as well as in England. In a suit to restrain the sale of the article in England, pltf. proved that it was not made at his manufactory in England, but could not prove that it was not made at his manufactory in France. The bill was dismissed with costs.—BETTS v. WILLMOTT (1871), 6 Ch. App. 239; 25 L. T. 188; 19 W. R. 369; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 61, C. A.

Annotations:—Generally, Consd. National Phonograph Co. of Australia v. Menck, [1911] A. C. 336. Refd. Soc. Anon. des Manufactures de Glaces v. Tilghman's Patent Sand Blast Co. (1883), 25 Ch. D. 1; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Isler, [1906] 1 Ch. 605; Scottish Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. Provincial Cinematograph Theatres & British Vacuum Cleaner Co. (1915), 32 R. P. C. 353.

1589. —— ——.]—The course of business of pltfs. in an action for infringement was to sell only through agents, whose dealings were restricted to their respective localities. Defts. employed a friend, who resided within the district of pltfs.' London agent, to purchase from that agent certain goods. After these were paid for by his friend, &, at request of the latter, consigned direct to deft. in the Isle of Wight, he first discovered, on unpacking, that each box had a notice on it containing certain restrictions as to the use of the goods. Deft. covered up the notices with his own labels, & resold the goods to his customers. His friend, when buying, never saw the boxes or the notices:—Held: deft. had not infringed.

PART XI. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2.

b. Licence to use—Whether implied from stamping of article.]—12 Vict. c. 24, s. 16, only requires the date of the patent to be stamped on articles sold or offered for sale, & does not make such stamping per se amount to a licence to use the invention.—SMITH v. MUTCHMORE (1861), 10 C. P. 391.—CAN.

That sale carried the right to use the mantles in any way deft. wished, unless he knew of the restrictions, which, if he knew at the time of the sale, would bind him (WILLS, J.).—INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. CANTELO (1895), 11 T. L. R. 381 ; 12 R. P. C. 262.

Annotations :—Apld. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Isler, [1906] 1 Ch. 605 ; National Phonograph Co. of Australia v. Menck, [1911] A. C. 336. Generally, Refd. Scottish Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. Provincial Cinematograph Theatres & British Vacuum Cleaner Co. (1915), 32 R. P. C. 353.

1590. —— —— Rebuttal of implication.] While a patentee is entitled by virtue of his statutory monopoly to impose conditions upon the sale of his patented article, the imposition of such conditions is not presumed, but, on the contrary, a sale having occurred, the presumption is that the full right of ownership was meant to be vested in the purchaser. The latter's right in the patented article will, however, be limited if there is brought home to him the knowledge of the conditions imposed, by the patentee or those representing the patentee, upon him at the time of sale.—NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH CO. OF AUSTRALIA, LTD. v. MENCK, [1911] A. C. 336 ; 80 L. J. P. C. 105 ; 104 L. T. 5 ; 27 T. L. R. 239, P. C.

Annotations :—Consd. Columbia Gramophone Co. v. Vanner (1916), 33 R. P. C. 104 ; Barker v. Stickney, [1918] 2 K. B. 356. Apld. Columbia Gramophone Co. v. Murray (1922), 39 R. P. C. 239. Refd. Scottish Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. Provincial Cinematograph Theatres & British Vacuum Cleaner Co. (1915), 32 R. P. C. 253.

1591. Licence to sell—Implied from licence to manufacture.]—A licence to A. to manufacture a patent article is an authority to his vendees to vend it without the consent of the patentee. THOMAS v. HUNT (1864), 17 C. B. N. S. 183 ; 144 E. R. 74.

Annotation :—Refd. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Isler, [1906] 1 Ch. 605.

SUB-SECT. 3.—FORMALITIES.

1592. Writing not under seal.]—Assumpsit for the price of a licence granted by pltf. to deft. to use an invention for a patent furnace. Pltf. having obtained the patent, granted defts. a licence, which was in writing, but not under seal, to use the patent ; & defts., having received the licence, kept it, & used the invention, but, when called upon to pay the price agreed upon, objected to pay for it, on the ground that it was void, as not being under seal. By the terms of the letters patent, all persons were commanded not to "make, use, or put in practice the said invention, or any part of the same, nor in anywise counterfeit, imitate, or resemble the same, not make, or cause to be made, any addition thereunto or subtraction from the same, whereby to pretend himself or themselves to be the inventor or inventors, deviser or devisers thereof, without the licence, consent, or agreement of the said C. the patentee, his exors., etc., in writing, under his or their hands & seals, first had & obtained," upon pain of a contempt of the royal command, & of being answerable to pltf. in damages :—Held : (1) defts., having obtained the licence they had bargained for, & kept it, were bound to pay for it ; (2) the licence was not void as not being under seal.—CHANTER v. DEWHURST (1844), 12 M. & W. 823 ; 13 L. J. Ex. 198 ; 3 L. T. O. S. 104 ; 152 E. R. 1432.

1593. Constructive agreement for licence—No formal deed.]—This was an action for a declaration that defts. were licencees under pltf.'s patent, which was for an invention of improvements in flats, & in fasteners for securing the card clothing thereon & thereto, & for an account of royalties. Defts. denied that they were licencees & that they made flats according to pltf.'s invention. According to the evidence, negotiations were entered into between pltf. & defts. which, in pltf.'s view, resulted in an arrangement for a licence ; defts. admittedly make flats for some time under pltf.'s patent & paid royalties, but they denied that they had ever actually taken a licence & alleged that they had paid all royalties due for flats made under pltf.'s patent ; that if there was a licence it was determinable at will, & had been determined ; they further alleged that the flats they were now making were not made according to pltf.'s invention, relying on certain prior specifications to give a limited construction to pltf.'s claim :—Held : (1) there was an agreement by defts. to pay, up to a certain date, royalties at a rate mentioned for all flats made under pltf.'s patent, which, in effect, constituted a licence ; (2) defts.' flats were a colourable imitation of pltf.'s, & a declaration was granted that defts. were licencees, that their flats apart from the licence was an infringement & defts. were bound to account.—TWEEDALE v. HOWARD & BULLOUGH, LTD. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 522.

1594. Verbal agreement.]—CROSSLEY v. DIXON, No. 1609, post.

1595. ——.]—C., being the patentee & owner of an invention, entered into the employ of L. under an arrangement whereby L. purchased C.'s stock of the patented goods, & was to be entitled to make & sell the patented articles. C. subsequently left L.'s employ, & commenced an action for infringement of the patent against L., & a second action also against P., who claimed to be the assignee of L.'s business. On behalf of L. & P., it was contended that C. had granted an irrevocable licence to manufacture & sell the patented articles :—Held : so far as the licence to L. was by parol, it was primâ facie revocable, & was in fact intended to be revocable, & the documentary evidence confirmed this view, & C. having revoked the licence, L. & P. must be restrained from infringing the patent.—COPPIN v. LLOYD, COPPIN v. PALMER (1898), 15 R. P. C. 373.

1596. ——.]—In 1913 a patent was granted for "improvements in winches for operating the rope of a duplex derrick." Between the times of the filing of the provisional & complete specifications, the patentee, under a verbal agreement, entered the service of a co. engaged in making windlasses as technical adviser & engineer draughtsman ; & the co. while the patentee was in their employment made & sold the patented windlasses. In 1919 the patentee commenced an action against the co. alleging that it was a term of the verbal agreement that, during pltf.'s service, the co. should have pltf.'s licence to make & sell windlasses under the patent, at a reasonable royalty, &, failing agreement between the parties, at such royalty as might be settled by arbn. He contended that he would have received at least 5 per cent. on the selling price of the windlasses. Defts. denied that they had agreed to accept a licence from pltf. :—Held : (1) pltf. had proved that the agreement for a licence had been made ; he was entitled to a reasonable royalty ; (2) as the agreement was verbal & defts. refused to refer the matter to arbn., the matter could not go to arbn. ; the matter should be referred to an official referee for inquiry & report under Arbitration Act, 1889 (c. 49), s. 13, & the costs up to the judgment should be paid to pltf., & the cost of the inquiry should be reserved.—FLEMING v. DOIG (J. S.) (GRIMSBY), LTD. (1921), 38 R. P. C. 57.

Sect. 1.—Voluntary licence: Sub-sects. 3, 4 & 5, A. & B.]

1597. Necessity for stamp.]—Semble: a licence, under seal, to use a patented article, does not require a stamp.—CHANTER v. JOHNSON (1845), 14 M. & W. 408; 14 L. J. Ex. 289; 5 L. T. O. S. 331; 153 E. R. 534.

1598. ——.]—WILSON v. UNION OIL MILLS CO., LTD. (1891), 9 R. P. C. 57.

1599. ——.]—SMELTING CO. OF AUSTRALIA v. INLAND REVENUE COMRS., No. 1577, ante.

1600. Registration of licence—Right against prior assignee.]—NEW IXION TYRE & CYCLE CO. v. SPILSBURY, No. 1566, ante.

SUB-SECT. 4.—CONDITIONS.

1601. Termination of licence—On declaration of invalidity.]—CHEETHAM v. NUTHALL (1893), 10 R. P. C. 321.

1602. Condition limiting manner of use.]—D. co. were the owners of the Welch patent for "Improvements in rubber tyres & metal rims or felloes of wheels for cycles & light vehicles." The mode of fastening the tyre on to the rim was by means of an endless inextensible wire. In 1893 & 1899 they licenced the N. co. to make tyres under this patent, but to fasten them on by overlapping the ends of the wires & passing them through holes in the rim, where they were to be secured by nuts. The deposited tyres & the drawing showed the holes in the shoulder of the rim. In 1900 the D. co. brought an action for infringement of the patent against the B. & A. co., who were selling tyres fastened by means of passing the ends through holes in the centre of the rim. They had purchased these tyres from the N. co. Defts. claimed to be entitled under the terms of the licence to sell such tyres, but pltfs. alleged that defts.' tyres were not covered by the licence:—Held: the licencees were not limited to using the tyres on any particular rim, & they were not bound by the words "mode of fastening" or otherwise to put the holes at any particular place in the cross-section of the rim.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. BUCKINGHAM & ADAMS CYCLE & MOTOR CO., LTD. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 423, C. A.

1603. Prohibited condition—Requiring purchase from grantor—Of article unprotected by patent.]—(1) The insertion in a licence to work a patented process of a condition requiring the licencee to purchase from the patentee an article not protected by the patent so far as it is required for use in the patented process is null & void under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 38 (1) (b).

(2) The insertion by the patentee in a licence of such a condition is by Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 38 (4), available to any person as a defence to an action for infringement of the patent.—SARASON v. FRÉNAY, [1914] 2 Ch. 474; 83 L. J. Ch. 909; 111 L. T. 919, C. A.

Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 38.

SUB-SECT. 5.—RIGHTS OF LICENCEES.

A. Right to Sue.

See Part XIV., Sect. 2, sub-sect. 1, A., post.

B. Right to Deny Validity of Patent.

1604. General rule.]—N. obtained a patent for the application of the principle of smelting iron by the use of heated air applied to furnaces. B. obtained a licence from him to use this process, on the payment of 1*s.* per ton on the iron thus smelted. Disputes, & then litigation, arose between them, & it was agreed by an instrument in writing, dated Nov. 11, 1833, which recited the previous circumstances, that both parties should withdraw their law processes; that, "in consideration of the present payment of £400 to be accepted by N. in full of 1*s.* per ton on the whole iron smelted from the erection of B.'s works up to the 11th day of Nov. current, & in consideration of the payment of 1*s.* per ton upon the whole iron which shall be smelted from the 11th of Nov. current till the expiry of the letters patent, by the use of heated air in any of the modes heretofore applied, or in any other mode falling under the said patent," N. should grant to B. a licence, which further on in the agreement was described to relate to "the application or use of heated air in any of the modes heretofore practised at B.'s works, or in any other mode falling under the description in said patent, or in the specification thereof." N. afterwards instituted a suit to compel B. to perform this agreement. B. instituted a cross-suit to suspend N.'s proceedings, on the ground that the process of smelting by heated air, used at B.'s works, did not fall within the patent:—Held: after this agreement, B. could not set up such a defence to the claim of N. —BAIRD v. NEILSON (1842), 8 Cl. & Fin. 726; 8 E. R. 285, H. L.

1605. ——.]—In an action of covenant, the deed was set forth on oyer, reciting a former deed between pltf. & deft., whereby pltf. licenced deft. to use a patent, of which pltf. appeared by the deed, as recited, to have obtained a regular grant. Qu.: whether deft. was estopped by the latter deed from denying that the patent was valid, as recited in the earlier deed, or only from denying that a deed alleging that fact was executed. By the earlier deed, pltf. licenced deft. to use his patent during a term, paying a stated royalty. By the deed declared upon, reciting the earlier deed & a subsequent contract of deft. with pltf. for purchase of half the patent, subject to the former deed but with benefit to deft. of half the royalty, pltf., in pursuance of the contract, & in consideration of £2,200 to be paid to him by deft., assigned the patent to a trustee, subject to the previous indenture, & in trust to apply the sums accruing from licences to use the patent, & like-

PART XI. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 4.

1602 i. Condition limiting manner of use.]—MACLAUGHLIN v. LAKE ERIE & DETROIT RIVER RY. CO. (1902), 3 O. L. R. 706; 22 C. L. T. 202; 1 O. W. R. 428.—CAN.

c. Option to purchase patent rights.]—FIRE EXTINGUISHER CO. v. NORTH WESTERN (BABCOCK) FIRE EXTINGUISHER CO. (1873), 20 Gr. 625.—CAN.

d. Licence to manufacture—Right of licencee to terminate.]—NOXON v. NOXON (1894), 24 O. R. 401.—CAN.

e. Restrictive conditions as to sale—Sale of articles second hand—Whether conditions affected.]—EDISON (THOMAS A.), LTD. v. STOCKDALE, [1919] N. Z. L. R. 276.—N.Z.

PART XI. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 5.—B.

1604 i. General rule.]—BEAM v. MERNER (1887), 14 O. R. 412.—CAN.

1604 ii. ——.]—Re ACT XV. OF 1859, Re MOSES (1888), I. L. R. 15 Calc. 244.—IND.

1604 iii. ——.]—An agreement to purchase a licence to use a patent will not, in equity, preclude a party from disputing its validity.—BAXTER v. COMBE (1850), 1 I. Ch. R. 284; 3 Ir. Jur. 27.—IR.

1604 iv. ——.]—CUMMINGS v. STEWART (No. 2), [1913] 1 I. R. 95.—IR.

wise to apply the royalties, for or under the direction of pltf. & deft. respectively, in specified proportions, & to stand possessed, as to one moiety of the letters patent, for pltf., as to the other, for deft. Pltf. covenanted that, for & notwithstanding any thing done, etc., by him, the patent was valid, & should be held & enforced by the trustee without lawful let, etc. by pltf., or any claiming under him, or by his act or default. Deft. covenanted with pltf. to pay him the £2,200 by instalments. To a declaration in covenant for non-payment of such instalments deft. pleaded, after oyer of the deed declared upon, that pltf. was not the first inventor; by reason whereof the patent, before the supposed breach of covenant, was void. Replication; estoppel:—Held: the plea was bad; no eviction was stated; &, in fact, the matter pleaded did not go to the whole consideration; since, even if the patent was void, the first executed deed would have bound deft., by estoppel, to payment of the royalty; &, by the later deed, he became entitled to half the royalty; the covenant to pay the £2,200 was an independent covenant, & capable of being enforced whether pltf.'s covenants were performed or not. —CUTLER v. BOWER (1848), 11 Q. B. 973; 17 L. J. Q. B. 217; 11 L. T. O. S. 173; 12 Jur. 721; 116 E. R. 736.

1606. ——.]—To an action to recover a sum of money payable by an agreement for a licence, not exclusive, to use a patent, which contained no warranty that the patent was good or any covenant by grantor to protect the patent, the licencee cannot plead that the patent was void.—BESSIMER v. WRIGHT (1858), 31 L. T. O. S. 213; 6 W. R. 719.

1607. ——.]—The declaration stated, that, by deed, reciting that pltf. had obtained a grant of letters patent for his invention of certain improvements in manufacturing & getting up wire rope, it was witnessed that pltf. did thereby grant to deft. full & exclusive licence & authority to use, exercise, & put in practice the said invention, & to sell the wire rope so to be made by him, within a given district in England, & deft. covenanted, amongst other things, "that he would well & truly pay to pltf. £1 per ton for all wire rope manufactured by him by the aid of the machinery of pltf. under & by virtue of the patent process," at the end of every three months; "that he would make & deliver to pltf. at the expiration of every three months a true statement in writing of the number of tons of rope so manufactured by him as aforesaid; & also should & would permit & suffer pltf. at all reasonable time to examine his books & accounts, for the purpose of ascertaining the accuracy of the statement thereby covenanted to be delivered:" & pltf. by the deed also covenanted with deft., that during the continuance of the grant thereby made he would not, without the consent in writing of deft., use, exercise, or put in practice, or vend, or grant to any other person or persons licence or authority to use, exercise, or vend wire rope manufactured as aforesaid within the district thereinbefore mentioned, but "that within such limits deft. should have & be entitled to the exclusive right, liberty, & privilege of manufacturing, vending, & disposing of wire rope made under & by virtue of said patent process." The breaches assigned were, (a) non-payment of the stipulated £1 per ton, (b) non-delivery of trimonthly accounts, (c) refusal to permit pltf. to examine deft.'s books & accounts. Deft. pleaded, fifthly that pltf. did not give, nor did deft. take or have, such exclusive licence within such district, as by the deed provided for, eleventhly, that the said invention was worthless & of no public utility or advantage, & was not new as to the public use thereof in England, & that pltf. was not the true & first inventor thereof; that deft. never got or took any advantage or benefit under said deed in regard to said invention; & that, at the time of the making of the deed, pltf. knew the matters aforesaid, & deft. did not, & had no notice or knowledge thereof:—Held: the fifth plea was bad, as traversing the effect of the deed; & the eleventh plea was also bad as a plea of failure of consideration, the licence being by deed, & not amounting to a plea of fraud.—SMITH v. SCOTT (1859), 6 C. B. N. S. 771; 28 L. J. C. P. 325; 5 Jur. N. S. 1356; 141 E. R. 654.

Annotation:—Apld. Grover & Baker Sewing Machine Co. v. Millard (1862), 8 Jur. N. S. 713.

1608. ——.]—If a patentee, in consideration of a royalty, grants to another a licence to use the patent invention, & the latter uses it, he cannot plead, as a defence to an action for the royalty, that the invention was not new, or that the patentee was not the first inventor.—NOTON v. BROOKS (1861), 7 H. & N. 499; 8 Jur. N. S. 155; 10 W. R. 111; 158 E. R. 569.

Annotation:—Apld. Grover & Baker Sewing Machine Co. v. Millard (1862), 8 Jur. N. S. 713.

1609. ——.]—The licencee under a patentee is estopped from disputing the validity of the patent during the continuance of the licence.

Applts. were the owners of patents for manufacture of carpets. Resp. applied for a licence to use the patents, & it was agreed that certain machines, embodying the inventions of applts., should be prepared under their superintendence, resp. paying for the machines, & also paying certain agreed royalties upon the carpets manufactured therewith. This agreement was acted upon, & whilst being acted upon resp. obtained, from a different quarter, other machines, which also embodied applts.' inventions, & used these machines as well as those supplied by applts. Applts. filed a bill in Chancery for an account of royalties in respect of the user of both sets of machines, whereupon resp., by way of defence to applts.' claims in respect of the machines not obtained from them, disputed the validity of applts.' patents:—Held: (1) the agreement constituted resp. a licencee of applts., &, so long as he thought fit to claim the benefit of the agreement in respect of the machines supplied by applts., he was estopped from denying the validity of the patents, & must pay royalties in respect of the user of both sets of machines; (2) no term being stipulated for the continuance of the agreement, resp. might, if he chose, decline to pay royalties thereunder altogether, leaving applts. to their remedy for infringement in respect of the use of any of the machines.—CROSSLEY v. DIXON (1863), 10 H. L. Cas. 293; 1 New Rep. 540; 32 L. J. Ch. 617; 8 L. T. 260; 9 Jur. N. S. 607; 11 W. R. 716; 11 E. R. 1039, L. C.

Annotations:—As to (1) Distd. Wren v. Weild (1869), 10 B. & S. 51; Axmann v. Lund (1874), L. R. 18 Eq. 330. Refd. Bovill v. Hadley (1864), 17 C. B. N. S. 435; British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1900] 1 Ch. 577. As to (2) Foll. Redges v. Mulliner (1892), 10 R. P. C. 21. Generally, Refd. Whitehead & Poole v. Farmer (1918), 35 R. P. C. 241.

1610. ——.]—(1) One who makes a patent article under a licence from the inventor, cannot, in an action against him for royalties, set up any objection to the novelty or utility of the invention or the validity of the specification.

(2) If the claim in the specification is susceptible of two constructions, one of which would make the specification bad & the other and more natural one would make it good, it is competent to him to insist that the latter is the true construction.—TROTMAN v. WOOD (1864), 16 C. B. N. S. 479; 143 E. R. 1214; subsequent proceedings, sub nom. Re TROTMAN'S PATENT (1866), 3 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 488, P. C.

Sect. 1.—Voluntary licence: Sub-sect. 5, B.; sub-sects. 6 & 7.]

Annotation:—As to (2) Refd. Adie v. Clark (1876), 3 Ch. D. 134.

1611. ——.]—(1) Pltf., as assignee of a patent for "Improvements in breechloading small arms," had by deed granted deft. a licence to use part of the invention comprised in such patent; & deft. by the same deed covenanted to pay certain royalties on all sporting guns and double rifles made under the licence & by means of the invention. Pltf. brought an action against deft. on the ground that certain guns manufactured by deft. which deft. denied were within the terms of the deed, were, in fact, made according to the patented invention, & came within the terms of the deed:—Held: deft. had not used pltf.'s invention in manufacturing the guns complained of.

(2) He has taken a licence under that patent, & for the purpose of this case pltf.'s patent must be considered as a good patent, & deft. cannot deny its goodness (BRETT, M.R.).—COUCHMAN v. GREENER (1884), 1 R. P. C. 197; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 58, H. L.

Annotation:—As to (1) Distd. Crosthwaite v. Steel (1889), 6 R. P. C. 190.

1612. ——.]—USEFUL PATENTS CO., LTD. v. RYLANDS (1885), 2 R. P. C. 255; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 234.

Annotation:—Apld. Ashworth v. Law (1890), 7 R. P. C. 231.

1613. ——.]—ASHWORTH v. LAW (1890), 7 R. P. C. 231.

——.] — See, also, ESTOPPEL, Vol. XXI., pp. 257, 284, Nos. 810, 811, 994.

1614. In absence of fraud.]—Action for a sum agreed to be paid to pltf. for each ton of an article manufactured & sold by defts. by the permission of pltf. to them given at their request, pltf. having letters patent for the sole manufacture & sale of that article. Plea, that the letters patent were void, & defts. had a right to make & sell the article without pltf.'s permission. On demurrer:—Held: a bad plea; for, the invention having actually been used by the permission of pltf., & there being no allegation of fraud, or of anything equivalent to eviction, defts. were not at liberty to set up as a defence that the patent was void.—LAWES v. PURSER (1856), 6 E. & B. 930; 26 L. J. Q. B. 25; 28 L. T. O. S. 84; 3 Jur. N. S. 182; 5 W. R. 43; 119 E. R. 1110.

Annotations:—Apld. Smith v. Scott (1859), 6 C. B. N. S. 771. Refd. Hall v. Conder (1857), 5 W. R. 742; Oxley v. Holden (1860), 8 C. B. N. S. 666. Mentd. Rowland v. Divall, [1923] 2 K. B. 500.

1615. ——.] — Pltf., a patentee, granted to defts. a licence of his patent for an improved method of securing elastic tyres on wheel rims. At the date of the licence pltf. had obtained provisional protection only. The licence was for a term of one year from Dec. 1, 1886, & further from year to year during the continuance of the letters patent to be granted, if granted, for the invention or any prolongation or extension thereof. Defts. paid the royalties for the first year, but refused to pay any further royalties on the ground that pltf. had agreed in the licence to complete the letters patent for the whole invention described in the provisional specification, & this he had failed to do. Defts. alleged that pltf. was compelled before the Comptroller to amend his specification, & to admit that he knew of the claims of certain prior patentees to be the true & first inventors, of the use of tyres with a helical spring core, & of the introduction into an india-rubber tyre of a core of corrugated spring wire, & to abandon his claim thereto. The claim so abandoned formed, on the contention of defts., the whole substance of pltf.'s invention as described in the provisional specification, & defts. alleged that it was the use of the invention so disclaimed that they desired & intended to obtain in taking the licence:—Held: (1) the licence ought not to be declared void, consideration having passed, & there being no misrepresentation in the deed by which the licence was granted; (2) defts.' attempt to show that there was a warranty for the whole invention which might by any chance be comprised in the provisional specification could not prevail, there being no warranty, but merely a covenant to complete the letters patent; (3) according to the deed itself, the bargain was that the royalty should be paid, & pltf. was therefore entitled to have an account of what was due for royalties.—OTTO v. SINGER (1889), 62 L. T. 220; 6 T. L. R. 52; 7 R. P. C. 7.

1616. Where validity guaranteed.]—Pltf. having agreed to procure the grant to deft. of a licence under a patent, & having agreed to guarantee the validity of the patent, & the contract being still executory, it was held that deft. was not estopped from alleging that the patent was invalid.—HENDERSON v. SHIELS (1906), 24 R. P. C. 108.

1617. Validity condition precedent.]—WILSON v. UNION OIL MILLS CO., LTD., No. 1598, ante.

1618. Patent unused by licencee.]—The declaration stated, that by a memorandum of agreement between pltf. of the one part, & defts. of the other, after reciting that by a certain other agreement between pltf. & defts., pltf. did not agree with defts. for the sale of W.'s patent furnace, & that pltf. & C. had obtained a patent for an improvement in generating the steam, & pltf. & one J. a patent for a metallic wheel & revolving axle, & that pltf. was solely interested in a patent for a new mode of abstracting heat from steam vapour; & that pltf. & one G. had obtained a patent for an improved furnace; it was agreed between the parties, that it should be lawful for defts. exclusively to use, manufacture sell & dispose of any or all of aforesaid patent inventions, upon this, among other considerations, that defts. should pay to pltf. £400 a year during the existence of said agreement. Breach, non-payment. Pleas, as to the patent for the supposed improvement in furnaces, that it was not a new invention, & that the supposed improvement in furnaces was not invented or found out by pltf.:—Held: as it did not appear by the declaration that defts. ever enjoyed any part of the patents, which was the consideration for their agreeing to pay £400 a year, or that sum could in any way be apportioned among the different patents, the plea impeaching the consideration was good, to avoid the whole contract.—CHANTER v. LEESE (1838), 4 M. & W. 295; 1 Horn & H. 224; 8 L. J. Ex. 58; 150 E. R. 1440; affd. (1839), 5 M. & W. 698, Ex. Ch.

Annotations:—Distd. Hall v. Conder (1857), 2 C. B. N. S. 22; Besseman v. Wright (1858), 6 W. R. 719. Consd. Smith v. Scott (1859), 6 C. B. N. S. 771; Cummings v. Stewart (1912), 30 R. P. C. 1. Mentd. Ellen v. Topp (1851), 20 L. J. Ex. 241; White v. Beeton (1861), 7 H. & N. 42.

1619. Equitable assignee of exclusive licence.]—A bill was filed by a patentee, against parties who had agreed to purchase from the sole licencee all his interest in the patent, & who were then carrying it on; & an injunction was moved for to prevent them from violating the covenants of the deed of licence. They denied the utility of the patent, & stated that they did not intend to use it. The motion stood over, with liberty for pltf. to bring an action at law :—Held : he was not entitled to any admissions from the defts. as to the validity of the patent, or as to their being licencees. —PIDDING v. FRANKS (1849), 1 H. & Tw. 220 ; 1 Mac. & G. 56 ; 18 L. J. Ch. 295 ; 13 Jur. 593 ; 47 E. R. 1392, L. C.

SUB-SECT. 6.—ASSIGNMENT OF LICENCE.

1620. General rule.]—A licence is not really assignable. The assignment acts only as an estoppel between the parties (JERVIS, C.J.)—BOWER v. HODGES (1853), 13 C. B. 765 ; 1 C. L. R. 807 ; 22 L. J. C. P. 194 ; 17 Jur. 1057 ; 138 E. R. 1402.

Annotation :—Apld. Lawson v. Macpherson (1897), 14 R. P. C. 696.

1621. Acceptance of royalties by patentee—From assignees—After assignment.]—The owner of a patent granted a licence to a licencee who traded as D. M. & Co. The licencee subsequently assigned the benefit of the licence to a limited co., known as D. M. & Co., Ltd. The co. paid royalties accrued due subsequently to the assignment by its own cheque :—Held : the patentee was estopped by the acceptance of the royalties from the limited co. from disputing the validity of the assignment. —LAWSON v. MACPHERSON & Co. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 696.

1622. Assignment to limited company—Constituted by original licencees.]—Pltf., owner of a patent for improvements in the bearings of bicycles, in 1885 granted to a firm of bicycle manufacturers a licence to use the invention within the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands & the Isle of Man, for the purpose of applying the invention to the wheels of bicycles, etc., manufactured for sale or use or otherwise by the licencees, or by persons employed by them, but not in any other manner, with a proviso that the licence should not be construed to permit the licencees to make or sell the patent bearings to be applied to the wheels of bicycles, etc., manufactured by any person or co. other than the licencees, or by persons employed by them ; & that the licence should not authorise the use of the invention by the licencees individually or separately, but only by the licencees jointly or such two or one of them as should continue to carry on the business hitherto carried on by the three licencees at Beeston, or the person or persons or co. from time to time carrying on such business.

In 1887 defts. were registered as a limited co. to acquire & carry on the business of the licencees & various other businesses at other places. Defts. claimed under the licence the right to manufacture the patent bearings at all the places where they carried on businesses, & also to apply the patent bearings to bicycles, etc., manufactured by them, at Beeston or elsewhere. Pltf. contended that the licence only authorised defts to manufacture the patent bearings at Beeston in connection with the business of the original licencees ; & secondly, only to apply the patent bearings to bicycles, etc., manufactured by them at Beeston in connection with the business ; & pltf. brought an action & moved for an injunction to restrain defts. from using the patent otherwise than according to pltf.'s construction of the licence :—Held : defts. as carrying on the original business of the licencees at Beeston, were entitled to start other businesses elsewhere, & to apply the patent bearings to any bicycles, etc., manufactured by them in such other businesses, & the action should be dismissed with costs.—BOWN v. HUMBER & Co., LTD. (1888), 6 R. P. C. 9.

1623. —— —— Liability to patentees.]—By an agreement of Mar. 3, 1897, made between pltf. co. & P., pltf. co. agreed to grant to P. an exclusive licence to use a patent in consideration of an annual payment to be made to pltf. co. by a co. in the course of formation by P. & on Mar. 4 the licence was granted to P. & was expressed to be in consideration of the agreement, & the payment therein agreed upon. By an agreement of Mar. 5, P. agreed to sell to a trustee for the intended co., which subsequently became deft. co., the agreement of Mar. 3 & the licence, & by an agreement of Apr. 8 under the seal of deft. co. the agreement of Mar. 5 was adopted by that co. Deft. co. acted in the belief that it was bound to pltf. co. to perform the obligations of the agreement of Mar. 3. In an action by pltf. co. against deft. co. to restrain an alleged breach of that agreement :—Held : (1) the ct. ought not to infer a contract between pltf. co. & deft. co., & there was no privity of contract between them ; (2) the obligations imposed by the agreement of Mar. 3 were not a burden attaching to the licence itself in the hands of any persons taking with notice.—BAGOT PNEUMATIC TYRE Co. v. CLIPPER PNEUMATIC TYRE Co., [1902] 1 Ch. 146 ; 71 L. J. Ch. 158 ; 85 L. T. 652 ; 50 W. R. 177 ; 18 T. L. R. 161 ; 46 Sol. Jo. 121 ; 9 Mans. 56 ; 19 R. P. C. 69, C. A.

Annotations :—As to (2) Apld. Barker v. Stickney, [1919] 1 K. B. 121. Refd. Dansk Rekylriffel Syndikat Akt. v. Snell, [1908] 2 Ch. 127 ; Macdonald v. Eyles, [1921] 1 Ch. 631.

SUB-SECT. 7.—REVOCATION OF LICENCE.

1624. Licence under seal—Not revocable at will.]—The owners of a patent granted a licence for the use & manufacture of their invention upon certain terms & conditions, no express power of revocation being reserved by the deed. Some of the terms & conditions were not complied with. Pltfs. thereupon gave notice to the licencees by letter dated Oct. 7, 1886, that the licence was determined : this was not assented to by defts., & pltfs. brought an action claiming a declaration that the licence had been determined & an injunction & accounts, & alleging fraudulent dealing on the part of defts. Defts. denied that they had wilfully or in fact broken any of the terms & conditions of the deed, & alleged in the alternative knowledge of & acquiescence in the breaches, if any, on the part of pltfs., & also denied that the licence had been determined :—Held : (1) the licence was one coupled with an interest, &, therefore, not revocable at will, but that it was liable to forfeiture in the event of the terms & conditions contained in the deed being broken ; (2) there had, in fact, been breaches of the terms & conditions of the licence, & pltfs. thereupon became entitled to treat the licence as forfeited, & to determine it ; (3) pltfs. had not by their conduct or otherwise deprived themselves of their right to treat the licence as forfeited & determined ; (4) the letter of Oct. 7, 1886, sufficiently indicated pltfs.' intention to treat the licence as determined, & an

---

PART XI. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 7.

f. Right of licencee to revoke—Licence to Government.]—WESTRALIAN POWELL WOOD PROCESS, LTD. v. R. (1921), 29 C. L. R. 458.—AUS.

Sect. 1.—Voluntary licence: Sub-sects. 7 & 8.]

instrument under seal was not necessary for this purpose.—WARD v. LIVESEY (1887), 5 R. P. C. 102.

Annotation:—Refd. Guyot v. Thomson (1894), 71 L. T. 416.

1625. Right of grantor to revoke—On breach by licencee — Sufficiency of notice.] — —— v. —— (1843), 1 L. T. O. S. 251.

1626. —— —— Default in payment of rent.]—Pltfs., the assignees of a patent, granted a licence to deft. to use the patent upon the terms of his paying an annual rent of £2000, to be made up at the end of each year, & reserved to themselves the power of determining the licence in the event of default being made in payment of this rent. Deft. failed in paying the rent; but pltfs., notwithstanding, for several years allowed deft. to use the patent, & received from him a less annual sum than that stipulated. At length, however, they determined the licence, having, subsequently to the expiration of the previous year, received from deft. payments on the footing of the reduced rent:—Held: by so doing, pltfs. had elected not to treat the previous breach as a forfeiture of the licence, & consequently they were not entitled to an injunction restraining deft. from using the patent.—WARWICK v. HOOPER (1850), 3 Mac. & G. 60; 17 L. T. O. S. 228; 42 E. R. 183.

1627. —— —— Mutual obligations.]—GUYOT v. THOMSON, No. 1587, ante.

1628. —— ——.]—WARD v. LIVESEY, No. 1624, ante.

1629. —— Parol licence.]—COPPIN v. LLOYD, COPPIN v. PALMER, No. 1595, ante.

1630. Right of licencee to revoke—No term fixed by licence.]—CROSSLEY v. DIXON, No. 1609, ante.

1631. —— ——.]—The owner of a patent, by agreement in writing, granted a licence to manufacture broughams under his patent, & the licencee covenanted to pay £5 for each carriage manufactured by him under the patent, the royalty to be paid on each carriage being built, & an account to be given before any carriage was completed. The patentee subsequently, on the licencee declining to pay royalties, commenced an action for an account of royalties, an injunction to restrain deft. from using pltf.'s invention except on the terms of the agreement, & damages. Deft. at first pleaded that the patent was invalid, but subsequently amended his defence, admitting manufacture of a certain number of carriages, & paying royalties into ct. for them, together with a sum for interest & damages, but denying that interest or damages were due, & stated that he had by notice determined the licence. Pltf. pleaded that the licence was for the life of the patent, & that the licencee could not determine the licence:—Held: pltf. was, if he desired it, entitled to an account of royalties due with interest, but at his risk as to costs; (2) deft. was entitled to terminate the licence.—REDGES v. MULLINER (1892), 10 R. P. C. 21.

1632. —— Right only reserved to licencor.]—Two similar agreements were, in 1891, entered into between pltf. & defts., by each of which pltf. agreed to let on hire & defts. agreed to take one of pltf.'s patented machines. Defts. thereby agreed to pay "by way of licence rent for the use of the "machinery" a monthly rent "during the continuance of this licence," & the licence contained numerous clauses, one of which defined the "licence term" as meaning "not only the terms of the letters patent mentioned in the second schedule hereto, but also any extension or prolongation thereof respectively, & the term of any letters patent to which F. C. shall or may become entitled for any improvement, alteration, or addition to the machinery during the licenced term." Defts. in 1894, asked pltf. to take back the machines, but he refused, & in 1896, commenced a county ct. action to recover arrears of rent. Defts. contended (inter alia) that they were not liable to pay the monthly rent after they had discontinued the use of the machines. Judgment was given for pltf. Defts. appealed. The Div. Ct. held that the licences were determinable at any time by the licencees on reasonable notice:—Held: on the true construction of the agreement & as it was thereby provided that pltf. might determine the licence, but there was no provision that the licencee might do so, the licence was not determinable by the licencees on reasonable notice.—CUTLAN v. DAWSON (1897), 14 R. P. C. 249; 13 T. L. R. 213, C. A.

1633. On six months' notice—Sufficiency of notice.]—On Oct. 9, 1914, a full, sole & exclusive licence was granted under a patent during the term & any extended term thereof subject to the following provision for revocation:—"Each party to this agreement shall be at liberty upon giving notice in writing before June 30, 1917, to the other party to determine these presents upon Dec. 31, 1917, & these presents shall thereupon cease & determine. Either party shall further be entitled at any time after June 30, 1917, to determine these presents upon giving six months' notice in writing of its intention so to do." The licencors by letter dated Dec. 24, 1919, posted in the United States, purported to give notice to determine the licence. This letter was received by the licencees on Jan. 6, 1920. The licencees brought an action for a declaration (inter alia) that this purported notice of determination of the licence was wholly void & inoperative & that the licence had not been determined thereby or at all & remained binding on first defts. Upon delivery of the statement of claim & before delivery of the defences defts. obtained an order under Ord. 34, r. 2, to the effect that the question of law whether the licence was determined by the letter &, if so, on what date, should be set down to be argued before the ct. & that all other proceedings in the action should be stayed until after the determination of such question. When the case came on for argument the points argued were, first, whether the words "six months" in the clause of the licence quoted above meant lunar months or calendar months, &, secondly, whether, on the construction of the letter, it was a notice to determine the licence on July 1, 1920:—Held: having regard to the context "six months" meant six calendar months & the letter was a notice to determine the licence on July 1, 1920, & was not a good notice.—ERITH ENGINEERING CO., LTD. v. SANFORD RILEY STOKER CO. & BABCOCK & WILCOX, LTD. (1920), 37 R. P. C. 217, C. A.

Annotation:—Mentd. Schiller v. Petersen, [1924] 1 Ch. 394.

SUB-SECT. 8.—ROYALTIES.

1634. Suspension of royalties—During period of infringement by third parties—Necessity for notice of infringement to patentee.]—Pltf., being possessed of a patent, granted to defts. the exclusive licence to work it in a certain district, by a deed by which the latter covenanted to pay certain royalties, & to give every information the better to enable the patentee to support the letters patent; & the patentee covenanted for quiet enjoyment of the patent by defts., & that, "in case any person should work the patented processes, the patentee would at his own costs commence & carry on all such actions, etc., as should be necessary to establish the validity of the patent, & to put a stop to the working of the patented processes by such person; & that, in case the patentee should fail or neglect so to establish or maintain the validity of the patent, & to put a stop to the working of the patented processes by such other person he, the patentee, would not call upon defts., nor should defts. be liable thenceforth to pay any royalty, until the patentee should by authority of law or otherwise have restrained such person from working under the letters patent":—Held: the condition for suspension of payment of the royalties did not come into operation until the patentee had notice of an infringement, & until the lapse of a reasonable time to allow him an opportunity of instituting proceedings to restrain it.—HENDERSON v. MOSTYN COPPER CO., LTD. (1868), L. R. 3 C. P. 202.

1635. Right to royalties disputed—Right of patentee to injunction restraining use of patent.]—The bill stated that pltf. had granted a licence to defts. to use a patent on payment of royalties, & prayed an account, & that, if defts. should dispute the right of pltf. to payment of the royalties, then that defts. might in the meantime be restrained from using the patent. Defts. demurred. Demurrer overruled, on the ground, that, if the licence was void, pltf. was entitled to the injunction.—HADDAN v. SMITH (1847), 16 Sim. 42; 17 L. J. Ch. 43; 10 L. T. O. S. 154; 11 Jur. 959; 60 E. R. 788.

1636. —— Action on covenant—Right of licencee to particulars.]—In an action by a patentee against his licencee on a covenant to pay for roving machines made with pltf.'s invention, & to make none without,—breach, in not paying for roving machines made with the invention; & in making machines without it; deft. having in answer to the interrogatories, admitted the making of many hundreds of roving machines, but not with pltf.'s invention, & declared that he could not state to whom they were sold, nor give any further information about them, without disclosing his own evidence; & pltf. claiming in respect of all the machines deft. had made, under one or other of the covenants, & asserting that he had seen some of them, which had his invention applied:—Held: deft. was entitled to such particulars as should describe those portions of the machines to which pltf. contended that his invention had been applied, so as to enable deft. to understand, as far as possible, the nature of the machines as to which he was to be charged under either of the covenants, & it was no answer to the application for such particulars that deft.'s answer to the interrogatories was insufficient to enable pltf. to furnish the particulars, for if the answers were insufficient, they should have been objected to.—JONES v. LEES (1856), 25 L. J. Ex. 241; subsequent proceedings, 1 H. & N. 189.

1637. Defences to demand for royalties—In validity of patent established in action against third party.]—The fact of a patent having been found invalid at law, upon proceedings between the patentee & third parties, is no answer to a suit, based upon the same patent, for an injunction & consequent relief against a licencee who has covenanted to pay royalties, & is selling the invention, contrary to his covenant, without payment of the royalties.—GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINE CO. v. MILLARD (1862), 8 Jur. N. S. 713.

1638. —— Failure of patentee to maintain patent.]—MILLS v. CARSON (1892), 10 R. P. C. 9; 9 T. L. R. 80; 37 Sol. Jo. 64, C. A.

Annotation:—Mentd. Lines v. Usher (1897), 14 R. P. C. 206.

1639. —— Expiry of patent.]—The owner of several patents granted a licence to use the patents during all the residues unexpired of the terms for which they wer granted, the licencees covenanting to pay a royalty for all steel produced by them during the continuance of the licence in the production of which any of the inventions were used; & it was also provided that the royalties should continue until the expiration of all the terms of years respectively granted by the patents. Subsequently the patentees brought an action for royalties, alleging that all the patents had not expired, & that defts. were using the inventions & refused to pay royalties. Defts. denied infringement, & contended that, at any rate, royalties were only paid in respect of the patents still in force:—Held: the royalties must be paid for the use of the inventions so long as any of the patents were subsisting, but defts. were not using the inventions.—SIEMANS v. TAYLOR (1892), 9 R. P. C. 393.

1640. —— ——.]—Pltfs. were the owners of certain English & foreign patents for apparatus used in duplex telegraphy, granted to defts. licences to use the apparatus on payment of royalties for the whole period during which the patents should last. Pltfs. sued for royalties due on Sept. 29 & Dec. 25, 1891, which defts. refused to pay on the ground that on July 1, 1891, all the patents had expired. Pltfs. contended that an American patent granted Nov. 16, 1880, for 17 years to plft. A. was still subsisting. By American law every patent granted for an invention previously patented in a foreign country where the foreign patent was taken out by the American patentee or by some person with his knowledge & consent, should be so limited as to expire at the same time with the foreign patents. Defts. alleged that pltfs.' American patent was for the same invention as was comprised in an English patent, No. 2564, granted June 20, 1876, to pltf. J. & therefore expired on June 20, 1890. In answer to this pltfs. contended (a) that the defence that the American patent had expired by reason of the expiration of a prior English patent for the same invention was an attack on the validity of the patent, & could not be raised by defts., being licencees; (b) that by the agreement the obligation on defts. was to continue during the whole period for which the patents should last, & that that meant as long as the patents lasted on the face of them; (c) that as the American patent was granted to A. & the English patent to J., under the American law, the American patent did not expire with the English patent; (d) that it

PART XI. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 8.

1638 i. Defences to demand for royalties—Failure of patentee to maintain patent.]—CUMMINGS v. STEWART (NO. 2), [1913] 1 I. R. 95.—IR.

g. —— Plea of want of novelty.]—GRAY v. BILLINGTON (1871), 21 C. P. 288.—CAN.

h. —— Unreasonable demand—How determined.]—INTERNATIONAL CONE CO., LTD. v. CONSOLIDATED WAFER CO., [1926] 2 D. L. R. 1015; [1926] Exch. C. R. 143.—CAN.

k. Income tax on royalties—Liability of licencor.]—Re POPE ALLIANCE CORPN., LTD., [1926] 4 D. L. R. 1152.—CAN.

l. Extent of licencee's liability—Royalty on articles sold by order of court—At instance of creditor.]—A was not proper nor convenient for the English cts. to decide the question of American law, whether the American patent had expired, in the absence of an American decision:—Held: it was settled American law that though an American patent on the face of it was not limited so as to expire on the expiration of a previous foreign patent for the same invention, but contained an express grant for seventeen years, nevertheless it did so expire by operation of law; the American patent was not void ab initio, because the grant was not limited as it ought to have been, but was a good grant expiring at the date of the foreign patent, & no American judicial proceedings were required to bring about such expiration; it was permissible for defts., though licencees, following the analogy of lessor & lessee to show that the licencor's right had expired; & by the agreement royalties were payable as long only as the patents lasted as patents according to law, & there was no estoppel to prevent defts. from showing the true effect of the patent according to the American law; the English patent was granted with the knowledge & consent of A. & therefore the American law of expiration would apply if the patents were in fact for the same invention; as by art. 9 of the agreement it was provided that the contract was to be read as an English contract, & all questions arising thereon were to be decided by an English tribunal, to the jurisdiction of which the parties submitted, the ct. ought to decide the point whether the American patent had expired, though it involved questions of American law.—MUIRHEAD v. COMMERCIAL CABLE CO. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 317; affd. on appeal, 12 R. P. C. 39.

Sect. 1.—Voluntary licence: Sub-sect. 8.]

1641. —— Cancellation of patent.]—Where a patentee has, in consideration of royalties, given a licence to use the patent, the mere cancellation of the patent, after the agreement has been partly performed, does not release the licencee from his obligation to pay royalties.—AFRICAN GOLD RECOVERY CO., LTD. v. SHEBA GOLD MINING CO., LTD. (1897), 2 Com. Cas. 277; 14 R. P. C. 660.

1642. —— Misrepresentation.]—A licencee who is counterclaiming for rescission of his licence, on the ground of misrepresentation as to what were "controlling patents," may not put in evidence the specification of prior patents to show the state of public general knowledge at the date of the licence.—JANDUS ARC LAMP & ELECTRIC LIGHT CO. v. JOHNSON (1900), 17 R. P. C. 361.

1643. Licence from assignee—Duty of licencee to account to assignor.]—E. being owner of one-third of an American patent, assigned his interest therein to N., the legal owner of the other two-thirds, in consideration of receiving one-fifth of the profits to arise from sale of the invention in America, for which N. agreed to account to him, & he deprived himself of all right to interfere in arrangements made for licencing such sales. N. was in this transaction the agent of a co. who were beneficial owners of the two-thirds of the American patent, & of an English patent for the same invention, & was the exclusive manufacturer of the invention in England, but bound to supply his manufacture to the co. only. The co. granted to G. an exclusive licence for the sale of the invention in America, supplying him with machines at certain prices higher than those at which they bought from N., & receiving from G. one-third of the net profits arising from the American sales:—Held: (1) G. was not liable to account to E. for his profits; (2) the co. were bound to account to E. for profits arising from the sales to G. at higher prices than were paid to N.; (3) N. was not bound to account to E. for the profits arising from the manufacture of the invention.—EDWARDS v. NORMANDY (1864), 3 New Rep. 562; 12 W. R. 548.

1644. Assignment of share of royalties—Right of assignee to account.]—When an assignment is made of a share of profits, arising, e.g., from the working of a patent by licencees, the assignee is entitled to an account from the licencee, but the account must be taken once for all in the presence of all the parties interested. The licencee is not bound to account to the assignor & to each assignee of a share separately. The assignee who asks for an account must place himself in the position of the assignor by offering to pay to the accounting party anything which may be due to him by the assignor. An account of profits will not be directed if it is clear that no profits have been made.—BERGMANN v. MACMILLAN (1881), 17 Ch. D. 423; 44 L. T. 794; 29 W. R. 890.

Annotation:—Mentd. Public Trustee v. Elder, [1926] Ch. 776.

1645. Recovery of royalties paid by licencee—Patent allowed to lapse by patentee.]—By an agreement, A. & B., patentees, granted an exclusive licence to C. & D. for three years & thenceforward until determined, & A. & B. covenanted during the continuance of the agreement to protect & defend the patent from all infringements, & in default of their so doing the royalty should cease to be payable. The patent lapsed at the end of three years, but C. & D. paid royalties for another year, when they terminated the agreement by notice. They then discovered the lapse of the patent, & brought this action to recover the royalties paid after the lapse. It appeared that B. had assigned all his interest to A. & that A. had agreed, as between himself & B., to keep up the patents & pay the renewal fees:—Held: the case depended on the construction of the agreement; by clause 6, defts. were obliged to defend the patent against infringers, & therefore to keep the patent in such a position that they were able to do so; defts. had therefore broken their contract, & the clause provided that in that case the royalties should cease to be payable; pltfs. were therefore entitled to recover them back.—LINES v. USHER (1897), 14 R. P. C. 206, C. A.; previous proceedings, 13 R. P. C. 685.

1646. Royalties payable to servant—Termination of employment by servant.]—In an action for royalties in respect of certain patents, relating particularly to the electric lighting of railway trains, pltf. contended that his rights were governed by the last of three agreements made by him with his employers, defts.; that a notice given by him had only the effect of determining his managership; & that, under that agreement, he was entitled, in respect of combination claims, to royalty on the price of the whole combination. Alternatively, he claimed a declaration as to the person who is under an obligation to pay a royalty on all patented articles sold by him, is liable for the royalty on such as may be sold while in his possession by authority of justice, at the instance of a creditor.—DOYON v. CANADIAN FIRE EXTINGUISHING CO. (1898), Q. R. 14 S. C. 367.—CAN.

m. —— Royalty on articles sold otherwise than under licence.]—NEIL v. MACDONALD, MACDONALD v. NEIL (1903), 20 R. P. C. 213.—SCOT.

n. Assignment by licencee — Judgment against licencee for royalties received—Unsatisfied—Right of licencor to account.]—HOFFMAN v. MCCLOY (1916), 38 O. L. R. 446.—CAN.

o. Whether agent liable—Agent for sale—Entitled to use patent article in manner in which royalty should be calculated. He also claimed a declaration that defts. were not entitled to grant licences under the patents without his consent. Defts. contended that the notice had determined the third agreement, & that pltf.'s rights were governed by the first of the agreements. They alleged that the devices protected by the later patents were combinations consisting of the systems covered by the earlier patents with small modifications, & contended that pltf. was only entitled to royalty on the parts that were new. Evidence was given on that issue. Defts. made a counterclaim for a declaration that they were entitled to an assignment of the patents:—Held: (1) pltf.'s notice had merely determined his managership, the third agreement was still subsisting, & pltf. was entitled to royalty on the footing of that agreement; (2) defts. were only entitled to grant licences upon such terms as they & pltf. thought fit; (3) defts. were entitled to have an assignment of the patents.—GILL v. STONE & CO., LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 329.

1647. —— Verbal agreement.] — FLEMING v. DOIG (J. S.) (GRIMSBY), LTD., No. 1596, ante.

1648. Implied covenant to pay—Statute of Limitations.]—In 1898 letters patent were granted to G. for an invention relating to machines for folding & filling with cigarettes cardboard slides & enclosing them within outer cases or shells. In 1901, G. applied for two patents, one in respect of an invention relating to machines for making the outer cases or shells above referred to, & the other in respect of an invention relating to a hopper to be used for the purpose of filling the slides above referred to with cigarettes. On Aug. 13, 1902, G. entered into two agreements with S. In the first of them it was recited that G. had invented a combined shell & slide making & cigarette packing with tinfoil covering appliance, & that the patent of 1898 had been granted on part of such machine & that the two British applications had been made by him on further parts of such machine & that an United States application had been made by him for such combined machine, & G. agreed to sell to S. for £4,000 a tenth share in the said invention & of all patents, British, foreign & colonial relating thereto as well granted as to be granted & in all improvements & additions thereto & of & in all profits arising therefrom; provision was made for the maintenance of the patents, the funds to be found by the parties in proportion to their shares with provisions, on the refusal of either party, giving the other the right to maintain with a charge on the other party's share of his proportion with interest. G. was to employ a reasonable amount of his time in manufacturing & selling machines & was not to invent, dispose of, or construct any other machine "of a like nature." By the second agreement S. agreed to grant to G., so far as S.'s interest in the patents, a licence for the residue of the term of the patents, subject to royalties on machines sold. By a deed of Apr. 28, 1904, G. assigned to S. one-tenth part of the said inventions & British patents & of all improvements or additions to said inventions & of or in all rights, etc., in respect of the British patents or any of them, & S. confirmed to G. the licence granted or agreed to be granted subject to the royalty. A patent of 1902 was granted to G. in respect of an invention relating to the wrapping of cigarettes in tinfoil. This was not a success & G. obtained a patent in 1904 for an improved apparatus, but this was not designed to form part of the combined machine, but was a separate machine. In 1905, G. rendered to S. an account of machines, three in number, admitted to come within the agreement, but, by mistake, omitted one machine. None of the combined machines were afterwards sold, but G. continued to manufacture & sell the machines covered by the patent of 1904, but paid no royalties to S. on them. In 1906 & 1907, S. pressed for an account. In 1910, G. applied for a patent for an invention consisting of a machine designed to make a double or single packet without any slide or shell & without any tinfoil wrapping, & to fill such packet with cigarettes. In 1917, after other applications for an account, S. commenced an action against G. claiming a declaration that (inter alia) the patents of 1904 & 1910 were for improvements within the meaning of the agreements & deed, damages for breach of the agreements & in particular by reason of G. inventing, constructing, or disposing of other machines "of a like nature" within the first agreement, & by reason of deft. having allowed some of the patents to lapse & for an account & payment. Deft. denied that the patents of 1904 & 1910 were improvements & he set up the Stat. Limitations & paid money into ct. with a denial of liability. In the course of the trial, however, the invention of 1904 was admitted to be within the agreements as an improvement on that of 1902. Pltf. in reply, alleged fraud:—Held: the charge of fraud was wholly unfounded; the invention covered by the patent of 1910 was not an improvement or addition to the invention of a combined shell & slide making & cigarette packing machine with a tinfoil covering appliance, or to the invention of any one or more of the parts of such machine; machines made under it were not machines of "a like nature" within the first agreement; even if they were, pltf. had suffered no damage by the alleged breach, & at the utmost would be entitled merely to nominal damages; although the deed imposed an obligation on deft. to contribute his proportion of the renewal fees in respect of the British patents, pltf. had, in any case, suffered no damage by the lapse of them, & at the utmost was only entitled to merely nominal damages, which were assessed at £2; as regards the foreign & colonial patents there was an express obligation under the first agreement on deft. to provide his proportion of funds to maintain them, but as regards any that lapsed before Sept. 1911, Stat. Limitations was a defence, & as regards any that may have lapsed afterwards, pltf. had suffered no damage, & the nominal damages were covered by the £2; as regards the royalties, which deft. ought to have paid, there was a net balance of £320, & pltf. was a specialty creditor, by reason of the confirmation in the deed of 1904 of the licence, as deft. must be held to have impliedly covenanted to pay the royalties reserved by the licence of 1902.—SADGROVE v. GODFREY (1919), 37 R. P. C. 7.

1649. Non-payment of royalties—Operating as termination of licence—Rights of sub-licencees.]—By a series of licences & assignments of licences to use certain patents a co. became licencors in respect of a licence hereinafter called the head licence. That licence having been determined by reason of non-payment of royalties, the licencors brought actions against two sub-licencees own trade.]—Where an agent for the sale of a patent article is entitled to use it in his own trade, he is not bound to account for the nett profits of each job in which he so uses it, but only for the market value of the article itself as fixed by the patentee.—GILKISON v. RAMAGE & SON (1851), 1 Stuart, 88.—SCOT.

Sect. 1.—Voluntary licence: Sub-sect. 8. Sect. 2: Sub-sect. 1.]

for (inter alia) an order to restrain defts. from holding themselves out as licencees or sub-licencees. On the hearing of motions, which were treated as the trial of the actions, defts. contended that pltfs. had no right to maintain the actions, that their proper course would have been to bring infringement actions, that it had not been shown that defts. knew the terms of the head licence, & that defts. had expended large sums of money in working the patents, & were entitled to equitable relief against forfeiture. Pltfs. contended that there was no privity between the licencors & the sub-licencees, & that pltfs. had not any knowledge of the expenditure of defts. :—Held: the relations of the parties were to be determined by the contract into which the parties had entered; defts. had probably known what was the licence under which the head licencees were purporting to grant the sub-licences; the terms of the deeds by which the head licence had been granted showed that none of the parties had contemplated that, if an intermediate licence was dropped out, the antecedent licencor was subjected to the obligations created in favour of the sub-licencee; & in the events that had happened, the sub-licences had ceased to operate simultaneously with the putting an end to the head licence.—BALDWIN (A.) & CO., LTD. v. GREENWOOD & BATLEY, LTD., BALDWIN (A.) & CO., LTD. v. MAGNETIC CAR CO., LTD. (1925), 42 R. P. C. 454.

1650. Income tax on royalties—Cesser of royalties before year of assessment.]—Finance Act, 1907 (c. 13), s. 25 (1) does not apply where by arrangement between the person owning & the person using the patent all royalties & other sums in respect of the user thereof have ceased to be payable before the year of assessment.—LANSTON MONOTYPE CORPN., LTD. v. ANDERSON, [1911] 2 K. B. 1019; 80 L. J. K. B. 1351; 105 L. T. 398; 5 Tax Cas. 675, C. A.

SECT. 2.—COMPULSORY LICENCE.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

See, now, Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), ss. 1, 2; Patent Rules, 1920, rr. 69–75.

1651. "Reasonable requirements of public"—Meaning of.]—In 1886 letters patent were granted to B., B., & S. for "improvements in arrangements & mechanism to facilitate the rapid application of type representing late news or matter to & the printing of the same by newspaper printing machines," & in 1888 letters patent were granted to the same persons for improvements relating to the same class of machinery & having a like object. The first patent became vested in a firm of T., G., & Co., who also became equitably entitled to the 1888 patent. In Nov. 1897, H. & co. presented a petition to the Board of Trade for an Order for the grant of a compulsory licence under the patents, & the petition was heard before a referee appointed by the Board of Trade. One of the patentees had been served but did not appear. It appeared from the evidence that T., G., & co. had granted licences to newspapers in various towns, but for Manchester & district they had granted an exclusive licence to use the inventions to an evening paper with which they had certain commercial relations. Petitioners were the owners of another evening newspaper in Manchester, & alleged that, by reason of the default of the patentees to grant licences on reasonable terms, the reasonable requirements of the public with respect to the inventions could not be supplied. T., G., & co. had refused to grant a licence to petitioners owing to the contract with their exclusive licencee. It was contended for petitioners that, whether the public formed of the persons who wished to use the invention, or the public constituted by the readers of petitioners' newspaper, were regarded, the reasonable requirements of the public could not be supplied. For resps., it was contended that, as regards the first class, the evidence only showed an individual complaint on the part of petitioners, & that, as regards the second class, the benefit of the invention was open to the members of it, since they could obtain the benefit by purchasing the newspaper licenced by resps. The highest royalty charged by resps. had been £15 per machine. The referee having reported to the Board of Trade, an Order was made for the grant by the patentees, which expression included the members of the firm of T., G., & co., to petitioners of a licence to use the inventions claimed in the patents at a royalty of £20 per machine.—Re HULTON & BLEAKLEY'S PETITION (1898), 15 R. P. C. 749.

1652. —— Default in supplying—To individual.]—(1) The object of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24, relating to the grant of a compulsory licence is to meet failure on the part of the patentee to satisfy the reasonable requirements of the public as distinct from those of particular individuals.

(2) Mere default in supplying the patented article or granting a licence to an individual does not necessarily amount to default in supplying the patented article or granting licences within Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24 (5) (a).

(3) The expression "trade or industry" in Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24 (5) (a), is to be read in a wide sense, as one speaks of the cotton or woollen trade or industry, so that it is not enough to establish that a particular trader is unfairly prejudiced; it must be further proved that the trade or industry as a whole is thus affected.

(4) The "establishment of any new trade or industry" referred to in Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24 (5) (a), is a different thing from the entry of a particular person into an existing trade or industry.

(5) The "demand" referred to in Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24 (5) (a), is not the demand of a particular person, but that of the public at large.

(6) If the default towards the public is established, Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24, confers two alternative rights; first, a right in the individual who presents the petition to have a licence granted to himself; &, secondly, a right in the public, in the circumstances mentioned in Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24 (3), to be relieved from the effects of the patentee's monopoly by the revocation of the patent.

(7) An order under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24, should not take the form of a general direction to grant licences, but should direct the grant of a licence to petitioner. Another person requiring a licence would have to present a petition of his own.

p. Licence unreasonably withheld.]—INTERNATIONAL CONE CO., LTD. v. CONSOLIDATED WAFER CO., [1926] 2 D. L. R. 915; [1926] Exch. C. R. 143.—CAN.

(8) A patentee may use the advantage given by his patent either by putting it in operation, himself supplying the public with the article or by licencing others to do so. If he himself maintains an adequate supply there is no necessity from the public point of view for a grant of licences & Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24 (5), contemplates these alternatives as legitimate modes of working a patent. It is not enough, therefore, for a petitioner to prove that the patentee makes default in one of these alternative modes; he must prove that the patentee has made default in the other also.

Petitioners were the proprietors of a patent of 1911 for an improvement in incandescent electric lamps with two filaments & therefore alleged to have greater durability than the ordinary type of lamp with one filament only, & to make their invention a commercial success desired to use drawn tungsten wire. Two resps. were the respective owners of several patents relating to incandescent electric lamps with drawn tungsten wire filaments, the manufacture of such wire being covered by the patents, & had granted to each other & to other persons licences thereunder, & thus through themselves & their licences controlled the industry to a large extent. To prevent the cutting of prices resps. required from their licencees an undertaking not to sell their lamps below certain list prices, the result being that the price in this country was considerably higher than abroad, but not so high as in the opinion of the ct. to be unreasonable, while the supply of lamps was adequate to meet the demands of the public. Petitioners or their predecessors in title had requested one of resps. to quote a price for the making for petitioners of their double filament lamps, which resp. consented to do, stipulating, however, that the lamps should not be sold at a price less than 1*s.* in excess of resps.' price list. Petitioners declined this offer & applied to both resps. to supply them with the wire made under the patents relating thereto, which both resps. declined to do. Petitioners then inquired on what terms each of resps. would grant a licence to manufacture the wire. Neither of resps. complied with this request, though one of them offered to sell the wire at a price which petitioners regarded as excessive. This petition for the grant of a compulsory licence was then presented. There was no trade or industry with which the wire was connected except the making & selling of electric lamps & there was no demand for the wire except in that connection:—Held: petitioners had failed to establish a case for the grant of a compulsory licence under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24.—Re ROBIN ELECTRIC LAMP CO.'S PETITION, [1915] 1 Ch. 780; 84 L. J. Ch. 500; 113 L. T. 132; 31 T. L. R. 309.

1653. —— —— Alternative remedies.] —Re ROBIN ELECTRIC LAMP CO.'S PETITION, No. 1652, ante.

1654. —— —— Proof of default.]—Re ROBIN ELECTRIC LAMP CO.'S PETITION, No. 1652, ante.

1655. "Trade or industry"— Not particular trades.]—Re ROBIN ELECTRIC LAMP CO.'S PETITION, No. 1652, ante.

1656. "Establishment of new trade or industry —Not entry of person to one existing.]—Re ROBIN ELECTRIC LAMP CO.'S PETITION, No. 1652, ante.

1657. "Demand"—Of public at large.]—Re ELECTRIC LAMP CO.'S PETITION, No. 1652, ante.

1658. "Patentee"—Person entitled to benefit.] —The D. co. were the owners of B.'s patent relating to bicycle tyres or rims, subject to certain licences. An American co. were the owners of another patent relating to bicycle wheels, namely, for a combination consisting of a special form of wooden rim & special form of tyre to fit it, & they presented a petition to the Board of Trade for the grant to them of a compulsory licence under B.'s patent on the grounds that (a) the reasonable requirements of the public with respect to the invention could not be supplied, & (b) that petitioners were prevented from working or using to the best advantage their own invention. It appeared that B.'s patent had been owned, subject to a licence, by the N. B. co., who had assigned it to the D. co. in consideration of a sum of money & the grant of a licence to the N. B. co., & an agreement by the D. co. only to grant one further licence. Such licence had been granted to the C. co. The existence of such licences was one of the grounds of the refusal of the D. co., previously to the presentation of the petition, to grant a licence to petitioners. The N. B. co. & the C. co. applied to the Board of Trade for & obtained leave to appear & oppose the petition. The licensees, in their affidavits, expressed their willingness to supply petitioners with tyres of the special form covered by petitioners' patent. At the hearing the D. co. & the licensees objected to the petition being amended by making the licensees resps., but the petition was subsequently ordered to be amended by adding the N. B. co. & any other person interested in the patent. It was contended by resps. that the existence of an exclusive licence precluded any jurisdiction in the Board of Trade to order the grant of a compulsory licence; they also objected that petitioners did not carry on their manufacture in England. The N. B. co. in their declaration stated that they were prepared to supply petitioners, & in the course of the hearing they made an offer to petitioners to supply them with tyres of their special form on certain terms, & evidence was heard as to the reasonableness of such offer. Such offer was at first made "without prejudice," but the referee refusing to receive it in that form these words were withdrawn. It was contended, for petitioners, that it was sufficient for them to show a default in granting a licence before the presentation of the petition. During the hearing the referee intimated that he proposed to report to the Board of Trade on the following points:—(1) the "patentee," in Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 22, means the person or persons for the time being entitled to the benefit of the patent; if such person or persons were before the Board of Trade it had jurisdiction, but the respective rights of the persons entitled might affect the discretion of the Board of Trade; & it was not necessary that there should be default on the part of each of such persons; (2) the Board of Trade has jurisdiction to allow an amendment of a petition by adding the names of persons appearing, after the presentation of the petition, to be interested in the patent; (3) in a case in which petitioners' invention was an improved variety of a species covered by resps.' patent, the Board of Trade ought not to order the grant of a licence if resps. make a reasonable offer to manufacture such improved variety; (4) the offer by the N. B. co. was a reasonable one.

(5) The Board of Trade has no jurisdiction over the costs of a petition for a compulsory licence. —Re BARTLETT'S PATENT (1899), 16 R. P. C. 641.

Sect. 2.—Compulsory licence: Sub-sect. 2. Sects. 3 & 4. Part XII. Sect. 1.]

SUB-SECT. 2.—PROCEEDINGS.

See, now, Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), ss. 1, 2; Patent Rules, 1920, rr. 69–75.

1659. Jurisdiction of Board of Trade—To allow amendment — After presentation of petition.]—Re BARTLETT'S PATENT, No. 1658, ante.

1660. —— To award costs.]—There is no jurisdiction [in the Board of Trade] where a compulsory licence is dismissed to award costs.—Re CONTINENTAL GAS GLUHLICHT ACT. METEOR PETITION (1898), 15 R. P. C. 727.

—Re BARTLETT'S PATENT, No. 1658, ante.

1662. Grant of licence—To whom granted—Petitioner only.]—Re ROBIN ELECTRIC LAMP CO.'S PETITION, No. 1652, ante.

1663. —— Patent manufactured abroad.]—Re LEVINSTEIN'S PETITION (1898), 15 R. P. C. 732.

1664. —— Reasonable offer to supply petitioners.]—Re BARTLETT'S PATENT, No. 1658, ante.

1665. —— Stay pending arrangements.]—Re INTERTYPE LTD.'S APPLICATION FOR THE GRANT OF A COMPULSORY LICENCE IN RESPECT OF LETTERS PATENT No. 2562 OF 1914 (KENNEDY) (1926), 43 R. P. C. 305.

1666. Particulars of opposition—Right of petitioner to inspect.]—When a petition for the grant of a compulsory license has been referred to the ct. by the Board of Trade pursuant to Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24, petitioner is not entitled to particulars of the grounds of opposition stated in any notice of opposition given by the patentee pursuant to Patents Rules, 1908, r. 70, the grounds of opposition stated in such notice being matter for the consideration of the Board of Trade alone, & not a proceeding under the petition when it has been referred to the ct.—Re ROBIN ELECTRIC LAMP CO., LTD., [1914] 2 Ch. 461; 84 L. J. Ch. 49; 111 L. T. 1062.

SECT. 3.—LICENCE FOR PRODUCTION OF FOOD OR MEDICINE.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 11 (1); Patent Rules, 1920, r. 85.

1667. To whom granted—Actual food manufacturers.]—A Comptroller's licence under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 38A (2), "limited to the use of the invention for the purposes of the preparation or production of food . . . but not otherwise" can only be granted to actual food manufacturers. It cannot be granted to persons who merely import an infringing ingredient for sale to food manufacturers for the express purpose of their manufacture.—Re SCHOU'S PATENTS, [1924] 1 Ch. 574; 93 L. J. Ch. 305; 131 L. T. 464; 41 R. P. C. 298.

See, also, Nos. 427–435, ante.

SECT. 4.—RIGHTS OF CROWN.

See, now, Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 29, & 1919 (c. 80), s. 8.

1668. Right to use invention.]—CLARE v. R. (1865), cited in 6 B. & S. at p. 290; 122 E. 1203.

Annotations:—Reld. Feather v. R. (1865), 6 B. & S. ...; Mentd. Income Tax Special Purposes Comrs. v. Pemsel, [1891] A. C. 531.

1669. —— Patentee's remedy—Petition of right.]—By letters patent, dated Nov. 26, 1862, the Crown granted to the suppliant special licence, power, sole privilege & authority to use, exercise & vend a certain invention for improvements in the construction of ships, & to "enjoy the whole profit, benefit, commodity & advantage from time to time coming, growing, accruing & arising by reason of the invention for & during the term of," etc. The letters purported to be granted upon the petition of the suppliant, & "of your especial grace, certain knowledge & mere motion"; & they contained a command "to all & every person & persons, bodies politic & corporate, & all other our subjects whatsoever," that they should not use the invention without the consent, licence & agreement of the suppliant, his exors., etc., on such pains & penalties as could be justly inflicted, & the liability to damages. There was also a clause that the letters should be void if the suppliant, his exors., etc., should "not supply or cause to be supplied for our service all such articles of the said invention, as he or they should be required to supply by the officers or Comrs. of the department of our service for the use of which the same shall be required," etc. It was further provided, that the letters were to be construed in the most favourable & beneficial sense for the best advantage of the suppliant, his exors., etc. The Crown having made use of the invention during the currency of the letters patent, a petition of right was preferred by the inventor:—Held: (1) the Crown was not excluded from the use of the invention; (2) if the effect of the letters was to exclude the Crown, yet a petition of right could not be maintained in respect of the infringement of the patent right.—FEATHER v. R. (1865), 6 B. & S. 257; 35 L. J. Q. B. 200; 12 L. T. 114; 29 J. P. 709; 122 E. R. 1191.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apprvd. Dixon v. London Small Arms Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 632. Reld. Roden v. London Small Arms Co. (1876), 46 L. J. Q. B. 213. Generally, Mentd. Thomas v. R. (1874), L. R. 10 Q. B. 31; Windsor & Annapolis Ry. v. R. & Western Counties Ry. (1886), 11 App. Cas. 607; Income Tax Special Purposes Comrs. v. Pemsel, [1891] A. C. 531; Goldsmiths' Co. v. Wyatt, [1907] 1 K. B. 95; Johnstone v. Pedlar, [1921] 2 A. C. 262; Rhondda's Claim, [1922] 2 A. C. 339.

1670. —— Position of government contractor.]—The Crown has the right to the use of a patented process or invention without compensation to the patentee. This right of the Crown is not because the Crown is impliedly excepted from the effect of the letters patent, but because the privilege thereby granted is granted against the subject only & not against the Crown. A patent in the usual terms was granted for an improvement in the manufacture of firearms. The Secretary at War issued a notice for a tender for the supply of 13,875 rifles of the description known as that patented. The price was settled, minus the cost of the steel barrels & the stocks, which the War Office was to supply. The rifles were to be delivered within a certain time, the manufacture of them might be inspected at any time, & they might be rejected by officers at the War Office if not made according to pattern, or not delivered in time. The persons who took the contract employed the patented process in the formation & insertion of the lock:—Held: they were liable to the patentee for an infringement of the patent, for that they were not servants or agents of the Crown doing the work of the Crown, but were private contractors with the Crown to supply a certain manufactured article, & were therefore not protected in what they did by any particular privilege attaching to the Crown.—DIXON v. LONDON SMALL ARMS CO. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 632; 46 L. J. Q. B. 617; 35 L. T. 559; 25 W. R. 142, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Roden v. London Small Arms Co.

(1876), 35 L. T. 505; Pyrene Co. v. Webb Lamp Co. (1920), 37 R. P. C. 57; Akt. Für Autogene Aluminium Schweissung v. London Aluminium Co. (No. 2) (1923), 40 R. P. C. 107. Refd. Howard & Bullough v. Tweedales & Smalley (1895), 12 T. L. R. 28.

granted by deed to defts. a license to use a patented invention for manufacture of rifles, on payment of a royalty, which defts. covenanted to pay, for every rifle manufactured or produced "under the powers hereby granted." At the time the deed was entered into, as well as previously, defts. had been manufacturing arms, under contracts, for the British Govt., in accordance with pltf.'s patent, & without paying royalties, under the belief that they were legally entitled to do so; & the deed itself, as pltf. knew, was intended by defts. to apply only to rifles exclusive of those manufactured for the Govt. Some years afterwards it was decided that the right of the Crown to the free use of a patent did not extend to manufacturers fulfilling Govt. contracts, & pltf. thereupon brought his action under the deed to recover royalties on all arms so manufactured from the time that the deed was entered into:—Held: he was not entitled to recover, for though the terms of the licence would, primâ facie, be taken to include every exercise of the patented invention, the words, "under the powers hereby granted," contained a latent ambiguity, which admitted of parol evidence to show that the deed was not intended to apply to rifles manufactured for the Govt.—RODEN v. LONDON SMALL ARMS CO., LTD. (1876), 46 L. J. Q. B. 213; 35 L. T. 505; 25 W. R. 269.

1672. Patent used by government department—Recovery of compensation.]—Where a Govt. department has used a patented invention before the coming into operation of Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 8 (Apr. 23, 1920), although the dispute between the patentee & the Treasury as to the amount of compensation to be paid to the patentee has not been settled, sect. 8 is not retrospective so as to entitle him to proceed under subsect. 2 thereof, but he must proceed under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 29, for which sect. 8 of the Act of 1919 is now substituted as regards the user of inventions after Apr. 23, 1920.—Re HALE'S PATENT, [1920] 2 Ch. 377; 90 L. J. Ch. 35; 124 L. T. 261; 37 R. P. C. 171; 36 T. L. R. 832; 64 Sol. Jo. 714.

1673. —— —— Validity of patent disputed.] Re ROLLS-ROYCE, LTD. (1921), 38 R. P. C. 149.

Costs of proceedings.] Appcts. applied by originating summons under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 29, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 8, for an inquiry as to the remuneration proper to be paid to them for the user by a Govt. department of the patented invention of which they were the registered owners. In the course of the proceedings preliminary to hearing of the motion orders were made in which the litigation was treated, with the acquiescence of both litigants, as subject to the ordinary rule as to costs, & on two occasions orders were made requiring appcts. to give security for costs. After the hearing had proceeded for some time appcts. withdrew their claim in view of a prior trial of the invention found to have been made on behalf of the Govt., which, by virtue of the proviso to Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 8, entitled the Govt. to make use of it thereafter without payment:—Held: under that part of the Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), which authorised proceedings against a Govt. department, there was no express mention of costs; the authority to deal with them was derived from the general jurisdiction of the ct.: & the ct. had therefore no authority to depart from the common law rule that the Crown neither paid nor received costs, unless the special circumstances of the particular case justified it in so doing; but having regard to the orders that had been made before the hearing of the motion, & particularly to the two orders for security for costs, the ct. would infer an agreement between the parties that each of them should be treated as ordinary litigants as regarded liability for costs.—Re CARBONIT AKT., [1924] 2 Ch. 53; 93 L. J. Ch. 309; 131 L. T. 89; 40 T. L. R. 421; 68 Sol. Jo. 476; 41 R. P. C. 203, C. A.

Annotation:—Mentd. Swift v. Board of Trade. [1926] 2 K. B. 131.

Part XII.—Term of Patent.

SECT. 1.—DURATION OF ORIGINAL GRANT.

See, now, Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 6.

1675. Day of expiry.]—(1) The specification having described the invention to consist in passing pipes through a fixed hole:—Held: the passing such pipes through grooved rollers in motion was an infringement of the patent.

(2) An improvement upon the precise mode described in the specification may be an infringement of the patent.

(3) The adoption of a material part of the process described is an infringement.

(4) Day of the date of letters patent is inclusive & not exclusive so that the term of fourteen years granted by letters patent dated Feb. 26, 1825, would expire at midnight Feb. 25, 1839; aliter as to the enrolment of specification.—RUSSELL v. LEDSAM (1845), 14 M. & W. 574; 14 L. J. Ex. 353; 5 L. T. O. S. 495; 9 Jur. 557; 153 E. R. 604; on appeal, sub nom. LEDSAM v. RUSSELL (1847), 16 M. & W. 633, Ex. Ch.; (1848), 1 H. L. Cas. 687, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (4) Refd. Crossley v. Potter (1853), Macr. 240; Williams v. Nash (1859), 28 Beav. 93; Brakspear v. Barton, [1924] 2 K. B. 88. Generally, Refd. Re Markwick's Patent (1860), 13 Moo. P. C. C. 310. Mentd. Sturm v. Jeffree (1847), 8 L. T. O. S. 415; R. v. Edwards (1853), 9 Exch. 32; Isaacs v. Royal Insce. (1870), 39 L. J. Ex. 189; Goldsmiths' Co. v. West Metropolitan Ry., [1904] 1 K. B. 1; English v. Cliff, [1914] 2 Ch. 376.

1676. Patent founded on foreign patent—Revocation of foreign patent.]—DAW v. ELEY, No. 2725, post.

PART XII. SECT. 1.

1675 i. Day of expiry.]—A patent of invention expires in two years from its date, or at the expiration of a lawful extension thereof, if the inventor has not commenced & continuously carried on its construction or manufacture so that any person desiring to use it could obtain it or cause it to be made.—POWER v. GRIFFIN (1902), 33 S. C. R. 39; 23 C. L. T. 79.—CAN.

q. Expiration of foreign patent.]—DRESCHEL v. AUER INCANDESCENT LIGHT MANUFACTURING CO. (1898), 28 S. C. R. 608.—CAN.

r. ——.]—Canadian patent expires as soon as any foreign patent for the same invention existing at any time during the continuance of the Canadian patent expires. A British patent is a foreign patent within Canadian Patent Act.—DOMINION COTTON MILLS CO., LTD. v. GENERAL ENGINEERING CO. OF ONTARIO, [1902] A. C. 570.—P. C.—CAN.

t. ——.]—BRISCOE & CO. v. WASHBURN & MOEN MANUFACTURING CO. (1891), 10 N. Z. L. R. 85.—N.Z.

SECT. 2.—EXTENSION OF TERM.

SUB-SECT. 1.—PARTIES.

A. To Petition.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 ; 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 ; R. S. C., Ord. 53A, rr. 3 & 4.

1677. Legal personal representative of patentee.]—Re DOWNTON'S PATENT (1839), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 565, P. C.

1678. ——.]—(1) The circumstance of there being lis pendens, respecting the validity of the letters patent, is no objection to the grant of an extension of the original letters patent.

(2) No accounts were kept by the deceased patentee of the expenditure or receipts, on account of his patent. Upon its appearing that his estate was of little value, his effects being sworn for administration under £100, the petitioner, the administratrix of the patentee, on the allegation that there had been no profits, but considerable loss, to such estate, was examined to prove that fact.—Re HEATH'S PATENT (1853), 8 Moo. P. C. C. 217 ; 2 Web. Pat. Cas 247 ; 14 E. R. 83, P. C.

Annotation :—As to (1) Refd. Re Honiball's Patent (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 378.

1679. ——.]—Re BAILEY'S PATENT, No. 1960, post.

1680. Bare trustee.]—B. was the grantee & registered legal owner of a patent, granted in respect of an invention of improvements for making cup wafers, sugar wafer biscuits & the like, which had expired in Nov. 1919. Shortly after the grant of the patent, B., requiring financial assistance to work the patent, had obtained the assistance of V., & in Dec. 1905, a limited co., in which V. was the only substantial shareholder was formed for the purpose of working the patent. In Jan. 1906, B. agreed, in consideration of certain payments, which consideration was satisfied, to assign the patent to the co. The patent was in fact never assigned to the co., but the co. worked the patent until 1911, when the co. was wound up. After that date the patent was worked by B. Owing to the outbreak of war, B. lost the services of his workmen & from 1915 to 1919 he was engaged on munition work, & owing to those causes & the fact that certain luxury trades were prohibited, he was unable to work his patent during the war. In Jan. 1921, B. applied by originating summons for an extension of the patent :—Held : B. was a bare trustee, the beneficial title having on the dissolution of the co. vested in the Crown [as bona vacantia], & an extension of the patent could not be granted to B. alone. The application was ordered to stand over generally, with liberty to restore, in order to enable B. to procure the beneficial title or to obtain the concurrence of the beneficial owner.

At the adjourned hearing, V. was joined in the application & the Treasury waived any claim on the part of the Crown to be considered the beneficial owner, on the ground that the co. was extinct.

An extension of four years was granted subject to the Board of Trade being satisfied that B. & V. were the only persons substantially interested in the co., & subject to the usual restrictions.—Re BATES' PATENT (1921), 38 R. P. C. 385.

1681. Limited company.] — Re HORSEY'S PATENT, No. 1697, post.

1682. —— By trustee.]—Re PETTIT SMITH'S PATENT (1850), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 133 ; 13 E. R. 830, P. C.

Annotations :—Refd. Feather v. R. (1865), 6 B. & S. 257. Mentd. Income Tax Special Purposes Comrs. v. Pemsel, [1891] A. C. 531.

1683. —— ——.]—Re CLARIDGE'S PATENT, No. 1743, post.

1684. Application on account of losses due to hostilities by British company—Foreign company on register during war—Patents & Designs Acts, 1907–1919, s. 18 (6).]—Re WINGQUIST'S PATENT, No. 2057, post.

1685. Joinder of legal personal representative—By reason of contract.]—A petition was presented for the prolongation of a patent by C., a son of the patentee, who had acquired an interest in the patent for the benefit of his mother & sisters from L., to whom it had been assigned by the trustee in liquidation of the patentee. The patentee had, up to his death, worked the patent under a verbal agreement with L., that when L. had been paid £500 out of profits, L. would settle the patent on a member of the patentee's family. The patentee had paid £300 at the date of his death, & C. paid £200 subsequently. The patent was handed over to C., but no assignment was executed by L. The Judicial Committee intimated that the legal personal representative of the patentee ought to be a party to the petition, which was amended, & the legal personal representative & L. were made parties :—Held : the utility of the invention as a whole was not apparent.—Re WILLACY'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 690.

1686. Joinder of mortgagee—& others claiming lien.]—The patentee's invention consisted of improvements upon a former patent, taken out by him in consequence of a communication by a foreigner :—Held : as the improvements were novel & of public utility, the patentee was, in absence of adequate remuneration, entitled to an extension.

The patentee had been involved in debt arising from extensive litigation in defending his patent rights, & had, moreover, mortgaged his letters patent, & entered into a deed of arrangement or inspectorship under the Bkpcy. Act with his creditors. The petition was presented by the patentee, & certain mtgees. & others claiming liens on the letters patent. In the circumstances, their lordships granted the extension of the patent to the patentee alone.—Re BOVILL'S PATENT (1863), 1 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 348 ; 15 E. R. 733, P. C.

1687. —— Necessary party.] — Re CHURCH'S PATENTS (1886), 3 R. P. C. 95 ; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 256, P. C.

Assignee.]—See Sub-sect. 3, post

Importer of foreign invention.]—See Sub-sect. 4, post.

B. Other Parties.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 ; 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 ; R. S. C., Ord. 53A, rr. 3 & 4.

1688. Crown—Represented by Attorney-General.]—Re PETTIT SMITH'S PATENT, No. 1888, post.

1689. —— Bona vacantia.]—Re BATES' PATENT, No. 1680, ante.

1690. Lords of Admiralty—Refused representation otherwise than by Attorney-General.]—Re PETTIT SMITH'S PATENT, No. 1888, post.

1691. Owner of beneficial interest of patent.]—Re BATES' PATENT, No. 1680, ante.

SUB-SECT. 2.—CONTENTS OF PETITION.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, rr. 3 & 4.

1692. General rule.]—It is incumbent upon all persons who come here petitioning for a prolongation, that the whole history, everything bearing on the matter, should be stated on the face of the petition (LORD HOBHOUSE).—Re STANDFIELD'S PATENT (1897), 15 R. P. C. 17, P. C.

1693. All material facts.]—(1) Rule III. of the Privy Council, made pursuant to 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, relating to letters patent for inventions, provides that a petition under sects. 2 & 4, must be presented within one week from the insertion of the last of the advertisements required to be published in the London Gazette.

Petitioner inserted the last advertisement of his intention to petition for a prolongation on May 24, but did not present his petition until June 5 following. The registrar refused to receive the petition as being too late. Upon a special application for that purpose, it appearing that the delay arose from a mistake of petitioner's agent, an order was made admitting the petition. A caveat had been entered:—Held: as the party filing the caveat was interested in sustaining the objection to the reception of the petition, notice of the application must be served on him.

(2) Material facts, showing the title of petitioner, were disclosed in the evidence, which were omitted to be stated in the petition for prolongation. In such circumstances the hearing was postponed, & the petition directed to be amended by stating those facts.

(3) The books of petitioner with respect to the profits having been lost during his bkpcy., the account of profit & loss was taken upon his own evidence.—Re HUTCHISON'S PATENT (1861), 14 Moo. P. C. C. 364; 15 E. R. 343, P. C.

1694. ——.]—Re CLARK'S PATENT, No. 1937, post.

1695. ——.]—Re JOHNSON'S PATENT (No. 2), No. 1765, post.

1696. Candid statement of facts.] — As the recommendation to the Crown for the prolongation of the term of letters patent is a matter of discretion in the Judicial Committee, it is imperatively necessary that the petition for such prolongation should state fairly & fully everything relating to the patent: an omission to do so is fatal to the application.—Re PITMAN'S PATENT (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 84; 8 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 293; 17 E. R. 322, P. C.

1697. —— Non-disclosure—Sham company as assignees.]—A limited co. who were the registered assignees of Horsey's patent (No. 3145 of 1870), presented a petition for the prolongation of the terms of such patent. The co. consisted mainly of seven persons, to whom a share each was given to enable the requirements of the Joint Stock Cos. Act to be literally complied with; but the only persons really interested were the patentee & a creditor of his for money borrowed. These facts were not stated in the petition:—Held: the requisite good faith had not been observed by petitioners, & the prayer of the petition must therefore be refused.

. . . This co. being non-existent, or, to use popular language, a mere sham & pretence. Under these circumstances it appears to their lordships that it has not been candid on the part of the petitioners to withhold this state of facts from their Lordships, & to give them to understand on the face of the petition that a bonâ fide co.—a real co. I must call it—was formed, whereas no real co. was ever formed at all. Under these circumstances it appears to their lordships that the requisite good faith not having been observed on the part of the petitioners . . . it is their duty to advise her Majesty not to prolong this patent (SIR ROBERT P. COLLIER).—Re HORSEY'S PATENT (1884), 1 R. P. C. 225; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 261, P. C.

1698. —— —— Assignment.]—A petition for the prolongation of a patent stated that the patent had been during the whole of the term & still was the property of petitioner, who was also the inventor. It appeared at the hearing that subsequent to the date of the patent petitioner assigned all his present & future patent rights to a co., receiving no consideration in money or shares, but reserving certain rights. Counsel for the Crown asked for the dismissal of the petition on the ground of the non-disclosure of material facts. Their lordships advised that the petition be dismissed with one set of costs between three opponents.—Re FERRANTI'S PATENT (1901), 18 R. P. C. 518, P. C.

1699. Acquisition of foreign patents.]—(1) Where a patentee, whether English or foreign, has obtained foreign patents they should be stated to their lordships & the fullest information afforded as to the profits thereof.

(2) An English patent may be renewed though a foreign one has been taken out & allowed to expire.

(3) A patentee should preserve the clearest evidence of everything which has been paid & received on account of the patent.

(4) Whether or not his remuneration has been adequate, his furnishing a satisfactory account is a condition precedent to his obtaining an extension of his term.—Re ADAIR'S PATENT (1881), 6 App. Cas. 176; 50 L. J. P. C. 68; 29 W. R. 746; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 580, P. C.

Annotation:—As to (4) Refd. Re Duncan & Wilson's Patent (1884), 1 R. P. C. 257.

1700. Prior patents relating to same subject-matter.]—Petitioner for prolongation ought to call attention to prior patents relating to the same subject-matter within his knowledge, & cannot complain of the Crown introducing such prior patents in evidence without giving him notice of them.

The patentee of an invention relating to steam boilers presented a petition for prolongation. The invention consisted in having expanding flues for the purpose of making combustion more perfect, & in his specification the patentee made success dependent on expanding the flues in certain scientific proportions, as to which he gave no details. During the life of the patent, the patentee had given up his whole time to the invention, & his remuneration had amounted to something over £6,000. On the hearing one of his witnesses gave evidence that he understood the exact proportions were known to the patentee alone, & that he could not attain the exact proportions himself. All furnaces constructed under the patent were constructed under the superintendence of the patentee. Petitioner, who was a foreigner, but who had lived in England for twenty-five years, had taken out foreign patents subsequently to his English patents, & had allowed them to lapse. On the hearing, a prior patent claiming the principle of expanding flues, though by a different process, for perfecting combustion was put in evidence by the Crown. This patent was known to the patentee but had not been disclosed in his evidence:—Held: (1) the petitioner could not complain of the introduction of the prior patent by the Crown, & it would have been better if he had himself brought it forward; (2) if the merit of the patent had been sufficient, the remuneration would probably not have been too great, but the main merit of the patent lay not in the disclosure of a principle but in the details of construction, & as to these petitioner had not given sufficient disclosure in his specification, & the patent ought not to be prolonged.

PART XII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.

1693 i. All material facts.]—Re ROBINSON'S PATENT (1918), 25 C. L. R. 116.—AUS.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sects. 2 & 3, A., B.

(3) The Committee considered that the question of the lapse of the foreign patents was rightly brought forward as a preliminary objection, but left the question whether the old rule of practice on that point was still applicable for future consideration.—Re FOUNTAIN LIVET'S PATENT (1892), 9 R. P. C. 327, P. C.

See, also, No. 2000, post.

Accounts & profits.]—See Sub-sect. 7, post.

SUB-SECT. 3.—ASSIGNEES.

A. Right to be Petitioner.

1701. Legal assignees.]—The interest of the inventor is immediately consulted through the assignee.—Re MORGAN'S PATENT (1843), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 737, P. C.

Annotations:—Refd. Re Honiball's Patent (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 378; Re Norton's Patent (1863), 1 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 339; Re Pitman's Patent (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 84; Re Hopkinson's Patent, [1897] A C. 249.

1702. ——.]—LEDSAM v. RUSSELL, No. 2566, post.

1703. ——.]—Re HARDY'S PATENT, No. 1909, post

1704. ——.]—Re NAPIER'S PATENT, No. 1892, post.

1705. ——.]—Re CARMONT'S PATENT, No. 1840, post.

1706. ——.]—Re HOPKINSON'S PATENT, No. 1711, post.

1707. Equitable assignee—Name must appear in advertisements.]—To entitle an equitable assignee, to appear with the legal assignees of a patent, on a petition for a prolongation of the letters patent, the name of such equitable assignee must appear with the other petitioners, in the advertisements, required by 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 4, & rule 2, made in pursuance thereof.—Re NOBLE'S PATENT (1850), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 191; 15 L. T. O. S. 1; 13 E. R. 853, P. C.

1708. Executor of surviving assignee.]—Where the exor. of the surviving assignee of a patentee, petitioned for an extension of the term of the letters patent, & it was established, that a valuable consideration had been given for the assignment & that the assignee had sustained considerable loss, the Judicial Committee, in granting an extension of the term, refused to impose terms upon the petitioners, in favour of the patentee.—Re BODMER'S PATENT (1849), 6 Moo. P. C. C. 467; 13 E. R. 764, P. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Claridge's Patent (1851), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 394.

Losses due to hostilities.]—See Sub-sect. 3, D., post.

B. Principles on which Extension Granted.

1709. Assignee's title must be strictly proved.]—(1) In an application by an assignee, his title must be strictly proved.

(2) The new letters patent are subject to the objections to the old, & the questions of novelty & utility will not be minutely entered on.

(3) The fact of great improvements having been made on the original invention, affords no objection to the extension of the term.

In calculating whether any profit has been obtained through or by means of a patent, it is correct to deduct in the first place, beyond the cost price, a fair manufacturer's profit on the articles sold; & the mere preference of the market obtained by the manufacturer is not to be deemed a profit derived from the patent.—Re GALLOWAY'S PATENT (1843), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 724; 7 Jur. 453, P. C.

Annotation:—As to (4) Refd. Penn v. Jack (1867), L. R. 5 Eq. 81.

1710. Assignee not on so favourable a footing as patentee.]—The grounds on which extensions of patents are granted by the Judicial Committee have all reference to the inventor. They are: (a) to reward the inventor for the peculiar ability & industry he has exercised in making the discovery; (b) to reward him, because some great benefit of an unusual description has by him been conferred upon the public through the invention itself; or, (c) because the inventor has not been sufficiently remunerated by the profits derived from his strenuous exertions to make the invention profitable.

All these grounds proceed on the supposition that the invention is a new & useful invention. But where the inventor intentionally delays for a great length of time attempting to put the invention into practice, those reasons for a prolongation of the patent cannot be relied upon by him, unless he shows some reasonable ground, such as want of funds, for the delay.

Although by Judicial Committee Act, 1844 (c. 69), s. 4, the assignee of a patentee is entitled to apply for an extension of letters patent, yet he does not, unless under peculiar circumstances, stand on the same favourable footing as the original inventor, as the ground that the merits of the inventor ought to be properly rewarded, in dealing with an invention which has proved useful & beneficial to the public, does not exist in the case of an assignee, unless such assignee be a person who has assisted the patentee with funds to enable him to perfect & bring out his invention, & thus to bring it into use.—Re NORTON'S PATENT (1863), 1 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 339; 1 New Rep. 557; 9 Jur. N. S. 419; 11 W. R. 720; 15 E. R. 729, P. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Re Bower-Barff Patent, [1895] A. C. 675. Refd. Re Hopkinson's Patent, [1897] A. C. 249.

1711. ——.]—This was a petition for prolongation of a patent by the patentee & a co. to whom he had sold the whole beneficial interest in the patent. It appeared that the patentee had received a total amount of £19,750 in shares & cash for this patent & a German patent of the same invention, but that the co.'s expenditure had exceeded their receipts. The petition was opposed by the Crown on the ground that the inventor had been adequately remunerated & had no further interest, & was also resisted by seven sets of opponents:—Held: though assignees may petition for prolongation, they were not to be placed on the same favourable footing as the patentee; in this case the assignees had not assisted the inventor to bring out his invention, but had merely bought it from a prior assignee from him, & as the inventor had been adequately remunerated the Board were unable to report under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 25.—Re HOPKINSON'S PATENT, [1897] A. C. 249; 66 L. J. P. C. 38; 75 L. T. 462; 13 T. L. R. 126; 14 R. P. C. 5, P. C.

Annotation:—Consd. Re Henderson's Patent, [1901] A. C. 616.

1712. Annuity secured to patentee.]—(1) To entitle a patentee, or his assignee, to an extension of the term of letters patent, the petitioner must establish three things: (a) the merit of the invention; (b) that the parties interested had done all in their power to bring the invention into public use & to turn it to advantage; & (c) that from circumstances beyond their control, they have been unable to obtain adequate remuneration.

(2) An extension granted to the assignee, upon condition of an annuity being secured to the patentee.

(3) The accounts produced at the hearing were unsatisfactory, owing to the non-production of the books. The Judicial Committee in recommending a prolongation of the term of the letters patent, directed a proper account of the profits & losses of the patent, to be verified by affidavit, with an explanation accounting for the non-production of the books, to be laid before the A.-G., subject to which they extended the term.—Re MARKWICK'S PATENT (1860), 13 Moo. P. C. C. 310; 8 W. R. 333; 15 E. R. 116, P. C.

1713. Extension no benefit to patentee.]—Re NAPIER'S PATENT, No. 1892, post.

1714. ——.]—Re NORTON'S PATENT, No. 1710, ante.

1715. ——.]—Re BOWER-BARFF PATENT, No. 1722, post.

1716. ——.]—A patent, granted in 1884, was in 1888 absolutely assigned, in consideration of a sum then paid, to F., who had in 1886 obtained a patent for a similar invention. F., in 1898, presented a petition for prolongation of the patent of 1884:—Held: as the patentee would not derive any benefit from a prolongation, the petition must be dismissed.—Re FINCH'S PATENT (1898), 15 R. P. C. 674, P. C.

1717. ——.]—Re CLARK'S PATENT (1899), 16 R. P. C. 431, P. C.

1718. ——.]—Re VAN GELDER'S PATENTS, Ex p. THOMPSON, No. 1868, post.

1719. Assignees benefiting themselves—Rather than inventor.]—Re ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH CO.'S PATENT (circa 1845), cited in 1 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. at p. 346; 15 E. R. 732, P. C.

Annotation:—Apld. Re Norton's Patent (1863), 1 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 339.

1720. —— Rather than the public.] — Re SILLAR'S PATENT (1882), Goodeve's Patent Cases, 581.

1721. —— Who had done nothing to develop patent.]—Re POULSEN'S PATENT, No. 1863, post.

1722. Patentee must be entitled to extension.]—An extension of a patent will not be granted to the assignee of an inventor unless the inventor would himself have been entitled thereto, & will himself derive benefit directly or indirectly therefrom.

Where a co. are petitioners & have bought the patent for cash & shares, the petition should disclose what sales of shares, if any, have taken place in the market.—Re BOWER-BARFF PATENT, [1895] A. C. 675; 73 L. T. 36; 11 T. L. R. 516; 11 R. 579; sub nom. Re BARFF'S & BOWER'S PATENT, 12 R. P. C. 383, P. C.

Annotations:—Apld. Re Hopkinson's Patent, [1897] A. C. 249. Folld. Re Finch's Patent (1898), 15 R. P. C. 674. Refd. Re Henderson's Patent, [1901] A. C. 616.

1723. —— Already sufficiently remunerated.]—Re HOPKINSON'S PATENT, No. 1711, ante.

1724. —— ——.]—Re HENDERSON'S PATENT, o. 1944, post.

1725. Assignment within few months of expiry.]—A patentee, a foreigner, patented his invention first in England & afterwards in France, which latter patent, at the date of the application for a prolongation of the English patent, had a year to run:—Held: (1) they could not recommend the Crown to extend the term upon the chance of the French patent being extended; (2) if the French patent had expired there was no power in the committee to recommend an extension of the English patent; (3) an assignee of the patentee who had taken an assignment of four-fifths of the patent within a few months of the expiration of a patent, which had only just been brought into use, for a small consideration, was not entitled to any extension.—Re NORMAND'S PATENT (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 193; 6 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 477; 16 E. R. 805, P. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Winan's Patent (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 93.

1726. New patents made to assignee.]—Re SOUTHWORTH'S PATENT, No. 1872, post.

1727. New patent made to patentee—Assignment by way of mortgage.]—Re BOVILL'S PATENT, No. 1686, ante.

Conditions attached to grant.]—See Sub-sect. 6, B. (a), post.

C. Accounts.

1728. Accounts of patentee & assignee—To be produced.]—A co. who were the assignees of a patent, & who not only manufactured the patented articles, but also carried on a jobbing business in their factory, presented a petition for prolongation of the term of the patent:—Held: the accounts did not sufficiently distinguish the expenditure in the patent business from the expenditure in the general business, & the accounts did not satisfy the Judicial Committee that the amount stated as profits was the total amount of the profits made, & therefore the application must be refused.

Their Lordships think that in this case to give one-third only to the patent, & to take two-thirds of the whole profit as manufacturing profits, was more than ought to be allowed.—Re DUNCAN & WILSON'S PATENT (1884), 1 R. P. C. 257; 1 T. L. R. 59; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 258, P. C.

1729. —— ——.]—Two patents for improvements in apparatus for measuring the flow of water in pipes were assigned to a limited co., established for the purpose of working the invention in consideration mainly of fully paid up shares, the greater part of which were still retained by the patentee, & had proved a very profitable investment. The patentee & the co. petitioned for the prolongation of the patents on the ground of inadequate remuneration. No account of the profits made by the co. were filed. The patentee's accounts showed that he had made profits exceeding £6,000, but contained no estimate of his interest in the co. The invention was one of great merit & public utility:—Held: in a petition for prolongation of a patent where the patent rights have been transferred, either in whole or in part, to a co. it is essential that there should be deposited not only the patentee's account of his profits, but, in order to test them, the account also of the co.; in the present case, although the last-mentioned account was absent, & although the profits of the patentee, both as patentee & as a member of the co., were very considerable, & the case therefore came very near the line; yet, having regard to the great merit & usefulness, & the great advantage to the public of the patentee's discovery, prolongation for three years should be granted.—Re DEACON'S PATENTS (1887), 4 R. P. C. 119; 3 T. L. R. 349, P. C.

1730. —— ——.] — The patentees of two patents for improvements in a certain class of engines started a business for manufacturing the engines & other purposes, & sold the business to a co. They received a considerable sum for the transfer of the business & the patents & as remuneration for their services. The co. made considerable profits from its business. The co. presented a petition for prolongation of one patent, & they presented general accounts of their business; but they were unable to show what the patentees had actually received, or what profit had actually arisen from the patent:—Held: the Judicial Committee could not under the circumstances of the case report that the patentees had been inadequately remunerated—Re WILLANS & ROBINSON'S PATENT (1896), 13 R. P. C. 550, P. C.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 3, C. & D.; sub-sects. 4 & 5, A. & B.]

1731. —— ——.]—Re HENDERSON'S PATENT, No. 1944, post.

Assignee also manufacturer.]—See Sub-sect. 7, D., post.

D. Losses due to Hostilities.

1732. Right to apply.]—The assignee of two patents granted to B. applied by originating summons for an extension of the term of the patents. The whole remuneration received by the patentee had consisted of royalty payments under an exclusive licence. The patents were granted in respect of inventions for use in building operations. Owing to the effect of hostilities upon the building trade the royalty payments had been considerably reduced. An extension of two & a half years was granted.—Re TOWNSLEY'S APPLICATION (BROWN'S PATENT) (1922), 40 R. P. C. 73.

1733. —— Joinder of patentee.]—Re SUMMERS BROWN'S PATENT, No. 2124, post.

1734. —— —— Failure to trace.]—In 1909 a patent in respect of an invention relating to the valves of internal combustion engines was granted to M., & in the same year a patent in respect of a very similar invention was granted to P. B. & A., Ltd. The inventors combined their interest, & the engines in which the patented inventions were embodied were known as the B. M. engines. In 1909 & 1910 two further patents in respect of inventions relating to the B. M. engine were granted to M., & in 1915 a patent in respect of similar subject-matter was granted to P. B. The patents were successfully worked by A., Ltd., until July, 1914, when that co. went into liquidation, but owing to causes arising out of hostilities the patents were not worked during the war period. In 1916 M. assigned all his interest in the patents to G. & F. In 1917 the interests in the patents were combined by a trust agreement & in 1920 the patents were assigned to W., Ltd. In 1924 W., Ltd., & others applied by originating summons for an extension of the terms of the patents. Evidence was given that efforts had been made to ascertain the whereabouts of M., who was not a party to the application, but that such efforts had failed. At the hearing the patent of 1915 was withdrawn from the application:—Held: a case of loss or damage or loss of opportunity had been established; in view of the fact that the assignment by M. to G. & F. was in the widest possible terms & of the evidence that M. could not be traced, the absence of M. ought not to disentitle applts. to relief, & an extension of four years should be granted in respect of the 1909 & 1910 patents.—Re MCCOLLUM'S PATENTS (1925), 42 R. P. C. 526.

1735. —— —— ——.]—Re LARSSON'S PATENT (1925), 43 R. P. C. 179.

1736. —— —— Second assignment after war.]—Re MIKKLESEN'S PATENT, Re KNUDSEN'S PATENT (1926), 44 R. P. C. 12.

1737. Assignment during or since war—Consideration of loss due to war—By joinder of patentee.]—Re SUMMERS BROWN'S PATENT, No. 2124, post.

1738. —— —— Assignment in widest terms.]—Re MCCOLLUM'S PATENTS, No. 1734, ante.

1739. —— —— Exclusive licencee from before the war.]—Re LARSSON'S PATENT, No. 1735, ante.

1740. Patent assigned to company—Patentee's position merged in that of shareholder.]—Re POULSEN'S PATENT (No. 2), Re HAGE'S APPLICATION, No. 2059, post.

1741. Loss suffered by original patentee during war—Subsequent application by assignees.]—Re SUMMERS BROWN'S PATENT, No. 2124, post.

SUB-SECT. 4.—FOREIGN IMPORTER.

1742. Of less merit than original inventor.]—Re SOAMES'S PATENT, No. 1828, post.

1743. —— Merits jealously considered.]—The importer of an invention from abroad is an inventor within the meaning of 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, & entitled to apply for an extension of the term. But the Judicial Committee will look with jealousy into the merits of the invention imported.

Application for an extension, by the trustees of a joint stock co., the assignees of the patentee, refused; the invention imported having been in common use in France, & no great risk or expenditure incurred by the patentee or his assignees in introducing it to the public.—Re CLARIDGE'S PATENT (1851), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 394; 13 E. R. 932.

Annotations:—Apld. Re Bower-Barff Patent, [1895] A. C. 675. Consd. Re Hopkinson's Patent, [1897] A. C. 249.

1744. —— ——.]—(1) Exposition of the principles which regulate the Judicial Committee in recommending the Crown to extend the term of letters patent of an invention, consisting of a communication from a foreigner residing abroad, who had, previously to the English patent, taken out a patent for the same invention in a foreign state.

(2) Where there were several opponents; on dismissing the petition a lump sum was awarded to the opponents to be divided pro rata for costs.—Re JOHNSON'S PATENT (WILLCOX & GIBBS) (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 75; 8 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 282; 17 E. R. 318, P. C.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Re Pitman's Patent (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 84. Reid. Re Winan's Patent (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 93; Re Blake's Patent (1873), L. R. 4 P. C. 535. As to (2) Follid. Re Wield's Patent (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 89.

1745. On same footing as original inventor—Where public benefited—At considerable expense to importer.]—An importer of a foreign invention, by which the public is benefited, is entitled to be put on the same footing as an original inventor, when applying for a prolongation for such foreign importation.

In a case, therefore, where the invention was of considerable commercial value, & the importers had embarked a large capital upon machinery in trying to introduce it to general use, & incurred considerable loss in so doing; the Judicial Committee recommended an extension of the letters patent, for six years.—Re BERRY'S PATENT (1850), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 187; 13 E. R. 851.

Annotation:—Mentd. Walter v. Lane, [1900] A. C. 539.

SUB-SECT. 5.—GROUNDS FOR GRANTING OR REFUSING.

A. In General.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18; 1919 (c. 80), s. 7.

1746. General statement of grounds of decision.]—Re DOWNTON'S PATENT, No. 1677, ante.

1747. ——.]—Re DEROSNE'S PATENT, No. 1771, post.

1748.——.]—Re MARKWICK'S PATENT, No. 1712, ante.

1749. ——.]—Re NORTON'S PATENT, No. 1710, ante.

1750. ——.]—It is essential in order to obtain an extension of the term of letters patent, for the petitioner to establish (a) that the invention is of considerable merit; (b) public utility; & (c) inadequate remuneration. Although the Judicial Committee will not adjudicate upon the validity of letters patent, the term of which is sought to be prolonged, yet where it appears from the specification that the subject-matter is not sufficient to sustain such patent, they will not, in the exercise of their discretion, recommend the Crown to extend the term. Where, therefore, the specification of a patent described it as improvements in treating, deodorising & disinfecting sewage, & other offensive matter, & also for deodorising & disinfecting in general, & as being composed of two ordinary well-known chemical acids in combination, such acids being in common use for disinfecting purposes by the public before & after the letters patent:—Held: not to be an invention of such merit & utility as to justify an extension, to the detriment of the public in the use of known sanitary agents.—Re MCDOUGAL'S PATENT (1867), L. R. 2 P. C. 1; 5 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 1; 37 L. J. P. C. 17; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 563; 16 E. R. 415, P. C.

Annotations:—Refd. Re Sillar's Patent (1882), Goodeve's Patent Cases, 581; Re McCulloch's Patent (1908), 25 R. P. C. 684.

1751. Very strong case necessary.]—Upon a consideration of all the circumstances, we think that a sufficiently strong case has been made out to justify us in recommending to his Majesty to extend the first of these patents for the period of seven years, but we think no case has been made out to justify us in so recommending to his Majesty with respect to the second patent granted in 1825. By the first patent we mean those of England, Ireland, & Scotland. In cases of this kind we expect a very strong case of hardship to be made out, as well as a strong case upon the utility of the invention (LORD LYNDHURST).—Re ERARD'S PATENT (1835), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 557, P. C.

1752. ——.]—Re HONIBALL'S PATENT, No. 1776, post.

1753. Petitioner must show uberrima fides.]—Re POULSEN'S PATENT, No. 1863, post.

1754. Extension not interfering with any vested interest—Due to novelty of invention.]—Re MUIR'S PATENT (1919), 36 R. P. C. 327.

1755. Further improvement.]—Re GALLOWAY'S PATENT, No. 1709, ante.

1756. ——.]—Re SOAMES'S PATENT, No. 1828, post.

1757. —— Second patent shutting out first.]—Patentees of a patent, No. 242 of 1876, presented a petition for prolongation of their patent alleging that they had not obtained an adequate remuneration. The total net profit they had received amounted to about £4,000 including in this sum an allowance of £200 a year to one of the patentees. In 1886 the patentees obtained a patent for an improved machine & it appeared that their recent sales had been almost entirely of machines constructed under this later patent:—Held: although there was utility, yet considering the degree of merit of the invention & the fact that the patentee had obtained a subsequent patent which had almost shut out the use of the earlier patent the remuneration had been adequate.—Re NUSSEY & LEACHMAN'S PATENT (1889), 7 R. P. C. 22, P. C.

1758. Patentee entering into agreement contrary to public policy—Agreement to obtain extension.]—A patentee agreed, by deed, with a public co. to grant them exclusive licence to use his patented machine, & also covenanted with them to obtain, at the expiration of the term, a renewal of the patent for the same purpose Under this deed the co. alone used the patent. An application by the patentee for a prolongation refused, on the ground that the agreement was contrary to public policy, & repugnant to the provisions of 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, relating to prolongation of letters patent.—Re CARDWELL'S PATENT (1856), 10 Moo. P. C. C. 488; 14 E. R. 576.

Annotation:—Consd. Re Norton's Patent (1863), 1 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 339.

1759. Failure to bring action for infringement.]—Re SIMISTER'S PATENT, No. 1766, post.

1760. Insufficient disclosure in specification.]—Re FOUNTAIN LIVET'S PATENT, No. 1700, ante.

B. Discretion of Court.

1761. General rule.]—Re PITMAN'S PATENT, No. 1696, ante.

1762. Exercise of discretion—Only limited as to extent of prolongation.]—LEDSAM v. RUSSELL, No. 2566, post.

1763. —— To be judicial.]—Re HILLS' PATENT, No. 1769, post.

1764. —— Adequate remuneration of patentee.]—Re HILLS' PATENT, No. 1769, post.

1765. —— —— Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18.]—The power given to the ct. by above sect. to extend the term of a patent is a discretionary power which can only be exercised when the ct. is satisfied that the patentee has been inadequately remunerated by his patent, & it is only where the value of the patentee's disclosure to the public largely exceeds the benefit derived by him from the patent that he can be said to have been inadequately remunerated.

For the purpose of considering whether a patentee has been adequately remunerated profits on his foreign as well as on his English patents must be taken into account, & some allowance ought to be made for future profits on either which will probably be received before their expiration.

The ct. will pay especial attention to the fact that, although the thing disclosed may be minute

PART XII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 5.—A.

1746 i. General statement of grounds of decision.]—Petitioner must prove that the invention is meritorious, that everything in his power to bring out the invention & turn it to advantage has been done, & that, owing to circumstances beyond his control, he has been unable to obtain an adequate remuneration. — Re ANDREWS & BEAVEN'S PATENT (1898), 18 N. Z. L. R. 526.—N.Z.

1746 ii. ——.]—The extension of the term of a patent is an exceptional privilege to be recommended only in cases where the invention is of exceptional merit & proved utility, & it lies upon petitioners to show that it has such merit & utility. In the absence of exceptional merit & proved utility the fact that no harm will be done by an extension is no ground for recommending it. — Re PETRE & SCULLY'S PATENT (1909), 28 N. Z. L. R. 1069.—N.Z.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 5, B., C.

as compared with the sum total of what was known previously, it may be the sine qua non of the successful application of existing knowledge & thus fall within the category of great inventions. When the Comptroller opposes the extension of a patent on the ground that the traders of this country will, if the patent is prolonged, be put at a disadvantage compared with the traders of some other country, proper statistics or other information ought to be expressed to the ct. as to the nature & extent of the competition which is feared.—Re JOHNSON'S PATENT (No. 2), [1909] 1 Ch. 114; 77 L. J. Ch. 737; 99 L. T. 697; 25 R. P. C. 709; 24 T. L. R. 889.

Annotations:—Consd. Re Poulsen's Patent (1913), 30 R. P. C. 597. Refd. Re Inglis's Patent (1917), 34 R. P. C. 157.

C. Public Benefit.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (4).

1766. General rule.]—The consideration for extending the term of the patent is, that the public will be benefited after the term has expired.

Extension of the term in letters patent refused, although the profit derived from the patent article was less by £1,278 than the expenditure upon the patent, together with interest, the utility of the invention not being proved to be great.

The circumstances of a patent article, when once well known, not becoming of extensive application, goes far to negative its general utility.—Re SIMISTER'S PATENT (1842), 4 Moo. P. C. C. 164; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 721; 7 Jur. 451; 13 E. R. 264, P. C.

1767. ——.]—Re WRIGHT'S PATENT (1843), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 736; 1 L. T. O. S. 407, P. C.

1768. ——.]—LEDSAM v. RUSSELL, No. 2566, post.

1769. ——.]—(1) In determining whether to recommend the prolongation of a patent, even when the claim to a first discovery & the beneficial nature of that discovery are both conceded, it is still proper to consider both the degree of merit in the inventor, & the amount of benefit to the public flowing directly from the invention.

(2) Whether the Judicial Committee will recommend the extension of the term of letters patent, will depend on the exercise of a discretion, judicial indeed, yet to be influenced by every such circumstance as would properly weigh on a sensible & considerate person in determining whether an extraordinary privilege not of right, but of equitable reward, should be conferred. They will consider principally whether the individual patentee had, under all the circumstances, received what in equity & good sense would be considered a sufficient remuneration; & in some cases it may be necessary to consider, not only the state of things at the time the original letters patent were granted, but the circumstances existing at the time of the application for a prolongation of the term of the original letters patent.

(3) In an application for prolongation of the term of letters patent, the Judicial Committee will not try the validity of the patent; & though in general they will not enter into questions of doubtful validity, yet they will not recommend an extension of a patent which is manifestly bad.

(4) The most unreserved & clear statement of the patentee's remuneration is an indispensable condition in an application for extension.

(5) The patentee was also manufacturer & sold the patented articles. In his accounts he deducted two-thirds as profits from the manufacture & sale, & only credited the patent with one-third:—Held: to be an unreasonable deduction.

(6) Although law expenses by the patentee in maintaining his patent rights are allowed in deduction of his profits, yet where the patentee compromised suits & gave up costs to which he had an apparent title, a deduction on that head will not be allowed.

(7) Upon the dismissal of a petition for prolongation, the Judicial Committee, to avoid the expense of a formal taxation, allowed petitioner the option of paying a gross sum of £1,000, to the opponents for the costs of their successful opposition; such sum to be apportioned by the Registrar of the Privy Council among the several opponents, or in the alternative, dismissed the petition with costs generally.—Re HILLS' PATENT (1863), 1 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 258; 9 L. T. 101; 9 Jur. N. S. 1209; 12 W. R. 25; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 549; 15 E. R. 698, P. C.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Re Johnson's Patent (Willcox & Gibbs) (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 75. As to (2) Consd. Re Johnson's Patent (Willcox & Gibbs) (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 75; Re Winan's Patent (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 93; Re Blake's Patent (1873), L. R. 4 P. C. 535. As to (5) Refd. Re Duncan & Wilson's Patent (1884), 1 R. P. C. 257.

1770. ——.]—The subject-matter of an invention was the employment of a metallic soap, composed of well known chemical substances in common use, which the specification described as applicable for coating of iron & wood to prevent the fouling of ships' bottoms, & for other useful purposes. Prolongation of the term of such letters patent refused on the ground (1) that the recommendation of an extension being discretionary, it would be detrimental to the public interest to grant the exclusive benefit of a metallic soap made from substances in common use; & (2) that the patentee had, as it appeared from the accounts, been adequately remunerated for his invention.—Re MCINNES' PATENT (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 54; 5 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 72; 37 L. J. P. & M. 23; 16 E. R. 443, P. C.

Annotation:—As to (2) Refd. Re Saxby's Patent (1870), 7 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 82.

1771. Comparison between public benefit & private profit of patentee.]—(1) When the patentee resides abroad, & the invention is carried on under licencees, the advertisements should be inserted in papers circulating in the places where the manufacture is actually carried on.

(2) Some invention, benefit to the public, & no adequate remuneration, are the grounds for an extension.

When a reasonable profit has been made, the benefit which has resulted to the patentee, as compared with that to the public, will be taken into consideration.—Re DEROSNE'S PATENT (1844), 4 Moo. P. C. C. 416; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 1; 13 E. R. 363, P. C.

1772. Prolongation giving foreign traders unfair advantage—Necessity for proper particulars.]—Re JOHNSON'S PATENT (No. 2), No. 1765, ante.

Lapse of foreign patents.]—See Sub-sect. 5, E., post.

PART XII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 5.—C.

1766 i. General rule.]—The granting of an extension is subject to the paramount consideration of the public interest.—Re ROBINSON'S PATENT (1918), 25 C. L. R. 116.—AUS.

1766 ii. ——.]—Where the ct. is not satisfied that the invention has conferred upon the public any special or peculiar advantage or is of that high degree of merit which, if everything else were satisfactory would entitle the patentee to an extension of the term of the patent, the ct. will not extend such term.—Re DUNLOP'S PATENT (1922), 31 C. L. R. 579.—AUS.

D. Validity of Patent.

1773. Court will not consider validity—Unless patent manifestly bad.]—(1) Letters patent being about to expire, the Privy Council will hear a petition for extension, notwithstanding any doubts as to the validity of the patent.

(2) Necessary expenses may be deducted from the profits.—Re KAY'S PATENT (1839), 3 Moo. P. C. C. 24; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 568; 13 E. R. 10, P. C.

Annotation:—As to (1) Reid. Re Honiball's Patent (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 378.

1774. —— ——.]—Re GALLOWAY'S PATENT, No. 1709, ante.

1775. —— ——.]—Re WOODCROFT'S PATENT, No. 1802, post.

1776. —— ——.]—The grant of an extended term in letters patent is a new grant, subject to the same conditions, open to the same objections, &, in ordinary cases entitled to the same advantages, as the original grant.

The Crown, on the report of the Judicial Committee, may, in its discretion, under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 2, confirm the grant of an extended term in letters patent, even after such grant has been, by the effect of a trial at law, found to be actually void; but a person applying under the above section for a confirmation of the grant of an extended term in letters patent, must satisfy the Committee (a) that before the date of the original patent the invention was not publicly & generally used; & (b) that the grantee of the original patent believed himself to be the first or original inventor.

An application to confirm the grant of an extended term in letters patent which, by the effect of a trial at law, were found to be void, was, under the circumstances of the case, refused; but, in consequence of the unnecessary expenses occasioned by the opposing parties, & of the manner in which their opposition was conducted, without costs.

To obtain the grant of an extended term in letters patent a very special case must be made out.

The jurisdiction under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 2, to confirm letters patent found by the effect of a trial at law to be void, is to be most cautiously & sparingly used.

Opposition to an application for extension or confirmation of letters patent is rather encouraged by this ct. than otherwise, & upon a successful opposition the opposers' costs will, in general, be allowed.—Re HONIBALL'S PATENT (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 378; 3 Eq. Rep. 225; 25 L. T. O. S. 1; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 201; 14 E. R. 340, P. C.

1777. —— ——.]—(1) In 1849, letters patent were granted in England to B., a British subject. In 1850, a patent was granted in France for the same invention, to the patentee for fifteen years, & another in Belgium to a party on his behalf, for ten years. The Belgian patent expired before the English patent, & before application was made for a prolongation of that patent:—Held: the proviso in Patent Law (Amendment) Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 25, that no patent should be valid which shall have been granted after the expiration of any foreign patent for the same invention, did not apply, so as to deprive the Judicial Committee of the power to entertain an application for the prolongation of the English patent; such sect. applying only to cases where the original patent had been first granted in a foreign country, & not where a patent had been first granted in the United Kingdom.

(2) The prolongation of a patent is, by 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, & 16 & 17 Vict. c. 115, the same as a new grant.

D. in 1804, had in his specification described a certain result, but without any statement of the means by which such result could be made practically attainable. B. in 1849, took out a patent for the same result, explaining the method of obtaining it. B.'s patent was prolonged.

(3) If it can be clearly shown that the patent sought to be extended is bad for want of originality, the Judicial Committee will not entertain the application. Aliter, if at most, a doubtful question as to the validity of the letters patent can be raised.

(4) The account of profit & loss of the patentee in working a patent, ought to be clear & precise; & it is the duty of a patentee, if engaged in any other business, or as a manufacturer of his own invention, to keep the accounts of the patent & the manufacture separately.

(5) If a patentee is also manufacturer of his patent article, in taking account of the profits of the patent, he is entitled to deduct his profits as a manufacturer.—Re BETT'S PATENT (1862), 1 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 49; 1 New Rep. 137; 9 Jur. N. S. 137; 11 W. R. 221; 15 E. R. 621; sub nom. Ex p. BETTS, 7 L. T. 577, P. C.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Re Poole's Patent (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 514. Consd. Re Johnson's Patent (Willcox & Gibbs) (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 75. Apld. Re Winan's Patent (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 93. Refd. Re Blake's Patent (1873), L. R. 4 P. C. 535; Re Semet & Solway's Patent, [1895] A. C. 78. As to (4) Consd. Re Adair's Patent (1881), 6 App. Cas. 176; Re Lake's Patent, [1891] A. C. 240. Apld. Re Hughes' Patent (1898), 15 R. P. C. 370; Re Lawrence & Kennedy's Patent (1910), 27 R. P. C. 252. Refd. Re Wuterich's Patent, [1903] A. C. 206. As to (5) Refd. Re Saxby's Patent (1870), 7 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 82.

1778. —— ——.]—Re HILLS' PATENT, No. 1769, ante.

1779. —— ——.]—Re MCDOUGAL'S PATENT, No. 1750, ante.

1780. —— ——.]—S., being the patentee of an invention of improvements in sugar cane mills petitioned for the prolongation of his patent on the ground of having sustained an actual loss in working it. M. & co. & others opposed. M. & co. by their particulars of objections, alleged that the patented invention was not new, & referred to a previous patent of & machines made by C. At the hearing of the petition they tendered evidence to show anticipation by machines made by W., & by the publication in England of the American specification of H.:—Held: the last mentioned evidence was admissible, & on the then evidence it appeared that the patented invention had been so far anticipated by previous patents, & actual user of machines in this country, as to deprive it of that degree of novelty which would justify a prolongation of the term, & therefore that the petition must be dismissed, but under the circumstances without costs.—Re STEWART'S PATENT (1885), 3 R. P. C. 7; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 264, P. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Fountain Livet's Patent (1892), 9 R. P. C. 327.

1781. —— ——.]—Re COCKING'S PATENT, No. 1835, post.

1782. ——.]—(1) C., being the grantee of two patents, transferred them to a limited co., who mortgaged them to R. by assignment. The co. presented a petition for prolongation of the terms of the patents, & the mtgee. was not a party to the petition. The prolongation was opposed mainly on the ground of want of novelty, &, therefore, of merit:—Held: as the invention was useful there was not that absence of novelty as would be fatal to an application for prolongation; the whole of the first patent & a portion of the second ought be extended for five years upon the petitioners undertaking to give the mtgee. the same security

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 5, D., E. F. (a) i. & ii.] over the new patents that he had over the old ; & no costs would be given to the petitioners as it was a difficult & doubtful case.

(2) The Crown may adduce evidence against a patent irrespective of the objections.—Re CHURCH'S PATENTS (1886), 3 R. P. C. 95 ; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 256, P. C.

1783. —— Except as to exceptional merit.]—(1) In an application for the prolongation of a patent it is not the practice of the Judicial Committee to decide upon the novelty or utility of the patent, except so far as such utility may properly be described as merit of that high degree that, every other requisite being satisfactory, it would entitle the patentee to a prolongation.

(2) A patentee in seeking a prolongation of the term of the patent must satisfy the Judicial Committee by the accounts, in a manner which admits of no controversy, of what has been the amount of remuneration which, in every point of view, the invention has brought him, & it is the duty of appct. to frame his accounts in such a shape as to leave no doubt as to what the remuneration has been that he has received.

(3) Where a patentee is also the manufacturer, the profits which he makes as manufacturer, although not strictly profits of the patent, must yet be taken into consideration in estimating the amount of his remuneration. Therefore, where, on a petition for prolongation, it appeared that the patentee was at the same time the manufacturer of the patented article, & was himself necessarily engaged in fixing & putting up the patented apparatus ; & that the accounts for such services were so intermixed as to render it impossible on their face to separate the items of profit received from the patent, it appearing that, on the whole, the receipts had been very large, & that even on the balance alleged there had been considerable gain to the patentee, the Judicial Committee held that such accounts were unsatisfactory, & refused the application, but without costs.—Re SAXBY'S PATENT (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 292 ; 7 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 82 ; 19 W. R. 513 ; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 565 ; 17 E. R. 31, P. C.

Annotations :—As to (1) Apld. Re Cocking's Patent (1885), 2 R. P. C. 151. As to (2) Folld. Re Clark's Patent (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 421. Consd. Re Lake's Patent, [1891] A. C. 240. Apld. Re Thomas' Patents & Thomas & Gilchrist's Patent (1892), 9 R. P. C. 367 ; Re Henderson's Patent, [1901] A. C. 616 ; Re Lawrence & Kennedy's Patent (1910), 27 R. P. C. 252. Refd. Re Houghton's Patent (1871), L. R. 3 P. C. 461 ; Re Wield's Patent (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 89 ; Re Adair's Patent (1881), 6 App. Cas. 176 ; Re Duncan & Wilson's Patent (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 258 ; Re Wuterich's Patent, [1903] A. C. 206. As to (3) Apld. Re Johnson's Patent (Willcox & Gibbs) (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 75.

See, further, Sub-sect. 5, G. (b) i.

1784. Lis pendens respecting validity—No bar to extension.]—Re HEATH'S PATENT, No. 1678, ante.

1785 —— ——.]—L. the owner of a patent brought an action for infringement in which his patent was declared invalid. He appealed, & while judgment was still undelivered he presented a petition for prolongation. It appeared that he had granted a licence to the B. co., & then sold the patent to the A. co., who paid £5,000 to the B. co. ; that subsequently the A. co., after granting licences re-assigned the patent to L. ; that L. then mortgaged the patent, & then agreed to sell the patent to the L. co., who were co-petitioners. L. brought in accounts showing no remuneration, but these accounts gave no particulars relating to the licence to the B. co. or the sum of £5,000 paid to them, or of the working of the patent in the hands of the A. co., or of the application of the moneys raised by mtge., or as to the share dealings of the A. co.

The Board decided to hear the petition but :—Held : the omissions in the accounts were quite fatal, & dismissed the petition.—Re LANE FOX'S PATENT (1892), 9 R. P. C. 411, P. C.

E. Lapse of Foreign Patent.

1786. Whether bar to extension.]—Application was made under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, & 2 & 3 Vict. c. 69, by the assignees of a patentee for extension of an English patent for a foreign importation patented in France. At the date of the application the French patent had expired :—Held : as the foreign patent had expired, no renewed grant would be valid by Patent Law (Amendment) Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 25, as 16 & 17 Vict. c. 115, s. 7, made an extended patent a new patent, within 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83, s. 25.—Re AUBÉ'S PATENT (1854), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 43 ; 14 E. R. 214, P. C.

Annotations :—Distd. Re Bett's Patent (1862), 1 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 49. Refd. Re Honiball's Patent (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 378 ; Re Hutchison's Patent (1861), 14 Moo. P. C. C. 364.

1787. ——.]—Letters patent were granted in this country in Aug. 1848, for fourteen years, & in Sept. 1848, a patent was granted in the United States for the same period, in respect of the same invention. On an application for a prolongation of the English patent :—Held : though this application was not contrary to the letter of Patent Law (Amendment) Act, 1852 (c. 83), ss. 25, 40, & 16 & 17 Vict. c. 115, s. 7, yet it was so far inconsistent with their spirit, their Lordships would not, in the exercise of their discretion, advise her Majesty to grant the desired prolongation.—Re NEWTON'S PATENT (1862), 15 Moo. P. C. C. 176 ; 9 Jur. N. S. 109 ; 10 W. R. 731 ; 15 E. R. 460, P. C.

Annotations :—Distd. Re Bett's Patent (1862), 1 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 49. Folld. Re Winan's Patent (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 93. Refd. Re Blake's Patent (1873), L. R. 4 P. C. 535 ; Re Semet & Solvay's Patent, [1895] A. C. 78.

1788. ——.]—Re HILLS' PATENT, No. 1769, ante.

1789. ——.]—A patent by American subjects was taken out in this country & shortly afterwards in America & France for the same invention. After the expiration of the French patent, & within a few months of the expiration of the American patent, application was made for a prolongation of the English patent. Such application refused, as the Judicial Committee would not, on the ground of general policy, recommend a renewal of the English patent after the French patent had been allowed to expire.—Re WINAN'S PATENT (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 93 ; 8 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 306 ; 17 E. R. 327, P. C.

Annotation :—Folld. Re Blake's Patent (1873), L. R. 4 P. C. 535.

1790. ——.]—A patent was first taken out in America, afterwards in England, & two days after the date of the English patent the invention was patented in France. The French patent was allowed to drop. On an application for prolongation of the English patent :—Held : although the Judicial Committee might have jurisdiction under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 25, to entertain the application, yet, on the ground of public policy, as the French patent had been allowed to expire, they would not in the exercise of the discretion vested in them recommend the extension of the term of the English patent.—Re BLAKE'S PATENT (1873), L. R. 4 P. C. 535 ; 9 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 373 ; 17 E. R. 554, P. C.

1791. ——.]—Re ADAIR'S PATENT, No. 1699, ante.

1792. ——.]—By Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 25, an English patent ceases at the expiration of a prior foreign patent for the same invention.

Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 113 (1), saves to a patentee existing at the date of the Act his right to a confirmation under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 2, subject, however, to above qualification. The provisions of rule 1 relating to confirmation relaxed under special circumstances.

Petition for prolongation refused as inadmissible under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), or the earlier law.—Re JABLOCHKOFF'S PATENT, [1891] A. C. 293; 60 L. J. P. C. 61; 65 L. T. 5; 8 R. P. C. 281, P. C.

Annotation:—Distd. Re Marshall's Patent, [1891] A. C. 430.

1793. ——.]—Re FOUNTAIN LIVET'S PATENT, No. 1700, ante.

1794. ——.]—Where a British patent granted before the passing of the Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), was prior in date to payments for the same foreign invention obtained by the same patentee in seven foreign countries, five of which were still in force, but two of which had lapsed owing to non-performance of the condition of the grant:—Held: according to the rule laid down in Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 25 (4) (sect. 113 of which repealed Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 25), the committee had a discretion to extend the patent whether or not it had been first granted, with due regard to the circumstances connected with the foreign patents.

Extension granted, as the evidence did not suggest that the inhabitants of the United Kingdom would be prejudicially affected thereby in their foreign competition.—Re SEMET & SOLVAY'S PATENT, [1895] A. C. 78; 64 L. J. P. C. 41; 71 L. T. 674; 11 T. L. R. 105; 11 R. 362, P. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Henderson's Patent, [1901] A. C. 616.

1795. ——.]—In considering a petition for the prolongation of a patent in this country the fact that several foreign patents in respect of the same invention have already expired, & that the English patent is the only one surviving, though not an insuperable objection to a prolongation, is one which the Judicial Committee will consider as a serious obstacle to granting a prolongation, unless very strong grounds for doing so are shown.—Re PIEPER'S PATENT (1895), 72 L. T. 782; 11 R. 581; 12 R. P. C. 292, P. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Henderson's Patent, [1901] A. C. 616.

1796. ——.]—Re HENDERSON'S PATENT, No. 1944, post.

1797. —— Original patent first granted in England.]—Re BETT'S PATENT, No. 1777, ante.

1798. —— ——.]—Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 25, does not deprive the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council of the power to entertain an application for an extension of the term of letters patent taken out first in England, though a patent has been obtained for the same invention in a foreign state; & the foreign patent would expire before the expiration of the prolonged term. Secus, if the patent was first obtained abroad by a foreign subject, & afterwards taken out in England.

A patentee residing in America, for the purpose of getting the patented article into general use in England, arranged with an agent in England, & in consideration gave him a moiety of the royalties: Held: in estimating the profits of the patentee derived from the patent, such moiety was to be deducted.—Re POOLE'S PATENT (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 514; 4 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 452; 36 L. J. P. C. 76; 16 E. R. 388, P. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Re Johnson's Patent (Willcox & Gibbs) (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 75; Re Adair's Patent (1881), 6 App. Cas. 176.

1799. Foreign patent lapsing before expiration of prolonged term.]—Re POOLE'S PATENT, No. 1798, ante.

F. Utility and Merit.

(a) Utility.

i. In General.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (4).

1800. Necessity to prove.] — Re BAILEY'S PATENT, No. 1960, post.

1801. ——.]—Re BEAULAND'S PATENT, No. 1812, post.

1802. Want of success due to inutility.]—No extension will be granted if want of success be owing to inutility, or unless it be really coming into use.

A strong case of merit & want of remuneration must be made out. If a clear case of invalidity appear the patent will not be extended, but otherwise if the case be doubtful.

The extension decides nothing as to the validity of the patent.—Re WOODCROFT'S PATENT (1846), 10 Jur. 363; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 18, P. C.

ii. Presumption of Inutility.

1803. From want of user.]—Re SIMISTER'S PATENT, No. 1766, ante.

1804. ——.]—The non-reduction of the patent into practical public utility, is the strongest evidence against merit & utility.

Semble: the ct. may infer want of remuneration to the patentee, from the circumstance that there must have been some expense.—Re PINKUS' PATENT (1848), 12 Jur. 233, P. C.

1805. ——.]—A patent was granted to S. for a process of treating or ageing spirit, which was chiefly applicable to spirits distilled from grain. The patentee applied for a prolongation. He had failed to get the process taken up by the trade, but it was alleged that an incentive to its use would probably arise in the future:—Held: as the invention had not been taken up in the past, & as there was not likely to be any different experience in the future, prolongation should be refused.—Re SCOTT'S PATENT (1906), 23 R. P. C. 478, P. C.

1806. —— Rebuttal.]—Re HERBERT'S PATENT, No. 1911, post.

1807. —— —— Only by strongest evidence.] Where the utility of a patent has not been tested by actual employment, for a period of fourteen years, although efforts have been made by the patentee to bring it into use, it raises a very strong presumption against its practical utility, which presumption can only be rebutted by the strongest evidence. Application for a prolongation of the term, in the circumstances of non-user, refused by the Judicial Committee.—Re ALLAN'S PATENT (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 507; 4 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 443; 16 E. R. 385, P. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Re Hughes' Patent (1879), 4 App. Cas. 174. Refd. Re Bakewell's Patent (1862), 15 Moo. P. C. C. 385.

1808. —— —— ——.]—Re HUGHES' PATENT, No. 1914, post.

1809. —— —— Limited market.]—Re HERBERT'S PATENT, No. 1911, post.

See, also, Sub-sect. 5, G. (b) iii.

1810. —— —— Failure to form company.]—Non-user of a patent, during the term of the letters patent, is not a conclusive ground against extension of the term, but such fact amounts to a strong presumption that the invention is not useful. Such presumption, however, may be rebutted by evidence showing the utility of the patent.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 5, F. (a) ii., (b) i. & ii., & G. (a).]

A patent, well known, had never been brought into public use during the period of fourteen years. The patentee accounted for the non-user, on the ground that the invention was of such a nature that it could only be carried out by a co., which he had failed to form :—Held : not sufficient to rebut the presumption against the practical utility of the patent, & an extension of the term refused.—Re BAKEWELL'S PATENT (1862), 15 Moo. P. C. C. 385 ; 15 E. R. 540, P. C.

Annotations :—Consd. Re Allan's Patent (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 507 ; Re Hughes' Patent (1879), 4 App. Cas. 174.

(b) Merit.

i. In General.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (4).

1811. Exceptional merit—Necessity to prove.]—Re FURNESS' PATENT (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 260, P. C.

1812. —— ——.]—A petition was presented by the patentee for the prolongation of a patent for improvements in quadrants for opening & adjusting windows on the ground that it was an invention of merit & great public utility, & that he had not been adequately remunerated. From the accounts it appeared that his profits amounted to £700, & those of his exclusive licencees to between £300 & £400 :—Held : prolongation ought to be granted only in cases of exceptional merit or great public utility ; in the present case, no exceptional merit or utility was proved, & under all the circumstances of the case the patentee had been adequately remunerated.—Re BEAULAND'S PATENT (1887), 4 T. L. R. 30 ; sub nom. Re BEANLAND'S PATENT, 4 R. P. C. 489, P. C.

1813. —— ——.]—(1) Where letters patent had been granted for improvements in steam generators, & it was shown that the invention consisted of the combination of various parts all or most of which were admittedly not new at the date of the letters patent ; an extension was refused in the absence of evidence that the invention was of unusual merit.

(2) Where patentees had incurred losses, these cannot be regarded as evidence of inadequate remuneration if attributable to unskilfulness in conducting their business.—Re THORNYCROFT'S PATENT, [1899] A. C. 415 ; 68 L. J. P. C. 68, P. C.

1814. —— ——.]—Re VAN GELDER'S PATENTS, Ex p. THOMPSON, No. 1868, post.

1815. —— ——.]—Re POULSEN'S PATENT, No. 1863, post.

1816. —— ——.]—In 1902 a patent was granted to B. & others for improvements in or connected with the production of lead oxide & the treatment of rough litharge & residues from the precipitation white lead processes. B. had obtained patents for similar purposes in 1898, & subsequently to 1902 he obtained further patents for improvements in the processes. He had presented a petition for the extension of the patents of 1898, but had withdrawn it. At the hearing of a petition presented by B. & the assignees of his patents for the extension of the patent of 1902, it was proved that the process had been worked by three cos. which had been commercially unsuccessful. A fourth co., petitioners with B. were the assignees of the patents, & were working the patents under the superintendence of B., & were paying him royalties on the working :—Held : the invention had merit, but not in an exceptional degree ; the want of commercial success was due to B.'s failure to appreciate the value of the invention, & that was not a ground for extension.—Re RUNCORN WHITE LEAD CO., LTD.'S PATENT (1916), 33 R. P. C. 201.

1817. —— ——.]—S. was the grantee of two patents granted in 1906 & 1907 for inventions of improvements in Fire & Temperature Alarms or Indicators. The object of the invention protected by the earlier patent was to render the mechanical multiple element type of fire alarm thoroughly practicable & reliable by providing one continuous tension member of high tensile material & forming loops therein, which loops are held in form by fusible metal wholly supported by the tension member. The subject-matter of the later patent was a special construction of fusible member for use in a device made in accordance with the earlier patent. The patentee presented a petition for an extension of the patents for ten years. Evidence was given that the petitioner's device was more simple in construction, less expensive to instal & maintain & was more reliable than any previous system. Petitioner had been unable to obtain the certificate of the Fire Offices Committee until 1914 & thereafter had been hindered in exploiting the patents by causes due to hostilities. The accounts showed a loss. The Crown did not oppose the grant of an extension of five years, but contended that the merit of the invention was not sufficiently great to bring the case within the words exceptional cases in Sect. 18, sub-sect. 5, of Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), & 1919 (c. 80), while for petitioner it was contended that the words exceptional cases did not necessarily import exceptional merit :—Held : the case fulfilled all the requirements necessary to enable a patentee to obtain an extension ; that the main element in determining whether a case was an exceptional case was the element of merit ; exceptional cases was a wide phrase, but absence of remuneration without exceptional merit was not sufficient to justify the grant of an extension of more than five years. Both patents were extended for a period of five years as from the date of expiry of the 1900 patent.—Re SMITH'S PATENTS (1922), 39 R. P. C. 313 ; previous proceedings (1920), 37 R. P. C. 32.

1818. Admission of merit by Crown.]—On a petition for prolongation of a patent the Crown admitted merit sufficient for moderate prolongation. The invention related to injectors for forcing feed water into steam boilers, & effected a great economy by utilising waste steam. The profits of the English patent were £2,365 ; of the foreign patents, £9,344. The patentee had devoted much time to the invention, & had expended £1,700, not brought into the accounts, in experiments. Prolongation was recommended for seven years.—Re DAVIES'S PATENT (1893), 11 R. P. C. 27, P. C.

1819. Failure to prove sufficient merit.]—Prolongation of patent refused on the ground of want of merits.—Re WOODCROFT'S PATENT (1841), 3 Moo. P. C. C. 171 ; 13 E. R. 72, P. C.

1820. ——.]—Their Lordships have not thought it necessary to consider what ought to be the consequence of the admission made by counsel for petitioner that one of the claims made by him in the patent which he seeks to extend is invalid. In their opinion, the nature & merits of the invention disclosed in the patent are not such as to justify them in making any report which would enable Her Majesty to extend the term of the patent (LORD WATSON).—Re BUR-

LINGHAM, INNES & LEE'S PATENT (1898), 15 R. P. C. 195, P. C.

1821. ——.]—A patent was granted in 1892 for improvements in mechanism for automatic guns. The specification originally contained ten claims, but, after having been twice amended, it contained only one claim, which was as follows:—The addition of a suitable projection at the lower part of the crankhandle or cam which serves to rotate the crank & open the breech mechanism. It is this projection, that in its rotary motion will cause all the recoil parts to be carried forward before the aforesaid breech mechanism begins to close. The patentee presented a petition for prolongation, alleging that, through want of means, he had not been able to obtain protection for his invention in any foreign country; that he believed the invention had been used with great practical success by certain others in infringement of his rights; that he had been unable to bring his invention into use owing to ill health & want of means, & to the fact that the invention was one capable of being utilised by only a limited class of manufacturers & in connection with inventions protected, for a large portion of the term of the grant to him, by patents belonging to others; & that he had received no appreciable remuneration:—Held: the invention was not of sufficient merit to justify an extension of the patent.—Re RICCI'S PATENT (1906), 23 R. P. C. 269, P. C.

1822. ——.]—Re HOOD & SALAMON'S PATENT, No. 1864, post.

1823. Proof of merit as to part—Extension granted as to that part.]—Where letters patent, for improvements in machinery, tools, or apparatus for cutting, planing, turning, drilling, & rolling metals, embraced several subjects, one only of which, namely, the rolling of metals, had been worked out, & that part of the patent was affected by subsequent patented improvements by the same patentee, & could not be effectually used without such subsequent improvements; the Judicial Committee, before recommending an extension of the term of the first patent, put the petitioner upon terms of disclaiming all the parts of the original patent not worked out, & restricted the prolongation to the unexpired term of the subsequent patents. — Re BODMER'S PATENT (1853), 8 Moo. P. C. C. 282; 14 E. R. 108, P. C.

Annotations:—Folld. Re Lee's Patent (1856), 10 Moo. P. C. C. 226. Refd. Re Aubé's Patent (1854), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 43.

1824. —— ——.]—Letters patent comprised three separate subjects. Upon an application for an extension of the term of the patent, one only of the three subjects, that relating to railway breaks, appeared to the Judicial Committee to be deserving of a renewed grant. Prolongation granted under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 83, s. 40, for such part only of the letters patent as related to railway breaks, & not to the other subject-matters of the patent.—Re LEE'S PATENT (1856), 10 Moo. P. C. C. 226; 14 E. R. 478, P. C.

1825. No evidence of merit.]—The patentee of an invention for a telescopic ladder applied for a prolongation. No evidence was offered as to merit. The accounts showed a profit of £3,105 16*s*. but petitioner stated that the accounts did not include expenses amounting to £3,650. Petition refused.—Re KELLY'S PATENT (1900), 17 R. P. C. 476, P. C.

1826. Evidence against merit—Want of user.]—A patent article was unprofitable for ten years after the date of the patent, in consequence of a defect which was not cured until then. Extension of the term refused.—Re BELL'S PATENT (1846), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 159; 10 Jur. 363, P. C.

1827. —— ——.]—Re PINKUS' PATENT, No. 1804, ante.

See, also, Sub-sect. 5, G. (b) ii., post.

ii. What amounts to Merit.

1828. Smallness of step in improvement.]—(1) The fact of a further improvement having been made is an argument in favour of an extension.

(2) An inference against the merit of the invention from the smallness of the step, must be carefully guarded against.—Re SOAMES'S PATENT (1843), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 729, P. C.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Re Honiball's Patent (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 378. Generally, Refd. Re Laménaude's Patent (1850), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 164; Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416.

1829. —— Sine qua non of successful application.]—Re JOHNSON'S PATENT (No. 2), No. 1765, ante.

1830. Simplicity.]—(1) The simplicity of an invention an element of its value.

(2) Manufacturer's & patentee's profits. Distinction between the cases of patentee & manufacturer.—Re MUNTZ'S PATENT (1846), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 113, P. C.

Annotation:—As to (2) Refd. Re Hill's Patent (1863), 1 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 258.

1831. First to attain practical result.]—The patentee of an invention for improvements in steam engines presented a petition for prolongation. The accounts showed a total profit of £6,098 on the English patent, & £1,000 on the foreign patents, after allowing the patentee £400 a year for his time. The Crown admitted that though the idea had occurred in prior patents, the present patent was the first to attain a practical result, & that it was a case for moderate prolongation. The Judicial Committee required the patentee & one engineer to give evidence in support of the petition, & granted prolongation for seven years. —Re JOY'S PATENT (1893), 10 R. P. C. 89, P. C.

G. Adequacy and Inadequacy of Remuneration.

(a) In General.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (5); 1919 (c. 80), s. 7.

1832. Remuneration as a whole to be looked at.]—(1) The advertisements should be proved before the case is heard.

(2) The remuneration from the patent as a whole must be looked to.

(3) Accounts must be strictly proved. The amount of profits in different years material. The annual profits must be ascertained.—Re PERKINS' PATENT (1845), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 6, P. C.

Annotation:—Generally, Refd. Re Carr's Patent (1873), L. R. 4 P. C. 539.

1833. Inadequate remuneration defined.]—Re JOHNSON'S PATENT (No. 2), No. 1765, ante.

1834. Inadequacy a ground for granting.]—Re BOVILL'S PATENT, No. 1686, ante.

1835. ——.]—A petition was presented for the prolongation of a patent on the ground that the patentee had been inadequately remunerated. The merit of the invention was proved & the inadequacy of the remuneration was not seriously

PART XII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 5.—G. (a).

1834 i. Inadequacy a ground for granting.]—On an application for an extension appet. must prove the inadequacy of his remuneration during the term of the patent, i.e. that his profits have been disproportionately small in comparison with the merits of his invention in relation to the public —Re ROBINSON'S PATENT (1918), 25 C. L. R. 116.—AUS.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 5, G. (a) & (b) i.]

disputed, but objections were taken to the novelty of the invention & the sufficiency of the specification, & it was suggested that the patent, if prolonged, should be made subject to the compulsory licences clause of the new Act:—Held: unless a patent was manifestly bad, it was not the practice of the Judicial Committee to enter into questions as to the novelty of an invention, & as the specification described a new invention, & as although the invention was meritorious the patentee had not been sufficiently remunerated, the prayer of the petition ought to be acceded to & a new patent for five years granted on the usual terms, but not subject to any conditions.—Re COCKING'S PATENT (1885), 2 R. P. C. 151; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 258.

1836. ——.]—In 1902 a patent was granted for "improvements in the treatment or complete purification of brine or other saline solutions." The improvements consisted in adding a chemically equivalent quantity of freshly precipitated barium carbonate to precipitate the calcium & magnesium sulphates, with or without the previous addition of lime to convert the magnesium sulphate into calcium sulphate, or if calcium chloride or magnesium chloride, or both were present, first adding a soluble sulphate, such as sodium sulphate, to convert the chlorides into sulphates, & then treating as before. A petition for the extension of the patent was presented by the patentee & a co. formed to work his process, & it was proved that by the patented process salt containing at least 99·98 per cent. of sodium chloride could be produced with great rapidity & economy, a result never before obtained on a commerical scale. It was contended for the Comptroller-General that the alleged invention was wanting in novelty, & that the production of salt of extreme purity was not useful, & that the inventor had been sufficiently remunerated; the inventor had received £4,000 or £5,000 including his salary & £1,000 of the co.'s shares on which a dividend of 5 per cent. had been paid for about one year. The co. had made a profit estimated at £12,000:—Held: petitioners had not been adequately remunerated; & a new patent for three years ought to be granted.—Re TRANTOM'S PATENT (1916), 34 R. P. C. 29.

1837. —— Except where utility not proved.]—Re SIMISTER'S PATENT, No. 1766, ante.

1838. —— Patent worked by company—Remuneration of managing director patentee.]—C. was the grantee & registered proprietor of a patent which had been worked exclusively by a co. in which C. & his family were large shareholders, & of which C. was managing director. No formal arrangement had been entered into between C. & the co., & C.'s remuneration in respect of the patent had been derived entirely from his position as a shareholder & director. C. applied by originating summons for an extension of the term of the patent:—Held: C. had suffered a loss qua patentee, & an extension of two years should be granted.—Re CHAMBERS' PATENT (1927), 44 R. P. C. 332.

1839. Adequacy a ground for refusing.]—Re MCINNES' PATENT, No. 1770, ante.

1840. ——.]—The application for a patent in this case is made, not by the original patentee, but by the co. who are now the assignees of the patent. The patent was sold in the first instance by the patentee to a co. called the Noiseless Tyre co., in consideration, under circumstances which happened, of £2,500, & 100 shares of £10 each in the co. That co. was unsuccessful, & its interest was sold to a new Noiseless Tyre co., which carried on the business for three years at a small profit, & then sold the business & the invention to the present appcts. They received on that sale £5,000 in cash, £10,000 in debentures, making £15,000 & 20,000 £1 shares. It is said that the 20,000 £1 shares are now worth only 3*s*. per share instead of £1 per share, the working of the co. in which those shares were held not having been so successful as was at one time anticipated. It is doubtful whether these shares ought to be regarded now at their presnt value of 3*s*. seeing that they had, at the time they were assigned & made over as part of the consideration, a possible value of £1 & might ultimately have had a value of more than £1; but taking them as shares of the value of 3*s*. that would be £3,000 which, added to the £15,000, makes £18,000 received by the co. who sold to the present appcts. Then present appcts. have made admittedly several thousand pounds in addition. Questions have been raised whether certain items which they have debited as against the receipts are properly debited on the ground that they are losses on the cab business, & whether interest on the purchase money of the cab business ought to be taken into account. It is unnecessary to say whether they ought to be taken into account or not, but, undoubtedly, £25,000 must be taken, at the least, as having been received in respect of this invention by the original inventor & his assignees, when the receipts are taken together, as it is suggested they should be. It is unnecessary to deal with the point raised as to the position of appcts. in view of the fact that the inventor, the original patentee, parted with his patent outright, & retained no interest in the patent except as regards shares in the co. which was to work it, which shares of course have no relation to the present co. It is unnecessary to consider the position of an appct. asking for a prolongation under those circumstances, inasmuch as their lordships are of opinion that, accepting the principle contended for by the counsel for the appcts., quite sufficient remuneration has been received for the invention now in queston (LORD HERSCHELL).—Re CARMONT'S PATENT (1897), 14 R. P. C. 239, P. C.

1841. ——.]—Re FLEMING'S PATENT, No. 2052, post.

1842. ——.]—A patent was granted in 1906 for "improvements in alternating current dynamo-electric machines." One of the claims was for "a dynamo electric machine equivalent in its working to two machines connected in cascade, characterised by the fact that upon either the rotor or stator or both is a compound winding which can be so interconnected as to carry currents which produce a plurality of magnetic fields of different numbers of poles." Another patent was granted in the same year to the same grantees for "improvements in windings for alternating current dynamo-electric machines." One of the claims was for "a method of winding parts of dynamo-electric machines requiring windings which can have induced in them currents which produce the equivalent of two magnetic fields of different numbers of poles, consisting in the elimination from the two basal component windings of pairs of bars which neutralise each other, & the suitable interconnection of the remaining bars, substantially as described." A petition for the extension of the patents was presented. At the hearing, the petition was not opposed, except by the Comptroller-General on the ground (inter alia) that petitioners' accounts required explanation, in that a sum had been charged for patent fees & renewals, the bulk of which had been incurred in respect of other patents, & that it was impossible to ascertain what had been paid in respect of the patents of which extension was sought. Petitioners were willing to have the said sum treated as if it had all been paid in respect of the other patents. If that had been done, & if the manufacturing profits & the royalties had been separated & treated as one-half each, the patentees' remuneration would have been £13,000 or £14,000. It was proved that there had been a great loss by petitioners owing to the war. The Comptroller-General did not oppose the petition being regarded as a proceeding under sect. 18 (6) of the Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 & 1919, with an extension of the terms of the patents for four years:—Held: although the £20,000 rule was no longer applicable, the remuneration had been considerable, & an extension for more than four years could not be granted; but that the petition might be regarded, not only as a petition under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), but also as a proceeding under Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80) in respect of war losses. An extension of the patents for four years from the termination of the earlier patent was granted.—Re HUNT'S PATENTS (1922), 39 R. P. C. 131.

---

1839 i. Adequacy a ground for refusing.]—Re TRUFORD OF AUSTRALIA, LTD.'S, PATENT (1920), 28 C. L. R. 294.—AUS.

·]—See, also, No. 1729, ante.

1843. Proof of inadequacy—Strong case necessary.]—Re ERARD'S PATENT, No. 1751, ante.

1844. —— Whether inferred from expense.]—Re PINKUS' PATENT, No. 1804, ante.

1845. —— Absence of profit for part of term.]—The absence of all profits during a part of the term a ground for extension.—Re DOWNTON'S PATENT (1839), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 565, P. C.

1846. —— Actual loss.]—Re BATE'S PATENT (1836), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 739, n.

1847. —— ——.]—The original Act of Parliament allows fourteen years, & it was considered that fourteen years would be the time during which the party would be remunerated; it turns out, however, that S. has received not only no remuneration, but that he has been an actual loser; we think, under these circumstances, it is not unreasonable that he should have the full addition of seven years, only half the length of term which the legislature at the time of James I. contemplated as the proper remuneration (LORD LYNDHURST).—Re STAFFORD'S PATENT (1838), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 563, P. C.

1848. —— ——.]—Re PORTER'S PATENT, Ex p. HONIBALL (1852), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 196, P. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Honiball's Patent (1855), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 201.

Inclusion of foreign profits.]—See Sub-sect. 7, B., post.

(b) Inadequacy.

i. Invention of Exceptional Merit.

1849. Expenditure not properly reimbursed during term.]—Applications of this kind are of very considerable importance, & require to be investigated with a great deal of attention. We have bestowed that attention in this case, & we consider the invention as very meritorious, the result of a great deal of labour, care, & science, & that it is extremely useful in its effects. We are satisfied by reasonable evidence that the party has sustained very considerable loss, & under these circumstances we think that the period ought to be extended. The only point about which we entertain doubt is, as to the extent of time to which it should be extended. We think upon the whole, looking at the profit acquired the last year, & the preceding year, & the year before, that it ought to be extended for seven years, in order to give the patentee a fair opportunity of reimbursing himself, & making some profit upon this invention (LORD LYNDHURST).—Re SWAINE'S PATENT (1837), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 559, P. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Honiball's Patent (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 378.

1850. ——.]—As it appears that this patent has been taken out for a purpose, which, if successful, would be one of great & general use, & that the inventor has been in no way reimbursed, & cannot, probably, be reimbursed for a considerable time; & as it also appears, that the Admlty. has taken up the use of these engines, & that the Crown will have a right to their use, we think it a case in which we may recommend to her Majesty, that an extension of the patent should be granted for fourteen years (SHADWELL, V.-C.).—Re DUNDONALD'S (EARL) PATENT (1844), 8 Jur. 969, P. C.

1851. ——.]—Re LOWE'S PATENT (1846), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 158; 10 Jur. 363, P. C.

1852. ——.]—Re PETTIT SMITH'S PATENT, No. 1888, post.

1853. ——.]—After an assignee of a patentee had incurred considerable loss in carrying out a patent for a smoke prevention apparatus, an Act of Parliament passed to compel the owners of furnaces in the Metropolis to construct them so as to consume their own smoke:—Held: on an application for a prolongation of the letters patent, though the Act of Parliament might, in effect, compel the use of the petitioner's patent, yet that such circumstance formed no objection to a renewal of the term of the letters patent, the merits of the invention, & loss incurred in carrying it out being established.—Re FOARDE'S PATENT (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 376; 14 E. R. 339, P. C.

Annotation:—Consd. Re McCulloch's Patent (1908), 25 R. P. C. 684.

1854. ——.]—(1) Prolongation of term of letters patent for seven years, the invention being a meritorious one, & of great value as a raw material for the manufacture of paper; no profit having been made either by the inventor or his assignees.

(2) The statement of accounts furnished being primâ facie satisfactory, petitioners were allowed to prove the merits of the invention before going into the accounts.—Re HOUGHTON'S PATENT (1871), L. R. 3 P. C. 461; 7 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 309; 17 E. R. 118, P. C.

1855. ——.]—A patent having been granted to B. in 1870, B. & the other persons then interested in such patent applied in due course in 1884 for a prolongation of the term of the patent:—Held: as the invention was a meritorious one, & the accounts, which were not objected to, showed that that petitioners had not made profits, but had sustained a loss, the patent ought to be extended, & the extension should in this case be for seven years.—Re BISCHOF'S PATENT (1884), 1 R. P. C. 162, P. C.

1856. ——.]—Re ROPER'S PATENT, No. 1894, post.

1857. ——.]—The owner of a patent for a broadside steam digger presented a petition for prolongation of his patent, & satisfied the Judicial Committee that his invention was of great merit, & that he had suffered great loss in endeavouring to introduce it. The patent had in the tenth year of his patent given S. the exclusive right to use it. S., however, made no claim to any right to the patent during any prolongation that might be granted. The patentee had also recently entered into an agreement with three persons who had agreed to assist him in presenting the petition & in continuing the patent if prolonged, the patentee to have one third of the profits. One only of such persons gave evidence on the hearing of the petition:—Held: it was not necessary, under the circumstances, to prove the losses with the strict accuracy usually required; there was no reason to suppose the public had suffered loss by the agreement with S., the evidence of the single part to the third agreement was sufficient, & the patent should be prolonged, &, as it was an exceptional case, for ten years.—Re DARBY'S PATENT (1891), 8 R. P. C. 380, P. C.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 5, G. (b) i., ii. & iii.]

1858. ——.]—Where an invention was of conspicuous merit, & it appeared that as regards its application to one of its purposes the patentee had received for an exclusive licence to use it certain shares in cos. formed for that purpose, the value of which shares was largely dependent on the prolongation of the patent, & that with respect to its application to all other purposes the patentee, who had done his best to push his invention, had received nothing at all if the accounts were made up on the basis of a reasonable allowance to himself for his services in working his patents:—Held: the patentee, who had fairly kept & presented his accounts, should be allowed a five years' prolongation.—Re PARSONS' PATENT, [1898] A. C. 673; 67 L. J. P. C. 55; 15 R. P. C. 349, P. C.

1859. ——.]—Re RITCHIE'S PATENT, No. 1885, post.

1860. Remuneration nearly adequate—Exceptional merit ground for short extension.]—Re DEACON'S PATENTS, No. 1729, ante.

Necessity to prove.]—See Sub-sect. 5, F. (b) i., ante.

ii. Fault of Patentee.

1861. Delay in putting invention on market—Due to disputes.]—A patentee entered into an agreement with certain parties, to work the patent, but owing to disputes between them, the invention was not prosecuted until a short time before the expiration of the term of the letters patent; in such circumstances, an extension was refused.—Re PATTERSON'S PATENT (1849), 6 Moo. P. C. C. 469; 13 Jur. 593; 13 E. R. 765, P. C.

1862. —— Intentional delay.]—Re NORTON'S PATENT, No. 1710, ante.

1863. —— Unexplained delay.]—In 1899 a patent was granted for a method of & apparatus for effecting the storing up of speech or signals by magnetically influencing magnetisable bodies. One of the claims was for the herein described method of receiving, storing & reproducing messages, signals or the like, by subjecting a magnetisable body, such as a steel wire or strip, to the action of an electromagnet which moves along it, or along which it is moved, the coil of this magnet being first in connection with a transmitter, so that the wire or strip is influenced in a manner corresponding to the signals transmitted, & the coil being then in connection with a telephone receiver by which the signals which influenced the wire or strip are reproduced. A petition for the extension of the patent was presented by the assignees of the patent, an American co., which was not a manufacturing but only a promoting co. The bulk of that co.'s stock was held by a Danish co., which itself was not a manufacturing co., the manufacturing in Denmark being done by another Danish co. No attempt had been made to work the patent in the United Kingdom, beyond an endeavour to form a co. for the purpose. The invention was of great scientific merit, & apparatus made in accordance with it gave good results, but, although many attempts had been made to produce a commercially useful apparatus, no success had been achieved before the date of the presentation of the petition. The petition did not state the fact that the patentee, with an associate, had received £10,000 from the sale of shares in one of the foreign cos.; it stated that the great defect in the machines had been their difficulty of adjustment & their fragility, but the patentee in his evidence stated that a machine exhibited did not suffer from fragility:—Held: (1) the petitioners had not shown that the merits of the invention were such as, in the interests of the public, would justify the extension of the term of the patent, & they had not explained or attempted to explain or justify their not having attempted to put the invention into use in this country; (2) if an extension were granted the benefit of it would belong directly to the petitioners, who had not done anything to develop the invention, & indirectly to the Danish co., & still more indirectly to the patentee; & (3) the petitioners were wanting in the required uberrima fides, in that they had not stated in their petition the patentee's profit & had stated that the machines suffered from fragility.—Re POULSEN'S PATENT (1913), 30 R. P. C. 597.

1864. —— ——.]—Re HOOD & SALAMON'S PATENT (1924), 41 R. P. C. 592.

1865. Failure to push the invention commercially.]—On a petition for prolongation of a patent granted in 1882, it appeared from the evidence that, except for an attempt in 1882, no effort was made to work or push the patent commercially until Nov. 1894. No sufficient excuse was given for this delay, & prolongation was refused by the Judicial Committee on this ground.—Re DOLBEAR'S PATENT (1896), 13 R. P. C. 203, P. C.

1866. —— Due to want of skill.]—Re THORNYCROFT'S PATENT, No. 1813, ante.

1867. ——.]—Re HENDERSON'S PATENT, No. 1944, post.

1868. ——.]—Where it appeared that the patented invention had no exceptional merit & involved no new principle, that the assignee of the patents had neither by himself nor his agents displayed suitable energy & business capacity in pushing them & that the inventor was dead & could not possibly, if living, have derived advantage from their extension:—Held: their prolongation must be refused.—Re VAN GELDER'S PATENTS, Ex p. THOMPSON, [1907] A. C. 174; 76 L. J. P. C. 44; 96 L. T. 333, P. C.

1869. ——.]—Re POULSEN'S PATENT, No. 1863, ante.

1870. —— Value of invention not appreciated.]—Re RUNCORN WHITE LEAD CO., LTD.'S PATENT, No. 1816, ante.

1871. —— In England.]—A. S. S. Inc., an American co., were the owners of two patents, granted in 1910, in respect of inventions for testing the air pressure of pneumatic tyres. Prior to 1914 the patentees had manufactured the patented gauges in America only, & had devoted their efforts to bringing the gauges into common use in that country. In Aug. 1914, the patentees purchased a factory in London & by the end of 1915 had put the same in a position to satisfy the anticipated English demand, & in the meantime had widely advertised the patented gauges. In Aug. 1916, the London factory was requisitioned by the War Office. Owing to the loss of the factory & to the almost total cessation of imports from America progress in the British business in the patented gauges ceased. As soon after the war as circumstances permitted manufacture was resumed & the sales of the patented gauges were continuous & increasing. A. S. S. Inc. applied by originating summons for an extension of the terms of the patents:—Held: having regard to the fact that manufacture in the United Kingdom had been commenced, discretion ought to be exercised in favour of appcts., notwithstanding the fact that there had been no manufacture here during the early years of the life of the patent; loss had been shown, & an extension of three years should be granted in the case of each patent.—Re FARIES' PATENT, Re SCHWEINERT & KRAFT'S PATENT (1926), 43 R. P. C. 349.

iii. Patent having Limited Market.

1872. Ground for prolongation.]—(1) The nature of an invention as affecting its introduction into use to be considered.

(2) The new patent must be to the assignee. Re SOUTHWORTH'S PATENT (1837), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 486, P. C.

1873. ——.]—The insufficiency of the usual term to afford remuneration, regard being had to the nature of the invention, a ground for the extension of the term.—Re JONES'S PATENT (1840), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 577, P. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Honiball's Patent (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 378.

1874. ——.]—Re BERRINGTON'S PATENT (1852), cited in L. R. 1 P. C. at p. 510; 4 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. at p. 446; 16 E. R. 386.

Annotations:—Consd. Re Allan's Patent (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 507; Re Hughes' Patent (1879), 4 App. Cas. 174.

1875. ——.]—(1) Letters patent for an invention communicated by a foreigner resident abroad, extended for five years. The invention, machinery for letter press printing, was of a meritorious & useful character, but of an expensive nature, & only at the latter end of the term of the letters patent brought into public use; & although the patent had been worked at a profit, it was not, in the opinion of the Judicial Committee, sufficiently remunerative, considering the value of the invention.

(2) In taking an account of the profits & loss of the working of a patent, the patentee is entitled to charge, as part of his expenses, for loss of time in endeavouring to bring the invention into general use.—Re NEWTON'S PATENT (1861), 14 Moo. P. C. C. 156; 15 E. R. 265, P. C.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Re Newton's Patent (1862), 15 Moo. P. C. C. 176; Re Semet & Solvay's Patent, [1895] A. C. 78.

1876. ——.]—Re HERBERT'S PATENT, No. 1911, post.

1877. ——.]—RUTHVEN'S PATENT CASE (circa 1860), cited in 4 App. Cas. at p. 179; 48 L. J. P. C. at p. 23, P. C.

Annotation:—Consd. Re Hughes' Patent (1879), 4 App. Cas. 174.

1878. ——.]—A patentee presented a petition for prolongation of his patent for improvements in sluices & floodgates. He satisfied the Judicial Committee that his invention was meritorious, but was, from its nature, only capable of being employed to an occasional or limited extent, & that he had had little or no profit:—Held: the patent should be prolonged, &, as it was an exceptional case, for ten years.—Re STONEY'S PATENT (1888), 5 R. P. C. 518, P. C.

Annotation:—Distd. Re Smith's Patent (1922), 39 R. P. C. 313.

1879. ——.]—The patentee of an invention for an improved machine for planing wood presented a petition for prolongation. The accounts showed that after allowing the patentee £25 a year for out of pocket expenses, & £117 a year for personal services, he was largely out of pocket, & that he had been at great difficulties in pushing his invention. The evidence showed that the machine was very successful. Prolongation was granted for seven years.—Re HAZELAND'S PATENT (1894), 11 R. P. C. 467, P. C.

1880. ——.]—Where it appeared that an invention was of considerable merit, that there were great difficulties in introducing it, & that petitioner had incurred loss in his endeavours so to do, their lordships recommended a new patent for the term of ten years.—Re CURRIE & TIMMIS' PATENT, [1898] A. C. 347; 67 L. J. P. C. 66; 15 R. P. C. 63, P. C.

Annotation:—Consd. Re McCulloch's Patent (1908), 25 R. P. C. 684.

1881. ——.]—Re THOMPSON'S PATENT (1902), 19 R. P. C. 565, P. C.

1882. ——.]—In 1894 a patent was granted for new or approved appliances for use in glazing or otherwise covering roofs & sloping surfaces. The claim was for the construction of wire tension roofs for covering conservatories, greenhouses, sheds & other buildings & spaces, consisting of wires or rods strained to form a bearing for sheets of glass, metal or other material, the sheets being held in position by clips or similar appliances to secure them to the wires, substantially as & for the purposes herein set forth & described, & illustrated in the accompanying drawings. The patentee presented a petition for prolongation. The firm of which the patentee was a member worked under the patent & exhibited greenhouses constructed on the patented system at agricultural & other exhibitions. It was stated in evidence that in any district into which the greenhouses had been introduced their adoption had increased & that the patentee had made, or would make, an estimated profit of about £2,100, in addition to an annual remuneration of £250 for fourteen years:—Held: although the patentee had received considerable remuneration, yet having regard to the merits of the invention, & its utility, & the difficulty the patentee must have found in bringing the invention to the notice of the public, a prolongation of the patent for three years should be granted.—Re BOARD'S PATENT (1908), 25 R. P. C. 537, P. C.

1883. ——.]—In 1902 a patent was granted for improvements in or relating to means or apparatus for operating or controlling type-writing & type-setting mechanism by means of perforated tape. The object of the invention was to reproduce telegraphic messages in ordinary printed letters. One of the claims was as follows:—Apparatus for operating or controlling type-writing or type-setting mechanism by means of perforated tape, wherein the extent of movement of the tape-feeding mechanism is variable, & is controlled or determined by selecting mechanism, the action of which is also variable & is dependent upon the position in the successive portions of tape of the perforations & spaces representing the successive letters, the arrangement being such that when the apparatus is in operation the tape will be automatically fed forward in an intermittent manner to an extent dependent upon the length of each letter, whether the lengths of successive letters be variable or not, substantially as described. At the hearing of a petition for the extension of the patent there was no opposition by the public, & it was admitted on behalf of the Comptroller-General, that the invention was meritorious. The number of users was necessarily small, & the working of the invention had for about a year been impeded by the existing war, but petitioners including the inventor, had received considerable remuneration:—Held: the remuneration was inadequate. An extension was granted for seven years, not to exceed five years from the termination of the war.—Re CREED'S & COULSON'S PATENT (1916), 34 R. P. C. 11.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 5, G. (b) iii. iv., (c), & H.; sub-sect. 6, A. & B. (a).]

iv. Other Cases.

1884. Matters beyond patentee's control.]—Re KOLLMAN'S PATENT (1839), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 564, P. C.

1885. ——.]—A patent, granted in 1899 to R. for improvements in telautograph apparatus, became vested in a co. who presented a petition for the extension of the same for fourteen years. It was established that no profits had been made at all from the patented invention up to Mar. 1908, when a certain licence was obtained from the Postmaster-General which enabled the invention to be used practically, & that since that time small & increasing profits had been made:—Held: the patent was for a meritorious invention; there had been no sufficient remuneration; this was not due to any matter under the control of those interested in the patent, & the patent should be extended for the further term of five years.—Re RITCHIE'S PATENT (1913), 31 R. P. C. 1.

1886. ——.]—The ct. granted an extension for five years of a patent for an improved method of absorbing gases & the application thereof to the production of high vacua & the separation of gases on the ground that during the greater part of the life of the patent there had been no adequate opportunity of making its utility available.—Re DEWAR'S PATENT (1918), 34 T. L. R. 512.

1887. Law costs.]—Re RUSSELL'S PATENT, No. 1907, post.

1888. ——.]—(1) In cases for extension of the term of letters patent, the A.-G. represents the Govt. & the public generally.

An application by the Lords of the Admlty. to enter a caveat & be heard against a petition for an extension, such caveat not having been filed within the time required by the rules of the Privy Council Office, refused, as the A.-G. was present to watch the interests of the Govt.

(2) Extension of letters patent granted for five years; the invention being of great merit & public utility, but the patentee & his grantees had received no remuneration, in consequence of the originality of the patent being disputed at law.

In granting such prolongation, the Judicial Committee imposed a condition, that the Comrs. for executing the office of High Admiral should have the right of manufacturing such invention, for the service of Her Majesty, without any licence from the patentee.—Re PETTIT SMITH'S PATENT (1850), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 133; 13 E. R. 830, P. C.

Annotations:—Generally, Mentd. Feather v. R. (1865), 6 B. & S. 257; Income Tax Special Purposes Comrs. v. Pemsel, [1891] A. C. 531.

1889. Peculiar character of opposition.]—Re ROBERTS' PATENT (1839), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 573, P. C.

1890. Lack of influence.]—Re PAYNE'S PATENT (1854), cited in Coryton's Laws of Letters Patent, p. 220, 1891. Public prejudice.]—Re PAYNE'S PATENT, No. 1890, ante.

1892. Discovery of gold fields.]—The ct. has authority to grant the prolongation of the term of a patent to an assignee, even after the original patentee has ceased to have any connection with the working of it.

Where the assignees of a patent, with the working of which the original patentee had ceased to have any connection, were prevented from working it at a profit, on account of the discovery of the gold fields in Australia, the ct. granted a prolongation of the term for five years.—Re NAPIER'S PATENT (1861), 13 Moo. P. C. C. 543; 9 W. R. 390; 15 E. R. 204, P. C.

1893. Difficulty of bringing patent into use.]—Re ROPER'S PATENT, No. 1894, post.

1894. Illness.]—The patentee of a captain's bridge constructed as a self-launching life raft petitioned for prolongation on the ground that owing to illness & other circumstances beyond his control, he had not been adequately remunerated. It was proved that for nearly eight years he had been practically incapacitated for business in consequence of a railway accident. The invention had been awarded prizes at exhibitions, but had never been brought into actual use:—Held: having regard to the meritorious nature of the invention, the difficulty of bringing it into actual use, the patentee's illness, & the fact that no opposition was offered on behalf of the Crown, the case was an exceptional one, & extension for seven years should be granted.—Re ROPER'S PATENT (1887), 4 R. P. C. 201.

1895. Success dependent on prolongation.]—Re PARSONS' PATENT, No. 1858, ante.

1896. Time & cost of development.]—Re STILL'S PATENT (1927), 44 R. P. C. 248.

1897. Limitation of output by licencees.]—Re NOURSE & NEWMAN'S PATENT (1927), 44 R. P. C. 252.

(c) Accounts Showing Remuneration.

See Sub-sect. 7, post.

H. Non-Disclosure of Material Facts in Petition.

Ground for refusal.]—See Sub-sect. 2, ante.

SUB-SECT. 6.—THE ORDER.

A. In General.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18; 1919 (c. 80), s. 7; R. S. C., Ord. 53A, rr. 3 & 4.

1898. In form of new grant.]—Re HONIBALL'S PATENT, No. 1776, ante.

1899. ——.]—Re BETT'S PATENT, No. 1777, ante.

1900. ——.]—Re COCKING'S PATENT, No. 1835, ante.

PART XII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 5.—G. (b) iv.

1884 i. Matters beyond patentee's control.]—Petitioner must prove that the invention is meritorious, that everything in his power to bring out the invention & turn it to advantage has been done, & that, owing to circumstances beyond his control, he has been unable to obtain an adequate remuneration.—Re ANDREWS & BEAVEN'S PATENT (1898), 18 N. Z. L. R. 526.—N.Z.

1901. ——.]—S., to whom a patent was granted in 1871, petitioned for a prolongation thereof. On the hearing of the petition witnesses were called to prove that the invention was meritorious, but no witnesses were called for the Crown, & it was admitted that the accounts were satisfactory:—Held: a new patent ought to be granted for seven years, such patent not to contain any restrictions, conditions, or provisions, & no new specification need be filed.—Re SMITH'S PATENT (1885), 2 R. P. C. 14; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 263, P. C.

1902. ——.]—I think in all the circumstances of this case I shall be exercising my discretion properly if I extend these patents coterminously with the expiration of the American patents, & that is, in effect, one year in regard to each of the patents. That will be, in regard to one of them, in the form of a re-grant, & in the other in the form of an extension, & the order will take that particular form. As regards the re-grant, there will be the usual restrictive provisions (TOMLIN, J.).—Re KETTERING & CHRYST'S PATENTS (1924), 42 R. P. C. 507.

1903. ——.]—I will grant an extension of three years, & it must take the form of a re-grant in the usual way (TOMLIN, J.).—Re WESTMORELAND'S PATENT (1925), 42 R. P. C. 513.

1904. Extension as to some claiming clauses only.]—The ct. has power, under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, to extend the term of a patent as to one or more of its claiming clauses without extending it as to all those clauses.—Re LODGE'S PATENT, [1911] 2 Ch. 46; 80 L. J. Ch. 517; 104 L. T. 716; 27 T. L. R. 419; 28 R. P. C. 365.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Trantom's Patent (1916), 34 R. P. C. 29.

——.]—See, also, Nos. 1823, 1824, ante.

1905. Power to impose conditions—Limit to authority.]—LEDSAM v. RUSSELL, No. 2566, post.

1906. —— Transfer to beneficial owner.]—Re YOUNGS' PATENT, No. 2120, post.

——.]—See Sub-sect. 6, B., post.

B. Conditions.

(a) In favour of Patentee or His Estate.

1907. Application by assignee—Benefit of patentee.]—Term of letters patent for improvement in manufacturing gas tubes, extended by the Judicial Committee, under the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, for six years; on the ground of the great merit & utility of the invention, & the inadequate remuneration occasioned in a great measure by the expense incurred by litigation, which the assignee of the patent had been involved in for the protection of his patent rights.

Where the inventor, a mechanic, had assigned his interest to the patentee, his master, the Judicial Committee, under the circumstances, made it a condition to their recommendation to the Crown to prolong the term of the patent, that the assignee of the patent should secure the inventor an annuity during the period of the extension.—Re RUSSELL'S PATENT (1838), 2 Moo. P. C. C. 496; 12 E. R. 1095, P. C.

Annotations:—Distd. Re Bodmer's Patent (1849), 6 Moo. P. C. C. 468. Consd. Re Markwick's Patent (1860), 13 Moo. P. C. C. 310. Distd. Re Pitman's Patent (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 84. Refd. Re Claridge's Patent (1851), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 394.

1908. —— ——.]—Re WHITEHOUSE'S PATENT (1838), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 473, P. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Re Markwick's Patent (1860), 8 W. R. 333. Refd. Allen v. Rawson (1845), 1 C. B. 551.

1909. —— ——.]—Extension of term of letters patent granted to assignees of patentee.

The inventor & patentee had lost largely by the patent, but his assignees had lately made very considerable profits, & from their position in the trade, were likely to command a very large sale of the patent article. The patent was of high merit, & of great service to the public safety. In such circumstances, a prolongation of the term was granted to the assignees for four years, upon conditions, first, that the assignees secured to the patentee half the profits derived from the sale; &, secondly, that the patented article should be sold by the assignees to the public, at a certain fixed price.

In estimating the profits made under a patent, the profits arising from the sale of the patented article for exportation must be included.—Re HARDY'S PATENT (1849), 6 Moo. P. C. C. 441; 13 Jur. 177; 13 E. R. 754, P. C.

Annotations:—Distd. Re Bodmer's Patent (1849), 6 Moo. P. C. C. 468. Refd. Re Claridge's Patent (1851), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 394.

1910. —— —— Effect of expenditure by assignee.]—Re BODMER'S PATENT, No. 1823, ante.

1911. —— Benefit of widow.]—Petition for prolongation of term of letters patent by patentee, together with the assignees of a moiety of the patent. After the presentation of the petition, & before the hearing, the patentee died, having by his will appointed his widow extrix. & residuary legatee. Extension granted to the assignees on condition that they held the moiety of the patent in trust for the widow of the patentee. If an invention had not been brought into practical use during the term of the letters patent, it raises a strong, though not conclusive, presumption against its utility; & unless there are circumstances to rebut such presumption, an extension of the term of letters patent will not be granted. The fact of a patent of a valuable nature, but having a limited market, not having been so generally used as to remunerate the inventor, is sufficient to remove the presumption against the utility of the invention.—Re HERBERT'S PATENT (1867), L. R. 1 P. C. 399; 4 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 300; 16 E. R. 330, P. C.

1912. —— ——.]—A patent was granted for improvements relating to the treatment of "sewage." The invention consisted in the addition of yeast to sewage in order to separate the sludge & obtain a substance containing much less water than the original sludge, & so more capable of being economically dried & utilised as a fertiliser. Various assignments of the patent rights had been made, & a certain amount of sewage had been dealt with by a co., but, owing to the war & internal troubles in Ireland, only in a discontinuous manner, & for a short time. A petition for the extension of the patent having been presented, it was stated by petitioner that it was proposed that plant for dealing with sewage should be erected for local authorities at the expense of the owners of the patent rights, by whom the treated sludge would be sold as fertiliser & the plant would eventually become the property of the local authorities, & that a contract upon those terms had been made. The accounts showed a loss of a large sum of money upon, or in connection with, the development of the invention. The petition was supported by the Comptroller on the ground that, as the utilisation of the process might be a great public utility, the case was an exceptional one, in which an extension for seven or eight years might be granted.

a. Application by assignee—Benefit of executors.]—Re MCCULLOCH'S PATENT (1908), 25 R. P. C. 684.—SCOT.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 6, B. (a), (c), (d) & (e); sub-sect. 7, A.]

A petitioning co., the registered owners of the patent, offered to secure to the grantee's widow, his administratrix, a holding equal to 5 per cent. of the issued capital of the co. for the time being :—Held: the case came within the exceptional cases in which some extension beyond five years was permissible, & the proper term of extension was eight years, subject to the condition to which the owners of the patent had offered to submit.—Re DICKSON'S PATENT (1925), 42 R. P. C. 463.

(b) In favour of Crown.

1913. Rights of user without licence.] — Re PETTIT SMITH'S PATENT, No. 1888, ante.

1914. ——.]—In all cases where the utility of a patent has not been tested by actual employment the question to be considered is, whether the evidence is sufficient to rebut the presumption arising from its non-use that the invention is one of no practical utility. Application for a prolongation of the term granted after strong & unanswered evidence of utility, though the patent had not been used in England during the whole term. On grounds of public policy the condition was annexed that the govt. & all contractors employed by the govt. should be at liberty to use the invention.

The question to be considered in all these cases is whether the evidence is sufficient to rebut the presumption arising from its non-use that the invention is one of no practical utility (SIR MONTAGUE SMITH).—Re HUGHES' PATENT (1879), 4 App. Cas. 174 ; 48 L. J. P. C. 20 ; 27 W. R. 493, P. C.

Annotation :—Refd. Re Soc. Chimique des Usines du Rhône's Patent, [1922] 1 Ch. 258.

1915. ——.]—The new letters patent must . . . be subject to the condition, which has become now a usual one in cases of inventions which are likely to be required for use by the govt., that the govt. & its contractors be entitled to use the invention (SIR MONTAGUE SMITH).—Re NAPIER'S PATENT (1881), 6 App. Cas. 174 ; 50 L. J. P. C. 40 ; 29 W. R. 745, P. C.

1916. —— Refusal of court to insert condition.]—Patent for improvements in the manufacture of fire-arms. The patentee had received large sums of money from govt., for the expenses of experiments, & by way of bounty & reward, but from the nature of the patent had not, in the opinion of the Judicial Committee, received sufficient remuneration for his invention, & in granting an extension, their lordships refused to impose a condition in the new grant, that the Crown should be at liberty to use the invention for the public service without licence from the patentee.—Re LANCASTER'S PATENT (1864), 2 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 189 ; 15 E. R. 872.

Annotations :—Refd. Feather v. R. (1865), 6 B. & S. 257. Mentd. Income Tax Comrs. v. Pemsel (1891), 65 L. T. 491.

1917. —— ——.]—Re CARPENTER'S PATENT (1854), 2 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 191, n. ; 15 E. R. 873.

Annotations :—Refd. Feather v. R. (1865), 6 B. & S. 257. Mentd. Income Tax Special Purposes Comrs. v. Pemsel, A. C. 531.

1918. Right of user on certain terms.] — Re TAYLOR'S PATENT (1918), 35 R. P. C. 247.

(c) Licences.

1919. No new licences—Though old licences not renewed.]—Patentee, formerly in partnership with J. & W., by a deed of dissolution stipulated that J. & W. should have the exclusive right of granting, in certain cases there provided, licences for manufacturing the patent art. In recommending an extension of the term of the letters patent, the Judicial Committee imposed a condition upon the patentee to secure to J., in whom the interest under the deed of dissolution then vested, the same interest in the new letters patent as related to the granting of licences as was provided by the deed of dissolution, but refused to allow J. to substitute new licences for those granted under the original letters patent, in the event of the original licencees declining to renew their licences from him under the new grant.—Re NORMANDY'S PATENT (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 452 ; 14 E. R. 370.

1920. Licences to public on terms similar to one already granted.]—A patentee, who was not a manufacturer, granted a licence to a manufacturing firm to manufacture the patented article, which by agreement between them was of an almost exclusive character. In granting a prolongation of the term of the letters patent, the new letters patent were directed to be made upon condition that licences should be granted by the patentee to the public upon terms similar to the one already granted.—Re MALLET'S PATENT (1866), L. R. 1 P. C. 308 ; 4 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 175 ; 16 E. R. 282, P. C.

1921. Licences to all persons on same terms.]—L. presented a petition for prolongation of a patent granted to him in 1880 for improvements in the construction & arrangement of apparatus for purifying, disinfecting, & drying. The validity of the patent had been upheld by the House of Lords in an action. The petition was opposed by W., one of defts. in the action, & also by the corpns. of N. & W. & the H. local Board, who did not dispute the validity of the patent or question the accounts or assert the insufficiency of the remuneration, but contended that it should be a term of prolongation that petitioner should grant a licence to anyone desiring it upon the same terms as to royalty as those granted to his exclusive licencees, which petitioner undertook to do before the hearing of this petition. W. contended that the invention was not one of such exceptional merit under the circumstances as to justify prolongation. The Crown consented to a prolongation for a short period. The Judicial Committee decided to recommend the grant of a new patent for five years upon the condition that petitioner should grant licences on the same terms to all persons, the royalties to be limited to 10 per cent. upon the selling price of each machine ; but that the case was not one for costs.—Re LYON'S PATENT (1894), 11 R. P. C. 537.

1922. Existing licences to be continued—New licences to reserve twice the royalty.]—A patent was granted for "improvements in thrust & like bearings." The object of the invention was the construction of a thrust bearing in which the lubricating oil should be automatically carried in between the bearing surfaces in sufficient quantity to form a continuous film capable of supporting the load on the bearing. Only one of the bearing parts, either the fixed or the moving part, had the form of a continuous collar, ring, or disc ; the other bearing part, instead of being also a continuous ring or disc, consisted of two or more separate plates or blocks, each forming substantially a sector of such a ring or disc ; & each block was pivoted at a point somewhat behind its centre of figure, the total bearing pressure that the block carried being transmitted to it by the pivot. A petition for an extension of the patent was presented by the patentee. The petition was unopposed, & the merits of the invention were admitted by the Comptroller-General. It was proved that the invention caused a very great reduction of friction, &, consequently, increased the power transmissible by a shaft, & that the adoption of the invention in ships of war had led to a great saving in coal & oil, in the cost of construction, & in the space occupied by the bearings. The remuneration of the inventor had been about £15,000 :—Held : the invention was very meritorious ; the inventor had not been wanting in diligence in attempting to bring the invention into practical use ; the remuneration of the inventor had been inadequate. An extension of the term of the patent for seven years was granted, on condition that the patentee should continue the licences to existing licencees on the same terms as in those licences, & should, in the case of future licencees, not claim a royalty greater than twice that charged to certain existing licencees.—Re MICHELL'S PATENT (1919), 36 R. P. C. 223.

1923. ——.]—Re FLEMING & GALE'S PATENT (1919), 36 R. P. C. 266.

1924. Terms of licences subject to direction of Board of Trade.]—In 1904 a patent was granted for "improvements in apparatus for ventilating, & for humidifying & warming & cooling air." The invention was more particularly applicable to cotton spinning & weaving factories. The patentee presented a petition for prolongation. By the Factory & Workshop Act, 1901 (c. 22), & earlier statutes, obligations as to ventilation were imposed on manufacturers, but the provisions of the Acts were not enforced, the manufacturers having objected that the legal standard could not be attained. In 1904 an expert appointed by the Home Office reported that the standard could be attained by means of petitioner's apparatus. Petitioner had made a profit by the sale of his apparatus, but at the hearing of the petition it was admitted on behalf of the Crown that if the statutory provisions had been enforced he would have made a larger profit. Petitioner stated that, in the event of prolongation being granted, he was willing to grant licences on terms fixed by the Board of Trade & to accept the decision of the Board as to whether or not he was charging excessive prices :—Held : an extension for six years should be granted, the patentee undertaking to abide by any direction the Board of Trade might give as to the prices of the machines or the terms on which licences were to be granted.—Re HART'S PATENT (1908), 25 R. P. C. 299.

Annotation :—Mentd. McCullock's Patent (1908), 25 R. P. C. 684.

1925. Exclusive licence to be renounced.]—A patentee had granted an exclusive licence for the last nine years of the term of the patent, as he was unable in any other way to get funds to work the patent. The licencees were made co-petitioners in a petition for prolongation. Prolongation was granted for a term of seven years, but the exclusive licencee was required to renounce all right & benefit under the exclusive licence.—Re SHONE'S PATENT (1892), 9 R. P. C. 438.

(d) Registration of Licences.

1926. Undertaking to procure.]—I will grant an extension of three years. There must be an undertaking to procure the registration of the licences. The order must be in the re-grant form, & with the usual proviso (TOMLIN, J.).—Re MORISON'S PATENTS (1924), 42 R. P. C. 511.

1927. ——Re SCHOOP'S & MORF'S PATENTS (1925), 43 R. P. C. 74.

1928. ——Re ARGYLLS, LTD., PERROT & RUBURY'S PATENT (1925), 43 R. P. C. 161.

(e) Extension of Expired Patent.

1929. No action to be brought against innocent infringers.]—Re FLEMING & GALE'S PATENT, No. 1923, ante.

1930. Patent expired shortly before making of Order—Usual provisions inserted.]—Re COSSAR'S PATENT (1926), 44 R. P. C. 201.

1931. —— ——.]—The A. co. applied by originating summons for the extension of the terms of three patents all granted in respect of "Improvements in or relating to Telephone Systems." The patents were three of a group of seventeen, the terms of six of which had already been extended. One of the patents expired ten days before the hearing of the summons. The application was opposed by C. co., on whose behalf it was contended that the war had in fact benefited the A. co. inasmuch as the development of automatic telephony in this country having been delayed by the war, the A. co. had been able to develop their system so as to enable them, after the war, to compete with a rival system which might, but for the war, have been adopted, & that, in any case the period of extension asked for was too long :—Held : the opponents' contention had not been made out & each patent should be extended so as to expire on Jan. 18, 1931, the date fixed for the expiry of the six earlier patents ; the provisions usual in the case of expired patents must be inserted, although it was not due to any default of appcts. that one patent had expired at the date of the hearing of the summons, the ct. having received a measure of assistance as the result of the opposition, there would be no order as to costs.—Re DICKER'S PATENT (No. 2), Re DERRIMAN'S PATENT, Re MARTIN'S PATENT (1927), 44 R. P. C. 263.

SUB-SECT. 7.—ACCOUNTS.

A. Proper and Sufficient Account.

1932. Condition precedent to prolongation.]—Re MARKWICK'S PATENT, No. 1712, ante.

1933. ——.]—Re BETT'S PATENT, No. 1777, ante.

1934. ——.]—Re HILLS' PATENT, No. 1769, ante.

1935. ——.]—(1) To entitle a patentee to a prolongation of the term of letters patent, he must satisfactorily establish the amount of his profits.

A patentee did not manufacture or sell the patented article (ship anchors), but granted licences to I. to manufacture, from whom he received royalties. On an application by him for an extension of the term of the letters patent on the ground of inadequate remuneration, the accounts produced of his own expenditure in carrying on the patent being unsatisfactory, & no accounts given of the profits derived by the licencees, a prolongation of the letters patent was refused, first, as the patentee's accounts were unsatisfactory, & secondly, from the patentee having so dealt with his patent rights as to deprive

PART XII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 7.—A.

1932 i. Condition precedent to prolongation.]—On an application for an extension appct. must exhibit in the affidavit in support of his application a balance sheet showing what he presents as being the receipts & expenditure year by year in respect of the patent.—Re ROBINSON'S PATENT (1918), 25 C. L. R. 116.—AUS.

1932 ii. ——.]—Re LAWRENCE & KENNEDY'S PATENT (1910), 27 R. P. C. 252.—SCOT.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 7, A. & B.]

him of the power of showing the amount of profit derived from the working of the patent.

(2) Licencees stand, with respect to the profits, in the same position as an assignee of the patentee.—Re TROTMAN'S PATENT (1866), L. R. 1 P. C. 118; 3 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 488; 16 E. R. 185, P. C.

1936. ——.]—Re SAXBY'S PATENT, No. 1783, ante.

1937. ——.]—Petitioner, seeking the grace & favour of the Crown, in applying for an extension of the term of letters patent, is bound to bring his accounts before the committee in such a shape as to leave no doubt what the remuneration has been that he has received from the patent.

The petition for extension, & the accounts furnished by petitioner, the patentee, not containing sufficiently full & accurate information in respect to the patent, or the remuneration received by him, the Judicial Committee declined to recommend a prolongation of the term.

The principle, where the statement of the remuneration received by the patentee, is on the face of the petition & accounts filed unsatisfactory, of adjudicating without reference to the merits of the invention, as acted on in Saxby's Patent, No. 1783, ante, recognised.—Re CLARK'S PATENT (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 421; 7 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 255; 17 E. R. 97, P. C.

Annotations:—Distd. Re Houghton's Patent (1871), L. R. 3 P. C. 461. Refd. Re Pitman's Patent (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 84.

1938. ——.]—(1) Accounts of profits & loss filed by a patentee on his application for a prolongation of the term of letters patent being primâ facie unsatisfactory, the Judicial Committee directed the question of accounts to be taken before considering the merits of the invention. As the accounts were not satisfactorily explained, the application for a prolongation was refused.

(2) It is certainly not desirable to refuse the costs of a fair opposition, since it is rather in the interest of this tribunal to encourage bonâ fide oppositions (per CUR.).—Re WIELD'S PATENT (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 89; 8 Moo P. C. C. N. S. 300; 17 E. R. 325, P. C.

1939. ——.]—Re ADAIR'S PATENT, No. 1699, ante.

1940. ——.]—(1) On petition for extension of the term of letters patent the accounts of the patentee, who was also the manufacturer of the patented article, did not distinguish between receipts in respect of the patented article & receipts in respect of other articles manufactured by the patentee, or between the profits of the earlier or later years of the term:—Held: the accounts were not satisfactory, & further time to amend the accounts was refused.—Re YATES & KELLETT'S PATENT (1887), 12 App. Cas. 147; 57 L. J. P. C. 1; 3 T. L. R. 353; 4 R. P. C. 150, P. C.

1941. ——.]—Where the accounts filed by a patentee showed not the result of the books, but the accountant's correction of them, & where it also appeared that the books themselves had been kept in such a way that without a very long, minute, & laborious investigation it was impossible to say whether he had been adequately remunerated or not:—Held: a petition for prolongation must be dismissed.—Re LAKE'S PATENT, [1891] A. C. 240; 60 L. J. P. C. 57; 8 R. P. C. 227, P. C.

1942. ——.]—Re LANE FOX'S PATENT, No. 1785, ante.

1943. ——.]—Re CLARK'S PATENT, No. 1717, ante.

1944. ——.]—Where petitioners were assignees & purchasers of a British patent as a commercial speculation, & their accounts did not disclose with any clearness the extent of the profits made either by the inventor or petitioners:—Held: prolongation must be refused, although the invention was one of great merit & worthy of exceptional consideration; the expiration of the foreign patents for the same invention & the failure of the British patentee to push the invention in this country for the first seven years of the life of the patent were serious, though not in themselves objections to a prolongation.

Prolongation of a patent refused, appct. being the assignee by purchase of the patent as a commercial speculation, & there being no satisfactory evidence that the inventor had not been adequately remunerated.—Re HENDERSON'S PATENT, [1901] A. C. 616; 70 L. J. P. C. 119; 85 L. T. 358; 17 T. L. R. 676; 18 R. P. C. 449, P. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Wuterich's Patent, [1903] A. C. 206.

1945. ——.]—Petition by assignees of a patent for its extension dismissed, no means of judging whether the inventor had been remunerated having been given. An application for adjournment was refused as unprecedented.—Re PEACH'S PATENT, Ex p. PEACH & BOSWELL, HATFIELD & CO., [1902] A. C. 414; 71 L. J. P. C. 98; 87 L. T. 153; 19 R. P. C. 65, P. C.

1946. ——.]—The accounts presented to the Committee on an application for extension of a patent must be intelligible & complete, showing what remuneration the patentee has actually received. He cannot be allowed, except perhaps in very special circumstances, to supplement them by oral evidence.—Re WUTERICH'S PATENT, [1903] A. C. 206; 72 L. J. P. C. 60; 88 L. T. 306, P. C.

1947. —— Absence of books unfavourable to petitioner.]—A petition was presented for prolongation of a patent for refrigerators by a co., the assignees of the patent. The assignees admitted a profit by the patentees previous to the assignment of £7,000 odd, & by the co. of £2,000, & one of the patentees had received £2,750, as manager of the co. The accounts of the patentees' working were missing. In the prospectus issued on the formation of the co., it was stated a profit had been made which would pay 7 per cent., which, if true, would have made the profit considerably larger than was admitted by the patentees. The sale of the refrigerators was not increasing:—Held: doubting whether the patent had sufficient merit to justify prolongation, the remuneration was adequate, & the patentees must be taken to have received more than they had admitted, as in the absence of the books, & of a reasonable explanation of such absence, everything must be taken most strongly against petitioners, & if the statement in the prospectus was untrue, that would bring an amount of discredit into the case which would prevent prolongation being granted.—Re LAWRENCE'S PATENT (1890), 9 R. P. C. 85, P. C.

1948. What are sufficient accounts—Annual profits must be shown.]—Re PERKINS' PATENT, No. 1832, ante.

1949. —— Made up from insufficient material by accountant.]—Re LAKE'S PATENT, No. 1941, ante.

1950. —— ——.]—H. applied for prolongation of a patent granted to him, alleging utility of the invention & that he had received no remuneration at all. He had kept no books, but shortly before the presentation of the petition he had marked upon certain cheques drawn upon his private account approximately the amounts expended by him at different times in working the patent. Upon these materials the accounts accompanying the petition were made up by the accountant. There were no vouchers or other corroboration :—Held : prolongation ought to be refused.—Re HUGHES' PATENT (1898), 15 R. P. C. 370, P. C.

1951. —— Utility as to part only—Profits as to that part to be shown.]—Re WILLACY'S PATENT, No. 1685, ante.

1952. —— Where remuneration very large—Must be of fullest nature.]—It may not be always necessary to show licencees' profits, but the profits of a person who is assignee of one-third of the patent with a free licence must be shown.

The owners of patents for improvements in the manufacture of steel presented a petition for prolongation. It was admitted that a profit of over £250,000 had been made. It appeared that the original patentees had, in order to get their invention taken up, given to B. one-third share in the patents & a free licence, that a large number of licences were granted to manufacturers, & that for the convenience of dividing profits a limited co. had been formed of the persons interested in the patents, including B. It was alleged by petitioners that the invention was of national importance, & of such exceptional merit that the remuneration was not adequate. By their accounts petitioners showed the moneys received for royalties, & the proportion received by B. in respect of his third share, but did not show the profits made by any of the licencees, nor any profits made by B. before the formation of the co., nor B.'s manufacturing profits since. Some of the items of expenditure were grouped together under one head, such as an item of £15,000 for salaries, office rent, travelling & general expenses, experiments & drawings. A preliminary objection was taken by the Crown that the accounts were insufficient, if not on the ground that they did not show the licencees' profits, at any rate because they did not show B.'s profits, & also because no sufficient details were given of the items :—Held : doubting whether, if the case had been gone into, any evidence could have induced the Committee to report inadequate remuneration, in such a case the accounts ought to be of the fullest nature ; without going into the questions whether the licencees' profits should be shown, which might not be necessary, or whether a considerable number of items might be lumped together, which might be justifiable, the case of B., an assignee of a share of the patents & a free licencee, was entirely different ; the profits made by B., so far as his manufacturing profits were assignable to the patents, & all the profits made by him by the use of a free licence, compared with the profits made by other licencees paying royalties, ought to have been shown, & the petition was dismissed. —Re THOMAS' PATENTS & THOMAS & GILCHRIST'S PATENT (1892), 9 R. P. C. 367, P. C.

What profits must be shown.]—See Sub-sect. 7, , post.

Manufacturers' profits.]—See Sub-sect. 7, post.

Profits to be Shown.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (4).

1953. Foreign profits.]—Re HARDY'S PATENT, No. 1909, ante.

1954. —— From foreign patent.]—Re ADAIR'S PATENT, No. 1699, ante.

1955. —— ——.]—(1) Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 25, clause 4, does not alter the rules adopted by the Judicial Committee.

(2) It is the duty of a patentee applying for a prolongation to produce accounts of all the profits received under foreign patents in respect of his invention.—Re NEWTON'S PATENTS (1884), 9 App. Cas. 592 ; 52 L. T. 329 ; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 262 ; 1 R. P. C. 177, P. C.

1956. —— ——.]—Re JOHNSON'S PATENT (No. 2), No. 1765, ante.

1957. Sale of patent for cash & shares—Subsequent sales of shares to be shown.]—Re BOWER-BARFF PATENT, No. 1722, ante.

1958. Assignment for lump sum & annual payment—Annual payments to be shown.]—In 1884, a patent was granted to L. for "improvements in moulds for moulding decorative or other slabs & blocks." He assigned this patent with others to the P. A. co., & £6,000 was the consideration for the assignment, besides which L. had received £250 from another co. The P. A. co. went into liquidation & a new co., the A. S. co., acquired the patent. L. & the A. S. co. presented a petition for prolongation. It transpired that L. had for some eight years received £300 per annum as managing director of the A. co. L. claimed to deduct from the £6,250 the costs incurred by him in certain legal proceedings in relation to the patent, & that the balance was an insufficient remuneration. The accounts showed that the patent had been worked at a loss :—Held : the £300 a year ought to have been brought into account by the patentee ; he was not entitled to made the deductions claimed.—Re MCLEAN'S PATENT (1898), 15 R. P. C. 418, P. C.

1959. Profits from subsidiary patents—To be clearly distinguished.]—A petition was presented for prolongation of letters patent for "Improvements in dissolving cellulose & allied compounds." The invention consisted of a new reaction producing a new material, & for petitioners it was alleged that the uses to which the new material could be put had to be ascertained & the trades in them created, & that therefore, although the merits of the invention were very great & the patentees had shown great industry in endeavouring to get the invention taken up, they had not received adequate remuneration. The accounts included matters relating to subsequent patents taken out by the patentees & included accounts relating to the sale of foreign patents & the accounts of certain licenced companies in which the patentees held a considerable interest. The patentees alleged that there had been a loss on English business taken alone. For the Crown, it was objected that the accounts were not sufficiently clear & in particular did not distinguish between expenditure in respect of the patent, & that in respect of subsidiary patents subsequently taken out by the patentees ; & that it was not shown that there was a loss on the English business taken alone, & that the patentees had not fulfilled their duty to present clear accounts :—Held : though the accounts were at first sight rather confusing, the Board were satisfied after explanations & after consideration, that the accounts were sufficient, &, the invention being of great merit, the patent was prolonged for five years.—Re CROSS, BEVAN & BEADLE'S PATENT (1906), 23 R. P. C. 485, P. C.

Profits as manufacturer.]—See Sub-sect. 7, C., post.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 7, C., D., F. & G.; sub-sect. 8, A. &

C. Deductions from Profits.

1960. Deductions not mentioned in petition.]—The administrator of a patentee petitioned for prolongation of the patent on the ground of inability to obtain due remuneration for perfecting the invention. The accounts presented showed a nett remuneration of £8,038 16*s.* 4*d.* The patentee at the bar claimed that some further deductions not mentioned in the petition or the accounts ought to be made from this sum:—Held: no such deductions could be made, & evidence on the point was under the circumstances inadmissible; &, on the evidence which was admitted, the patentee had not been inadequately remunerated, & the petition should be dismissed.

What the statute says is, that the Judicial Committee shall, in considering their decision, have regard to the nature & merits of the invention in relation to the public. Upon that, evidence has been called, which shows what can hardly be disputed, viz., that the invention which is the subject of the patent is a beneficial invention; but as to the petitioner showing there was any special or peculiar advantage in the invention in relation to the public to entitle the patentee to the large reward of an extension of his patent, their lordships are of opinion that he has totally failed so to do. No such proof has been given (LORD BLACKBURN).—Re BAILEY'S PATENT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 253; 1 R. P. C. 1, P. C.

1961. Necessary expenses.]—Re KAY'S PATENT, No. 1773, ante.

1962. Whether cost of litigation may be deducted.]—Re HEATH'S PATENT (1853), 8 Moo. P. C. C. 217; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 247; 14 E. R. 83, P. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Honiball's Patent (1855), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 378.

1963. ——.]—Re BOVILL'S PATENT, No. 1686, ante.

1964. ——.]—Re MCLEAN'S PATENT, No. 1958, ante.

1965. —— Suits compromised & costs given up.]—Re HILLS' PATENT, No. 1769, ante.

1966. Loss of time in bringing patent before public.]—Re NEWTON'S PATENT, No. 1875, ante.

1967. ——.]—In circumstances showing a want of adequate remuneration, an extension of the term of letters patent granted for six years. In estimating the profits derived from the patent, the Judicial Committee will take into consideration a deduction from the profits of the patent for the personal expenses of the patentee, for the exclusive devotion of his time in bringing the patent into practical operation & public notice.—Re CARR'S PATENT (1873), L. R. 4 P. C. 539; 9 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 379; 17 E. R. 556, P. C.

1968. Division of royalty with agent.]—Re POOLE'S PATENT, No. 1798, ante.

Patentee also manufacturer.]—See Sub-sect. 7, D., post.

D. Patentee also Manufacturer.

1969. Accounts must show profits of patent—& of manufacture.]—Re MUNTZ'S PATENT, No. 1830, ante.

1970. ——.]—Re BETT'S PATENT, No. 1777, ante.

1971. —— ——.]—Re SAXBY'S PATENT, No. 1783, ante.

1972. —— ——.]—Re DUNCAN & WILSON'S PATENT, No. 1728, ante.

1973. —— —— Sufficiency.]—Re YATES & KELLETT'S PATENT, No. 1940, ante.

1974. General increase in business due to patent.]—Re SAXBY'S PATENT, No. 1783, ante.

1975. Deduction of profits as manufacturer.]—Re GALLOWAY'S PATENT, No. 1709, ante.

1976. ——.]—Re BETT'S PATENT, No. 1777, ante.

1977. —— Amount.]—Re HILLS' PATENT, No. 1769, ante.

1978. —— ——.]—Re DUNCAN & WILSON'S PATENT, No. 1728, ante.

1979. —— Mere preference of market.]—Re GALLOWAY'S PATENT, No. 1709, ante.

1980. Invention cheapening manufacture.]—In 1920 the assignees of a patent granted in 1905 applied by originating summons under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3), for an extension of the term of the patent. The evidence in support of the application was to the effect that the invention consisted in a machine for cutting the pile of cotton velvets; that appcts. had acquired the patent in 1911, & prior to the war had expended a large sum of money on new buildings & machines; that owing to the war appcts. had not been able to use the said buildings & machines to their full capacity; & that in addition they had been unable to sell machines to customers abroad:—Held: where the effect of a patent is to reduce the cost of production, the profits of a manufacturer who is a monopolist in the use of the patent can be divided into (a) ordinary manufacturing profits & (b) profits arising from reduced cost of production, & it would be wrong to say that, because those profits are not segregated from each other, a loss was a loss solely as a manufacturer & not as a patentee; & such loss & also loss with reference to the manufacture of machines for sale abroad came within Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (6). An extension of three & a half years was granted.—Re UNITED VELVET CUTTERS ASSOCN., LTD.'S APPLICATION (1920), 37 R. P. C. 261.

E. Assignees.

See Sub-sect. 3, C., ante.

F. Licencees.

1981. Exclusive licencees.]—Re SHONE'S PATENT, No. 1925, ante.

1982. Whether licencees' accounts essential.]—Re TROTMAN'S PATENT, No. 1935, ante.

1983. —— Assignee of one-third part.]—Re THOMAS' PATENTS & THOMAS & GILCHRIST'S PATENT (1892), 9 R. P. C. 367, P. C.

G. Practice.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53, r. 3 (i).

1984. Accounts unsatisfactory—Merits not considered.]—Re SAXBY'S PATENT, No. 1783, ante.

1985. —— ——.]—Re CLARK'S PATENT, No. 1937, ante.

—— ——.]—See, generally, Sub-sect. 7, A., ante.

1986. Accounts primâ facie satisfactory—Proof of merits before considering accounts.]—Re HOUGHTON'S PATENT, No. 1854, ante.

1987. Time for production.]—Re YATES & KELLETT'S PATENT, No. 1940, ante.

1988. Admission of oral evidence to supplement accounts — Deceased patentee having kept no accounts—Only small estate left.]—Re HEATH'S PATENT, No. 1678, ante.

1989. —— Books lost during bankruptcy.]—Re HUTCHISON'S PATENT, No. 1693, ante.

1990. ——.]—Re WUTERICH'S PATENT, No. 1946, ante.

1991. Adjournment for amendment of accounts.]—Re YATES & KELLETT'S PATENT, No. 1940, ante.

1992. ——.]—Re PEACH'S PATENT, Ex p. PEACH & BOSWELL, HATFIELD & CO., No. 1945, ante.

1993. Production & inspection before hearing.]—Re BRIDSON'S PATENT, No. 2039, post.

1994. Whether strict proof required.] — Re THOMPSON'S PATENT, No. 1881, ante.

SUB-SECT. 8.—PRACTICE.

A. In General.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 & 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 ; R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 3.

1995. Application for extension—Governed by R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 3.]—R. S. C., 1908, Ord. 53A, r. 3, forms in itself, taken in connection with the Rules of the Supreme Court which are made applicable, a code by which all questions of practice relating to petitions for the extension of patents are to be governed, & the subsequent rules of the order as to particulars in cases of petitions for revocation & actions for infringement are governed by different considerations.

R. S. C., 1908, Ord. 53A, r. 3 (l), gives the ct. considerable latitude as to what particulars of objections to a prolongation should be given, & the considerations which apply are those which apply to pleadings generally. But the objector should at the earliest stage possible give the petitioner particulars of what he relies on as preventing the patent from being novel or from having subject-matter, including a concise statement of what he knows as to any literature, specifications, & the like documents relied on.—Re JOHNSON'S PATENT, [1908] 2 Ch. 487 ; 77 L. J. Ch. 732 ; 99 L. T. 442.

1996. Whether failure to observe rules may be remedied—Necessity to observe statutory provisions.]—Re ADAM'S PATENT (1898), 16 R. P. C. 1, P. C.

1997. ——.]—Re PEACH'S PATENT, Ex p. PEACH & BOSWELL, HATFIELD & CO., No. 1945, ante.

1998. Petition prosecuted with effect—Brought to hearing before expiry of patent.]—(1) By 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 4, it is provided, "that no extension shall be granted if the application shall not be made & prosecuted with effect, before the expiration of the term originally granted in such letters patent" :—Held : the petition for such prolongation must be brought to a hearing before the expiration of the letters patent, & the pendency thereof is not sufficient to bring it within the proviso.

Where, therefore, petitioner had been prevented prosecuting his petition before the expiration of the letters patent, by the conduct of parties objecting, & from the circumstance of the Judicial Committee not being sitting, & the period for which such letters patent had been originally granted, had, in the mean time, expired, the Judicial Committee, feeling themselves bound by the terms of the Act of Parliament, dismissed the petition, though no laches, or neglect, could be imputed to petitioner.

(2) The rules enacted for practice, in patent cases, under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, must be observed in an application for a prolongation under Patents Act, 1839 (c. 67).—Re BODMER'S PATENT (1840), 2 Moo. P. C. C. 471 ; 12 E. R. 1085, P. C.

Annotation :—Refd. Re Kay's Patent (1839), 3 Moo. P. C. C. 24.

1999. —— ——.]—LEDSAM v. RUSSELL, No. 2566, post.

2000. Amendment—Of petition.]—Re REECE'S PATENT (1881), cited in Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. XXII., p. 200.

2001. Application to enter caveat by Crown—Out of time.]—Re PETTIT SMITH'S PATENT, No. 1888, ante.

2002. Particulars of objections—Whether essential in case of Crown.]—Re CHURCH'S PATENTS, No. 1782, ante.

2003. —— Sufficiency of.]—It is sufficient, prior to tendering evidence of instances of anticipation, to state the grounds of objection to the extension of letters patent without stating all the particulars of those objections.—Re BALL'S PATENT (1879), 4 App. Cas. 171 ; 48 L. J. P. C. 24 ; 27 W. R. 477, P. C.

Annotation :—Refd. Re Livet's Patent (1892), 9 R. P. C. 327.

2004. —— To be given at earliest moment.]—Re JOHNSON'S PATENT, No. 1995, ante.

2005. Evidence — Admissibility of American specification.]—Re STEWART'S PATENT, No. 1780, ante.

Adjournment for amendment of accounts.]—See Sub-sect. 7, G., ante.

B. Advertisements.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (1) ; R. S. C., Ord. 53A, rr. 3 (a), (b), (c).

2006. Proved before case heard.]—Re PERKINS' PATENT, No. 1832, ante.

2007. Advertisements after petition — Whether allowed.]—Re LINDON'S PATENT (1897), 14 R. P. C. 643, P. C.

Annotation :—Distd. Re Frieze-Green's Patent, [1907] A. C. 460.

2008. —— ——.]—Re POYSER'S PATENT (1907), 24 R. P. C. 157, P. C.

2009. —— —— No power to waive provisions of statute.]—Under the Patents Act, 1883 (c. 57) the Board has no power to entertain a petition for extension where there has not been any advertisement as prescribed by sect. 25 (1). It has no power to dispense with the express provisions of a statute.—Re FRIEZE-GREEN'S PATENT, [1907] A. C. 460 ; 76 L. J. P. C. 105 ; 97 L. T. 223, P. C.

2010. In what journal advertised — Patentee resident abroad.]—Re DEROSNE'S PATENT, No. 1771, ante.

2011. What advertisements necessary—Amendment of summons.]—A. & G. applied by originating summons for an extension of the term of a patent granted to them in respect of an invention of "Shelf-supporting brackets." In the title of the summons the patent was stated to be "for an invention of self-supporting brackets." An extension was granted, & subsequently the error in the title of the summons was discovered. Appcts. then applied to the ct. for leave to put the matter in order by amending the summons. The application was refused, & it was intimated

PART XII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 8.—A.

b. Adjournment.]—Where the term of a patent has been extended by an Act of Parliament passed subsequent to the presentation by the patentee of a petition under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, the petition must be adjourned generally.—Re ALLIBON'S PATENT, [1920] 1 I. R. 83.—IR.

c. Notice of hearing.]—In case of extension the ct. will require notice of the hearing to be given to the A.-G.—Re ANDREWS & BEAVEN'S PATENT (1898), 18 N. Z. L. R. 526.—N.Z.

d. Right of Registrar of Patents to appear.]—Re MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD., [1920] N. Z. L. R. 188.—N.Z.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 8, B. & C. (a) that a fresh summons should be issued & advertised. On the second summons coming before the ct. on the application to fix a day, the order for an extension that had been made previously was repeated.—Re HOUGHTON'S (A. B. & G. G.) PATENT (1926), 43 R. P. C. 343.

2012. —— Not order granting extension.]—Where a petition is presented under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, asking for an extension, the order granting the extension is not advertised as in the case of an amendment of a specification under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 22, & R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 23 (f).—Re FERRANTI'S PATENT (1918), 88 L. J. Ch. 123; 119 L. T. 306; 34 T. L. R. 390; 62 Sol. Jo. 535.

C. Time for Proceedings.

(a) In General.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 27), s. 18 (1); & Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7.

2013 Application for extension—General rule—Short time before six months prior to expiry—Not altered by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7.]—(1) The procedure by originating summons introduced by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3), was merely substituted for or alternative to the former procedure by petition, & by reason of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 92, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 20, sched., the decision of the judge selected by the Lord Chancellor was final in every case with the exception mentioned in the schedule, namely, an order revoking or confirming the revocation of a patent.

D., who claimed to have suffered loss or damage by reason of hostilities, applied by originating summons under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7, for the extension of the terms of eight several patents granted in the years 1911 to 1915 inclusive. The G. L. B. syndicate, Ltd., made a similar application in respect of three patents granted in the years 1912, 1915 & 1916 respectively:—Held: (2) the well settled practice as to applications for the extension of the terms of letters patent existing prior to Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), namely, that the application had to be made very shortly before the six months prior to the expiration of the patent, had not been materially altered by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7; & accordingly, an application for prolongation under Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7, must be made as a general rule quite a short time before the expiration of the patent; (3) the "loss or damage" through hostilities, mentioned in Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3), referred to loss or damage suffered during the whole term of the patent, & not merely to that which was suffered during a portion of that term; (4) in neither of the cases was there any special circumstance to justify a departure from the general rule.—Re DAVIDSON'S PATENTS, Re GASKIN'S PATENTS, [1921] 1 Ch. 69; 90 L. J. Ch. 214; 124 L. T. 300; 37 T. L. R. 57; 65 Sol. Jo. 74; 37 R. P. C. 252, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (2) Distd. Re Metropolitan Amalgamated Ry. Carriage & Wagon Co. & Greg's Patent (1920), 37 R. P. C. 266. Consd. Re Pugh's Patents (1921), 38 R. P. C. 150.

2014. —— Whether early application entertained—Difficulty of assessing profits made.]—Re MACINTOSH'S PATENT (1837), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 739, n.

Annotation:—Folld. Re Allibon's Patent (1920), 37 R. P. C. 30.

2015. —— —— Necessity for special circumstances—Two years before expiry.]—In Oct. letters patent were granted for "improvements in railway coaches, tramcars, & the like, & in the manufacture of the same." On Mar. 23, 1920, the patentees applied by originating summons under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3), for an extension of the term of the patent. The evidence in support of the application was to the effect that the invention was a pioneer invention, that until Aug. 1914, appcts. had endeavoured to procure the introduction of the use of the invention, but that the outbreak of war had prevented them from carrying the matter further, & that, owing to the heavy expenditure necessary for the development of the invention, it would not be of advantage to appcts. to proceed with such development unless the term of the patent should be extended:—Held: the case was within Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (6), the circumstances of the case were sufficiently special to justify the application being made two years before the expiration of the term of the patent, owing to the exceptional expenditure necessary to enable the advantages of the patent to be reaped, it was probable that such expenditure would have to be deferred until the extension of the patent or abandoned, & five years extension should be granted.—Re METROPOLITAN AMALGAMATED RAILWAY CARRIAGE & WAGON CO., LTD. & GREG'S PATENT (1920), 37 R. P. C 266.

2016. —— —— ——.]—Re DAVIDSON'S PATENTS, Re GASKIN'S PATENTS, No. 2013, ante.

2017. —— —— Effect of statute extending duration.]—Where after an application for prolongation of a patent had been launched & the advertisements required before the petition had been issued, but a new Act for extending the duration of patents for two years was passed a few days before the petition was filed, thereby rendering the petition premature in the ordinary course:—Held: even though the expenses of advertising would be thrown away, the petition must stand over generally with liberty to apply to restore later on.—Re SMITH'S PATENTS (1920), 90 L. J. Ch. 110; 123 L. T. 568; 37 R. P. C. 32; 36 T. L. R. 321.

2018. ——— Extension of time by Comptroller—Patents, Designs & Trade Marks (Temporary) Rules, 1914, r. 3.]—By virtue of Patents, Designs & Trade Marks (Temporary) Rules, 1914, r. 3, the Comptroller has power to extend the time which is limited by Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (1), for presenting a petition for the prolongation of a patent.—Re WOODALL & DUCKHAM'S PATENTS (1917), 87 L. J. Ch. 67; 117 L. T. 216; 61 Sol. Jo. 479; 34 R. P. C. 228.

2019. —— Petition presented more than one week after last advertisement—Service of notice of motion to admit on person filing caveat.]—Re HUTCHISON'S PATENT, No. 1693, ante.

2020. Notice of opposition.]—Re ARGYLLS, LTD., PERROT & RUBURY'S PATENT, No. 1928, ante.

(b) Application for Extension after Expiry.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (1).

2021. Discretion of court.]—On Dec. 29, 1902,

PART XII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 8.—C. (b).

2021 i. Discretion of court.]—The time within which an application for an extension may be made, may, before the expiration of the patent, be extended to a time subsequent to such expiration.—Re ROBINSON'S PATENT (1918), 25 C. L. R. 116.—AUS.

a patent was granted for " improvements in hopper barges & dredgers " ; & on Feb. 24, 1920, the patentee applied by originating summons under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3), asking that, if necessary, the period within which application might be made for the extension of the term of the patent, or for the grant of a new patent in respect thereof, might be extended, & that the term of the patent might be extended, or that an order might be made granting to the patentee a new patent for such a term as might be specified therein. The patentee stated in an affidavit that he, with his family, owned about 80 per cent. of the capital in a co. which the patentee had never licenced under the patent, but which he had permitted to manufacture under the patent. Up to the outbreak of the war the co. had built, on an average, about one vessel a year embodying the patent, & in the ordinary course of business had completed one such vessel in 1914, & another, by special permission of the Ministry, in 1915, the co. having become a controlled establishment. At the hearing of the summons, the Comptroller contended that an application at so long a time as three years after the expiration of the patent could not be allowed, & that it had not been shown that the co. could have built a vessel a year, or that there had been any loss to the patentee as such :—Held : the patentee was claiming in respect of a loss sustained by him, not as patentee, but as one of the shareholders in the co., & a loss sustained because the co., in common with other ship building cos., had been precluded from building a ship, not because the co. had been precluded from building a ship with certain patent rights attaching to it ; without deciding that it was impossible to grant an extension of a patent under the legislation in question when the patent had expired three years before the application, it would have to be a very special case for such an extension to be made ; the case before the ct. was not a special case of that kind, & it would not be right to extend the patent for one year, or possibly eighteen months, which would be the utmost to which the patentee could be entitled.—Re BROWN'S PATENT (1920), 37 R. P. C. 142.

Annotations :—Refd. Re Pierpont & Duncan's Patent & Boult's Patent (1921), 38 R. P. C. 355 ; Re Poulsen's Patent (No. 2) (1921), 38 R. P. C. 105.

2022. Exercise of discretion—Petition presented before expiry of patent.]—LEDSAM v. RUSSELL, No. 2566, post.

2023. —— Two years after expiry—Application impossible before.]—In 1904, letters patent for " improvements in & connected with electric capstans " were granted to D. & letters patent for " improvements in & connected with capstans " were granted to B. D. & B. had pooled their interests in the patents. The patents expired in 1918. In 1920 D. & B. made a joint application by originating summons under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (6), amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), for extension of the terms of the patents & adduced evidence that prior to the war there had been a growing demand for capstans manufactured under the patents ; that from 1905 till Mar. 1915, one hundred & eighty-three capstans had been manufactured ; that from Mar. 1915, till Mar. 1917, eight capstans had been manufactured ; that from Mar. 1917, till Mar. 1918, no capstans had been manufactured ; & that capstans were again in course of manufacture :—Held : an extension of four years should be granted. [illegible] & BAXTER'S PATENT (1920), 38 R. P. C. 23.

2024. —— Special case must be made out.]—Re BROWN'S PATENT, No. 2021, ante.

2025. —— ——.]—Re POULSEN'S PATENT (No. 2), Re HAGE'S APPLICATION, No. 2059, post.

2026. —— ——.]—The M. L. corpn. was the registered proprietor of two patents which had expired respectively in Oct. 1917, & Dec. 1917. In 1920 it applied by originating summons for an extension of the patents. The application was opposed by S. on the ground (inter alia) that he had used the patented inventions, & incurred expense in connection therewith, on the footing that the patents were dead. Owing to the M. L. corpn. having been engaged on the manufacture of munitions throughout the war, & having been controlled from 1915 onwards, manufacture of the patented article had been practically suspended, & the corpn. had been largely unable to meet the demand for the patented article. The reasons advanced for delay in making the application were that, when the patents expired in 1917, there seemed little prospect of a speedy cessation of hostilities ; that, apart from the fact that appcts.' establishment was controlled, it was impossible to obtain materials for work other than such as was authorised by Govt. ; that owing to the pressure of Govt. work it was impossible to devote the time necessary to preparing a case by petition ; but that as soon as the provisions of the Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), had come into force appcts. had considered their position with the result that this application had been instituted :—Held : in a case where a patent had expired for over two years a special case was necessary to the grant of an extension ; in view of that, & that appcts. had, since the patents had expired, been able to sell the patented article very much as if the patents had been still in existence, & also that an extension might prejudice the opponents, an extension ought not to be granted.—Re PIERPONT & DUNCAN'S PATENT & BOULT'S PATENT (1921), 38 R. P. C. 355.

2027. —— Decision not to apply at right time.]—In Jan. 1905, letters patent were granted to P. for an invention relating to " improvements in navigable vessels." In 1906 the patent was assigned to M. S. C., Ltd., P. receiving three thousand shares in the co. In Jan. 1919, the patent expired. The invention, in substance, consisted in constructing vessels situated on or below the water line. In a petition for extension of the patent, presented in 1920 by the patentee & his assignees, petitioners claimed that the use of this principle imparted to the vessel greater strength, less dead weight, reduced vibration, steadier sea going qualities, increased cargo capacity, & resulted in a considerable saving of cost in construction & working ; & alleged that the invention had not been extensively used owing to the principle of the invention being contrary to accepted scientific thought, & the consequent disinclination on the part of shipbuilders to adopt it, & also owing to Govt. restrictions as to shipbuilding during the war. That nine ships had been built up to 1914, & one in 1917, one in 1918, & one in 1921, & that two ships were being built. Patents had been taken out in a number of foreign countries, but with the exception of the United States patent, they had all lapsed or expired. The M. S. C., Ltd., had, prior to the expiration of the patent, been advised that, in order to obtain an extension, it would be necessary to give the inventor an increased interest in the invention, & in consequence of that & of conflicting advice as to whether the merit of the invention was sufficient to support a successful petition, no application had been made at that time. P. had since acquired an increased interest in the patent. In 1920 leave was given to present the petition without prejudice to the objection that it was out of time, the motion for leave being ordered to be dealt with at the hearing of the petition:—Held: petitioners having decided not to apply for an extension at the right time, the jurisdiction to extend the period under the proviso to Sub-sect. 1, of Sect. 18 of Patents & Designs Acts, 1907–1919, ought not to be exercised so far as the application was made under the old jurisdiction; so far as the application was based on sub-sect. 6, the result of the war had been to cause loss to the patentee; & substantially four & a half years of the useful life of the patent had been lost, & an extension of four & a half years from the expiration of the patent should be granted on terms as to infringement proceedings & licences.—Re PETERSEN'S PATENT (1921), 38 R. P. C. 267.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 8, C. (b), D., E., F. & G. (a), (b), (c) & (d); sub-sect. 9, A.]

Annotation:—Reid. Re Hunt's Patents (1922), 39 R. P. C. 131.

D. Accounts.

See Sub-sect. 7, G., ante.

E. Appeal.

2028. No appeal from originating summons.]—Re DAVIDSON'S PATENTS, Re GASKIN'S PATENTS, No. 2013, ante.

F. Loss due to Hostilities.

Form of application—Originating summons.]—See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, & 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3); R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 4.

2029. —— —— Petition in involved case.]—Re POULSEN'S PATENT (No. 2), Re HAGE'S APPLICATION, No. 2059, post.

2030. Particulars—By Comptroller—Objection intended to be insisted on.]—Re HADDAN'S PATENTS (1923), 41 R. P. C. 166.

2031. Onus of proof.]—D. & B., who were the registered proprietors of a patent granted in 1906 to R. in respect of an invention of "Improvement in means for conveying cotton from a bale breaker or the like to the mixing rooms of a mill" applied by originating summons for an extension of the patent. It appeared from the evidence that the nature of the patented apparatus was such as to necessitate it being sold, in the first instance, at approximately cost price in order to secure its introduction into general use, & that up to 1914 no real profits were made; that in Aug. 1914, appcts. had commenced manufacturing munitions of war & that in Sept. 1915 they had become a controlled establishment; that owing to their being controlled & the high cost of labour & materials & the disturbed state of the trade it had not been possible to develop the patented invention; that in Nov. 1919 appcts. had become decontrolled, & that in 1919, 1920, & 1921 they had sold a large number of the patented apparatus at a very large profit:—Held: it lay upon appcts. to show affirmatively that they had suffered loss or damage; the abnormal profits made since the end of the war, which to a very large extent were the result of the war, had more than counterbalanced the loss sustained as the result of the war, & an extension of the patent should not be granted.—Re RUSHTON'S PATENT (1922), 40 R. P. C. 30.

Application after extension.]—See No. 2

G. Costs.

(a) Petitioner Successful.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 3 (u).

2032. No ground for opposition.]—Re DOWNTON'S PATENT (1839), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 565, P. C.

2033. Difficult & doubtful case.]—Re CHURCH'S PATENTS, No. 1782, ante.

2034. Opposition withdrawn.]—M. co. & H. co. applied by originating summons for an extension of the term of a patent granted to M. in 1909. Evidence of loss due to hostilities was given. Notice of opposition had been given but was subsequently withdrawn. Owing to delays arising out of the opposition the summons was not heard until the patent had expired for over a year. In view of that circumstance an extension of four years from the date of the expiration of the patent was granted. The opponents were ordered to pay the costs of the application so far as they had been increased by the opposition.—Re MARTINEAU'S PATENT 1926), 44 R. P. C. 205.

2035. ——.]—Re DRESSLER'S PATENT (1926), 44 R. P. C. 203.

2036. Measure of assistance from opposition.]—Re DICKER'S PATENT (NO. 2), Re DERRIMAN'S PATENT, Re MARTIN'S PATENT, No. 1931, ante.

2037. Petitioner partially successful—Period of extension reduced.]—J. applied by originating summons for an extension of the terms of two patents, the second being a patent of addition for a period of five years. The application was opposed by L. co. The patents related to improvements in the manufacture of axles, & had been worked only by L. co., who had installed apparatus for that purpose at their works at C. Prior to the war the major part of the manufacture of axles carried out by L. co. had taken place at their works at P. During the war the P. works had been enlarged to meet the govt.'s demand for steel, & in consequence thereof the manufacture of axles had been wholly transferred to C. It was contended by L. co. that the decrease in royalties during the war had been due to lack of orders, & that such decrease had been balanced by a corresponding increase after the war; that the transfer of the manufacture of axles to C. had resulted in a benefit, due to the war, to J., since apparatus for working the patents had not been installed at P.; & that in any case the period of extension asked for was too long:—Held: (1) appct. had suffered a loss which would be fairly compensated by the grant of an extension of two years; & (2) the result of the opposition having been to substantially reduce the period of extension asked for, appct. should not be awarded costs.—Re JOHNSTON'S PATENTS (1927), 44 R. P. C. 254.

(b) Petition Abandoned.

2038. Discretion of court.]—(1) The Judicial Committee will exercise a discretion as to the allowance of an opposer's costs upon an abandoned petition for extension of letters patent.

(2) A gross sum allowed for costs of opposers, instead of referring their costs to taxation.

(3) An affidavit of merits by petitioner upon the question of costs, rejected, as no copy had been served upon the opposers.—Re MILNER'S PATENT (1854), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 39; 14 E. R. 212, P. C.

2039. Costs given to all opposers.]—(1) Application, under Evidence Act, 1851 (c. 99), s. 6, by parties who opposed an extension of letters patent, for production & inspection of petitioners' accounts

PART XII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 8.—E.

e. No appeal from Lord Ordinary.] —There is no appeal from the decision of the Lord Ordinary on a petition brought in Scotland for an extension of the term of a patent.—Re LAWRENCE & KENNEDY'S PATENT (1910), 27 R. P. C. 252.—SCOT.

previous to the hearing of the petition refused, with costs.

(2) Costs given to all the opposers upon petitioners abandoning petition before hearing.

(3) Where the petition is abandoned, it is not necessary that the opposers should serve petitioners with notice of their intended application to the ct. for costs of opposition.—Re BRIDSON'S PATENT (1852), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 499; 13 E. R. 973, P. C.

2040. ——.]—On a petition for prolongation of letters patent, a day was fixed for hearing. Objections were lodged against an extension. Before the hearing petitioners abandoned the prosecution of the petition. In such circumstances, costs of opposition allowed to opposer.—Re HORNBY'S PATENT (1853), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 503; 13 E. R. 974; sub nom. Re HORNBY'S PATENT, Ex p. ASHTON, 1 C. L. R. 519, P. C.

2041. ——.]—Re BROWN'S PATENTS (1886), 3 R. P. C. 212, P. C.

2042. —— Gross sum allowed.]—Re MILNER'S PATENT, No. 2038, ante.

2043. —— One set of costs between opponents.]—Re IMRAY'S PATENT (1908), 26 R. P. C. 11.

2044. —— —— Leave to withdraw.]—Re STEARN'S PATENTS (1911), 28 R. P. C. 696.

2045. —— Leave to withdraw refused.]—Re LILLIEHÖÖK'S PATENT (1920), 37 R. P. C. 36.

2046. Service on opposers of notice of application for costs.]—Re BRIDSON'S PATENT, No. 2039, ante.

(c) Successful Opposition.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, rr. 3 (u), (v), (w).

2047. Successful opposer usually given costs—To encourage opposition.] — Re HONIBALL'S PATENT, No. 1776, ante.

2048. —— ——.]—Re WIELD'S PATENT, No. 1938, ante.

2049. Gross sum for costs of all opposers.]—Where there were two opponents to an application for a prolongation of a patent upon substantially the same grounds of objection, the Judicial Committee, upon a successful opposition, allowed a gross sum for the costs of both parties.—Re JONES' PATENT (1854), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 41; 14 E. R. 213, P. C.

2050. —— To avoid expense of taxation.]—Re HILLS' PATENT, No. 1769, ante.

2051. —— To be divided pro rata.]—Re JOHNSON'S PATENT, No. 1995, ante.

2052. —— Others than Comptroller.]—In 1904, a patent was granted for "Improvements in instruments for detecting & measuring alternating electric currents." One of the claims was for "A vacuous vessel having in it two conductors adjacent to but not touching each other, one of them being heated, these conductors being connected by a circuit outside the vessel, such circuit being exposed to some influence tending to produce an alternating current in it & which contains a galvanometer or other instrument for detecting a continuous current substantially as described." A petition for the extension of the term of the patent was presented by the patentee & the owners of the patent. Petitioners alleged that the invention, the subject of the patent, & commonly known as the "F. valve" enabled the signals of wireless telegraphy to be received with certainty at distances much greater than had been possible with any previously known detector & that it was, & had been for some years, used all over the world for long distance signalling. They also alleged that the detectors previously in use were satisfactory for short distance work, & were cheaper & less fragile than the patentee's invention, & that, accordingly, until long distance stations had come into use, there had not been any market for the invention. The customers of the owners of the patent had been practically confined by legislation to a co. working under licences from the owners, & to various Govt. departments, which, until the outbreak of war, had made little use of high power wireless stations. It was alleged by some of the opponents of the petition that (inter alia) the alleged invention was wanting in subject-matter & utility, & by them & other opponents that petitioners had been adequately remunerated. At the hearing it was admitted by petitioners that they had made a profit of about £8,500, on the sale of the valves, & it was proved that petitioners had received a sum of over £13,000 on the shares received on the sale of foreign patent rights to subsidiary cos., that they had a large share of pending claims against British Govt. departments, & that they had been monopolist users of the invention, with one exception, & had had, during the whole term of the patent, opportunity for fully exploiting the invention:—Held: without deciding as to subject-matter, the invention was of unusual utility, but the remuneration of petitioners had not been inadequate. Petition was dismissed, with one set of costs among the opponents, other than the Comptroller.—Re FLEMING'S PATENT (1919), 36 R. P. C. 55; 35 T. L. R. 179.

2053. Discretion to give no costs.] — Re STEWART'S PATENT, No. 1780, ante.

2054. ——.]—Re LYON'S PATENT, No. 1921, ante.

(d) On Originating Summons.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 4 (j), (k), (l).

2055. Comptroller's costs—Same practice as on petition.]—Re WINGQUIST'S PATENT, No. 2057, post.

SUB-SECT. 9.—LOSS DUE TO HOSTILITIES.

A. In General.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18; 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3).

2056. Extension in nature of substitution for part of original term—Effect of failure to manufacture.]—By Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3), it was provided that at the end of sect. 18 of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), the following sub-sect. should be added: "(6) Where by reason of hostilities between His Majesty & any foreign state, the patentee as such has suffered loss or damage . . . an application under this sect. may be made by originating summons . . . & the ct. in considering its decision may have regard solely to the loss or damage so suffered by the patentee. . . ."

On an application for an extension of a patent under this provision, in which it was shown that loss or damage had been suffered by the patentee by reason of hostilities, it appeared that the patented article had never been manufactured in the United Kingdom, but that as a matter of ordinary business success any attempt to manufacture in the United Kingdom would have been foredoomed to failure:—Held: although on an application for an extension under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, as unamended the failure to manufacture would have been a grave objection to granting an extension, it was far less material in an application seeking an extension under the new sub-sect. when the extension was in the nature of a substitution for part of the original term of the patent which had been rendered valueless by reason of hostilities; &

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 9, A. & B.]

accordingly, for this reason & having regard to the satisfactory explanation given by appcts. of their failure to manufacture in the United Kingdom, an extension ought to be granted.—Re SOCIÉTÉ CHIMIQUE DES USINES DU RHÔNE'S PATENT, [1922] 1 Ch. 258; 91 L. J. Ch. 348; 126 L. T. 657; 66 Sol. Jo. 217; 39 R. P. C. 27.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Faries' Patent, Re Schweinert & Kraft's Patent (1926), 43 R. P. C. 349.

As to default of patentee.]—See Sub-sect. 5, G. (b) ii., ante.

2057. Abnormal profits since war—May counterbalance loss due to war.]—In 1907 letters patent were granted to W., & in 1911 were assigned to a foreign co., subject to a sole & exclusive licence granted in 1910 to a British co. In 1922 the patent was assigned by the foreign co. to the British co. subject to & with the benefit of the sole & exclusive licence. The foreign co. held practically all the share capital of the British co. The invention, the subject of the patent, was specially applicable to a particular purpose, but was also applicable to general purposes. The British co. alleged that, by reason of the war & govt. control, the special application of the invention could not properly be developed & that they had suffered loss. During the war there was a greatly increased demand for the article to which the patent related for general purposes. This demand was partly met by the British co. by obtaining supplies from the foreign co., but owing to the rate of exchange the British co. suffered heavy loss. During the war the foreign co. made large profits. The British & foreign cos. joined in an application by originating summons for an extension of the patent on the ground of loss due to hostilities. The application was opposed. At the hearing appcts. were unable to prove definitely the date at which the British co. became a controlled establishment:—Held: (1) the foreign co. being on the register as the patentees during the period of the war, the position of the British co. as sole & exclusive licencee did not constitute them the patentees within Patents & Designs Acts, 1907–1919, s. 18 (6); (2) a slight retardation had taken place in the percentage of sales by the British co. of the patented article for its special purpose as compared with total sales, but that was outweighed by the increase in the total sales & in the sales for the particular purpose resulting from the war; (3) if the British co. alone were to be considered, very large losses exceeding the profits had been incurred by the co., & the foreign co. as patentee had made a large extra profit in consequence of the hostilities; (4) in the circumstances, the date from which govt. control was exercised was inmaterial, but it was for appcts. to establish such date if necessary for their case.

(5) In the absence of special circumstances the same practice as regards the costs of the Comptroller-General should be followed as is provided for under R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 3 (w), in the case of petitions.—Re WINGQUIST'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 261.

Reason for shortening period of extension.]—See Sub-sect. 9, E., post.

No jurisdiction to entertain application after patent once extended.]—See Sub-sect. 11, post.

2058. Petition on insufficient grounds under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29)—Regarded as proceeding under Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), in respect of war losses.]—Re HUNT'S PATENTS, No. 1842, ante.

2059. Position of firm coming into existence during period of hostilities.]—In July, 1920, an application was made by originating summons for the extension of a patent which had expired in July, 1917. Appcts. were H., the registered legal owner at the date of the expiration of the patent, a syndicate entitled to the beneficial interest in the patent at the date of the application, & a co. which had succeeded the said syndicate in the beneficial interest. The application was opposed by the Crown upon the grounds (inter alia) that the patent had expired nearly three years previously to the application; that since the patent had expired the invention had been used & developed by govt. departments & others on the footing that the patent had expired; & that the facts of the case were not such as to bring it within sub-sect. 6, added to Patents & Designs Act, 1907, c. 29, s. 18, by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80). The application was also opposed by C. F. Elwell & The Radio Communication Co., Ltd. Evidence was given in support of the application to show that, owing to Treasury restrictions, appcts. had not been able to obtain the capital necessary to exploit the patent, & that user of the invention was restricted owing to the war:—Held: (1) especially in view of the exceptional case that an appct. must make out to obtain the extension of the term of a patent that has expired for three years, the evidence did not establish a primâ facie case for an extension. (2) Semble: sub-sect. 6 is primarily aimed at compensating persons whose existing business or position has been interfered with by reason of the outbreak of hostilities, & a co. that had come into existence during hostilities would only with difficulty bring itself within the sub-sect.; (3) appct. H. having sold the patent to appct. co., his former position was merged in that of a shareholder, & he could only be compensated in that capacity by reason of an extension being granted to the co. The application was dismissed & appcts. were ordered to pay the costs of the opponents E. & the R. C. Co. (4) Applications under sub-sect. 6 could be made by petition instead of by originating summons, & in an elaborate & involved case it was desirable that the application should be made by petition.—Re POULSEN'S PATENT (No. 2), Re HAGE'S APPLICATION (1921), 38 R. P. C. 105.

Annotation:—As to (4) Refd. Re Hunt's Patents (1922), 39 R. P. C. 131.

2060. Failure to bring patent into general use.]—J. & T. were the grantees of two patents in 1906. The patentees agreed to assign the patents to a co., which co. subsequently assigned its interest in the patents to the P. co., which became the beneficial owner of the patents. No assignment was ever executed. In 1909 J. died. In 1922 T. & the P. co. applied by originating summons for an extension of the patents. The first patent had never come into general use, but with regard to the second patent there had been a considerable loss due to conditions caused by hostilities:—Held: there not having been any business in the material covered by the first patent to be interfered with, an extension should not be granted, but an extension of four years & three months was granted with regard to the second patent.—Re JOHNSON & TITLEY'S PATENTS (1922), 39 R. P. C. 419.

2061. Loss or damage—Loss during whole term of patent—Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3).]—Re DAVIDSON'S PATENTS, Re GASKIN'S PATENTS, No. 2013, ante.

2062. —— Loss of opportunity.]—Re COSSAR'S PATENT, No. 1930, ante.

2063. ——.]—Re DRESSLER'S PATENT, No. 2035, ante.

2064. —— Development delayed.] — Re DICKER'S PATENT (No. 2), Re DERRIMAN'S PATENT, Re MARTIN'S PATENT, No. 1931, ante.

2065. Loss of foreign profits.]—Re UNITED VELVET CUTTERS ASSOCN. LTD.'S APPLICATION, No. 1980, ante.

B. Personal Services.

2066. Military service—Of patentee.]—B. & T. were the grantees of a patent granted in respect of an invention of "Improvements in cinematograph pictures" in which the basic purpose was the embodiment in a portable form of a cinematograph machine that could be used in the home free from technical difficulties of operation & in which pictures were taken by the ordinary strip film & reproduced through a microscope in a spiral series on a flat disc. At the time of the grant of the patent both patentees were without capital & T. was bkpt. In order to exploit the patented invention the patentees entered into an agreement with U. whereby U. was to buy the patent, & also to pay a royalty & to employ T. in connection with developing the patented invention. B. & T. remained the registered legal owners of the patent. A considerable amount of experimental work was found to be necessary to make the patented invention capable of commercial exploitation, & experiments with that object were carried on until Aug. 1914.

It was impossible to carry on the experiments during the period of the war owing to the fact that U. & his staff were engaged either with His Majesty's Forces or on work of national importance. The experiments were resumed in 1919, & in 1922 the patentees were in a position to exploit the patented invention commercially. In Oct. 1921, T. obtained his discharge from bkpcy. & by an agreement made in July, 1922, the grantees regained the beneficial interest in the patent, U. being given an interest in the patent in return for financial assistance. On an application by originating summons for an extension of the term of the patent:—Held: B. & T. had suffered loss quâ patentees, including loss of opportunity of developing the patented invention & an extension of five years should be granted.—Re BROWN & BROWN'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 95.

2067. ——.]—Re CLAUDE'S PATENTS (1926), 44 R. P. C. 17.

2068. —— Of applicant.]—Re AYRE & BALLARD'S PATENT (1924), 42 R. P. C. 178.

2069. —— Of applicant's son.]—B. was the grantee of a patent granted in 1906 in respect of an invention of "Improvements relating to calendars." The profits made with respect to the patent showed a consistent increase until 1914. During hostilities the profits decreased, & owing to the control of paper during 1917 & 1918 the business was almost at a standstill. Thereafter the profits again increased. The patentee was also hampered by the absence of his son on military service. After the termination of hostilities the patentee formed a private liability co., in which he held nearly all the shares, to organise & carry on his business, including the patent. Subsequently the patent was assigned to the co. B. & the co. applied by originating summons for an extension of the patent. Extension of three years was granted.—Re BENNET'S PATENT (1922), 39 R. P. C. 447.

2070. —— Of directors & staff of licencees.]—F. was the grantee of three patents, granted in respect of inventions of improvements in internal combustion engines. Two of the patents were granted in 1909, & the third in 1913. The inventions related to a new type of opposed piston engines suitable for operation in either gas or liquid fuel & for land, marine or aeronautical purposes. The invention the subject of the 1913 patent was of an improvement on the inventions the subject of the 1909 patents. F. granted an exclusive licence, including the power of granting sub-licences, for the whole of the unexpired term of the patents and any extension thereof for all land & aeronautical purposes to E., Ltd., & subsequently assigned the patents, subject to the said licence to S., Ltd. S., Ltd., who were the registered owners of the patents, applied by originating summons for an extension of the patents. The exor. of F., who was deceased, was a consenting party to the application. S., Ltd. & E., Ltd., who had the same chairman, directors & staff, had jointly endeavoured to develop the inventions, their policy being to do so by the grant of licences. Under the licences some engines had been completed for experimental purposes, & others were still under construction, the completion having been very greatly delayed owing to war conditions. Detailed evidence was given as to the difficulties encountered. One engine built for commercial purposes completed its trials in 1920, & was actually in commercial use. The engines were very costly to construct. S., Ltd., & E., Ltd., had together expended £33,432 in developing the patented inventions & had received £25,894; C., Ltd., licencees, had expended £149,000 & had received £13,833; E. E., Ltd., licencees, had expended £23,994, & had had no receipts. The operations of S., Ltd., & E., Ltd., had been further hampered by the absence of directors & staff, either with the Army or on work of national importance:—Held: appcts. had suffered loss by reason of hostilities, & having regard to the very great cost of developing the patents & constructing the engines, & to the fact that there could not be any real profit to the patentees before the normal expiry of the 1909 patents, an extension of five years should be granted with regard to these patents; but no order should be made at present with regard to the 1913 patent.—Re FULLAGAR'S PATENTS (1922), 39 R. P. C. 421.

2071. Applicant made prisoner of war.]—W. was the grantee of two patents, the second being a patent of addition, the main use of the patented inventions being to render possible the construction of electrolytic cells for the manufacture of caustic soda. W. was also the grantee of an earlier patent granted in 1902 relating to the manufacture of caustic soda by electrolytic methods, & he had granted an exclusive licence under that patent to M. M. continued the manufacture by chemical methods & declined to work W.'s 1902 patent. W. feeling himself to be under personal obligations to M., decided to postpone the exploitation of the patents until the expiration of the 1902 patent in 1916, & in the meantime proceeded to work the patented inventions in Germany. On the outbreak of hostilities the German authorities, believing W. to be a Russian subject, made him a prisoner of war, & he was unable to return to England until 1919. W. applied by originating summons for an extension of the terms of the patents. Both patents were extended for three years.—Re WILDERMAN'S PATENT (1924), 42 R. P. C. 42.

2072. Employment on munitions.]—A patent in respect of an invention of "Apparatus for crushing, dividing or disintegrating ores & other substances" was granted in 1907 to H., who was domiciled in America. H. formed the H. co. incorporated in America for the purpose of exploiting the invention, & in 1913 decided that the business of supplying the British & European markets should be conducted from England, & with that object appointed F. to be London manager. The patented articles were manufactured by authorised agents, the co. obtaining orders from customers. In Aug. 1914, F. joined the Army, he was made a prisoner of war & was released in Dec. 1919. B., who was left in charge of the London office, joined the Army on attaining military age in 1916, when F.'s mother took charge of the London office. On the outbreak of war between the United States & Germany, H.'s son, who had been responsible for the European business through F., joined the American Army & was on service from 1917 to 1919, & H. was engaged almost entirely on munition work until the end of the war. The English manufacturers were engaged in the manufacture of munitions, & very few of the patented articles were made during the war, nor could any be supplied from America. H. applied by originating summons for an extension of the term of the patent. An extension of four & a quarter years was granted.—Re HARDINGE'S PATENT (1922), 40 R. P. C. 92.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 9, B., C. & D.]

2073. ——.]—The grantee of a patent granted in 1906 in respect of improvements in tyres, having been unable to interest British firms in the patent, assigned it, in 1913, to M. in consideration of a royalty payment. In 1915, in consequence of disputes between the patentee & M., the patent was reassigned. The patentee was engaged on munition work, & in consequence thereof was unable to interest himself in the patent until 1917, when he endeavoured to interest various firms in it; he was unsuccessful in that until 1921, when he assigned a share of the patent to C. in consideration of C. affording financial support to the exploitation of the patent in the event of an extension being granted. In 1922 the patentee applied by originating summons for an extension of the patent:—Held: the period of loss to the patentee due to hostilities was not equivalent to the whole period of the war, & an extension of three & a half years was granted.—Re COLEMAN'S PATENT (1922), 39 R. P. C. 389.

2074. ——.]—Re HADWIN'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 457.

2075. ——.]—Re MOYES & STEVENSON'S PATENTS (1925), 43 R. P. C. 183.

2076. Absence of directors & staff—On work of national importance.]—Re FULLAGAR'S PATENTS, No. 2070, ante.

2077. —— ——.] — Re BROWN & BROWN'S PATENT, No. 2066, ante.

C. Works becoming Controlled Establishment.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18; 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3).

2078. Ground for extension.] — On Oct. 1905, letters patent were granted to H. who held the patent in trust for H. H., Ltd. In 1908 H. died, having bequeathed his estate to A. In Oct. 1919, the patent expired. In 1920 H. assigned to H. H., Ltd., the sale & exclusive right to, & benefit of, all extensions of the patent. In Jan. 1921, H. H., Ltd. & A. applied by originating summons for an extension of the patent. From Nov. 1914 until the Armistice H. H., Ltd., had been engaged on work of national importance & had been controlled by the Ministry of Munitions, & in consequence had been unable to work the patent fully during the war, & in the year 1918–19 the sales of the patented article had been almost negligible.

An extension of three years was granted on terms in the form substantially of those prescribed in Patent Rules, 1920, r. 62 (1) in the case of restoration of lapsed patent of the Comptroller-General.—Re HOPE'S PATENT (1920), 38 R. P. C. 152.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Petersen's Patent (1921), 38 R. P. C. 267.

2079. ——.]—In 1920 the grantees of letters patent granted in 1907 for improvements in connection with the spindles of spinning machinery applied by originating summons under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3), for extension of the term of the patent, & applied by a similar summons for the extension of the terms of two patents granted to them in 1911 & 1912 respectively for improvements in carburetters for internal combustion engines. Appcts. alleged that they had manufactured, & had established a substantial trade, under the patents, but that on the outbreak of war their factory had become much occupied in the manufacture of munitions of war, & later their firm had become a controlled firm, & the sales of the articles made under the patents had become very small:—Held: the patent of 1907 was a proved patent; its term was extended for four years; but the application as to the patents of 1911 & 1912 was ordered to stand over, with liberty to restore.—Re PUGH'S PATENTS (1921), 38 R. P. C. 150.

2080. ——.]—The L. M. corpn. was the registered proprietor of three patents dated respectively 1901, 1905, & 1910, & which related to machinery for the manufacture of matrices. In 1920, the L. M. corpn. applied by originating summons for an extension of the patents. At the hearing the application, so far as it concerned the 1901 patent, was abandoned. Owing to the L. M. corpn. having been engaged on the manufacture of munitions throughout the war, & having been controlled from Sept. 1915, onwards, manufacture of the patented article had been practically suspended & the L. M. corpn. had been largely unable to meet the demand for the patented article. An extension of three years & nine months was granted as to the 1905 patent, & the application was adjourned as to the 1910 patent.—Re PIERPONT & LANSTON MONOTYPE CORPORATION'S PATENTS & DUNCAN & PIERPONT'S PATENT (1921), 38 R. P. C. 353.

2081. ——.]—Re AUSTIN MOTOR CO., LTD. & AUSTIN'S PATENT (1922), 39 R. P. C. 294.

2082. ——.]—The N. Co. Ltd., who were the assignees & registered proprietors of a patent granted in 1907 in respect of an invention of "improvements in or relating to primers for explosives," applied by originating summons for an extension of the term of the patent. In support of the application evidence was given that the patented invention related to the use of lead azide as a primer in detonators in substitution for fulminate of mercury & that it aimed at producing a less expensive means of ignition; that in Aug. 1914, experiments were in their initial stage only & that during the period of hostilities the N. Co., Ltd., had been unable to continue the experiments owing to the demands made upon them in other directions, but that in Germany, by reason of a shortage of fulminate of mercury, the invention had been developed to the detriment of the N. Co., Ltd. The summons was adjourned to enable further evidence to be

At the further hearing evidence was given to the effect (inter alia) that the N. Co.'s plant had not been suitable for the manufacture of lead azide & that in 1911, the date of the assignment of the patent to the N. Co., Ltd., experimental plant had been obtained from Germany, but that the experiments had been hindered by the necessity of suspending experimental work due to explosions necessitating further research as to lead azide; that in 1912 & 1913 improved plant had been obtained from Germany & that on receipt of the plant in 1913 the N. Co., Ltd., had immediately proceeded to erect a special building for the housing of it & for carrying out the experimental work; that such building had been nearing completion at the outbreak of war, when the N. Co., Ltd., had been obliged to discontinue the experiments; that early in 1919 experiments had been resumed & that the N. Co., Ltd., were satisfied that they could now produce a satisfactory merchantable detonator primed with lead azide; that upwards of £9,000 had been expended in experimental work; that from the outbreak of war the N. Co., Ltd., had been fully occupied in making explosives for war purposes, that in 1916 they had become a controlled establishment & had been decontrolled in 1919:—Held: the further evidence sufficiently explained the position, & an extension of four years was granted.—Re WÖHLER'S PATENT (1922), 40 R. P. C. 49.

2083. ——.]—The B. U. S. M. co. was the registered proprietor of two patents granted respectively to J. & the co. & to J., B., G. & the co. The patented inventions were in respect of machinery for use in the manufacture of boots & shoes, & the co. both sold & leased the machines to manufacturers. During the war the co.'s business in boot & shoe machinery had been directed to the supply of manufacturers of military boots & the demands of manufacturers of civilian boots & shoes had been necessarily neglected. The co. had also been extensively engaged in the manufacture of munitions of war, & from Aug. 1915 until after the Armistice in 1918 had been a controlled establishment, & owing to the depletion of the stock of parts & to the necessary reorganisation of the co.'s works, regular manufacture of the patented machines had not been possible till Apr. 1919. In Dec. 1922, the co. applied by originating summons for an extension of the terms of the patents. An extension of two years was granted in the case of both patents.—Re JERRAM & BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. & JERRAM, BATES, GOULDBOURN & BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD.'S PATENTS (1923), 40 R. P. C. 74.

2084. ——.]—R. was the registered legal owner of letters patent which expired on Dec. 23, 1922. On Dec. 22, 1922, he applied by originating summons for an extension of the patent on the ground of loss due to hostilities. The application was not opposed. A considerable number of the patented article were sold during the period of hostilities, but the patentees' works became a controlled establishment in Dec. 1915, & the patented apparatus could only be sold to brewers supplying the troops. The patentee alleged that this fact, being known in the trade, operated to prevent or to curtail orders for the apparatus, & stated that up to 1917 the orders did not exceed his capacity to supply them. An extension of two years from the date of the expiration of the patent was granted.—Re ROBINSON'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 217.

2085. ——.]—Re EWART & SON., LTD. & EWART'S PATENTS (1923), 40 R. P. C. 155.

2086. ——.]—Re GARRATT'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 396.

2087. ——.]—Re EWART'S PATENT (1925), 43 R. P. C. 164.

2088. ——.] — Re SHEFFIELD & TWINDERBARROW'S PATENT (1925), 43 R. P. C. 165.

2089. ——.]—Re WALKER & BURRELL'S PATENT (1925), 43 R. P. C. 181.

2090. ——.] — Re FARIES' PATENT, Re SCHWEINERT & KRAFT'S PATENT, No. 1871, ante.

D. General Interference with Development of Patent.

2091. Inability to push patent.]—R. was the registered proprietor of a patent, the patented invention being a waste collector for use in connection with cotton combing machines. R. granted an exclusive licence to work the patent to D. & B., Ltd. D. & B., Ltd., worked the patent themselves & also granted two sub-licences. The trade of D. & B., Ltd., in the patented invention was mainly in connection with the "H" type of combing machine, while that of the sub-licence was mainly in connection with the "N" type of machine. Owing to hostilities D. & B., Ltd., were unable to push the patent & sustained a loss which they claimed was equal to four and a quarter years, while there was no loss in connection with the "N" type of machine. In 1922 R. assigned the patent to D. & B., Ltd. On Mar. 1, 1923, the patent expired. D. & B., Ltd., & resp. applied by originating summons for an extension of the term of the patent. An extension of the term ending one year from Apr. 17, 1923, was granted, subject to the terms usual in the case of an expired patent.—Re BOULT'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 375.

2092. Decrease in sales.]—H. was the grantee of a patent in respect of an invention of "Improvements in or relating to mineral washing & separating apparatus." At the time of the grant of the patent H. was an engineer in the C. co.'s employ, & he had applied for the patent with the co.'s consent. By a verbal agreement it was agreed between H. & the co. that the co. should have the exclusive right to the use of the patent, & that H. should be paid, in addition to his salary, a commission on the profits of the co.'s coal department, such commission to include remuneration for the use by the co. of the invention. The apparatus for washing & separating coal made by the co. practically invariably included appct.'s invention. Owing to hostilities there was a large decrease in the plant sold by the co., & a consequent decrease in the commission paid to appct. The patentee applied by originating summons for an extension of the patent on the ground of loss during the war. An extension of four years was granted, subject to an undertaking, which was given by appct., that the said verbal agreement should be embodied in a deed & registered.—Re HOWARTH'S PATENT (1922), 39 R. P. C. 140.

2093. ——.]—Re SPENCER'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 458.

2094. ——.]—M. was the grantee of a patent in respect of an invention of "A liquid brake for ships' rudders," & by 1914 he had built up a connection amongst shipbuilders for the sale of the patented invention. In 1915 M. formed a limited co. for the purpose of manufacturing the patented invention. M. received shares in the co. in lieu of royalties. Owing to hostilities the sales of the patented invention decreased & the connection that had been built up was lost:—Held: M. had suffered loss quâ patentee. An extension of three years was granted.—Re MACGREGOR'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 157.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sect. 9, D., E., F. & G.]

2095. Ordinary manufacture relinquished—In favour of munitions.]—In 1905 two patents were granted to H. & R. In 1908 H. assigned all his interest in the patents to R. In 1919 the patents expired. On Apr. 10, 1920, R. applied by originating summons under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3), for an extension of the patents. Appcts. alleged that they had made profits on the patents during 1913 & again during 1919, but that during the war they had suffered a loss of approximately £3,800 by reason of the fact that owing to the war the demand for the patented articles had fallen off, that they had been unable to obtain necessary material, & that their plant & personnel had been diverted to the manufacture of war supplies:—Held: the case was within sub-sect. 6. Four years' extension of both patents in the form of fresh grants was granted, subject to the filing of an affidavit by H. verifying an arrangement made with him & his consent to the application.—Re HATFIELD & REASON MANUFACTURING CO., LTD.'S PATENTS (1920), 37 R. P. C. 273.

2096. —— ——.]—G. was the grantee of a patent in respect of an invention of "Improvements in or relating to railway & tramway vehicles." The grantee was an engineer in the G. N. Ry. co.'s employment, & it was a term of his employment that the co should have the use of any inventions made by him free of charge. Owing to the novel character of the patented invention the co. had not adopted it to any extent until after exhaustive trials had been carried out. Owing to the cessation of coach building & the manufacture of munitions by railway cos. during the war & to the fact that G.'s time was fully occupied in his duties with the co., G. had been unable to bring the invention to the notive of other cos. In Oct. 1920, G. assigned the patent to the L. F. co. G. & this co. applied for an extension of the term of the patent. An extension of four years & three months granted.—Re GRESLEY'S PATENT (1922), 39 R. P. C. 444.

2097. —— ——.]—In 1906 a patent in respect of an invention relating to steam generators was granted to C., who in 1913 assigned the patent to H. & S., Ltd., in which co. C. held a number of shares. From 1912 onwards H. & S., Ltd., had been the sole manufacturers of the patented article. C. & H. & S., Ltd., applied by originating summons for an extension of the term of the patent. Evidence was given of loss due to H. & S., Ltd., having been engaged in the production of munitions & to Govt. restriction on the manufacture of steam generators not required for war purposes, & also to the effect that the development of the invention had been hindered before the war, by lack of capital &, after the war, by the coal strike. The patent had expired:—Held: loss not due to hostilities could not be considered. An extension of four years, subject to the usual terms in the case of expired patents, was granted.—Re CASMEY'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 99.

2098. —— ——.]—Re SHEFFIELD & TWINDERBARROW'S PATENT, No. 2088, ante.

2099. —— ——.]—Re TAYLOR'S PATENT (1923), 41 R. P. C. 64.

2100. —— ——.]—Re CLAUDE'S PATENTS, No. 2067, ante.

2101. —— For Government contract.]—Re EVANS' PATENT (1926), 43 R. P. C. 345.

2102. Inability of obtaining material—Due to control.]—Re HATFIELD & REASON MANUFACTURING CO., LTD.'S PATENTS, No. 2095, ante.

2103. ——.]—Re BENNET'S PATENT, No. 2069, ante.

2104. ——.]—Re LARSSON'S PATENT (1925), 43 R. P. C. 179.

2105. —— & labour.]—Re BROCK'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 397.

2106. Inability to work plant economically.]—Re INSHAW'S (J. G. & G. R.) PATENT (1925), 43 R. P. C. 178.

2107. Manufacture controlled by government—Under priority contracts.]—Re LE BAS & GARRATT'S PATENT (1923), 40 R. P. C. 101.

2108. Manufacture stopped during war.]—Re MUIR'S PATENT, No. 1754, ante.

2109. —— Previous work dismantled by Admiralty order.]—Re MOYES & STEVENSON'S PATENTS, No. 2075, ante.

2110. ——.]—The M. Co., Ltd., applied by originating summons for the extension of the terms of six patents all granted in respect of "Improvements in or relating to telephone systems." Two of the patents had not been worked in the United Kingdom. Evidence was given (inter alia) that the patents related to important inventions which had enabled the "two wire" system of automatic telephony to become a practical success; that one of the patents had not been used in this country owing to practical difficulties in no way connected with the patented invention itself, but that these difficulties had been recently overcome, & that, but for the war these difficulties would probably have been overcome earlier; that another of the patents related to an invention for use in connection with satellite exchanges, & had not so far been used in this country largely because the earlier exchanges had all been single line exchanges & because the war had retarded the development of automatic telephony; that prior to the war appcts. had spent large sums in exploiting the patents, but that the war had practically put a stop to telephone manufacturing activities; that by reason of matters arising out of the war, appcts. had experienced considerable delay in restoring themselves to their pre-war position. At the hearing of the summons appcts. asked for an extension of six years in respect of each patent. Each patent was ordered to be extended for a period of five years.—Re DICKER'S PATENT, Re MELLINGER'S PATENT, Re KEITH'S PATENT, Re FALES' PATENTS (1925), 43 R. P. C. 167.

2111. Applicant cut off from customers by war conditions.]—Re SHEFFIELD & TWINDERBARROW'S PATENT, No. 2088, ante.

E. Length of Extension.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18; 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3).

2112. Period of useful life blotted out by war.]—In 1905 a patent for an invention relating to "improvements in, & relating to, furnaces for burning pulverulent fuel & for treating pulverulent ores" was granted to R. & C. B. In 1906, 1908 & 1909 patents relating to the same invention were granted to C. B. The development of the invention was carried out by C. B., A. V. B., Al. B.

& E. B. In 1912 C. B. died & his interest in the patents became vested in A. V. B. In 1913 a co., B. B., was formed to carry out the development of the invention. The bulk of the shares in B. B. were held by A. V. B. & E. B., both A. V. B. & E. B. devoting their time to the interests of the co. R.'s interest in the invention was satisfied by the issue to him of shares in B. B. In 1913 B. B. granted an exclusive licence to F. & C., Ltd., & undertook to assist in the development of the invention. On the outbreak of war A. V. B., E. B. & Al. B. joined His Majesty's Forces. Al. B. was killed on service & A. V. B. & E. B. served throughout the war. During the whole period of the war F. & C., Ltd., were engaged on special war work & were unable to attend to the invention. In 1919 the patent of 1905 expired. A. V. B. was the registered owner of the unexpired patents. On an application by originating summons for extension of the patents:—Held: A. V. B. had suffered loss as patentee; as the result of the war, four & a half years had been blotted out of the useful life of the original patent & of the patents of 1906 & 1908, & the terms of those three patents ought to be extended by four & a half years.—Re BETTINGTON BOILERS, LTD.'S APPLICATION (1921), 38 R. P. C. 349.

2113. ——.]—Appcts. had a case for the period of the war, that is four years & a quarter. They took some time after the war to get the machines manufactured here, but the discovery made then, that they could manufacture them better in England than in Canada, was practically made before the war, so that I do not see how they can get an additional time for that. So, if they got the period of the war, four years & a quarter, I think that would be sufficient (SARGANT, J.).—Re JOHNSON'S PATENTS (1923), 40 R. P. C. 394.

2114. Period giving fair compensation.]—Re JOHNSTON'S PATENTS, No. 2037, ante.

2115. ——.]—Re HAYDOCK & PARKES' PATENT (1927), 44 R. P. C. 250.

2116. Matters to be taken into account—Failure to regain position after war—Fault of patentee.]—Re JOHNSON'S PATENTS, No. 2113, ante.

2117. —— —— Competition by sale of government surplus stock.]—Re EVANS' PATENT, No. 2101, ante.

2118. —— Manufacture continued to some extent during hostilities.]—Re TAYLOR'S PATENT, No. 2099, ante.

2119. —— Increased sales after war.]—J. C. & W. F. C. applied by originating summons for an extension for a period of four years of a patent granted in 1906, of which they were the grantees & registered legal owners. It appeared from the evidence that from 1911 until the outbreak of hostilities in 1914, there had been an increasing demand for the patented article; that the sales had fallen off considerably during the period of hostilities; but had revived in 1919, & in 1920 were considerably larger than any previous year. On behalf of appcts., an extension of four years was not pressed for in view of the 1920 sales, but it was contended that the 1920 sales were not due to a postponed demand & that loss within sect. 18, sub-sect. 6, of Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 & 1919, had been suffered. An extension of three years was granted.—Re CRIGHTON'S PATENT (1922), 39 R. P. C. 259.

2120. —— ——.]—The Y. B. P. co. were, & at all material times had been, the beneficial owners of a patent granted to Y. in 1906. In 1918 Y. died. The exors. of Y. & the Y. B. P. co. applied by originating summons for an extension of the patent the ground of loss due to hostilities. The patent had been worked by the Y. B. P. co., & owing to their employees having joined His Majesty's Forces the sales of the patented article had been very considerably reduced, & the Y. B. P. co.'s premises had been devoted to the manufacture of munitions. After the war there had been a very substantial increase in the sales of the patented article:—Held: an extension should be granted, & that, in view of the increase in sales after the war, the extension should be for three years. Appcts. were required to undertake that the patent should be transferred to the beneficial owners.—Re YOUNGS' PATENT (1922), 39 R. P. C. 364.

2121. —— ——.]—Re RUSHTON'S PATENT, No. 2031, ante.

2122. —— To bar extension.]—Re WINGQUIST'S PATENT, No. 2057, ante.

2123. —— Expiry of patent—Delay arising from opposition.]—Re MARTINEAU'S PATENT, No. 2034, ante.

2124. Application by assignee—Loss as sole licencee during war.]—Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3), provides that at the end of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, which enables petitions for the extension of patents to be made, the following sub-sect. shall be added: Where by reason of hostilities between His Majesty & any foreign state, the patentee as such has suffered loss or damage . . . an application under this section may be made by originating summons instead of by petition, & the ct. on considering its decision may have regard solely to the loss or damage so suffered by the patentee . . .: —Held: (1) where a patentee has assigned his patent since the war he & his assignee are entitled to apply together for an extension under the sub-sect.; (2) the ct. will in determining the extension to be granted take into account loss or damage suffered by the then patentee as such only & not losses suffered by the assignee in the character of sole licencee during the war.—Re SUMMERS BROWN'S PATENT, [1922] 2 Ch. 759; 92 L. J. Ch. 126; 128 L. T. 249; 38 T. L. R. 818; 66 Sol. Jo. 710; 39 R. P. C. 367.

Annotation:—Distd. Re McCollum's Patents (1925), 42 R. P. C. 526.

——.]—See, generally, Sub-sect. 3, ante.

2125. Foreign profits—Excluded unless result of hostilities.]—F., who was the registered owner of a patent, applied by originating summons for an extension of the term of the patent on the ground of loss owing to restrictions placed on the working of the patent by reason of hostilities. At the hearing of the summons it was objected on behalf of the Comptroller-General that F. had made profits during hostilities on a corresponding foreign patent. The summons was adjourned & appct. was directed to file a further affidavit dealing with the foreign profits. It appeared from the further evidence that the foreign profits were not the result of hostilities:—Held: profits on a corresponding foreign patent were not material, unless it could be shown that there was some interconnection between such profits & hostilities, & an extension of two years should be granted subject to the terms usual in the case of expired patents.—Re KAY & FOXWELL'S PATENT (1924), 42 R. P. C. 222.

F. Assignees.

See Sub-sect. 3, D., ante.

G. Practice.

See Sub-sect. 8, F., ante.

Sect. 2.—Extension of term: Sub-sects. 10 & 11.
Sect. 3. Part XIII. Sect. 1: Sub-sect. 1, A.

SUB-SECT. 10.—APPLICATIONS RESPECTING TWO OR MORE PATENTS.

2126. Patents granted in same year.]—Re HATFIELD & REASON MANUFACTURING CO., LTD.'S PATENTS, No. 2095, ante.

2127. ——.]—Re JERRAM & BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. & JERRAM, BATES, GOULDBOURN & BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD.'S PATENTS, No. 2083, ante.

2128. Two years' difference in grant—Extension granted — Both to expire on same day.] — Re STIFF'S PATENTS (1923), 40 R. P. C. 459.

2129. Four years' difference in grant—Adjournment.]—Re PUGH'S PATENTS, No. 2079, ante.

2130. Two years' difference in grant—Adjournment.]—Re PIERPONT & LANSTON MONOTYPE CORPORATION'S PATENTS & DUNCAN & PIERPONT'S PATENT, No. 2080, ante.

2131. Effect of grant of extension—Where one patent invalid.]—Separate patents were granted for an invention in England, Scotland, & Ireland, previous to the passing of the Patent Law (Amendment) Act, 1852 (c. 83), for terms expiring at the same date. By that Act, & its amending Act, Patent Law (Amendment) Act, 1853 (c. 115), it was provided that the letters patent granted for the prolongation of a patent should for the future be sealed with the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, & should be of force in the whole of the United Kingdom.

Letters patent were subsequently granted, sealed with the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, prolonging for a term of five years from their expiration the privileges granted by the three patents above-mentioned :—Held : the effect was the same as if the three patents had been separately prolonged, & the fact of one of the original patents being void for want of novelty would not prevent the letters patent being valid as a prolongation of the other patents.—BOVILL v. FINCH (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 523 ; 39 L. J. C. P. 277 ; 23 L. T. 151 ; 18 W. R. 1071.

SUB-SECT. 11.—FURTHER EXTENSIONS.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (5) ; 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (2).

2132. General rule.]—The power given to the Judicial Committee by Judicial Committee Act, 1844 (c. 67), s. 2, enlarging 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 4, to recommend an extension of the term of letters patent for an invention, is exhausted, when an extension has been once recommended & new letters patent granted ; & the Judicial Committee have no jurisdiction to entertain a petition for a further prolongation of the new letters patent.—Re GOUCHER'S PATENT (1865), 2 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 532 ; 15 E. R. 1001, P. C.

Annotations :—Folld. Re Thompson's Patent, [1909] 2 Ch. 447 ; Re Muir's Patent (No. 2) (1926), 43 R. P. C. 352.

2133. ——.]—When a patent has once been extended for a further term the power given by Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, is exhausted, & the ct. has no jurisdiction to grant a second extension.—Re THOMPSON'S PATENT, [1909] 2 Ch. 447 ; 78 L. J. Ch. 690 ; 101 L. T. 527 ; 25 T. L. R. 786 ; 26 R. P. C. 673.

Annotation :—Folld. Re Muir's Patent (No. 2) (1926), 43 R. P. C. 352.

2134. —— Not modified by Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18 (6).]—A patentee having been granted in 1919, prior to the coming into force of Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), an extension of his patent for seven years under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18, on the ground of inadequate remuneration, applied on the expiration of such extension by originating summons under Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 7 (3) (being an additional sub-sect. to Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 18), for a further extension of ten years on the ground of heavy unforeseen losses or damage therewith suffered by reason of hostilities :—Held : the patentee having been granted an extension under the original sect. 18 of the Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), there was no jurisdiction under the amended sub-sect. 6, sect. 7, sub-sect. 3, Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), by which the ct. could entertain a second application, even where the ground alleged for the application is loss by reason of hostilities. The ct. had no separate independent jurisdiction under the new sub-sect., which was merely a modification of an existing jurisdiction & only in the nature of an instruction in relation to procedure. Such an application therefore could not be granted.—Re MUIR'S PATENT, [1927] 1 Ch. 188 ; 96 L. J. Ch. 100 ; 136 L. T. 631 ; 43 R. P. C. 352.

SECT. 3.—PATENTS OF ADDITION.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 19 ; 1919 (c. 80), sched.

2135. Second patent of addition—Possibility of combination with original patent—Or first patent of addition.]—Application for a patent of addition on a patent of addition under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 19 :—Held : when a patent of addition which was applied for could have been combined with the original patent & an earlier patent of addition in one application, it could be granted as a patent of addition.—Re MCFEELY'S APPLICATION (1911), 29 R. P. C. 386.

2136. Addition to series of patents.]—On an application under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 19, for a patent of addition to a patent of 1911, a complete specification was filed in which a claim was made to an improvement in the process not only of the patent of 1911, but also of two earlier patents. The Chief Examiner refused to accept the application.—Re H. S. J.'s APPLICATION (1913), 31 R. P. C. 47.

PART XII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 11.

2132 i. General rule.]—The power of extension beyond the two years given to the Comr. of Patents, or his deputy can only be exercised once.—POWER v. GRIFFIN (1902), 33 S. C. R. 39 ; 23 C. L. T. 79.—CAN.

PART XII. SECT. 3.

i. Grant of patent of addition—Whether conclusive evidence of validity of patent.]—ROCHFORD v. DUBLIN THEATRE CO., LTD. (1911), 29 R. P. C. 185.—IR.

Part XIII.—Revocation.

SECT. 1.—BY THE COURT.

SUB-SECT. 1.—THE PETITIONER.

A. Private Person.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 25 (3) (b); R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 9.

2137. Persons having qualification by statute—Additional grounds of objection.]—A petition was presented under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 26 (4) (e), for the revocation of a patent for an invention of improvements in carriages. Petitioner alleged that he had many years prior to the date of the patent, publicly made & sold carriages made according to the alleged invention; & that, by reason of the matters set forth in the petition, & of the other matters appearing in the particulars of objections delivered therewith, the letters patent were invalid. The preliminary objection was taken that the petitioner, by referring to "other matters appearing in the particulars of objections," which related to alleged acts of prior user by other persons than himself, had failed to bring himself within the strict definition of the persons authorised by Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 26 (4), to present a petition for revocation, & that therefore the authority of the Attorney-General was required before the petition could be presented:—Held: Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 26 (4), merely contained a description of the various classes of persons who might apply to the ct. for revocation; any person having any of the qualifications therein mentioned might apply; & the fact that petitioner had further objections to the validity of this patent was no ground for regarding him as having failed to bring himself within the strict definition of Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 26.—Re MORGAN'S PATENT (1888), 58 L. T. 713; 5 R. P. C. 186.

Annotation:—Apld. Re Stewart's Applu. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 627.

2138. Purchaser pendente lite.]—An application to revoke letters patent on the ground that the patented process had been carried on wholly outside the United Kingdom was granted by the Comptroller, the patentees not having filed evidence, & not appearing in opposition to the application. The patent had been owned by a French co., which at the date of the application was in liquidation. The Judicial Liquidator on the day before the decision of the Comptroller was given sold the assets which included the patent. The purchaser appealed by petition of appeal, & asked for leave to file evidence; & he adduced evidence in support of his application to show that the Liquidator had had no means at his disposal with which to contest the application to revoke, & that there had, in fact, been no working of the patented process abroad after the expiration of four years from the date of the patent. Resp. to the appeal contended that petitioner had no locus standi, & that the application ought not to be allowed. The appeal was set down to be heard on these preliminary points:—Held: although petitioner could be in no better position than the Liquidator, yet the ct. would have power to give the Liquidator leave to file further evidence, &, under all the circumstances of the case, such leave should be given on terms to petitioner.—Re GREEN'S APPLICATION (1910), 28 R. P. C. 28; subsequent proceedings, [1911] 1 Ch. 754.

2139. Agent.]—(1) In order to obtain revocation of a patent under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 26, on the ground that it was obtained in fraud of the rights of petitioner, it is necessary to prove dishonesty or grave moral culpability on the part of the person obtaining the patent.

(2) The honest mistake of an agent, causing a loss to his principal, is not an act done in fraud of the rights of the principal.

(3) To be in fraud of his rights it must be either done with the intention of depriving the principal of his rights, or must be insisted upon so as to deprive the principal of his rights (COTTON, L.J.).—Re AVERY'S PATENT (1887), 36 Ch. D. 307; 56 L. J. Ch. 1007; 57 L. T. 506; 36 W. R. 249; 3 T. L. R. 775; 4 R. P. C. 322, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (3) Folld. Re Norwood's Patents (1895), 12 R. P. C. 214; Re Ralston's Patent, Re Preston & Ralston's Patent (1909), 100 L. T. 386.

B. Attorney-General.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 25 (3) (a).

2140. Adjournment to obtain fiat.]—This was a petition for revocation of a patent for "Improvements in knickerbocker & riding breeches" on the ground that patentee was not the true & first inventor; that the alleged invention was not novel or good subject-matter; that the specification was insufficient; & that the alleged invention was anticipated. The petition was originally presented under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 26 (4) (e), without the fiat of the A.-G., but, on coming on for hearing, was stood over to obtain the fiat.—Re DEGE'S PATENT (1895), 12 R. P. C. 448.

2141. ——.]—A patent having in 1894 been granted to J. on a communication from abroad for "Improvements in atmospheric or power hammers" Y., who had unsuccessfully defended an action brought by J. for infringement, presented a petition for revocation of the patent, alleging that he was the first & true inventor of the patented invention & that the invention had been patented by J. in fraud of him. On the first hearing of the petition it was adjourned pending the hearing of the appeal in another action, with liberty to amend by alleging the A.-G.'s fiat. Application was made to the Ct. of Appeal to advance the

---

PART XIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.—A.

g. Interest must be proved.]—Where it is sought to impeach or revoke a patent of invention by statement of claim pltf. must establish a personal interest in the action as distinguished from that of the public interest against a monopoly. Failing to do so, he has no locus standi before the ct., & his action should be dismissed.—BERGERON v. KERMOR ELECTRIC HEATING CO., LTD., [1925] Exch. C. R. 160.—CAN.

h. Action brought by member of firm affected—In his own name.]—Pursuer averred that he was a civil engineer, & a member of a firm doing a large business in reinforced concrete, & that his business was in danger of being affected by the enforcement of defender's patent. The action was brought in the name of pursuer as an individual & not of his firm:—Held pursuer had a title & interest to sue in his own name.—MELVILLE v. CUMMINGS, [1912] S. C. 1185.—SCOT.

PART XIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.—B.

k. Power of High Court to cancel patent—Where Attorney-General not a party.]—The High Court has power to cancel a patent in an action to which the A.-G. is not a party.—AFRICAN GOLD RECOVERY CO., LTD. v. HAY, [1904] A. C. 438, P. C.—S. AF.

Sect. 1.—By the court: Sub-sect. 1, B.; sub-sect. 2, A.

hearing of the appeal, but this was refused, & the ct. directed the petition to be restored to the list. The A.-G.'s fiat having been obtained the petition was restored, & came on for further hearing:—Held: J. was the first & true inventor; & no fraud had been proved.

A man who alleges fraud is bound to prove it (FARWELL, J.).—Re JAMESON'S PATENT (1902), 19 R. P. C. 246.

2142. ——.]—A patent having been granted to M. for an "Improved process for the manufacture of lustrous threads, bands, strips, & the like of viscose," C. & co. presented a petition for the revocation of the patent, alleging that they were largely interested in the manufacture of artificial silk from viscose; that they were the registered legal owners of letters patent No. 2529 of 1902 granted to S. & W., & that they were entitled to present the petition as assignees of that patent. The particulars of objections alleged that the invention was not useful; that the specification disclosed no proper subject-matter for a valid patent; that the invention was not new; & that resp. was not the first & true inventor. A doubt being expressed as to whether petitioners had any locus standi to present the petition, the judge, without deciding the point, gave leave to apply for the fiat of the A.-G., which if granted was to be treated as if granted nunc pro tunc, & the hearing of the petition was continued. The fiat of the A.-G. was obtained. The question of terms as to costs upon which leave was given to apply for the fiat was deferred until after the hearing of the petition:—Held: S. & W. were not the first & true inventors of the invention for which M.'s patent was granted; the patent was useful; there had been no anticipation; & there was proper subject-matter for a valid patent. The petition was dismissed with costs on the higher scale, & consequently there was no necessity on that occasion to go into the question of terms as to costs upon which leave was given to apply for the fiat.—Re MAX MÜLLER'S PATENT (1907), 24 R. P. C. 465.

Documents to obtain fiat—Privileged from production.]—See DISCOVERY, Supp. II., No. 805*a*.

SUB-SECT. 2.—GROUNDS FOR REVOCATION.

A. Fraud.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 25 (1) (b).

2143. What amounts to fraud—Grave moral culpability.]—Re AVERY'S PATENT, No. 2139, ante.

2144. —— ——.]—(1) If in proceedings for revocation of a patent it appears that the patentee is not the inventor of a material part of the invention for which the patent is granted, it is the duty of the ct. to revoke the patent, & it has no power to exclude from the patent that part of which the patentee was not the inventor.

(2) If the patentee has obtained the patent in fraud of the rights of petitioner in such proceedings as regards the material part of which the patentee was not the inventor, the ct. will make an absolute order for revocation, & will not limit it to take effect only in case the patentee does not within a reasonable time obtain leave to amend the specification by disclaiming the parts of which he is not the inventor.

(3) The expression in Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 26, & in Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 25, "in fraud of the rights of the true & first inventor" involves the idea of moral turpitude on the part of the patentee, & the existence of this element may be inferred not merely from his conduct prior to & at the time of the application or grant, but also from the use which he makes of the grant when obtained, as, for example, by insisting as against the true inventor on treating the invention as his own.

A material part of the patented invention being taken in fraud of the rights of the petitioner a declaration that petitioner was the true & first inventor of that part was made in addition to the order for revocation.—Re RALSTON'S PATENT, Re PRESTON & RALSTON'S PATENT (1909), 100 L. T. 386.

2145. —— Patent taken out & insisted on with fraud.]—Re AVERY'S PATENT, No. 2139, ante.

2146. —— ——.]—(1) In 1891, two patents were granted to N. for the manufacture of improved compounds for coating walls & other surfaces. In Apr. 1894, C. & H. presented a petition for revocation of these patents, alleging that the inventions were the result of experiments made by C. & H. & communicated by them to N., & that the patents were taken out by N. in fraud of their rights. At the hearing, C. appeared in person, & H. separately by counsel:—Held: the experiments finally resulting in the discovery of the invention were made by C. with the assistance of H., & not by H. under the directions of N.; N. was not the true & first inventor; C. was the true & first inventor of the principle of the invention, & the best method of carrying it out; the patents were obtained in fraud of C.'s rights, as they were taken out, & had been insisted upon so as to deprive C. of his rights & gain an advantage for N.; but only one patent should be revoked, as C. had, during the greater part of the trial, abandoned his case as to the other patent.

(2) N. was ordered to pay the costs of C., but not the costs of shorthand notes. No order was made as to the costs of H. It was intimated by the judge that the separate appearance of petitioners was allowed by consent, & was not to be taken as a precedent.—Re NORWOOD'S PATENTS (1895), 12 R. P. C. 214.

2147. —— ——.]—In 1891, two patents were granted to N., one on Dec. 4 for "the manufacture of an improved compound for coating walls & other surfaces, & for the production of casts or mouldings, & for analogous purposes"; & the other on Dec. 7 for "the manufacture of an improved compound for coating walls & other surfaces, & for analogous purposes." In 1894, C. & H. presented a petition for revocation of these patents, & it was held, as to the earlier patent, that C. was the first & true inventor, & that the patent had been obtained by N. in fraud of C.'s rights, & it was accordingly revoked; but no order was made as to the later patent, C. having abandoned the case as to that patent. A patent for the invention to which the revoked patent related was subsequently granted to C., who in 1895 presented another petition for revocation of the later patent, alleging the same grounds as before. The earlier patent related to a compound formed from glue & an active base, whilst the later patent related to a compound formed from glue & an inert base, & the processes were admitted to be identical:—Held: the process being C.'s invention, he might have taken out a patent to cover the combination of glue with an inert base, & the later patent was also obtained by N. in fraud of C.'s rights. The later patent was accordingly revoked, but no order was made as to costs.—Re NORWOOD'S PATENTS (No. 2) (1898), 15 R. P. C. 98.

2148. —— Honest mistake of agent.]—Re AVERY'S PATENT, No. 2139, ante.

2149. —— Separate application for patent—Joint application having lapsed.]—(1) In May, 1888, K. & G. jointly applied for a patent, accompanying their application with a provisional specification. This application lapsed. In Feb. 1889, G. applied for a patent alone for the same invention, which he obtained. K. then presented a petition for revocation, alleging that he was the first & true inventor, & that G.'s application was made fraudulently. G. alleged that he was the first & true inventor:—Held: petitioner had made out his case, & the patent must be revoked.

(2) If a party cross-examines his opponent's witnesses, he ought to bring that evidence before the ct. The party who has the right to begin should file his evidence in chief first.—Re GALES' PATENT (1891), 8 R. P. C. 438.

2150. —— Patent after private demonstration.]—In 1906 letters patent were granted to M. on a communication from abroad for "improvements in & relating to sound records for sound reproducing machines." Petitioner alleged that, having by an agreement made in 1905, sold in consideration of a money payment & of certain royalties, to a co. in America an invention together with all improvements therein, & all rights to apply for patents in countries foreign to America in respect of the invention & improvements, he had, in pursuance of the agreement made a confidential communication & demonstration in England to D., as agent of the American co., of the invention covered by the agreement; that D. communicated the invention to the co. in America; & that M., as agent of the American co., applied for & obtained the letters patent, the subject of the petition. Petitioner alleged that the invention covered by the patent had been made by him, & that the American co. had deprived him of all benefits in the patent, & that it was invalid on the ground that it was obtained in fraud of his rights, & that he was entitled to the grant thereof. He asked that the Comptroller might be directed upon the application of petitioner to grant him letters patent for the invention in accordance with the Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 26. Para. 3 of the particulars of objections alleged that the inventions claimed in the patent had been used in the United Kingdom prior to the date thereof by petitioner, public user, or user by way of trade, not being specifically alleged. It was contended on behalf of petitioner that resp. M. was not the first & true inventor by reason of the confidential communication & demonstration to D.; further, in the event of his not succeeding on the issue of fraud, that under para. 3 of the particulars of objections the patent was wholly invalid by reason of prior user within Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 26 (4) (a):—Held: fraud had not been established; M. was the first & true inventor; & the plea of prior user in para. 3 particulars of objections did not include public user, or user by way of trade; & the user which was alleged was experimental.—Re MARKS' PATENT (1908), 25 R. P. C. 553, 558.

2151. Fraud must be strictly proved.] — Re JAMESON'S PATENT, No. 2141, ante.

2152. ——.]—Re MARKS' PATENT, No. 2150, ante.

B. Want of Novelty.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 25 (3)

2153. Grounds for revocation.]—(1) This was a petition for revocation of a patent granted to a foreigner for an invention of "Improved incandescent mediums for purposes of illumination." Notice of the petition & of the hearing was sent to the patentee by registered letter. The patentee did not appear at the hearing.

(2) Evidence was given by two experts that the invention was unworkable, or so far as it was workable, had been anticipated. The patent was revoked.—Re HIRSCHFELD'S PATENT (1894), 11 R. P. C. 514.

2154. ——.]—This was a petition represented by the Pharmaceutical Society for revocation of a patent for "A new medicine for the cure of influenza & other complaints" on various grounds, including want of novelty & subject-matter. On the hearing of the petition, the patentee appeared & did not oppose revocation, but he asked that no costs might be given, as from the first he had not opposed the petitioners:—Held: the patent must be revoked, as the patentee could not or would not support it, & with costs, as there was no other method of obtaining revocation.—Re WALLACE'S PATENT (1895), 12 R. P. C. 444.

2155. ——.]—A petition was presented to obtain the revocation of a patent for improvements in machines for lasting the uppers of boots & shoes, the validity of which had been upheld in an action for infringement against petitioner, on the grounds that the patent was anticipated by a prior specification, & an abridgment of another specification, not brought forward in the previous action, & that the claim of the patent in the previous action had been given so wide a construction that it covered parts of those specifications:—Held: the claim attacked was for the general construction, combination, & arrangement of certain parts of a machine; there was no estoppel by the former decision to prevent the patentee contending that his arrangement was not identical with the prior patents, & the patent was not anticipated by either of the alleged anticipations.—Re LEWIS & STIRCKLER'S PATENT (1896), 14 R. P. C. 24.

2156. ——.]—In 1900 letters patent were granted to K. for "Improvements in & connected with stencil sheets." A petition was presented for revocation of this patent, & petitioners alleged in their petition that they had publicly manufactured, used, & sold within the realm before the date of the patent stencil sheets made according to the alleged invention. In their particulars of objections they stated that the invention was not new, & alleged want of subject-matter. Prior to the trial leave had been granted by the Comptroller to amend the specification by the omission of claims 1 & 2. Owing to delay the order had not been drawn up. To avoid postponement of the hearing of the petition it was arranged by consent that the hearing should take place upon the footing of the specification having been amended:—Held: petitioners were entitled to succeed, there being no real invention in that which was described in the specification.—Re KLABER'S PATENT (1902), 19 R. P. C. 174.

PART XIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2.—B.

2153 i. Grounds for revocation.]—An invention entitled "Improvements in shaking table ore concentrators" for which letters patent were granted by the Commonwealth:—Held: not novel, & to have been anticipated, & letters patent ordered to be revoked.—BROKEN HILL SILVER MINING CO. v. GUTHRIDGE, LTD. (1908), 8 C. L. R. 187.—AUS.

Sect. 1.—By the court: Sub-sect. 2, B., C., D., E. F.; sub-sect. 3, A.]

2157. ——.]—A petition was presented for revocation of letters patent granted for "Improvements in or connected with petticoats & like garments." The petition came on for hearing on a petition day, when resp. did not appear. The petition was ordered to stand over until the next petition day, unless resp. desired that it should go into the witness list. He did not so desire, & stated his intention not to contest the matter. The petition was heard on affidavit evidence, & the patent was revoked on the grounds of want of novelty by reason of prior user, want of subject-matter, & that the patentee was not the first & true inventor.—Re LEE'S PATENT (1906), 23 R. P. C. 233.

2158. Want of novelty as to part.]—In 1895 a patent was granted to J. for "Improvements in cyclometers, revolution counters, or indicators." The first claim was as follows:—"In a cyclometer, revolution counter, or indicator the combination, with a chambered support & an actuating shaft, of index rings mounted to revolve on said support & adapted to transmit movement from each of said index rings to the next in order, the hubs of said gear being flattened, spring arms supported within the chamber & bearing upon the opposite flattened faces of said gear hubs, & means for actuating the first of said rings from said actuating shafts." There were four other claims for similar combinations, expressed in more detail & with additional modifications. In 1900, A. W. G., Ltd., presented a petition for revocation of the patent on the grounds of want of novelty & subject-matter:—Held: in the first claim the novelty depended on the squaring of the hub & the use of the spring arms in the minor combination which was the subject of the claim, & such combination was not new, useful, & good subject-matter for a patent; the petition failed as to the other four claims. Revocation of the patent was ordered unless within three months the patentee should obtain leave to amend his specification by disclaiming the first claim.—Re JUSTICE'S PATENT (1901), 18 R. P. C. 241.

See, also, Nos. 2206, 2208, post.

C. First and True Invention.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 25 (3) (b).

2159. Petitioner first & true inventor.]—Re GALES' PATENT, No. 2149, ante.

2160. ——.]—A patent having in 1903 been granted to J. for "Improvements in sacks or material for wrapping or packing purposes, applicable also for other purposes," B. presented a petition for revocation of the patent, alleging that he was the first & true inventor of the patented invention, that he had communicated said invention to J. in confidence, & that the invention had been patented by J. in fraud of him:—Held: J. was the first & true inventor, & further, no fraud had been proved.—Re JACKSON'S PATENT (1905), 22 R. P. C. 384.

2161. ——.]—Re MARKS' PATENT, No. 2150, ante.

2162. Patentee not first & true inventor.]—Re LEE'S PATENT, No. 2157, ante.

2163. —— As to material part.]—Re RALSTON'S PATENT, Re PRESTON & RALSTON'S PATENT, 2144, ante.

D. Want of Subject-Matter.

2164. Ground for revocation—System of distributing electricity.]—Re GAULARD & PATENT (1890), 7 R. P. C. 367, H. L.

Annotations:—Refd. Lane Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424; Fenner v. Wilson, [1893] 2 Ch. 656; Re Owen's Patent, [1899] 1 Ch. 157; Re Bridge's Appln. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 257; Donnersmarckhütte Oberschlesische Eisen Kohlenwerke Act. v. Electric Construction Co. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 774; Holmes v. Associated Newspapers (1910), 27 R. P. C. 136.

2165. —— ——.]—A patent was granted in 1903 for "Improvements in metallic conduits for electric light cables & the like." The alleged improvements consisted in means for connecting the parts of the conduits, in which the electric cables were laid, & the fittings so that there should be a complete electric metallic circuit throughout without necessarily using screwed conduits. This was effected by using a differential split bushing which was so constructed as to have an overhung grip on the conduit. At the hearing of a petition for revocation it appeared that a bushing described in the prior specification of L. gave both an overhung & a direct grip, & that the device described in the specification of B. effected the patentees' object, though in none of the alleged anticipations was there an overhung grip alone. It was alleged that alternative forms of bushing shown & claimed were of no utility. It also appeared that resps., the patentees, had not sold any of their patented bushings, but had sold bushings of another form:—Held: there was no such invention as could form good subject-matter for the patent; & to uphold the patent would be to take away from the public the full use, to which they were entitled, of the then public knowledge, & in particular of that given by L.'s specification.—Re WATERHOUSE'S PATENT (1906), 23 R. P. C. 470.

2166. —— Patent medicine.]—Re WALLACE'S PATENT, No. 2154, ante.

2167. —— ——.]—This was a petition presented by the Pharmaceutical Society for revocation of a patent for "An improved medicinal preparation, applicable as an embrocation or liniment" on various grounds, including want of subject-matter. On the hearing of the petition, the patentee did not appear, & the patent was revoked.—Re SIMMONS'S PATENT (1895), 12 R. P. C. 446.

2168. —— Preparation of saccharine.]—In 1896, letters patent were granted to C. for "preparation of ortho-sulphamine benzoic acid," being a method of preparing saccharine. In 1897, The Saccharine Corpn., Ltd., presented a petition for revocation of this patent on the ground of want of utility, want of subject-matter, & that the specification did not describe a process by which saccharine could be produced. On the hearing of the petition it was unopposed, & the patent was revoked.—Re CERCKEL'S PATENT (1898), 15 R. P. C. 500.

2169. —— Cyclometer.]—Re JUSTICE'S PATENT, No. 2158, ante.

2170. —— Improvement of stencil plates.]—Re KLABER'S PATENT, No. 2156, ante.

2171. —— Improvement of garments.]—Re LEE'S PATENT, No. 2157, ante.

PART XIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2.—C.

2162 i. Patentee not first & true inventor.]—Persons claiming rights prior to those of a patentee may petition for their own protection for revocation of the patent, without the A.-G.'s fiat & before proceedings for infringement are taken by the patentee.—Re SCOTT'S PATENT (1898), 19 N. S. W. L. R. (Eq.) 114; 15 N. S. W. W. N. 69.—AUS.

E. Prior User.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 25 (3) (b).

2172. By petitioner.]—In 1888, a patent was granted to S. for "a disconnecting, folding, or fixed arm anchor." In 1898, N. presented a petition for revocation of the patent on the ground (inter alia) of prior user of the invention, alleging that he had himself prior to the date of the patent altered an anchor so that it possessed the features of the patented anchor:—Held: the alleged prior user of the invention had been established, & the patent was revoked.—Re SINNETTE'S PATENT (1898), 15 R. P. C. 761.

2173. User must be public.]—Re MARKS' PATENT, No. 2150, ante.

F. Other Grounds.

2174. Patent taken out to obtain exemption under Pharmacy Act, 1868 (c. 117).]—The Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain presented a petition for the revocation of a patent for an alleged invention of an improved medicinal preparation for the cure of indigestion & like complaints. The compound included diluted prussic acid. Revocation was asked for on various grounds, including insufficiency in not stating the strength of the diluted acid & it was alleged the patent was taken out to evade the provisions of above Act, relating to the sale of poisons. The petition now came on for directions, resp. did not appear & petitioners asked that revocation might be granted. The judge made an order for revocation on production of an affidavit verifying the petition, but stated incidentally that he was of opinion that the fact that the patent was taken out to evade the provisions of above Act, was not a ground for revocation.—Re VAISEY'S PATENT (1894), 11 R. P. C. 591.

Ground which would have been available under scire facias.]—See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 25, 2 (a); 1919 (c. 80), sched.

2175. ——.]—A writ of sci. fa. to repeal letters patent lies in three cases: (1) When the King does grant by several letters patent one & the self-same thing to several persons, the first patentee shall have a sci. fa. to repeal the second; (2) when the King doth grant a thing upon a false suggestion, he prærogativa regis may by sci. fa. repeal his own grant; (3) when the King does grant any thing which by law he cannot grant.—R. v. MUSSARY (1738), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 41.

SUB-SECT. 3.—PRACTICE.

A. In General.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, rr. 9, 10, 13.

2176. Right to begin.]—Re TIERMANN'S PATENT (1899), 43 Sol. Jo. 706; sub nom. Re TIEMANN'S PATENT, 16 R. P. C. 561.

2177. Right of patentee to amend specification—Patentee alien enemy.]—In proceedings for the revocation of a patent the ct. has power to allow the patentees to amend their specification by way of disclaimer, notwithstanding the patentees are alien enemies, such amendment being in the nature of a defence to the proceedings for revocation; & the ct. will, when necessary, guard against the danger of the patentee thereby improving his position, by putting him on terms.—Re STAHLWERK BECKER ART.'S PATENT, [1917] 2 Ch. 272; 86 L. J. Ch. 670; 117 L. T. 216; 33 T. L. R. 339; 61 Sol. Jo. 479.

2178. Putting petition into witness list.]—Re BORROWMAN'S PATENT (1902), 19 R. P. C. 159.

2179. ——.]—A petition for revocation ought not to be put into the witness list until it is effective for hearing. Inspection or discovery should be applied for when the petition comes into the petition list.—Re SCOTT'S PATENT (1902), 19 R. P. C. 273.

2180. Inspection or discovery—Time of application.]—Re SCOTT'S PATENT, No. 2179, ante.

2181. Particulars.]—In a petition for revocation of a patent relating to improvements in telegraphic apparatus, petitioners alleged prior user by the manufacture & sale or use by their predecessors in business & others of certain electrical shunts, coils & recorders. On a summons by resps. for further particulars as to these alleged prior users the judge ordered particulars to be given which included particulars of the weight, size, resistance & induction of the articles. Petitioners appealed, but offered to give particulars not covering these matters:—Held: petitioners ought not to be ordered to give the particulars objected to, as they were matters of description & not merely of identification, & the order was discharged with costs. Petitioners undertook to give the particulars they had offered.—Re BROWN'S PATENT (1906), 23 R. P. C. 790, C. A.

2182. —— Amendment.]—On a petition for the revocation of a patent:—Held: petitioners ought not to be allowed to amend their particulars of objection, in the Ct. of Appeal.—ALSOP FLOUR

PART XIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2.—E.

2172 i. By petitioner.]—MURCHLAND v. NICHOLSON (1893), 10 R. P. C. 417.—SCOT.

PART XIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2.—F.

l. Refusal to licence.]—Refusal to sell the right to use unconditionally an invention or to licence avoids the patent.—TORONTO TELEPHONE MANUFACTURING CO. v. BELL TELEPHONE CO. OF CANADA (1885), 8 L. N. 34.—CAN.

m. Illegal importation.]—TORONTO TELEPHONE MANUFACTURING CO. v. BELL TELEPHONE CO. OF CANADA (1886), 18 R. L. O. S. 463; 9 L. N. 27.—CAN.

n. ——.]—BROOK v. BROADHEAD (1889), 2 Exch. C. R. 562.—CAN.

o. ——.]—BERLINER GRAMOPHONE CO., LTD. v. POLLOCK (1915), 35 O. L. R. 137; 9 O. W. N. 263.—CAN.

p. —— By others—With consent of patentee.]—If, after the time has expired wherein the patentee may have imported the invention without prejudice to his rights, he consents to its importation by others, such consent brings him within the prohibition of 38 Vict. c. 26, & avoids his patent.—BARTER v. SMITH (1877), 2 Exch. C. R. 455.—CAN.

q. —— Parts.]—ANDERSON TIRE CO. OF TORONTO v. AMERICAN DUNLOP TIRE CO., AMERICAN DUNLOP TIRE CO. v. ANDERSON TIRE CO. OF TORONTO (1896), 5 Exch. C. R. 82.—CAN.

r. —— ——.]—DOMINION CHAIN CO. v. MCKINNON CHAIN CO. (Ont.) (1919), 58 S. C. R. 121; 45 D. L. R. 367.—CAN.

t. —— Machinery to carry out process.]—ALSOP PROCESS CO. OF CANADA v. FRIESEN & SON (Ont.), [1919] 1 W. W. R. 544; 57 S. C. R. 606.—CAN.

a. Expiry of foreign patent.]—R. v. GENERAL ENGINEERING CO. OF ONTARIO, LTD. (1900), 6 Exch. C. R. 328; 20 C. L. T. 53.—CAN.

b. Failure to manufacture & sell.]—HAMBLY v. ALBRIGHT & WILSON, LTD. (1902), 7 Exch. C. R. 363; 22 C. L. T. 201.—CAN.

c. ——.]—HILDRETH v. MCCORMICK MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. (1906), 10 Exch. C. R. 378; 26 C. L. T. 782.—CAN.

d. ——.]—BERLINER GRAMOPHONE CO., LTD. v. POLLOCK (1915), 9 O. W. N. 263; 35 O. L. R. 137.—CAN.

PART XIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 3.—A.

2176 i. Right to begin.]—R. v. LA FORCE (1894), 4 Exch. C. R. 14.—CAN.

e. Particulars of breaches—Declaration—Trial.]—R. v. HALL (1867), 27 U. C. R. 146.—CAN.

f. Revocation on ground of error—Onus of proof.]—Where a bill is filed by a private individual to repeal letters patent on the ground of error, the onus of proof is on pltf., though it may to some extent involve proof of a negative.—MCINTYRE v. A.-G. (1867), 14 Gr. 86.—CAN.

g. Fiat—Necessity for.]—A sci. fa. to set aside a patent was issued at the instance of a private relator, without the fiat of either the A.-G. for the Dominion or for Ontario having been first obtained:—Held: a fiat was

Sect. 1.—By the court: Sub-sect. 3, A., B., C. (a) (b), D. & E.; sub-sect. 4.]

PROCESS, LTD. v. FLOUR OXIDIZING CO., LTD., Re ANDREWS' PATENT (1908), 25 R. P. C. 477, H. L.

Annotation:—Consd. Watson, Laidlaw v. Pott, Cassels & Williamson (1909), 26 R. P. C. 349.

2183. —— Extension of time.]—Re BARTON'S PATENTS (1912), 29 R. P. C. 207.

2184. Stay pending appeal in action for infringement.]—Re HITCHCOCK'S PATENT (1903), 20 R. P. C. 767.

See, also, No. 2202, post.

2185. Place of trial—At assizes with jury.]—Re EDMOND'S PATENT (1888), 5 T. L. R. 109.

2186. —— In King's Bench Division.]—The ct. will order a transfer of a petition for revocation of a patent to the Q. B. Div., subject to the consent of the President of that division, to be heard by the judge at the same time as an action for damages before a judge & jury in respect of the same subject-matter.—Re EDGE'S PATENT (1890), 63 L. T. 370; 38 W. R. 698.

2187. Evidence—Whether vivâ voce.]—A petition for the revocation of a patent having been presented under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 26:—Held: resps. were entitled, as they desired it, to have the petition tried with vivâ voce evidence.—Re GAULARD & GIBBS' PATENT (1887), 34 Ch. D. 396; 56 L. J. Ch. 606; 56 L. T. 284; 35 W. R. 301.

2188. —— Matter for cross-examination—Duty to bring before court.]—Re GALES' PATENT, No. 2149, ante.

2189. —— Admissibility—To discredit witnesses—As to prior user.]—An action for infringement of the patent the subject of this petition, brought by resp. to the present petition, having failed, the ct. being satisfied that the invention had been used prior to the date of the patent at one place out of several referred to, this petition was brought to have the patent declared void, petitioner relying solely on the instance which had satisfied the ct. in the prior action.

A witness on the part of petitioner stated that he had seen the invention used at the particular place relied on, & in cross-examination he stated that he had seen it used also at other places referred to prior to the date of the patent.

Resp. asked to be allowed to adduce evidence as to the prior user at such other places:—Held: the evidence was inadmissible, on the ground that if admitted it would be allowing resp. to go into matters not relevant to the question at issue for the sole purpose of discrediting the witness & disproving the answers to questions put to him on cross-examination.—Re HAGGENMACHER'S PATENTS, [1898] 2 Ch. 280; 67 L. J. Ch. 675; 15 R. P. C. 431.

2190. —— Negative evidence adduced by applicant.]—Re MAX MÜLLER'S PATENT, No. 2142, ante.

2191. Estoppel—Patent attacked on similar grounds in action for infringement.]—Re LEWIS & STIRCKLER'S PATENT, No. 2155, ante.

Committal for contempt.]—See CONTEMPT OF COURT, Vol. XVI., p. 27, No. 250.

B. Service out of Jurisdiction.

See R. S. C., Ord. 11, r. 8A.

2192. Necessity for.]—A petition for revocation of a patent was served on two of three patentees, the third being abroad. The petition was ordered to be put into the witness list, but not to come on for hearing without leave, unless the absent patentee appeared by counsel on notice to him of the presentation of the petition.—Re KAY'S PATENT (1894), 70 L. T. 756; 11 R. P. C. 279; 8 R. 263.

2193. Sufficiency of—Notice by registered letter.]—Re HIRSCHFELD'S PATENT, No. 2153, ante.

2194. —— Personal delivery of copy of petition & particulars.]—The sole resp. to a petition for the revocation of a patent was a domiciled Scotsman, who was resident in Scotland. A copy of the petition & of petitioners' particulars of objection had been delivered to him personally in Scotland, & he had written to petitioners' solrs. saying that he did not intend to appear on the hearing of the petition, because he was not under the jurisdiction of the English cts. Upon an application by petitioners for directions as to the mode of trial:—Held: though there had not been, & could not under the R. S. C. be, any service of the petition out of the jurisdiction, yet, as ample notice had been given to resp., the ct. could make an order nisi, that, unless resp. should, on or before a specified day, appear & show cause to the contrary, in which case it would be open to him to dispute the jurisdiction, the petition should be tried with vivâ voce evidence, & be set down for trial in the list of witness actions.—Re DRUMMOND'S PATENT (1889), 43 Ch. D. 80; 59 L. J. Ch. 102; 6 R. P. C. 576.

Annotations:—Folld. Re Görz & Högh's Patent (1895), 11 T. L. R. 463. Refd. Re Cliff, Edwards v. Brown, [1895] 1.

—— —— Letter from petitioner's solicitors.]—Re GÖRZ & HÖGH'S PATENT (1895), 11 T. L. R. 463.

C. The Order.

(a) In General.

2196. Revocation as to part—Whether leave to amend by disclaimer granted.]—Where on a petition for revocation of a patent the judge holds that all the claims are bad & orders the patent to be revoked & this order is entered on the Register of Patents, the Ct. of Appeal, if it is of opinion that one claim is valid, may reverse the order below & order that the patent be revoked, unless within three months, or such further time as the ct. may allow, the patentee obtain leave to amend his specification by disclaiming all the claims except the valid one.—DEELEY v. PERKES, [1896] A. C. 496; 65 L. J. Ch. 912; 75 L T. 233; 12 T. L. R. 547; 13 R. P. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Re Dellwick's Patent, [1896] 2 Ch. 705. Expld. Re Pitt's Patent, Ludington Cigarette Machine Co. v. Baron Cigarette Machine Co., [1900] 1 Ch. 508. Apld. Re Justice's Patent (1901), 18 R. P. C. 241. Consd. Re Geipel's Patent, [1903] 2 Ch. 715. Distd. Re Ralston's Patent, Re Preston & Ralston's Patent (1909), 100 L. T. 386. Refd. Re Lewis & Stirckler's Patent (1896), 14 R. P. C. 24; Shoe Machinery Co. v. Cutlan, [1896] 1 Ch. 108; Re Woolfe's Patent, Woolfe v. Automatic Picture Gallery (1902), 87 L. T. 95; Re Klaber & necessary, & the A.-G. for Ontario was the proper authority to grant it.—R. v. PATTEE (1871), 5 P. R. 292.—CAN.

h. —— By whom granted.]—R. v. PATTEE (1871), 5 P. R. 292.—CAN.

k. Jurisdiction—Minister of Agriculture—Exclusive jurisdiction.]—The jurisdiction in respect to the avoidance of patents conferred upon the Minister of Agriculture by Patent Act, 1872, s. 28, is exclusive of that possessed by any other tribunal in the Dominion.—TORONTO TELEPHONE MANUFACTURING CO. v. BELL TELEPHONE CO. OF CANADA (1885), 2 Exch. C. R. 524.—CAN.

PART XIII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 3.—C. (a).

l. Action to avoid patents—What procedure necessary.]—Upon a motion for judgment for default of pleading in an action to avoid certain patents of invention, the ct. granted the motion, but directed that a copy of the judgment should be served upon defts., & that the registrar should not issue a certificate of the judgment for the purpose of entering the purport thereof on the margins of the enrolment of the several patents in the Patent Office until the expiry of thirty days after such service.—PETERSON v. CROWN CORK & SEAL CO. (1897), 5 Exch. C. R. 400.—CAN.

Steinberg's Patent (1908), 77 L. J. Ch. 569; Poulton v. Adjustable Cover & Boiler Block Co. (1908), 99 L. T. 647; Porter v. Freudenberg, Kreglinger v. Samuel & Rosenfeld, Re Merten's Patent, [1915] 1 K. B. 857.

2197. —— —— Patent in fraud of petitioner's rights.]—Re RALSTON'S PATENT, Re PRESTON & RALSTON'S PATENT, No. 2144, ante.

(b) Consent Order.

2198. Jurisdiction to make order by consent.]—Re DAWSON'S PATENT (1907), 24 R. P. C. 140.

2199. Whether order made in chambers.]—Re SCOTT'S PATENT (1903), 20 R. P. C. 604.

Annotation :—Expld. Re Clifton's Patent, [1904] 2 Ch. 357.

2200. ——.]—A petition for revocation of a patent should be heard in open ct., & not, even by consent, in chambers.—Re CLIFTON'S PATENT, [1904] 2 Ch. 357; 73 L. J. Ch. 597; 91 L. T. 284; 52 W. R. 629; 48 Sol. Jo. 573; 21 R. P. C. 515.

2201. Order made when petition brought on for directions.]—A petition for revocation of a patent having been brought on for the purpose of obtaining directions as to the hearing, resp. appeared in person & consented to an immediate order for revocation, which was accordingly made.—Re SLEIGHT'S PATENT (1893), 10 R. P. C. 447.

2202. Stay of order—Pending appeal in action for infringement.]—Re SCOTT'S PATENT (1907), 24 R. P. C. 100.

2203. Certificate of particulars.]—Re AYLOTT'S PATENT (1911), 28 R. P. C. 227.

2204. ——.] — Re MERRYWEATHER'S PATENT (1911), 29 R. P. C. 64.

2205. Not "going to trial."] — Re AYLOTT'S PATENT, No. 2203, ante.

2206. Costs.]—On a petition by the Pharmaceutical Society, with the leave of the A.-G., for revocation, of a patent for a medicinal compound on certain grounds including absence of novelty, resp. consented to an order of revocation, but solely for want of novelty. The judge made an order for revocation with costs of the petition.—Re RENDELL'S PATENT (1894), 70 L. T. 756.

2207. —— Only method of obtaining revocation.]—Re WALLACE'S PATENT, No. 2154, ante.

2208. —— Petitioner aware of defect when patent granted.]—The patent was applied for, though both parties to this petition were well aware at the time that no patent could be validly granted, because the thing was actually on sale, had been sold in this country. Then petitioners suddenly commenced proceedings to revoke the patent. Resp. says, & he is justified in saying, that under these circumstances he should not be ordered to pay the costs. Accordingly I revoke the patent & I make no order as to the costs (PARKER, J.).—Re SLINGSBY'S PATENT (1910), 27 R. P. C. 524.

2209. —— Whether respondent bound to surrender patent.]—Re AYLOTT'S PATENT, No. 2203, ante.

2210. —— No notice of petition.]—Re MERRYWEATHER'S PATENT, No. 2204, ante.

D. Expiry of Patent.

2211. Not sufficient to refuse fiat.] — (1) An action claiming merely a declaration of invalidity of letters patent already expired, where no legal right of pltf. has been infringed, is not maintainable.

(2) The proper mode of procedure in a case of is kind is by petition for revocation under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 26.

(3) The mere fact that a patent has expired is not of itself a sufficient reason for refusing a fiat for a petition for revocation.—NORTH EASTERN MARINE ENGINEERING CO. v. LEEDS FORGE CO., [1906] 2 Ch. 498; 75 L. J. Ch. 720; 95 L. T. 178; 22 T. L. R. 724; 50 Sol. Jo. 650, C. A.

Annotation :—As to (1) Refd. Guaranty Trust Co. of New York v. Hannay, [1915] 2 K. B. 536.

2212. Petition not proceeded with.]—Re LUDLOW'S PATENT (1912), 29 R. P. C. 616.

E. Costs.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 7.

2213. Costs on higher scale.]—Re TIERMANN'S PATENT, No. 2176, ante.

2214. Costs subsequent to disclaimer.]—R. v. MILL (1851), 14 Beav. 312; 51 E. R. 306.

2215. Costs of shorthand note.]—Re NORWOOD'S PATENTS, No. 2146, ante.

2216. ——.]—Re TIERMANN'S PATENT, No. 2176, ante.

2217. Cost of obtaining fiat of Attorney-General.]—The costs of obtaining the authority of the A.-G. ought to be allowed on taxation to petitioner for revocation who has been given the costs of the petition. A petition for revocation of a patent having been presented with the authority of the A.-G., the patent was revoked, resp. being ordered to pay the costs of petitioner. On the taxation resp. objected that petitioner was not entitled to the costs of obtaining the authority of the A.-G. The taxing master allowed such costs. Resp. applied to review the taxation :—Held : the costs of obtaining the authority of the A.-G. were properly allowed. The summons was dismissed with costs.—Re POULTON'S PATENT (1906), 23 R. P. C. 571.

2218. Security for costs of appeal—Position of nominal respondent.]—Re OWEN'S PATENT (1900), 17 R. P. C. 637.

2219. No order as to costs.]—Re NORWOOD'S PATENT (NO. 2), No. 2147, ante.

Of consent order.]—See Sub-sect. 3, C. (b), ante.

SUB-SECT. 4.—REVOCATION OF EXTENDED PATENT.

2220. Jurisdiction.] — (1) The Judicial Committee have, under Judicial Committee Act, 1833 (c. 41), s. 4, jurisdiction to entertain a petition, referred to them by the Crown, seeking to revoke an Order in Council, made upon their recommendation, upon an application by patentees for a prolongation of letters patent under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, & to recall the warrant for sealing such letters patent.

(2) An alien resident abroad, who was interested in an English patent by a foreign inventor, & who had also considerable dealings in this country in respect of sales of the patented machine & in granting licences for the use of such patent, held, in the circumstances, to have a locus standi as to entitle him to petition the Crown to revoke an Order in Council for granting an extended term of an English patent, & to recall the warrant for sealing such patent.

(3) Qu. : whether an alien living abroad, without such interest, could inform the Crown by petition as to any matters touching letters patent. —Re SCHLUMBERGER (1853), 9 Moo. P. C. C. 1; 14 E. R. 197; sub nom. Re SHLUMBERGER'S PATENT, 2 Eq. Rep. 36, P. C.

2221. Application by alien—Interested in dealing with patented article in England.]—Re SCHLUMBERGER, No. 2220, ante.

SECT. 2.—BY THE COMPTROLLER.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 26, & 1919 (c. 80), sched.; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 76, 78.

2222. Interests of public to be considered—Not those of individual.]—(1) While the motive of appct. for the revocation of a patent under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, is immaterial, his position & conduct, so far as they may have influenced the action of the owner of the patent, are material; & in considering whether a case for revocation has been made out the Comptroller-General or the ct. must look primarily not to the interests of the individual, but to those of the public.

(2) Appcts. for the revocation of a patent under the Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, on the ground that it had been worked exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom, were themselves the owners of a prior patent which would have been infringed by any working of the patent sought to be revoked. They had refused an offer of a licence under that patent, & its owners had not applied for a voluntary or compulsory licence under the prior patent. The prior patent would shortly expire, but the other patent had some years to run:—Held: notwithstanding the non-application for a licence by the owners of the patent sought to be revoked, the fact that it could not have been worked without the risk of infringement proceedings by the owners of the prior patent was a satisfactory reason for the patent not being worked in this country, & ought not therefore to be revoked.—Re TAYLOR'S PATENT, [1912] 1 Ch. 635; 81 L. J. Ch. 438; 106 L. T. 600; 28 T. L. R. 293; 56 Sol. Jo. 415.

SUB-SECT. 2.—PATENT WORKED MAINLY ABROAD.

A. In General.

See, generally, Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27; & 1919 (c. 80), s. 1; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 79–83.

2223. Application to patents existing before Act.]—(1) Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 24, deals primarily with cases where the trade of this country has been injured by an abuse of the monopoly conferred by the patent, irrespective of anything which is being done abroad, while Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, deals primarily with cases where the object or effect of the use of such rights in the way they have been used has been to favour the development of industries abroad at the expense of industries in the United Kingdom.

(2) The keynote of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, is forfeiture of the patent for the abuse of the monopoly at the instance of a common informer, & any one, whether a foreign or a British subject, & whatever his motive, can, by satisfying the Comptroller of the existence of the circumstances contemplated in Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27 (1), throw on the patentee the onus of proving, to prevent revocation, that the patented process or article is carried on or manufactured to an adequate extent within the United Kingdom, or of giving a satisfactory reason why it is not so carried on or manufactured. Sect. 27 does not mean that in every case where more than 50 per cent. of the patented articles manufactured anywhere are made abroad the patentee can be called upon to defend his patent rights; if the article is manufactured in the United Kingdom to as great an extent as can reasonably be expected, having regard to the industrial development of other countries, no presumption against the patentee arises.

(3) Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27 (1), institutes a comparison between the extent to which the article or process is manufactured or carried on in this country & the extent to which it is manufactured or carried on abroad, whether the articles are or are not imported into this country, & Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, is meant to hit every abuse of the patentee's monopoly the object or result of which is to benefit foreigners at the expense of traders within the United Kingdom.

(4) In determining whether there has been "adequate" manufacturing in the United Kingdom, or whether "satisfactory reasons" for the inadequacy are given by the patentee, it is left to the Comptroller, subject to appeal to the ct., to determine in each case, & having regard to all the circumstances, whether the home manufacture is adequate, or, if not, whether the reasons are satisfactory, he bearing in mind (a) that that manufacture is not adequate if it is lessened by the patentee exercising his patent rights to the hurt of British industry—e.g. by giving foreign traders a preference as to licences or otherwise over British traders—& (b) that reasons are not satisfactory which do not account for the inadequacy of the home manufacture by causes operating irrespective of any abuse of the monopoly.

On the other hand, a patentee who has allowed part of the demand in this country to be supplied by the importation of goods from abroad has not necessarily precluded himself from proving that there is adequate home manufacture or giving satisfactory reasons for the inadequacy of that manufacture, the policy of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, being to secure fair play between foreign & British industries.

(5) Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, applies both to patents in existence before Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), & patents subsequently granted, although reasons might be accepted as satisfactory in the case of the former which would not be so accepted in the latter; but the fact that a patentee has before Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), precluded himself by licence or contract from working his patent in this country is not a satisfactory reason.

In 1900 two patents were granted to H. for inventions relating to a process of manufacturing imitation stone slabs. The invention was in commercial operation in Germany, France, & Belgium, but was never worked in the United Kingdom. The patentee devoted himself to the establishment abroad of industries in which the patented process was carried on, & used his monopoly to secure to a Belgian co., to whom in 1905 he granted an exclusive licence for the United Kingdom, the monopoly of selling in the United Kingdom articles manufactured by the co. in Belgium:—Held: the patent ought to be revoked forthwith, although in July, 1908, the patentee & the Belgian co. had issued newspaper advertisements in the United Kingdom expressing their willingness to sell or enter into working arrangements for the manufacture of goods in the United Kingdom under the patented process.

(6) The word "mainly" is used in Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27 (1), in close connection with & as an alternative to "exclusively," & having regard to this fact, I do not think that a process or article can be said to be mainly carried on or manufactured abroad merely because it is carried on or manufactured abroad to a somewhat greater extent than within the United Kingdom (PARKER, J.).—Re HATSCHEK'S PATENTS, Ex p. ZERENNER, [1909] 2 Ch. 68; 78 L. J. Ch. 402; 100 L. T. 809; 25 T. L. R. 457; 26 R. P. C. 228.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Re Robin Electric Lamp Co.'s Petn., [1915] 1 Ch. 780. As to (2) Apld. Re Lake's Patent (1909), 26 R. P. C. 443; Re Fiat Motors' Appln., [1911] 1 Ch. 66. As to (4) Consd. Re Boult's Patent (1909), 26 R. P. C. 383. As to (5) Consd. Re Taylor's Patent (1912), 106 L. T. 600. Generally, Reld. Thermos v. Isola (1910), 27 R. P. C. 195; Saccharin Corpn. v. National Saccharin Corpn. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 287; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Duram, [1915] 1 Ch. 823.

2224. Primary object—Prevention of development of foreign industries at expense of British.]—Re HATSCHEK'S PATENTS, Ex p. ZERENNER, No. 2223, ante.

2225. What is the "Patented Article"—Construction of specification.]—(1) An application was made by R., under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, for the revocation of a patent No. 8401 of 1903 granted to L. for "Improvements in sound magnifying horns for phonographs & the like" on the ground that the patented article was manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. The application was opposed by G. & L., Ltd., who were assignees of the patent. The evidence for appct. was directed to showing that the "sound boxes," which he alleged to be part of the patented article, were in all cases made in the United States of America; & that large numbers of talking machines coming within the claims were imported & sold by other parties. The assignees filed declarations to the effect that there was a substantial manufacture of "the improved sound magnifying horn" in this country, & that this improved horn was the only "patented article" which it was necessary for them to manufacture here to escape the penalties of the Act. At the hearing they contended that a primâ facie case had not been raised by appct., & that the onus was upon him to prove the allegations upon which the application was founded, & that, until he did so, he had no locus standi:—Held: on a proper construction of the specification the real invention of the patentee was the improved sound magnifying horn, & although a sound box was claimed in combination, there was no claim for any special form of sound box; it was not necessary therefore for the sound box to be manufactured in this country to escape the provisions of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29). s. 27; & the evidence adduced by appct. was irrelevant & insufficient to discharge the onus cast upon him under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27 (1). (2) Until a primâ facie case is made out by appct. under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27 (1), the patentee cannot be called upon to produce his witnesses for cross-examination, or for examination by the Comptroller-General.—Re LAKE'S PATENT (1909), 26 R. P. C. 443.

2226. Manufacture in England by licencees since application to revoke.]—An application was made under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, to revoke a patent (No. 25,382 of 1901) for "Improvements in typewriting machines" on the ground that the patented article was manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. Before the end of Aug. 1908, a few advertisements were inserted in various journals & some correspondence was entered into by the patentees with a view to the grant of licences. An agreement to manufacture certain parts of the machines was relied upon by the patentees, but this was only entered into six months after the year of grace given by Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, & three months after the date of the application to revoke. The evidence showed that between one thousand & one thousand five hundred machines protected by the patent were annually imported, while only an order for one hundred sets of certain parts of the machines had been given up to the date of the hearing & this order, although being executed, had not then been actually completed:—Held: there was no adequate manufacture in this country at the date of the hearing, & no sufficient reasons had been given for the earlier inaction of the patentees & the lateness of the present attempt. He therefore revoked the patent & gave appct. costs.—Re FEIL'S PATENT (1909), 27 R. P. C. 25.

2227. Higher price charged for article manufactured in United Kingdom—Case of suspicion.]—(1) An application was made under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, to revoke a patent for "Mills for pulverising or granulating" on the ground that the patented article was manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. The patentee did not contend that the machine was not manufactured exclusively or mainly abroad, but urged that there was adequate manufacture, or that there were satisfactory reasons for deficiency in this respect. At the date of the application one machine had already been made in the United Kingdom; & a second machine had been commenced, which was completed shortly before the hearing, although parts of these machines had been imported; & a third had been taken in hand. The present demand in the United Kingdom did not exceed two machines per annum, & the manufacturers here were prepared to turn out ten or twelve machines per annum if required:—Held: there was a manufacture in this country sufficient to meet the demand, & sufficient reasons were given for the absence of a more extensive manufacture. He, therefore, dismissed the application, & gave the patentees costs.

(2) In revocation cases under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, the only question as to price is whether the price charged by the patentee is a bonâ fide one & not adopted for the purpose of checking & diminishing the demand for the article made in the United Kingdom. If the price charged by a patentee for a machine made in the United Kingdom were higher than that charged for a machine supplied from abroad a primâ facie case for suspicion would arise.—Re KENT'S PATENT (1909), 26 R. P. C. 666.

B. Who may Apply.

2228. Foreigner.]—Re HATSCHEK'S PATENTS, Ex p. ZERENNER, No. 2223, ante.

C. Manufacture Abroad.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27; 1919 (c. 80), s. 1.

2229. No manufacture anywhere.]—An application was made, under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, by K. for the revocation of a patent for a process & for an implement for carrying it out granted in 1901 to B. & assigned in 1905 to C. M., a German co. by whom the invention was communicated to the patentee, on the ground that the patented article was manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. The application was opposed by the assignees, who proved that the patented article was not manufactured at all, either in this country or abroad, but that the patented process was carried on in this country to a substantial extent for certain purposes, & that they were prepared to grant licences for its use for all purposes :—Held : (1) appct. had not discharged the onus of proof falling upon him under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27 (1), & the application should be dismissed ; (2) even if the application were amended so as to cover the patented process, it would be difficult for appct. to prove that the process was carried on "mainly" abroad as the process was in substantial use here for the primary purposes of the invention.—Re BOULT'S PATENT (1909), 26 R. P. C. 424.

Sect. 2.—By the comptroller: Sub-sect. 2, C., D., E. & F. (a).]

2230. Foreign manufacture stopped—Time of stopping.]—In considering whether a patent ought to be revoked under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27 (1), on the ground that the "patented article or process is manufactured or carried on exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom," the ct. is not bound to determine that at the precise moment when the petition was lodged there was a manufacture of the patented article or a carrying on of the patented process ; a temporary cessation of manufacture & a sale of stock in the meantime will not prevent the operation of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27 (1) ; but where the manufacture & business are entirely & permanently stopped Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27 will not apply merely because the remaining stock is sold after the business has come to an end.—Re GREEN'S APPLICATION, [1911] 1 Ch. 754 ; 80 L. J. Ch. 484 ; 104 L. T. 629.

D. Adequate Manufacture in England.

2231. Adequate—Meaning of.]—Re HATSCHEK'S PATENTS, Ex p. ZERENNER, No. 2223, ante.

2232. Not to be construed only with reference to demand in this country—To be construed with exclusively.]—Re HATSCHEK'S PATENTS, Ex p. ZERENNER, No. 2223, ante.

2233. Manufacture in England by infringers.]—On an application for revocation of a patent on the ground that the patented article or process is manufactured or carried on exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom, the Comptroller of Patents, in computing the extent to which the article or process for which the patent has been obtained is, within Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27 (1), manufactured or carried on within the United Kingdom, ought not to inquire whether what has been done in the United Kingdom is or is not in derogation of the patentee's rights under his patent, or to exclude from the computation what has been done by infringers of the patent in derogation of those rights.—Re FIAT MOTORS, LTD.'S APPLICATION, [1911] 1 Ch. 66 ; 80 L. J. Ch. 48 ; 103 L. T. 453 ; 27 T. L. R. 74 ; 55 Sol. Jo. 64.

2234. No adequate manufacture at date of application—Manufacture adequate at date of hearing—Discretion of Comptroller.]—An application was made under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, to revoke a patent granted to W. for "improvements in or relating to winding machines for yarn & other materials," on the ground that the patented article was manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. It was admitted that prior to 1914 no manufacture of the patented article took place in the United Kingdom, but it was proved that early in 1914 negotiations were commenced with a firm in the United Kingdom for the manufacture. These negotiations did not result in any manufacture until after the date of the application :—Held : (1) while there was no adequate manufacture of the patented article at the date of the application, there was adequate manufacture at the date of the hearing as the result of bonâ fide arrangements made by the patentee prior to the date of the application ; (2) the discretion of the Comptroller under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27 (2), might therefore properly be invoked.—Re WARDWELL'S PATENT (1914), 32 R. P. C. 88.

E. Satisfactory Reasons.

2235. Inadequacy of home manufacture—Explained by reasons irrespective of abuse of monopoly.]—Re HATSCHEK'S PATENTS, Ex p. ZERENNER, No. 2223, ante.

2236. Standard to be adopted—Standard of intelligent business man.]—(1) It is not enough for the efforts made by a patentee to carry out the obligations imposed on him by Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), to be sufficient in his own estimation ; they must conform to the standard which an intelligent business man in this country would place before himself & adopt.

(2) If a patentee manufactures abroad & there is a demand abroad, the absence of a demand here is not necessarily a valid excuse for absence of manufacture. The patentee must in any case make an effort to create a demand for the patented article in this country, & the establishment of a manufacture may help to create the demand.—Re BOULT'S PATENT (1909), 26 R. P. C. 383.

Annotations :—As to (2) Apld. Re Kent's Patent (1909), 26 R. P. C. 666 ; Re Taylor's Patent (1911), 29 R. P. C. 29.

2237. Absence of demand in England—Effort to create demand.]—Re BOULT'S PATENT, No. 2236, ante.

2238. Manufacture in England sufficient to meet demand.]—Re KENT'S PATENT, No. 2227, ante.

2239. Patentee using best endeavours—Failure due to matters outside patentee's control.]—(1) If a patentee proves that he has done his best to fulfil the obligations arising under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), by establishing in this country an industry in the patented article, & that his want of success has been due to circumstances beyond his control & not to the manner in which he has exercised the rights conferred upon him by his patent, the patent ought not to be revoked.

(2) In the case of a patented article manufactured mainly outside the United Kingdom, the owner of such patent must in revocation proceedings prove that the patented article is manufactured, to an adequate extent, within the United Kingdom, or give satisfactory reasons why it is not so manufactured. In order to discharge this onus, he must at least show with regard to his letters patent that he has not by any exercise of his patent rights given any preference to foreign over British industry, or otherwise done anything inconsistent with the obligations of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29).—Re BREMER'S PATENT, Ex p. BRAULIK, Re HÖGNER'S PATENT, Ex p. BRAULIK, [1909] 2 Ch. 217 ; 78 L. J. Ch. 550 ; 101 L. T. 21 ; 25 T. L. R. 610 ; 26 R. P. C. 449.

*Annotation :—Refd. Re Hatschek's Patents, Ex p. Zerenner, [1909] 2 Ch. 68.

2240. No practical utility.]—An application was made under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, by J. & co. & J., carrying on business in London, to revoke a patent for "improvements in or relating to valve operating mechanism," No. 22762 of 1900, granted to O. & a co. & assigned to D. D. B., Ltd., on the ground of non-working & abuse of monopoly. The application was opposed by the assignees, who admitted non-working, & pleaded absence of demand as a sufficient reason: —Held: absence of demand for the patented article by itself, & the admission of both parties that at present there was no practical utility in the invention constituted a satisfactory reason for non-working.—Re OSBORN'S PATENT (1909), 26 R. P. C. 819.

2241. Misunderstanding as to requirements of Act.]—An application was made under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, by W. B. & G., a limited co. carrying on business in Birmingham, to revoke a patent, No. 25583 of 1897, for "an umbrella opening automatically," granted to Worring & Kortenbach of Weyer, in Germany, on the ground of non-working in the United Kingdom. The patentees alleged that they were under a misapprehension as to the requirements of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, & asked for an extension of time in which to manufacture the patented article in the United Kingdom:—Held: the patent should be revoked forthwith. — Re WORRING & KORTENBACH'S PATENT (1909), 26 R. P. C. 163.

2242. Arrangements made for manufacture in future.]—Application was made under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, to revoke a patent (No. 28807 of 1904) for "A new or improved method of & apparatus for cutting pipes, plates, & other metal articles" on the ground that the patented article & process was manufactured & carried on exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. It was admitted that the manufacture had been carried on mainly abroad, but it was contended that there were satisfactory reasons for this, & that at the date of the hearing there was a substantial manufacture in this country. Negotiations for the sale of the patent had been commenced within four years from the date of the patent, & had resulted in the assignment of the patent to a British co. A few of the patented articles were manufactured in this country in 1908, & the present owners of the patent were, at the date of the hearing, in a position to manufacture to a full & adequate extent in this country:—Held: satisfactory reasons had been given for the failure to manufacture to an adequate extent in this country, before the expiration of four years from the date of the patent, & there was sufficient evidence of adequate manufacture at the present time. He therefore dismissed the application & gave the patentees thirty guineas costs. In considering the amount of costs to be awarded, the fact that appct. had justifiable grounds for making the application was taken into account.—Re JOTTRAND'S PATENT (1909), 26 R. P. C. 830.

2243. Temporary cessation of manufacture—Liquidation of company.]—Re GREEN'S APPLICATION, No. 2230, ante.

2244. Threat of action for infringement.]—Re TAYLOR'S PATENT, No. 2222, ante.

F. Practice.

(a) In General.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27; 1919 (c. 80), s. 1; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 79–83.

2245. Right to begin.] — The patentee held entitled to begin in revocation cases under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 26, except in cases where revocation is sought on the ground of the invention having been obtained under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11 (1) (a).—NOTES OF RULINGS BY THE COMPTROLLER-GENERAL [illegible] (F) (1910), 27 R. P. C. App. VII.

2246. Primâ facie case by applicant—No necessity to leave sworn declaration.]—Application were made for the revocation of two patents by filing the ordinary form 24 under Patents Rules, 1908, r. 78, on the ground that the patented articles were manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. The patentees objected to leave a declaration in answer under r. 79 until appct. had made out a primâ facie case or given evidence in support of his allegations. They contended that there was a conflict between Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, & the above-mentioned rules, & that under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, the onus was thrown on appct. to make out a primâ facie case before the patentee was called upon to leave evidence; that, even if this was not so, an appct. ought to be called upon to make a declaration stating the facts on which he relied in all cases, & certainly in exceptional cases, & that the present case was exceptional because an action for infringement had been commenced by the patentees against appct. in which the pleadings were closed before the applications were made, & appct. had not pleaded that the patent was worked mainly or exclusively abroad as a defence, or counterclaimed for revocation:—Held: there was no conflict as alleged between Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), & Patents Rules, 1908; on the proper construction of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, appct. is not compelled to make out a primâ facie case before the patentee is called upon to leave evidence; the onus of proving, without help from the patentee, that the patented article is manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom is not thrown on appct., but that at the "consideration" & "inquiry" provided for by Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 79), s. 27 (2), both appct. & patentee must do their best to assist the Comptroller with evidence upon which he may come to a proper conclusion; the Comptroller ought not to call on appct. in every case to leave a sworn declaration giving the particulars on which he relies, but the Comptroller has power under the general practice of the office & under Patents Rules 80 & 81 to call appct. before him & examine him, or to call for a sworn declaration if necessary, or to appoint a hearing at which both parties may be heard & the proceedings stayed where necessary.—Re ILGNER'S PATENTS (1909), 26 R. P. C. 198.

2247. —— Onus of proof on patentee.]—Re BREMER'S PATENT, Ex p. BRAULIK, Re HÖGNER'S PATENT, Ex p. BRAULIK, No. 2239, ante.

2248. —— ——.]—Re HATSCHEK'S PATENTS, Ex p. ZERENNER, No. 2223, ante.

2249. —— Before patentee can be called on to produce witnesses.]—Re LAKE'S PATENT, No. 2225, ante.

2250. Suspension of order—To give opportunity for manufacture here.]—An application was made under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, by W. H., Ltd., Macclesfield, to revoke a patent, No. 4391 of 1904, granted to W. for "improvements in the preparation of clay for the casting of clay-ware," on the ground that the patented process had been carried on exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. The application was opposed by W. It was admitted that the process had been carried on exclusively abroad, but it was contended that satisfactory reasons had been given for non-working in the United Kingdom. The principal reasons alleged were that: (a) W. had made repeated & bonâ fide efforts to sell or licence the patented process in this country. (b) W. had treated this country fairly, & had not given any preference to foreign countries. (c) The failure to work had been due to the conservatism of English manufacturers; & (d) W. had now entered into a bonâ fide contract giving an option to purchase the patent rights for this country:—Held: the conduct of the patentee entitled him to consideration & to the benefit or indulgence of further time to comply with the provisions of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 27), & the patent would be revoked, not forthwith, but on Dec. 31, 1909, unless in the meantime it was shown to the Comptroller's satisfaction that the patented process was carried on to an adequate extent in the United Kingdom.—Re WEBER'S PATENT (1909), 26 R. P. C. 300.

Sect. 2.—By the comptroller: Sub-sect. 2, F. (a) & (b); sub-sects. 3 & 4. Part XIV. Sect. 1: Sub-sect. 1.]

2251. —— To amend specification.] — An application was made under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, to revoke a patent granted to W., No. 25158 of 1901, for "improvements in or relating to winding machines for yarn threads, tapes & the like" on the ground that the patented article was manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. It was contended on behalf of the patentee that there was no manufacture of the patented article either in the United Kingdom or elsewhere, inasmuch as the machine which was admittedly manufactured outside the United Kingdom did not come within all the claims of the specification, & consequently Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, did not apply. Alternatively it was contended that the machine comprised many castings which could only be obtained satisfactorily in the United States:—Held: the machine manufactured in the United States embodied the patentee's invention, or at any rate an important part of it; it was covered by many of the more important claims & must therefore be considered as the patented article." Further, the reasons given for non-maufacture in the United Kingdom were not satisfactory. The Comptroller, therefore, decided to revoke the patent, but suspended the making of the order for one month to allow the patentee an opportunity of applying to amend his specification by striking out such parts as admittedly embodied the patented article which was manufactured in the United States & not in this country.—Re WARDWELL'S PATENT (1913), 30 R. P. C. 408.

(b) Costs.

2252. Revocation not contested—Prompt notification by patentee.]—An application was made, on Feb. 23, 1909, under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, to revoke a patent for "Rim locks" granted in 1896 to W., on the ground that the patented article was manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. The patentee, who was resident in the United States, filed no evidence, & a letter was received on Apr. 27 from his agents by the Comptroller-General stating that he would take no steps to protect his patent:—Held: the patent should be revoked forthwith; but no costs were awarded on the ground that the patentee had acted promptly in notifying his intention not to contest the application.—Re TAYLOR'S PATENT (1909), 26 R. P. C. 381.

2253. ——.]—Appct. is entitled to some costs in respect of an application to revoke which is not contested.

An application was made on Feb. 5, 1909, under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 27, by the S. Syndicate, Ltd., carrying on business in London, to revoke a patent for "improvements in or relating to steam generators" granted to B. as a communication from abroad, on the ground that the patented article was manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. On Feb. 20 a letter was received by the Comptroller from B. stating that he did not propose to contest the application. The patent was revoked forthwith. B. submitted that no costs should be awarded, as he voluntarily relinquished his patent as soon as he had knowledge of the application to revoke:—Held: the patent should be revoked forthwith. Four guineas costs were awarded to appct.—Re BOULT'S PATENT (1909), 26 R. P. C. 219.

2254. Justifiable grounds for making application.]—Re JOTTRAND'S PATENT, No. 2242, ante.

SUB-SECT. 3.—GROUND ON WHICH GRANT MIGHT HAVE BEEN OPPOSED.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 11 (1), 26, & 1919 (c. 80), s. 4, sched.

2255. Who may apply—"Successor in interest"—Assignee of invention subject of application.]—An application was made under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 26, by B. & W. to revoke a patent for "Means for suspending curtains" (No. 22,479 of 1907) granted to G. on the ground (a) of Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11 (1). Appcts. B. & W. claimed to be the "successors in interest" of A., the person from whom it was alleged that the invention had been obtained:—Held: the words "successor in interest" in Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 26, do not include an assignee under an assignment which purports to convey the invention which is the subject of an application under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 26, & appcts. had no locus standi.—Re GASCOINE'S PATENT (1909), 27 R. P. C. 78.

2256. Amendment of specification—By insertion of specific references.]—In 1916 a patent was granted for "Improvements in impregnating compositions for proofing fabrics & other flexible materials." In 1917 an application for revocation of that patent by the Comptroller, under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 26, was made by the owners of a patent granted in 1915 for "An improved fabric for balloon envelopes & the like & the method of manufacturing & aftertreating the same," on the ground that the invention claimed by the patent of 1916 had been claimed in the complete specification of the patent of 1915:—Held: (1) the invention of the patentees was not the same as that of the opponents; (2) even if a fabric made in accordance with the claims to which objection was taken would be an infringement of the opponents' patent, that would not, in itself, be a sufficient reason for striking out those claims; (3) the object of the insertion of a specific reference was not to preserve or assist the opponents' rights, but to protect the public in cases in which, but for the insertion, they would be likely to be misled; (4) there was not sufficient reason for giving any special warning.—Re WOOLLDRIDGE & FOX'S PATENT (1920), 37 R. P. C. 114.

2257. Published in prior specifications—Specifications published before 1919.]—(1) On an application under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 26, for revocation of a patent granted before the passing of Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), it is not a ground for revocation that the patented invention is published in an earlier British specification, because under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 26, the application can only be made on a ground " on which the grant of the patent might have been opposed," & prior publication was only made a ground of opposition by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 4.

An invention was patented in the United States on Feb. 19, 1914, & under International Convention only a year was available for obtaining a patent of the invention in the United Kingdom. By virtue of art. 307 of the Treaty of Peace with Germany the time for patenting in the United Kingdom in such a case was extended to Jan. 10, 1921, & the invention was in fact patented in this country in 1920. It was alleged that it contained a claim of an invention that had been patented in the United Kingdom in 1916 on an application made on Feb. 15, 1915 :—Held : it could not be relied on as a ground for revocation of this latter patent, as it was not in existence at the time of the grant of that patent, & the insertion of a specific reference to it in the specification of the patent of 1916 could not be directed.

(2) There is not the same reason for directing the insertion in the specification of a patent of a specific reference to an earlier specification containing a description of the patented invention as there is when the earlier specification contains an actual claim of some part of the patented invention ; & in the former case the insertion of a specific reference ought not to be so frequently directed.—Re UCAR'S PATENT, [1922] 2 Ch. 220 ; 91 L. J. Ch. 735 ; 127 L. T. 779 ; 66 Sol. Jo. 488 ; 39 R. P. C. 269.

2258. Claimed on specification—Must be specification prior to grant.]—Re UCAR'S PATENT, No. 2257, ante.

2259. Earlier American patent subsequently patented in England.]—Re UCAR'S PATENT, No. 2257, ante.

2260. Patent granted under International Convention—Patent different from that patented abroad.]—An application was made under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 26, by A. to revoke a patent for " Improvements relating to valves for internal combustion engines " (No. 27295 of 1910) granted to S. on an application made in the United Kingdom on Nov. 23, 1910, & dated Nov. 24, 1909, under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 91. The grounds upon which the application to revoke was based were :—(a) that the nature of the invention or the manner in which it was to be performed was not sufficiently & fairly described & ascertained in the complete specification ; & (b) that the invention claimed was in the complete specification of patent No. 1674 of 1910, which would be of an earlier date to the patent No. 27295 of 1910 if the latter had not been antedated as a Convention application. The question was raised as to whether the specification, as finally accepted, did not contain an invention substantially different from the invention for which protection had been applied for abroad, & it was contended on behalf of appct. for revocation that, under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 11 (1) (c), he was entitled to raise the point that the invention as accepted did not sufficiently or fairly describe the invention originally applied for in this country :—Held : sect. 11 (1) (c) applies only to the " sufficient or fair " description of the invention claimed in the complete specification, & does not admit of any person raising questions as to the propriety of amendments which had been allowed in the specification, prior to acceptance, during its progress through the Patent Office, or as to what might be called disconformity between the invention as originally put forward & the invention as finally claimed. The application for revocation was dismissed, & costs were allowed to the patentee.—Re SEREX'S PATENT (1912), 29 R. P. C. 284.

Grounds for opposition to grant.]—See Part VII., Sect. 2, sub-sect. 2, ante.

SUB-SECT. 4.—APPEALS.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 26 (4), 92 (2), & 1919 (c. 80), Sched. ; R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 5.

2261. Whether time runs in Long Vacation—" Dilatoriness."]—On Aug. 4, 1910, the Comptroller refused an application for revocation of a patent. Appct. thereupon instructed his solrs. to take the necessary steps to appeal, but their clerk who was in charge of the matter had gone away for his holidays, & nothing was done till the end of Aug., when instructions were sent to counsel to prepare a petition for appeal. He was away from London & wrote that he had no facilities for drawing it & could not do so. This letter reached the solrs. on Sept. 2, too late to make an application in chambers or instruct other counsel. The time limited by R. S. C., 1883, Ord. 53A, r. 4, for presenting a petition for appeal expired on Sept. 4 :—Held : time included in the Long Vacation must be counted in ascertaining the month allowed for appealing, & therefore the appeal was out of time ; & further, dilatoriness was not a " special circumstance " within R. S. C., 1883, Ord. 53A, r. 4, so as to enable appct. to obtain an enlargement of the time.—Re BELDAM'S PATENT, [1911] 1 Ch. 60 ; 80 L. J. Ch. 133 ; 27 R. P. C. 758 ; sub nom. Re BELDAM'S PATENT, TURNER v. BELDAM, 103 L. T. 454 ; 55 Sol. Jo. 46.

Part XIV.—Infringement.

SECT. 1.—WHAT CONSTITUTES INFRINGEMENT.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

2262. Distinguished from infringement of design.]—There is little or no analogy between a patent & a design.—HARRISON v. TAYLOR (1859), 4 H. & N. 815 ; 29 L. J. Ex. 3 ; 5 Jur. N. S. 1219 ; 157 E. R. 1064, Ex. Ch.

Annotations :—Consd. Lazarus v. Charles (1873), L. R. 16 Eq. 117. Refd. Mulloney v. Stevens (1864), 10 L. T. 190; Dover v. Nürnberger Celluloidwaren Fabrik Gebrüder Wolff, [1910] 2 Ch. 25. Mentd. Hothersall v. Moore (1891), 9 R. P. C. 27.

2263. Whether manufacture by patentee necessary.]—ECCLES & BRIERLY v. MCGREGOR, No. 200, ante.

2264. Protection co-extensive with invention at time of patent.]—CROSSLEY v. POTTER (1853), Macr. 240.

2265. Infringement by mode not known at date of patent.]—UNWIN v. HEATH, No. 2505, post.

2266. Adaptation of apparatus or process existing before patent.]—To support a patent the invention must be that from which some novelty, either in process or product, results. It is not sufficient that the novelty consists merely in the application of an old apparatus to a new purpose.—

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sects. 2.]

BUSH v. FOX (1852), Macr. 152, N. P.; subsequent proceedings (1854), 9 Exch. 651, Ex. Ch.; (1856), 5 H. L. Cas. 707, H. L.

2267. ——.]—Pltfs. in an action for infringement were owners of a patent for "Improvements relating to the extraction of dust from carpets & other materials." The specification stated that it was essential for practical success to drive by power the pump employed for producing a vacuum, & to maintain a vacuum of at least 5 lbs. per square inch in the filter on the side of the filtering medium where the air & dust entered when the apparatus was at work, & that it was only to extractors working with a considerable vacuum that the claims related. The first claim was for the combination of an extracting implement connected with a power-driven suction pump & dust-collecting means interposed between the implement & pump, substantially as & for the purpose specified. The patent had been held by the House of Lords in a previous action to have subject-matter & to be valid. Pltfs. complained of threats to infringe & of actual infringement. The machine alleged to infringe had suction bellows instead of a cylinder pump. Defts. alleged that the patent was invalid on the ground of publication of two specifications of H. & the prior user of machines made under H.'s patent, & they denied infringement on the ground that the patent sued on did not cover suction bellows although worked by motor, & on the ground that the machine complained of did not work at substantially 5 lbs. vacuum:—Held: notwithstanding the prior use of the machine of H. the patent was, on the construction placed on the specification by the House of Lords, valid; but defts. had not infringed. — BRITISH VACUUM CLEANER CO. v. ROBERTSHAW (J.) & SONS, LTD. (1913), 31 R. P. C. 29.

2268. Alleged infringement substantially different.]—G. was the registered owner of a patent for "Improvements in falsegrates & coalsavers for domestic stoves & fireplaces," & the object of the improvements was to bring about more perfect combustion, reduce the consumption of fuel, & render the fuel basket, which was supported by feet across each end & centre of the base, adjustable in size to the required fire capacity. In 1906, by an agreement in writing between pltfs. & G., the latter agreed to sell & assign the patent to the co. but neglected to do so. In 1908 pltfs. commenced an action for infringement against C. & joined W. G. as a deft. & claimed specific performance against him. Deft. C. stated that the articles complained of were made in accordance with R.'s patent & denied infringement:—Held: there was a substantial difference between the grates of pltfs. & those of deft. C.; & there had been no infringement.—SPENNYMOOR FOUNDRY, LTD. v. CATHERALL & GELDARD (1909), 26 R. P. C. 822.

2269. Infringement of part of patent.] — The title of the patent & every part of the specification in which directions were given for putting the apparatus in use, mentioned "metallic circuits" as the means by which the electric current was to be conveyed, but no claim was made in respect of such circuits. At the time of the patent it was not known, but it was subsequently discovered, that the earth might be used to complete the circuit to an extent of almost one-half of the circuit, & that metal might be dispensed with to that extent, & defts. had always used this new discovery:—Held: nevertheless, defts., having been found by the jury to have adopted a part of pltf.'s invention, the patent had been infringed.—ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH CO. v. BRETT (1851), 10 C. B. 838; 20 L. J. C. P. 123; 17 L. T. O. S. 107; 15 Jur. 579; 138 E. R. 331.

Refd. Unwin v. Heath (1855), 16 C. B. 713.

2270. ——.]—The infringement of any part of a patent process is actionable, if that part is of itself new & useful, so as that it might be the subject-matter of a patent & is used by the infringer to effect the object proposed by the patentee.—PATENT BOTTLE ENVELOPE CO. v. SEYMER (1858), 5 C. B. N. S. 164; 28 L. J. C. P. 22; 141 E. R. 65; sub nom. BOTTLE ENVELOPE CO. v. SEYMOUR, 5 Jur. N. S. 174.

Annotations:—Mentd. Brook v. Aston (1859), 28 L. J. Q. B. 175; Horton v. Mabon (1862), 12 C. B. N. S. 437.

2271. Validity of patent—Must be assumed when considering infringement.] — MUNTZ v. FOSTER, No. 2324, post.

2272. —— ——.]—UNWIN v. HEATH, No. 2505, post.

2273. —— May be questioned.]—C., a patentee, brought an action under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, against R., a prior patentee of a similar invention, to restrain R. from issuing threats of legal proceedings against persons selling C.'s patent articles. Shortly after C. had sued out his writ, but before it had been served, R. had commenced an action for infringement against the P. co., who were selling C.'s articles:—Held: (1) the action mentioned in the proviso to sect. 32 as taking a case out of the sect. need not be an action against the person who is suing to restrain the threats, but an action for infringement honestly brought with reasonable diligence against any of the persons who have been threatened would, if duly prosecuted, satisfy the proviso; (2) in considering whether such an action is brought with due diligence, the time of issuing the threats, & not the time when the party bringing the action first knew of the acts which he alleges to be infringements, was the period to be looked to.

(3) In order to obtain an interlocutory injunction pltf. must make out a primâ facie, i.e., a case such that if the evidence remains the same at the hearing it is probable that he will obtain a decree, & unless he makes out such a case an injunction will not be granted on the mere consideration of the balance of convenience & inconvenience.

(4) Semble, in an action under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, to restrain

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.

2269 i. Infringement of part of patent.]—Defts. had manufactured a form of metallic weather strip in Canada very much nearer to that shown & described in an American patent to a date prior to the Canadian patent owned by pltfs. than it was to any of the forms shown & described in pltfs.' patent:—Held: if pltfs.' patent was good, it was good only for the particular forms of weather strips shown & described therein; & upon the facts proved defts. had not infringed.—CHAMBERLIN METAL WEATHER STRIP CO. OF DETROIT v. PEACE & PEACE METAL WEATHER STRIP CO. (1905), 9 Exch. C. R. 399; 25 C. L. T. 144.—CAN.

m. Validity of patent — New discovery not claimed.]—An action in damages for the violation of a patent which does not claim a new discovery subject to a patent, will be dismissed.—BELLEMARE v. DANSEREAU (1886), 18 R. L. O. S. 250.—CAN.

n. —— Inventive faculty not required.]—A fair test of whether a machine is an infringement of a patent is whether a skilled mechanic, without inventive faculty, could have worked out the former, from a knowledge of the patent in question.—HOSIERS, LTD. v. PENMANS, LTD., [1925] Exch. C. R. 93.—CAN.

o. Colourable imitation.]— —— —— may be an infringement of a patent, a patentee from issuing threats, the validity of deft.'s patent may be called in question.

In order that the ct. may be satisfied whether there is or is not an infringement of any legal right, one of the questions must be, if pltf. chooses to raise it, whether deft.'s patent is or is not valid (COTTON, L. J.).—CHALLENDER v. ROYLE (1887), 36 Ch. D. 425 ; 56 L. J. Ch. 995 ; 57 L. T. 734 ; 36 W. R. 357 ; 3 T. L. R. 790 ; 4 R. P. C. 363, C. A.

Annotations :—As to (1) Consd. Combined Weighing & Advertising Co. v. Automatic Weighing Machine Co. (1889), 42 Ch. D. 665 ; Johnson v. Edge, [1892] 2 Ch. 1. Apld. Z. Electric Lamp Manufacturing Co. v. Osram Lamp Works (1911), 28 R. P. C. 479. Refd. Barrett v. Day, Day v. Foster (1890), 43 Ch. D. 435. As to (2) Folld. Haskell Golf Ball Co. v. Hutchison & Main (1904), 21 R. P. C. 497. Refd. Colley v. Hart (1890), 44 Ch. D. 179. As to (3) Apld. Willoughby v. Taylor (1893), 11 R. P. C. 45. As to (4) Apld. Kurtz v. Spence (1887), 36 Ch. D. 770. Refd. Barrett v. Day, Day v. Foster (1890), 43 Ch. D. 435. Mentd. Dowson, Taylor v. Drosophore Co., (1894), 11 R. P. C. 653.

2274. —— Invalidity established—Infringement impossible.]—GAWTHORPE v. MASON, No. 3164, post.

2275. Distinction applicable to novelty—Also applicable to infringement.] — A distinction applicable to the question of novelty is applicable to the question of infringement—GITTINS v. SYMES (1854), Macr. 300.

2276. Fraudulent inducement by agent of patentee—To manufacture infringing article.]—K., a patentee, brought an action for infringement against B. & moved for an injunction. It was proved that deft. had, at the instance of pltf.'s agent, made an article, which, for the purposes of the motion, was admitted to be an infringement :—Held : deft. was not liable as an infringer. —KELLY v. BATCHELAR (1893), 10 R. P. C. 289.

Annotation :—Distd. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Neal, [1899] 1 Ch. 807.

Where master entitled to use of invention by servant.]—See Part III., Sect. 2, sub-sect. 1, ante.

SUB-SECT. 2.—INTENTION OR KNOWLEDGE OF INFRINGER.

See, now, Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 33.

2277. Whether intention immaterial.]—In determining whether deft. has infringed a patent, no question arises as to his intention, but only as to his acts.—STEAD v. ANDERSON (1847), 4 C. B. 806 ; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 151 ; 16 L. J. C. P. 250 ; 9 L. T. O. S. 434 ; 11 Jur. 877 ; 136 E. R. 724.

Annotations :—Mentd. Embrey v. Owen (1851), 6 Exch. 353 ; Plimpton v. Malcolmson (1876), 3 Ch. D. 531 ; Plimpton v. Spiller (1877), 6 Ch. D. 412.

2278. ——.]—ECCLES & BRIERLY v. MCGREGOR, No. 200, ante.

2279. -UNWIN v. HEATH, No. 2505, post.

2280. -WHITEHEAD & POOLE, LTD. v. FARMER (SIR JAMES) & SONS, LTD., No. 2627, post.

2281. Motive for using infringement.]—It seems to me to follow that a person who makes use of the combinations within the limits of that purpose [of inventor] cannot escape from the charge of infringement merely because his motives for using the ingredients are different from those of the inventor (WRIGHT, J.).—MAXIM-NORDENFELT GUNS & AMMUNITION CO. & MAXIM v. ANDERSON (1897), 14 R. P. C. 371 ; 13 T. L. R. 262 ; on appeal, 13 T. L. R. 510, C. A. ; 14 R. P. C. 671, H. L.

2282. Whether knowledge immaterial.]—UNWIN v. HEATH, No. 2505, post.

2283. ——.]—WALTON v. LAVATER, No. 1536, ante.

2284. ——.]—Defts. bought & sold, in the way of trade, articles manufactured by O.'s process under the description of "O.'s patent machine-made plaiting," but they were not aware that O.'s process was an infringement, nor of the existence of W.'s patent :—Held : they were guilty of an infringement of W.'s patent.—WRIGHT v. HITCHCOCK (1870), L. R. 5 Exch. 37 ; sub nom. WIGHT v. HITCHOCK, 39 L. J. Ex. 97.

Annotations :—Apprvd. Von Heydon v. Neustadt (1880), 14 Ch. D. 230. Mentd. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Johnson & Basle Chemical Works Bindschedler (1897), 76 L. T. 434 ; Badische Anilin Und Soda Fabrik v. Hickson, [1906] A. C. 419.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 23, 32A, 33, 34 ; 1919 (c. 80), ss. 9, 10, Sched. ; &, generally, DAMAGES, Vol. XVII., pp. 78 et seq.

2285. Patent infringed in good faith—Without reasonable grounds for knowledge—Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 33.]—(1) The question whether the importation of an article made with an apparatus of which a patented invention forms part is an infringement of the patent must be determined by reference to the nature of the invention & the extent to which its employment played a part in the production of the imported article.

Pltf. was the patentee in this country of what, on the face of the specification, appeared to be a small mechanical detail in electrolytic cells. The patent for the cells themselves had expired, & the process was well known by which the cells were used in an apparatus to manufacture caustic potash. Defts. imported caustic potash manufactured by a German co. with an apparatus in which the cells used embodied the patented invention. No evidence was put in by pltf. as to the nature or effect of the invention, or to show that the use of it was necessary to render the working of the process practicable or profitable :—Held : the importation of the caustic potash was not an infringement of pltf.'s patent.

(2) When a patent has been infringed by a person acting in good faith & without having any reasonable ground for suspecting the existence of the patent, or any information that of itself offered him the means of making himself aware of the existence of the patent, he is entitled to the protection afforded by above sect., in respect of any claim for damages for infringement.—WILDERMAN v. BERK (F. W.) & CO., [1925] Ch. 116 ; 94 L. J. Ch. 136 ; 132 L. T. 534 ; 42 R. P. C. 79 ; 41 T. L. R. 50.

Sale with knowledge of user by public in particular way.]—See Sub-sect. 6, A., post.

although it does not come precisely within the description in the specification.—STOKES v. DUTHIE & CO. (1895), 14 N. Z. L. R. 404.—N.Z.

p. Mere external resemblance in mechanism—Insufficient.] — A fundamental point in patent law is that mere external resemblance in mechanism does not of itself constitute infringement, because all machines are made for the most part of mechanical elements which are well known, & it is the construction of these elements into a machine or part of a machine directed to a definite use that constitute the invention.—PRESTON DAVIES v. BLACK (1894), 11 R. P. C. 299, 574.—SCOT.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2.

2282 i. Whether knowledge immaterial.]—Where a patent was taken out in V. for an American Windmill, with improvements, & K. purchased in N. S. W. & used in V. an American Windmill with those improvements—Held : K.'s user was an infringement of the patentee's rights, although there was no evidence that he knew of the patent or of the improvements.—M'LEAN v. KETTLE (1883), 9 V. L. R. 145.—AUS.

2282 ii. ——.]—If a patent consists in a "combination," a person who, in bad faith, knowing it is an infringement to a patent, makes a part of such "combination," is liable in damages, & becomes joint infringer with the other for whom this work has been executed. —LAROCHELLE v. GAUTHIER (1898), Q. R. 14 S. C. 87.—CAN.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sect. 3, A. & B.; sub-sect. 4.]

SUB-SECT. 3.—MANUFACTURE.

A. In General.

2286. Supply of component part—To agent completing patented article.]—(1) A patent consisted of the application of cards or strips of leather covered with wire to rollers at "wide distances." A person who contracted to clothe rollers & supplied to a "nailer" cards of such width that when applied to the rollers they must of necessity leave wide spaces, & who himself paid the nailer, was held to have infringed the patent, though he alleged that his business was that of a cardmaker only, & did not include the nailer's work. Semble: the conclusion would have been the other way if he had merely supplied the cards without making the nailer his agent.

Particulars of breach of a patent alleged divers sales between certain dates & particularly to two persons. An answer of deft. admitted a sale to H., a third person. Evidence of the transactions with H. was admitted.—SYKES v. HOWARTH (1879), 12 Ch. D. 826; 48 L. J. Ch. 769; 41 L. T. 79; 28 W. R. 215.

Annotations:—As to (1) Distd. Innes v. Short & Beal (1898), 14 T. L. R. 492; Akt. Für Autogene Aluminium Schweissung v. London Aluminium Co., [1919] 2 Ch. 67. Refd. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley, [1904] 1 Ch. 612.

2287. —— To person other than agent for completion.]—SYKES v. HOWARTH, No. 2286, ante.

2288. —— To licencee of patentee.] — The owners of a patent for "Improvements in rubber tyres & metal rims or felloes of wheels for cycles & other light vehicles," which had been construed by the House of Lords as being for the application to a wheel of a saddle shape tyre held in position by two inextensible wires, granted a licence to the G. co. to manufacture tyres under the licence in accordance with a deposited tyre. By agreement C. sold to the G. co. canvas strips to which the G. co. affixed the wires, which were in accordance with those in the deposited tyre, & resold the strips & wires to C., who then added the outer rubber & sold the tyre:—Held: C. had not infringed.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. CRESSWELL, CHESHIRE RUBBER CO., NORTH CHESHIRE RUBBER CO., LTD. & DONALD (1901), 18 R. P. C. 473.

Manufacture for sale.]—See Nos. 2324, 2325, post.

B. Repair.

2289. Amounting to reconstruction.]—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. NEAL, No. 2626, post.

2290. Renewing essential part.]—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. NELSON, [1887] W. N. 193.

2291. ——.]—In 1891 a patent was granted to W. for "Improvements in rubber tyres & metal rims or felloes of wheels for cycles & other light vehicles." This patent became vested in pltfs., who brought an action for infringement against defts. The infringement complained of consisted in the repair of four old Dunlop tyres; in one case the old wires only were retained; in the others the old canvas & the old wires were kept, but the tyres were provided with new canvas linings, which completely covered the inside of the tyres, surrounded the wire, & were sewn all round the rim: —Held: what defts. had done was an infringement of pltfs.' patent.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD., & PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. EXCELSIOR TYRE, CEMENT & RUBBER CO. & BARKER (1901), 18 R. P. C. 209.

2292. ——.]—The owners of the W. patent, having brought an action for infringement, defts.' case as to part of the alleged infringements was that the tyres complained of had been in substance made for a licencee, & further, that there had been such waiver or delay on pltfs.' part as to disentitle them to relief, & also that, owing to the circumstances, there was no possibility of further infringement, & therefore that an injunction should not be granted; &, as to the other alleged infringements, that what had been done were legitimate repairs:—Held: on the first part of the case, defts. failed on the facts; &, on the second part of the case, substantially new articles were made by defts., & whether an injunction would have been granted or not on the first part of the case alone, pltfs. were entitled to an injunction restraining infringement of the patent.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. HOLBORN TYRE CO., LTD. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 222.

SUB-SECT. 4.—USER.

2293. What amounts to user—Experimental user—Bona fides.]—(1) A patentee can sustain an action for an injunction to restrain a threatened infringement of his patent, even if no actual infringement has taken place.

(2) When articles which are the subject of a patent are made without a licence from the patentee simply for the purpose of bonâ fide experiments, those who so make them are not necessarily liable to an action, but when they are made & used for profit, or with the object of obtaining profit even to a limited extent, such making & using constitute an infringement of the patentee's rights, & will be restrained by injunction.—FREARSON v. LOE (1878), 9 Ch. D. 48; 27 W. R. 183.

Annotation:—Refd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Simon Collier (1909), 26 R. P. C. 534.

2294. —— —— For instruction of pupils.]—User of a pirated article for the purpose of experiment & instruction is user for advantage, & an infringement of the patent.

Deft., an English electrician, purchased & imported from foreign manufacturers apparatus which if made here would have infringed pltfs.' patent. Deft. maintained that he had only purchased the apparatus for examination & experiment by himself & his pupils, as certain royalty-paid instruments in his possession were too expensive to be taken to pieces; & he insisted that he had never sold, & had never otherwise used the apparatus:—Held: such user of the pirated apparatus by deft. was a user for advantage & an infringement of the patent.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. SHARPLES (1885), 29 Ch. D. 164; 54 L. J. Ch. 633; 52 L. T. 384; 33 W. R. 444; 1 T. L. R. 259; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 232; 2 R. P. C. 28.

Annotation:—Dbtd. British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 3.—A.

q. Manufacture with alleged improvement.]—GRIP PRINTING & PUB-) (1885),

r. Giving licence to manufacture infringing article.] — A person who gives another a licence to make an article which is an infringement of a patent is not himself an infringer.—MONTGOMERIE v. PATTERSON (1894), 11 R. P. C. 221, 633.—SCOT.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 4.

t. General rule.]—An action will lie against any person purchasing & using articles made in derogation of the patent, no matter where they came from.—TORONTO AUER LIGHT CO. v. COLLING (1898), 31 O. R. 18.—CAN.

a. User in breach of condition in licence.]—HATTON v. COPELAND-CHAT-

2295. —— —— Abandoned with no intention to resume.]—In Aug. 1882, A. set up in B.'s factory four machines of his own make to be taken & paid for if they worked to B.'s satisfaction. They were used till Apr. 1883, when B., being dissatisfied with them, took them down, laid them in his yard, called on A. to take them away, & never used them again. A. did not take them away till Jan. 1885. In Mar. 1887, P., who had obtained a judgment against A. that A.'s machines were an infringement of a patent belonging to him, claimed royalties from B. B. replied that P. could satisfy himself by calling at B.'s mill that B. was using neither P.'s nor A.'s machines, & had no intention of so doing. Further correspondence took place, & B. denied all liability, alleging that he had not bought the machines from A., who had set them up on trial, & as they did not work well had to take them down, & that B. had not used & was not using any machine which infringed P.'s patent :—Held : though B. had infringed the patent, it was not to be inferred from the circumstances that he had any intention to infringe it again, & P. if he had made such inquiry as he ought would have discovered this ; there was, therefore, no case for an injunction.—PROCTOR v. BAYLEY (1889), 42 Ch. D. 390 ; 59 L. J. Ch. 12 ; 61 L. T. 752 ; 38 W. R. 100 ; 6 R. P. C. 538. C. A.

Annotations :—Distd. Werner Motors v. Gamage, [1904] 1 Ch. 264. Refd. Barrett v. Day, Day v. Foster (1890), 43 Ch. D. 435 ; Burberrys v. Watkinson (1906), 23 R. P. C. 141.

2296. —— User for profit.]—FREARSON v. LOE, No. 2293, ante.

2297. —— Exhibition of articles—No intention of sale.]—Pltfs. were the registered owners of letters patent No. 16783 of 1890, granted to B. for "Improvements in tyres or rims for cycles or other vehicles." The validity of these letters patent had been established in a previous action, & was not in dispute in either of these actions, in both of which the facts & matters in issue were identical. Defts. were manufacturers of motor cars, & at the Stanley Cycle Show exhibited a number of motor cars. These motor cars had fitted to & fully inflated, upon their wheels, tyres manufactured abroad in accordance with the specification of the letters patent sued upon & imported by defts. into this country. The motor cars themselves were on exhibition for sale, but defts. contended, & it appeared upon the evidence to be the fact that there was no intention of selling the tyres or offering them for sale together with the cars, but that if a car was sold the imported tyres would have been taken off & other tyres manufactured by licencees of pltfs. under the letters patent sued upon placed upon the car wheels prior to delivery to a purchaser. On this ground defts. contended that there was no infringement, there being no sale or offer for sale or user within the meaning of the words of the grant of the letters patent :—Held : even although defts. had not any intention of selling the tyres complained of, there had been such a user of the invention as to amount to an infringement, & pltfs. were entitled to an injunction.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. & PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., [illegible] v. BRITISH & COLONIAL MOTOR CAR CO., [illegible], SAME v. DE BREYNE (1901), 18 R. P. C. 313.

2298. —— Intention of user—Action against master of ship.]—An action was brought against the master of a ship to restrain him from using pumps which were an infringement of pltf.'s letters patent. He denied having used any pumps which were an infringement of the patent, & did not suggest that the owners ought to be parties. It was shown that the ship was fitted up exclusively with pumps which were an infringement of the letters patent, but had been so fitted up before deft., who was not a part owner, had taken command of her ; he had nothing to do with putting them on board, & they had never been worked in British waters. The Vice-Chancellor granted an injunction to restrain the master from using the patented invention :—Held : the injunction was rightly granted, on the ground that deft., being in command of a ship exclusively fitted up with pumps which were an infringement of the letters patent, was intending to use the patented invention.—ADAIR v. YOUNG (1879), 12 Ch. D. 13 ; 41 L. T. 361 ; 28 W. R. 85, C. A.

Annotations :—Apld. Upmann v. Forester (1883), 24 Ch. D. 231. Refd. Procter v. Bayley (1889), 42 Ch. D. 390 ; Belvedere Fish Guano Co. v. Rainham Chemical Works, Feldman & Partridge, Ind, Coope v. Same, [1920] 2 K. B. 487.

2299. —— Transhipment & re-exportation.]—Where the subject of patent in England is made in a foreign country & applied to the purpose for which it was made & under these circumstances is sent to this country for transmission to another foreign country :—Held : this was sufficient user of the patent in England to constitute an infringement.—BETTS v. NEILSON, BETTS v. DE VITRE (1868), 3 Ch. App. 429 ; 37 L. J. Ch. 321, 325 ; 18 L. T. 159, 165 ; 32 J. P. 547 ; 16 W. R. 524, 529, L. C. ; affd. sub nom. NEILSON v. BETTS (1871), L. R. 5 H. L. 1, H. L.

Annotations :—Consd. Elmslie v. Boursier (1869), L. R. 9 Eq. 217 ; Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones (1882), 8 App. Cas. 5 ; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Sterling Accessories, Same v. Crowther & Osborn, [1924] 2 Ch. 33. Refd. Plimpton v. Malcolmson (1876), 3 Ch. D. 531 ; Plimpton v. Spiller (1877), 6 Ch. D. 412 ; Von Heyden v. Neustadt (1880), 50 L. J. Ch. 126 ; Watson v. Holliday (1882), 20 Ch. D. 780 ; United Telephone Co. v. London & Globe Telephone & Maintenance Co. (1884), 51 L. T. 187 ; United Horseshoe & Nail Co. v. Stewart (1888), 13 App. Cas. 401 ; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569 ; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Johnson & Basle Chemical Works, Bindschedler, [1897] 2 Ch. 322 ; Saccharin Corpn. v. Chemicals & Drugs Co., [1900] 2 Ch. 556 ; British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122 ; Belvedere Fish Guano Co. v. Rainham Chemical Works, Feldman & Partridge, Ind, Coope v. Same, [1920] 2 K. B. 487. Mentd. Newman v. Pinto (1887), 57 L. T. 31.

2300. —— —— By custom house agents.]—Applts. were the assignees of a patent in the United Kingdom for making certain explosives less dangerous to handle & transport. Resps. acted as custom-house agents for a foreign firm who manufactured the patented article abroad & sent it to England for transshipment & re-exportation :—Held : the conduct of resps. was not an exercise or user of the invention for which an action would lie against them for an infringement of the patent.—NOBEL'S EXPLOSIVES CO., LTD. v. JONES, SCOTT & CO. (1882), 8 App. Cas. 5 ; 52 L. J. Ch. 339 ; 48 L. T. 490 ; 31 W. R. 388, H. L.

Annotations :—Consd. United Telephone Co. v. London & Globe Telephone & Maintenance Co. (1884), 26 Ch. D. 766. Refd. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Basle Chemical Works Bindschedler, [1898] A. C. 200.

TERSON Co. (1906), 37 S. C. R. 651.—CAN.

b. User by builder on foreign ship—Reversion of apparent title to ship to foreign power on completion.]—Machines were purchased by the French Republic in New York, & shipped to itself at Fort William, & the installation was directed & supervised by the Republic's naval officers. The co. only furnished the labour & the material to install it, practically the same as would be required under pltf.'s first expired patent, & were never the owners of the apparatus, which at all time remained the property of the Republic of France :—Semble : in such a case, the act of the builder in so installing the machine was not an infringement of the patent within Patent Act.—MARCONI WIRELESS TELEGRAPH TELEGRAPH CO. OF CANADA, LTD. v. CANADIAN CAR & FOUNDRY CO., LTD. (1919), 19 Exch. C. R. 311 ; 50 D. L. R. 702.—CAN.

c. Use contrary to condition of sale—Sale subject to rights of patentee.]—

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sects.

2301. —— Transport in England—For sale in France.]—BRITISH MOTOR SYNDICATE, LTD. v. TAYLOR & SON, LTD., No. 3054, post.

2302. —— User outside United Kingdom.]—Pltf. obtained a patent for "improvements in apparatus employed in laying down submarine electric telegraph wires" & by his specification & drawing annexed, gave a full description of the manner in which it was to be performed. It was a combination of a wire or cable round a cone of supports placed cylindrically outside the coil, & then the use of rings, in combination with these, completed that for which he obtained the letters patent:—Held: what was done at Malta by defts. in respect of it was no infringement, &, as what they did in England was nothing more than coiling the rope round the cylinder & preventing it from slipping by means of a cylinder placed outside, there was no evidence of any infringement by defts. of pltf.'s patent; they did not make, vend, exercise or use the invention.—NEWALL v. ELLIOTT & GLASS (1864), 4 New Rep. 429; 10 L. T. 792; 10 Jur. N. S. 954; 13 W. R. 11.

Annotation:—Consd. Siddell v. Vickers (1888), 39 Ch. D. 92.

2303. —— User for non-commercial purpose.]—If another person uses the same process, & obtains a product, not for the purposes of commercial profit, but for the purpose solely of deodorising & purifying the sewage water, he is not guilty of an infringement of the patent.—HIGGS v. GOODWIN (1858), E. B. & E. 529; 27 L. J. Q. B. 421; 31 L. T. O. S. 196; 5 Jur. N. S. 97; 120 E. R. 606.

Annotation:—Refd. Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1862), 2 B. & S. 222.

2304. —— Articles capable of misuser amounting to infringement.]—The owner of a patent for a "support & adjuster for soft collars," having brought an action for infringement, deft. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid (inter alia) for want of subject-matter & by reason of prior user. The patentee in his specification & claims stated that his support comprised a wire of substantially U-shape. Deft.'s support was of a W or M shape, & was intended to be affixed to the stud of the shirt. It was contended for pltf. that both pltf.'s & defts.' supports had two spring arms connected by a stretcher, & that deft.'s support had the resiliency which was a feature of pltf.'s support:—Held: without deciding whether there was subject-matter in the patented invention deft.'s article would be taken to be intended to be used on the stud, &, if so used, it failed to fulfil the function on which pltf. mainly relied in his specification; the fact that it might be mis-used by some people ought not to be taken into account in determining the question of infringement.—NOAKES v. MEHAREY (1915), 32 R. P. C. 307.

2305. —— Mere possession—Reserve for emergency.]—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. CLIFTON RUBBER CO., LTD. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 393.

2306. —— —— Essential part detached.]—Pltfs. sued defts. in respect of an alleged infringement of their patent granted for certain mechanism for "improvements in machines for trimming & channelling the soles of boots & shoes." The mechanism was adapted for use in connection with, & as part of, a complex machine, but was only designed to be brought into operation for a particular purpose, & need not be brought into operation at all unless wanted, & various essential parts of the mechanism could be detached without impairing the efficiency of the machine for purposes other than that for which it was designed. Defts. purchased two machines containing the alleged infringing mechanism, but they never used the particular mechanism, the essential parts of which had been actually detached from the rest of the machines while in the defts.' possession:—Held: in the circumstances there had been no infringement by defts. of pltfs.' patent.—BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. SIMON COLLIER, LTD. (1910), 26 T. L. R. 587; 27 R. P. C. 567, H. L.

2307. —— —— Machines stored in warehouse.]—Defts., a telephone co., contracted with an American agent for the purchase of a number of telephones. These machines, known as Blake's transmitters, having been accordingly made in America, were sent to this country, & came into the possession of defts., who kept them unused in a warehouse. The Blake transmitters were protected by English & American patents. Pltfs., another telephone co., having in the meantime obtained an assignment of Blake's English patent, brought an action for infringement, claiming an injunction & delivery up of the machines. Defts. dismantled the machines by taking out the Blake elements, & kept the separate parts stored in a warehouse:—Held: (1) the possession of the machines by defts. was an infringement of pltfs.' patent rights; injunction granted.

(2) The ct. refused to order the destruction or the delivery up of the infringing machines.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. LONDON & GLOBE TELEPHONE & MAINTENANCE CO. (1884), 26 Ch. D. 766; 53 L. J. Ch. 1158; 51 L. T. 187; 32 W. R. 870; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 229; 1 R. P. C. 117.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122; Pessers, Moody, Wraith & Gurr v. Newell (1914), 31 R. P. C. 511.

2308. —— —— No intention to use before expiry of patent.]—In 1900 a patent was granted for "An improved game of skill & apparatus for playing the same." In an action for infringement of the patent it was proved that defts. were in possession of the patented apparatus, but they stated that they had bought it with the intention of keeping it, unused, until after the expiration of the patent, & that they had not used it beyond merely trying it:—Held: the defts. had not used the patented article during the term of the patent, & there was no infringement.—PESSERS, MOODY, WRAITH & GURR, LTD. v. NEWELL & CO. (1914), 31 R. P. C. 511.

2309. —— User for different purpose.]—The patent being for improvements in the making of felt applicable for the purpose of shipping or roofing:—Held: defts. should be restrained from making & selling the article in such a state that it might be applied by others to those purposes though they ought not to be restrained from applying it themselves to a different purpose.—ABBOTT v. WILLIAMS (1837), 2 Carp. Pat. Cas. 381, 383.

SUB-SECT. 5.—IMPORTATION.

2310. Importation.]—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. SHARPLES, No. 2294, ante.

). L. T. 846; 37

d. Use for different purpose.]—FLETCHER v. GLASGOW GAS COMRS. (1887), 4 R. P. C. 386.—SCOT.

e. ——.]—E. S. & A. ROBINSON, LTD. v. SMITH & RITCHIE (1913), 30 R. P. C. 63.—SCOT.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 5.

2310 i. Importation.]—SACCHARIN CORPN. v. ROSS BROTHERS (1905), 22 R. P. C. 247.—SCOT.

2311. —— & sale.]—The importation & sale in England of articles manufactured abroad according to the specification of an English patent is an infringement.—ELMSLIE v. BOURSIER (1869), L. R. 9 Eq. 217; 39 L. J. Ch. 328; 18 W. R. 665.

Annotations:—Apprvd. Von Heyden v. Neustadt (1880), 14 Ch. D. 230. Apld. Saccharin Corpn. v. Anglo-Continental Chemical Works, [1901] 1 Ch. 414. Refd. Wright v. Hitchcock (1870), L. R. 5 Exch. 37; Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, Scott (1881), 17 Ch. D. 721; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Johnson & Basle Chemical Works, Bindschedler, [1897] 2 Ch. 322; Saccharin Corpn. v. Reitmeyer, [1900] 2 Ch. 659; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Hickson, [1906] A. C. 419.

2312. —— ——.]—Where a patent has been granted in England for a new process for producing more cheaply a chemical product which was previously known, the importation & sale in England of this substance made abroad according to the patented process is an infringement of the patent.—VON HEYDEN v. NEUSTADT (1880), 14 Ch. D. 230; 50 L. J. Ch. 126; 42 L. T. 300; 28 W. R. 496, C. A.

Annotations:—Apld. Saccharin Corpn. v. Anglo-Continental Chemical Works, [1901] 1 Ch. 414. Refd. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Johnson & Basle Chemical Works, Bindschedler, [1897] 2 Ch. 322; British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1900] 1 Ch. 577; Saccharin Corpn. v. Reitmeyer, [1900] 2 Ch. 659; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Hickson, [1906] A. C. 419. Mentd. Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co. (1887), 57 L. T. 142; British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Johnson (1925), 42 R. P. C. 243; Mergenthaler Linotype Co. v. Intertype Co. (1926), 42 T. L. R. 682.

2313. —— ——.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. HOPKINSON (1904), 21 R. P. C. 272.

2314. —— ——.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. LOCKWOOD (1906), 23 R. P. C. 274.

2315. —— —— Substance manufactured by patented process—Chemically changed by subsequent operations.]—(1) Deft. imported into & sold in this country an article made abroad. A material made by a process similar to that protected by pltf.'s patent was used in the manufacture. The nature of this material was chemically changed by subsequent operations in the course of the manufacture, & the imported article was the material after such chemical change:—Held: defts. were indirectly depriving the patentees of the benefit of their invention, they had infringed the patent, & they must be restrained from so doing.

(2) In Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 31, the words "any subsequent action" mean an action commenced after the certificate was granted.—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. ANGLO-CONTINENTAL CHEMICAL WORKS, [1901] 1 Ch. 414; 70 L. J. Ch. 194; 48 W. R. 444; 44 Sol. Jo. 392.

to (1) Refd. Saccharin Corpn. v. Reitmeyer, 2 Ch. 659.

—— No knowledge that article subject of patent.]—See No. 1536, ante.

2316. —— Article patented in England & America by same patentee—Importation of article manufactured under American patent.]—In 1892 a patent was granted to B., an American, for improvements in "rubber stamps" & a patent for a similar invention was granted to him in America. L. sold certain rubber stamps which he imported from America, where he obtained them from H. These stamps bore, by arrangement with B. & H. the following: "Licensed Buck's Patent," "Made in America," "Patented in U.S.," & "Patented in England." The owners of B.'s English patent brought an action against L. to restrain him from infringing their patents & from selling stamps inscribed "Buck's Patent," or with any other words leading to the belief that the stamps were made under their patent, & they claimed an account of profits:—Held: deft.'s stamps were not infringements, & on deft. undertaking in future to use words showing that the American patent was alone referred to, no injunction would be awarded, no case of passing-off had been made out by pltfs., but pltfs. were entitled to damages for the use by deft. in the past of the words complained of, which damages were assessed by the judge at 40*s.*—PNEUMATIC RUBBER STAMP CO., LTD. v. LINDNER (1898), 15 R. P. C. 525.

2317. What amounts to importation—Sale & delivery abroad—Goods posted by direction of customer—Post office agent of buyer.]—(1) A foreign manufacturer, who manufactures abroad, & sends by post at their request to a firm in England articles which infringe an English patent, does not himself infringe the patent, & is not liable to an injunction restraining infringement in an action by the owner of the English Patent.

(2) The ct. has no jurisdiction to restrain a foreigner abroad as regards transactions carried on by him in his own country.—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. BASLE CHEMICAL WORKS, BINDSCHEDLER, [1898] A. C. 200; 67 L. J. Ch. 141; 77 L. T. 573; 46 W. R. 255; 14 T. L. R. 82, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Folld. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Hickson, [1906] A. C. 419. Refd. Saccharin Corpn. v. Reitmeyer, [1900] 2 Ch. 659; British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Chemische Fabrik Vormals Sandoz (1903), 88 L. T. 490. Generally, Mentd. Wimble v. Rosenberg, [1913] 3 K. B. 743; Underwood v. Burgh Castle Brick & Cement Syndicate, [1922] 1 K. B. 343.

2318. —— —— Contract made in England—Delivery at foreign port.]—The principle laid down in Elmslie v. Boursier, No. 2311, ante, & Von Heyden v. Neustadt, No. 2312, ante, that the importation into and sale in England of an article manufactured abroad according to a process protected by an English patent is an infringement of the patent, does not apply to a case where deft. in an action for infringement has as commission agent entered into an agreement for delivery of the article at a foreign port, but has not himself either imported into or sold in England the infringing article. Such deft. will not be deemed to have "exercised" the invention.—SACCHARIN CORPN. v. REITMEYER & CO., [1900] 2 Ch. 659; 69 L. J. Ch. 761; 83 L. T. 397; 49 W. R. 199; 16 T. L. R. 494.

Annotation:—Folld. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Hickson, [1905] 2 Ch. 495.

2319. —— —— —— Delivery to purchaser's order in Switzerland.] — Resp. contracted in England to sell to a purchaser in England goods manufactured abroad according to an invention protected by applts.' English patent, & pursuant to the contract completed the sale by delivery of the goods to the purchaser's order in Switzerland. The purchaser afterwards imported the goods into England:—Held: there had been no infringement of applt.'s patent by resp.—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. HICKSON, [1906] A. C. 419; 75 L. J. Ch. 621; 95 L. T. 68; 22 T. L. R. 641; 23 R. P. C. 149, H. L.

2320. —— Article ordered & received in England.]—GIBSON v. BRAND, No. 2330, post.

2321. —— Agent passing article through custom house.]—NOBEL'S EXPLOSIVES CO., LTD. v. JONES, SCOTT & CO., No. 2300, ante.

2322. Importation of article made by apparatus including patent—Nature of invention—Extent of employment in production.] — WILDERMAN v. BERK (F. W.) & CO., No. 2285, ante.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sect. 6, A. & B.; sub-sect. 7, A.]

SUB-SECT. 6.—SALE.

A. In General.

2323. Exposure for sale.]—In a declaration for infringing a patent which granted that pltf., & no others, should "make, use, exercise, & vend" his invention, & forbade all persons to "make, use, or put in practice" the same, or to counterfeit or imitate it, without pltf.'s license, pltf. alleged that deft. without his license exposed to sale articles intended to imitate, & which did imitate, his invention:—Held: the count was bad, as not stating anything which was necessarily an infringement of the patent.—MINTER v. WILLIAMS (1835), 4 Ad. & El. 251; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 135; 1 Har. & W. 585; 5 Nev. & M. K. B. 647; 5 L. J. K. B. 60; 111 E. R. 781.

Annotations:—Consd. Walton v. Lavator (1860), 8 C. B. N. S. 162. Expld. British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122. Refd. Caldwell v. Vanvlissengen, Caldwell v. Verbeck, Caldwell v. Rolfe (1851), 9 Hare, 415; Adair v. Young (1879), 12 Ch. D. 13; United Telephone Co. v. London & Globe Telephone & Maintenance Co. (1884), 26 Ch. D. 766.

2324. Manufacture for sale.]—MUNTZ v. FOSTER (1844), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 96.

Annotation:—Refd. Hills v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288.

2325. —— No actual sale.]—The manufacture of a patent article for sale & offering it for sale, although no sale is actually effected, is a user of the invention.—OXLEY v. HOLDEN (1860), 8 C. B. N. S. 666; 30 L. J. C. P. 68; 2 L. T. 464; 8 W. R. 626; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 350; 141 E. R. 1327.

Annotations:—Consd. British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122. Refd. Lister v. Norton (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 148; Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416.

2326. Sale of article manufactured by patented process.]—WRIGHT v. HITCHCOCK, No. 2284, ante.

2327. SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. JONES (1906), 23 R. P. C. 275.

2328. SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. SCOTT (1906), 23 R. P. C. 276.

2329. ——.]—The owners of letters patent for "improvements in self-supporting electrical coils" commenced an action for infringement by manufacture & sale by deft. of self-supporting electrical coils & for damages & delivery up. The validity of the patent was not in issue. Deft. denied infringement:—Held: deft. had manufactured & sold coils which were infringements of the patent.—WESTERN ELECTRIC CO., LTD. v. FOOT (1926), 43 R. P. C. 106.

2330. —— Manufactured by third party.]—In case, for infringing a patent for a new & improved process or manufacture of silk, the infringement alleged in the declaration was that deft. had, directly & indirectly, made, used, & put in practice the said invention, & counterfeited the same:—Held: this allegation was supported by proof that deft. had ordered silk to be manufactured by certain parties by pltfs.' process, & had afterwards received & sold the same.—GIBSON v. BRAND (1842), 4 Man. & G. 179; 4 Scott, N. R. 844; 11 L. J. C. P. 177; 134 E. R. 74.

2331. —— Manufacture abroad.]—WALTON v. LAVATER, No. 1536, ante.

2332. Sale with knowledge of user by public in particular way—Sale of single article.]—Selling zinc powder to the public & inviting them to use it in such a way as to infringe pltfs.' patent for using zinc powder in boilers so as to prevent corrosion & incrustation, is an infringement of pltfs.' patent.—INNES v. SHORT & BEAL (1898), 15 R. P. C. 449; 14 T. L. R. 492.

Annotations:—Distd. Apollinaris Co. v. Duckworth (1906), 22 T. L. R. 638. Refd. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley, [1904] 1 Ch. 164; Adhesive Dry Mounting Co. v. Trapp (1910), 27 R. P. C. 341.

2333. —— Sale of combination of articles.]—The subject-matter of a patent was the combination of well-known articles of commerce to preserve textile materials. A bill by the patentee charged A. with selling to B. the requisite articles for the purpose of infringing the patent under a contract by which A. guaranteed B. against litigation in respect of the patent:—Held: the facts alleged did not amount to infringement by A.—TOWNSEND v. HAWORTH (1875), 12 Ch. D. 831, n.; 48 L. J. Ch. 770, n., C. A.

Annotations:—Distd. Innes v. Short & Beal (1898), 14 T. L. R. 492. Apld. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley, [1904] 1 Ch. 612. Refd. Sykes v. Howarth (1879), 12 Ch. D. 826; Adhesive Dry Mounting Co. v. Trapp (1910), 27 R. P. C. 341.

2334. —— ——.]—SYKES v. HOWARTH, No. 2286, ante.

2335. —— ——.]—The sale of a component part of a combination, the subject of a patent, the vendor knowing that the purchaser intends to use the article for the purpose of infringing the patent, is not an infringement by the vendor.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. MOSELEY (DAVID) & SONS, LTD., [1904] 1 Ch. 612; 73 L. J. Ch. 417; 91 L. T. 40; 52 W. R. 454; 20 T. L. R. 314; 48 Sol. Jo. 311, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Hickson, [1905] 2 Ch. 495; Sirdar Rubber Co. v. Wallington, Weston, [1905] 1 Ch. 451.

2336. Sale in breach of limited licence—Purchaser aware of terms of licence.]—Pltfs. sold their goods under a limited licence as to the sale & use of them. The terms of this licence were known to deft., who disregarded it. Deft. contended that he was not bound by the limited licence on the ground that such conditions were only binding on persons who bought from pltfs. direct. He had bought from dealers, & there was no privity between himself & pltfs. Breach of the condition was not, he contended, an infringement of any patent right but was purely contractual in its nature, & that an injunction was not the proper remedy:—Held: where a patented article was sold under a limited licence, if the terms of the licence were known to the person purchasing, whether the purchaser bought direct from the patentee or from a third party, the breach of the conditions imposed by the limited licence constituted an infringement of the patent rights in the article, & such a case was one where an injunction might be granted.—INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. BROGDEN (1899), 16 R. P. C. 179.

Annotations:—Refd. British Mutoscope & Biograph Co. v. Homer, [1901] 1 Ch. 671; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Isler, [1906] 1 Ch. 605; National Phonograph Co. of Australia v. Menck, [1911] A. C. 336.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 6.—A.

f. Manufacture before patent — At request of patentee—Sale after patent issued—Sale without authority.]—It is no defence to an action for infringement of a patent granted to pltf., that before the patent was obtained pltf. had employed deft. to manufacture a certain number of the articles, if deft., after he had notice of the patent, sold the articles without the authority of pltf.—CLARK v. GRIFFITHS (1885), 24 N. B. R. 567.—CAN.

g. —— Actual sale — Continuation after patent issued.]—Patent Act, s. 46, does not authorise one who has, with the full consent of the patentee, manufactured & sold a patented article for less than a year before the issue of the patent, to continue the manufacture after the issue thereof, but merely permits him to use & sell the articles manufactured by him prior thereto.—FOWELL v. CHOWN (1 25 O. R. 71.—CAN.

h. —— —— ——.]—VICTOR SPORTING GOODS CO. v. HAROLD A. WILSON CO. (1904), 24 C. L. T. 211;

2337. —— Necessity for knowledge of limitation.]—If a patentee sells the patented article & the purchaser uses it he does not infringe, because the law implies a licence by the patentee to the purchaser to sell or deal with the article as he pleases, unless at the time of the purchase the patentee imposed a condition. If a purchaser buys from a licencee to whose licence the patentee has attached conditions, nothing turns, so far as licence as distinguished from estoppel is concerned, on the question whether the purchaser knew of the conditions or not. It a person innocently uses a patented invention, not knowing that there is a patent, he is none the less an infringer; & if he buys from a licencee, not knowing that there are limits to the licence, he is equally an infringer. In this case, however, the patentee may be estopped from suing in certain circumstances, as, for instance, if he has acted in such a way as to lead the purchaser to suppose that the licence is not limited.—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. ISLER, [1906] 1 Ch. 605; 75 L. J. Ch. 411; 94 L. T. 367; 22 T. L. R. 326; affd., [1906] 2 Ch. 443, C. A.

—— Sale below minimum price.]—See Sub-sect. 6, B., post.

2338. Patent for application of article to particular purpose—Sale for such user.]—ABBOTT v. WILLIAMS, No. 2309, ante.

2339. Sale of similar articles as made under patent.]—CHUB v. PRIEST (1843), 1 L. T. O. S. 142.

2340. Loan distinguished from sale.]—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. HENRY (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 228.

Importation & sale.]—See Sub-sect. 5, ante.

User without intention of sale.]—See No. 2297, ante.

B. Sale Below Minimum Price.

2341. Licence limited by minimum price—Goods damaged by fire—Compensation recovered from insurance.]—The owners of a patent relating to improvements in the manufacture of sound records brought an action for infringement of the patent, complaining of sales of records below minimum prices which were fixed under licence. At the trial such sales were admitted as well as the fact that deft. knew of the restrictions, but deft. raised two defences, first that there had been a custom of selling the goods in the north of England below the minimum prices, & that pltfs. had in several cases not interfered; & secondly, that the sales complained of were of goods damaged in a fire at deft.'s premises, & that there was a custom to sell damaged goods at any price, & further that, deft. had recovered a sum from an insurance co. in respect of these goods, & with such sum & the purchase price, had received at least the same amount as if the goods had been sold at the minimum prices:—Held: neither of the alleged customs had been proved, & the last-mentioned defence had not on the facts been proved, &, if it had been, it would not have been a good defence. [illegible]MBIA GRAPHOPHONE CO. v. VANNER (1916), [illegible]. P. C. 104.

2342. —— Goods sold second-hand.]—The owners of letters patent relating to gramophone records brought an action for infringement against a person who held a pedlar's licence, & they applied for an interlocutory injunction restraining him from infringing by selling "Regal" records below authorised prices. Each of such records bears a notice that it must not be sold below the price fixed by the patentee, but the fixed price did not appear on the record. Deft., who was a hawker but also had a small shop, deposed that he bought records from private houses, usually at 2*d.* each, & resold the second-hand records so purchased to shop-keepers & others, but also to some extent in his shop. The prices at which he resold were below the fixed price, but he alleged that he was unaware that he was infringing the patents:—Held: deft. being fixed with notice of the restriction, an interlocutory injunction must be granted, & by consent of the parties the motion was treated as the trial of the action & the order was treated as a final order.—COLUMBIA GRAPHOPHONE CO., LTD. v. MURRAY (1922), 39 R. P. C. 239.

Annotation:—Folld. Columbia Graphophone Co. v. Thoms (1924), 41 R. P. C. 294.

2343. —— Notice of limitation—Stamped upon article.]—COLUMBIA GRAPHOPHONE CO., LTD. v. MURRAY, No. 2342, ante.

2344. —— —— — —.]—The owner of letters patent relating to gramophone records brought an action for infringement, asking for an injunction to restrain deft. from infringing, by selling "Regal" & "Columbia" records below authorised prices. Each of such records bears a notice that it must not be sold below the price fixed by the patentee, but the fixed price did not appear on the record, & deft. alleged that she had no notice of the respective prices fixed, & denied that she had sold under the fixed prices:—Held: deft. had notice of the conditions & in fact knew what the fixed prices were, & had deliberately sold records at prices below the fixed prices.—COLUMBIA GRAPHOPHONE CO., LTD. v. THOMS (1924), 41 R. P. C. 294.

SUB-SECT. 7.—SCOPE OF INVENTION.

A. Ascertainment from Specification.

2345. Rights limited to the true construction of specification.]—The specification of a patent for "improvements in the process of finishing hosiery, & other goods manufactured from lamb's-wool, etc., "stated the invention to consist in submitting hosiery, & other similar goods, to the finishing process of a press heated by steam, etc., in the manner hereinafter mentioned." A description was then given, by letters, of a drawing which represented a press, which consisted of a box heated by steam, up to which another box similarly heated was to be pressed by means of hydraulic pressure, or by screws, or other well known means. After describing the method of pressing the goods between these hot boxes, the specification concluded by confining the inventor's claim to the process as above described:—Held: a method of finishing hosiery goods, by passing them through heated rollers, was not included in this patent, & therefore was no infringement of it.—BARBER v. GRACE (1847), 1 Exch. 339; 17 L. J. Ex. 122; 154 E. R. 144.

Annotation:—Refd. Smith v. L. & N. W. Ry. (1853), Macr. 188.

2346. ——.]—UNWIN v. HEATH, No. 2505, post.

7 O. L. R. 570; 2 O. W. R. 465; 3 O. W. R. 496.—CAN.

k. Offer to sell articles which might be infringements.]—GWYNNE v. DRYSDALE (1886), 3 R. P. C. 65.—SCOT.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 7.—A.

2345 l. Rights limited to the true construction of specification.]—An invention consisted in the substitution of an improved device for one formerly in use as part of a machine:—Held: the patent must be given a narrow construction & be limited to a device substantially in the form described in the patent & specification.—SHARPLES & MCCORNACK v. NATIONAL MANU-

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sect.

2347. ——.]—One cannot consider any patent case properly without construing the specification. . . . It really is the first thing to be done (KEKEWICH, J.).—OSBORNE v. BOARD (1896), 13 R. P. C. 740.

2348. ——.]—U., the patentee of a machine, sold his patent to a co., but did not execute an assignment He then manufactured certain machines which the co. alleged were made according to the patent, &, therefore, infringements of their rights. They accordingly brought an action against the patentee claiming an assignment &, among other things, relief on the basis that the patentee's machines were infringements of the patent. The patentee did not dispute pltfs.' right to an assignment, but there was a question as to the form of the assignment, & it was agreed that an order should be made directing the assignment to be settled by the judge in chambers, & the only question left for the decision of the ct. was whether deft.'s machines were infringements of the patent :—Held : upon the true construction of the specification, deft.'s machines were not infringements.—AUTOMATIC DIVERSIONS SYNDICATE v. URRY (1897), 14 R. P. C. 365.

2349. ——.]—This action was for the infringement of a patent relating to the separation of cream from milk. The claim was for " In centrifugal separators or creamers the combination of the conical plates with the rotating drum or bowl substantially as described." Defts. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the grounds of want of novelty & subject-matter, & anticipation ; but, at the trial, these issues were abandoned, & the only question was infringement. Defts.' apparatus had not conical plates, but a cylindrical block with inclined radial passages drilled therein :—Held : according to the true construction of the specification, the claim was not for separate conical plates simply, but for separate conical plates fastened rigidly by screws or otherwise into one solid mass or block ; defts. had infringed ; & pltfs. were entitled to relief.—AKT. SEPARATOR v. DAIRY OUTFIT CO. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 327, C. A.

2350. ——.]—The owners of a patent for a starting device for gas engines brought an action to restrain defts. from infringing. Defts. alleged that they had not infringed, & that the letters patent were invalid :—Held : according to the true construction of the specification, defts. had not infringed.—BRITISH MOTOR SYNDICATE, LTD. v. ANDREWS (J. E. H.) & CO., LTD. (1900), 18 R. P. C. 85, H. L.

2351. ——.]—WARDROPER v. GIBBS (GEORGE), LTD. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 355, C. A.

2352. ——.]—The grantee of a patent for " improvements in electrical meters " sued defts. for infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid :—Held : on the true construction of the specification, defts. had not infringed.—DE FERRANTI v. BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 145, C. A.

2353. ——.]—The owners of a patent for an improvement in galvanic batteries having commenced an action for infringement, defts. denied infringement & alleged that the patent was invalid by reason of being anticipated, of want of subject-matter, & of inutility. The specification, after stating that the invention related to galvanic batteries constructed & arranged as was thereinafter described, described a particular battery having two layers, the outer of which consisted preferably of sal-ammoniac, chloride of zinc, plaster of Paris, & flour. The specification contained the following passage : " The materials mentioned as electrodes & as exciting & depolarising agents & their proportions may be varied, as the important feature of the invention is the inter-position between the positive & negative electrodes of two layers of exciting composition, in a semi-solid or plastic state, the one in contact with the negative electrode having intermixed with it depolarising agents & the one in contact with the positive electrode having no such depolarising agents in its composition " ; & the patentee claimed : " A galvanic battery having the space between its positive & negative electrodes filled with a semi-solid or plastic exciting agent in two layers, the one layer in contact with the negative electrode having depolarising agents intermixed therewith, & the other layer in contact with the positive electrode having no such depolarising agents, substantially as set forth." Defts. substituted in the outer layer of their cell folds of blotting paper for the plaster of Paris & flour, & there were other differences as to proportions. The specification had been construed by the House of Lords in an action by same pltfs., in which it was held that there was novelty & subject-matter, & the meaning of the words " semi-solid or plastic " in the specification were considered. Defts. in the present action again contested the validity of the patent, setting up further anticipations & adducing fresh evidence on the issue of novelty ; they also denied infringement, alleging that the layers in their battery were not semi-solid or plastic within the meaning of the specification. It was held at the trial, which took place before the delivery of the judgments of the House of Lords, that the alleged invention had been anticipated ; & that even if the patent were valid, defts. had not infringed. The action was dismissed with costs. Pltfs. appealed, & on the hearing of the appeal defts. relied solely on non-infringement :—Held : the outer layer of defts.' cell was not semi-solid or plastic within the meaning of the specification, & defts. had not infringed.—PATENT EXPLOITATION, LTD. v. AMERICAN ELECTRICAL NOVELTY & MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. (1905), 22 R. P. C. 316, C. A.

2354. ——.]—Letters patent were granted in 1900 to B. & C. for " improvements in or relating to gas burners." The first claim was for " A Bunsen burner for incandescent gas lighting, in which the mantle is suspended head downwards, provided with an isolator, preferably made of bad heat conducting material, with a deflecting cone on said isolator, the latter terminating in a burner head provided, if required, with a sleeve with perforated sides, projecting into the interior of the incandescent mantle for the purpose of obtaining a downwardly directed flame, approximately of the shape of the mantle, & without the necessity of employing special mechanical means for producing a high gas pressure, substantially as described." In 1903 letters patent were granted to F. for " improvements in incandescent gas burners," the first claim being for " improvements in downwardly burning incandescent gas burners comprising a device for keeping cool the burner tubes thereof, said device consisting of a protecting tube, insulated from the burner tube, by a layer of air, substantially as described." The owners of these patents brought an action for infringement, complaining of two burners; one of these had a jacketing tube, but not closed at the upper end, as F.'s specification described. This burner was alleged to infringe both patents. It had not an inverted conical deflector, but an inverted cup. The other burner had no jacket, but had, at the upper end of the tube, an inverted cone, similar in form but not in position, to that described in the specification of the first patent. Both the burners had ordinary brass tubes. Defts., besides denying infringement, alleged that both patents were invalid:—Held: without deciding the issues of validity, neither of the alleged infringements infringed; in neither of them was there an isolator, nor a deflector in the sense of the specification of the first patent; & the jacket of the first mentioned alleged infringement had no cooling effect, but rather the reverse.—NEW INVERTED INCANDESCENT GAS LAMP CO., LTD. v. COPE & TIMMINS, LTD. (1906), 23 R. P. C. 103.

---

FACTURING CO. (1904), 9 Exch. C. R. 460 ; 25 C. L. T. 146.—CAN.

1. Rights strictly limited to claim in patent.]—A person claiming that his patent is being infringed, will be held strictly to the particular mechanical means claimed in his patent, & those having bonâ fide employed a different system are not guilty of infringing.—HOSIERS, LTD. v. PENMANS, [1925] Exch. C. R. 93.—CAN.

2355. ——.]—Letters patent were granted to B. & C. for "improvements in or relating to gas burners." The first claim was for "a Bunsen burner for incandescent gas lighting in which the mantle is suspended head downwards provided with an isolator preferably made of bad heat-conducting material, with a deflecting cone on said isolator, the latter terminating in a burner head provided, if required, with a sleeve with perforated sides, projecting into the interior of the incandescent mantle for the purpose of obtaining a downwardly directed flame, approximately of the shape of the mantle, & without the necessity of employing special mechanical means for producing a high gas pressure, substantially as described." In an action for infringement of the patent, defts. relied ultimately on infringement only, admitting validity, but contending that the claim ought to be construed as being for the particular combination. The burner complained of had a tube of thin metal which pltfs. alleged to act by reason of its length & thinness as an isolator, & an umbrella-shaped plate round the tube with the apex upwards, which pltfs. alleged to act as a deflector, & they contended that the defts. had taken the two essential features of the invention. Defts. on the other hand contended that the plate acted as a concentrator & that they had neither of the two features. It was held at the trial, that defts. had taken neither the isolator nor, though this was more doubtful, the deflector, & had not infringed the combination. The actior was dismissed with costs, & a certificate as to certain of the particulars of objections was given, although defts. had, at a late stage in the case, ceased to contend that the patent was invalid. Pltfs. appealed:—Held: defts. had not infringed, there being no deflector within the meaning of the specification on defts.' burner.—NEW INVERTED INCANDESCENT GAS LAMP CO., LTD. v. GLOBE LIGHT, LTD. (1906), 23 R. P. C. 157, C. A.

2356. ——.]—In 1898 a patent was granted to M. for an "improvement in the manufacture of colouring matter." In a deed of dissolution of partnership between pltfs. & deft., the latter covenanted that he would not at any time, either directly or indirectly, exercise, carry on or be concerned in, the trade or business of a manufacturer of caramel, manufactured under or by virtue of the process protected by the patent, during the term of the grant or any extension thereof. Pltfs., as exclusive licencees of the patent, brought an action to restrain an alleged breach of the covenant. The patent was for a process whereby the absorption or incorporation of ammonia with a carbohydrate, & in particular with glucose, was effected under pressure. Deft. dispensed with pressure, & contended that consequently he did not infringe. Pltfs. contended that the process protected by the patent was for the production of a colouring matter, of the class included in the terms caramel, or caramel substitute, by means of the action of ammonia on carbohydrates, such as glucose, substantially as described in the specification, & that it was not essential that the process should be conducted under pressure:—Held: on the true construction of the specification, deft. would be concerned in the manufacture of caramel under or by virtue of the patented process although he avoided pressure, & he had committed a breach of the covenant.—HAY v. GONVILLE (1907), 25 R. P. C. 161.

2357. ——.]—The owners of a patent for "improvements in sound magnifying horns for phonographs & the like" brought an action for infringement of the same. A previous action had been brought against another deft. in which the patent had been held by the Ct. of Appeal not to have been anticipated, to have subject-matter, & to be valid, & to have been infringed, & in that action the specification had been construed. In the second action deft. denied infringement, & he also alleged that the patent was invalid on the ground of anticipation, two prior publications being in particular relied on which had not been before the Ct. of Appeal in the previous case, & on the ground of want of subject-matter. The specification stated that, broadly, the invention consisted in constructing a curved tempered amplifying horn with joints such that the larger portion thereof might be adjustable on a fixed support, while the small end thereof, or that upon which the sound box was mounted, was pivoted to swing horizontally, & also had a secondary joint, which allowed the sound box to move vertically, to follow the irregularities of the record, & also to allow of the needles being inserted & removed. Defts.' tone arm was pivoted so that it swing horizontally, & it had a joint which allowed it to move vertically, but it was not tempered in all portions of the horn; it was smaller in area where it joined the sound box than it was where it joined the upper part of the trumpet, but this difference was attained by a sudden enlargement. It was held that the patented invention was limited to an amplifying horn with a lower portion, having all its portions so tempered as to allow what the patentee called the natural advance of the sound waves; that on this construction there was no infringement; & further, that one of the alleged prior publications had been established; & that the patent was invalid on that ground, as well as on the ground that the invention was not a substantial advance on what had been done before.—GRAMOPHONE CO., LTD. v. RUHL (1910), 28 R. P. C. 20, C. A.

2358. ——.]—A patent was granted for "improvement in or relating to apparatus for withdrawing condensed steam water, air & vapour from steam condensers." One of the claims was as follows:—"In steam condensing plant, the combination with a condenser of a receiver wherein a pressure in excess of that in the condenser from which the water is withdrawn is maintained, a head pump, i.e. a water lifting head producing device, adapted to withdraw water of condensation, with or without condensing water, from the condenser & discharge the same into the receiver, & means for withdrawing water without air & vapour from the receiver, the desired pressure being maintained in the receiver by placing the latter in direct communication with exhausting apparatus connected to an outlet therefrom, & the air & vapour being withdrawn from the condenser & discharged by a steam jet or jets into the receiver into which the water of condensation is being simultaneously discharged substantially as described." In an action for infringement of the patent, the pltfs. contended that an essential purpose of their combination was to avoid the waste of heat in the condensation of the steam by means of cold water circulating in an auxiliary surface condenser. The defts. contended that the specification did not disclose that purpose, or that, if it did, there was no subject-matter, in view of a prior specification that was alleged to be an anticipation :—Held : that, upon the true construction of the specification, the conservation of heat was not part of the alleged invention, & that, as it was admitted that on that construction there had not been any infringement, the action failed ; but that, even if the construction contended for by the pltfs. was correct, it would be difficult to find any substantial feature in the alleged invention not included in the prior specification alleged as an anticipation, except, perhaps, the substitution of a lifting pump for a water seal, & that, even if that factor were sufficient to support the patent, it was not reproduced in the alleged infringement. The action was dismissed with costs.—CONTRAFLO CONDENSER & KINETIC AIR PUMP CO., LTD. v. HICK, HARGREAVES & CO., LTD. (1920), 37 R. P. C. 89.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sect. 7, A. & B. (a) & (b).]

2359. —— Specification of process—Alleged infringement of article.]—Pltf. took out a patent for "improvements in the manufacture of candles, & in apparatus for applying light." In his specification he claimed (a) the mode of manufacturing candles by the application of peculiarly formed plaited wicks; (b) the mode of manufacturing candles by the application of two or more plaited wicks, so disposed that the ends always turned outwards; (c) the mode of applying lenses to lamps in order to concentrate & conduct a portion or portions of the rays of light to a distance. Pltf. afterwards entered a disclaimer as to (a) & (c), & he sued deft. for an infringement of (b). At the trial, pltf. produced a candle purchased of deft., the wicks of which were so plaited that the ends always turned outwards :—Held : the patent was not for the candle itself, but for the mode of manufacturing it ; & the mere production of a candle made by deft., in which the wicks were so plaited that the ends always turned outwards, was no evidence of an infringement of pltf.'s patent.—PALMER v. WAGSTAFF (1854), 9 Exch. 494 ; 2 C. L. R. 1052 ; 23 L. J. Ex. 217 ; 156 E. R. 211.

2360. —— Alleged specification of process—Specification construed as for particular article.]—In 1891, a patent was granted to I. for "improved apparatus employed in the manufacture of artificial sandstone," & in 1893 a patent was granted to A. for a similar object. An action was brought for infringement of these two patents, but the first only was relied upon at the trial. Deft. denied infringement & denied the validity of the patents, & delivered particulars of objections. It was contended for pltf. that on the true construction of the specification the claim was not for a special form of apparatus but for a process, & that deft. was employing this process :—Held : pltf.'s claim was not for a process but for an improved apparatus, & the whole object was to secure the rigidity of the moulds used by means of rings, bolts, & stays, & in deft.'s apparatus there were not rings, bolts, or stays used. Therefore deft. had not infringed.—PETERS v. OWEN (1899), 16 R. P. C. 83, C. A.

2361. —— To actual claim—Not what might have been claimed.]—NOBEL'S EXPLOSIVES CO., LTD. v. ANDERSON, "CORDITE" CASE, No. 2441, post.

2362. —— —— ——.]—MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. MULLARD RADIO VALVE CO., LTD., No. 3107, post.

2363. —— ——.]—PALMER TYRE, LTD. v. PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD., No. 2433, post.

2364. —— ——.]—MARTIN & JAMES v. CONSETT IRON CO. LTD., No. 2473, post.

2365. —— ——.]—MARCONI & MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. BRITISH RADIO-TELEGRAPH & TELEPHONE CO., LTD., No. 2474, post.

2366. —— Matters beyond specification cannot infringe.]—(1) The patentee is bound to act towards the public uberrimâ fide, & to tell them all that he knows which is requisite to enable them to carry out the invention to the best effect. Now in this case the patentee had either made the dyes with the naphthols or he had not. If he had, he must have known that the temperatures necessary to success were vastly higher than those he had given in the case of the phenols, & the fact that he has not given that knowledge to the public must invalidate his patent. If, on the other hand, he had never made the dyes from the naphthols, he could not, in the then state of knowledge, know that they could be so produced. He had, in fact, not made an important part of the invention which he claimed. He did not & could not "describe & ascertain" in his specification the manner in which his invention, so far as relates to these bodies, was to be performed, for he did not know it himself. They were inserted on speculation only, in the hope that somebody by experiment & research would find out that these bodies could be used, in which case he would claim the benefit of that which, of right, would belong to another (FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J.).

(2) It is settled law that alike as regard validity & infringement, the rights of a patentee must be judged as they would have been judged at the date when the patent was granted. On the one hand, no subsequent discovery can invalidate the patent if it was novel at that date. On the other hand, nothing is an infringement of that patent which the knowledge of the world on the publication of the specification would not have recognised as being an equivalent of the patented process (FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J.).—VIDAL DYES SYNDICATE, LTD. v. LEVINSTEIN, LTD., SAME v. READ HOLLIDAY & SONS (1912), 29 R. P. C. 245, C. A.

Annotation :—As to (2) Refd. Act. für Anilin Fabrikation in Berlin v. Levinstein (1921), 38 R. P. C. 277.

Construction of specification.]—See Part VI., Sect. 6, ante.

B. Patents of Narrow Scope.

(a) In General.

2367. Patentees confined within narrow limits—Little novelty in invention.]—WALKER & CO. v.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 7.—B. (a).

m. Patent requiring strict construction — Specific element omitted from alleged infringement.]—MOODIE v. CANADIAN WESTINGHOUSE CO., LTD. (Ont.) (1916), 16 Exch. C. R. 133.—CAN.

n. —— Subsequent patent of narrow limits.]—The question of infringe-

SCOTT (A. G.) & CO., LTD. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 482.
Annotation :—Refd. Re Clarke's Design, [1896] 2 Ch. 38.

2368. —— ——.]—The owner of a patent for improvements in the manufacture of metallic boxes brought an action for infringement asking for the usual relief. Defts. denied infringement & put in issue the validity of the patent. Pltf.'s process was to take a blank cut to proper size & shape, the sides or flaps being so shaped that when dished & turned up to form the box the corners were rounded ; having got that blank, pltf. dished the sides, then turned them up & formed the box. At the date of the patent metal boxes with round corners were known. Boxes cut out of flat pieces of metal into proper shape with curves for the corners were known ; the process of dishing was known & had been applied to metallic boxes. At the bar it was practically admitted that pltf.'s invention was good subject-matter, & was novel, if he was confined precisely to his process. Defts. stamped all four flaps forming the sides & ends of the body of the box so as to curve the four lower corners & turn up slightly the ends which were to meet, but the remaining end was not turned up. Then the second part of defts.' process was to form by a presser on the upper edge of the ends & one side of the body of the box an L-shaped ridge so that the lid might shut down without projecting. This ridge raised the edge of the end which in the first process was left flat, & in one sense might be said to make the end dished, but it was not dished for the purpose of rounding the corners :—Held : the amount of invention in pltf.'s process was small, & his patent must be confined within narrow limits, namely, to the dishing of the flaps before they were folded up, so that when folded up they formed curved sides & corners, & defts.' process was essentially different because they did not round the corners by dishing.—JAHNCKE v. BELL (R.) & Co. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 94, C. A.

2369. —— ——.]—The owners of letters patent for "improvements in the construction of automotor waggons & similar road vehicles" brought an action for the infringement of the same, in which defts. denied infringement & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the ground (inter alia) anticipation. The claim was for a steam waggon (automotor) or similar steam driven road vehicle the main frame of which is formed of two side girders bracketed or connected to the boiler at the smoke-box, & at the fire-box end & carries the steam engine, mounted upon the boiler, as well as the waggon body, substantially as herein described & illustrated. The merit of the invention was that it allowed for the expansion & contraction of the boiler, & prevented it from being subjected to undue strains. It was held at the trial that the invention was a narrow one, & that the particular place & method of attaching the boiler to the side girders, having the rigid connection at the front end of the boiler, & the connection allowing of expansion & contraction at the rear end of the boiler, were of the essence of the invention, & that, on this construction of the specification the patent was valid, but had not been infringed by defts.' vehicle which differed among other respects in having an attachment of the boiler at the fire-box end giving horizontal rigidity, & having a special method of providing for expansion & contraction at the smoke-box end of the boiler :—Held : defts. had not infringed, their machine not being substantially identical in construction with the patented machine.—FODEN v. WALLIS & STEVENS, LTD. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 783, C. A.

2370. —— Two forms of apparatus known at date of patent.]—C., in 1893, obtained a patent for an apparatus for spraying paint. Spraying apparatus for ink, scent, whitewash, & other fluids had previously been known. These consisted of two classes : one in which the air & fluid nozzles were separate, & the fluid was raised by inductive action ; the other in which one nozzle was inside the other, & the fluid was made to rise by pressure. The apparatus described in C.'s patent was of the first class, except that he used pressure to force the paint up, this being necessary on account of its weight. W. claimed the right to use an apparatus for paint of the second class, with either the air or paint in the inner tube. C. brought an action against W. for infringement :—Held : W.'s apparatus did not infringe C.'s patent.—CLEAVER v. WALLWORK & WELLS (1896), 13 R. P. C. 277.

2371. ——.]—This was an action by a patentee for infringement of letters patent relating to "Improvements in or relating to rim brakes for velocipedes & the like." Pltf. contended that he was the first to invent rim brakes having brake blocks readily detachable without the use of tools or screws, & that the claims in his specification, in which were described means of applying this feature of detachability by the use of a spring arch, were wide enough to cover defts.' device in which a spring arch was differently applied for the same purpose :—Held : the claims relied upon were narrow ; if the claims were given a broad construction the patent would be invalid ; & defts. had not infringed.—BOSWORTH v. COMPONENTS, LTD. (1907), 24 R. P. C. 765.

(b) Patents of Apparatus or Machinery.

2372. Patentees confined to particular apparatus in specification.]—(1) A disclaimer, which disclaims all applications of the principle, except by the particular means described in the specification, does not therefore disclaim the whole of the invention comprised in the patent, & does not claim anything not originally claimed by the specification.

(2) Where the question of novelty or infringement depends merely on the construction of the specification, it is one entirely for the judge, but where it also depends on other circumstances such as the degree of difference, or of similitude between two machines, it is a mixed question of law & fact ; what the jurymen find to have been done is the matter of fact ; but the judge must apply that fact accordingly to the rules of law, & is entitled & bound to say whether what has been done amounts to an infringement.—SEED v. HIGGINS (1860), 8 H. L. Cas. 550 ; 30 L. J. Q. B. 314 ; 11 E. R. 544 ; sub nom. SEED v. HIGGINS, HIGGINS v. SEED, Macr. 351 ; 3 L. T. 101 ; 6 Jur. N. S. 1264, H. L.
Annotations :—As to (1) Refd. Daw v. Eley (1865), L. R. 3 Eq. 500, n. ; Ralston v. Smith (1865), 11 H. L. Cas. 223 ; Daw v. Eley (1867), L. R. 3 Eq. 496 ; Plimpton v. Spiller (1877), 47 L. J. Ch. 211 ; Maxim-Nordenfelt Guns &

a

subsequent narrow patent, as distinguished from a pioneer patent, it should receive strict construction.—DOMINION BEDSTEAD CO. v. GERTLER, [1924] Exch. C. R. 158.—CAN.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 7.—B. (b).

2372 i. Patentees confined to particular apparatus in specification.]—WALLACE v. TULLIS, RUSSELL & CO. (1921), 39 R. P. C. 3.—SCOT.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sect. 7, B. (b).]

Ammunition Co. & Maxim v. Anderson (1897), 13 T. L. R. 262. As to (2) Refd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429. Generally, Refd. Nalder v. Clayton (1859), Macr. 371; Potter v. Parr (1860), 2 B. & S. 216, n.; Curtis v. Platt (1863), 3 Ch. D. 135, n.; Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315.

2373. ——.]—EASTERBROOK v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO., No. 2444, post.

2374. ——.]—In 1884 letters patent were granted, on a communication from abroad by D., for "Improvements in gas or oil motors." The invention related to the class of engines in which an explosion takes place on every alternate stroke. The specification, after describing how, in working, the heat of the sides of the combustion chamber, combined with the compression of the combustible mixtures, would of themselves bring about ignition at the right moment, contained the following passage: "That the mixture may also explode at the beginning of the working when the sides of the space was quite cold, a metallic priming cap f, the interior of which is in continuous open communication with the space of combustion, is by means of a flame from without so heated that ignition takes place from the heated sides of the priming cap." The patentee claimed, (a) In gas motors in which only one impulse is given for each two strokes of the working piston, the effecting of the automatic ignition of the combustible mixture at each second stroke by the compression against the hot sides of the combustion chamber by means of the movement of the crank of the working piston, & the regulation of the ignition at the exact moment in relation to the dead point by the cock s which admits more or less combustible mixture for the explosion charge, or by the cock t which regulates the heat of the igniting cap f, substantially as herein before described & illustrated in the drawings; (b) the use of the priming cap f for effecting the ignition when the sides of the chamber are quite cold, substantially as hereinbefore described & illustrated in the drawings." In 1885 letters patent were granted to D. for "Improvements in motor engines worked by combustible gases or petroleum vapour or spray." This patent related to the same type of engines. Claim 9 was as follows:—"The method of regulating the speed of a gas or petroleum motor engine by causing the discharge valves for the products of combustion to remain closed when the normal speed is exceeded, so that the products of combustion are retained under pressure in the cylinder, whereby the admission valves b & c for combustible mixture are also kept closed & no fresh charge is consequently admitted, either above the piston or from the pump below, until the speed is again reduced & the discharge valve opened substantially as herein described." In 1885 another patent was granted to D. for an "improved vehicle propelled by a gas or petroleum motor engine." The first claim was for "The combination of a vehicle having a driving & a steering wheel running on one & the same track, with a centrally arranged gas or petroleum motor engine & its reservoir, the centre of gravity of which lies in the vertical plane of the wheel-track, substantially as herein described." In 1896 the registered owners of the three patents brought an action against a co. for infringement of the same, as well as of a fourth patent, as to which the claim for infringement was dropped at the trial. The main points on which defts. relied at the trial were, as to the first patent, that there was insufficiency of description, inasmuch as an engine constructed according to the description would not work, that the inventor contemplated, for starting the engine, the use of a heated surface, the shape being immaterial, in continuous communication with the cylinder, whereas the ignition tubes used by them, which were much longer in proportion to their diameter than f, operated by the spent gas in the tube being compressed & so unmasking the heated portion of the tube at the right moment, that the patent was anticipated, & that the patentee contemplated the use of f only for starting the machine. As to the second patent, that the patentee was not the first to affect the inlet valve through the action of the exhaust valve, & that they did not infringe, they operating by locking the exhaust valve open. As to the third patent, that, if construed broadly, there was no subject-matter, &, if otherwise construed, no infringement:—Held: the first patent was valid, & defts. had infringed it, but defts. had not infringed either the second or third patents, the claim of the second patent only claiming the particular device, &, unless the first claim of the third patent was limited to the combination substantially as described, there would not be subject-matter for a patent.—BRITISH MOTOR SYNDICATE, LTD. v. UNIVERSAL MOTOR CARRIAGE & CYCLE CO., LTD. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 113.

2375. ——.]—D. obtained letters patent for "Improvements in nursery chairs." The essence of his invention was to convert the chair from a high chair to a low chair by so revolving the seat & back as to make the seat of the high chair become the back of the low chair & vice versâ. In his chair as manufactured he introduced a hinged frame to support the seat, but he made no claim for this in his specification.

T. also obtained a patent for "Improvements in nursery chairs," & shortly afterwards assigned his patent & business to T. & Co., Ltd. In the manufacture of their chairs under this patent the co. used a hinged frame similar to that used by D., & a subsidiary spring which was also introduced by D. In 1899 D. brought an action for infringement against the co. The validity of D.'s patent was not disputed, & had been upheld in a previous action:—Held: there was no infringement, as pltf. made no claim in his specification for the portions of his chair which defts. introduced into theirs.—DAVIES v. TOWNSEND & CO., LTD. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 497.

2376. ——.]—A patent was granted to pltfs. in 1898 for (inter alia) "Improvements in shuttle-box mechanism for looms for weaving." The improvement consisted in effecting a change from one cylinder, which controlled the weaving of the body of a handkerchief, to another cylinder which controlled the weaving of the border, & vice versâ by direct action from each cylinder to the other, thus dispensing with all intermediate mechanism which had formerly been employed to effect this change. The invention also enabled plain cards to be employed instead of a more expensive kind of cards which had formerly been necessary, & it also had other advantages. Pltfs. had in practice departed in one respect from the method of working described in their specification, but claimed that such departure was a matter of detail & did not affect the principle of the invention. Defts. had made or used a machine following the lines of pltfs.' machine as changed & made in practice, & denied that it was covered by the invention. They also alleged invalidity on the grounds of want of subject-matter & of anticipation:—Held: the patent was valid & had not been anticipated, but defts. had not infringed.

The fair construction of pltf.'s specification is that they have described a process & a particular way by which they propose to effect these operations. . . . Have defts. infringed that particular process? (HALL, V.-C.).—WHITE v. HARTLEY (1903), 20 R. P. C. 265.

2377. ——.]—The owner of a patent for "Improvements in seltzogenes & like apparatus" having brought an action for infringement, defts. denied infringement, & contended that, if the claim covered what they did, the patent was invalid. The claim was for "An apparatus for the direct saturation of gaseous liquids consisting substantially of a syphon head fixed permanently on the bottle & closed at its upper part by a screw cap or stopper carrying a tube into which is introduced a removable and readily replaceable receptacle or cartridge containing compressed or liquified gas which is to be gradually emitted through an indicator dip tube by means of a screw threaded rod fixed in the cap or stopper above the opening of the receptacle or gas cartridge."

Defts. contended that the claim only covered the details of the particular apparatus; whilst pltf. contended that the claim covered apparatus for holding a removable cartridge for aerating the liquid, which cartridge did not itself form any part of the machine. Defts.' apparatus had not the particular parts described in the claim, but pltf. alleged they took them substantially:—Held: the patent was for the particular apparatus, & defts. had not infringed.—CROCKER v. AERATORS, LTD. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 621.

2378. ——.]—The specification of letters patent claimed "a clinical thermometer having two or more chambers formed within the bore of the tube & a comparatively open contraction within each chamber substantially as herein shown & described, & for the purpose stated." The owner of the patent brought an action for infringement of the same, in which deft. relied on non-infringement. In deft.'s thermometer there were two contractions, but, at all events in its final state, only one chamber. The object of the two contractions was to overcome the difficulty which existed with one contraction only, in obtaining the return of the mercury after the temperature has been read; the chambers were necessary in manufacture for the purpose of obtaining the contractions. Each of pltf.'s chambers was formed in a manner previously well-known, but deft.'s chamber & contractions were made in a new way by one operation. It was held at the trial that the two contractions formed the pith & marrow of the invention; that, notwithstanding the reference in the claim to two chambers, deft. had infringed:—Held: the claim was limited to a thermometer having two or more chambers, with a comparatively open contraction within each chamber, & deft. employed a new method & had not infringed.—HICKS v. SIMMONS (1904), 21 R. P. C. 632, C. A.

2379. ——.]—A patent was granted to pltfs. & another in 1897 for "Improved apparatus for use in the production of acetylene." The apparatus was so constructed as to cause the acetylene, in its passage from the generator to the gas-holder, to be washed by passing through water in a vessel arranged on the outside of the gas-holder & supplied with water from a second vessel at a higher level. By means of valves controlled by the motion of the gas-holder the vessels & generator could be put in communication so that the washing water could be caused to pass gradually into the generator & be used for the hydration of calcium carbide, a saving of the acetylene dissolved in the water being alleged to be thereby effected. In defts.' apparatus, when fresh water was poured into the washing vessel, the water that had been used for washing the acetylene passed from the part in which the washing took place & over partitions to another part of the vessel & thence to a lower vessel & into the generator, its passage being controllable by the motion of the gas-holder:—Held: the patentees had claimed the special arrangement set forth in their specification, defts.' machine was not an infringement.—BAILEY v. AIREY & CO. (1906), 23 R. P. C. 277, C. A.

2380. ——.]—Pltfs. were the owners of a patent granted in 1898 for "Improved treatment of glass for coating purposes as a backing for slabs, tiles, facing plates & the like," which consisted in painting on to the back of the glass tiles a hot mixture of British pitch & gas tar, & sprinkling thereon coarse granulated clinker or coarse coke breeze having absorbent qualities. Defts. were alleged to have infringed this patent by backing glass tiles with a mixture of pitch, "marine glue," a kind of pitch, & shellac, sprinkled with broken pottery which was of a non-absorbent character as regards pitch. Defts. alleged anticipation by certain other specifications as part of their defence:—Held: pltfs.' claims only covered the use of material with absorbent properties of the type of those possessed by breeze or granulated clinker, & pltfs. had not proved that the broken pottery of defts. was within the fair meaning of these claims.—NEWELLITE GLASS TILE CO., LTD. v. LAWSON'S NON-CONDUCTING COMPOSITION, LTD. (1907), 24 R. P. C. 305, C. A.

2381. ——.]—The owners of a patent for "Improvements in & relating to one-way clutches for velocipedes & other machinery" brought an action for infringement. The claim relied on was for a one-way clutch "in which the pawls are carried in recesses in the circumference of the inner part & adapted to engage with ratchet teeth in the inner circumference of the outer part & in which the said pawls have their inner ends rounded to engage in rounded seatings"—all this was common—"& their outer ends acted upon by spiral springs inserted in tangential holes in such a way that the said springs tend both to force the engaging ends of the panels outwards into engagement with the ratchet & to force each pawl as a whole back against its setting, substantially as set forth." Deft. relied at the trial on non-infringement:—Held: the claim was a very limited one & deft. had not taken the special features of the invention, & had not infringed the patent.—RILEY v. TAYLOR (1910), 27 R. P. C. 747, C. A.

2382. ——.]—Letters patent were granted to pltf. for an invention relating to "Improvements in photographic cameras." There had been several prior attempts to obtain the object pltf. had in view, which was, in a reflecting camera, to enable the plate carrier to be brought nearer to the lens than was usual in that type of camera, & yet to enable the whole of the picture to be seen on the focussing screen whether a short or long focus lens was used. Deft. endeavoured to obtain the same result about the same time as pltf., & also obtained a patent, but of later date than pltf.'s patent. Pltf. sued deft. for infringement of his patent:—Held: pltf.'s claims were each of them confined to a particular movement, & the movement which deft. used was essentially different from pltf.'s, & deft. had not infringed pltf.'s patent.—NICHOLLS v. KERSHAW (1910), 27 R. P. C. 237.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sect. 7, B. (b); sub-sect. 8.]

2383. ——.]—The owners of letters patent for "Improvements in apparatus for automatically lighting & extinguishing lamps at predetermined times" brought an action for infringement of the patent, in which defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds of want of novelty & want of subject-matter:—Held: the claims of the specification of pltfs.' patent must be construed as claims for the specific mechanism described; the mechanism of defts.' apparatus differed in two material respects from that described in the specification; & defts. had not infringed.—BRITISH FOREIGN, & COLONIAL AUTOMATIC LIGHT CONTROLLING CO., LTD. v. METROPOLITAN GAS METERS, LTD. (1911), 29 R. P. C. 209; affd. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 571, C. A.

2384. ——.]—Prior to the date of pltfs.' patent the old & well-known machine for grinding steel balls for bicycle wheels consisted of two discs with concentric grooves which could be revolved in close proximity to one another. In order to ensure uniformity it was necessary for a workman to shuffle the balls every now & then so as to prevent any particular ball from revolving continually in the same groove. The patentee's invention consisted of a disc machine for grinding balls in which one of the discs had a segmental pocket or open space to permit the balls to change from one groove to another as they were carried round. He trusted to the law of averages to insure that the same ball would not always run in the same groove. The owners of the patent brought an action for infringement. In defts.' machine there was no segmental pocket, but they had a device whereby all the balls were caused to follow each other practically in Indian file in all the grooves from the centre to the periphery of the discs. Owing, however, to the depth of the groove in defts.' machine, the balls would occasionally leap-frog over one another, & so have their sequence changed:—Held: pltfs.' invention consisted of a particular device described in the specification; defts.' device was also substantially different from pltfs., it could not be said to be an infringement; the fact that the balls in defts.' machine sometimes altered their sequence was purely accidental & might be omitted altogether in determining whether there was an infringement or not; & defts. were entitled to judgment.—HOFFMAN MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. v. AUTO MACHINERY CO., LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 141, C. A.

2385. ——.]—In 1904 a patent was granted for "Improvements in or relating to knitting machinery." One of the claims was for "A latch needle for knitting machines, provided with a loop expanding finger pivoted to the stem of the needle & movable on its pivot substantially as & for the purpose described." In an action for infringement of the patent it was proved that deft.'s needle had a piece of metal projecting laterally from the stem so as to expand a loop passing over it, but deft. contended that his needle was adapted for use in a cone knitting machine, & could not be used in a cylinder knitting machine, & in that respect differed from pltf.'s needle, & was not an infringement:—Held: on the true construction of the specification, the claim was for a needle adapted for use only in a cylinder machine; deft.'s needle was adapted for use in a cone machine; & there was no infringement.—GRIEVE v. SPIERS (1913), 30 R. P. C. 235.

2386. ——.]—Pltfs. were the owners of a patent granted for an invention of "[illegible] hair curlers." Claim 1 of the specification follows:—"A hair curler comprising a tube, a rod-like element with said tube & projecting somewhat from the open end of said tube, & a ratchet & detent connection between the tube & the rod-like element, whereby the latter element may be rotated within the tube in one direction, but not in the other."

The patented hair curler was intended for [illegible] in connection with a process for what is known as the permanent waving of ladies' hair, practised by the patentee for some years prior to the date of the patent. In 1920 pltfs. commenced an action for infringement of the patent against defts., & on Feb. 11, 1921, judgment was given for pltfs., & defts. were restrained by perpetual injunction from infringing pltfs.' patent. Subsequently to the judgment, defts. commenced to use & offer for sale a hair curler which pltfs. alleged was an infringement of their patent. Pltfs. moved for leave to issue a writ of sequestration & to commit the managing director of deft. co. for contempt of ct. Pltfs. contended that, although in defts.' hair curler the rod-like element could be rotated in either direction, it was an infringement of their patent, since Claim 1 of the specification should be construed to mean that the limitation of rotation to one direction was solely directed to the prevention of backlash, & that the true meaning of the words of the claim, when read in the light of the specification as a whole, was that the rod-like element could be rotated in one direction by the operator, but not in the other by the coiled tress of hair:—Held: the patented invention was limited to a device capable of rotation in one direction & not in the other direction.—NESTLE (C.) & CO., LTD. v. EUGENE, LTD. (1922), 39 R. P. C. 38, C. A.

2387. ——.]—A patent was granted for "Improvements in & relating to the manufacture of electrical resistances." One of the claims was for "A resistance for motor starters & the like consisting of a continuous series of grids bent upon themselves so as to form a compact rheostat with no intervening joints."

In an action for infringement, defts. alleged that the patent was invalid for want of novelty & of subject-matter, & that in the specification the words "with no intervening joints" were ambiguous, & did not differentiate between a rheostat with a continuous & homogeneous strip, & one in which the material had been made continuous by welding or otherwise. Defts.' rheostat consisted of a series of grids stamped separately & with a flap or fin for joining the grids to one another by welding. At the trial it was held, that defts.' rheostat, with its numerous joints, was not an infringement of the patent, & that the patent was valid. Judgment was given for the defts. on the issue of infringement, & for pltfs. on the issue of validity.

Pltfs. & defts. appealed to the Ct. of Appeal as to infringement & validity, respectively. The appeal was argued as to infringement only, but defts. reserved to themselves the right to contest validity in the event of there being an appeal to the House of Lords:—Held: defts.' rheostat was not an infringement of the patent.—ELECTRO-MECHANICAL BRAKE CO., LTD. v. RHEOSTATIC CO., LTD. (1925), 42 R. P. C. 254, C. A.

2388. ——.]—A patent was granted for "Improvements in or relating to hand levers for operating railway points." The first claim was as follows: "In a hand-operated self-reversing lever mechanism for railway points, the arrangement of mechanism which permits the operating hand lever only one direction of movement for the setting of the points in either of the two ways, comprising combination with a hand lever (a) a mechanical selector consisting of a sliding bolt engaging with the hand lever & a pivoted V-shaped block with lateral arms. (b) a toggle mechanism consisting of a pivotal lever connected with the V-shaped block & articulated to a known-spring-controlled ram-rod telescopically mounted in a fulcrum block, substantially as described." In an action for infringement of the patent, as pltfs. were the assignees of the patent from deft., it was not open to deft. to attack its validity. The alleged infringement consisted of a hand-operated self-reversing still toggle mechanism lever. The toggle mechanism had pivoted on it a block with lateral arms, but without a V-shaped centre, the central part being sometimes slightly curved & sometimes flat, & there was a slight recess in the corner of each projecting arm :—Held : there was not in deft.'s mechanism a block having the shape or the function described in pltfs.' specification, & deft. had not infringed claim (a), which was the only claim alleged to have been infringed.—WILLIAMS (HENRY), LTD. v. WILLIAMS (1925), 42 R. P. C. 493.

2389. ——.]—Held : pltf.'s claims were narrow & the patent would be infringed only by the use of substantially the same apparatus ; defts.' apparatus differed in various essential respects . . . & contained at least one integer essential to its working of which no counterpart was to be found in the pltf.'s apparatus.—HIGGINSON & ARUNDEL v. PYMAN, SAME v. SAME (1926), 43 R. P. C. 291, C. A.

SUB-SECT. 8.—INVENTION TAKEN IN SUBSTANCE.

2390. Amounts to infringement.]—Where there is a grant of a new invention by patent, a small variation of the invention will not entitle another to break in upon the patent.—GIBBS v. COLE (1734), 3 P. Wms. 255 ; 1 Dick. 64 ; 24 E. R. 1051, L. C.

2391. ——.]—HILL v. THOMPSON, No. 2934, post.

-.]—WALTON v. POTTER & HORSFALL, . 2954, post.

2393. ——.]—BACK v. RENNIE (1843), 1 L. T. O. S. 431.

2394. ——.]—In an action for infringing a patent for paving streets, etc., with "sexagonal" blocks of wood :—Held : paving with "hexagonal" blocks was an infringement.—STEAD v. WILLIAMS (1843), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 126 ; 2 L. T. O. S. 34, 99 ; subsequent proceedings (1844), 7 Man. & G. 818.

Annotation :—Refd. Plimpton v. Spiller (1877), 6 Ch. D. 412.

2395. ——.]—Pltf. was the patentee of an invention for the manufacture of sheathing for ships, composed of zinc & copper in certain proportions, & of the qualities known respectively as "best selected copper," & "foreign zinc" ; which qualities, being the purest, were essential to the success of the invention. Defts. manufactured & sold sheathing, which by analysis was proved to be precisely similar to that made by pltf. ; but they professed to work according to a patent for the manufacture of sheathing from zinc & copper, granted many years previously, which, up to that time, had not been worked, & of which pltf. was ignorant when he obtained his own patent. It appearing by the evidence, that defts. must either have originally employed materials of the purest, & not the ordinary quality, or else that they had purified the latter during the process, by some method not described in the earlier patent :—Held : in the former case, there had been a direct, & in the latter, a colourable invasion of pltf.'s patent.—MUNTZ v. FOSTER (1843), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 93 ; 1 L. T. O. S. 454 ; 8 Jur. 206 ; subsequent proceedings (1844), 6 Man. & G. 1017.

Annotation :—Refd. Hills v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J.

2396. ——.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent for the manufacture of sulphate of soda, it appeared that pltf.'s patent consisted of two retorts, connected by an inclined plane, & also connected with the rest of an extensive apparatus, consisting of receivers, etc. Pltf.'s claim, after describing by drawings the apparatus to be employed, proceeded—"I do not claim the exclusive use of iron retorts, but I do claim as my invention iron retorts worked in connection with each other, as above described." The jury found "that the invention of two separate chambers & furnaces was not new, but that pltf.'s mode of connecting the same was new" :—Held : (1) this amounted to a verdict for deft., upon the pleas, denying that pltf. was the first inventor, & the novelty of the invention ; (2) the material employed was no part of the essence of the invention, & deft. having used a contrivance similar to that patented by pltf., except that one of the retorts was made of brick instead of iron, pltf. was entitled to retain his verdict upon the plea of not guilty.—GAMBLE v. KURTZ (1846), 3 C. B. 425 ; 7 L. T. O. S. 431 ; 136 E. R. 170.

2397. ——.]—(1) In an action for the infringement of a patent, the question of infringement or not is for the jury & not the judge, although there be no question with respect to whether deft. has or has not used the particular machine or process which is alleged to be an infringement.

(2) The specification of a patent for an invention of "improvements in the manufacture of envelopes" described a machine in which a piece of paper was held upon a platform, whilst the flaps of the envelope were folded & concluded by claiming "the so arranging machinery that the flaps of envelopes may be folded thereby as herein described" :—Held : a machine in which the flaps of an envelope were folded might be an infringement of the patent, although the envelope was not held down during the operation of folding.

The judge was right in telling the jury that there might be an infringement without a contrivance to hold the flap, if, without such a contrivance, the two modes of folding were substantially the

---

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 8.

2390 i. Amounts to infringement.]—Where the essential & principal parts of a patented machine have been imitated, such imitation will be held an infring[illegible], notwithstandin[illegible] dis-mechanical combination is not infringed unless the combination is taken in essence & in substance.—JONES v. GALBRAITH & SONS (1903), 9 B. C. R. 521. —CAN.

2390 iii. ——.]—There is infringement where pltf.'s patent bears directly on deft.'s device which does not disclose invention, & which involves the very substance of the invention covered by pltf.'s device.—PANYARD MACHINE & MANUFACTURING CO. v. BOWMAN, [1926] Exch. C. R. 158.—CAN.

o. —— Though new result produced.]—A patent for a mechanical combination, which produces a new result, is infringed if the combination is taken in essence & in substance.—SHORT v. FEDERATION BRAND SALMON CANNING CO. (1900), 7 B. C. R. 197.—CAN.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sect. 8.]

same.—DE LA RUE v. DICKENSON (1857), 7 E. & B. 738; 29 L. T. O. S. 194; 3 Jur. N. S. 841; 5 W. R. 704; 119 E. R. 1420.

2398. ——.]—This case comes before me on a motion for an interlocutory injunction upon a patent which has been already established, & therefore there is no question of the validity of the patent on this occasion, & the only question I have to decide is, whether there is a case for an injunction. Now, what is the meaning of infringement? I wish to take the law upon that subject from an address to the jury by the late Chief Justice Tindal in the case of Walton v. Potter & Horsfall, No. 2954, ante: "Where a party has obtained a patent for a new invention or a discovery he has made by his own ingenuity, it is not in the power of any other person, simply by varying in form or in immaterial circumstances the nature or subject-matter of that discovery, to obtain either a patent for it himself or to use it without the leave of the patentee, because that would be, in effect & in substance, an invasion of the right." Then comes the passage which I think is most important. The Chief Justice is speaking to the jury: "&, therefore, what you have to look at upon the present occasion is, not simply whether in form or in circumstances, that may be more or less immaterial, that which has been done by defts. varies from the specification of pltf.'s patent, but to see whether in reality, in substance, & in effect defts. have availed themselves of pltf.'s invention in order to make that fabric or to make that article which they have sold in the way of their trade; whether, in order to make that, they have availed themselves of the invention of pltf." That is, he treats it as substance. Then the question is, whether the claim made by pltf. of his machine is in substance invaded or evaded by what deft. has done. In my opinion it is. It is a deliberate attempt of a man who has seen pltf.'s patent to make in substance the same thing with a mere colourable change or variation, so that he shall not take something which can be conceived to be more or less a material part of pltf.'s specification. That being so, I think pltfs. are entitled to the injunction they ask (JESSEL, M.R.).—THORN v. WORTHING SKATING RINK CO. (1876), 6 Ch. D. 415, n.

Annotation:—Refd. Plimpton v. Spiller (1876), 4 Ch. D. 286.

2399. ——.]—A patent was obtained for "improvements in the destructive distillation of shale, etc., & in apparatus therefor." The specification stated that the "invention has for its object the economical & satisfactory obtainment & application of the heat required for the destructive distillation of shale, etc., & it comprises improved arrangements for the utilisation of the spent shale, etc., itself as fuel for supplying the heat or a portion thereof."

The claim in the specification was for—"(a) The conducting of the destructive distillation of shale, etc., substantially according to the system, & by means of the arrangements & apparatus hereinbefore described; (b) the arranging of two or more retorts in one oven, but with a separate passage or space for the transference of the contents of each retort directly in a common fire chamber, substantially as hereinbefore described; (c) the applying of a valve in the passage or space through which the contents of each retort are transferred to the common fire chamber, such valve being in addition to the door or cover which closes the discharge opening of the retort, substantially as & for the purposes hereinbefore described."

The real object of the patentee was to utilise the spent shale when drawn from the retort as fuel for the next charge, which had already been unsuccessfully attempted to be done by other patentees, &, at the same time, to provide that low & equable heat which is essential for the best results in oil distillation. To effect this satisfactorily it was necessary to pass the spent shale directly from the retort into the furnace, as by exposure to the air it was found to lose heat so much that it could not be effectively rekindled, &, at the same time, to keep the retort door from actual contact with the furnace, otherwise the door would be burned through, & the heat in the retort unduly raised. This object the patentee attained simply & effectively by the grouping of retorts in an oven over a common fire chamber, & by an arrangement of the doors of the retorts in relation to corresponding doors or valves in the roof of the furnace or fire chamber.

In an action of interdict, brought by the patentee to prevent an alleged infringement of the patent:—Held: (1) the patent sufficiently set forth an improved process for the distillation of shale by the use of certain apparatus; (2) the use of a common fire chamber was not an essential part of the invention; & (3) that the dispensing of a common fire chamber did not save the apparatus used by resps. from being an infringement of the patent, it being in other respects a colourable imitation of the complainer's apparatus.—HENDERSON v. CLIPPENS OIL CO. (1883), 10 R. (Ct. of Sess.) (H. L.) 38; sub nom. CLIPPENS OIL CO. v. HENDERSON, 8 App. Cas. 873, H. L.

2400. ——.]—DAVIS v. FELDMAN (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 75.

2401. ——.]—HAYWARD v. PAVEMENT LIGHT CO. (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 124.

2402. ——.]—HINDE v. OSBORNE, No. 2991, post.

2403. ——.]—KAYE v. CHUBB & SONS, LTD., No. 3155, post.

2404. ——.]—The grantees of a patent for improvements in type or blocks for printing posters, brought an action, alleging that deft., who had taken out a subsequent patent, infringed their patent; & that his subsequent patent was not materially different from their patent, & claiming the usual relief. Deft. denied infringement, & put in issue the validity of pltf.'s patent, alleging (a) that the claim was too vague in claiming, etc.; (b) that the specification did not particularly ascertain the nature of the invention, & how it was to be performed; (c) that the claim was not within the title; & (d) that the alleged invention was anticipated. Deft. also alleged that pltfs. were disentitled to relief on the ground of laches:—Held: pltfs.' patent was valid & had been infringed, deft.'s patent being practically the same as that of pltfs., & there had been no such laches as to disentitle the latter to relief.—SHAW v. JONES (1889), 6 R. P. C. 328.

2405. ——.]—Held: pltf. had attained a new result, a new instrument, the differences between his card & deft.'s new card were mere colourable differences introduced by the latter for the purpose of avoiding the appearance of imitation, & deft.'s second card was an infringement.—MOORE v. THOMSON (1890), 7 R. P. C. 325, H. L.

2406. ——.]—L., the owner of a patent for a chemical compound for killing beetles, etc., brought an action for infringement of this patent against H., who was using a similar compound for similar purposes. The validity of the patent was not on issue :—Held : deft. was using the patented invention with certain immaterial additions, & an injunction to restrain infringement must be granted.—LAINE v. HEROLD (1892), 9 R. P. C. 447.

2407. ——.]—The patentee of an invention of improvements in trunk locks brought an action for infringement. Deft. denied infringement, & alleged there was no subject-matter in the invention. Cast-iron locks with the staple cast solid were known, but had disadvantages; wrought metal locks were also known. It was the custom to rivet a cast staple to them, but this had disadvantages, as the cast staple worked loose. Pltf.'s invention consisted in making the staple & the loops of the hasp out of the wrought metal plate itself. Deft.'s witnesses admitted pltf.'s invention was novel & useful. Deft. himself stated it took him two years to devise his lock, which he alleged to be an improvement :—Held : pltf.'s device involved sufficient exercise of ingenuity & invention to be the subject of a patent, & deft. had infringed.—LEGGE v. WAKELAM (1893), 10 R. P. C. 379.

2408. ——.]—This was an action for infringement of a patent for improvements in & connected with angle clamps for uniting the corners of boxes of wood, cardboard, leather, & the like. Clamps for the corners of boxes were previously known, but they all had projections of some kind of greater length than the thickness of the side of the box, which projections were either sent through holes in or forced through the side of the box, & then clinched inside. Pltfs.' invention had a strip of metal with small stamped-out claws, not long enough to go through the sides of the box, & so placed that they entered the sides at an acute angle ; the clamps could be fastened on the corners by a blow, by hammer & anvil, & required no further clinching. Deft. had a strip of metal in which holes were puched so as to produce four projections at the back of each hole ; these projections formed claws, of which, at any rate, the inner ones were, from their position, substantially the same as pltfs.' claws. The deft. denied infringement, & alleged anticipation by various prior specifications. Utility was admitted :—Held : the defence of anticipation was not in any way made out ; pltfs.' invention was extremely useful ; & deft.'s strips were the same as pltfs.' & used in the same way ; & deft. had infringed.—ACT. FÜR CARTONNAGEN INDUSTRIE v. SCHROEDER (1896), 13 R. P. C. 466.

2409. ——.]—INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. DE MARE INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT SYSTEM, LTD., No. 2469, post.

2410. ——.]—Evidence was given to the effect that defts. had constructed & used a fishing apparatus similar to pltf.'s, with the difference that, instead of the metal bracket, which gave a rigid attachment, they had substituted (a) a metal post placed in the centre of the wire ropes, &, on complaint of pltf., (b) a wooden post or chock of wood similarly placed, the post or chock in each case effecting a rigid attachment. Defts. contended that their user was merely experimental :—Held : defts.' apparatus was a colourable imitation of pltf.'s ; deft.'s user was not experimental.—SCOTT v. HULL STEAM FISHING & ICE CO., LTD. (1896), 14 R. P. C. 143.

2411. ——.]—I have come to the conclusion that the applt. co. have in point of fact appropriated & used the pith & marrow of the patented invention (LORD WATSON).—GORMULLY & JEFFERY MANUFACTURING CO. v. NORTH BRITISH RUBBER CO. (1898), 14 T. L. R. 335 ; 15 R. P. C. 245, H. L. ; affg. S. C. sub nom. NORTH BRITISH RUBBER CO., LTD. v. GORMULLY & JEFFERY MANUFACTURING CO. (1896), 13 T. L. R. 217, C. A.

Annotations :—Refd. Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Tubeless Pneumatic Tyre & Capon Heaton (1898), 14 T. L. R. 341 ; Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley, [1904] 1 Ch. 164.

2412. ——.]—FABRIQUES DE PRODUITS CHIMIQUES DE THANN, ETC. v. CASPERS, No. 3191, post.

2413. ——.]—In 1893 a patent was granted for "Improvements in or connected with cases or covers for the chains or gear of velocipedes." In 1897 a co., in whom the patent had become vested, commenced an action for infringement of the same. At the trial, the only question substantially contested was that of infringement. The patentees' first claim, which was one of those alleged to be infringed, was for "A case or cover for the chain or gear of velocipedes, composed of a frame, covering the inner part of the chain gear, mounted on the bottom stay tube, & having upper & lower longitudinal guides in combination with an outer case or cover divided transversely, & adapted to take into & slide endwise upon such fixed guides, to cover the outer parts of the gear, all substantially as & for the purposes herein set forth." Defts.' gear case consisted also of two parts, one a frame almost identical with the frame described in the specification, & the other part consisting of a cover divided into parts, but divided longitudinally & not transversely. In attaching this cover to the frame there was a certain amount of sliding along the grooves on the short vertical edges of the frame. Gear cases in parts were old, but not gear cases which could be removed from the velocipede without disturbing any of the parts of the velocipede :—Held : defts. had taken pltfs.' frame & had also in substance taken pltfs.' cover, & had consequently infringed their combination. Pltfs. were granted the usual relief, but execution, except as regards the injunction, was stayed in the event of an appeal within a fortnight.—PRESTO GEAR CASE & COMPONENTS CO., LTD. v. SIMPLEX GEAR CASE CO., LTD. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 635.

2414. ——.]—Letters patent were granted to G. & G. for "Improvements in closing devices for preserve jars or other receptacles," the claim being for "A closure for preserve jars & like receptacles in which the inner part of the cover is formed with a shoulder a^1 a^2 applied to the packing material in a tangential direction & having an extension a^2 a^3 applied at a^3 against the conical rim b under the action of a vacuum produced in the interior of the vessel substantially as described." Defts. in an action for infringement denied infringement, & alleged invalidity on the grounds of prior publication, prior user, & want of utility. They contended that it was of the essence of the invention that there should be contact all round between the extension & the conical rim, & that this was not useful, & was not used by pltfs. or themselves. Pltfs. said that their cover was the first to fasten by air pressure, & gave evidence of very large sales, & denied that they had abandoned the contact :—Held : the invention was new & useful, & had been infringed.

(1) Deft. has used pltf.'s actual invention (SWINFEN-EADY, J.).—AUTOMATIC AIR-TIGHT COVER, LTD. v. STOCKFORD (1902), 19 R. P. C. 453.

2415. ——.]—The owners of the Welch Patent having brought an action for infringement, defts. denied infringement. Defts.' tyre complained of had in its edges wires which had hooks at their ends, & where the ends met there was in each edge a slotted tube. Defts. alleged that as sold & in use the hooks did not engage in the slots, & that the tyre was kept on by other forces than those in the Welch tyre, & did not depend on the inextensibility of the wires:—Held: it was not proved that in ordinary operation defts.' tyre depended on a complete engagement of the hooks in the slots, but the arrangement was one putting a limit on extensibility & securing the benefits of pltfs.' invention by a slight variation of it, & defts. had infringed.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. OSTRICH TYRE & RIM CO. (1902), 19 R. P. C. 365.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sects. 8, 9, 10 & 11.]

2416. ——.]—A patent was granted in 1898 for "Improvements in centrifugal fans & pumps." The alleged improvements consisted, in part, in employing blades of a depth not greater than about one-eighth of the diameter of the fan or pump. In an action for infringement against a co. & an individual, defts. having submitted to an injunction in respect of a fan in which the depth of the blades was about one-twelfth, made a modification in which the depth was about one-sixth. Pltf. alleged that this was an infringement. On a motion to commit individual deft. & to sequestrate the property of deft. co. it was shown that the alteration from one-eighth to one-sixth did not make a substantial difference of efficiency:—Held: defts.' fan was an infringement.—DAVIDSON v. SUN FAN CO., LTD. (1906), 23 R. P. C. 493.

2417. ——.]—The terms of the specification of a patent must be read as incorporated into an agreement of licence for the exclusive manufacture of goods made under the patent.

Applt. was assignee of a patent for the manufacture of golf balls with a core consisting of incompressible fluid, which in the specification was described as "such as water or other liquid or semi-liquid." He granted to resps. an exclusive licence for the manufacture of balls under the patent. The core of these balls was water. Resps. subsequently made & sold other balls with a core composed of gelatine & water in the proportion of fifteen to eighty-five:—Held: this core constituted an "incompressible fluid," & the balls made therewith were an infringement of the patent.—ROGER v. COCHRANE, [1909] A. C. 285; 78 L. J. P. C. 124, H. L.

·.]—See, also, Nos. 2423, 2424, post.

SUB-SECT. 9.—ATTAINMENT OF SAME RESULT.

2418. Not conclusive of infringement—Patent claiming only a particular process.]—UNWIN v. HEATH, No. 2505, post.

2419. —— Difference in method.]—Held: deft.'s invention was no infringement of pltf.'s but each was a new method of accomplishing a well known [illegible] v. PIMM (1856), 11 Exch. 718; 26 L. T. O. S. 312; 156 E. R. 1019.

Annotation:—Refd. Thomas v. Foxwell (1858), 5 Jur. N. S. 37.

2420. —— Use of different machinery.]—As pltf. is therefore confined by his disclaimer to the precise machine which he has described, & the machinery of defts. is not similar to it, though producing the same result, the jury at the trial ought to have been told, that there was no evidence of infringement (LORD CHELMSFORD).—SEED v. HIGGINS (1860), 8 H. L. Cas. 550; 30 L. J. Q. B. 314; 11 E. R. 544; sub nom. SEED v. HIGGINS, HIGGINS v. SEED, Macr. 351; 3 L. T. 101; 6 Jur. N. S. 1264, H. L.

Annotations:—Folld. Potter v. Parr (1860), 2 B. & S. 216, n. Consd. Curtis v. Platt (1863), 3 Ch. D. 135, n.; Daw v. Eley (1867), L. R. 3 Eq. 496; Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315. Refd. Nalder v. Clayton & Shuttleworth (1859), Macr. 378; Ralston v. Smith (1865), 11 H. L. Cas. 223; Daw v. Eley (1867), L. R. 3 Eq. 500, n.; Plimpton v. Spiller (1877), 47 L. J. Ch. 211; Maxim-Nordenfelt Guns & Ammunition Co. & Maxim v. Anderson (1897), 13 T. L. R. 262.

2421. —— ——.]—BROWN v. HASTIE & CO., LTD. (1906), 23 R. P. C. 361, H. L.

2422. —— Difference not an equivalent.]—POTTER v. PARR (1860), 2 B. & S. 216, n.; 121 E. R. 1053.

Annotation:—Refd. Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 2 B. & S. 194.

2423. —— Substantial identity.]—Pltfs. were patentees of an invention for "stopping bottles containing aerated or gaseous liquids by means of a cylinder or plug of hard wood, having a greater specific gravity than water, such as lignum vitæ, or other suitable material." Subsequently deft. obtained letters patent for "an improved means for effecting the closing or stopping of aerated liquid bottles," having internal stoppers of less specific gravity than the liquid contained in the bottles, the stopping being effected by means of "a weight or closing device arranged to be temporarily applied to the stopper," so that the weight of the stopper, & closing device combined, exceeded the specific gravity of the liquid contained in the bottles:—Held: deft.'s invention was a colourable imitation & an infringement of pltfs.' patent.—BARRETT v. VERNON (1876), 35 L. T. 755; 25 W. R. 343.

2424. —— ——.]—In an action for infringement of a patent for "improvements in & connected with the working of fused silica," defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds, mainly, of want of subject-matter & insufficiency of the specification. The specification described the fusing of silica by embedding a carbon core, connected to electrodes, in sand & passing an electric current through it, causing the sand round the core to fuse. In the process described, gas was formed on the surface of the core causing an "initial separation" between the core & the inner surface of the plastic cylinder. At the ends of the core the material kept close round it, hence a pressure of gas resulted, & a hollow sausage-shaped body of fused silica was obtained. The principal points urged at the trial on behalf of defts. were, that the articles complained of had not been made by means of the gas pressure & with the "initial separation" & that the directions for obtaining the "initial separation" were insufficient:—Held: the articles complained of had been made by a process the same, or substantially the same, as the patentees' invention, & defts. had infringed.—THERMAL SYNDICATE, LTD. v. SILICAWARE, LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 665.

2425. —— Same result attained by combination of known methods.]—Pltfs. were proprietors of a patent for a machine by means of which two operations heretofore done singly could be performed simultaneously. Defts. brought about the same result, & effected a similar saving of time by means of a machine constructed in a different manner which involved nothing more than a combination of old methods:—Held: defts. had not infringed pltfs.' patent.—JOHN VAREY, LTD. v. WALKER, MITCHELL & CO. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 596.

2426. —— Material difference in process.]—Injunction refused where a material difference in process of defts.—MUNTZ v. VIVIAN & WALKER (1840), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 87.

Patents of principle.]—See Sub-sect. 12, post.

See, also, Sub-sect. 8, ante.

SUB-SECT. 10.—ATTAINMENT OF DIFFERENT RESULT.

2427. Whether amounting to infringement.]—SCHERMULY v. PAIN (1901), 18 R. P. C. 529.

2428. ——.]—A patent was granted in 1903 for "Improvements in swath turners." The specification stated that the invention related to an improved swath turner wherein a series of single tines or forks was pivoted around a common axis & so arranged that each tine or fork was individually free to follow the inequalities of the ground & in turning the swath to remain in contact with the ground for a sufficient length of time to ensure the turning. An action for infringement of the patent having been brought, defts. pleaded (inter alia), that if upon the true construction of the specification, defts.' swath turner was constructed or operated in infringement of the patent, which was denied, the patent was invalid for the reasons set out in the particulars of objections. At the trial, defts. contended that their machine did not operate in the same way as pltfs.' with regard to the following of the irregularities of the ground & the long sweep obtained by the resting of the tines upon the ground. It was proved that in both pltfs.' & defts.' machines there was an increased sweep of the tines :—Held : defts.' machine did not give the same results as pltfs.' machine; the patentees in their claim referred to the device that gave the vertical movement, & not to that which gave the increased length of sweep; & defts.' machine was not an infringement.—BLACKSTONE v. BAMFORD & SONS (1909), 27 R. P. C. 125.

SUB-SECT. 11.—PATENTS POSSESSING ESSENTIAL FEATURE.

2429. Infringement dependent on inclusion of essential feature.]—NETTLEFOLDS, LTD. v. REYNOLDS (1892), 9 R. P. C. 270, C. A.; previous proceedings (1891), 65 L. T. 699, C. A.

Annotation :—Refd. Castner Kellner Alkali Co. v. Commercial Development Corpn. (1899), 68 L. J. Ch. 402.

2430. ——.]—In 1890, letters patent were granted to W. for an invention of "improvements in rubber tyres & metal rims of bicycles." The tyres described in the provisional specification were of an arch shape, & a method of fastening on by wires in the edges of the tyres was described. After describing special forms of rims, the patentee stated that his rubber tyres were applicable to wheels in present use. The provisional specification further stated that he might also fit his tyre "to the ordinary rims by modifying the inner surface of the rubbers." Pltfs. in whom the patent was vested commenced this action for infringement thereof. The alleged infringement was a rubber tyre with metal bands in pockets at the edges of it; these bands nearly met, when in position, under the air tube, the rim being almost flat at the bottom & having edges somewhat inclined inwards. The bands overlapped longitudinally, but the ends were not fastened together. Defts. alleged disconformity & non-infringement, relying as to disconformity chiefly so far as the trial was concerned on Fig. 20 of the complete specification, on which no express decision had previously been given :—Held : there was no disconformity, & the patent was valid, but defts. did not infringe it, inasmuch as in W.'s invention the tyre was held on by the inextensibility of the wires, whereas the bands in deft.'s were not inextensible & were not in tension.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. IXION PATENT PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 853.

2431. ——.]—In 1887, a patent was granted for "improvements in the manufacture of explosives." According to the provisional specification, the invention consisted "in the employment of a nitrated body such as nitrated woody matter or fibre which is dissolved in a solvent such as ether & then dried & reduced to powder." In the complete specification, the patentee claimed, first, "the manufacture of an explosive suited for use in small arms or ordnance by taking vegetable fibres, woody matters, cellulose, or the like . . . & nitrating them & then completely dissolving them in acetic ether or acetone or like solvents of equal strength, until they assume a gelatinous plastic consistency, & forming the mass into suitable shapes, & drying or allowing to dry or distilling off the solvent from the mass, & finally, when required, reducing the product to a powder or granular or other required form, with or without the use therewith of an oxygen yielding substance, or both an oxygen yielding substance & a hydro-carbon all substantially as hereinbefore described." H., in whom the patent had become vested, brought an action for infringement thereof against the S. co., who alleged want of novelty, want of subject-matter, insufficiency, disconformity, anticipation by (inter alie) publication of W.'s German patent. Defts., in their manufacture of powder, treated nitro-cellulose with acetone, but they alleged that the grated part of the fibre was not dissolved. The evidence showed that it was known at the date of the patent that nitro-cellulose could be dissolved by the substances named by the patentee; that

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 9.

2426 i. Not conclusive of infringement—Material difference in process.]—It is always open to a subsequent inventor to accomplish the same results as a former inventor by substantially different means.—DOMINION BEDSTEAD CO. v. GERTLER, [1924] Exch. C. R. 158.—CAN.

2426 ii. —— ——.]—Where resp.'s machine is substantially different from the complainer's, although producing the same results, there is no infringement.—MACKIE v. BERRY (1885), 2 R. P. C. 146.—SCOT.

p. By same means—On same principle—Different arrangement of same elements.]—COLLETTE v. LASNIER (1886), 13 S. C. R. 563.—CAN.

A device constructed on the same principle, having the same mode of operation & accomplishing the same results as another, by the same means or by equivalent means, is the same device; & one cannot escape infringement by adding to or subtracting from a patented device or machine by changing its form or making it more or less efficient while retaining its principal mode of operation.—WRIGHT & CORSON v. BRAKE SERVICE, LTD., [1925] Exch. C. R. 127.—CAN.

r. —— Difference in details only.]—CLINTON WIRE CLOTH CO. v. DOMINION FENCE CO., LTD. (1907), 27 C. L. T. 340; 11 Exch. C. R. 103.—CAN.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 10.

2427 i. Whether amounting to infringement.]—FINLAY v. ALLAN (1857), 19 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 1087; 29 Sc. Jur. 493.—SCOT.

2427 ii. ——.]—PLATE WALL SYNDICATE v. PIPES (1907), 28 N. L. R. 30.—S. AF.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 11.

2429 i. Infringement dependent on inclusion of essen ial feature.]—Where a patentee by his specification claims a particular element as being essential to his invention, there is no infringement of his patent if that element is not used by the alleged infringer.—DREW, ROBINSON & CO. v. SHEARER (1914), 18 C. L. R. 209.—AUS.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sect. 11.]

the solvents were of two classes, & one, which included acetone, dissolving both trinitro-cellulose, & dinitro-cellulose, & the other, which included ether-alcohol, dissolving dinitro-cellulose only; that the result of solution was to reduce the nitro-cellulose to an amorphous condition, although chemically unchanged, & that the solvent could be evaporated off. W.'s patent described the manufacture of cartridge cases out of an explosive material obtained by adding chlorate of potash to guncotton, drying & pouring such a quantity of collodion thereon until the saturation effected a dissolution of the cotton, & a gelatinous mass was produced:—Held: it was an essential feature of the invention that there should be complete dissolution of the fibre of the nitro-cellulose; the provisional specification included both classes of nitro-cellulose & both classes of solvents, & there was no disconformity or insufficiency of description; on the above-mentioned construction of the patent it was not shown to be anticipated, except by W.'s patent, but was anticipated by that; defts. had not infringed, since in their powder the fibre remained undissolved to a considerable extent.—HEIDEMANN v. SMOKELESS POWDER CO., LTD. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 305.

2432. ——.]—In 1893, letters patent were granted to A. for "an improvement in water closets or water closet basins," & in 1897 A. commenced an action against P. & others. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged anticipation (inter alia) by the specification of F.'s patent of 1886:—Held: the inclined pipe was of the essence of the invention, & therefore defts. had not infringed.—ALLEN v. ABRAHAM PYATT & CO. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 135, C. A.

2433. ——.]—The owners of three patents—Thomas', Trigwell's & Palmer's—brought an action for infringement of the same. The complete amended specification of Thomas' Patent, which was for "Improvements in tires & fellies for the wheels of vehicles," contained the following paragraphs:—"My invention consists of a tire made of a sheet of flexible material impervious to liquids or fluids, & such as may be caused to assume a cylindrical form in its engagement with an angular felly provided with grooves, slits, recesses or sunken channels in the side walls or edges thereof, & caused to maintain said form after inflation. . . . My invention consists also of a flexible or elastic tire capable of inflation by means of air, gas, water or other liquid or fluid, & the tire provided with two or more ribs or projections for engagement with an improved felly made in one or more parts, & adapted to receive & firmly hold the same in position in the outer face thereof by means of cement or other glutinous or adhesive material or substances." After descriptions of the drawings, the patentee stated that he made "no claim to any method of constructing tires other than such in which the tire or tire cover is made with longitudinal ribs or has enlarged edges which pass into & are held within grooves or their equivalents formed in the rim of the wheel, but subject thereto"; he claimed (6) "An inflatable tire composed of flexible material, having the sides enlarged in combination with a felly having grooves or channels in the sides or edges thereof to receive the enlargements of the tire & a tube with a cock secured into said felly, substantially as & for the purposes set forth." Trigwell stated in his complete (amended) specification that his invention related to an improved rim & tire for the wheels of velocipedes & other road vehicles; that the cross-section of the rim which he preferred to use resembled a letter Y, & continued as follows:—"The small flanges on the upper part of the rim are shaped to form small longitudinal U-shaped channels on the edges of the rim. The tire, which may be of the pneumatic or cushion type, has an outer tread, preferably arch-shaped in cross-section, & thicker at the top than at the sides. With this outer cover or tread is incorporated a lining of wire gauze or equivalent material to afford greater protection from puncturing. The edges of the arch-shaped cover or tread are made in the form of enlarged beads, & the said edges are fixed in the channels on the edges of the rim by passing a cord or band through or over each bead, the said cord or band being adapted to be drawn up taut by any suitable device." All the drawings showed U-shaped channels; the first & second claims were general claims referring back to the specification, & in the third & fourth claims a rim having longitudinal channels on its edges adapted to receive the beads was expressly mentioned as part of the combination claimed. Palmer in his Complete amended specification stated (inter alia) that his invention related to that class of fabric which was used in the manufacture of pneumatic tires; that in any fabric where the threads cross each other in immediate contact the bending, folding, twisting or other manipulation caused a sawing action, & continued:—"Primarily my fabric comprises a sheet of rubber having embedded therein, before vulcanising, parallel fibrous threads, or threads of any character capable of retaining their continuity these threads being so applied to the sheet as to be out of contact with each other. When vulcanised, or partly vulcanised, the fabric thus produced can be stretched very little, if at all, longitudinally, but can be stretched very much transversely. Two plies of such fabric are then arranged one upon the other, with the threads in one separated from the threads in the other by the rubber part of the fabric, & so arranged that the threads of one are at right angles to the threads of the other, this arrangement taking place preferably before vulcanising, so as to produce a single sheet having a double set of parallel fibrous threads, one set at right angles to the other. . . . More than two plies may be vulcanised together. Instead of vulcanising them together they may be secured in any other satisfactory way, the point of the invention being the fabric made by embedding in a sheet of rubber & vulcanising therein two or more sets of threads parallel to each other & out of contact with each other. . . . I am aware that fabrics have been made of various materials in conjunction with parallel or various plies of parallel threads for the purpose of thickening & strengthening the same, & for the purpose of resisting longitudinal strains & stretching as in driving belts & hose pipes & also in different makes of paper, & I would have it understood that I make no general claim to fabric so constructed." The claims were (1) a fabric made of two or more plies of rubber, each having embedded therein parallel fibrous threads, the threads in one ply presenting an angle to the threads in the other, no two threads being in contact, substantially as described & subject to the disclaiming note; (2) a fabric made of two or more plies of rubber, each ply having embedded & vulcanised therein substantially non-extensible parallel fibrous threads out of contact with each other, the threads in adjacent plies presenting an angle to each other, substantially as described & subject to the above disclaiming note." Defts. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patents on the grounds of (inter alia)—as to Thomas, insufficiency; as to Trigwell, prior grant to Welch; & as to Palmer, anticipation by (inter alia) prior user by M. & co. The alleged infringement was the manufacture & sale of a Welch-Dunlop tyre & rim, the tyre having an inner tube, an outer arch-shape cover with wires in its edges of less diameter than the edges of the rim within which the wires were placed. Pltfs. contended that a wide interpretation should be given to Thomas' Patent, he being the first to have, instead of a complete tube, a tyre or tyre cover in the form of a sheet of flexible material engaging with the edges of the rim so as to form with it a complete tube. They alleged that defts.' cover had enlarged edges, & that the rim had grooves in it corresponding to Thomas' enlargements & grooves respectively, & that defts. had substantially Trigwell's U-shaped channels omitting the inner side of them; also that defts. had taken the substance of Trigwell's invention, viz. the wiring on; they set up that Palmer's patent was in substance for the application of the fabric to pneumatic tyres & the like for the purpose of avoiding sawing action. The prior user set up by defts. of Palmer's invention consisted of the production of a fabric at a certain stage in the manufacture of a solid tyre, the fabrics being afterwards rolled up to form such tyre:—Held: (1) as to Thomas' patent, its claims were limited to methods of construction, in which the tyre had longitudinal ribs or enlarged edges passing into & held within grooves or their equivalents, & defts.' tyre had no ribs or any enlargements that performed the function of Thomas' enlargements, nor had defts.' rim any grooves equivalent to Thomas' grooves, & defts. had not infringed this patent; (2) as to Trigwell's patent, it was a narrow patent for the particular combination, & on that construction defts. had not infringed, but, no new evidence having been given to materially alter the case as to the validity of the Welch Patent, which patent was prior in date to Trigwell, the question of infringement did not arise; (3) as to Palmer's patent, that it was a patent for a fabric; "embedding" meant that each thread was to be buried in the rubber so as to be kept out of contact with the ones parallel to it, & vulcanisation was essential; the threads in defts.' fabric were in close contact with one another, & defts., not having "embedding" nor vulcanisation, did not infringe; furthermore, the patent was invalidated by the prior user of M. & co.—PALMER TYRE, LTD. v. PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 451.

2434. ——.]—Held: The patent was invalid for want both of novelty & invention & even if valid deft. had not infringed as grooving before bending the felt was of the essence of the invention.—COOPER & CO. (BIRMINGHAM), LTD. v. BAEDEKER (1900), 17 R. P. C. 209, C. A.

2435. ——.]—In 1893 a patent was granted for "Improvements in or connected with cases or covers for the chains or gear of velocipedes." In 1889 a co., in whom the patent had become vested, commenced an action for infringement of the same. The patentee's first claim, which was one of those alleged to be infringed, was for "A case or cover for the chain or gear of velocipedes composed of a frame, covering the inner part of the chain gear, mounted on the bottom stay tube, & having upper & lower longitudinal guides in combination with an outer case or cover divided transversely & adapted to take into & slide endwise upou such fixed guides, to cover the outer parts of the gear, all substantially as & for the purposes herein set forth." The fourth claim was for "The general construction, arrangement, & combination of parts composing my improved cases or covers for the chain or gear of velocipedes, all substantially as & for the purposes herein described with reference to the accompanying drawings":—Held: although detachable gear cases were old at the date of the patent, a divided case, in which one part was to be attached to the frame, & the other was a movable part which fitted into the fixed part, was new; sliding in fixed guides was not of the essence of the invention as described; & even if defts. did not infringe the first claim, they infringed the fourth claim, which was wider than the first claim, & claimed the substantial & important parts.—PRESTO GEAR CASE & COMPONENTS CO., LTD. v. ORME, EVANS & CO., LTD. (1900), 18 R. P. C. 17, C. A.

2436. ——.]—The owners of the Welch patent, having brought an action for infringement of the same, defts. denied infringement. The tyre complained of by pltfs. had in its edges wires, each of which had an overlap of more than half the circumference, & had its end joined by a spiral spring, & on either side of such spring loops were formed which projected through the canvas pocket, & which could be connected by hooks with the loops in the other wire. Defts. contended that the edges of the tyre were extensible:—Held: in operation the wires acted as practically inextensible wires, & defts. had infringed.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. UNITED RUBBER WORKS, LTD., & WOOD (1902), 19 R. P. C. 406.

2437. ——.]—An action was brought for an infringement of letters patent granted for "Improvements in studs, solitaires, & the like." The specification described a stud in two parts, the head having a bifurcated stem attached to it with enlargements at the lower end of the stem, which, when in place, engaged under a shoulder formed in the lower portion; a small central pillar passed through the centre of the head, &, when pushed down, kept the parts of the bifurcated stem apart & kept them engaged with the shoulder. The bottom of the central pillar was slightly enlarged, so that, when it was withdrawn to disengage the stud, it could not be drawn through the head of the stud, but drew the head off. The essential element was stated in the specification, to consist in the use of the central pillar, which, by forcing & keeping apart the arms of the bifurcated stem, ensured the engagement of the projections underneath the shoulder. The claim was:—In studs, etc., "consisting of two separate parts, the means of locking & releasing the two separate parts, constructed, arranged, operated & controlled by the action of the central pillar as described & illustrated & for the purpose set forth." Deft.'s stud was also made in two parts, a head & lower portion, & the shank of the head had an aperture through it, communicating with a hollow in the base; there was a central pin or pillar in two parts, the parts having a spring action between them with a tendency to spring outward, & one having an enlarged end; when the central pin was pushed in this part, by reason of the spring action, penetrated through the hole in the shank into the base, thus preventing the shank from being withdrawn; the central pillar could be withdrawn from the head. Defts. denied validity & infringement. At the trial the defence of non-infringement was mainly relied on:—Held: defts. had not taken the essential element claimed, namely, the central pillar described in the specification, & in their stud there was no bifurcated stem, no projection, & no shoulder, & they had not infringed.—COLLINS (C. H.) & SONS v. GREEN & CADBURY, LTD. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 217.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sects. 11 & 12.]

2438. ——.]—HAMER v. HAWORTH, No. 3222, post.

2439. ——.]—The owners of letters patent for "Improvements in the manufacture of non-conducting coverings or insulations for heat & sound applicable for walls, floors, ceilings, & the like" commenced an action for infringement of the patent. The first claim of the specification was as follows:—"A non-conducting covering or insulation for walls, floors, ceilings or the like, comprising a plurality of independent units or slabs, each composed of a primary layer of tough organic material such as compressed cork or cork substitute, coated on what will be the inner face of the slab with a secondary layer of oxychloride or Portland cement in a plastic state & pressed into one inherent mass & dried the said units or slabs being applied to or built up against the surface to be protected & bound together by a jointing composition." Before the date of the patent there was known & used a method of constructing insulating linings for cold storage chambers which consisted in lining the inside of the chamber with slabs of compressed cork which were attached to the walls, etc., of the chamber by Portland cement or other means & afterwards covering the lining with a layer of cement in a continuous sheet, both Portland cement & oxychloride having been commonly used. The defences relied upon were non-infringement, & want of novelty by reason of prior publication, prior public user, & prior common general knowledge, & want of subject-matter: —Held: upon the true construction of the specification, it was an essential part of all the claims, alleged to have been infringed by defts., that the units or slabs of tough organic material to which a secondary layer of cement is applied in a plastic state should thereupon be compressed by pressure applied to the cement layer, so as to form one coherent mass, & defts. had not employed the method of compression by pressure described in the specification, & accordingly defts.' process did not constitute an infringement of the patent.—J. D. INSULATING & REFRIGERATING CO., LTD. v. ANDERSON (THOS.), LTD. (1923), 41 R. P. C. 1.

2440. Adoption of material part of process.]—RUSSELL v. LEDSAM, No. 1675, ante.

Ascertainment of essential feature of specification.]—See No. 2474, post.

Combination possessing a novel component.]—See Sub-sect. 13, D., post.

SUB-SECT. 12.—PATENTS OF PRINCIPLE.

2441. Infringement as of other patents.]—Several cases were cited to show the canons of construction on which the cts. have acted in different cases relating to infringements. But it is not necessary for me to deal with these cases in detail, for I desire emphatically to state that, in my view, one principle only governs all the cases, whether they relate to so-called "master" patents, or patents dealing with discoveries in matter of principle, or to any other kind of patent; & that principle is this: In order to make out infringement, it must be established, to the satisfaction of the ct., that the alleged infringer, dealing with what he is doing as a matter of substance, is taking the invention claimed by the patent: not the invention which the patentee might have claimed if he had been well advised as holder, but that which he has in fact & substance claimed on a fair construction of the specification (ROMER, J.).—NOBEL'S EXPLOSIVES CO., LTD. v. ANDERSON, "CORDITE" CASE (1894), 10 T. L. R. 277; 11 R. P. C. 115; affd., 10 T. L. R. 599, C. A.; (1895), 11 T. L. R. 266, H. L.

Annotations:—Refd. Marconi & Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. British Radio-Telegraph & Telephone Co. (1911), 27 T. L. R. 274; Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369; Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239; Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. Mullard Radio Valve Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323.

2442. Protection of principle if coupled with mode of effecting it.]—You cannot take out a patent for a principle. You may take out a patent for a principle coupled with a mode of carrying the principle into effect, provided you have not only discovered the principle but invented some mode of carrying it into effect. But then you must start with having invented some mode of carrying the principle into effect. If you have done that, then you are entitled to protect yourself from all other modes of carrying the same principle into effect, that being treated by the jury as a piracy of your original invention (ALDERSON, B.).—JUPE v. PRATT (1837), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 144; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 274.

Annotations:—Consd. Automatic Weighing Machine Co. v. Knight (1889), 6 R. P. C. 297; British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Simon Collier (1908), 25 T. L. R. 74. Refd. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (1883), 24 Ch. D. 156; Easterbrook v. G. W. Ry. (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 81; Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1888), 4 T. L. R. 686; Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Tubeless Pneumatic Tyre & Capon Heaton (1898), 14 T. L. R. 341.

2443. ——.]—UNWIN v. HEATH, No. 2505, post.

2444. ——.]—(1) E. & H., as owners of a patent for "Improvements in machinery & apparatus for actuating & controlling railway points & signals," the main object of which was to prevent points & signals being set antagonistic to each other, brought an action against the G. W. Ry. co. for infringement by using certain apparatus. The co. denied the alleged infringement, & set up the invalidity of the patent, upon, among other grounds, absence of utility in the invention. They proved at the trial that pltfs.' apparatus could be so worked as to give conflicting signals, or signals conflicting with the points:—Held: the patent was invalid, as pltfs.' invention described by the specification was not only not useful but dangerous, but even if the patent were valid, defts. had not infringed, as the patent was not for locking the catch rods of a signalling apparatus in any way, but only in the way described in the specification, & the catch rods in defts.' apparatus were locked in a different way to that in which the catch rods in pltfs.' apparatus were locked.

It is not the fact that with this apparatus, tried in its simplest form & under the easiest conditions, you may go on for a good while without accident, but the alleged fact that it is safe under all circumstances that constitutes the particular kind of usefulness needed & aimed at in such

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 12.

t. General rule.] — A patent of invention of machinery may be infringed by the use of a machine dissimilar in appearance, if the principle patented be interfered with.—PINKERTON v. COTE (1886), M. L. R. 3 Q. B. 133; 10 L. N. 365.—CAN.

2442 t. Protection of principle if coupled with mode of effecting it.]—MERRILL v. COUSINS (1866), 26 U. C. R. 49.—CAN.

apparatus, & further, the specification here points to its universal application for railway signalling, including its use at the most complicated junctions & sidings. If it be useful for one very small & insignificant section of its proposed work & for the rest is, as in my opinion it is proved to be, fraught with danger & death, the specification is bad, as "not distinguishing between its useful & useless applications" (WILLS, J.).

(2) It appears to me to be pretty clear upon the authorities that although there cannot be a patent for an idea or a principle apart from its physical embodiment in adequate apparatus, yet, that, if the specification discloses the idea, shows a method by which it can be carried out, & does not limit the claim of the patentee, any apparatus which by different mechanical means carries out the same idea is an infringement of the patent (WILLS, J.).—EASTERBROOK v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1885), 2 R. P. C. 201; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 81.

2445. ——.]—As regards principle, the patentee discovered a very remarkable new manufacture & described its essential conditions, & pointed out how it was to be performed, & indicated some practical modes of carrying it into effect, & the law does not require him to describe every way of carrying it out, or limit the protection it confers to the modes particularly described. If defts. place a diaphragm in their apparatus which performs the function of the diagram in pltfs.' apparatus, they cannot escape the charge of infringement by making a non-essential variation in the position, material, or form of the diaphragm (NORTH, J.).—UNITED TELEPHONE CO., LTD. BASSANO & SLATER (1886), 2 T. L. R. 459; 3 R. P. C. 295; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 220; affd., 2 T. L. R. 840, C. A.

2446. ——.] — The owners of a patent for improvements in weighing machines which consisted substantially in the application of coin-receiving mechanism to weighing mechanism, brought an action alleging infringement & asking for an injunction. Deft. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid on the ground (inter alia) of want of subject-matter & anticipation:—Held: (1) pltfs. were not entitled to claim every combination of coin-receiving mechanism & weighing mechanism, as that would be in effect a claim for a principle, & they did not so claim, but only for every combination of substantially the same mechanism as their own.

A patent cannot be taken out for a principle. It can only be taken out, if in addition to the principle shown, the patentee shows some mode of carrying that effectually into operation (COTTON, L.J.).

(2) The essential part of pltf.'s machine was the introduction of the break in the weighing & indicating part of the mechanism, so that the index did not operate to show the weight on the dial till the coin was inserted.

(3) Deft.'s mechanism was different in that it had a stop which prevented the machine being set in operation till a coin was put in, which was in effect equivalent to putting a lock on his machine.

(4) Though both attained the same result by the operation of the coin process, it was in a different way, & deft. had not infringed & the difference of automatism was immaterial.—AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO. v. KNIGHT (1889), 5 T. L. R. 359; 6 R. P. C. 297, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (1) Reld. Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Tubeless Pneumatic Tyre & Capon Heaton (1893), 14 T. L. R. 341. As to (4) Foll. Ticket Punch Register Co. v. Colley's Patents (1895), 12 R. P. C. 171. Reld. Higginson & Arundel v. Pyman, Higginson & Arundel v. Pyman (1926), 43 R. P. C. 291.

2447. ——.]—PETERS v. OWEN, No. 2360, ante.

2448. ——.]—The law on this subject is free from doubt & I do not know that it has been better stated than it was by ANDERSON, B., in the well-known case of Jupe v. Pratt, No. 2442, ante (LORD DAVEY).—CHAMBERLAIN & HOOKHAM, LTD. v. BRADFORD CORPN. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 673, H. L.

Annotations:—Reld. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Simon Collier (1908), 25 T. L. R. 74: Crosfield v. Techno-Chemical Laboratories (1913), 29 T. L. R. 378; Moore Filter Co. v. Great Boulder Proprietary Gold Mines (1921), 38 R. P. C. 239.

2449. ——.]—BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. THOMPSON, No. 970, ante.

2450. —— Principle must be for new process of attaining new result.]—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. LEVINSTEIN, No. 2944, post.

2451. —— ——.]—In an action for infringement of a patent, if the merit of the invention consists in the idea or principle which is embodied in it & not merely in the means by which that idea or principle is carried into effect, the patentee must show that the idea or principle is new; & must fail if the merit of his invention lies merely in a new combination of known features.

Where applts., patentees for improvements in hose-coupling, had produced a coupler of pipes or hose attached to two railway cars, so as to secure a steam-tight fastening which would permit an automatic separation of the two ends when the cars were uncoupled; while resp.'s coupler was in all material respects the same as applts.' & produced the same result, but omitted the use of one particular feature called a "rib" or hinge joint, which was proved to have been a very material element in the success of applts.' coupler, their specification showing that they never contemplated its omission or that their invention could be operated without it:—Held: there had been no infringement, for respt.'s coupler was shown to have been a different & a new way of achieving the end contemplated by applts.' coupler.—CONSOLIDATED CAR HEATING CO. v. CAME, [1903] A. C. 509; 72 L. J. P. C. 110; 89 L. T. 224; 19 T. L. R. 692; 20 R. P. C. 745, P. C.

Annotation:—Reld. Re Van Berkel & Booth (1906), 23 R. P. C. 573.

2452. —— ——.]—It appears from the judgment of ANDERSON, B., in Jupe v. Pratt, No. 2442, ante, approved by the House of Lords in Chamberlain & Hookham, Ltd. v. Bradford Corpn., No. 2448, ante, that though you cannot take out a patent for a principle, yet if the principle is new, & you show one mode of carrying it into effect, you may protect yourself against all other modes of carrying the principle into effect. If, however, the principle is not new, you can only protect yourself against those modes of carrying it into effect which are substantially the same as the mode you have yourself invented, the question in each case being what is the pith & marrow of the invention sought to be protected, & it being impossible to treat any principle already known as part of such pith & marrow (PARKER, J.).—BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. SIMON COLLIER, LTD. (1908), 25 T. L. R. 74; 26 R. P. C. 21; on appeal (1909), 25 T. L. R. 415, C. A.; (1910), 26 T. L. R. 587, H. L.

2453. —— Pioneer patent.]—LAMBERT v. INTERNATIONAL PHONOGRAPH INDESTRUCTIBLE RECORD CO., LTD. (1904), 48 Sol. Jo. 261, C. A.

2454. —— Improvements immaterial.] — (1) A claim to a principle to be carried into effect in any way you will is a claim to the principle. The principle of this invention is, that you are to use hot air instead of cold. At the trial the notice of objections must be proved.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sects. 12 & 13, A.]

(2) If the invention consist in applying the air heated while in transitu, then, however great the improvement which defts.' apparatus may be on that described in the specification, it is no less an infringement.—NEILSON v. HARFORD (1841), 8 M. & W. 806; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 295; 11 L. J. Ex. 20; 151 E. R. 1266.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1888), 4 T. L. R. 686; Ticket Punch Register Co. v. Colley's Patents (1895), 12 R. P. C. 171; Pneumatic Tyre Co. & Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Tubeless Pneumatic Tyre & Capon Heaton (1898), 14 T. L. R. 341. As to (2) Refd. Crane v. Price (1842), 12 L. J. C. P. 81; Unwin v. Heath (1855), 5 H. L. Cas. 505. Generally, Refd. Cook v. Pearce (1844), 8 Q. B. 1054; Stead v. Williams (1844), 7 Man. & G. 818; Allen v. Rawson (1845), 1 C. B. 551; Millingen v. Picken (1845), 1 C. B. 799; Beard v. Egerton (1846), 3 C. B. 97; Beard v. Egerton (1849), 8 C. B. 165; Hull v. Bolland (1856), 27 L. T. O. S. 221; Hills v. London Gas Light Co. (1860), 5 H. & N. 312; Betts v. Menzies (1862), 10 H. L. Cas. 117; Hill v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288; Simpson v. Holliday (1865), 5 New Rep. 340; Stoner v. Todd (1876), 4 Ch. D. 58; Re North Western Rubber Co. & Hüttenbach, [1908] 2 K. B. 907; British Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. L. & S. W. Ry. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 309. Mentd. Berwick v. Horsfall (1858), 4 C. B. N. S. 450; Peek v. North Staffordshire Ry. (1863), 10 H. L. Cas. 473; Lewis v. G. W. Ry. (1877), 47 L. J. Q. B. 131.

2455. —— ——.]—WARD BROTHERS (BLACKBURN), LTD. v. MOORE & AVERY (BLACKBURN), LTD., No. 2648, post.

2456. Use of equivalents.]—At the trial the pltfs. alleged infringement of four of the claims, & substantially the only contest was as to the construction of the claims & as to infringement. In the described form of pltfs.' apparatus molten type metal was injected into a mould & then pushed forward by a reciprocated plunger; the mould was left empty after each cast & the product consisted of a continuous strip of metal built up of successive casts, each cast being welded on to the one preceding it. In deft.'s apparatus molten metal was introduced at one end of a mould, & intermittently worked grippers pulled forward the strip of metal produced. The mould was never emptied. Deft. contended that his process was a continuous process involving no break in the continuity of the strip & no re-fusion of the metal once it had solidified, & that it differed from the patented process, which was an intermittent one & involved re-fusion of the solidified metal in order to weld the succeeding cast on to it:—Held: upon the evidence a break occurred in deft.'s process, & the purpose of the intermittence in both pltfs.' & deft.'s operation was to allow the metal to cool & contract sufficiently to pass through the mould; there was sufficient subject-matter in pltfs.' invention to support a wide construction of pltfs.' specification; the patent was for a process & also was for apparatus; deft.'s process was similar in essentials to the process described in pltfs.' specification & it was carried out in an apparatus, which qua the essentials of the process as described, as distinct from the described apparatus, produced the product desired by equivalent means; a cast was none the less ejected from the mould because it was drawn out by traction instead of being pushed from behind.—LANSTON MONOTYPE CORPN., LTD. v. SLATTERY (1925), 42 R. P. C. [illegible]

SUB-SECT. 13.—PATENTS OF COMBINATION.

A. In General.

2457. Patent is for combination—Not for component parts.]—Letters patent were granted for "improvements in agricultural machines." The specification claimed the construction of reaping or grain cutting & gathering machines, according to improvements described—viz. "the constructing & placing of holding fingers, cutting blades, & gathering reels respectively in a manner described, & the embodiment of these parts as so constructed & placed, all or any of them, in machines for reaping purposes." In an action for the manufacture & sale of cutting blades similar to pltf.'s:—Held: there was no infringement, the patent having been granted for the combination of the parts into a machine, & not for the several parts themselves.—MCCORMICK v. GRAY (1861), 7 H. & N. 25; 31 L. J. Ex. 42; 4 L. T. 832; 9 W. R. 809; 158 E. R. 377.

Annotation:—Apld. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley, [1904] 1 Ch. 164.

2458. —— ——.]—In a patent for an arrangement & combination of parts so as to form an entire machine, & not for any particular part of the machine, protection will not be given to a particular part, the advantages of which are altogether collateral to the invention for which protection is claimed by the specification, & which would not in itself be patentable.—PARKES v. STEVENS (1869), 5 Ch. App. 36; 22 L. T. 635; 18 W. R. 233, L. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Murray v. Clayton (1872), 7 Ch. App. 570; Harrison v. Anderston Foundry Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 574. Refd. Clark v. Adie (1875), 10 Ch. App. 667; Thomson v. Moore (1889), 6 R. P. C. 426.

2459. ——.]—The patentee of an apparatus to be used in manufacturing wine glasses brought an action for infringement of this patent, & by his particulars of breaches alleged that defts. were using the process described in the specification. Defts. denied infringement, & put in issue the validity of the patent, & alleged prior user of the invention by several persons:—Held: (1) the process described in the particulars of breaches was not that which pltf. claimed to have invented; (2) according to the true construction of the specification the patent was one for a particular combination; (3) defts. had not used this combination, & had not therefore infringed; (4) the prior user gone into was proved.—RICHARDSON v. CASTREY & GEE (1887), 4 R. P. C. 265.

2460. —— Combination of chemical substances—Restriction to proportions specified.]—MAXIM-NORDENFELT GUNS & AMMUNITION CO. & MAXIM v. ANDERSON (1898), 14 T. L. R. 487; 15 R. P. C. 421, H. L.

2461. —— —— Unless components novel—& claimed in specification.]—(1) Where a patent is taken out for an invention consisting of the combination in one thing of several subordinate parts, the question whether or not a person taking & using a certain number of such parts & omitting others has taken the substance of the invention &

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 13.—A.

2457 i. Patent is for combination—Not for component parts.]—MACDONALD v. FRASER (1894), 11 R. P. C. 169.—SCOT.

2457 ii. —— ——.]—LYNCH v. PHILLIPS & Co. (1909), 25 R. P. C. 694; 26 R. P. C. 389.—SCOT.

a. Substitution of well known equivalent part.]—If an alleged infringer omits one element of the combination he does not infringe the combination; but if instead of omitting an element he substitutes a well-known equivalent he, in fact, uses the combination.—BARNETT-MCQUEEN CO. v. CANADIAN STEWART CO. (1910), 13 Exch. C. R. 186.—CAN.

b. Use of some new & ..... parts.]—A patent for a combination thereby infringed the patent is a question not of law, but of fact, to be decided by the jury or ct. with reference to the circumstances of the particular case.

(2) Where a patent is taken out for a combination, it will protect the several subordinate parts & all subordinate combinations of such parts, provided the subordinate parts or combinations be themselves properly subjects for a patent, & also provided that it is clearly & precisely defined by the specification what are the subordinate parts or combinations of parts in respect of which, as well as the entire combination, protection is claimed.

A patent was taken out for "improvements" in a machine for clipping horses & other animals: one of the improvements relied upon was the combination in the machine of four things, viz.—the arching of the cutter-plate so as to give elasticity; the use of fixed stems instead of screws to connect the cutter-plate & comb-plate; the adjustment of certain nuts & washers so as to prevent friction; the mode of communicating motion to the cutter-plate so as to bring it into the true time of cutting. The first item was not described or referred to in the specification, but was merely shown by certain drawings attached to the specification; each of the three other items was admitted to have been well known & used in the trade; the specification did not contain any distinct claim in respect of the combination:—Held: the specification was not sufficient, & the combination of the four items was not protected by the patent.—CLARK v. ADIE (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315; 46 L. J. Ch. 585; 36 L. T. 923; 26 W. R. H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Proctor v. Bennis (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740. As to (2) Consd. Dudgeon v. Thomson (1877), 3 App. Cas. 34; Cropper v. Smith (1884), 1 R. P. C. 81; Ellington v. Clark, Bunnett (1887), 58 L. T. 40. Apld. Muirhead v. Commercial Cable Co. (1894), 12 R. P C. 39; Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. De Mare Incandescent Gas Light System (1896), 13 R. P. C. 559; Consolidated Car Heating Co. v. Came, [1903] A. C. 509; Patent Exploitation v. Siemens (1904), 21 R. P. C. 549. Expld. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley, [1904] 1 Ch. 164. Apld. Sirdar Rubber Co. v. Wallington, Weston, [1905] 1 Ch. 451. Distd. Hattersley v. Hodgson (1906), 23 R. P. C. 193. Apld. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631; Harrison Patents Co. v. Nicholson (1908), 25 R. P. C. 393. Consd. Pugh v. Riley Cycle Co. (1914), 31 R. P. C. 266. Refd. Thomson v. Moore (1889), 6 R. P. C. 426; Dowler v. Keeling (1898), 14 T. L. R. 257; Leeds Forge Co. v. Deighton's Patent Flue & Tube Co. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 487; Van Berkel v. Booth (1906), 23 R. P. C. 573; Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. Mullard Radio Valve Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323. Generally, Refd. Gosnell v. Bishop (1888), 4 T. L. R. 397.

2462. Use of subordinate part—Such part new & material.]—(1) A patent for a combination does not import a claim that each of its parts is new; & the patent may be valid though each part is old.

(2) The use of a subordinate part only of a combination may be an infringement of a patent for the combination if the part so used be new & material.—LISTER v. LEATHER (1858), 8 E. & B. 1004; 27 L. J. Q. B. 295; 4 Jur. N. S. 947; 120 E. R. 373, Ex. Ch.; affg. (1857), 3 Jur. N. S. 811.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Lister v. Eastwood (1864), 9 L. T. 766. Dbtd. Harrison v. Anderston Foundry Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 574. Consd. Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315. Dbtd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631. Refd. Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 2 B. & S. 194; Thomson v. Moore (1889), 6 R. P. C. 426.
(1857), 7 E. & B. 725. Distd. Parkes v. Stevens (1869), 5 Ch. App. 36. Consd. Saxby v. Clunes (1874), 43 L. J. Ex. 228. Refd. Thomas v. Foxwell (1858), 5 37; Wright v. Hitchcock (1870), L. R. 5 Exch. 37. Generally, Refd. Betts v. Menzies & Wildey (1860), 6 Jur. N. S. 1290; Soc. Anon. des Manufactures de Glaces v. Tilghman's Patent Sand Blast Co. (1883), 25 Ch. D. 1; Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley (1904), 91 L. T. 40.

2463. Use for different purpose—Of combination.]—To adopt a combination of machinery or arrangement of apparatus originally directed, to one purpose, & to use it for another & additional purpose, is an infringement of the patent which first introduced that combination or arrangement.—CANNINGTON v. NUTTALL (1871), L. R. 5 H. L. 205; 40 L. J. Ch. 739, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. East London Rubber Co. (1896), 75 L. T. 488. Refd. Re Gaulard & Gibbs Patent (1890), 7 R. P. C. 367; Vickers v. Seddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292; Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 10 R. P. C. 34.

—— Of essential part.]—See Sub-sect. 13, D., post.

2464. Use of some component parts—Whether substance of patent adopted—Question of fact.]—CLARK v. ADIE, No. 2461, ante.

2465. Combination giving same result—But of different elements.]—NEEDHAM & KITE v. JOHNSON & Co. (1884), 1 R. P. C. 49; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 168, C. A.

2466. Use of combinations with colourable variations.]—EHRLICH v. IHLEE & SANKEY, No. 2519, post.

2467. ——.]—The owner of a patent for improvements in gas lamps brought an action against M. & co. alleging infringement & asking for the usual relief. Defts. denied infringement & put in issue the validity of the patent. The only material difference between their combination & that of pltfs.' was, that whereas in pltfs.' lamp there were gauze coverings placed in two distinct positions & serving the purpose of moderating & equalising the currents of air, in defts.' lamp there was only one gauze covering, which did not occupy precisely the same position as either of the two in pltfs.' lamp, but which, according to the evidence, answered the same purpose, although less effectively. The allegation of invalidity was abandoned by defts. at the bar:—Held: having regard to the evidence & to the fact that upon the specification the equalising of the currents by the gauze, rather than the exact position of the gauze, appeared to be the aim of the invention, defts.' combination was an infringement of pltfs.'—WENHAM CO., LTD. v. MAY & Co. (1887), 4 R. P. C. 303.

2468. ——.]—The proprietors of a patent granted for an invention in respect of "Improvements in & connected with vacuum cleaners" brought an action for infringement. Claim 1 of the complete specification was as follows: "A vacuum cleaner consisting of a single acting bellows the upper end of which is provided with a handle & is slidable with the said handle on a central stale or handle secured to the lower end of the said single acting bellows, which lower end forms part of a chamber containing a porous bag & having a lid provided with a tube extending into the said bag, which tube serves to receive a nozzle, both the said upper & lower ends of the said single acting bellows being provided with suitable valves." Deft. denied that he had infringed & alleged that the patent was invalid by reason (inter alia) of prior publication & want of subject-matter. It was contended on behalf of deft. that several improvements is infringed the adoption & use of some new & material part of those improvements.—[illegible] (1879), 6 Nfld. NFLD.

c. ——.]—A valid patent for an entire combination for a process gives protection to each part thereof, which is new, & material for that process.—BUTLER v. ADAMJI BAHUBA (1904), I. L. R. 26 All. 96.—IND.

d. All essential & characteristic parts must be used.]—If a patent is for a combination, there is no infringement unless all the essential & characteristic the nature of the patent was such that the patentee must be held strictly to what he had claimed & that, if the claim was wide enough to include the alleged infringing article, the patent was invalid for want of subject-matter:—Held: pltf.'s patent was for the combination of six elements; the deft.'s machine contained every element of the said combination with the exception that the position of the exhaust valve in the bellows was different; the difference was insufficient to distinguish the two machines; & the deft.'s machine was an infringement.—ROTH v. CRACKNELL (1921), 38 R. P. C. 120.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sect. 13, A., B. & C.]

2469. —— Chemical equivalent.]—In 1885, a patent was granted to W. for the manufacture of an illuminant appliance for gas & other burners. For this purpose, he stated in his specification that he employed a compound of oxide of lanthanum & zirconium, or of these with oxide of yttrium; that instead of using oxide of yttrium, ytterite earth, & instead of oxide of lanthanum, cerite earth, containing no didymium & but little cerium might be employed. The process described consisted in impregnating a fabric with a solution of nitrates or acetates of the oxides, exposing it to ammonia gas, & afterwards burning off the fabric, leaving the earthy matters in the form of a skeleton hood or cap. He claimed "the manufacture, substantially as herein described, of an illuminant appliance for gas & other burners, consisting of a cap or hood made of fabric impregnated with the substances mentioned & treated as set forth." Pltfs., in whom this patent had become vested, commenced an action for infringement against defts., who were threatening to make & sell fringes of threads to be used as illuminant appliances. The substances which deft. threatened to use for making the fringes consisted of certain salts of zirconium & magnesium, & as alleged by them, nitrate of erbium, but, as alleged by pltfs. from analyses, a soluble salt of the oxides of the yttrium group. The process was substantially that of pltfs., by impregnating with a solution of the salts, & after burning off the carbon of the threads in the flame, leaving an earthy residuum in the form of the threads; but the ammoniation was omitted. Defts. contested the validity of the patent on several grounds:—Held: patentee claimed a combination of his whole process, including the use of lanthanum; defts. though omitting the use of lanthanum, had taken the substance of patentee's process & had infringed.—INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. DE MARE INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT SYSTEM, LTD. (1896), 12 T. L. R. 495; 13 R. P. C. 559, C. A.

Annotation:—Distd. Crosfield v. Techno-Chemical Laboratories (1913), 29 T. L. R. 378.

2470. Use with differences.]—MOORE v. BENNETT, No. 2946, post.

2471. —— One integer having no counterpart in plaintiff's apparatus.]—HIGGINSON & ARUNDEL v. PYMAN, SAME v. SAME, No. 2389, ante.

B. New Combination producing New Result.

2472. General rule.]—(1) Where a patent has been granted for a combination which produces a new result, the patent is infringed if in substance & in essence the combination is taken.

(2) In an action by P., patentee of a stoking machine, for infringement against persons who had purchased stoking machines made by B., it was proved that before the purchase P., knowing that they were going to set up stoking machines, went to them & asked them to try his machine, saying that they would find it a better machine than B.'s, without giving any intimation that he considered B.'s machine to be an infringement of his patent, though he admitted that he did at that time consider it to be so & intended to take legal proceedings when he was in funds:—Held: as the purchasers did not depose that when they bought B.'s machines they were ignorant of P.'s patent, nor was there any reason to believe that they were ignorant of it, or that P. supposed them to be so, P. had not on the ground of acquiescence or estoppel lost his right to sue them for an infringement in using B.'s machines, it not being the duty of a patentee to warn persons that what they are doing is an infringement, & P.'s conduct not amounting to a representation it was not an infringement.—PROCTOR v. BENNIS (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740; 57 L. J. Ch. 11; 57 L. T. 662; 36 W. R. 456; 3 T. L. R. 820; 4 R. P. C. 333, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Automatic Weighing Machine Co. v. Combined Weighing Machine Co. (1888), 6 R. P. C. 120; Automatic Weighing Machine Co. v. Knight (1889), 6 R. P. C. 297; Thomson v. Moore (1890), 6 R. P. C. 426. Apld. Muirhead v. Commercial Cable Co. (1894), 12 R. P. C. 39: Ticket Punch & Register Co. v. Colley's Patents (1895), 11 T. L. R. 262; Perry v. Soc. des Lunetiers (1896), 13 R. P. C. 664; Akt. Separator v. Dairy Outfit Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 327. Consd. Consolidated Car Heating Co. v. Came, [1903] A. C. 509. Apld. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Thompson (1905), 22 R. P. C. 175. Consd. Van Berkel v. Booth (1906), 23 R. P. C. 573. Refd. Gosnell v. Bishop (1888), 4 T. L. R. 397; Proctor v. Sutton Lodge Chemical Co. (1888), 5 R. P. C. 184; Boyd v. Horrocks (1889), 6 R. P. C. 152; Crampton v. Patents Investment Co. (1889), 6 R. P. C. 287; Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Anderson (1894), 11 R. P. C. 519; Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. De Mare Incandescent Gas Light System (1896), 13 R. P. C. 559; Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. Sunlight Incandescent Gas Lamp Co. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 333; Presto Gear Case & Components Co. v. Simplex Gear Case Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 635; Van Beskel v. Simpson (1906), 23 R. P. C. 237; Lynch & Wilson v. Phillips (1909), 25 R. P. C. 694; Roth v. Cracknell (1921), 38 R. P. C. 120.

2473. ——.]—The owners of letters patent for "Improvements in machinery for breaking pig iron" brought an action for infringement. The patentees in their specification described mechanism for feeding the mass in position, clamping it, breaking off pigs from the sow, & breaking the sow, & for each of these operations they described plungers working in ram cylinders. In their first claim they claimed the machine comprising the four rams for the four operations, substantially as described. The specification stated that plungers, instead of being operated by hydraulic power, might be actuated by steam or other motive agent. In defts.' machine the operations were effected by means of eccentrics, toggle links, levers & cams, off a mechanically driven shaft, whereas pltfs.' machine had no revolving parts. The question of infringement turned on the point whether the claims were confined to machines such as described & operated by means of rams, or whether they included machines with similar or analogous working parts operated by means of a power driven shaft:—Held: pltfs. could only claim the invention specified, that is, the machine with four rams for four definite purposes, & defts. had not infringed.

I have always taken the view so far, that when you get an absolutely new result, carried out by new machinery, it is just—I object to use the word "benevolent"—to construe the specification features of the patented combination are used.—GWYNNE v. DRYSDALE & Co. (1886), 13 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 684; 23 Sc. L. R. 465.—SCOT.

e. Omission of material part.] —STONE & CO., LTD. v. BROADFOOT & LTD. (1909), 26 R. P. C.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. —B.

f. Commercial success—Not to achieved.]—GENERAL ENGINEERING as describing the essential operations to be performed in order to carry the invention into effect. If you find that the alleged infringer has taken a known mechanical substitute, but the operations described in the specification are being carried out, infringement is established. . . . Under these circumstances when you find a new operation successfully carried out, the construction to be put on such a specification ought to be to give a patentee the fair benefit thereof, if he has not so limited his claim that anything whereby the same sequence of operations is carried out cannot fairly be said to come within it (LORD ALVERSTONE, C.J.).—MARTIN & JAMES v. CONSETT IRON CO., LTD. (1907), 25 R. P. C. 27, C. A.

2474. ——.]—Where the patent is for a combination of parts or a process, & the combination or process, besides being itself new, produces new & useful results; every one who produces the same results by using the essential parts of the combination or process is an infringer, even though he has, in fact, altered the combination or process by omitting some unessential part or step & substituting another part or step, which is, in fact, equivalent to the part or step he has omitted (PARKER, J.).

The question here, again, is a question of the essential features of the invention said to have been infringed. If that part of the combination, or that step in the process for which an equivalent has been substituted, be the essential feature, or one of the essential features, then there is no room for the doctrine of equivalents, & to ascertain the essential features of an invention, the specification must be read & interpreted by the light of what was generally known at the date of the patent (PARKER, J.).—MARCONI & MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. BRITISH RADIO-TELEGRAPH & TELEPHONE CO., LTD. (1911), 27 T. L. R. 274; 28 R. P. C. 181.

Annotations:—Refd. Fellows v. Lench (1916), 34 R. P. C. 45; Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369. Mentd. Amalgamated Properties of Rhodesia (1913), Ltd. v. Globe & Phœnix Gold Mining Co. (1916), 116 L. T. 111.

2475. ——.]—A patent was granted in 1900 for "Improvements in apparatus for wireless telegraphy." One of the claims was for "A transmitter for electric wave telegraphy consisting of a spark producer having its terminals connected through a condenser with one circuit of a transformer, the other circuit being connected to a conductor & to earth or a capacity the time period of electrical oscillations in the two circuits being the same or harmonics of each other." In a previous action, Marconi & Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co., Ltd. v. British Radio-Telegraph & Telephone Co., Ltd., No. 2474, ante, for infringement of the patent, it was held that the invention consisted in the substitution for a single circuit, in both transmitter & receiver, of a pair of circuits, one radiating or absorbing readily, & the other oscillating persistently & being a conserver of energy, the two circuits being tuned together, & linked by means of a transformer, so that electrical oscillations in the closed & persistently oscillating circuit built up & maintained similar oscillations in the open & readily vibrating secondary, & the two circuits of the receiver, with similar interaction, being tuned to the same time-period as the circuit of the transmitter; that the invention was useful, & the patent was valid; that the claim was for a new combination producing a new result, & the two-coil transformer was not an essential part of the invention, & that defts., notwithstanding the fact that they had used an auto-transformer, had infringed. In a subsequent action for infringement of the patent it was proved that defts.' apparatus was, for electrical purposes, identical with that previously held to be an infringement except for the introduction into the primary circuit of two additional spark gaps & a through-charging coil. Defts. contended that in their apparatus the working was improved, as the presence of the spark gaps substantially reduced the length of the primary wave train, & after the primary had ceased to oscillate, the secondary continued to oscillate:—Held: it was not an essential feature of the invention that the primary should persistently replenish the secondary with energy, & maintain the radiating secondary; in both pltfs.' & defts.' installations the primary oscillations died down before the secondary oscillations ceased, & the question was one of degree, depending largely on the radiator employed; defts. had in substance taken the patented invention & had infringed; the invention had not been anticipated; & the patent was valid.—MARCONI v. HELSBY WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO. (1914), 30 T. L. R. 688; 31 R. P. C. 399.

C. New Combination producing Known Result.

2476. Patent restricted to particular combination—Use of mechanical equivalents.]—CURTIS v. PLATT, No. 2479, post.

2477. —— ——.]—The assignees of a patent for improvements in machinery for rolling metals, brought an action for suspension & interdict against alleged infringers, on the ground that the material part of a patented combination had been used by them. The material part consisted of a tilter, forming a convenient means for turning & moving transversely across the feed roller bars, or slabs of metal when being conducted along the feed rollers towards the grooves of the rolls. The specification further described improved arrangements of hydraulic apparatus acting on ingots, or blooms, or masses of metal after each passage between the rolls, "so as to turn or assist in moving them into the positions for passing through the successive grooves of the rolls," according to two alternative modifications, in both of which vertical hydraulic cylinders, with lifter heads attached to their rams, were distinctive features for actuating, by a direct upward thrust, the tilting process by which the metals were turned into their positions for passing through the rolls. The machinery used by defenders embraced an oscillating vertical hydraulic cylinder, which was claimed to be a mechanical equivalent for the stationary vertical hydraulic cylinder in pursuers' patent. Defenders maintained there were substantial differences, as they used two carriages & four hydraulic cylinders, instead of one carriage & two cylinders. Alternatively pursuers alleged that their fourth claim for the combination of the fixed horizontal hydraulic cylinder, or cylinders, with the traversing vertical hydraulic cylinder, substantially as & for the purposes hereinbefore described, was infringed:—Held: applts.' invention consisted in the substitution of a combination of mechanical equivalents for the mechanism previously known & used for attaining the same end, they, therefore, could not claim mechanical equivalents as infringements, & nothing could be an infringement unless in

---

v. DOMINION COTTON AMERICAN STOKER CO. . C. R. 309; 20 C. L. T. AN.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 13. —C.

g. Same result by well-known equivalents—Not colourable evasion.]—Where an invention relates to the production of an old result by means of a novel combination of old parts, or to substance identical; resps.' apparatus was not identically the same as applts.', as resps.' lifters operated in concert & not separately, & the duplication of carriages & cylinders was advantageous, if not necessary, for the effective working of their lifters, consequently there was no infringement; as to the alternative claim, to support this applts. required to extend their claim to the combination in any apparatus for shifting metal, however differing in other respects, & the claim from its language could not be so extended.—MILLER & CO. v. CLYDE BRIDGE STEEL CO., LTD. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 470, H. L.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sect. 13, C. & D.]

2478. —— ——.]—Pltf. was the owner of a patent for an automatic electric time check, & brought this action for infringement of his patent. Time checks were old, & pltf.'s invention was of a special combination of parts. Defts. were working under a subsequent patent for time-checking apparatus. They denied infringement & alleged the invalidity of pltf.'s patent:—Held: (1) the question of infringement was whether defts. had taken, with slight variations or mechanical equivalents, the substance of pltf.'s combination; in the present case, even if pltf. & defts. had the same object, which was doubtful, defts. had not taken the substance of pltf.'s combination, & the action was dismissed, with costs; (2) although the question of the validity of the patent was not decided, several of the particulars of objections relating to the question of validity were allowed as reasonable.—JARDINE v. KING MENDHAM & CO. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 411.

2479. —— Adoption with slight variation.]—(1) Where an invention consists of the discovery of particular means for attaining a result, which result is already perfectly well known, the invention is only for the means; & the invention of one set of particular means does not interfere with the invention of another set of means to the same end, provided that the two sets of means are distinct, & the latter does not involve a colourable imitation of the former, or an incorporation of the former, with additions.

(2) Ignorance of the existence of a former invention is no answer to a charge of infringement, where the second invention is capable of being accurately represented as an imitation of the former.

(3) Where an inventor described his invention as improvements applicable to certain machines commonly known as self acting mules, particularly those constructed with the improvements of L. & R. & a second inventor having taken the same elements of construction produced a new combination of agents, arriving at the same result, but by a process of thought in which he did not appear to have derived assistance from his knowledge of the former invention, there was held to be no infringement.—CURTIS v. PLATT (1864), 3 Ch. D. 138, n.; 11 L. T. 245; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 144, L. C.; affd. (1866), 35 L. J. Ch. 852, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Adie v. Clarke (1876), 3 Ch. D. 134. Apld. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (1883), 24 Ch. D. 156. Distd. Proctor v. Bennis (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740; Thomson v. Moore (1889), 6 R. P. C. 426. Apld. Boyd v. Horrocks (1889), 6 R. P. C. 152; Miller v. Clyde Bridge Steel Co. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 470; Nettlefolds v. Reynolds (1892), 9 R. P. C. 270; Ticket Punch & Register Co. v. Colley's Patents (1895), 11 T. L. R. Harrison Patents Co. v. Nicholson (1908), 25 R. P. C. [illegible]. Refd. Gosnell v. Bishop (1888), 4 T. L. R. 397; Jahncke v. Boll (1891), 9 R. P. C. 94; Presto Gear Case & Components Co. v. Simplex Gear Case Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 635; British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Thompson (1904), 22 R. P. C. 177. As to (3) Refd. Akt. Separator v. Dairy Outfit Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 327. Generally, Refd. Murray v. Clayton (1873), 21 W. R. 498; Siddell v. Vickers (1888), 39 Ch. D. 92.

2480. —— ——.]—(1) The evidence of experts is legitimate and important to inform the ct. what are or are not mechanical equivalents. (2) Pltfs. in this action were proprietors of a patent for an invention of "improvements in apparatus for cancelling & registering cheques," chiefly used for omnibus bell punches, & defts. were proprietors of a subsequent patent for similar objects. Pltfs. alleged that defts.' bell punches were infringements of pltfs.' patent. Defts. denied this. In pltfs.' machine, when the ticket was inserted in position to be punched, it moved a rod sliding longitudinally in the punch, & thus turned a lever & disengaged it from a stop wheel. Until the lever was disengaged the apparatus could not be set in motion. The conductor then pushed another rod & so caused a ratchet wheel to rotate & act by a tooth on another lever, which effected the punching, & the registering & bell-ringing mechanism were effected at the same time by the shaft & another tooth of the ratchet wheel. The insertion of the ticket, therefore, by releasing the stop-wheel unlocked the machine. In defts.' machine, after the ticket was inserted, the conductor pressed down a handle & so pushed forward the punch; a rod sliding in the punch was moved forward to the ticket by a spring & was stopped by the ticket; the punch was still pushed forward, as the handle was pressed further down, & carried on with it the other parts of the machinery; as the rod was kept stationary by the ticket, the other parts of the machinery carried on by the punch moved forward on the rod & dropped on to a lower part of it, & so engaged with the bell-ringing & registering apparatus; the handle pressed further down forced the punch through the ticket & the rod was then pushed by its spring through the hole, & the forward movement of the rod raised up the other part of the machinery again to its original position. If the ticket were not inserted, the handle, if lowered, would work the punch forward & with it the rod & the other machinery, but as the rod would not be stopped by the ticket, the other machinery would not fall & engage with the bell-ringing & registering devices. In effect, the inserted ticket formed a part of the machine when in operation, but did not unlock the machine:—Held: pltfs. only claimed for a combination to bring about a known result & were therefore confined to their special combination; defts. had not taken pltfs.' combination in substance, with colourable variations, but had invented a substantially different combination, & had therefore not infringed.—TICKET PUNCH & REGISTER CO., LTD. v. COLLEY'S PATENTS, LTD. (1895), 11 T. L. R. 262; 12 R. P. C. 171, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. De Mare Incandescent Gas Light System (1896), 13 R. P. C. 559.

2481. —— ——.]—JARDINE v. KING MENDHAM & CO., No. 2478, ante.

2482. —— ——.]—The owners of a patent for a cigar piercer brought an action for infringement

---

a machine utilising an old principle or system, the patentee is protected only in respect of the particular means specified & set forth in his specifications & claims; & in such circumstances it may be no infringement to achieve the same result by the use of well-known equivalents, provided it is not a mere colourable evasion.—GERRARD WIRE TYING MACHINE CO., LTD. v. LAIDLAW BALE-TIE CO., LTD., [1926] 4 D. L. R. 5; [1926] Exch. C. R. 193.—CAN.

h. Material & characteristic parts not adopted.]—WALLACE v. JACK (ALEXANDER) & SON, LTD. (1905), 22 R. P. C. 581.—SCOT.

The alleged infringing cigar piercer differed in some details from the patented article; in particular it had not a tubular scoop-like cutter. Defts. at the trial relied mainly on anticipation, insufficiency of description in the specification, & non-infringement. At the trial it was held, that the patent was for the particular cigar piercer described in the specification & delineated in the drawings; that the patent had not been anticipated & that the specification was sufficient; & that, although the patent was confined to the machine described, defts. had infringed, as they had taken the patented machine with immaterial differences:—Held: the patent was for a combination to obtain a known result & was valid, but defts. had not taken pltf.'s combination & had not infringed.—HARDMUTH v. BAKER & SON (1904), 22 R. P. C. 66, C. A.

2483. —— —— "Colourably."]—(1) When a combination of instruments is the invention patented, an infringement of the patent must be an infringement of the combination.

(2) A patentee having altered his specification by disclaimer, lodged a complaint against certain manufacturers for breach of an interdict granted anterior to the disclaimer:—Held: the patentee ought to have instituted a new action; & although the instrument of the manufacturers was intended to execute the same work, it was no infringement; although it was cognate, it had not the characteristic feature of the patentee's invention.

Applt.'s invention as it stood before the disclaimer may have been new, useful, & legal, but it might not have been so under the altered specification. After the disclaimer the question of enforcing the old interdict could not be entertained (LORD CAIRNS, C.).

(3) The phrase "colourably" is very apt to mislead in these cases. If part of the property in the invention be really taken there is an infringement, however much that may be disguised (LORD BLACKBURN).—DUDGEON v. THOMSON (1877), 3 App. Cas. 34, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Miller v. Clyde Bridge Steel Co. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 470; Ticket Punch & Register Co. v. Colley's Patents (1895), 11 T. L. R. 262; Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 39 R. P. C. 3. As to (2) Consd. Thomson v. Moore (1889), 6 R. P. C. 426. As to (3) Apld. Automatic Weighing Machine Co. v. Knight (1889), 6 R. P. C. 113, 297. Refd. Ellington v. Clark, Bunnett (1887), 58 L. T. 40; Higginson & Arundel v. Pyman, Same v. Same (1926), 43 R. P. C. 291. Generally, Refd. Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. De Mare Incandescent Gas Light System (1896), 13 R. P. C. 301; Harrison Patents Co. v. Nicholson (1908), 25 R. P. C. 393 Re Kenrick & Jefferson's Patent (1911), 29 R. P. C. 25.

2484. —— Adoption with distinct variation.]—A patent for a mechanical arrangement whereby a particular operation may be performed for a particular purpose, the parts of the apparatus so arranged not being new in themselves, but thus first combined for that particular purpose, is not infringed by the adoption of the same arrangement or combination of parts for a similar purpose, if the mode of operation is sufficiently distinct & different on principle from that which was described or claimed in the patent & the object achieved is also sufficiently distinct or novel & does not form an essential part of the patent.—SAXBY v. CLUNES (1874), 43 L. J. Ex. 28, H. L.

-.]—In 1891, letters patent were granted to I. for an "Improved apparatus employed in the manufacture of artificial stone," & in the amended specification the patentee, after describing his apparatus, stated that he desired it to be understood that he was aware that it was not novel to employ a steam chamber containing high pressure steam in the manufacture of artificial sandstone; or to submit a mixture of slaked lime & sand to the action of high pressure steam in a closed chamber; or to mix & mould sand & caustic lime in a dry state, & then to allow the mixture to absorb water or steam; or to submit a mixture of sand & lime in moulds to pressure by applying weight thereto while subjected to the action of high pressure steam; & that he made no claim to any such apparatus separately; or to either of such processes separately, but he claimed "an apparatus for the production of artificial stone, consisting of a closed chamber within which moulds, or boxes charged with a mixture of caustic lime & sand are subject to high pressure steam, the moulds being so placed together that they offer each other mutual support to withstand the bulging strain produced by the expansion of the lime in slaking, while the strain which is transmitted to the outermost surfaces is effectually resisted in the one direction by circular rings, & in the other direction by stay bolts, substantially as described." In 1893, letters patent were granted to A. for "Improvements in & connected with moulding boxes for the manufacture of artificial stone." The patentee claimed a system of moulding boxes, one of the features of which was that the bottom & side plates of the boxes were held together by plates forming the common ends of the system. Both patents became vested in P. who brought an action for infringement of the same. Defts., besides raising questions as to validity, denied infringement. Defts. used their moulds in a pile, which was tied together by rails or girders at the top & bottom connected at the ends by tie-rods, the latter, however, did not touch or support the ends; they employed no circular rings, stay-bolts or end plates. It was contended for pltf. that the principle of Proctor v. Bennis, No. 2472, ante, was applicable to I.'s specification, since it was based on a new process. I.'s specification had already been construed by the Ct. of Appeal:—Held: the principle of Proctor v. Bennis, No. 2472, ante, did not apply to I.'s specification & neither patent had been infringed by defts.—PETERS v. OWEN STONE CO., LTD. (1899), 17 R. P. C. 80.

D. Combination of Old and New Features.

2486. Infringement depends upon user of novel part.]—BODMER v. BUTTERWORTH (1846), 7 L. T. O. S. 224.

2487. ——.]—There may be a patent for a combination of old & new mechanism; & such patent will be infringed by using so much of the combination as is material; & it will not be less an infringement because the result is attained by the substitution of a mechanical equivalent.—SELLERS v. DICKINSON (1850), 5 Exch. 312; 20 L. J. Ex. 417; 15 L. T. O. S. 163; 155 E. R. 134.

Annotations:—Consd. Lister v. Leather (1858), 8 E. & B. 1004. Apld. Thomson v. Moore (1889), 6 R. P. C. 426. Refd. Holmes v. L. & N. W. Ry. (1852), 12 C. B. 831; Wren v. Weild (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 730.

2488. ——.]—It is an infringement of patent for a combination, parts of which are material & new, to take a part which is new material & apply it to a machine which employs mechanical equivalents for other parts of the process described in the specification.—BOVILL v. KEYWORTH (1857), 7 E. & B. 725; 29 L. T. O. S. 194; 3 Jur. N. S. 817; 5 W. R. 686; 119 E. R. 1415.

Annotations:—Refd. Thomas v. Foxwell (1858), 5 Jur. N. S. 37; Bovill v. Goodier (2) (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 195; Bovill v. Smith (1868), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 49.

2489. ——.]—A patent was granted to an invention for the purification of gas by means of precipitated or hydrated oxides of iron, & the specification stated the mode of obtaining such oxides. The use of a natural substance containing precipitated oxide of iron was held not to be an infringement of the patent; but upon this substance being revivified in the manner described in the specification, an injunction to restrain the use of the substance so revivified was granted.—HILLS v. LIVERPOOL UNITED GASLIGHT CO. (1862), 32 L. J. Ch. 28; 7 L. T. 537; 9 Jur. N. S. 140, L. C.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sect. 13, D. & E.; sub-sect. 14.]

Annotation:—Refd. Barrett v. Vernon (1876), 35 L. T. 755.

2490. ——.]—If a patent be taken out for an invention by means of a combination, the use of a subordinate part of the combination is no infringement of the patent, unless such part is new & material.—WHITE v. FENN (1867), 15 L. T. 505; 15 W. R. 348.

2491. ——.]—Now I come to the infringement. The infringement does not make use of that part of the described invention. What is the result? Not, I agree, that you at once say that there is no infringement which would enable shifty persons dealing with a patent, which consisted of several meritorious parts, if they happened to be described with the conjunction " & " to use any of them or all but one of them, & to say that they had not infringed because they had not infringed all: that would not be the result; but I apprehend the true result is that you must show that that which had been infringed & made by the alleged pirate is a use in his machine of such part of that which is described in the specification as could stand by itself in respect of invention, & in respect of use as the subject of a distinct patent (WILLES, J.).—TATHAM v. DANIA (1869), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 213.

2492. ——.]—Pltfs., as owners of two patents, one dated in 1881 & the other in 1884, both being for improved safety gear for starting engines, brought an action against defts. for infringement of these patents. The defence was that the patents were not valid, but if they were that defts. had not infringed them:—Held: whether the patent of 1884 was for a combination of old mechanical means for a new & useful purpose, or a combination of old means & a new essential part, defts. had not imitated the whole or an essential part of pltfs.' invention, & they had not infringed the patent of 1881.—MUSGRAVE & SONS v. HICKS, HARGREAVES & CO. (1886), 3 R. P. C. 49.

2493. ——.]—Separate parts not in themselves novel & common to both pltfs. & defts., had been taken by defts. & combined by them in a different way, so as in the result to produce what, in his opinion, was not an infringement but a separate machine (COTTON, L.J.).

The idea of stretching trousers was not new at all & there was no novelty in the use of a screw for that purpose. The idea was old & the principle was old & the invention, if it was to be upheld, must be for the particular machine described (LINDLEY, L.J.).—GOSNELL v. BISHOP (1888), 5 R. P. C. 151; 4 T. L. R. 397, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Auster v. Perfecta Motor Equipments (1924), 41 R. P. C. 482; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1924), 41 R. P. C. 241.

2494. ——.]—AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO. v. KNIGHT, No. 2446, ante.

.]—The patentee of an apparatus for softening of water & preventing incrustation brought an action for i...ringen The claim in pltf.'s specification was for the apparatus as fully set forth & described in the specification & drawings. The apparatus consisted of a number of vegetable fibres bent round a small ring so that the ends on each side of the ring were the same length, & to keep them in position a plate was put on each side of the ring, & these plates were screwed tight by a bolt running through them. The apparatus was put into boilers & the lime in the boiling water was deposited on the apparatus instead of on the bottoms & sides of the boiler. Deft.'s apparatus consisted of fibres bent round a wire which was twisted into a circular shape, & there was a device in metal which clipped the ends of the fibres & kept them in position. Deft. said there was no infringement, & alleged that pltf.'s patent was invalid on the ground that pltf. claimed the parts of which his apparatus was composed as well as the combination, & that these parts were old:—Held: pltf. simply claimed his whole combination, the patent was valid & had been infringed, the essential part being taken with mechanical equivalents for some of the parts.—PECKOVER v. ROWLAND (1893), 10 R. P. C. 234, C. A.

2496. —— User for different purpose.]—A patent was taken out for causing sheets of metal to be passed through molten zinc in such a way as to secure their complete immersion. This was effected by the sheets passing between rollers in contact with metal kept molten in a suitable pot. Another mode was by causing the sheets to be passed under a bar placed below the surface of molten metal, in combination with certain guides. Qu.: whether a bar alone, when so placed for the purpose of ensuring complete immersion by passing sheets of metal under it, is the proper subject of a patent. Semble: if the patent is good for the bar alone, the use of the bar by defts., though for a purpose different from that of pltfs., is an infringement.—MOREWOOD v. TUPPER (1855), 3 C. L. R. 717; 24 L. T. O. S. 278.

2497. —— ——.]—Where a patent is for a combination, a person who takes a new & material part of the combination, but does not apply it to a similar purpose to that for which it was applied in the patented combination, does not infringe the patent.—LISTER v. EASTWOOD (1864), 9 L. T. 766.

2498. Equivalent of novel part cannot be used.]—MARCONI & MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. BRITISH RADIO-TELEGRAPH & TELEPHONE CO., LTD., No. 2474, ante.

E. Combination the Only Novel Feature.

2499. Protection only for combination.]—DUDGEON v. THOMSON, No. 2483, ante.

2500. Infringement by use of equivalents.]—A patent was granted for " Improvements relating to lubricating apparatus." The apparatus was of the kind known as grease guns or ejectors, used for forcing lubricating grease or oil into the joints & bearings of motor vehicles & other machinery, & had for its object to provide improved means for effecting a grease or oil-tight detachable connection between the ejector & the part to be lubricated, & preventing escape of grease or oil

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 13.—E.

k. General rule.]—Where a patent is claimed, not for a discovery or invention, but simply for a combination of a number of old & known materials, it is no infringement of the patent to use a part of this combination.—LUSK v. MILLER (1872), N. B. Dig. 574.—CAN.

l. ——.]—In a patent for a combination of old elements, the subject matter of the patent is the combination itself taken as a whole, which cannot be infringed unless the whole combination be used, without omitting any element which the inventor from the ejector after disconnection. The claim was as follows: "In lubricating apparatus of the kind described the combination with a screwed fitting which receives lubricant from an ejector & is provided with a spring controlled valve, of a screwed union provided internally with a cup leather which passes over the exterior of the fitting to form a grease or oil tight joint, & a valve which is pressed off its seating in the union by contact with the said fitting to permit the passage of lubricant, & which on disconnection of the union returns to its seat under pressure & closes the outlet, the whole being constructed substantially as described & illustrated. In an action for infringement of the patent, it was proved that pltfs.' apparatus could be used with pressures much greater than any previously used for the purpose, & that it had had a great & immediate commercial success. Defts. did not allege anticipation of the invention, but they contended that the patent was bad for want of subject-matter; that the claim was extremely narrow; & that defts. had not infringed because (inter alia) an essential part of pltfs.' device was a cup leather, & that the washer used in defts.' device was not a cup leather. Pltfs. alleged that defts.' washer, when in use, became a cup leather, & that defts. had taken pltfs.' combination:—Held: the claim was not extremely narrow; all the particulars of pltfs.' combination were old, but the combination was new; the invention was useful, & the patent was valid; the defts.' device was a colourable imitation of pltfs.' or, if that was not so, that defts. had infringed by the use of equivalents for the similar parts in pltfs.' apparatus.—BENTON & STONE, LTD. v. DENSTON (T.) & SON (1925), 42 R. P. C. 284.

See, also, Sub-sect. 13, C., ante.

SUB-SECT. 14.—EQUIVALENTS.

2501. Definition.]—ECCLES & BRIERLY v. GREGOR, No. 200, ante.

2502. ——.]—BATEMAN v. GRAY, No. 2974, post.

2503. ——.]—That phrase "mechanical equivalent" according to my experience in patent cases, is always used when a man intends to disguise something else which he cannot clearly express in any other way (BLACKBURN, J.).—JOHNSON v. RYLANDS (1873), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 138.

2504. Whether equivalent an infringement—New equivalent.]—UNWIN v. HEATH, No. 2505, post.

2505. —— Equivalent known at date of patent.]—Where a patent has been obtained for the use of a known substance, described by its specific name, & it is afterwards discovered that the use of two other & equally known substances will produce the same effect, though the evidence of scientific men may go to show that the two substances become, in the act of so using them, the one substance described in the patent, their use will not constitute an infringement of the patent.

A. obtained a patent for an improved mode of manufacturing cast steel by the use of "carburet of manganese." This substance was well known, but was very expensive. At the time the patent was taken out, it was known that carburet of manganese might be obtained from the combination of two inexpensive articles, oxide of manganese & coal tar. Some little time after the patent had been in existence, it was found that if oxide of manganese & coal tar were put into the melting pot with the metal, cast steel would be produced equal to that which was produced by the aid of the "carburet of manganese." Some of the witnesses said that the carburet was produced in the melting pot at the instant of the fusion of all the ingredients therein contained:—Held: the use of these two articles in that manner was not an infringement of the patent.—UNWIN v. HEATH (1855), 5 H. L. Cas. 505; 16 C. B. 713; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 279; 25 L. J. C. P. 8; 26 L. T. O. S. 141; 3 W. R. 625; 10 E. R. 997, H. L.; revsg. S. C. sub nom. HEATH v. UNWIN (1852), 12 C. B. 522, Ex. Ch.

Annotations:—Distd. Renard v. Levinstein (No. 3), (1865), 11 L. T. 766; Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. De Mare Incandescent Gas Light System (1896), 13 R. P. C. 301. Consd. Marconi & Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. British Radio-Telegraph & Telephone Co. (1911), 27 T. L. R. 274. Apld. Vidal Dyes Syndicate v. Levinstein (1912), 29 R. P. C. 245; Follows v. Lench (1916), 34 R. P. C. 45. Refd. Heath v. Smith (1854), 3 E. & B. 256; Booth v. Kennard (1856), 1 H. & N. 527; De la Rue v. Dickenson (1857), 7 E. & B. 738; Higgins v. Seed (1858), 8 E. & B. 771; Seed v. Higgins (1858), 32 L. T. O. S. 42; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (1885), 29 Ch. D. 366; Edison Bell Phonograph Corpn. v. Smith & Young (1894), 11 R. P. C. 389; Act. für Anilin Fabrikation in Berlin v. Levinstein (1921), 38 R. P. C. 277.

2506. —— Equivalent not known at date of patent.]—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. LEVINSTEIN, No. 2944, post.

2507. —— Equivalents for details.]—AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO. v. NATIONAL EXHIBITIONS ASSOCN., LTD., No. 3272, post.

2508. —— ——.]—Held: deft. had infringed pltf.'s patent by substituting a mechanical equivalent for pltf.'s weighted lever.—AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO. v. FEARLY (1893), 10 T. L. R. 22; 10 R. P. C. 442.

2509. —— Equivalent for one stage in process.]—I doubt whether the substitution of a known mechanical equivalent for producing a step in the patented process can ever negative infringement unless in some respects it betters the step (VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J.).—BUNGE v. HIGGINBOTTOM & CO., LTD. (1902), 19 R. P. C. 187, C. A.

2510. ——.]—NEWTON v. GRAND JUNCTION RY. CO., No. 311, ante.

2511. ——.]—The owner of a patent for an improvement in carriage lamps, by which the candle tube was prevented from falling out, brought an action for infringement. The patentee's object was effected by means of a flat sliding bolt engaging with a knob on the tube; the bolt was pushed in by the coachman's hand, or simply by shutting the lamp door. Deft. had a sliding bolt, which was made to catch a collar on the tube by a spring. In both cases the sliding bar was kept in its place so long as the door of the lamp was shut. Deft. did not dispute the validity of the patent, but merely denied infringement:—Held: deft. had merely substituted a mechanical equivalent, & the appeal should be dismissed.—HOWES & BURLEY v. WEBBER (1895), 13 R. P. C. 39, C. A.

2512. ——.]—The owners of the Welch Patent for "Improvements in rubber tyres & metal rims or felloes of wheels for cycles & other light vehicles," having brought an action for infringement, deft. denied infringement. The fourth considered material.—CAMPE v. CONSOLIDATED CAR HEATING CO. (1901), Q. R. 11 K. B. 103.—CAN.

PART XIV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 14.

2501 i. Definition.]—The tests of equivalency are identity of function, & substantial identity of ways of performing that function.—HOSIERS, LTD. v. PENMANS, LTD., [1925] Exch. C. R. 93.—CAN.

m. Whether equivalent an infringement—Mechanical equivalent.]—WOODWARD v. CLEMENT (1885), 10 O. R. 348.—CAN.

n. ——.]—PATRIC v. SYLVESTER (1876), 23 Gr. 573.—CAN.

Sect. 1.—What constitutes infringement: Sub-sects. 14 & 15. Sect. 2: Sub-sect. 1, A.] claim of pltfs.' specification was for "a rubber or elastic tyre having the form of a saddle or arch in section lined with canvas in combination with two wires or sufficiently inelastic cores for securing the same to the rims or tyres, substantially as herein described." Deft. had an arrangement partly of string & partly of wire in the edges of his tyre, which he contended was not the equivalent of & did not perform the functions of pltfs.' wires or inelastic cores, & did not in use lie in the same position in the rim:—Held: deft. had infringed.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. HYDE RUBBER CO. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 208.

—— Combination for producing known result.]—See Sub-sect. 13, C., ante.

—— Combination for producing new result.]—See Sub-sect. 13, B., ante.

—— Combination the only novel feature.]—See Sub-sect. 13, E., ante.

—— Equivalent of novel feature in combination.]—See Sub-sect. 13, C., D., E., ante.

—— Patent of principle.]—See Sub-sect. 12, ante.

2513. Chemical equivalent.]—K., in effect, had taken the same substance as B. & treated it with an oxidisable substance, which was within pltfs.' patent, using pltfs.' process, & obtaining pltfs.' result, & had infringed.—LEONHARDT & CO. v. KALLÉ & CO. (1895), 12 R. P. C. 103.

Annotation:—Distd. Crosfield v. Techno-Chemical Laboratories (1913), 29 T. L. R. 378.

2514. ——.]—INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. DE MARE INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT SYSTEM, LTD., No. 2469, ante.

——.]—See Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 11.

SUB-SECT. 15.—IMPROVEMENTS.

2515. Whether an infringement.]—RUSSELL v. LEDSAM, No. 1675, ante.

2516. ——.]—UNWIN v. HEATH, No. 2505, ante.

2517. ——.]—(1) A patent for a new combination of machinery for a specified process is not a claim that each part thereof is new.

(2) A patent for an improvement on an invention already the subject of a patent, if confined to the improvement, is not an infringement of the former patent.

(3) A patent for a combination for a specified process may be infringed without using the whole combination for that process: & if deft. takes & uses one of such subordinate parts, which is new & material in pltf.'s process, such user may be an infringement, although the other subordinate parts were not taken or used, & such user of one subordinate part which is new & material may be an infringement, whether the other subordinate parts forming the whole are new or old.

(4) In an action for the infringement of a patent for a new combination of machinery it is correct to lay it down to the jury that the workman applying the invention must be taken to know the former specification, referred to in the specification of the patent in question.

(5) Deft. having given notice to admit a large number of specifications of other patentees, &, besides these, all specifications of pltf., a judge made an order on deft. to give the names & dates of the specifications of pltf. intended to be used, or that they should be excluded. Deft. then gave notice for all pltf.'s specifications between 1840 & 1850:—Held: this was not a compliance with the judge's order, & evidence of a specification of pltf. in 1840 was properly excluded, & it having been tendered to disprove novelty, it could not be read to the jury as possibly bearing upon the construction of the specification in issue on the trial.—LISTER v. LEATHER (1857), 8 E. & B. 1004; 29 L. T. O. S. 142; 3 Jur. N. S. 811; 5 W. R. 603; 120 E. R. 373; affd. (1858), 8 E. & B. p. 1031, Ex. Ch.

Annotations:—As to (2) Refd. Parkes v. Stevens (1869), 5 Ch. App. 36. As to (3) Consd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631. Refd. Thomas v. Foxwell (1858), 5 Jur. N. S. 37; Harrison v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 6 Jur. N. S. 993; Wright v. Hitchcock (1870), L. R. 5 Exch. 37. Saxby v. Clunes (1874), 43 L. J. Ex. 228; Harrison v. Anderston Foundry Co. (1876), 1 App. Cas. 574; Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315; Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley (1904), 91 L. T. 40. Generally, Refd. Bovill v. Keyworth (1857), 7 E. & B. 725; Betts v. Menzies & Wildey (1860), 6 Jur. N. S. 1290; Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 2 B. & S. 194; Soc. Anon. des Manufactures de Glaces v. Tilghman's Patent Sand Blast Co. (1883), 25 Ch. D. 1.

2518. ——.]—A manufacturer who professes to sell to the public a machine under his own name, as one with all the newest improvements, will not be restrained from selling same on an allegation that it is an infringement of pltfs.' patent for a machine which was an old machine, but which had not the modern improvements to it.—WILLCOX & GIBBS SEWING MACHINE CO. v. WOOD (1869), 20 L. T. 10.

2519. —— Where invention taken in substance.]—The grantee of a patent for improvements in mechanical musical instruments brought an action for alleged infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid on the ground that the alleged invention was anticipated, & that part of it, viz., the second claim, was not useful:—Held: (1) defts. had substantially taken pltf.'s machine with colourable variations.

(2) When a deft. has substantially infringed a patent, it is no defence to say he has made improvements.—EHRLICH v. IHLEE & SANKEY (1888), 5 R. P. C. 437, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Gadd & Mason v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; Cassel Gold Extracting Co. v. Cyanide Gold Recovery Syndicate (1895), 12 R. P. C. 232; Shrewsbury & Talbot S. T. Cab Co. v. Sterckx (1895), 12 T. L. R. 122; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Leicester Pneumatic Tyre & Automatic Valve Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 50; Wilson v. Wilson, Barnsley (1899), 16 R. P. C. 315.

2520. —— ——.]—Defts.' apparatus, though they had made modifications of & improvements on the invention, fell within the words & spirit of pltf.'s invention.—AUTOMATIC COAL GAS RETORT CO., LTD. v. SALFORD CORPN. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 450.

Annotation:—Refd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Naamlooze Vennootschap Popes' Metaaldraadlampenfabriek, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth Peebles, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. King (1923), 40 R. P. C. 119.

2521. —— Convenient way of making patent workable.]—The specification of letters patent for "Improvements in atmospheric or power hammers" ended with five claims, the first of which was as follows: "In an atmospheric hammer, arranging the closed ends of the hammer & air pump cylinders in proximity to each other, & directly connecting them through short passages of small capacity controlled by one or more valves, the arrangement being such that air can be drawn direct from the hammer-head into the air pump cylinder, at each suction stroke of the pump to cause the hammer-head to rise & air can be forced direct from the said pump into the hammer cylinder at each compression stroke of the pump, to cause the hammer-head to descend, so that the hammer-head will work in unison with & will promptly respond to the movements of the pump piston substantially as herein described." Claims 2, 3 & 4 commenced with the words " an atmospheric hammer of the kind specified in Claim 1." Claim 5 was for the particular hammer described & shown. The hammer described in the specification had the capacity of regulating the force of the blow & of the hammer-head being held up or down whilst the air pump continued to work. The owners of the patent having commenced an action for infringement, defts. relied mainly on non-infringement, although they also contended that the hammer described & shown would not work practically. Defts.' hammer had both ends of the cylinders closed, & a by-pass between the ends of the air cylinder, & the upper passage was free, & they contended that the claims in the specification only extended to hammers in which the pressure of the atmosphere was employed in raising them; also that Claim 1 did not include the holding up & down actions, & the parts relating thereto, or, if it did, it was for the specific hammer described, & that they had not got the patented devices; & that Claims 2, 3 & 4 were appendant claims, so that unless the alleged infringement was covered by Claim 1 there was no infringement:—Held: the objection to validity failed; the claims were not limited to hammers in which atmospheric pressure was used; Claim 1 included the parts for holding up & holding down, & was for a specific hammer; Claims 2, 3 & 4 were appendant claims; defts.' by-pass was a convenient way of making the invention workable where both ends of the cylinders were closed; & defts. had infringed.—PILKINGTON (PETER), LTD. v. MASSEY (1904), 21 R. P. C. 712, C. A.

---

2519 i. Whether an infringement—Where invention taken in substance.]—AMERICAN DUNLOP TIRE CO. v. ANDERSON CO. (1896), 5 Exch. C. R. 194.—CAN.

2522. —— Part of improvement used in further improvement.]—WEISS v. MAW, No. 2827, post.

Patent of principle.]—See No. 2454, ante; No. 2648, post.

SECT. 2.—LEGAL PROCEEDINGS IN RESPECT OF INFRINGEMENT.

SUB-SECT. 1.—PARTIES.

A. Plaintiffs.

See, generally, R. S. C., Ords. 16, 17.

2523. Assignee.]—SPILSBURY v. CLOUGH, No. 2633, post.

2524. ——.]—DUNNICLIFF & BAGLEY v. MALLET, DUNNICLIFF & BAGLEY v. BIRKIN, No. 1535, ante.

2525. ——.]—WALTON v. LAVATER, No. 1536, ante.

2526. ——.]—ANDERSON v. PATENT OXONITE CO., LTD., No. 1572, ante.

2527. ——.]—Patentees, after commencing an action for infringement, entered into a conditional contract for sale of the patent with a clause providing that the patentees should prosecute the action to trial, & by a subsequent further agreement the patentees agreed to instruct the purchasers' solrs., & that such solrs. should prosecute the action to final judgment or settlement, the purchasers indemnifying them against costs. At the trial the action was dismissed on the ground (inter alia) of the invalidity of the patent, & pltfs. appealed. Before the trial the patentees sold the patent, subject to the agreements, to a trustee for defts. in the action. Defts. applied to strike out the appeal, & the patentees applied subsequently in person to withdraw it. These applications stood over to allow the first purchasers to bring an action & move for an injunction restraining the patentees from so applying, which they did:—Held: the patentees could not defeat the rights of the first purchasers, & the latter were entitled to prosecute the appeal in the patent action.—COMMERCIAL DEVELOPMENT CORPN., LTD. v. ATKINS & APPLEGARTH, ATKINS & APPLEGARTH v. CASTNER-KELLNER ALKALI CO., LTD. (1902), 19 R. P. C. 93, C. A.

2528. ——.]—In June, 1897, B. applied for letters patent for an invention the subject of this action. By a deed of Dec. 1897, B. assigned to pltfs. all that the said invention & the benefit of the protection of the application of June, 1897. The patent was subsequently granted to B., & in accordance with the provisions of Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 13, was dated back to June, 1897, the date of the application. In June, 1903, the writ in this action to restrain an alleged infringement of this patent was issued. B. was at this time entered in the register of patents as the owner. In Oct. 1903, B., in pursuance of the deed of Dec. 1897, assigned the said letters patent to pltfs. B. had since died:—Held: the assignment of Dec. 1897, did not amount to an assignment of the letters patent, & consequently pltfs. at the date of the commencement of this action were equitable assignees only of the patent, & were not entitled to maintain this action without bringing the legal owner of the patent before the ct. Leave was accordingly given to pltfs. to amend their writ & statement of claim by adding the exors. of B. as pltfs. on the terms of allowing defts. to amend their statement of defence & particulars of objections; the costs of the day & any costs thrown away by reason of the necessity for making this amendment to be defts.' costs in any event.—BOWDEN'S (E. M.) PATENTS SYNDICATE, LTD. v. SMITH (H.) & CO., [1904] 2 Ch. 86; 73 L. J. Ch. 522; 52 W. R. 630; 21 R. P. C. 438; affd. on other grounds, [1904] 2 Ch. 122, C. A.

Annotation:—Consd. Performing Right Soc. v. London Theatre of Varieties, [1924] A. C. 1.

2529. GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR CO. v. GAMAGE (A. W.), LTD., No. 2642, post.

2530. DUNCAN v. LOCKERBIE & WILKINSON (BIRMINGHAM), LTD. (1912), 56 Sol. Jo. 573; 29 R. P. C. 454.

2531. Agent—Agent for sale.]—To a bill stating an agreement made between a general agent of the patentees of an American invention to introduce & sell the invention in Great Britain, & pltf., whereby pltf. was to have the sole agency & control of the working of the patent in England, upon certain terms, including a share of royalties & profits, praying for an account for damages, & an injunction to restrain future infringement, defts., who were alleged to be using the invention, demurred:—Held: pltf. was a mere agent for the sale of the invention, & was in no such position as gave him the right to file such a bill, which was in the form of a patentee's bill for infringement.—ADAMS v. NORTH BRITISH RY. CO. (1873), 29 L. T. 367.

2532. ——.]—MOUCHEL v. CUBITT & CO., No. 1583, ante.

Alien owner—In time of war.]—See ALIENS, Vol. II., p. 161, No. 309.

2533. Co-owners—Non-joinder—Defendant not objecting.]—Where there is a primâ facie case of infringement of a patent, the length of time which the patent has been enjoyed by the patentee will influence the ct. in granting an injunction against the parties who are alleged so to have infringed upon the patentees rights. Letters patent were dated in Nov. 1851, which were duly assigned to pltfs. Defts. letters patent were dated in Jan. 1859, after the passing of Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83):—Held: the first patentees without registration were to be considered as sole owners.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 1, A. & B.]

On the question of parties, although there appeared to be two others besides pltfs. who probably might participate in the profits; still, as defts. had not demurred, the bill was sufficient in that respect (WOOD, V.-C.).—DAVENPORT v. RICHARD (1860), 3 L. T. 503.

2534. —— —— Objection of defendant—Prompt objection necessary.]—One of several co-owners of a patent has a right to sue alone for the recovery of profits due for the use of the patent. An objection by a deft. that other persons should have been joined as plaintiffs should be made promptly, under R. S. C., Ord. 16, rr. 13 & 14, & may not be postponed till the hearing where no impediment exists to raising the objection at once.—SHEEHAN v. GREAT EASTERN RY. CO. (1880), 16 Ch. D. 59; 50 L. J. Ch. 68; 43 L. T. 432; 29 W. R. 69.

Annotation:—Refd. Van Gelder, Apsimon v. Sowerby Bridge United District Flour Co. (1890), 38 W. R. 625.

2535. —— Rights of one to sue alone.]—SHEEHAN v. GREAT EASTERN RY. CO., No. 2534, ante.

2536. Licencee—Exclusive licencee.]—An exclusive licencee of a patent has a right to use the name of the patentee to restrain any infringement of the patent, & an interlocutory injunction for that purpose will, in a proper case, be granted.—RENARD v. LEVINSTEIN (1865), 2 Hem. & M. 628; 5 New Rep. 301; 11 L. T. 766; 13 W. R. 382; 71 E. R. 607.

Annotations:—Refd. Heap v. Hartley (1889), 38 W. R. 136; Scottish Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. Provincial Cinematograph Theatres & British Vacuum Cleaner Co. (1915), 32 R. P. C. 353.

2537. —— —— Notice of licence to infringer.]—HEAP v. HARTLEY, No. 1584, ante.

2538. Mortgagors—Without joining mortgagees.]—VAN GELDER APSIMON & CO. v. SOWERBY BRIDGE UNITED DISTRICT FLOUR SOCIETY, No. 1562, ante.

B. Defendants.

See, generally, R. S. C., Ord. 16, 17.

2539. Alien.]—(1) Injunction granted against subjects of the kingdom of Holland, to restrain them from using on board their ships within the dominions of England, without the licence of pltfs., an invention, to the benefit of which pltfs. were exclusively entitled under the Queen's patent.

(2) Foreigners in this country, as well as British subjects, are liable to actions for the injury done by their infringing upon the sole & exclusive right granted by the Crown to patentees of inventions in conformity with the law & constitution of this country; & the powers of the Ct. of Equity, which are founded on the insufficiency of the legal remedy, must be enforced against them as well as against British subjects.

(3) Principles upon which the ct. will interfere to protect a patentee before he has established his right at law in the case of patents which have been long used or enjoyed, or will, in the case of new patents, suspend its interference until the right at law has been established.

(4) It is part of the duty of this ct. to protect property pending litigation; but when it is called upon to exercise that duty, the ct. requires some proof of title in the party who calls for its interference. In the case of a new patent, this proof is wanting: the public, whose interests are affected by the patent, have had no opportunity of contesting the validity of the patentee's title, & the ct. therefore refuses to interfere until his right has been established at law. But in a case where there has been long enjoyment under the patent, the enjoyment of course including use, the public have had the opportunity of contesting the patent; & the fact of their not having done so successfully affords, at least primâ facie, evidence that the title of the patentee is good; & the ct. therefore interferes before the right is established at law (TURNER, V.-C.).—CALDWELL v. VANVLISSENGEN, CALDWELL v. VERBECK, CALDWELL v. ROLFE (1851), 9 Hare, 415; 21 L. J. Ch. 97; 18 L. T. O. S. 192; 16 Jur. 115; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 101; 68 E. R. 571.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Betts v. Neilson (1865), 3 De G. J. & Sm. 82. Consd. Betts v. Neilson (1868), 3 Ch. App. 429; Betts v. Willmott (1871), 6 Ch. App. 239. Apld. Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, Scott (1880), 7 Ch. D. 721. (See 8 App. Cas. 5.) Refd. Adair v. Young (1879), 12 Ch. D. 13; United Telephone Co. v. Sharples (1885), 29 Ch. D. 164. As to (4) Overd. Jackson v. Needle (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 132. Generally, Mentd. North-Western Salt Co. v. Electrolytic Alkali Co. (1912), 107 L. T. 439.

2540. Representative defendants.]—Numerous suits had been instituted for the infringement, by different defts., of the same patent. Defts. moved to stay proceedings in the several suits, on the ground that pltf. ought first to establish the validity of his patent, which they denied:—Held: the ct. would take measures to have the question of validity tried first, & would allow all defts. to be represented at the trial by three selected by the rest.—FOXWELL v. WEBSTER (1863), 4 De G. J. & Sm. 77; 9 L. T. 528; 10 Jur. N. S. 137; 46 E. R. 844; sub nom. FOXWELL v. BRADBURY, FOXWELL v. WEBSTER, 3 New Rep. 180; 12 W. R. 186, L. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Bovill v. Crate (1865), L. R. 1 Eq. 388.

2541. Directors of company.]—BETTS v. NEILSON, BETTS v. DE VITRE, No. 2299, ante.

2542. ——.]—The directors of a co. cannot be made liable for an infringement of patent by the co. merely by reason of their position as directors, even in a case where they are the sole directors & shareholders of the infringing co.—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. STERLING ACCESSORIES, LTD., SAME v. CROWTHER & OSBORN, LTD., [1924] 2 Ch. 33; 93 L. J. Ch. 335; 131 L. T. 535; 40 T. L. R. 544; 68 Sol. Jo. 595; 41 R. P. C. 311.

Annotation:—Mentd. Prichard & Constance (Wholesale) v. Amata (1924), 42 R. P. C. 63.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 1.—A.

2536 i. Licencee—Exclusive licencee.]—COCHRANE (J. P.) & CO. v. MARTINS (BIRMINGHAM, LTD.) (1911), 28 R. P. C. 284.—SCOT.

2536 ii. —— ——.]—An exclusive licencee has a sufficient title to sue in his own name.—SCOTTISH VACUUM CLEANER CO., LTD. v. PROVINCIAL CINEMATOGRAPH THEATRES, LTD. (1915), 32 R. P. C. 353.—SCOT.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 1.—B.

o. Vendors outside jurisdiction — Manufacturing under alleged patent.]—To an action by the holder of a patent of invention against persons resident within the jurisdiction for an injunction against infringement of the patent & damages, other persons not within the jurisdiction, who make & sell to defts. the goods which are the subject of pltf.'s complaint under another patent which pltf. alleges to be null & void, are neither necessary nor proper parties.—MAW v. MASSEY-HARRIS CO. T. 26; 14 Man. L. 252.—CAN.

p. Officers of company.]—A 2543. Manager of company.] — BETTS v. NEILSON, BETTS v. DE VITRE, No. 2299, ante.

2544. Company.]—BETTS v. NEILSON, BETTS v. DE VITRE, No. 2299, ante.

2545. User of infringing article.]—(1) Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 43, empowers a judge before whom an action is tried to certify on the record that the validity of the letters patent in the declaration mentioned came in question; & it is enacted that the record, with such certificate, being given in evidence in any suit or action for infringing the letters patent shall entitle pltf. in any such suit or action, on obtaining a decree, to his full costs, charges & expenses, as between attorney & client, unless the judge shall certify that he ought not to have such full costs :—Held : this sect. does not apply to the costs of a first trial, whether at law, or of issues of fact in this ct., but only to the costs of a second trial, upon production of the record of the first trial, with the certificate endorsed.

(2) Where bills to restrain the infringement of a patent have been filed against both the person who manufactures & the person who uses the article & issues of fact have been found for pltf. it is the right of pltf. to have not only an account against the manufacturer, but also damages against the person using the article wherever it be found.

(3) After a trial before the Vice-Chancellor, without a jury, in which issues were found for pltf. a motion for a new trial having been refused by the Vice-Chancellor, & on appeal refused by the Lord Chancellor, was being taken by appeal to the House of Lords. The ct. declined to suspend the final order for an injunction pending the appeal to the House of Lords.—PENN v. BIBBY, PENN v. JACK, PENN v. FERNIE (1866), L. R. 3 Eq. 308; 36 L. J. Ch. 277; 15 L. T. 385; 15 W. R. 192; subsequent proceedings, sub nom. PENN v. JACK, (1867), L. R. 5 Eq. 81.

Annotations :—As to (2) Consd. Boyd v. Tootal, Broadhurst, Lee Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 175. Refd. British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122.

2546. ——.]—BOYD v. TOOTAL, BROADHURST, LEE CO., LTD., No. 3060, post.

2547. —— Foreign user.] — CALDWELL v. VANVLISSENGEN, CALDWELL v. VERBECK, CALDWELL v. ROLFE, No. 2539, ante.

2548. —— Manufacturers not joined.]—ADAIR v. YOUNG, No. 2298, ante.

2549. —— Alleged to be licencee.]—The owner of two patents relating to cooling towers brought an action for infringement of the patents by the use of a cooling tower erected for defts. by F. C. T., Ltd. Defts. by their defence alleged that under an agreement F. C. T., Ltd., were licencees of the patents, & that their use of it did not constitute an infringement. Pltfs. denied that the agreement gave F. C. T., Ltd., the right to use the inventions & they also alleged that all the rights of F. C. T., Ltd., under the agreement had been determined at a date prior to the commencement of the alleged infringement. Defts. applied to have F. C. T., Ltd., added as defts. :—Held : the issues in the action could be properly & conveniently tried without adding F. C. T., Ltd., as defts., & the application must be dismissed.—EVANS v. CENTRAL ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO., LTD. (1923), 40 R. P. C. 357.

2550. Manufacturer of infringing article.]—PENN v. BIBBY, PENN v. JACK, PENN v. FERNIE, No. 2545, ante.

2551. ——.]—BOYD v. TOOTAL, BROADHURST, LEE CO., LTD., No. 3060, post.

2552. —— Manufacturer of part only—No knowledge of patent.]—SAVAGE (F.) & CO., LTD. v. BRINDLE (1869), 13 R. P. C. 266.

2553. —— Foreign manufacturer.]—Pltf., the patentee of a machine, brought an action against deft. for using a machine which he alleged was an infringement of his patent. M., [a foreign manufacturer] the maker & patentee of deft.'s machine, applied to be added as deft., alleging that a judgment in the action would injure him, & that present deft. would not efficiently defend the action :—Held : M., not being directly interested in the issues between pltf. & deft., but only indirectly & commercially affected, the ct. had no jurisdiction to add him as deft.—MOSER v. MARSDEN, [1892] 1 Ch. 487; 61 L. J. Ch. 319; 66 L. T. 570; 40 W. R. 520; 36 Sol. Jo. 253, C. A.

Annotations :—Refd. Montforts v. Marsden, [1895] 1 Ch. 11. Mentd. Montgomery v. Foy, Morgan (1895), 43 W. R. 691.

2554. Purchasers of infringing article.]—PROCTOR v. BENNIS, No. 2472, ante.

2555. —— Subsequent assignment.] — SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. LYLE (D. T. J.) & SON, LTD. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 604, C. A.

2556. Foreign sovereign.]—The ct. has no jurisdiction to prevent a foreign sovereign from removing his property in this country. A foreign sovereign who, for the purpose of obtaining his property, submits to be made deft. in an action, does not thereby lose his rights. There is a right of property in an article made in an infringement of a patent although the ct. would order the article to be destroyed. A foreign sovereign bought in Germany shells made there, but said to be infringements of an English patent. They were brought to this country in order to be put on board a ship of war belonging to the foreign sovereign, & the patentee obtained an injunction against the agents of the foreign sovereign & the persons in whose custody the shells were, restraining them from removing the shells. The foreign sovereign then applied to be & was made deft. to the suit. An order was then made by the Master of the Rolls, & affirmed on appeal, that notwithstanding the injunction he should be at liberty to remove the shells.

The right of property in articles made in violation of a patent is, notwithstanding the privilege of the patentee, in the infringer, if he would otherwise have the right of property in them, but the ct. will prevent the use of those articles to the derogation of the patentee's right by ordering their destruction.—VAVASSEUR v. KRUPP (1878), 9 Ch. D. 351; 39 L. T. 437; 27 W. R. 176; 22 Sol. Jo. 702, C. A.

Annotations :—Consd. Re Miller's Patent (1894), 63 L. J. Ch. 324. Refd. Moser v. Marsden, [1892] 1 Ch. 487; British Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. v. Electrical Co. (1911), 55 Sol. Jo. 689. Mentd. The Parlement Belge (1880), 5 P. D. 197; Aksionairnoye Obschestvo A. M. Luther v. Sagor, [1921] 3 K. B. 532; The Tervaete, [1922] P. 259; Duff Development Co. v. Kelanton Government, [1923] 1 Ch. 385; The Jupiter (1924), 93 L. J. P. 156.

2557. Principal — Infringement by agent.]—SYKES v. HOWARTH, No. 2286, ante.

2558. Importers—Joinder of consignees out of jurisdiction.]—The owners of a patent commenced an action to restrain infringement against a steamship co. who had brought certain goods, alleged was filed against a joint stock co. to restrain the infringement of a patent, to which certain officers of the co. were made parties. A demurrer on the ground that the officers were improperly made parties was overruled with costs, these officers being charged personally with committing the acts complained of, & relief being prayed against them.—CLINE v. MOUNTAIN-VIEW CHEESE FACTORY (1873), 20 Gr. 227.—CAN.

---

q. Crown — Condition precedent to action—Report of commissioner.]—By Patent Act, s. 44, the Govt. of Canada may at any time use a patented invention, paying to the patentee such sum as the Comr. of Patents reports to be a reasonable compensation therefor :—Held : a report by the

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 1, B. & C.; sub-sects. 2 & 3, A.]

to be an infringement, from America to Liverpool. Under the bill of lading the goods were to be delivered at Liverpool to the agent of the consignees, who themselves resided at Dublin. The validity of the patent had been established in a previous action. Pltfs. having moved for & obtained an injunction against the co., & another co. to whom part of the goods had already been delivered for transhipment to Dublin, then obtained leave to add the consignees as parties to the action, & to serve the writ on them out of the jurisdiction. Pltfs. moved for an injunction against the consignees, & the consignees moved to discharge the order for services & to set aside the service:—Held: (1) the action was properly brought against the steamship co., the consignees would, if within the jurisdiction, have been proper parties to the action, & they were rightly made parties, though out of the jurisdiction. (2) In exercise of the discretion given by R. S. C., Ord. 11, r. 2, in the case of a deft. living in Ireland, & of the general discretion possessed by the ct., in reference to service out of the jurisdiction, this was a proper case for ordering such service without any special terms.—WASHBURN & MOEN, ETC., CO. v. CUNARD S.S. CO. & PARKES (J. C.) & SONS (1889), 5 T. L. R. 592; 6 R. P. C. 398.

Annotation:—Generally, Mentd. The Elton, [1891] P. 265.

2559. Partners—Infringement by one with consent of other.]—DAY v. DAVIES (1904), 22 R. P. C. 34.

2560. The Crown—Action against Air Council.]—An action was brought by R., the trustee in bkpcy. of K., against the Air Council, claiming a declaration that a patent of 1918 granted to K. was valid & that the making user & exercise of certain machines was an infringement of the patent, & that the terms of compensation might be decided, & for damages for breaches of a contract for the supply to the War Office of aeroplanes embodying the invention of K. Defts., among other defences, set up the defences that they were a public department of His Majesty's Govt. & were not liable to be sued in respect of any contract made on behalf of His Majesty, & they relied upon Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 29, as a defence to the action so far as founded upon the alleged infringement of the patent, & said that by reason of the provisions they were entitled to use & exercise the alleged invention the subject of the patent, & that in default of agreement between the parties the sum, if any, to be paid by defts. in respect of the user, if any, of the alleged invention should be settled by the Treasury under the sect. & not otherwise. The points of law raised were ordered to be set down for hearing & disposed of before the trial of the action. On the points coming before the ct. for argument, pltfs. relied on Air Force (Constitution) Act, 1917 (c. 51), s. 14, which enacted that the Air Council might sue & be sued by that name. Defts. who had in their defence denied the validity of the patent, refused to consent to the validity of the patent being taken into consideration:—Held: the Air Council being the body established for the administration of matters relating to the Air Force & to the defence of the realm by air, stood in the fullest sense in the position of the Crown, & the action so far as it claimed relief for breach of contract was not sustainable.—ROWLAND v. AIR COUNCIL (1923), 39 T. L. R. 228; 47 Sol. Jo. 365; 40 R. P. C. 87; on appeal, 39 T. L. R. 455, C. A.

—— Rights of Crown generally.]—See Part XI., Sect. 4, ante.

C. Third Parties.

See, generally, R. S. C., Ord. 16, rr. 48–55.

2561. Manufacturer—Covenant to indemnify defendant.]—EDISON & SWAN UNITED ELECTRIC LIGHT CO. v. HOLLAND (1886), 33 Ch. D. 497; 56 L. J. Ch. 124; 55 L. T. 587; 3 R. P. C. 395; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 86; sub nom. EDISON ELECTRIC LIGHT CO. v. JABLOCHKOFF ELECTRICITY CO., 35 W. R. 178.

SUB-SECT. 2.—SERVICE OF WRIT.

See R. S. C., Ords. 9, 10, 11.

2562. Outside jurisdiction—Infringement within jurisdiction.]—WASHBURN & MOEN, ETC., CO. v. CUNARD S.S. CO. & PARKES (J. C.) & SONS, No. 2558, ante.

2563. —— ——.]—A foreign co. owing English letters patent for the manufacture of certain articles, commenced an action against another co., also domiciled abroad, for alleged infringement of those letters patent. Subsequently pltfs. obtained an order for service upon defts. out of the jurisdiction. That order defts. moved to discharge. It was admitted that defts. had by their agents solicited from persons in England orders for articles to be executed & delivered abroad; but it was contended that this did not amount to using, exercising, or vending the invention claimed by pltfs.' letters patent:—Held: the evidence before the ct. showed information coming from perfectly trustworthy persons which pointed to infringement by defts. of pltfs.' letters patent within the jurisdiction; the legislature had not imposed upon the ct. the duty of trying the action before giving leave for service on the defts. out of the jurisdiction, in order to have the parties before the ct.; if there was primâ facie evidence the necessary conditions had been fulfilled that there had been a breach within the jurisdiction; & that there were sufficient facts to raise the question which the ct. was not bound at present to finally decide, viz. that the acts of defts. amounted to infringements.—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. CHEMISCHE FABRIK VORMALS SANDOZ (1903), 88 L. T. 490; 19 T. L. R. 382; 47 Sol. Jo. 434; 20 R. P. C. 413, C. A.; on appeal, sub nom. CHEMISCHE FABRIK VORMALS SANDOZ v. BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIKS (1904), 90 L. T. 733, H. L.

2564. Foreign corporation—Trading within jurisdiction—Hire of stand at exhibition.]—Defts., a foreign corpn. who were manufacturers of motor cars abroad, hired a stand at the Crystal Palace for the exhibition of articles of their manufacture at a cycle show, & exhibited at the show, which lasted for nine days, among other articles, a motor car fitted with tyres, which were alleged by pltfs. to be an infringement of their patent. Defts. stand was in charge of a person employed by them as their representative, whose duty it was to explain the working of the article, & to take orders for & press the sale of defts.' goods:—Held: during

---

Comr. is a condition precedent to any right of action for such compensation.—MCDONALD v. R. (1906), 26 C. L. T. 779; 10 Exch. C. R. 338.—CAN.

r. ——.]—MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. R. (1912), 31 N. Z. L. R. 732.—N.Z.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.

t. Out of registry nearest residence of defendants.]—In an action for damages for infringement of a patent, the writ need not be issued out of the registry nearest the place of residence or business of defts., but Patent Act.

the continuance of the show, defts. were carrying on business so as to be resident at a place within the jurisdiction, & therefore could be served there with a writ in an action by pltfs. for infringement of their patent under R. S. C., Ord. 9, r. 8.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. ACT. FÜR MOTOR UND MOTORFAHRZEUGBAU VORM. CUDELL & CO., [1902] 1 K. B. 342 ; 71 L. J. K. B. 284 ; 86 L. T. 472 ; 50 W. R. 226 ; 18 T. L. R. 229, C. A.

Annotations :—Refd. De Beers Consolidated Mines v. Howe, [1905] 2 K. B. 612 ; Saccharin Corpn. v. Chemische Fabrik von Heyden Akt., [1911] 2 K. B. 516 ; Okura v. Forsbacka Jernverks Aktiebolag, [1914] 1 K. B. 715 ; Employers' Liability Assce. v. Sedgwick, Collins (1926), 95 L. J. K. B. 1015.

SUB-SECT. 3.—PLEADINGS.

A. Statement of Claim.

See, generally, R. S. C., Ord. 19.

2565. Full statement of specification—Necessity for.]—A bill filed by a patentee, to restrain the piracy of his patent & for an account, did not distinctly state the specification, or explain the nature of the invention for which the patent right was claimed ; but it alleged that the specification was duly enrolled & that the drawings & description in the specification could not be set out in the bill, & it charged that pltf. was the inventor & that the invention was new : the ct. held that the bill was not demurrable.—WESTHEAD v. KEENE (1838), 1 Beav. 287 ; 8 L. J. Ch. 89 ; 2 Jur. 1061 ; 48 E. R. 950.

2566. Action in respect of renewed patent—Condition imposed on renewal—Averment that condition complied with.]—(1) The assignees of letters patent may, under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, ss. 1, 4, lawfully obtain a renewal of such patents.

(2) The statute does not authorise the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to impose terms as conditions on which patents are to be renewed. The authority of the Committee is limited to reporting on matters as between the public & the party applying.

(3) There is nothing in the statute to fetter the discretion of the Crown in the renewal, except the length of time for which that renewal is to be granted, & which must not exceed seven years.

(4) An application for a renewal is " prosecuted with effect " within the terms of the statute, if the party applying obtains the report of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council before the expiration of the original patent.

(5) The Crown is not restricted as to the time within which it may act upon such report, & renewed letters patent are not void, because they are dated after the expiration of the original letters patent.

(6) If the Judicial Committee should impose a condition on a party applying for the renewal of a patent, such party need not, in an action for the infringement of the patent, aver that such condition was complied with before the patent was renewed.—LEDSAM v. RUSSELL (1848), 1 H. L. Cas. 687 ; 9 E. R. 931, H. L. ; affg. (1847), 16 M. & W. 633, Ex. Ch.

Annotations :—Generally, Refd. R. v. Edwards (1853), 9 Exch. 32 ; Williams v. Nash (1859), 28 Beav. 93 ; Re Markwick's Patent (1860), 13 Moo. P. C. C. 310. Mentd. Sturm v. Jeffree (1847), 8 L. T. O. S. 415 ; Isaacs v. Royal Insce. (1870), 39 L. J. Ex. 189 ; Goldsmith's Co. v. West Met. Ry., [1904] 1 K. B. 1 ; English v. Cliff, [1914] 2 Ch. 376 ; Brakspear v. Barton, [1924] 2 K. B. 88.

2567. Novelty of invention.]—In a bill to restrain an infringement of a patent an express averment of the novelty of the invention protected by the patent is not necessary.—AMORY v. BROWN (1869), L. R. 8 Eq. 663 ; 38 L. J. Ch. 593 ; 17 W. R. 849 ; sub nom. AMERY v. BROWN, 20 L. T. 654.

Annotation :—Refd. Harris v. Rothwell (1887), 35 Ch. D. 416.

2568. Statement amended.]—The statement of claim as against all defts. is embarrassing. . . . As against deft. cos., I think the statement of claim though embarrassing, may possibly be amended. Pltfs. therefore will have leave to amend (COLLINS, L.J.).—EDWARDS v. PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD., DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. & DU CROS (1900), 16 T. L. R. 308.

2569. Statement struck out—Different cause of action from that stated in writ.]—An action was commenced by pltfs. in 1884 against defts. for alleged infringement of pltfs.' patent. That action was, however, discontinued in consequence of the evidence adduced by the defts. on interlocutory proceedings, & pltfs. paid the costs.

Pltfs., in May, 1888, commenced another action against defts. for the same object ; & by their writ they claimed an injunction, delivery up of the infringing instruments, & an account, or damages & costs. The statement of claim in the second action contained an allegation that, since discontinuing the former action, pltfs. had discovered that defts.' evidence which led to its discontinuance was false. The statement of claim then contained a claim, which did not appear in the writ, that the second action might be treated as supplemental to the previous action, & that defts. might be ordered to repay the costs paid to them in the previous action, & to pay the costs, charges, & expenses of pltfs. of that action as between solr. & client :—Held : it was irregular to introduce into the statement of claim a different cause of action not mentioned in the writ ; the causes of action contained in the statement of claim were entirely separate & distinct ; & the two paragraphs above mentioned must be struck out, leaving pltfs. to bring a separate action.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO., LTD. v. TASKER, SONS & CO. (1888), 59 L. T. 852.

2570, —— Embarrassment of defendant.]—EDWARDS v. PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD., DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD., & DU CROS, No. 2568, ante.

2571. Particulars of breach as part of statement.]—In an action for infringement of a patent, pltf., upon motion for judgment heard as a short cause, asked for such judgment as upon his statement of claim the ct. should consider him to be entitled to. In the statement of claim it was stated that particulars of breaches are delivered herewith :—Held : the particulars of breaches should be considered as forming part of the statement of claim.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. SMITH, UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. MITCHELL (1889), 61 L. T. 617 ; 38 W. R. 70.

Particulars of breaches.]—See Sub-sect. 3, B., post.

s. 30, is complied with if the venue is laid at the place of such registry.—SHORT v. FEDERATION BRAND SALMON CANNING CO. (1898), 6 B. C. R. 385.—CAN.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.—A.

a. Claim for two distinct & separate causes of action—Against different parties.]—The statement of claim did not allege that non-resident parties had done anything as to which an injunction could be asked against them in M., & upon its allegations the only relief pltfs. could possibly claim against them would be a declaration that their patent was null & void, thus raising two distinct & separate causes of action, one against the parties within the jurisdiction & the other against the non-resident parties, both of which issues should not be tried in one action.—MAW v. MASSEY-HARRIS CO. (1902), 14 Man. L. R. 252.—CAN.

b. Whether defendant entitled to particulars of statement of claim—Defendant alleging intention to attack validity.]—WARREN v. WATEROUS ENGINE WORKS CO., LTD., [1925] Exch. C. R. 92.—CAN.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 3, B. (a).]

B. Particulars of Breaches.

(a) In General.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, rr. 11, 14, 17, 19.

2572. Power of court to order.]—In an action for infringing a patent, the ct. has a general power to order a particular of the alleged infringements. But, where the specification claimed a combination of numerous improvements, in electric telegraphs, the ct. refused to compel pltfs. to give defts. such particulars, conceiving that, from the nature of the patent, pltfs. would be thereby put to great difficulty & embarrassment, & that, under the circumstances, the matter having been debated in Chancery upon a motion for an injunction, defts. must be taken to possess adequate information on the subject.—ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH CO. v. NOTT (1847), 4 C. B. 462; 16 L. J. C. P. 174; 9 L. T. O. S. 125; 11 Jur. 590; 136 E. R. 587.

Annotation:—Consd. Needham v. Oxley (1863), 9 Jur. N. S. 598.

2573. Distinguished from particulars of objection.]—Particulars of breaches must be distinguished from particulars of objection for want of novelty. In the latter case the particular instances may not be within the knowledge of the patentee, & must be specified; in the former deft. must know whether & in what respect he has been guilty of infringement. Where three patents of pltf. all related to one article, a kiln for burning bricks, & the second & third in date were for improvements upon the invention specified in the first, & pltf. alleged a particular kiln constructed & used by dett., & in his plaint not only referred to his patents, but indicated in the case of each of them the infringements which he complained of:—Held: this was a sufficient compliance with Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83).—LEDGARD v. BULL (1886), 11 App. Cas. 648.

Annotation:—Apld. Cheetham v. Oldham & Fogg (No. 3) (1888), 5 R. P. C. 624.

2574. ——.]—Pltf. in an action for infringement delivered particulars of breaches alleging infringement of the first five claims of the specification, but not referring to any pages or lines of the specification, & not identifying pltf.'s processes with those of defts.', in respect of which breaches were alleged to have been committed. Defts. took out a summons for further & better particulars of breaches:—Held: particulars of breaches must be distinguished from particulars of objections for want of novelty, inasmuch as they relate to matters which must be within defts.' knowledge & where, as in this case, the invention is not difficult to describe & the claims in the specification are short & defined, it is enough in particulars of breaches to refer to the claims in the specification alleged to have been infringed, & references by page & line need not be given: the particulars sufficiently enabled defts. to know what in effect they had to meet at the trial, & the application must be refused.—CHEETHAM v. OLDHAM & FOGG (No. 3) (1888), 5 R. P. C. 624.

2575. Function of particulars—Not to answer interrogatories as to construction.]—A patentee whose specification contained four claims for (1) a lamp; (2) a modified form of lamp; (3) a method of supplying heated air; (4) a method of distributing the heated air—brought an action for infringement. By his particulars of breaches he alleged infringement by deft. by using the mechanism claimed in these four claims, & complained of a particular lamp sold by defts. Defts. applied for further & better particulars, asking what parts of the specification & figures had been infringed, which of the lamps described in the specification had been infringed, & whether pltf. claimed all lamps with the methods of sup & distributing the heated air, or only the lamps described in the specification. At the hearing of the application pltfs. withdrew the allegation of infringement of the first claim:—Held: the particulars as so amended performed the office required, namely, to tell deft. what pltf. alleged he had done in infringement, & it was not the office of particulars to answer an interrogatory as to the construction of the patent.—WENHAM CO., LTD. v. CHAMPION GAS LAMP CO., LTD. & TODLENHAUPT & CO. (1890), 63 L. T. 827; 8 R. P. C. 22.

2576. —— Prevention of surprise to defendant.]—The function of particulars of breaches being to point out to deft. what were the particular acts complained of, so that he should not be taken by surprise at the trial, paragraph 1 of the particulars being a mere general allegation did not comply with that requirement, & the first & second interrogatories must therefore be disallowed.—AKT. FÜR AUTOGENE ALUMINIUM SCHWEISSUNG v. LONDON ALUMINIUM CO., [1919] 2 Ch. 67; 88 L. J. Ch. 366; 121 L. T. 168; 36 R. P. C. 199, C. A.

2577. Sufficiency — Full & fair notice to defendant.]—Particulars of breaches delivered with a view to a jury trial of a patent case in this ct. are sufficient, if, taken together with the pleadings, they give deft. full & fair notice of the case to be made against him.—NEEDHAM v. OXLEY (1863), 1 Hem. & M. 248; 2 New Rep. 267; 8 L. T. 532; 9 Jur. N. S. 598; 11 W. R. 745; 71 E. R. 108.

Annotations:—Apprvd. Ledgard v. Bull (1886), 11 App. Cas. 648. Refd. Murray v. Clayton (1873), 21 W. R. 498.

2578. —— ——.]—Although upon the trial of questions in a patent suit pltf.'s particulars of breaches should give deft. full, fair, & distinct notice of the case intended to be made against him, it is not necessary, in the case of an alleged infringement of a patent for improvements of a particular article, e.g. cartridges, for the particulars to point out the precise portions of the specification alleged to have been infringed when the thing alleged to be an infringement has been made an exhibit.—BATLEY v. KYNOCK (No. 2) (1874), L. R. 19 Eq. 229; 44 L. J. Ch. 219; 31 L. T. 573; 23 W. R. 209; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 36.

Annotation:—Consd. Tilghman's Sand Blast Co. v. Wright (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 216.

2579. —— Acts of infringement—Time & place of acts.]—In an action for infringement of a patent, it is sufficient for pltf. to furnish such particulars of the infringement as show distinctly what are the acts of infringement he complains of—that is to say, the article, the making or selling of which he alleges is an infringement upon his patent, & the places at which, & the period during which, he proposes to prove such making or selling; & it is not necessary to specify in what respects, or as to what parts or processes of the invention it is an infringement.

If, indeed, the processes are so entirely separate & distinct, as that different kinds of articles or results are produced, as if one produce pictures in oil & another in water colours, it seems that the particulars should specify the one, an infringement

---

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.—B. (a).

c. Necessity for.]—In a suit for the infringement of certain inventions:—Held: pltf. should have delivered with his plaint particulars of the breaches complained of; the general allegation as to infringement contained in the plaint did not amount to such particulars; & pltf. came into ct. with a case which could not be tried.—PETMAN v. BULL (1883), I. L. R. 5 All. 371.—IND.

d. Sufficiency of.]—Particulars of upon which is complained of; but if they are merely different modes of producing the same kind of article or result, it is not necessary so to distinguish; & it is not necessary to specify particular persons to whom, or the times at which, the article alleged to be a piracy has been sold; it is enough to state some period within which the sales took place.—TALBOT v. LA ROCHE (1854), 15 C. B. 310; 2 C. L. R. 836; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 452; 139 E. R. 442.

Annotations:—Apld. Ledgard v. Bull (1886), 11 App. Cas. 648. Refd. Tilghman's Sand Blast Co. v. Wright (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 216.

2580. —— —— No obligation to answer interrogatories.]—WENHAM CO., LTD. v. CHAMPION GAS LAMP CO., LTD. & TODLENHAUPT & CO., No. 2575, ante.

2581. —— ——.]—LEDGARD v. BULL, No. 2573, ante.

2582. —— Precise portion of specification infringed.]—BATLEY v. KYNOCK (No. 2), No. 2578, ante.

2583. —— Allegation of substantial similarity—Between patent & infringement.]—The owner of two patents, the first having a single claim for an improved dog muzzle, & the second having two claims: (a) for providing the muzzle with guides, & (b) the improved dog muzzle described, brought an action for infringement of both patents. By his particulars of breaches, pltt. alleged that defts. had sold muzzles substantially in accordance with the muzzle described & claimed in his first patent, & also substantially in accordance with the muzzle described & claimed in the second patent, the muzzles sold by defts. being guided substantially in accordance with the first claim of the second patent.

Defts. took out a summons for further & better particulars, contending that pltf. ought to state whether the entirety of the muzzle described in the first patent was infringed, or only parts of it:—Held: the particulars were sufficient.—EGLETON v. NICHOLS & SON (1890), 7 R. P. C. 423.

2584. —— Patent complicated—Combination of numerous improvements.]—ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH CO. v. NOTT, No. 2572, ante.

2585. Statement of instances of breaches—By way of example.]—Upon an order for the delivery of further particulars of breaches in an action for the infringement of letters patent pltfs. enumerated certain instances, & added, & pltfs. state these particular instances, by way of example only, & not so as to preclude them from proving any of the infringements mentioned in the former particulars of breaches:—Held: that clause should be struck out of the particulars.—PATENT TYPE-FOUNDING CO. v. RICHARDS (1860), 2 L. T. 359.

Annotation:—Refd. Tilghman's Sand Blast Co. v. Wright (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 216.

2586. —— By way of illustration.]—The C. co. brought an action for infringement of a patent against the W. co., & delivered particulars of breaches, alleging infringement of the second, third & fourth claims of the patent, but not referring to any pages or lines of the specification, & complaining in particular by way of illustration of certain specified machines. Defts. took out a summons for further & better particulars, which was dismissed:—Held: pltfs. ought to omit the words in particular by way of illustration, & on pltfs. agreeing to do this the appeal ought to be dismissed.—CHURCH (WALTER C.) ENGINEERING CO., LTD. v. WILSON & CO. (1886), 3 R. P. C. 123; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 236, D. C.

Annotation:—Consd. Cheetham v. Oldham & Fogg (No. 3) (1888), 5 R. P. C. 624.

2587. Plaintiff bound by particulars given—Evidence of infringements not particularised.]—Pltf., by bill in Chancery, alleged an infringement of his patent. The patent was granted in 1854, & specified a combination of mechanism applicable to spinning mules; & the first claim was for the novel construction, combination & application of mechanism hereinbefore described, whereby one half of the clutch or catch box, hereinbefore described, or any mechanical equivalent therefor, is connected with or acts upon cams or other similar parts of mechanism direct. There were other claims, but in respect of these breaches were not alleged in pltf.'s particulars of breaches. Deft.'s patent, granted in 1860, specified a combination of mechanism which embodied the leading idea of pltf.'s patent, & by which one half of a clutch box was made to act upon cams direct, & he adopted some of the elements combined by pltf., but he disposed them in a different manner. These were important parts of the prior combination, &, though old mechanical contrivances, were new in respect of the particular mode in which pltf. applied them; & the immediate object of their combination by him was new, viz. to make a clutch box act on cams direct. The effect brought about by the direct action of the clutch box on the cams had long previously been produced, but less advantageously, by other contrivances of various kinds. Deft.'s mode of combination effected the common object of each patent in a more beneficial manner than it was or could be effected by the mode of combination specified in pltf.'s patent, & it displayed an equal amount of inventive genius:—Held: pltf. was bound by the particulars of breaches delivered, & the principle of Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 41, was applicable to trials in Chancery, in which particulars of breaches were ordered, as well as to trials at common law.—CURTIS v. PLATT (1866), as reported in 35 L. J. Ch. 852, H. L.; affg. (1864), 3 Ch. D., p. 138, n., L. C.

Annotations:—Refd. Adie v. Clarke (1876), 3 Ch. D. 134; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (1883), 24 Ch. D. 156; Proctor v. Bennis (1887), 36 Ch. D. 740; Gosnell v. Bishop (1888), 4 T. L. R. 397; Siddell v. Vickers (1888), 39 Ch. D. 92; Boyd v. Horrocks (1889), 6 R. P. C. 152; Thomson v. Moore (1890), 6 R. P. C. 426; Miller v. Clyde Bridge Steel Co. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 470; Nettlefolds v. Reynolds (1892), 9 R. P. C. 270; Ticket Punch & Register Co. v. Colley's Patents (1895), 11 T. L. R. 262; Akt. Separator v. Dairy Outfit Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 327; Presto Gear Case & Components Co. v. Simplex Gear Case Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 635; British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Thompson (1905), 22 R. P. C. 17; Harrison Patents Co. v. Nicholson (1908), 25 R. P. C. 393. Mentd. Jahncke v. Bell (1891), 9 R. P. C. 94.

2588. —— ——.]—This was an action by the owners of a patent for improvements in home training or exercising machines for cyclists. The invention consisted in an arrangement of two rollers connected by a shaft with another roller in front which could be adjusted to suit the distance between the wheels of a bicycle. The bicycle was supported on these rollers, the driving wheel being on the two rollers, & the other wheel over the third roller. The motion of the driving wheel drove the two rollers, & the motion was communicated by the shaft to the other roller, & thence to the steering wheel of the cycle. By this breaches must be set forth in accordance with the forms of process of the Cts. of Scotland, in the condescendence, & not in a separate statement; & must specify the manner in which the infringement had taken place, & which of two protected processes of manufacture have been infringed.—MICA INSULATOR CO., LTD. v. BRUCE PEEBLES & CO., LTD. (1905), 7 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 944; 42 Sc. L. R. 700; 13 S. L. T. ,—SCOT.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 3, B. (a) & (b), & C. (a).] means the rider could exercise himself just as if he were riding on a road.

Defts. were supplied by pltfs. with one of the patented machines, & they made two more in imitation, & used all three side by side to represent a race at a theatre. One of pltfs. was present on the first occasion when the three were used, & objected to the use as an infringement, but after saying that he must consult his solr. he consented for the use for that night & two other nights on which he was present, actually himself riding his own machine after the performance. Pltfs. complained of this user, & subsequent performances as an infringement. Defts. contended that the user on the three nights was licensed, & as to subsequent users, they adduced evidence to show that they took away the front roller & connecting apparatus & gave only a dummy representation of a race, driving the front wheel of the bicycle by hand. In their answer to interrogatories, defts. stated that they did not infringe because they had only driven the front wheel by hand. Pltfs. alleged that they were misled by this answer; it did not say that the front roller was removed, & was taken to mean that the front roller, also called a wheel, was driven by hand, & no notice was given by defts. of the actual way in which the machines were worked:—Held: there was no infringement during the nights when pltf. was present; pltfs. could not complain of the manufacture as they did not allege it as an infringement in their particulars of breaches.—HENSER & GUIGNARD v. HARDIE (1894), 11 R. P. C. 421.

2589. —— ——.]—The B. T. H. co., Ltd., commenced an action to restrain infringement of their patent against I. L. W., Ltd., & the directors of that co., & by their statement of claim alleged that defts., other than deft. co., were actively engaged in the affairs of deft. co. & authorised, took part in or permitted the alleged infringement. Defts. applied for particulars of that allegation:—Held: the plea was capable of meaning that defts., other than deft. co., had impliedly authorised, permitted & taken part in the alleged infringement, & those defts. were not entitled to the particulars asked for, but pltfs. would not be allowed to give evidence of express directions given by those defts. unless they should have given particulars thereof.—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. IRRADIANT LAMP WORKS, LTD. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 338.

2590. Infringement of numerous patents—Plaintiff limited to group of patents.]—In a patent action for infringement, as in every other kind of action, the onus is on pltf. to prove that he has a definite cause of action against deft., & he is not entitled to call upon deft. to disprove the alleged infringement—in other words, to prove that pltf. has no cause of action against him. This is so even where pltf. may be suing upon several patents in one action upon the ground that it is impossible for him, unless deft. discloses the process of manufacture of the infringing article, to state definitely which of the patents in particular have been infringed.

Pltfs., the owners of twenty three patents for "Saccharin," sued deft., a trader who had purchased & imported from foreign manufacturers an article called "Sucramine," for alleged infringement, all twenty three patents being united in one action. In their particulars pltfs. stated generally that deft. had infringed "all" the patents, but alleged only two specific cases of infringement. To enable him to prepare & deliver his defence with particulars of objections as required by Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19 (2), deft., who said he did not know the process of the manufacture of sucramine, applied to the judge by summons that pltfs. might be ordered to give further and better particulars of breaches, specifying which of the twenty three patents they relied on as having been infringed, or that, under R. S. C., 1883, Ord. 18, rr. 1, 8, 9 & Ord. 19, r. 27, the trial of the action might be limited to such of the twenty three patents, as being separate causes of action, as to the ct. might seem just. The evidence on the summons showed that the patents were capable of division into three separate groups, so that the infringements specifically charged, if infringements of one group, could not be infringements of the others; but pltf. professed his inability to say which of the groups had been infringed:—Held: pltfs. were not entitled to unite the twenty three patents in one action, but must be limited to selecting a certain number of them, not exceeding three in the first instance, upon which they would proceed with their action.

In a patent action further evidence by affidavit & cross-examination thereon is not admissible upon an appeal except under special circumstances, or by the consent of the parties.—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. WILD, [1903] 1 Ch. 410; 72 L. J. Ch. 270; 88 L. T. 101; 19 T. L. R. 154; 20 R. P. C. 243, C. A.

Annotations:—Consd. Saccharin Corpn. v. White (1903), 88 L. T. 850. Refd. Saccharin Corpn. v. Jackson (1903), 20 R. P. C. 611.

2591. —— ——.]—Where an action is brought for the alleged infringement of numerous different letters patent all relating to the same process of manufacture, the order limiting the number of letters patent to be sued upon should not be qualified by the words in the first instance.—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. WHITE (R.) & SONS, LTD. (1903), 88 L. T. 850; 47 Sol. Jo. 618; 20 R. P. C. 454, C. A.

2592. —— ——.]—SACCHARIN CORPN. v. ALLIANCE CHEMICAL CO., LTD. (1905), 22 R. P. C. 175, C. A.

2593. Delivery of particulars.]—The practice prescribed by Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 41, with respect to actions at law for the infringement of letters patent ought to be followed in suits in equity as closely as circumstances will permit. Pltf. in a patent suit ought either to state in his bill the particulars of the breaches complained of, or to deliver along with his bill a written statement of such particulars, which statement need not be filed. Deft. in a patent suit ought to set forth in his answer the particulars of any objections on which he relies.—FINNEGAN v. JAMES (1874), L. R. 19 Eq. 72; 44 L. J. Ch. 185; 23 W. R. 373.

Annotations:—Apld. Crossley v. Tomey (1876), 2 Ch. D. 533; Patterson v. Gaslight & Coke Co. (1876), 2 Ch. D. 812; Birch v. Mather (1883), 22 Ch. D. 629. Consd. Hayward v. Lely (1887), 56 L. T. 418. Refd. Parnell v. Mort, Liddell (1885), 29 Ch. D. 325.

2594. Amendment of particulars.]—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. FLEMING (1886), 3 R. P. C. 268.

2595. Form of particulars—Infringement of dye patent.]—The Ct. of Appeal settled the particulars of breaches in the following form: (a) Defts. have, since the date of the said patent, manufactured or caused to be manufactured, & have sold dye stuffs, the same, or substantially the same, as pltfs.' Naphtol Black. (b) The dye stuffs complained of are those sold by defts. under the name of "Naphtol Black, O.D." (c) The dye stuffs complained of are made according to the process described & claimed in pltfs.' specification in all respects.—CASSELLA v. LEVINSTEIN & CO. (1891), 8 R. P. C. 473, C. A.

2596. Particulars of secret ideas—Communicated in breach of agreement.]—HELPS v. OLDHAM CORPN., No. 3314, post.

(b) Further Particulars.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 18.

2597. Form of further particulars—Reference to drawings.]—PERRY v. MITCHELL (1840), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 269.

Annotation:—Consd. Electric-Telegraph Co. v. Nott (1847), 4 C. B. 462.

2598. —— References to pages & lines—Infringement of complicated patent.]—LAMB v. NOTTINGHAM MANUFACTURING CO. (1874), cited L. R. 19 Eq. at p. 232.

Annotation:—Distd. Batley v. Kynock (No. 2) (1874), L. R. 19 Eq. 229.

2599. —— Specific instances coupled with general words.]—Pltfs. in an action for infringement delivered particulars of breaches alleging that defts. had infringed by importing into this country, selling, exposing for sale, & otherwise dealing with glass globes, shades, & moons, having their surfaces wholly or in part roughened in a particular way. Defts. took out a summons for further & better particulars. It appeared that pltfs. complained of all globes imported by defts. since a certain date, & that pltfs. had bought some of such globes. The judge expressed an opinion that pltfs. ought to give two or three specific instances of globes which they alleged to be infringements, but ought to be at liberty to add general words so as not to be confined to such instances at the trial; & he therefore made an order for further & better particulars.—TILGHMAN'S SAND BLAST CO. v. WRIGHT (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 216; 1 R. P. C. 103.

2600. At what stage ordered—Intention of plaintiff to interrogate defendant.]—Pltf. in an action for infringement of his patent delivered particulars of breaches, alleging sales to the G. N. Ry. co., & to others. Deft. applied for an order for further & better particulars, & the chief clerk made an order that pltf. should give the names of the persons to whom he alleged deft. had sold, & the dates of the sales. Pltf. moved to reverse this order, alleging that he did not know the names of the persons to whom deft. had sold, but that he intended to interrogate deft.:—Held: pltf. ought not to be called upon to give any further particulars at that stage of the action, but the refusal of the order was not to prejudice any subsequent application by deft.—RUSSELL v. HATFIELD (1885), 2 R. P. C. 144; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 204.

2601. Application refused.]—ELSEY v. BUTLER (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 96.

2602. Indication of particular claims in specification.]—In an action for alleged infringement of a patent for improvements in refrigerative processes & apparatus for preserving meat, pltfs., by their particulars of breaches, complained of the manufacture, etc., by defts. of certain refrigerating machines containing an arrangement of machinery described & claimed in pltf.'s patent, & also of certain pipes used for a particular purpose, & also "by way of example" & not of "limitation" of the machines fitted by defts. on board the "S." Defts. applied for further & better particulars, & obtained an order from a master in chambers that pltfs., so far as concerned machines fitted to ships, might be confined to the "S.," unless further names were given. Part of their application asked for a direction that pltfs. should state whether they claimed in respect of all or only of some, & which of the claims in the specification, but this direction the master refused to give:—Held: defts. were entitled to the direction asked for, & that the order ought to be varied accordingly, but not in any other respect. Where the sufficiency of particulars of types of engines alleged to be infringements is questioned, it lies on the party who alleges that, for the honest purpose of his litigation, he wants further information or limitation to satisfy the ct. that he is really placed in a difficulty by the particulars as they stand (WILLS, J.).—HASLAM & CO. v. HALL (1887), 4 R. P. C. 203, D. C.

Annotation:—Folld. Cheetham v. Oldham & Fogg (No. 3) (1888), 5 R. P. C. 624.

2603. Vendor of articles entitled to more detailed particulars than manufacturer.]—A person who only sells alleged infringing arts. may require more detailed particulars of breaches than a person who manufactures.—MANDLEBERG v. MORLEY (1893), 10 R. P. C. 256.

2604. Particulars of manner of infringement.]—In an action for infringement of letters patent for a process of marking cloth, pltf. was ordered to give further & better particulars of breaches, so as to give at least one instance of the acts of infringement complained of. Pltf. delivered particulars which defts. alleged to be insufficient, & on the application coming before the judge, he considered the particulars sufficient subject only to the addition of certain words thereto, & he made an order accordingly. Defts. appealed:—Held: pltf. ought to describe the manner in which the acts which he alleged to be infringement were carried out, & the particulars were insufficient. An order for further & better particulars was made.—MARSDEN v. ALBRECHT & ALBRECHT (1910), 27 R. P. C. 785, C. A.

2605. Infringement of more than one patent.]—Pltfs. in an action for infringement sued in respect of a patent, No. 11575 of 1897. On a petition for extension of the term of this patent an order had been made in 1911 for the grant of a new patent for a term of seven years from the expiration of the existing patent but confined to certain claims in the specification, & a new patent was granted accordingly & numbered 11575 of 1897. Pltfs. also sued in respect of a patent, No. 7777 of 1900. Defts. applied for an order for further & better particulars of the patents & claims alleged to be infringed. The judge in chambers refused to make the order & defts. appealed to the Ct. of Appeal. After a prolonged discussion, an order was made by consent that pltfs. should deliver an amended statement of claim & amended particulars by a certain date, &, peremptorily, that the defence & particulars of objections should be delivered by a certain other date.—MARCONI v. SIEMENS BROTHERS & CO., LTD. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 146, C. A.

C. Defence.

(a) In General.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 4, 25, 33, 38.

2606. No infringement.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent, the ct., since the C. L. P.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.—C. (a).

e. Want of novelty—Prior invalid patent.]—A prior patent to a person who is not the true inventor is no defence against an action by the true inventor under a patent issued to him subsequently, & does not require to be cancelled or repealed by sci. fa.,

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 3, C. (a).]

Act, 1852 (c. 76), allowed deft. to plead, (1) not guilty; (2) that the patentee was not the inventor; (3) non concessit; (4) that the invention was not a manufacture; (5) that the invention was not new; & (6) that no sufficient specification was enrolled.—PLATT v. ELSE (1853), 8 Exch. 364; 22 L. J. Ex. 192; 20 L. T. O. S. 226; 17 Jur. 188; 155 E. R. 1388.

Annotation:—Refd. Hancock v. Noyes (1854), 9 Exch. 388.

2607. Want of novelty.]—WALTON v. POTTER & HORSFALL, No. 2954, post.

2608. ——.]—PLATT v. ELSE, No. 2606, ante.

2609. ——.]—The patentee of an invention of an improved method of & apparatus for effecting circulation in, & supply of water to, steam boilers, brought an action for infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged the invalidity of the patent on the ground that (a) pltf. was not the first & true inventor; (b) the alleged invention was not new; (c) & was previously published by certain specifications; (d) the complete specification did not sufficiently describe the alleged invention; (e) & was misleading, as it did not show what the patentee claimed:—Held: (1) so much information had been given to the world by the specification of one W., even though it had not been practically used, that pltf. must be taken to have only used common knowledge, & the patent failed on that ground; (2) defts. had not taken the particulars of pltf.'s combination, & had not infringed. The objection that pltf. is not the first & true inventor should not be introduced unless it is intended to actually raise the question, whether he, or somebody else, was in fact the first & true inventor.—THOMSON v. MACDONALD & CO. (1890), 8 R. P. C. 5.

2610. —— As to whole invention—& as to undisclaimed part.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent, to which a disclaimer as to part has been entered under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, deft. will not be allowed to plead that the whole invention was not new, & also that the undisclaimed part was not new.—CLARK v. KENRICK (1843), 12 M. & W. 219; 1 Dow. & L. 392; 13 L. J. Ex. 6; 152 E. R. 1177.

2611. —— —— & as to part.]—(1) Case for the infringement of a patent for certain improvements in machinery; breach, the making, using & putting in practice the invention & also a part thereof. The specification described the invention as a combination of several parts, & also appeared to claim each part separately:—Held: deft. was entitled to plead that parts of the invention were not a new manufacture within Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), as well as that the whole was not a new manufacture within that statute.

(2) The notice of particulars of objection delivered by deft. in pursuance of 5 & 6 Wm. 4, c. 83, s. 5, stated amongst other grounds of objection, that the invention was known to "A. B. & others" who were the true inventors thereof & had first used & exercised the same in England:—Held: deft. was not bound to specify the names of the other parties.—BENTLEY v. KEIGHLEY (1844), 1 Dow. & L. 944; 6 Man. & G. 1039; 7 Man. & G. 652; 7 Scott, N. R. 987; 8 Scott, N. R 372; 13 L. J. C. P. 167; 3 L. T. O. S. 221; 134 E. R. 1213.

2612. —— Defendant original patentee—Assignment of patent.]—WALTON v. LAVATER, No. 1536, ante.

2613. —— Separate plea from common knowledge.]—PHILLIPS v. IVEL CYCLE CO., No. 3178, post.

2614. —— At date of grant.]—I am, therefore, of opinion that in this case deft.'s right to succeed can be established without an examination of the terms of the specification of pltfs.' letters patent. I am aware that such a mode of deciding a patent case is unusual, but from the point of view of the public it is important that this method of viewing their rights should not be overlooked. In practical life it is often the only safeguard to the manufacturer. It is impossible for an ordinary member of the public to keep watch on all the numerous patents which are taken out & to ascertain the validity & scope of their claims. But he is entitled to feel secure if he knows that that which he is doing differs from that which has been done of old only in non-patentable variations, such as the substitution of mechanical equivalents or changes of material shape or size. The defence that "the alleged infringement was not novel at the date of pltf.'s letters patent" is a good defence in law, & it would sometimes obviate the great length & expense of patent cases if deft. could & would put forth his case in this form, & thus spare himself the trouble of demonstrating on which horn of the well known dilemma pltf. had impaled himself, invalidity or non-infringement (LORD MOULTON).—GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR CO. v. ANGLO-AMERICAN TRADING CO., LTD. (1913), 30 R. P. C. 465, H. L.

2615. Subject-matter not ground for patent.]—BETTS v. WALKER, No. 2660, post.

2616. Patentee not inventor.]—PLATT v. ELSE, No. 2606, ante.

2617. Invention not a manufacture.]—PLATT v. ELSE, No. 2606, ante.

2618. No sufficient specification enrolled.]—PLATT v. ELSE, No. 2606, ante.

2619. No machine made according to specification.]—ECCLES & BRIERLY v. MCGREGOR, No. 200, ante.

2620. Property not vested in plaintiff.]—In an action by an assignee of a patent for the infringement, a plea that the property is not vested in pltf. is bad, as "embarrassing" under C. L. P. Act, 1852 (c. 76), s. 52, & will be set aside.—COTTULA v. SOAMES (1862), 3 F. & F. 93.

2621. Patent irregularly obtained.]—To an action for the infringement of a patent, deft. pleaded (inter alia) that the patent was granted on the petition of pltf., & the report of the Solicitor-General, confiding in pltf.'s representation that a paper writing deposited by him with the Solicitor-General contained a true statement of the heads of the invention; that pltf. enrolled a specification in which he claimed three distinct things, & falsely described as part of the invention the third claim, whereas such third claim was not part of the invention in the petition paper writing & letters patent mentioned, & was not any part of the invention for which the letters patent were granted. An application having been made under C. L. P. Act, 1852 (c. 76), s. 52, to strike out the whether it is vested in deft. or in a person not a party to the suit.—SMITH v. GOLDIE (1882), 9 S. C. R. 46.—CAN.

2616 i. Patentee not inventor.]—Pltf. complained of deft. having infringed his patent obtained for a new & useful mode of generating & distributing in dwelling houses. Plea, that pltf. was not the true & first of the improvement. Detraversing something eld: plea good.—v. SCOTT (1859), 6 U. C. R. 205.—CAN.

f. Infringement by third party.]—SMITH v. POWELL (1858), 7 C. P. 332.—CAN.

g. Infringing apparatus subject of patent not revoked.]—The infringement of pltf.'s patent for a pump, which was complained of, was by a pump for plea :—Held : it was a plea containing matter of evidence, & calculated to embarrass the fair trial of the action ; & the ct. ordered it to be struck out, deft. to be at liberty to plead non concessit, & pltf. did not specify the invention for which the letters patent were obtained.—HANCOCK v. NOYES (1854), 9 Exch. 388 ; 2 C. L. R. 1060 ; 23 L. J. Ex. 110 ; 156 E. R. 165.

Annotation :—Refd. Foxwell v. Bostock (1864), 10 L. T. 144.

2622. No specification of invention.]—HANCOCK v. NOYES, No. 2621, ante.

2623. Invention capable of two patents—Appropriation of one by defendant.]—The bill alleged that T., a British subject, residing abroad, the first discoverer of a useful invention, had in Aug. 1854, sent a description of it to England by the son of deft. M., at the same time desiring him, the son, to apply for a patent on account of T. ; that the description was complete enough to have two specimens made according to it, which answered the purposes of the invention ; & that thereupon deft. M. took out letters patent in his own name & for his own benefit. Pltf., treating these letters patent as conferring no beneficial right on M., by arrangement with T. made other specimens under the description so previously sent from abroad by T. M. sued pltf. for infringement of the patent ; on which pltf. filed the present bill to restrain the action, alleging, in addition to the facts above mentioned, that M. was a trustee for T., & also intending to allege that M. was the general agent of T., but by mistake the word "pltf." was printed instead of "T" :—Held : M. had under the circumstances stated in the bill, a legal right to the patent for his own benefit, which this ct. would not restrain.—STEEDMAN v. MARSH (1856), 2 Jur. N. S. 391 ; 4 W R. 476.

2624. Patent unenrolled when infringed—Patent statutorily validated—After infringement.]—A subsequent plea stated, that after the four months for the enrolment of pltf.'s patent had expired, & before the passing of the statute, deft. took out letters patent for an improvement upon pltf.'s invention, & that the same could not be used without using pltf.'s invention, & that since the passing of the statute deft. had used his invention in exercise of the licence granted to him by his letters patent, & in so doing necessarily used the invention of pltf., as he lawfully might, etc. On special demurrer :—Held : the plea was bad ; the licence to deft. to use his own patent gave him no licence to use that of pltf. ; & the statute was sufficiently public in its nature to conclude the interests of deft. as well as of the rest of the public. —STEAD v. CAREY (1845), 1 C. B. 496 ; 14 L. J. C. P. 177 ; 5 L. T. O. S. 74 ; 9 Jur. 511 ; 135 E. R. 634.

2625. Plaintiff's patent altered by disclaimer—Grant to defendant of similar patent prior to disclaimer—Allegation of invalidity of plaintiff's patent.]—This plea is a bad plea. It ought to have shown that pltf.'s patent is void, & there is no allegation to show that it is void, unless it arises from the disclaimer under the statute, or the subsequent grant of B.'s patent. Then is the patent void on account of the subsequent grant to B. ? Pltf.'s patent was granted in 1836, that of B.'s in 1840, & pltf.'s disclaimer in 1844 ; now does it necessarily appear that the grant to B. made the precedent grant to pltf. void in point of law ? No such inference arises, because the patent having been granted to pltf. in 1836, & the specification of the invention having been made within six months following, it is necessary to say that the registered specification of that invention having been made what B. has himself entered his patent for in 1840, must be of the same subject-matter ; otherwise the plea is altogether bad, inasmuch as it admits the infringement in respect of the invention which it alleges is covered by the patent of B. (TINDAL, C.J.).—STOCKER v. WARNER (1845), 1 C. B. 148 ; 14 L. J. C. P. 90 ; 4 L. T. O. S. 315 ; 9 Jur. 136 ; 135 E. R. 493.

2626. Estoppel of plaintiff.]—Pltfs. under their patent manufactured a pneumatic tyre for cycles, which consisted of a rubber or elastic tyre lined in canvas in combination with two wires for securing the same to the rims of the wheels. Deft., at the request of an agent of pltf. co., who brought him one of pltf.'s tyres, which was old & worn out, placed over the old wires a new canvas cover & a new rubber tyre. The agent had been sent by pltfs. to find out whether deft. was infringing their parent, but there was nothing to show that the agent was authorised by them to request deft. to do what he did :—Held : (1) what deft. had done went beyond fair repair of the tyre, & amounted to its reconstruction, & he had therefore infringed the pltfs.' patent ; (2) pltfs. were not estopped by the act of their agent from complaining of the infringement ; (3) though only the one act of infringement by deft. was proved, & there was no evidence of any threat by him to infringe again, yet, as he had accepted the order from pltf.'s agent in the ordinary course of his business, it must be assumed that he would accept similar orders again, if they were offered to him, & consequently he must be restrained by injunction from infringing the patent.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. NEAL, [1899] 1 Ch. 807 ; 68 L. J. Ch. 378 ; 80 L. T. 746 ; 47 W. R. 632 ; 16 R. P. C. 247.

Annotations :—As to (1) Consd. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley, [1904] 1 Ch. 612. Distd. Sirdar Rubber Co. v. Wallington, Weston, [1905] 1 Ch. 451.

2627. ——.]—In 1908 letters patent were granted to W., P. & M. for "Improvements in fabric breaking machines." In 1917 W. & P. Ltd. who received W. & P. in the beneficial ownership of two-thirds of the patent, & P. commenced an action against a limited co. & M. for infringement of the patent & deft. co. justified their acts by alleging a licence by M. in 1909 with the consent of W. & P. W. died in 1913. M. had been in the employment of W. & P. & afterwards entered the employment of deft. co. The main issue in the action was whether deft. M. did obtain antecedently to or contemporaneously with the grant of a licence to deft. co. the consent of his co-owners thereto. Further it was contended on behalf of defts. that P. & through P. deft. co. had such knowledge of what deft. co. was doing as to preclude it from recovering damages from deft. co. :—Held : (1) defts. had not established any express consent either antecedent to or contemporaneous with the alleged grant of the licence & it had not been brought home to P. or through him to pltf. co. that a condition of things which deft. had obtained a patent, & it was objected that this patent was an answer to the action until set aside ; but semble, not.—MERRILL v. COUSINS (1866), 26 U. C. R. 49.—CAN.

h. Use of other patented process under licence.]—Action for damages & injunction for violation of patent. Defence that deft. was making use of another patent with the consent & licence of the patentee & that the machine so used possessed advantages superior to pltf.'s patent. Injunction granted & deft. condemned in nominal damages.—FEDERATION BRAND SALMON CANNING CO. v. SHORT (1900), 31 S. C. R. 378.—CAN.

k. Non-joinder of owners of patent.]—As a defence to an action for infringement of a patent of invention it was pleaded that the patent was the property of certain joint-owners who were not pltfs. :—Held : this was in effect pleading a jus tertii, & was not existed from which consent ought to be implied; (2) the same principles which underlie the raising of an equity against a pltf. or litigant by means of acquiescence are involved when an attempt is made to raise a consent under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 37, by implication.—WHITEHEAD & POOLE, LTD. v. FARMER (SIR JAMES) & SONS, LTD. (1918), 35 R. P. C. 241.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 3, C. (a) & (b).]

2628. Previous action with identical cause—Prior defendant successful.]—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. RIMINGTON BROTHERS & CO., LTD. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 665, C. A.

2629. Illegal purpose of invention.]—Defence that the invention was for an illegal purpose, namely gambling, held not to be established on a motion for an interlocutory injunction.—PESSERS & MOODY v. HAYDON & CO. (1908), 26 R. P. C. 58.

2630. Infringement under contract with government department.]—In 1910 letters patent were granted to M. In 1911 M. assigned the patent to the Pyrene Manufacturing co., who, on Dec. 14, 1916, assigned it to the Pyrene co., Ltd. On Feb. 8. 1917, the last mentioned co. & its assignors, the Pyrene Manufacturing co., commenced an action for infringement & alleged manufacture & offer for sale by defts. prior to Dec. 14, 1916. Defts. denied infringement & alleged that the patent was invalid. On May 22, 1919, defts. delivered an amended defence by which they pleaded Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 29, as a defence, & alleged that, if they had manufactured any goods in infringement of the patent, they had done so as contractors to His Majesty's Govt. On Jan. 6, 1920, deft.'s solrs. by letter abandoned the plea of invalidity:—Held: defts. had not manufactured or sold machines in infringement of the patent otherwise than under a contract with a govt. department; the contract compelled manufacture without obtaining the licence of the patentees; defts. were contractors within sect. 29, & the action must be dismissed with costs, except so far as the costs were increased by the issue of invalidity; & defts must pay so much of pltf.'s costs of the issue of invalidity as were incurred prior to the receipt of the letter of Jan. 6, 1920.—PYRENE CO., LTD. v. WEBB LAMP CO., LTD. (1920), 37 R. P. C. 57.

2631. Patented process mainly carried on abroad—Establishment of primâ facie case—Prior cross-examination of witnesses.]—The S. Corpn. brought an action against the N. S. co. for the infringement of three patents for the manufacture of saccharin. Defts. alleged anticipation, common knowledge, & that the manufacture was carried on exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. In cross-examining pltfs.' witnesses counsel for defts. put questions with a view to supporting the defence founded upon Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 25, 27. Upon objection taken that it was necessary in the first instance for defts. to lay the foundation for the proposed questions by establishing a primâ facie case under sect. 27:—Held: defts. need not, before asking the proposed questions, give evidence in support of their defence under sect. 27. Defts. in the present case were attacked on the ground that they had infringed pltfs.' rights & were entitled to put questions to pltfs.' witnesses as in an ordinary action to support their defence.—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. NATIONAL SACCHARIN CO., LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 287.

Annotation:—Refd. Vidal Dyes Syndicate v. Read, Holliday (1911), 28 R. P. C. 323.

2632. Combination of similar defences.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent for improvements in cards, the ct. refused to allow defts. to plead that the art. in respect of which the patent was granted was generally known previously, & that the alleged improvements were not an invention in respect of which a patent could lawfully be granted & a similar plea as to part of the alleged invention in addition to a plea that the invention was not a new manufacture within Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3).—WALTON v. BATEMAN (1842), 3 Man. & G. 773; 4 Scott, N. R. 397; 133 E. R. 1350.

2633. Ambiguous defence.]—Under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 1, authorising any person, who, as grantee, assignee, or otherwise, hath obtained letters patent for using an invention, to disclaim any part of the title of such invention, or of the specification, the proper person to disclaim is the original grantee. Although he may have parted with all his interest. Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), s. 6, protects letters patent & grants of privilege, hereafter to be made, of the sole working or making of any manner of new manufactures within this realm, to the true & first inventor. In an action for infringing pltf.'s patent, a plea, founded on the above clause, that the said invention was not, at the time of making the patent, a new manufacture within this realm, within the true intent & meaning of Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (c. 3), is bad for ambiguity.—SPILSBURY v. CLOUGH (1842), 2 Q. B. 466; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 255; 2 Gal. & Dav. 17; 11 L. J. Q. B. 109; 6 Jur. 579; 114 E. R. 184.

Annotation:—Refd. Ledsam v. Russell (1847), 16 M. & W. 633.

2634. Annexation of copies of drawings—Plea setting out specification.]—BETTS v. WALKER, No. 2660, post.

2635. Amendment of defence—On discovery of new facts.]—The ct. will at any time during the progress of a patent suit allow deft. to raise a fresh issue on the discovery of facts which could not with due diligence have been discovered before.—HOLSTE v. ROBERTSON (1876), 4 Ch. D. 9; 46 L. J. Ch. 1; 35 L. T. 457; 25 W. R. 35, C. A.

2636. —— Striking out unnecessary but not embarrassing plea.]—A. obtained a patent & assigned it to B. B. brought an action against A. for infringement. A. by his defence—(1) denied infringement; (2) alleged that if according to the true construction of the patent it covered what he had done, then the patent was bad as having been anticipated by the specifications of R. & C. B. took out a summons under Ord. 19, r. 27, to strike out (2). The judge refused to do so:—Held: (2), so far as admissible by way of defence, was included in (1), & therefore was unnecessary, but that as it did not tend to prejudice, embarrass, or delay the fair trial, it need not necessarily be struck out.—HOCKING v. HOCKING (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 129; 3 R. P. C. 291, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Ashworth v. Law (1890), 7 R. P. C. 231.

a good defence in law to the action.—TORONTO TYPE FOUNDRY CO. v. REID (1908), 12 Exch. C. R. 8.—CAN.

l. Patented process condemned by health authorities.]—In an action for infringement of a patented process paragraphs of the statement of defence alleging that the process had been condemned by various foreign health boards were struck out.—AISOP PROCESS CO. v. CULLEN (1912), 23 O. W. R. 106; 4 O. W. N. 135; 6 D. L. R. 859.—CAN.

m. Grant of subsequent patent.]—A subsequent patent is no defence to an action of infringement.—PANYARD MACHINE & MANUFACTURING CO. v. BOWMAN, [1926] Exch. C. R. 158.—CAN.

(b) Estoppel as to Validity.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 35 ; 1919 (c. 80), sched.

2637. Plea by assignor.]—WALTON v. LAVATER, No. 1536, ante.

2638. ——.]—Upon the dissolution of a partnership between pltfs. & deft., deft. assigned to pltfs. all his interest in a patent which formed part of the assets :—Held : deft. could not afterwards set up the invalidity of the patent as against pltfs.—CHAMBERS v. CRICHLEY (1864), 33 Beav. 374 ; 55 E. R. 412.

Annotation :—Folld. Gonville v. Hay (1903), 21 R. P. C. 49.

2639. ——.]—The owner of a licence under a patent executed a declaration of trust of it in favour of a firm of which he was a member. A partnership action was commenced by G., one of the partners, & an order was made for a stay of proceedings on certain terms, including an assignment by G. to his partners of his share in the partnership at a price to be fixed by arbn., & a term that the form or deed of dissolution & assignment & any other question arising in respect thereof should be referred to the arbitrator. On a motion by G. to set aside the arbitrator's award : —Held : on the construction of the submission to arbn. the arbitrator had not exceeded his jurisdiction in inserting in the deed of dissolution a covenant prohibiting G. from manufacturing according to the patent. The assignor of a licence under a patent is not entitled as against his assignee to dispute the validity of the patent. —GONVILLE v. HAY (1903), 21 R. P. C. 49.

2640. —— Compulsory assignment in bankruptcy.]—(1) If a patentee becomes bankrupt, & his trustee in bkpcy. assigns the patent, the patentee is not estopped from afterwards denying the validity of the patent, as against the assignee.

(2) A patentee having gone into liquidation his trustee in liquidation assigned the patent. The patentee afterwards went into a trade partnership with S. The assignees of the patent brought an action against the patentee & S. for an injunction & damages for infringements of the patent alleged to have been committed in partnership. The defence alleged the invalidity of the patent, & defts. delivered particulars of objections, viz., that defts. would deny the infringement, & that deft. S. would rely on their objections to the validity of the letters patent on the ground of want of novelty & insufficiency of the specification : —Held : under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 41, it was not necessary for every one of two or more defts. defending in the same interest to deliver particulars of objections, & the patentee was not precluded from setting up at the trial the invalidity of the patent on the ground of want of novelty & insufficiency of the specification.—SMITH v. CROPPER (1885), 10 App. Cas. 249 ; 55 L. J. Ch. 12 ; 53 L. T. 330 ; 33 W. R. 753, H. L. ; varying S. C. sub nom. CROPPER v. SMITH (1884), 26 Ch. D. 700, C. A Annotations :—As to (2) Consd. Shoe Machinery Co. v. Cutlan, [1896] 1 Ch. 108. Generally, Mentd. Re Crighton & Law Car & General Insce. Corpn., [1910] 2 K. B. 738 ; Pirie v. Richardson (1926), 70 Sol. Jo. 1023.

2641. Plea by assignor's partner.]—The rule that an assignor of a patent is estopped from disputing its validity does not prevent his partner from separately raising that defence to an action for infringement.—HEUGH v. CHAMBERLAIN (1877), 25 W. R. 742.

2642. Purchaser of patented article.] — The owners in equity of a patent together with the patentee may maintain an action for infringement of the letters patent. The owners in equity & the patentee of a patented article granted to purchasers of articles made in pursuance of the invention, or any person into whose hands the same might come, a limited licence to use or sell the same on the express condition that they were not to be sold or advertised for sale at less than a specified price, & on every cardboard box in which the articles were made up the provisions of the licence were stated, with a warning that any sale in breach of the provisions would be an infringement of the patent :—Held : a purchaser of the patented article was not bound to accept the position of licencee, & was not estopped from attacking the validity of the patent.—GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR CO. v. GAMAGE (A. W.), LTD. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 808 ; 26 R. P. C. 745.

Annotation :—Refd. Gillette Safety Razor Co. v. Luna Safety Razor Co., [1910] 2 Ch. 373.

2643. Where other defences set up.]—To an action for the infringement of a patent for certain improvements in a cabriolet, three pleas were pleaded : (a) the general issue ; (b) that the alleged improvements were not new ; & (c) that pltfs. were not the true & first inventors of the improvements :—Held : (1) on this state of the pleadings it could not be contended that the patent was illegal as being a monopoly.

(2) Though all the improvements claimed must be shown to be new, yet it need not be shown that deft.'s cabriolet was an imitation of the whole of them, but an imitation of one was sufficient to maintain the action.

(3) The validity of the patent might be considered as having come in question under plea (b) so as to entitle pltf. to a certificate to that effect under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 3.—GILLETT v. WILBY (1839), 9 C. & P. 334 ; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 270, N. P.

2644. Validity of patent certified in previous action—Against different defendant.]—CROSSKILL v. TUXFORD, No. 2845, post.

2645. English & foreign patent—Foreign patent dropped—Decree establishing English patent.]—DAW v. ELEY, No. 3039, post.

2646. Necessity for previous notice of grounds of objection.]—SMITH v. CROPPER, No. 2640, ante.

2647. Previous injunction against defendant—Action for second infringement.]—In a case where deft. has once submitted to an injunction, it is improper for him on being attached for a second infringement, either directly or indirectly, to raise arguments against the validity of the patent.—MOORE v. THOMSON (1890), 7 R. P. C. 325, H. L.

2648. Agreement amounting to novation—Plaintiffs not parties thereto.]—At the trial the issue was PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.—C. (b).

n. Plea by assignor — Extent of estoppel.]—Where the original owner of a patent had assigned it, & was subsequently proceeded against by the assignee for infringement thereof, the assignor was held to be estopped from [illegible] validity thereof ; but, [illegible] he was in no worse than any independent person [illegible]tted the validity of the was allowed to show that, on a fair construction of the patent, he had not infringed.—INDIANA MANUFACTURING CO. v. SMITH (1904), 24 C. L. T. 387 ; 9 Exch. C. R. 154.—CAN.

[illegible] assignor of a patent, sued as an infringer by his assignees, is estopped from saying that the patent is not good ; but he is not estopped from showing what it is good for, i.e. he can show the state of the art or manufacture at the time of the invention, with a view to limiting the construction of the patent.—INDIANA MANUFACTURING CO. v. SMITH (1905), 26 C. L. T. 458 ; 10 Exch. C. R. 17.—CAN.

p. Inconsistent defences.] — In an action for infringement of certain patents for invention, deft. pleaded that the patents were invalid. By counterclaim deft. alleged that pltf. was a trustee for deft. in respect of the patents, & sought a declaration of its right as trustee by the ct. :—Held : while the evidence did not support the

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 3, C. (b), & D. (a) & (b) i.]

(inter alia) whether defts. were precluded from contesting the validity of the patent by an agreement to which pltfs. were not parties, but with regard to which they alleged a novation :—Held : (1) defts. were not precluded from disputing the validity of pltf.'s patent ; (2) the improvements forming the subject-matter of pltf.'s patent referred to mechanism which formed the subject of a prior patent of 1913 referred to in the specification of pltf.'s patent & not a much larger class of selecting & separating apparatus of which the mechanism covered by the patent of 1913 was only a sample & consequently deft. had not infringed.—WARD BROTHERS (BLACKBURN), LTD. v. MOORE & AVERY (BLACKBURN), LTD. (1922), 40 R. P. C. 247, C. A.

See, also, ESTOPPEL, Vol. XXI., pp. 146, 171, 179, 186, 187, 210, 257, 272, 331, Nos. 101, 265, 302, 344, 345, 501, 810, 902, 1252.

D. Particulars of Objections.

(a) In General.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, rr. 15-19.

2649. Necessity for particulars.] — (1) Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 41, requires deft. in an action for the infringement of a patent, to deliver with his pleas the particulars of any objections on which he means to rely at the trial ; & where he intends to rely upon a prior user or publication, the particulars must state the place or places at which, & in what manner, the invention has been used or published prior to the date of the patent ; & in the absence of such statement, deft. will be precluded from giving evidence of such prior user or publication.

(2) Pltf.'s particulars of breaches cannot be called in aid of the defective particulars of objection.

(3) Though a judge at chambers has power to order the amendment of the particulars, he cannot introduce into such order any terms relative to the admissibility of evidence at the trial under such particulars which are inconsistent with the provisions of sect. 41.—PALMER v. COOPER (1853), 9 Exch. 231 ; 2 C. L. R. 430 ; 23 L. J. Ex. 82.

2650. ——.]—FINNEGAN v. JAMES, No. 2593, ante.

2651. Function of particulars.]—The notice of objections is to apprise pltf. of what he has to meet.—LOSH v. HAGUE (1838), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 202.

Annotations :—Refd. R. v. Cutler (1847), 3 Car. & Kir. 215 ; Tetley v. Easton (1857), 2 C. B. N. S. 706 ; Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse (1887), 3 T. L. R. 367 ; Morgan v. Windover (1887), 3 T. L. R. 748 ; Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 431. Mentd. Booth v. Kennard (1856), 5 W. R. 85 ; Brook & Hirst v. Aston (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 1025.

2652. ——.]—The principle upon which the ct. proceeds in regulating the form of particulars of objections on the trial of a patent case, is to guard against a surprise upon pltf. by production on the trial of evidence of prior user or publication of which he has no notice. Therefore it will require deft., in stating those instances on which he intends to rely, to put pltf. in possession of all he himself knows, so far as to enable him to identify the instances alleged.—CURTIS v. PLATT (1863) 8 L. T. 657 ; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 144 ; subsequent proceedings (1866), 35 L. J. Ch. 852. H. L.

2653. ——.]—S. brought an action against the owners of a patent, for improvements in the construction of wire ropes, to restrain the issue of threats & for a declaration that the patent was invalid. Amongst his particulars of objections he alleged that the alleged invention was previously published by the manufacture, sale, use, or public exhibition of wire ropes made according to the alleged invention by W. from the years 1832 to 1862. W. had made depositions in an action by defts. in the present action against F., which depositions were filed in ct. with certain exhibited specimens. Defts. applied for further & better particulars of this objection :—Held : as the object of particulars was to prevent any surprise, the particulars in the case were not sufficient, pltf. could not be tied down to continuous user during the period, & he must give some further particulars if he was able to do so.—SMITH v. LANG (1890), 7 R. P. C. 148, C. A.

2654. Proof of delivery—Necessity for.]—NEILSON v. HARFORD, No. 2454, ante.

2655. Time for delivery—After delivery of defence.]—If, in an action for the infringement of a patent, deft. neglect to deliver with his pleas the objections required by 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, it seems doubtful if the ct. have power to allow him to deliver them afterwards nunc pro tunc ; but if they are satisfied on the merits, they will grant him leave to plead de novo, & then deliver the objections with the fresh pleas.—LOSH v. HAY (1838), 2 Jur. 157.

2656. Sufficiency—Must be in distinct & intelligible language.]—In the particulars of objections delivered under 5 & 6 Wm. 4, c. 83, s. 5, the substantial objections must be stated in distinct & intelligible language, & the particulars must not be confined to giving merely general information.—FISHER v. HEWITT (1838), 6 Dowl. 739 ; sub nom. FISHER v. DEWICK, 4 Bing. N. C. 706 ; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 264 ; 1 Arn. 282 ; 6 Scott, 587 ; 7 L. J. C. P. 279 ; 132 E. R. 961.

Annotations :—Apld. Heath v. Unwin (1842), 10 M. & W. 684. Distd. Jones v. Berger (1843), 5 Man. & G. 208. Apld. Morgan v. Fuller (2) (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 297. Refd. Neilson v. Harford (1841), 8 M. & W. 806 ; Betts v. Walker (1849), 14 Jur. 647 ; Flower v. Lloyd (1876), 45 L. J. Ch. 746 ; Sugg v. Silber (1877), 2 Q. B. D. 493.

2657. —— More than merely general information.]—FISHER v. HEWITT, No. 2656, ante.

2658. —— More information than pleas.]—NEILSON v. HARFORD, No. 2454, ante.

2659. —— ——.]—JONES v. BERGER, No. 2695, post.

2660. —— ——.]—A plea which refers for explanation to drawings, not traced on the record but annexed to it, is inadmissible ; & the ct., on motion, where the pleading related to the specification enrolled by a patentee, ordered such plea to be struck out. Qu. : whether such plea would have been allowable, unless by consent, if the drawings had been traced on the record. In an action for infringing a patent, deft., after pleading that the patent was granted on a representation that the invention was an invention of improvements in a specified art., whereas it was not an invention of improvements in such art., & so the counterclaim, in any event deft. could not, on the one hand, deny the validity of the patents, &, on the other, assert a right depending upon the patents being treated as valid & effective.—IMPERIAL SUPPLY CO. v. GRAND TRUNK RY. CO. (1912), 11 E. L. R. 340 ; 14 Exch. C. R. 88.—CAN.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.—D. (a).

q. Sufficiency.]—In an action for an infringement of pltf.'s patent, upon an order that deft. should deliver to pltf. particulars of any objections on which he intended to rely in support of his plea that the invention was not new but had been wholly & in part used, practised, & vended in Great Britain before the patent :—Held : a notice that he intended to object at the trial to the patent altogether, as being granted for what was not a new invention, was sufficient.—MILLS v.

patent was void, averred, by another plea, that the supposed invention was not of such use, benefit & advantage to the public as by law required to make it a consideration for granting a patent, whereby the patent was void. The ct., on motion, struck out the latter plea. In an action for infringing a patent, if deft.'s notice of objections under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 5 (see Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 41), is too general to give such information as pltf. is entitled to, it is no answer to a motion for better notice that the notice is as specific as the pleas.—BETTS v. WALKER (1849), 14 Q. B. 363; 14 Jur. 647; 117 E. R. 144.

2661. —— Not to go beyond pleas.]—Whatever objections defts. may have given you notice of, they cannot go beyond their pleas. I apprehend that the statute does not make the notice of objections stand in the place of pleas (LORD ABINGER, C.B.).—MACNAMARA v. HULSE (1842), Car. & M. 471; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 128, n.

Annotations:—Refd. Wegmann v. Corcoran, Witt (1878), 27 W. R. 357; Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 6 R. P. C. 243; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95.

2662. —— Sufficient to prevent surprise.]—SMITH v. LANG, No. 2653, ante.

2663. —— Manufacture of patent abroad.]—THERMOS, LTD. v. BRITISH CALORIS CO. (1909), 26 R. P. C. 827.

2664. —— ——.]—COLMAN v. COOK & CO., No. 2701, post.

2665. Defective particulars—Whether plaintiffs particulars can be called in aid.]—PALMER v. COOPER, No. 2649, ante.

2666. Admissibility of evidence having regard to particulars—Evidence within meaning of particulars as delivered—Particulars defective.]—HULL v. BOLLARD, No. 2720, post.

2667. —— Cross-examination limited by particulars.]—THERMIT, LTD. v. WELDITE, LTD. (1907), 24 R. P. C. 441.

2668. Action against partners—Particulars delivered by one only—Effect of.]—In an action against joint contractors, where defts. set up separate defences, & one deft. only pleads facts which, when proved show that pltf. is not entitled to recover, & that deft. is entitled to judgment, the defence is available to all defts., though not pleaded by the others, & the action fails altogether.

If partners were sued as partners for infringement of a patent, & one of them put in the necessary particulars of defence, it was obviously for the defence of the case in which he was interested, & the failure of the other partner to put in similar particulars would not result in separate judgments against the two (LORD HANWORTH, M.R.).—PIRIE v. RICHARDSON, [1927] 1 K. B. 448; 96 L. J. K. B. 42; 136 L. T. 104; 70 Sol. Jo. 1023, C. A.

Certificate of reasonableness of particulars.]—See Sub-sect. 11, C., post.

(b) Want of Novelty.

i. In General.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 16.

2669. R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 16—Object of rule.]—(1) The keynote of the provision in above rule—that where prior user is alleged as an objection to the validity of a patent the particulars of the prior user must contain a description, accompanied by drawings if necessary, sufficient to identify such alleged prior user, & if such user relates to any machinery or apparatus shall specify whether the same is in existence & where the same can be inspected—is in the words sufficient to identify such alleged prior user, & the object of the rule was to meet the difficulties which arose under the former practice by reason of a party being ignorant up to trial as to the case of prior user which he had to meet, & his opponent being unfettered as to what at the trial he should adduce as an example of prior user.

(2) Nature of order to be made on application for further particulars of prior user.—CROSTHWAITE FIRE BAR SYNDICATE v. SENIOR, [1909] 1 Ch. 801; 78 L. J. Ch. 417; 100 L. T. 646.

2670. —— Particulars of patent of process—Distinguished from particulars of patent of machinery or apparatus.]—Above rule which deals with particulars of objection as to want of novelty in a patent action, distinguishes between a patent for a process, & a patent for machinery or apparatus, & requires less detailed particulars in the former case than in the latter; & where prior user is alleged & pltf.'s patent is for a process only, if deft. has satisfied the requirements of the rule as to names, places, & dates, he will only be required in addition to give a description sufficient to identify the alleged prior user; he will not be required to give particulars of the apparatus employed by him in working the process relied upon by him as an anticipation nor to allow inspection of any samples in his possession of substances treated by that process.—MINERALS SEPARATION, LTD. v. ORE CONCENTRATION CO. (1905), LTD., [1909] 1 Ch. 744; 78 L. J. Ch. 604; 100 L. T. 753; 26 R. P. C. 413, C. A.

Annotation:—Follid. Re Stahlwerk Becker Akt. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 332.

2671. Sufficiency of particulars—Lack of distinction in specification between old & new.]—JONES v. BERGER, No. 2695, post.

2672. —— To what part of patent objections apply.]—BODMER v. BUTTERWORTH, No. 2691, post.

2673. —— Grounds in respect of want of novelty.]—At present the Act which is operative upon the matter is Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57). Deft. wished us to construe that to mean this, that where one of the grounds is want of novelty the one thing that the party who impeaches the patent on the ground of want of novelty is bound to state is, first, I impeach it on the ground of want of novelty, & then to state the time & place of the previous publication or user alleged by him, & no more. I apprehend that that is putting too narrow a construction upon that subsection, & that it must state on what grounds he disputes it, & if one of those grounds is want of novelty he must state reasonably on what grounds in respect of want of novelty, he disputes it, & he must also state the time & place of the previous publication or user alleged by him (DENMAN, J.).—FOWLER v. GAUL (1886), 3 R. P. C. 247; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 99, D. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Holliday v. Heppenstall (1889), 41 Ch. D. 109.

2674. —— Time & place must be shown—Of user or publication.]—FOWLER v. GAUL, No. 2673, ante.

2675. —— Particular instances.]—LEDGARD v. BULL, No. 2573, ante.

SCOTT (1849), 5 U. C. R. 360.—CAN.

r. Form of order—Exclusion of evidence—Striking out defence.]—In making an order for particulars of the defence in a patent action, the better practice is to provide merely for exclusion of evidence in case of no particulars or insufficient particulars being delivered, & not to order the excision of the defence, if good per se.—NOXON BROTHERS MANUFACTURING CO. v. PATTERSON & BROTHER CO. (1894), 16 P. R. 40.—CAN.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 3, D. (b) i., ii. & iii.]

2676. —— ——.]—BOYD v. FARRAR, No. 2685, post.

2677. Objection to specification describing two inventions—Evidence of want of novelty of one—Whether sufficient.]—Under notice of objection by a deft. to an action for infringing a patent, that the invention was not new, deft. can at the trial show that one of two inventions described in the specification is not new, & that the patent is therefore bad.—SUGG v. SILBER (1877), 2 Q. B. D. 493, C. A.

ii. Prior Publication.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 16.

2678. What particulars must be given—Particulars enabling identification of instances of prior user.]—CURTIS v. PLATT, No. 2652, ante.

2679. —— —— Page & line.]—In an action for infringement of a patent defts. disputed the validity of the patent on the grounds of want of novelty & anticipation, & delivered particulars of objections, in which they referred to about twenty specifications, stating that in each case they relied on the whole specification, & to passages, some of them of considerable length, in above twenty books. Pltf. applied for better particulars. The judge ordered defts. to deliver better particulars as to the specifications, but made no order as to the extracts from books:—Held: defts. must be ordered to strike out from their particulars all the publications on which they relied simply as proving the state of general public knowledge at the time when the patent was granted to have been such that there was no invention in the patented process; &, as regarded alleged anticipations, they must state the nature of the anticipations on which they relied, & point out distinctly, though not necessarily by page & line, where such anticipations were to be found.—HOLLIDAY v. HEPPENSTALL BROTHERS (1889), 41 Ch. D. 109; 58 L. J. Ch. 829; 61 L. T. 313; 37 W. R. 662; 6 R. P. C. 320, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Phillips v. Ivel Cycle Co. (1890), 62 L. T. 392; Nettlefolds v. Reynolds (1891), 65 L. T. 699; Siemens v. Karo, Barnett (1891), 8 R. P. C. 376.

2680. —— Whether special parts need be pointed out—Reliance on whole of specification.]—Deft. in an action for infringement of a patent, the specification of which was complicated & contained six claims, delivered particulars of objections, alleging twelve instances of prior publications & three of prior use, but did not in any case point out which of the six claims was alleged to be thereby anticipated. When referring to a specification as anticipated the particulars alleged that the whole was relied upon, but more particularly certain portions which were mentioned. When referring to a book as anticipation, the particulars alleged that it contained a description of pltf.'s invention, especially as set forth at the pages mentioned. On a summons by pltf. for further & better particulars:—Held: further & better particulars must be delivered, stating at which of the claims in pltf.'s specification each of the objections was pointed, & omitting the words denoting reliance on the whole of the specifications mentioned in the particulars, & the whole of the book therein also mentioned.—HARRIS v. ROTHWELL (1886), 3 R. P. C. 243; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 109.

2681. —— —— ——.] — SIDEBOTTOM v. FIELDEN, No. 2899, post.

2682. —— Particulars showing where anticipation found—Reference to books & writings.]—JONES v. BERGER, No. 2695, post.

2683. —— —— ——.]—In an action for infringement of a patent deft. delivered particulars of objections alleging that the invention was not subject-matter having regard to the general state of public knowledge & the particulars specified, & that the alleged invention was not new, having been published by seven specifications, in six of which the whole specification was relied on, in the other, Fig. 1, & the letterpress referring thereto, & by the general use of regenerative gas lamps. Pltf. applied by summons for further particulars, & at the hearing asked that all the particulars of the specifications except one, & the particulars of general use might be struck out. Defts. were willing to state they relied on the whole specification except the claiming parts, to give further particulars as to W.'s, C.'s, & S.'s lamps, & to strike out particulars of general use of regenerative lamps simply:—Held: (1) as it appeared defts. bonâ fide relied on the whole specifications, & these were not long, & described a particular thing, a lamp, & the substance of pltf.'s patent was a lamp, that such part of the particulars must stand, though it is always in the discretion of the ct. to see how far deft. really does rely on the whole specification, & (2) further & better particulars specifying sufficiently the particular lamps of W., C., & S. before referred to, with time & place of user, should be given.—SIEMENS v. KARO, BARNETT & CO. (1891), 8 R. P. C. 376.

2684. —— —— ——.]—Defts. who in their particulars of objections alleged prior publication in several specifications, alleging as to some that all parts were relied on against all the claims of pltfs.' specification, were not ordered to give further particulars.—EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO. v. COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH CO. (1900), 18 R. P. C. 4.

2685. —— ——.]—In an action for infringement of a patent for complicated machinery where the specification contained seventeen separate claims, deft. delivered particulars of objections, under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), alleging (a) prior publication by articles made according to the supposed invention being publicly exhibited in use by H. & Son; & (b) prior publication in certain specifications which were enumerated & identified with references to pages & lines. Pltf. applied for further & better particulars:—Held: (1) deft. ought to specify the particular machines or articles which were alleged to be anticipations of pltf.'s patent; but he need not state the parts of pltf.'s invention which were anticipated thereby, as pltf. must be taken to know his own invention.

(2) Deft. must state which of pltf.'s claims he alleged to be anticipated by the respective specifications mentioned; &, therefore, the particulars required must be given.—BOYD v. FARRAR (1887), 57 L. T. 866.

2686. —— General allegation insufficient.]—The owners of a patent brought an action for infringement. Defts. pleaded, amongst other things, that pltfs. were not entitled to the exclusive rights claimed by them, inasmuch as these rights had been granted to another patentee by an earlier patent. Pltfs. applied for an order to strike out this plea as embarrassing, or, in the alternative, for further & better particulars of the grounds on which defts. disputed the validity of pltfs.' patent:—Held: further particulars must be given.—ROTHWELL v. MACINTOSH & CO., LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 274.

iii. Prior User.

2687. Particulars allowed on proper notice.]—The object in directing issues to be tried at law is to ascertain the real state of the facts; & therefore the ct. in a patent case will allow further particulars of prior user of the invention to be brought forward on proper notice.—BOVILL v. GOODIER (1867), 36 L. J. Ch. 360; previous proceedings (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 195.

2688. What particulars may be ordered—Particulars enabling identification of instances of prior user.]—CURTIS v. PLATT, No. 2652, ante.

2689. —— Names of users — Before patent granted.]—By 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 5, it is enacted that, in any action brought against any person for infringing any letters patent, deft., in pleading thereto, shall give to pltf., & in any sci. fa. to repeal such letters patent, pltf. shall file with his declaration, a notice of any objections on which he means to rely at the trial of such action:—Held: the ct. or a judge, in virtue of their general jurisdiction over the proceedings in a cause, may require the party to deliver further & better objections. Semble: where the objection to the patent is its want of novelty, & deft. intends to rely on a previous user of the supposed invention by divers persons, he cannot be compelled in his notice to give the names & descriptions of those persons.—BULNOIS v. MACKENZIE (1837), 4 Bing. N. C. 127; 6 Dowl. 215; 3 Hodg. 251; 5 Scott, 419; 7 L. J. C. P. 33; 1 Jur. 945; 2 Carp. Pat. Cas. 406; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 260; 132 E. R. 737.

Annotations:—Folld. Russell v. Ledsam (1843), 11 M. & W. 647. Refd. Electric Telegraph Co. v. Nott (1847), 4 C. B. 462.

2690. —— —— Names of particular persons "& others."]—BENTLEY v. KEIGHLEY, No. 2611, ante.

2691. —— ——.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent, the particulars of objection must show to what parts of the patent the objections are intended to apply, but an objection that the inventions were in public use before the granting of the letters patent need not state the names & addresses of the persons by whom they were so used.—BODMER v. BUTTERWORTH (1844), 2 L. T. O. S. 368.

2692. —— ——.]—In a suit to restrain the infringement of a patent deft. was required to state whether he was not making articles in all respects identical with those of pltf., & to set forth in what respects they differed & by what process they were made:—Held: (1) deft., who alleged prior user by himself & others, had sufficiently answered by stating that, save so far as the articles manufactured by him before the date of the patent were similar to those of pltf., the articles he now made differed from those made by pltf., but he could not show in what they differed without ocular demonstration; (2) deft. was bound, in alleging prior user by other persons, to set forth the names of some of those persons.—CROSSLEY v. TOMEY (1876), 2 Ch. D. 533; 34 L. T. 476.

Annotation:—Refd. Birch v. Mather (1883), 22 Ch. D. 629.

2693. —— ——.]—SIDEBOTTOM v. FIELDEN, No. 2899, post.

2694. —— —— Where names cannot be given—Class of articles with respect to which user alleged.]—In a suit to restrain the infringement of a patent for improvements in the construction of carriages, the alleged invention consisting of a particular mode of opening & closing the heads of carriages, particulars of objections stating that head-joints similar to those used in pltf.'s alleged invention had been, before the date of the patent, commonly used by carriage builders generally throughout Great Britain, & that head-joints, similar to those described in the specification, had been actuated in their motions in the way described, before the date of the patent, by various carriage builders in or near London, Liverpool, Manchester, & Southampton, & various other of the principal towns of Great Britain, were held insufficient. Semble: where the objection points to the public use of a particular preparation, the words "by various makers in or near London," might be sufficient. If deft. could not give the names of the carriage builders in or near London, etc., he would be required to specify the class or classes of carriages with respect to which the alleged prior user had taken place; & might have been held sufficient.—MORGAN v. FULLER (2) (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 297; 14 L. T. 353.

Annotation:—Apld. Flower v. Lloyd (1876), 45 L. J. Ch. 746.

2695. —— —— Description of class of users.]—(1) The notice of objections to a patent delivered by deft. under 5 & 6 W. 4, c. 83, s. 5, ought to contain more particular information than that which is necessarily conveyed by deft.'s pleas.

(2) In an action for the infringement of a patent "for improvements in treating, or operating upon, farinaceous matter & other products, & in manufacturing starch," one objection stated, that the alleged invention had been published in the specification of two previous patents, particularising them, "& also by other persons in other books & writings":—Held: the books, etc., should be specified.

(3) A second objection stated, that pltf.'s specification did not "sufficiently distinguish between what was old & what was new":—Held: sufficient, as the objection was to an omission in the specification.

(4) The same objection alleged that pltf. did not state in his specification "the most beneficial method with which he was then acquainted, of practising his said invention":—Held: sufficiently precise.

(5) A third objection stated that the invention was in use by many persons before the patent, & particularly that the use of rice starch was "known & practised by persons engaged in the manufacture, & finishing, of lace & similar fabrics at Nottingham & elsewhere":—Held: upon striking out the words "& elsewhere," the objection was sufficiently precise.—JONES v. BERGER (1843), 5 Man. & G. 208; 6 Scott, N. R. 208; 12 L. J. C. P. 179; 7 Jur. 883; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 544; 134 E. R. 540.

Annotations:—As to (5) Consd. Russell v. Ledsam (1843), 11 M. & W. 647; Bentley v. Keighley (1844), 7 Man. & G. 652. Apld. Morgan v. Fuller (2) (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 297.

2696. —— —— ——.]—Where, in an action for the infringement of a patent, deft. relies on a general user of the supposed invention, it is sufficient to state, in his particulars of objection, under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 41, that the invention was used by manufacturers generally at a particular place, without naming any person or specifying any manufactory.—PALMER v. WAGSTAFFE (1853), 8 Exch. 840; 1 C. L. R. 448; 22 L. J. Ex. 295; 21 L. T.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 3, D. (b) iii., (c), (d) & (e).]

O. S. 169; 17 Jur. 581; 1 W.R. 438; 155 E. R. 1594.

Annotations:—Refd. Hull v. Bollard (1856), 25 L. J. Ex. 304; Alliance Pure White Lead Syndicate v. Mac Ivor's Patents (1891), 39 W. R. 487.

2697. —— —— ——.]—MORGAN v. FULLER (2), No. 2694, ante.

2698. —— Description of user.]—BULNOIS v. MACKENZIE, No. 2689, ante.

2699. —— Time & place of user—Including user by defendant.]—PALMER v. COOPER, No. 2649, ante.

2700. —— ——.]—SIEMENS v. KARO, BARNETT & Co., No. 2683, ante.

2701. —— ——.]—In an action for infringement of two patents for "improvements in knot tying implements." Defts. stated in their defence that they would rely upon the fact that the patented arts. had been manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. Pursuant to an order, defts. gave particulars in which they stated (inter alia) that the place of manufacture was R. in America, or some other place or places in the United States unknown to defts. Pltfs. made an application for further particulars as to the place or places where the alleged manufacture had taken place & the time or times during which it had taken place at each alleged place. The application was refused & pltfs. appealed: —Held: particulars must be given to identify the situation in R. or the individuals by whom the arts. were said to have been made in R., & the statement as to some other place of manufacture must be struck out, without prejudice to any application to deliver further particulars.—COLMAN v. COOK & Co. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 175, C. A.

2702. —— Particulars enabling identification of articles used.]—CROSTHWAITE FIRE BAR SYNDICATE v. SENIOR, No. 2669, ante.

2703. —— When patent of process infringed.]—MINERALS SEPARATION, LTD. v. ORE CONCENTRATION Co. (1905), LTD., No. 2670, ante.

2704. Form of order.]—CROSTHWAITE FIRE BAR SYNDICATE v. SENIOR, No. 2669, ante.

(c) Common Public Knowledge.

2705. Reference to books—Whether permissible.]—HOLLIDAY v. HEPPENSTALL BROTHERS, No. 2679, ante.

2706. Reference to single prior specifications.]—Although it is unnecessary to specify every publication which is relied on as common knowledge, defts. will not be allowed to refer to a single specification as showing common knowledge without giving notice of it by their particulars.—ENGLISH & AMERICAN MACHINERY Co., LTD. v. UNION BOOT & SHOE MACHINE Co., LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 367, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Sutcliffe v. Abbott (1902), 20 R. P. C. 50; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Stonebridge Electrical Co. (1916), 33 R. P. C. 166.

2707. ——.]—Deft. in an action for infringement alleged in the particulars of objections that the alleged invention was not the subject-matter of valid letters patent, having regard to the state of public knowledge, & stated that he relied under this objection on the anticipations alleged, & also referred to two specifications therein specified. At the trial, deft. having stated that he did not rely on anticipation, it was objected that one of the two specifications mentioned in the particulars could not be referred to:—Held: the specification having been mentioned in the particulars of objections, could be referred to.—SUTCLIFFE v. ABBOTT (1902), 20 R. P. C. 50.

2708. Particulars of documents not relied on as anticipations.]—ACETYLENE ILLUMINATING Co. v. UNITED ALKALI Co., No. 3432, post.

2709. Available public knowledge distinguished from general public knowledge—Further particulars ordered.]—In an action for infringement of a patent for the manufacture of tungsten electric lamp filaments, by their particulars of objections defts. alleged (inter alia) that the alleged invention was not subject-matter by reason of "common &/or public knowledge," & said that they proposed to refer to certain specifications as disclosing part of the public knowledge, & that they would contend that the alleged invention was not subject-matter by reason that it was merely a statement of an alleged discovery, that tungsten is ductile whilst heated, together with a descrip- of matters specified more in detail in another of the particulars, of "common &/or public knowledge" & practice relative to the working & drawing of metals in a ductile state, &, when necessary or desirable, prevention of oxidation during the process of working or drawing. One of the matters specified more in detail was as follows:—"Some metals which cannot be successfully drawn when cold, can be successfully drawn when in a heated condition." Pltfs. applied for further particulars as to the documents disclosing the alleged public knowledge. At the hearing of the application, defts. contended that, from defts.' point of view, public knowledge was the same as common knowledge, & that, having stated the matters of public, or common, knowledge upon which they relied, they ought not to be required to give particulars of documents in which those matters were disclosed. They undertook to give to pltfs. a list of the metals alleged to be capable of being drawn only when in a heated condition: —Held: what defts. called public knowledge was not anything more than available, as distinguished from general, public knowledge; & particulars of documents must be given; & that the costs of the application should be pltfs.' in any event.—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON Co., LTD. v. STONEBRIDGE ELECTRICAL Co., LTD. (1916), 33 R. P. C. 166.

(d) Insufficiency of Description.

2710. Sufficiency—Most beneficial method not described.]—JONES v. BERGER, No. 2695, ante.

2711. —— Directions not sufficient for skilled workman.]—Deft. in an action for the infringement of a patent denied the validity of the patent, & stated the objection that the specification did not sufficiently describe the nature or the invention & how it was to be performed. In compliance with an order for further particulars he repeated the above objection, with the addition that the specification did not contain a sufficient direction to enable skilled workmen to make a machine having the advantages alleged by the inventor.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.—D. (c).

——— manufacture must be distinguished.]—MACEWAN v. HOPKIRK (1912), 31 N. Z. L. R. 1143. —N.Z.

b. Particulars of prior specifications.]—If a patent is attacked on the ground that there was common general knowledge of the public of the invention at the time of the patent a plea of such general knowledge need give no individual instances, but specifications of other patents cannot be used as evidence of general knowledge unless they have been specially mentioned, either on a plea of want of novelty or a plea of common knowledge.—RIDD MILKING Co. v. TRELOAR MILKING Co. (1914), 34 N. Z. L. R. 34.—N.Z.

The judge ordered further particulars, & deft. appealed :—Held : this order ought to be affirmed, for that, if deft. knew of a particular defect in the specification, he ought to point it out, that pltf. might not be taken by surprise.—CROMPTON v. ANGLO-AMERICAN BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHT CORPN. (1887), 35 Ch. D. 283 ; 56 L. J. Ch. 802 ; 57 L. T. 291 ; 35 W. R. 789 ; 3 T. L. R. 521, C. A.

2712. —— Old not sufficiently distinguished from new.]—JONES v. BERGER, No. 2695, ante.

2713. —— ——.] —BOXWELL v. COCHRAN (1895), 12 R. P. C. 169.

2714. —— Specification too wide.]—BOXWELL v. COCHRAN, No. 2713, ante.

2715. —— Specification ambiguous & calculated to mislead.]—BOXWELL v. COCHRAN, No. 2713, ante.

2716. What particulars may be ordered—Defect relied on to be pointed out.]—CROMPTON v. ANGLO-AMERICAN BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHT CORPN., No. 2711, ante.

2717. —— ——.] —Defts. must state the grounds on which they dispute the validity of the patent. I think, therefore, that pltf. is entitled to be told in what respects his specification fails to sufficiently describe the nature of the invention. I must assume this objection is a substantial one, & if that is so, defts. can state it without injuring themselves. If it is not a substantial one the sooner it is discovered to be so the better (NORTH, J.).—HEATHFIELD v. GREENWAY (1893), 11 R. P. C. 17 ; 38 Sol. Jo. 59.

(e) Further Particulars.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 18.

2718. Power of court to order.]—BULNOIS v. MACKENZIE, No. 2689, ante.

2719. —— Discretionary exercise—Plaintiff not prejudiced by refusal.]—In an action for infringement of a patent defts. denied infringement & counterclaimed for the revocation of the patent on the ground of invalidity, & in their particulars of objections they stated that the patent was void for want of subject-matter & utility. Pltfs. applied for further & better particulars of objections. The application was refused by the judge in chambers. Pltfs. appealed, & contended that they were entitled to know if any special case of non-utility was relied on by defts. :—Held : in this case no difficulty could arise by reason of pltfs. not knowing the line of criticism that would be adopted by defts. at the trial, particulars would therefore be unnecessary, & there was no ground for interfering with the discretion of the judge.—PRESTO COAT COLLAR CO. v. LEVY BROTHERS (1911), 28 R. P. C. 362, C. A.

2720. Duty of plaintiff to apply for—Particulars too general.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent, if the particulars of objections, delivered with the pleas in pursuance of Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 41, are too general, the party who means to object to them must procure an order for better particulars. The Act does not prevent defective particulars from being available at the trial, & pltf. cannot resist the admission of evidence, which is within the literal meaning of the particulars, on the ground that the statement is too general, & that the particulars do not give the required information as to the place in which the invention is alleged to have been used.—HULL v. BOLLARD (1856), 1 H. & N. 134 ; 25 L. J. Ex. 304 ; 27 L. T. O. S. 221.

Refd. Chollet v. Hoffman (1857), 7 E. & 686 ; Sykes v. Howarth (1879), 48 L. J. Ch. 769, 2721. Liability of plaintiff for costs.]—In an action for infringement of a patent for a combined evaporating & propagating pan, defts. denied infringement, & alleged that pltf. was not the first & true inventor. By their particulars of objections defts. alleged that the means described in pltfs.' specification for constructing propagating pans had been in ordinary & common use for 40 years prior to the date of the patent. In their further answers to interrogatories defts. gave a description of the particular method they relied on to support their plea of general user. At the trial, evidence was given by defts.' witnesses of another method which had been used at a large number of places & which appeared to be a complete anticipation of pltf.'s invention. Pltf. objected that no particulars had been given of this, & asked that the case might stand over :—Held : the action must stand over, but at pltf.'s risk as to costs. Defts., whose witnesses had given many instances of this use, to be allowed to give particulars of further instances. An application that pltf. might have a certain time, after the delivery of the fresh particulars, to elect whether he would discontinue the action on paying costs up to the first delivery of particulars, but to get the subsequent costs refused.—PASCALL v. TOOPE (1890), 7 R. P. C. 125.

2722. Election of plaintiff to discontinue action—After further particulars delivered.]—PASCALL v. TOOPE, No. 2721, ante.

Prior publication.]—See Nos. 2679–2686, ante.

Prior user.]—See Nos. 2670, 2683, 2687, 2689, 2701, ante.

Common knowledge.]—See No. 2709, ante.

Insufficiency of description.]—See Nos. 2711, 2713, 2717, ante.

2723. Defendant relying on whole of number of specifications.]—In an action for infringement of a patent deft., in his particulars of objections, alleged publication by seventeen prior specifications, relying in some cases on the whole & in other cases giving pages & lines & pointing out the claims in pltfs.' specification to which the anticipations referred. Pltfs. applied for further & better particulars, asking that deft. should be ordered to state what, in the case of each specification, was the nature of the anticipation on which he relied, & in what part of each specification such alleged anticipation was to be found. Pltfs. referred to one of the alleged anticipating specifications, as to which the whole was relied on, as an instance ; that specification contained fourteen pages of letterpress, seven sheets of drawings, twenty-three figures, & had fifteen claiming clauses. Deft.'s counsel stated they had considered this carefully & relied on the whole of it. It was held, without examining the particular instance in detail, that there must be some definition or limitation of what was intended to be referred to & what was not ; & that speaking generally a specification should not be referred to as a whole, but that the picking out of some parts was desirable & proper, & without laying down any general rule, further & better particulars must be given in all the cases in which objection was made. Deft. appealed :—Held : deft. appeared to have honestly done his best to give proper particulars, & in such a case, unless there was some obvious or grievous mistake, the ct. ought not to tie his hands too tight, & in the present case the particulars given were all which could be reasonably required.—NETTLEFOLDS v. REYNOLDS (1891), 65 L. T. 699 ; 8 R. P. C. 410, C. A.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 3, D. (f) i., ii., iii., iv. & v.;

(f) Amendment.

i. In General.

. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 17.

2724. Power of court to allow.]—BRITAIN v. HIRSCH (1888), 5 R. P. C. 226, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Lane Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424.

ii. When Allowed.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 17.

2725. On discovery of new facts.]—In a suit to establish the validity of a patent, where the patent is impeached on the ground of want of novelty & prior user of the invention, deft. will not be allowed, in the course of the hearing before the ct. without a jury, to introduce evidence of prior user not disclosed by the particulars of objection, although such evidence may have only come to his knowledge since the delivery of the particulars of objection. Semble: the ct. will give deft. leave, on short notice of motion, to amend his particulars of objection, so as to introduce such newly-discovered evidence.—DAW v. ELEY (1865), L. R. 1 Eq. 38; 13 L. T. 399; 11 Jur. N. S. 923; 14 W. R. 48.

Annotations:—Refd. Parnell v. Mort, Liddell (1885), 29 Ch. D. 325; Moss v. Malings (1886), 33 Ch. D. 603.

2726. —— Not previously discoverable with due diligence.]—HOLSTE v. ROBERTSON, No. 2635, ante.

2727. —— ——.]—In the course of the hearing of a patent action, after the examination & cross-examination of pltf. had been concluded, deft. asked for leave to amend the particulars of objection, alleging that since the close of the cross-examination deft. had discovered some new facts showing that pltf.'s alleged invention was not new at the date of the patent; & to have the further hearing of the action postponed:—Held: the application must be refused, there being nothing to show that deft. could not, with reasonable diligence, have discovered the new facts sooner.—MOSS v. MALINGS (1886), 33 Ch. D. 603; 56 L. J. Ch. 126; 35 W. R. 165; Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 166.

Annotation:—Refd. Slazenger v. Feltham (1889), 5 T. L. R. 364.

2728. After refusal of defendant to amend particulars.]—In 1873 letters patent for improvements in lace machines were granted to H. In 1877 H. went into liquidation, & the patent was sold by the trustee to pltfs. H. afterwards entered into partnership with S. This action was brought against S. & H. to restrain them from infringing the patent. By an order made when the action came on for trial it was postponed, with liberty to S. & H. to deliver specified objections, when S. & H. denied infringement, & S. objected to the validity of the patent on the ground of want of novelty & insufficiency of the specification.

The cross-examination of pltfs.' witnesses showed want of novelty in one of the subsidiary combinations in the machine:—Held: H. never having asked for leave to amend his particulars of objection, but having to the last argued the case on the ground that no such amendment was necessary, leave ought not to be now given, but his appeal must be dismissed.—CROPPER v. SMITH Ch. D. 700; 53 L. J. Ch. 891; 51 L. T. 729; 33 W. R. 60, C. A.; revsd. on other grounds, sub nom. SMITH v. CROPPER (1885), 10 App. Cas. 249, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Shoe Machinery Co. v. Cutlan, [1896] 1 Ch. 108. Apld. Pirie v. Richardson (No. 1) (1926), 70 Sol. Jo. 1023. Mentd. Re Crighton & Law Car & General Insce. Corpn., [1910] 2 K. B. 738.

iii. What Amendments may be Allowed.

2729. Prior user.]—DAW v. ELEY, No. 2725, ante.

2730. ——.]—AVELING v. MCLAREN (1880), 17 Ch. D. 139, n.

Annotation:—Folld. Edison Telephone Co. of London v. India Rubber, Gutta Percha & Telegraph Works Co. (1881), 29 W. R. 496.

2731. ——.]—Deft. in one of these actions which had been ordered to be tried one after the other, applied shortly before the trial for leave to amend his particulars of objections by adding a public user at the South Kensington Museum of particular engines, which it transpired had, by leave of the authorities, been removed to deft.'s premises, where, however, deft. was willing to give pltf. facility for inspecting same:—Held: leave must be granted; but the costs of & consequent on the amendment & the application were to be pltf.'s in any event.—OTTO v. STEEL, OTTO v. STERNE (1885), 2 R. P. C. 139; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 179; subsequent proceedings, 31 Ch. D. 241.

Annotation:—Refd. Harris v. Rothwell (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 109.

2732. Prior specification.]—AVELING v. MCLAREN, No. 2730, ante.

2733. —— Additional prior specifications—Prior use of similar contrivances.]—DARRAH v. PURSER (1889), 6 R. P. C. 365.

2734. Misrepresentation.]—TECALEMIT, LTD. v. EX-A-GUN, LTD. (1926), 44 R. P. C. 62, C. A.

2735. —— Where common use pleaded.]—In an action for infringement of a patent deft. pleaded that if pltfs. alleged that deft. used a material part of pltfs.' invention, such part of the invention was old & in common use. Deft. gave no particulars of objections. The action was consolidated with an action to restrain threats by the patentees, in which action on a motion for an injunction, deft. had given evidence by affidavit that the pltfs.' patent was anticipated by certain specifications. No order was made on the motion. At the trial of the two actions consolidated, deft. wished to rely on these specifications as evidence that the parts of pltfs.' machine were old:—Held: pltfs. might reasonably conclude the defence of anticipation was abandoned, & the specifications could not be received in evidence. Leave to amend the particulars was given on the terms stated in the Edison Telephone Company v. India Rubber Co., No. 2736, post.—MACKIE v. SOHO LAUNDRY SUPPLY CO., LTD., SOHO LAUNDRY SUPPLY CO., LTD. v. MACKIE (1893), 9 T. L. R. 301; sub nom. SOLVO LAUNDRY SUPPLY CO., LTD. v. MACKIE, MACKIE v. SOLVO LAUNDRY SUPPLY CO., LTD., 10 R. P. C. 68.

2736. New instances of prior publication.]—In granting deft. in a patent action after issue joined, & a day has been fixed for the hearing, leave to amend his particulars of objection, the ct. will place pltf. in the same position as to discontinuing the action, or disclaiming a [illegible] of his invention, as he would have been original particulars of objection had contained

---

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.—D. (f) i.

c. Power of court to allow — Amendment by Court of Appeal—After trial & before hearing of appeal.]—Particulars of objections allowed to be amended by Ct. of Appeal after trial & before the hearing of the appeal, by adding a specification among those relied on as prior publications.—PIRRIE v. YORK STREET FLAX SPINNING CO., LTD. (1892), 10 R. P. C. 34.—IR.

the new instances of prior publication proposed to be introduced by amendment; & accordingly all costs incurred by pltf. subsequently to the delivery of the original particulars of objection will be ordered to be paid to him by deft. in case he elects, within a time fixed by the order, to discontinue his action.—EDISON TELEPHONE Co. v. INDIA RUBBER Co. (1881), 17 Ch. D. 137; 29 W. R. 496.

Annotation:—Reld. Solvo Laundry Supply Co. v. Mackie, Mackie v. Solvo Laundry Supply Co. (1893), 10 R. P. C. 68.

2737. Insufficient description.]—(1) The B. co., as owners of a patent for the manufacture & production of dye stuffs, brought an action for infringement thereof against the C. co. & W., claiming the usual relief. Defts. denied infringement of the patent, & they denied validity on various grounds set forth in their particulars of objections, one being that it was anticipated by the previous specification of M. In the course of the trial they were allowed to amend their particulars by introducing a fresh objection, that one of the processes described in the specification, by way of example, was insufficiently described:—Held: pltf.'s patent was not anticipated by M.'s patent, but it was invalid on the ground of insufficiency of the description of one of the processes given by way of example in the specification. Judgment was given for defts. in respect of the first patent & on the issue as to the validity of the second patent. Special order was made as to costs.

(2) Test tube experiments are not nearly so satisfactory as those carried out on a commercial scale . . . I think a chemical patent, dealing with very subtle & delicate reactions, is entitled to the benefit of being tested by the results of its working in the hands of persons not merely practised in chemistry generally, but having acquired the necessary familiarity with the processes, & . . . I think that persons accustomed to produce pure 6 G, are much more likely to work it to success than persons accustomed to produce only the impure product, or persons, however skilful, accustomed only to laboratory experiments (WILLS, J.).—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRICK v. SOCIETÉ CHIMIQUE DES USINES DU RHONE & WILSON (1898), 14 R. P. C. 875; affd., 15 R. P. C. 359, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (1) Refd. Acetylene Illuminating Co. v. United Alkali Co., [1902] 1 Ch. 494; Flour Oxidising Co. v. Carr (1908), 25 R. P. C. 428.

iv. Terms on which Allowed.

2738. Payment of costs thereof in any events.]—OTTO v. STEEL, OTTO v. STERNE, No. 2731, ante.

2739. —— Plaintiff's right to continue or discontinue.]—EDISON TELEPHONE Co. v. INDIA RUBBER Co., No. 2736, ante.

2740. ——.]—PARKER v. MAIGNEN'S FILTRE RAPIDE Co. (1888), 5 R. P. C. 207.

2741. ——.]—AVELING v. MCLAREN, No. 30, ante.

2742. ——.]—The settled rule in patent actions, that deft. may have leave to amend his particulars upon the terms that pltf. may discontinue his action within a given time, & in that case deft. must bear the costs between the times of delivery of the first & of the amended particulars, is applicable to actions for the infringement of registered designs.—MORRIS WILSON & Co. v. COVENTRY MACHINISTS Co., [1891] 3 Ch. 418; 60 L. J. Ch. 524; 8 R. P. C. 353; 40 W. R. 152.

Annotation:—Consd. Woolley v. Broad, [1892] 2 Q. B. 317.

2743. ——.]—In an action for an infringement of a patent defts., on July 28, 1898, delivered particulars of objections with their defence. On Jan. 23, 1899, they obtained an order to amend their particulars, the costs of the amendment to be pltfs.' in any event; pltfs. to have six weeks to elect to discontinue; if they discontinued defts. were to be at liberty to tax their costs up to & including July 28, 1898, & pltfs. were to be at liberty to tax their costs subsequently to that date. On Jan. 30, 1899, defts. delivered their amended particulars, & on April 12, 1899, pltfs. delivered their reply with notice of trial. On May 9, 1899, defts. obtained an order from the master to re-amend their particulars of objections on terms similar to those of the previous order, except that in the event of discontinuance defts. were to be at liberty to tax their costs up to Jan. 30, 1899, & pltfs. to tax their costs subsequently to that date. This order having been confirmed by the judge in chambers, pltfs. appealed to the Ct. of Appeal, on the ground that they ought to have their costs subsequent to July 28, 1898, instead of only subsequent to Jan. 30, 1899:—Held: the order appealed from was right, & the appeal should be dismissed with costs.—WILSON (HERBERT WILLIAM) & WILSON BROTHERS BOBBIN Co., LTD. v. WILSON & Co. (BARNSLEY), LTD. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 315, C. A.; subsequent proceedings (1902), 20 R. P. C. 1, H. L.

2744. Plaintiff not to be prejudiced.]—In granting defts. in a patent action leave to amend the particulars of objection, the ct., even where pltf., the patentee, has been aware of the existence of the alleged anticipation before the commencement of the action, will impose terms upon defts. which will place pltf. in the same position as if the amended particulars had been those originally delivered with the statement of defence.—EHRLICH v. IHLEE (1887), 56 L. T. 819; 4 R. P. C. 115.

Annotation:—Distd. Wilson & Wilson Bobbin Co. v. Wilson (Barnsley) (1899), 16 R. P. C. 315.

v. Effect of Amendment.

2745. Defendant successful—Deprived of costs.]—ALLEN v. HORTON (1893), 10 R. P. C. 412.

2746. ——.]—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRICK v. SOCIETÉ CHIMIQUE DES USINES DU RHONE & WILSON, No. 2737, ante.

SUB-SECT. 4.—INTERLOCUTORY INJUNCTION.

A. Grounds for Granting or Refusing.

(a) In General.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 34; 1919 (c. 80), s. 10, sched.; &, generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 371 et seq.

2747. Discretion of court.]—In the case of the alleged infringement of a patent, this ct. must grant, or refuse, the injunction according to the opinion it may form after an examination of the affidavits. But those, who best know the mode of our proceedings in cases of this kind, must all

---

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 4.—A. (a).

..... of court — Proceed- ..... in two courts of concurrent jurisdiction.]—Where the exchequer ct. was asked to grant an interim injunction to restrain an infringement of a patent of invention, & similar proceedings had been previously taken in a provincial ct. of concurrent jurisdiction, which had not been discontinued at the time of such application being made, the ct. refused the application.—AUER INCANDESCENT LIGHT MANUFACTURING Co. v. DRESCHEL (1897), 5 Exch. C. R. 384.—CAN.

e. Claim to more than nominal damages must be waived.]—To entitle agree in thinking that such opinion, to whichever side it may lean, ought to have no influence with the ct. of common law (LORD ELDON, C.).—HILL v. WILKINSON (1817), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 57 ; 47 E. R. 1049, L. C.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 4, A. (a) & (b).]

2748. Injunction granted—Infringement admitted.]— —— v. ——, No. 1625, ante.

2749. —— Though defendant promise no further infringement.]—(1) Upon the invasion of a patent right the party complaining has a right to the protection of an injunction, although the other party may promise to commit no further infringement, & may offer to pay the costs of preparing the bill ; & if deft. does not, after injunction obtained, offer to pay the costs of it, pltf. may bring the suit to a hearing, & will be entitled to the costs of the suit.

(2) Qu.: whether in such a case the ct. will give an account of damages.—GEARY v. NORTON (1846), 1 De G. & Sm. 9 ; 63 E. R. 949.

Annotations:—As to (1) Distd. Proctor v. Bailey (1889), 42 Ch. D. 393. Refd. Davenport v. Rylands (1865), L. R. 1 Eq. 302.

2750. —— Infringement clear.] — THORN v. WORTHING SKATING RINK CO., No. 2398, ante.

2751. —— —— Dispute as to licence fee.]—S., when purchasing a certain machine, was told by the vendor that he would have to obtain a licence from the owners of the patents which would cost £5 ; he thereupon forwarded £5 to the owners of the patents "for perpetual licence for graphophone for public exhibition ; also licence plate for same." The owners of the patents acknowledged the receipt of £5 for royalty, & enclosed a licence plate, but no formal licence was executed. On the owners of the patents making further inquiries of S., he wrote saying that the machine in question was a graphophone grand. S., refusing to pay a further sum of £45 to make up the charge of £50 which the owners of the patents alleged to be their charge for a licence for a graphophone grand, the latter commenced an action for infringement of their patents, alleging that they were misled by the terms of the application to them, & that the graphophone grand was a different instrument from the graphophone, which name by itself would indicate to those in the trade one of the smaller instruments. They moved for an injunction until the trial, which was granted. — EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD. v. ROSENBERG & SCOTT (1899), 16 R. P. C. 608.

2752. —— Infringement not accidental—Importance of case.]—POULTON & SON v. KELLEY & SON (1904), 21 R. P. C. 392.

2753. Injunction refused—Both parties having patents for same invention.]—Where two parties have obtained patents for the same invention, this ct. will not interfere by injunction but leave them to try the legal right by sci. fa., being disabled, by reason of 25 & 26 Vict. c. 42, s. 1, from directing a case for the opinion of a ct. of law.—COPELAND v. WEBB (1862), 1 New Rep. 119 ; 11 W. R. 134.

2754. —— Invention not subject-matter of patent.]—In an action for infringement of a patent for an invention "of a new mourning coach," pltf. moved for an interlocutory injunction. The judge refused the motion with costs, expressing his opinion that the alleged invention was not subject-matter of a patent.—TADMAN v. OWENS (1894), 11 R. P. C. 349.

2755. Whether injunction continued—Action pending against another party.]—The fact of a pendency of an action against another party is not a sufficient ground for continuing an ex p. injunction without putting pltf. to bring an action against new deft.—RUSSELL v. BARNSLEY (1834), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 58 ; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 472 ; 47 E. R. 1049.

(b) Primâ facie Case of Validity and Infringement.

2756. Foundation of claim for injunction.]—Where there is one question whether a patent is valid, & another question whether it has been infringed, this ct. would be going a great way if it took upon itself to grant an injunction (LORD ELDON, C.).—WOOD v. COCKERELL (1819), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 57 ; 47 E. R. 1049, L. C.

2757. ——.]—Deft. in a suit to restrain the infringement of a patent is entitled to dispute the validity of the patent, although pltf. has obtained a judgment at law against another person establishing its validity ; but until he has proved its invalidity he will be restrained from infringing it. —BOVILL v. GOODIER (2) (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 195 ; 35 Beav. 427 ; 35 L. J. Ch. 432 ; 12 Jur. N. S. 404 ; 55 E. R. 961.

2758. ——.]—Pltfs. brought an action for an injunction to restrain the infringement of a patent vested in them, & moved for an interlocutory injunction. At the date of the hearing of the motion, the patent was ten years old. Defts. by their affidavits denied the novelty of pltfs.' patent, & also denied that what they were doing amounted to infringement:—Held: as the patent was ten years old, & its novelty had not previously been challenged, it must, for the purpose of an interlocutory motion be treated as a good patent, & as pltfs. had established a primâ facie case of infringement they were entitled to an interlocutory injunction.—SHILLITO v. LARMUTH & CO. (1884), 2 R. P. C. 1.

2759. ——.]—(1) In order to succeed on an interlocutory application they [patentees] must, in my opinion, establish a strong primâ facie case both in regard to validity & in regard to infringement (RUSSELL, J.).

(2) Pltf. must first of all establish his case for an interlocutory injunction, & then it may be that, notwithstanding that, the ct. will relieve deft. from an injunction upon his undertaking to keep an account, if he is a person of such substance that the undertaking will give the relief which pltf. requires (RUSSELL, J.).—BONNELLA v. ESPIR (1926), 43 R. P. C. 159.

2760. Necessity for validity.]—The rule of the ct. is that an injunction shall not be granted, unless the ct. entertains no doubt respecting the validity of the patent (LORD ELDON, C.).—COCHRANE v. SMETHURST (1816), Dav. Pat. Cas. 355, n. ; 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 57 ; 47 E. R. 1048, L. C.

2761. ——.]—(1) The ct. will not, generally, in doubtful cases, restrain by injunction the infringement of an asserted legal right, until its validity has been established by an action at law ; secus:

pltf. to an interim injunction or account, he must waive all claim to more than nominal damages at the trial.—BONATHAN v. BOWMANVILLE FURNITURE MANUFACTURING CO. (1870), 5 P. R. 195.—CAN.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 4.—A. (b).

2756 i. Foundation of claim for injunction.]—A party applying for an injunction under Patent Act, 1872, s. 24, during the pendency of the action, is bound to show by his affidavits that his patent is valid & that an actual infringement has taken place, & also the particulars in which it consists.—HAMILTON v. THOMSON (1875), 16 N. B. R. (3 Pug.) 237.—CAN.

where there has been long uninterrupted enjoyment under a patent that being regarded as prima facie evidence of title.

(2) When the ct. grants an injunction, the order ought not merely to direct that an action shall forthwith be brought, with liberty to the parties to apply in case of delay, but to give such directions of its own, in the first instance, as will insure the speedy trial of the action.

An injunction granted pending an action to be brought by pltf., for the speedy trial of which special directions were given, was dissolved on the ground of pltf. not having duly complied with those directions.—STEVENS v. KEATING (1847), 2 Ph. 333; 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 176; 8 L. T. O. S. 405; 41 E. R. 971, L. C.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Lister v. Leather (1857), 5 W. R. 550. Generally, Reid. Heath v. Unwin (1847), 15 Sim. 552; Purser v. Brain (1848), 17 L. J. Ch. 141; Unwin v. Heath (1855), 5 H. L. Cas. 505. Mentd. Young v. Fernie (1864), 4 New Rep. 218.

2762. ——.]—The ct. should be extremely cautious in exercising its power of interfering by injunction, where any doubt is thrown upon the validity of pltf.'s legal title, inasmuch as the injury which pltf. might sustain from the non-interference of the ct. cannot be equal to that sustained by deft. should it turn out that the legal title of pltf. could not be sustained. The principle on which the ct. interferes by injunction in aid of the legal title, & the extent to which non-interference in support of a primâ facie title at law had been carried.

If there is any doubt whatever respecting the validity of the legal right, the ct. ought to be extremely cautious in exercising its power of interfering by injunction. There are two reasons why this power of the court ought not to be lightly put in motion; the first is, that if it should turn out that appct.'s legal title should fail, the ct. would have interfered without any necessity; & the second & principal reason is, that there is no comparison in the mischief which might result with the granting & withholding of the injunction. The measure of injury which pltf. might sustain from the non-interference of the ct. could not be equal to that which defts. might suffer from the granting of an injunction which could not afterwards be sustained; the more so, as in the one case the damage done might be ascertained & recovered, but not so in the other. . . . On referring to the case of Hill v. Thompson, No. 2805, post, LORD ELDON . . . stated that he would not trust his judgment to pronounce an opinion as to the validity of a patent by granting an injunction, where such patent was a new one; which was carrying the principle much further than I have ever done. The rule, however, that the ct. should be cautious in restraining a deft., where it was not quite clear that pltf. had legal title, was subject to this exception; that if the patent of pltf. had been in existence for a lengthened period of time, without question it ought to be presumed that he had a legal title against all the world until such patent were proved to be invalid; & under such circumstance he was entitled to the protection of this ct. (LORD COTTENHAM, C.).—ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH Co. v. NOTT (1847), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 41; 8 L. T. O. S. 529; 11 Jur. 157; 47 E. R. 1040, L. C.; subsequent proceedings, 4 C. B. 462.

2763. ——.]—Although it is the ordinary rule of the ct. not to grant an injunction unless either the validity of the patent has been established or the patent has been undisputed for many years the circumstances of the case may be such as to induce the ct. to depart from that rule.—RENARD v. LEVINSTEIN (1864), 10 L. T. 94; on appeal, 10 L. T. 177, L. JJ.

Annotation:—Reid. Re Avery's Patent (1887), 36 Ch. D. 307.

2764. ——.]—(1) There is no primâ facie presumption in favour of a patent which has not been established at law.

(2) Patentees, having notice of a proposed sale by R. of articles which they alleged to be an infringement of their patent, wrote to R. to obtain formal proof on which to found legal proceedings, which R. furnished to them. They subsequently issued a circular to the trade stating that they had notice of an intended infringement, & threatening proceedings in every case. On being pressed by R. to bring an action to determine the validity of the patent, they refused to do so, but continued to issue the circulars. It was proved that these circulars injured R.'s trade:—Held: under the above circumstances the patentees were bound either to bring an action or to cease from issuing the circulars; & upon their refusing to bring an action, an injunction was granted restraining the issue of the circulars.—ROLLINS v. HINKS (1872), L. R. 13 Eq. 355; 41 L. J. Ch. 358; 26 L. T. 56; 20 W. R. 287.

Annotations:—As to (1) Dbtd. Halsey v. Brotherhood (1880), 15 Ch. D. 514. As to (2) Distd. Clark v. Adie (1873), 21 W. R. 456. Folld. Axmann v. Lund (1874), L. R. 18 Eq. 330. Expld. Halsey v. Brotherhood (1880), 15 Ch. D. 514. Refd. Burnett v. Tak (1882), 45 L. T. 743. Generally, Refd. Hinks v. Safety Lighting Co. (1876), 4 Ch. D. 607.

2765. ——.]—The S. Corpn., Ltd., being the owners of several patents relating to the manufacture of saccharin, commenced an action for infringement of the same against the C. & D. co., Ltd., & moved for an interlocutory injunction. The motion was dismissed on the ground that the validity of the patents was in dispute. Pltfs. appealed, &, in the course of arguments on the appeal, applied for leave to cross-examine one of the secretaries of deft. co., who had made an affidavit, on the ground that it was evasive. Cross-examination was allowed, as an exceptional case, before the ct., by its leave. The appeal was dismissed, with costs.

(2) Affidavits made on information & belief must show what the sources of information are.—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. CHEMICAL & DRUGS CO., LTD. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 53, C. A.

2766. ——.]—Letters patent were granted to pltfs. for "Improvements in connection with hanging book carriers or brackets for securing books, cards, tablets, & the like purposes" on July 25, 1910. On July 23, 1910, P. was employed by pltfs. to obtain orders for advertisements in connection with covers for telephone directories, & for this purpose the invention & a draft provisional specification were communicated to him, as pltf. alleged in confidence. Subsequently P. left pltf.'s employ & made & sold the invention on behalf of a co. of which he was a director. Pltf. commenced an action for infringement against P. & the co. & moved for an interim injunction. Defts. alleged that the patent was invalid by reason of prior publication by deft. P. before July 25, 1910, prior to which, at pltf.'s request, he had shown & explained the invention to various people on whom he had called for the purpose of obtaining orders for advertisements. There was a conflict of testimony as to what took place at the interview when the invention was communicated to deft. P.:—Held: the patent not having been established, an interim injunction would not be granted.—TRAUTNER v. PATMORE (1911), 29 R. P. C. 60.

Annotation:—Consd. Smith v. Grigg, [1924] 1 K. B. 655.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 4, A. (b), (c) & (d).]

2767. ——.]—In 1907 a patent was granted to F. for "Improvements in variable speed gear for belt driven motor vehicles." In 1911 an action was brought for infringement of this patent, & pltfs. moved for an interlocutory injunction. Defts. denied infringement & the validity of the patent:—Held: as the validity of the patent was disputed & the patent had not been established, an interim injunction should be refused on defts. undertaking to keep an account.—ZENITH MOTORS, LTD. v. COLLIER (H.) & SON, LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 563.

Circumstances creating primâ facie case of validity—Validity established in previous action.]—See Sect. 2, sub-sect. 4, A. (c), post.

Undisturbed user for period of time.]—See Sect. 2, sub-sect. 4, A. (d), post.

Conduct of parties.]—See Sect. 2, sub-sect. 4, A. (f), post.

What constitutes infringement.]—See Part XIV., Sect. 1, ante.

(c) Validity Established in Previous Action.

2768. Whether injunction granted.]—Though a patentee has enjoyed his patent for a considerable time, & has succeeded in several actions for an infringement thereof in upholding his patent, & has obtained injunctions restraining the parties so infringing, yet, if there be a new infringement by a different party, an injunction to restrain him will not be granted till after a trial at law, however palpable the infringement by the party may be.—CROSSKILL v. EVORY (1848), 10 L. T. O. S. 459.

Annotation:—Refd. Bovill v. Goodier (1866), 35 Beav. 427.

2769. ——.]—RENARD v. LEVINSTEIN, No. 2763, ante.

2770. ——.]—This was an action for infringement of two patents; as to the first, the validity had been established in a contested action both in the lower ct. & the Ct. of Appeal, & a certificate of validity granted; as to the other, a certificate had been given in an action not contested at the trial, though validity was contested up to that time, & in a second action the validity was contested up to the trial, & then deft. submitted. Pltfs. now moved for an interlocutory injunction. Deft. relied on the fact that the judge had not granted an interlocutory injunction in the last-mentioned action, & alleged that the judgment was merely collusive & the result of a compromise, & contended that, as the validity of the patent had not been established by a contested trial, the course followed by the judge, ought to be followed, & an interlocutory injunction not granted:—Held: there was no collusion or compromise, & the position had been altered since the decision of the judge, & an interlocutory injunction was granted, restraining the infringement of both patents.—EDISON-BELL PHONOGRAPH CORPN., LTD. v. BERNSTEIN (1897), 14 R. P. C. 153.

2771. ——.]—Pltfs. come into ct. with a certificate that the validity of this patent came in question, & therefore they come with a primâ facie case under the order of the judge, who heard the evidence that this patent is valid (COLLINS, L.J.).—WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. VULCAN INCANDESCENT LIGHT SYNDICATE, LTD. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 279, C. A.

2772. ——.]—(1) Letters patent were granted in 1913 for "Improvements in incandescent electric lamps." In an action for infringement of the patent, it had been held invalid at the trial & in the Ct. of Appeal, but on appeal to the House of Lords the patent was held to be valid & a certificate of the validity was subsequently granted. After the grant of the certificate the patentees commenced an action for infringement of the patent against different defts., & moved for an interim injunction to restrain defts. from infringing the patent. Defts. filed evidence setting out new grounds of invalidity of the patent, & it was stated on their behalf that they intended to contest the action & do all they could to impeach the validity of the patent. Defts on these grounds resisted the motion for an interim injunction:—Held: there was no evidence before the ct. showing that defts. were doing such a business as that the granting of an injunction would inflict irreparable damage on them; & having regard to the fact that the only evidence furnished by defts.' expert was to the effect that, if the information furnished to him by defts. could be proved to be accurate, then the prospects of success were good, & in view of the fact that a certificate of validity had been granted, an injunction, to which pltfs. were primâ facie entitled, ought to be granted.

(2) If a primâ facie case were made on such a motion that defts. intended to pursue a bonâ fide objection to pltfs.' patent, &, if it were a case in which the granting of an injunction would inflict irreparable damage on defts. in their business & pltfs. might to some extent be protected if some lesser relief than that by way of injunction were granted, the ct. would incline to give the lesser relief.—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. B. T. T. ELECTRIC LAMP & ACCESSORIES CO. (1922), 39 R. P. C. 167.

2773. —— Fresh fact adduced impeaching validity—Exclusive enjoyment for considerable period.]—(1) Where a patent had been in force for twelve years & had been the subject of four suits against different persons, all of which terminated favourably to the patentee, & in two of which verdicts had been given in favour of the validity of the patent:—Held: in a fifth case, the patentee was entitled to an injunction pending the trial of the legal right, although a fresh fact was brought forward, tending to impeach the novelty of the invention.

(2) A patentee does not acquiesce in the infringement of his patent by omitting to proceed by sci. fa to set aside a subsequent patent extending to part of his invention, unless such subsequent patent is put in practice.

(3) An allegation as to deft.'s inability to be answerable in damages:—Held: not irrelevant upon a motion for an injunction against the infringement of a patent.—NEWALL v. WILSON (1852), 2 De G. M. & G. 282; 19 L. T. O. S. 161; 42 E. R. 880, L. JJ.

Annotation:—As to (1) Refd. Bovill v. Goodier (1866), 35 Beav. 427.

2774. —— Proceedings not taken to set aside subsequent patent—Patent not put into practice.]—NEWALL v. WILSON, No. 2773, ante.

2775. —— Where court sees no reason to doubt propriety of result—Interdict granted in Scotland.]—(1) The ct. will grant an interlocutory injunction against the infringement of a patent, where the patent is an old one & the patentee has been in long & undisturbed enjoyment of it, or where its validity has been established elsewhere, & the ct. sees no reason to doubt the propriety of the result, or where the conduct of deft. is such as to enable the ct. to say that, as against deft., there is no reason to doubt the validity of the patent.

(2) The fact of an interdict having been granted against deft. by the Ct. of Session in Jan. 1873, held to be sufficient primâ facie evidence of the validity of a patent for the United Kingdom granted in 1866, to warrant the ct. granting an interlocutory injunction.—DUDGEON v. THOMSON (1874), 30 L. T. 244; 22 W. R. 464.

Annotation:—Generally, Refd. Ellington v. Clark, Bunnett (1887), 58 L. T. 40.

2776. —— No substantial question to be tried.]—The ct. is always ready to interfere upon interlocutory motion where a patent has been established, & where there really is not substantially any case to be tried at the hearing (KAY J.).—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. GEORGE (1886), 3 R. P. C. 321; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 230.

2777. —— Defendant offering account.]—F., the owner of a patent for a dye, brought an action for infringement against B., who denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid. At the trial the validity of the patent was upheld & an injunction granted. It was proved that B. bought the infringing dye from the D. co., of which D. was the manager. D. was in fact defending the action. The D. co. were dye manufacturers, & either imported the infringing dye or manufactured it. F. subsequently commenced an action against D., who submitted to an injunction. F. then commenced the present action for infringement against the D. co., who desired to dispute the validity of F.'s patent, & contended that an injunction ought not to be granted against them, they offering to keep an account:—Held: it was a proper case for granting an injunction.—FARBENFABRIKEN VORM. F. BAYER & CO. v. JOHN DAWSON, LTD. (1891), 8 R. P. C. 397.

2778. —— Appeal from action pending—Defendants offering to pay royalties.]—A patentee having obtained a decision of the Ct. of Appeal in support of a patent & an injunction against one deft., commenced an action for infringement of the same patent against other defts., who were using a machine made by the person who made first deft.'s machine, & similar to such machine:—Held: an interlocutory injunction should be granted, although first deft. had an appeal pending to the House of Lords, & defts. in the present action offered to pay royalties pending the appeal, such royalties to be returned if pltf. ultimately failed.—MOSER v. SEWELL & HUTTON (1893), 10 R. P. C. 365, C. A.

2779. —— Primâ facie case of infringement.]—HEINE, SOLLY & CO. v. JULIUS NORDEN & CO. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 513.

2780. —— Plaintiff not guilty of laches.]—Pltfs. were the owners of a patent, which was held valid on Jan. 28, 1896, at the trial of an action for infringement. In Feb. they discovered that present deft. was infringing the patent, & an infringing tyre was purchased from him on Feb. 14. On Feb. 24, the present action was commenced for infringement of the patent. On Mar. 24, notice of motion was given for an interlocutory injunction. Deft., on the hearing of the motion, contended (a) that there was no infringement; & (b) that pltfs. had been guilty of laches, on the ground that deft. was the agent of a Scottish co., who had to the knowledge of pltfs., been selling tyres identical with that now complained of for eighteen months or two years:—Held: there was infringement; there was no laches of pltfs. in taking proceedings against deft.; & an injunction should be granted.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. WARRILOW (1896), 13 R. P. C. 284.

2781. —— On usual undertaking as to damages.]—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. WEDGE PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. (1897), 41 Sol. Jo. 726.

(d) Undisturbed User for Period of Time.

2782. Court must consider.]—As I apprehend the circumstance, that there had been an exclusive enjoyment for a length of time under the patent, that would be, primâ facie, such a circumstance as would bind the ct. to recognise the question of injunction, either in granting it or dissolving it (SHADWELL, V.-C.).—BICKFORD v. SKEWES (1837), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 211; 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 59; 47 E. R. 1050; subsequent proceedings (1839), 4 My. & Cr. 498, L. C.

2783. Injunction granted—General rule.]—HILL v. THOMPSON, No. 2805, post.

2784. —— ——.]—STEVENS v. KEATING, No. 2761, ante.

2785. —— ——.]—ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH CO. v. NOTT, No. 2762, ante.

2786. —— ——.]—WHEATSTONE v. WILDE (1861), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 247.

2787. —— ——.]—DUDGEON v. THOMSON, No. 2775, ante.

2788. —— ——.]—R., the owner of a patent granted in 1880, brought an action for infringement thereof in 1886, & moved for an interlocutory injunction to restrain defts. from infringing until the trial of the action or further order:—Held: as R. had been in undisturbed enjoyment of the patent for six years he was entitled to the injunction applied for.—ROTHWELL v. KING (1886), 3 R. P. C. 379.

2789. —— ——.]—NATURAL COLOR KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD. v. SPEER (1912), 29 R. P. C. 669.

2790. —— Validity not previously contested.]—CALDWELL v. VANVLISSENGEN. CALDWELL v. VERBECK, CALDWELL v. ROLFE, No. 2539, ante.

2791. —— ——.]—RENARD v. LEVINSTEIN, No. 2763, ante.

2792. —— ——.]—When the patent has been in existence for ten years, & has not been challenged at the end of ten years, I think this ct. ought to give credit to the patent, & ought to assume, at all events, upon the interlocutory motion, that for the purposes of interlocutory motion the patent is a good patent (PEARSON, J.).—BRIGGS & CO. v. LARDEUR & LAMBERT (1884), 1 R. P. C. 126; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 55.

2793. —— ——.]—SHILLITO v. LARMUTH & CO., No. 2758, ante.

2794. —— Validity of patent doubtful.]—In the case of patent rights, if the party gets his patent & puts his invention in execution & has proceeded to a sale, that may be called possession under it, however doubtful it may be whether the patent can be sustained, this ct. has lately said, possession under a colour of title is ground enough to injoin & to continue the injunction until it is proved at law that it is only colour & not real title (LORD ELDON, C.).—OXFORD & CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITIES v. RICHARDSON (1802), 6 Ves. 689; 31 E. R. 1260, L. C.

Annotations:—Distd. Gardner v. Broadbent (1856), 2 Jur. N. S. 1041. Refd. Caldwell v. Vanvlissengen, Caldwell v. Verbeck, Caldwell v. Rolfe (1851), 9 Hare, 415; Betts v. Menzie (1857), 3 Jur. N. S. 357; Lister v. Leather (1857), 5 W. R. 550. Mentd. Grierson v. Eyre (1804), 9 Ves. 341; Manners v. Blair (1828), 3 Bli. N. S. 391; Performing Right Soc. v. London Theatre of Varieties, [1924] A. C. 1.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 4.—A. (d).

2783 i. Injunction granted—General rule.]—Where it is established to the ct.'s satisfaction that pltf. has been in long, active & uninterrupted enjoyment of his patent, an interim injunction will be granted notwithstanding that there may be some doubt as to the validity of the patent.—DROUTLEDGE v. EVANS, [1926] N. Z. L. R. 368.—N.Z.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 4, A. (d) & (e).]

2795. —— ——.]—There may be considerable doubt as to the validity of a patent, still if there has been a long exclusive enjoyment, the doctrine of the ct. is that an injunction shall go to protect the patent, until the question of its validity is duly determined at law (LORD LYNDHURST).—BEESTON v. FORD (1830), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 58; 47 E. R. 1049, L. C.

2796. ——.]—NEWALL v. WILSON, No. 2773, ante.

2797. ——.]—(1) Although a patent is of long standing, yet if, from the nature of the alleged invention, or the conflicting evidence as to its novelty, its validity appears to be doubtful, or if the evidence of exclusive possession is not satisfactory, the ct. will not grant an injunction until the title has been established at law.

(2) After the patentee had obtained a verdict in an action brought to try the validity of the patent, the ct. refused to grant an injunction to restrain the infringement of the patent on the ground that a rule nisi for a new trial had been obtained & was pending in the ct. of law, & that the legal title of the patentee was therefore still undecided.—COLLARD v. ALLISON (1840), 4 My. & Cr. 487; 41 E. R. 188.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Stevens v. Keating (1847), 2 Ph. 333. Generally, Mentd. Ridgway v. Roberts (1844), 4 Hare, 106.

2798. —— Possession must be exclusive.]—(1) Where a bill is filed to restrain the infringement by deft. of letters patent, a sufficient case to justify the injunction must be stated by pltf. on the face of the bill, & he must not depend solely on the admissions contained in deft.'s answer for the granting or continuing of the injunction.

(2) If the answer deny the invention to be new, & also the enjoyment under the letters patent, & state, as is the fact, that the specification is imperfectly set forth in the bill, the ct. will dissolve an injunction previously obtained, on affidavit, giving pltf. liberty to bring an action, although deft. admits by his answer that he has made machines upon the principle comprised in the letters patent.

(3) Long & exclusive enjoyment, under letters patent, will entitle a party to an injunction until an action can be tried at law.—CURTIS v. CUTTS (1839), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 60; 8 L. J. Ch. 184; 3 Jur. 34; 47 E. R. 1050, L. C.

2799. ——.]—COLLARD v. ALLISON, No. 2797, ante.

2800. ——.]—(1) Deft. does not prejudice his case by not appearing on a motion for an injunction to restrain him in the infringement of a patent, provided he defends himself in the subsequent proceedings; & if he questions the validity of pltf.'s title even at the hearing, though he may not have done so on the motion for the injunction, & no issue was then directed, yet the ct. will not retain the injunction without directing pltf. to establish his right at law before it grants him further relief.

Where a person has obtained a patent, & had an exclusive enjoyment under it, the ct. will give so much credit to his apparent right as to interpose immediately by injunction to restrain the invasion of it, & continue that interposition until the apparent right has been displaced. On the other hand, if a person takes out a patent for an invention, & is unable to support it, except upon the ground of some alleged improvement in the mode of applying that which was previously in use, & it so becomes a serious question both in point of law & of fact whether the patent is not altogether invalid, then, upon an application to this ct. for what may be called the extra relief which it affords upon a primâ facie case, the ct. will use its discretion, & if it sees sufficient ground for doubt, will either dissolve the injunction absolutely, or direct an issue, or direct the party applying to bring an action; after the trial of which, either he may apply to revive, if successful, or else the other party may come before the ct. & say, "I have been successful in displacing this patent, & am entitled to have my costs, by being brought here upon an allegation of right which cannot be supported." . . . Deft. . . . had notice of the motion for an injunction to restrain him from doing what pltf. insisted was an infringement of his patent, & did not appear; & since the injunction has been granted, he has ceased to do the acts complained of, & permitted the injunction to continue. Under these circumstances, I do not think I should be dealing too hardly with deft. if . . . I give pltf. an opportunity of trying his right at law, if he thinks fit (WIGRAM, V.-C.).

(2) Semble: the ct. will not make an order for costs where it is probable that proceedings in the cause may afterwards take place which will affect the decision of the ct upon the question of costs. Therefore, where a bill to restrain the infringement of a patent was retained at the hearing, to give the patentee an opportunity of trying the right at law, the ct. refused to make an order as to the costs of the evidence, which were claimed by pltf., on the ground that deft. had not required him to establish his title at law.—WARD v. KEY (1846), 7 L. T. O. S. 338; 10 Jur. 792.

2801. —— Infringement must be shown.]—Enjoyment for twelve years a primâ facie case for an injunction, if an infringement be shown.

Then I have the case of a patent having been obtained in the year 1828 & actually enjoyed by the patentee for upwards of twelve years. Primâ facie I apprehend that gives a right to the patentee to come into ct. in a case in which he can show an infringement. . . . My present opinion is that their affidavit does amount to an admission that there has been an infringement: at least quite enough for the ct. to act upon in this way, namely that I think the ct. ought to grant the injunction (SHADWELL, V.-C.).—NEILSON v. THOMPSON & FORMAN (1840), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 275; on appeal (1841), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 278, L. C.

*Annotations:—Reld. Stevens v. Keating (1847), 2 Ph. 333; Davenport v. Jepson (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 440; Plimpton v. Spiller (1876), 4 Ch. D. 286.

2802 —— —— Primâ facie case.]—DAVENPORT v. RICHARD, No. 2533, ante.

2803. —— Though more injury caused to defendant than to plaintiff.]—Where there has been long & quiet enjoyment under a patent the ct. will not refuse an interlocutory injunction to restrain infringement of it merely on the ground that deft., if ultimately successful, will have been more injured by its being granted than pltf., if ultimately successful, will have been by its having been refused.—DAVENPORT v. JEPSON (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 440; 1 New Rep. 173; 45 E. R. 1254, L. JJ.

*Annotation:—Apld. Rothwell v. King (1886), 3 R. P. C. 379.

2804. —— Must be actual user.]—An interim injunction will not be granted to restrain infringement of a patent several years old but never established by legal proceedings, unless there has been actual user of the patent for a considerable time.—PLYMPTON v. MALCOLMSON (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 37; sub nom. PLIMPTON v. MALCOLM-

SON, 44 L. J. Ch. 257 ; 23 W. R. 404 ; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 374.

Annotation :—Refd. Croysdale v. Fisher (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1887), 73.

(e) Recency of Patent.

2805. Whether ground for refusing injunction—General rule.]—(1) In order to obtain an injunction against a violation of a patent, the party must, at the time of applying, swear as to his belief that he is the original inventor.

(2) Where there has been a length of exclusive enjoyment under a patent, the ct. will grant an injunction in the first instance without previously putting the party to establish his right by an action at law, otherwise where the patent is recent.—HILL v. THOMPSON (1817), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 235 ; 3 Mer. 622 ; 36 E. R. 239, L. C.

Annotations :—As to (2) Consd. Bickford v. Skewes (1827), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 211 ; Russell v. Barnsley (1834), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 472. Apld. Kay v. Marshall (1836), 1 My. & Cr. 373. Consd. Electric Telegraph Co. v. Nott (1847), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 41. Apld. Newall v. Wilson (1852), 2 De G. M. & G. 282. Refd. Curtis v. Cutts (1839), 8 L. J. Ch. 184. Generally, Refd. Brunton v. Hawkes (1821), 4 B. & Ald. 541 ; Neilson v. Harford (1841), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 295 ; Crane v. Price (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580 ; Cook v. Pearce (1843), 8 Q. B. 1044 ; Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 2 B. & S. 194 ; Bovill v. Goodier (1866), 35 Beav. 427 ; Murray v. Clayton (1872), 20 W. R. 649 ; Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315 ; Coles v. Baylis, Lewis (1886), 3 R. P. C. 178.

2806. ——— ———.]—CALDWELL v. VANVLISSENGEN, CALDWELL v. VERBECK, CALDWELL v. ROLFE, No. 2539, ante.

2807. ——— ———.]—GITTINS v. SYMES, No. 2275, ante.

2808. ——— ———.]—Letters patent having been granted in 1897 to D., he in 1899 granted the W. co. a non-exclusive licence, & in the same year granted the co. an option to purchase one-sixth share in the patent, & agreed not to dispose of any further share & not to grant licences without their consent. Pending the option, but before it was exercised, he assigned one-fourth share in the patent to W., & this assignment was registered at the Patent Office. Subsequently the W. co. brought an action against the H. co. a licencee from an assignee of W., & also against D., & an assignee of all his remaining interests, to restrain the latter & the H. co. from infringing the patent ; & to restrain D. from granting any licence in breach of his covenant, & all defts. from dealing with any such licence. An interlocutory injunction was granted by the judge in chambers. Defts. appealed. Pltfs. contended that the assignment to W., which was for a small sum, was not bonâ fide, & that W. was a mere trustee for D. Deft. D. alleged that pltfs. were aware of the assignment to W. :—Held : the injunction against infringement of the patent should be dissolved, as W. had a legal title, & there was no evidence that his assignees had any notice of the agreements with pltf. co. ; &, even if the H. co. had no title, there was nothing to prevent their disputing the validity of the patent, & as the patent was a new one & had not been established an interlocutory injunction would not be granted against an infringer.—WAPSHARE TUBE CO., LTD. v. HYDE IMPERIAL RUBBER CO., LTD. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 374, C. A.

2809. —— Necessity for affidavit of defendant showing invalidity.]—(1) A patentee is entitled, for the protection of his patent, to give notice to persons intending to deal with a rival patentee that they are about to infringe his patent, provided such notices are given bonâ fide, & with no collateral object ; & a patentee is not bound to follow up such notices by legal proceedings, & will not be liable to an action for damages for, or to be restrained by injunction from, giving the notices.

(2) A subsisting patent is presumed, primâ facie, to be valid, & an interlocutory injunction will be granted to restrain an infringement, even when the patent is of recent date, unless the defendant by his affidavits shows a primâ facie case of invalidity to be determined at the trial.—HALSEY v. BROTHERHOOD (1880), 15 Ch. D. 514 ; 49 L. J. Ch. 786 ; 43 L. T. 366 ; 29 W. R. 9 ; 1 Goodeve's Patent Cases, p. 218 ; affd. (1881), 19 Ch. D. 386, C. A.

Annotations :—As to (1) Consd. Burnett v. Tak (1882), 45 L. T. 743 ; Household & Rosher v. Fairburn & Hall (1884), 51 L. T. 498 ; Challender v. Royle (1887), 36 Ch. D. 425 ; Skinner v. Shew, [1893] 1 Ch. 413 ; Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. New Incandescent (Sunlight Patent) Gas Lighting Co. (1897), 76 L. T. 47 ; St. Mungo Manufacturing Co. v. Hutchison Main (1908), 25 R. P. C. 356. Refd. Anderson v. Liebig's Extract of Meat Co. (1881), 45 L. T. 757 ; Sugg v. Bray (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 210 ; Barrett v. Day, Day v. Foster (1890), 43 Ch. D. 435. As to (2) Refd. Barrett v. Day, Day v. Foster (1890), 43 Ch. D. 435. Generally, Refd. Baker v. Piper (1886), 2 T. L. R. 733 ; Walker v. Clarke (1887), 56 L. J. Ch. 239. Mentd. Hirschler v. Hertz & Collingwood (1895), 11 T. L. R. 466 ; White v. Mellin (1895), 43 W. R. 353 ; Ripley v. Arthur (1900), 45 Sol. Jo. 165 ; British Ry. Traffic & Electric Co. v. C. R. C. Co. & L. C. C., [1922] 2 K. B. 260.

2810. —— Necessity for clear & distinct evidence—That patentee original inventor—& patent novel.]

A. in May, 1856, became the purchaser of a patent, which was obtained in May, 1855, & which deft., as alleged, subequent to the date of the purchase infringed. A. obtained an injunction ex p. to restrain deft., on an affidavit in support, which stated that the patent had been recorded & that it became & was good & valid. On motion to dissolve :—Held : the recency of a patent was no ground for refusing an injunction ex p. to restrain its infringement, but the party seeking such injunction was bound to support his application by a clear & distinct statement, upon affidavit, that he believed the patentee was the original inventor, & that the invention had not been practised at the time when the patent was granted.—GARDNER v. BROADBENT (1856), 2 Jur. N. S. 1041 ; 4 W. R. 767.

2811. —— —— Defendant refusing to keep an account.]—The owners of a patent of July, 1887, for an "improved process & apparatus for tanning by aid of electricity," commenced an action for infringement of their patent against a patentee of a subsequent patent for "improved apparatus for tanning hides & skins by the aid of electricity," & moved for an interlocutory injunction. By pltf.'s process the skins were subjected to the action of an electric current passed through the tanning liquor in a rotating drum. The deft. in his specification disclaimed pltf.'s process, & stated that his apparatus consisted in putting the hides into a pit upon skeleton frames which were kept in motion, & then a current of electricity

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 4.—A. (e).

2805 i. Whether ground for refusing injunction—General rule.]—In an action for an infringement of a patent, an application under C. L. P. Act for an injunction to restrain deft. was refused, the patent being very recent, & there being conflicting affidavits as to the rights of pltf. to it :—Held : pltf. must establish his title at law before he would be entitled to an injunction.—BONATHAN v. BOWMANVILLE FURNITURE MANUFACTURING CO. (1870), 5 P. R. 195.—CAN.

2805 ii. ——— ———.]—An interlocutory injunction to restrain deft. from using a patented device, will not be granted in a suit for damages arising from infringement & for a perpetual injunction, when the patent is recent & has not been established by a judgment at law.—OTTAWA & HULL POWER & MANUFACTURER CO. v. MURPHY (1906), Q. R. 15 K. B. 230.—CAN.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 4, A. (e), (f) i. & ii., (g) & (h), & B.] was transmitted. Pltfs. alleged that this was an equivalent process to theirs. Deft. disputed this, & denied the validity of the patent. It appeared that patentee of pltf.'s process had entered into an agreement with deft. not to oppose any co. formed for the purpose of purchasing his invention: —Held: as the patent was of recent date, & the evidence was not strong enough to show that the two processes were identical, & considering the agreement last-mentioned, although deft. would give no undertaking to keep an account, no order should be made except that the motion stand to the trial.—BRITISH TANNING CO., LTD. v. GROTH (1889), 7 R. P. C. 1.

2812. —— Court will consider all circumstances.]—CLARK v. FERGUSSON (1859), 1 Giff. 184; 5 Jur. N. S. 1155; 65 E. R. 878.

2813. —— Substantial question to be tried.]—The ct. abstains from interfering by injunction in the case of a recently dated patent where there is really a substantial question to be tried (BAGGALLAY, L.J.).—JACKSON v. NEEDLE (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 132; 1 R. P. C. 174, C. A.

Annotation:—Consd. Smith v. Grigg, [1924] 1 K. B. 655.

2814. —— Defendant appearing & offering account.]—CLARKE v. NICHOLS (1895), 12 R. P. C. 310.

(f) Conduct of Parties.

i. In General.

See, generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 419 et seq.

2815. Injunction granted—Contract with patentee—Joinder of patentee as co-plaintiff.]—Where parties have not only formed a contract with a patentee for the working of his patent, which in substance recited that it was valid, but have also joined him as co-pltf. in a suit against & in a motion for an injunction to restrain certain persons from infringing his patent which suit was conducted by their private solr., & of which motion the chief support was an affidavit made by the patentee, in which he swore precisely to the originality of the patent, the ct. will, for the purposes of an interlocutory application for an injunction to restrain them from infringing the patent until its validity has been tried at law, consider the same to be valid as between them & the patentee.—MUNTZ v. GRENFELL (1842), 2 Web. Pat. Cas. 88; 7 Jur. 121.

Annotation:—Consd. Dudgeon v. Thomson (1874), 30 L. T. 244.

2816. —— Defendant having admitted validity.]—DIRCKS v. MELLOR (1845), cited Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. XXII. at p. 220.

2817. —— Defendant's conduct placing validity beyond doubt.]—DUDGEON v. THOMSON, No. 2775, ante.

2818. —— Defendant refusing to give undertaking.]—RAPID STEEL CO. v. BLANKSTONE (1907), 24 R. P. C. 529.

2819. Injunction refused—Plaintiff declining to answer interrogatories.]—The owners of letters patent, in respect of which a certificate of validity had been granted, commenced three actions against different defts. & applied for interlocutory injunctions; in two of the applications they failed & in the third they succeeded. In each case the unsuccessful party appealed. In each action defts. raised an issue of prior user, which was not raised in the action in which the certificate had been granted, & applied for letters of request to take evidence abroad. Letters of request had been also applied for in other actions brought by pltfs. Pltfs. alleged that they had endeavoured to obtain a speedy trial of the issue, but that this had been delayed by the letters of request. Defts. alleged that the delay was caused by the refusal of pltfs. on a technical ground to answer interrogatories in another case. In response to a question put by the ct., pltfs. declined to answer the interrogatories, whereupon pltfs.' appeals were dismissed, & the appeal of defts., against whom an interlocutory injunction had been granted, was allowed, defts. in each case undertaking to keep an account & to abide the result of another action in which the same issues of validity were raised.—WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. GENERAL INCANDESCENT CO., LTD., SAME v. BARNARD, SAME v. BLACKBURN INCANDESCENT CO. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 533, C. A.

ii. Delay.

See, generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 420 et seq.

2820. Injunction refused.]—Where an interlocutory injunction to restrain infringement of a patent was moved for in a suit in which the bill was filed in July, & it appeared that pltf. wrote complaining of the infringement in the preceding Nov., & knew of deft.'s proceedings in the previous Aug., the injunction was refused on the ground of delay.—BOVILL v. CRATE (1865), L. R. 1 Eq. 388.

Annotations:—Folld. North British Rubber Co. v. Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Co. (1894), 12 R. P. C. 17. Refd. Bovill v. Smith (1868), Griffin's Patent Cases (1888), 49.

2821. ——.]—I think that the delay that pltfs. have been guilty of in applying to the ct. bars their right to an interlocutory injunction, but of course it may not bar their right to an injunction at the trial. The evidence shows that pltfs. knew defts. were selling this sodium so far back as Oct. 13, 1896. No doubt they wrote & said they would probably have to make defts. parties to an action in respect of sales; but pltfs. were told at the same time by defts. in this country that they were selling some of the sodium of the co-defts., & it appears it has been openly advertised twice a month in the "Chemical Trade Journal" ever since. It seems to me it is too late for them to move for an injunction a year after they knew this was going on (STIRLING, J.).—ALUMINIUM CO. v. DOMEIERE & ELECTRO-CHEMISCHE WERKE ACT. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 32.

2822. —— Notwithstanding strong primâ facie case of validity.]—A special injunction, on notice, to prevent the infringement of a patent refused on the ground of delay notwithstanding the ct. had a strong impression in favour of pltf.'s right.—BRIDSON v. BENECKE (1849), 12 Beav. 1; 13 L. T. O. S. 277; 50 E. R. 960.

Annotations:—Consd. Bovill v. Crate (1865), L. R. 1 Eq. 388. Refd. Bovill v. Goodier (2) (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 195.

2823. —— Conditions imposed on defendant—Payment of security into court—Special circumstances of case.]—The owners of a patent for phonographs, dated in 1886, on June 16, 1894, commenced an action against H. for infringement of their patent, & now moved for an interlocutory injunction. According to pltfs.' evidence their patent was being infringed by a number of small infringers with no means, who, if legal proceedings were brought against them, contested the matter till the day of trial & then disappeared. Pltfs. of June 15, 1894, obtained judgment for an injunction to restrain infringement against Y. who did not appear at the trial, though he had contested the validity of the patent by his pleadings.

Pltfs. had obtained judgment in other cases, & also had obtained judgments against both H. & Y. for infringement of another patent, but had not been paid costs or damages. Evidence was given of infringement by H. of the patent now in question. H. alleged that pltfs.' patent was invalid & gave evidence to that effect. It appeared that pltfs. knew what H. was doing as early as Dec. 21, 1893, that in no case had pltfs. obtained an interlocutory injunction, & that another action by pltfs. against L., which action had been stayed to abide the result of the action against Y., had been allowed to proceed :—Held : taking all the circumstances of the case into consideration, & on deft. paying £25 into ct. as security, & on the terms that the action should be prosecuted without delay, pleadings to be delivered in the vacation, an interlocutory injunction should not be granted.—EDISON BELL PHONOGRAPH CORPN., LTD. v. HOUGH (1894), 11 R. P. C. 594.

2824. —— Plaintiff's course where numerous infringers.]—The owners of a patent commenced an action for infringement in Apr. 1893, & obtained judgment on June 12, 1894, with a certificate that the validity of the patent had come in question. On Nov. 15, 1894, they commenced the present action, & moved for an interlocutory injunction. For the purposes of the motion defts. admitted infringement, but they alleged that pltfs. knew as early as Jan. 1893, that defts. were infringing, and that in the interval a considerable trade on the part of defts. had grown up. Pltfs. did not contradict this by evidence, & their first complaint was made on Oct. 11, 1894. They alleged that they were put in a difficult position because there were numerous infringers. Defts. offered to pay into ct. a sum sufficient to meet the royalties until the trial, & to keep an account :—Held : under the circumstances of the case an injunction ought not to be granted.

LORD HATHERLEY pointed out a very reasonable course : Bring your action against one & write to the other infringers, & say that you will be under the necessity of issuing a writ against the others unless they will agree not to raise the point of delay against you. I cannot say that that is unreasonable (CHITTY, J.).—NORTH BRITISH RUBBER CO., LTD. v. GORMULLY & JEFFERY MANUFACTURING CO. (1894), 12 R. P. C. 17.

——.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 421, 422, Nos. 462, 463, 467, 472.

2825. Plaintiff's knowledge of infringement.]—Pltf. has been guilty of laches, because defts.' patent being in existence since 1882 he has not brought an action until the present time, & it is said that that must be proof of the fact that pltf. must have known of the infringement ; but defts. might have cross-examined pltf. upon his affidavit ; they might have proved aliunde that he had stood by & suffered Burrow's & Dawson's patent to be worked, & never thought of interfering with it from the time the patent was granted till the time the action is commenced. I cannot entertain the notion that there has been any laches on the part of pltf. for a moment (BACON, V.-C.).—OSMOND v. HIRST (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 179.

(g) Prevention of Irreparable Injury.

See, generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 377 et seq.

2826. Whether injunction granted—Where irreparable mischief would ersue.]—There will be a hardship on the one side or on the other, & the question is, on which side does the balance appear to lie ? Now if the trade of deft. be an old & an established trade, I should say that the hardship upon him would be too great if an injunction were granted. But where, as here, the trade of deft. is a new trade, & he is the seller of goods to a vast number of people, it seems to me to be less inconvenient & less likely to produce irreparable damage, to stop him from selling, than it would be to allow him to sell & merely keep an account, thus forcing pltf. to commence a multitude of actions against the purchasers (BRETT, J.A.).—PLIMPTON v. SPILLER (1876), 4 Ch. D. 286 ; 35 L. T. 656 ; 25 W. R. 152, C. A.

Annotation :—Refd. Coats v. Chadwick, [1894] 1 Ch. 347.

2827. —— —— Danger of market being supplied.]—Injunction granted to restrain the infringement of a patent, even where its legal validity was questioned, where, from the nature of the instrument, the market for it might be supplied in a very short time.

Semble : it is piracy to use part of an improvement, for which a patent has been obtained, in another improvement.—WEISS v. MAW (1826), 4 L. J. O. S. Ch. 224.

2828. —— —— Plaintiff protected by lesser relief.]—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. B. T. T. ELECTRIC LAMP & ACCESSORIES CO., No. 2772, ante.

(h) Balance of Convenience.

See, generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 380 et seq.

2829. Consideration of comparative injury.] —PLIMPTON v. SPILLER, No. 2826, ante.

2830. ——.]—B. & W., the assignees of a patent granted in 1878, brought an action for infringement against B. D. & co., & moved for an interlocutory injunction. Defts. challenged the validity of the patent on the grounds that it was bad on the face of the specification, & had been anticipated, & they sought to call a witness, who was unwilling to make an affidavit, to prove an alleged anticipation. Pltfs. contended that as defts. were a young co. with only £5,000 nominal capital, & only seventeen shareholders with £1,900 paid up, they would fail to recover any damages awarded to them at the trial, & that therefore, & as their patent was twelve years old, they were entitled to a protected interlocutory injunction :—Held : the question of the validity of the patent ought not to be gone into, & upon the balance of convenience pltfs. were entitled to an interlocutory injunction on giving the usual undertaking as to damages.—BRACHER v. BRACHER, DEAN & CO. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 420.

B. Against whom Granted.

See, generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 436 et seq.

2831. Parties working patent under articles of partnership.]—MUNTZ v. GRENFELL, No. 2815, ante.

2832. Person to whom mode of working communicated.]—COLES v. BAYLIS (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 57 ; 3 R. P. C. 180.

2833. Customer of infringing company.]—The A. co. brought an action for infringement of a patent against B. co., & moved for an interim injunction. A special order was made on this motion ; the B. co. were to pay into ct. certain sums on certain dates, & on their undertaking to keep an account of the tyres complained of, no further order was made except that defts. were to pay pltfs.' costs in any event. The A. co. then commenced an action for infringement of the same patent against C. & moved for an interim injunction. It appeared that C. was a customer of the B. co., & had bought the tyre on which the motion was based from the B. co., & that such tyre was a tyre of the kind complained of in the first action; & also that the first of the two sums payable under the order in the previous action had been paid, the second not being then due:—Held: as the ct. could not interfere against the B. co. it ought not to interfere against the customer of the B. co., & the motion ought not to have been made, & it was dismissed with costs.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. GOODMAN & SON (1896), 13 R. P. C. 723.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 4, B., C., D. (a) & (b), E: & F.; sub-sect. 5.]

Aliens.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 439, Nos. 610, 611.

C. Evidence.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 78, 79; Patents Rules, 1920, rr. 108, 109; & generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 505 et seq.

2834. What affidavit in support must contain—Statement that invention novel & patent valid.]—HULL v. THOMPSON, No. 2805, ante.

2835. —— ——.]—GARDNER v. BROADBENT, ——.]—Where deft. to a bill filed for an injunction to restrain the infringement of a patent, or for leave to bring an action at law, stated by his answer that the invention was not novel, & that pltf.'s patent was invalid; the ct., on a motion by pltf., without his having made an affidavit as to the novelty of the invention or validity of the patent, refused to grant him an injunction, or to give leave to bring an action, unless he produced a clear & distinct affidavit that the invention was novel & the patent valid; but allowed the motion to stand over for that purpose.—WHITTON v. JENNINGS (1860), 1 Drew. & Sm. 110; 1 L. T. 395; 6 Jur. N. S. 164; 62 E. R. 320.

2837. —— ——.]—CLARKE v. NICHOLS, No. 2814, ante.

2838. —— Nature of infringement stated with particularity.]—HILL v. THOMPSON, No. 2805, ante.

2839. Admissions of defendant—Not sufficient.]—CURTIS v. CUTTS, No. 2798, ante.

2840. Affidavit of information & belief—Sufficiency of—On behalf of defendants.]—READ v. ANDREW (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 201.

2841. —— —— Source of information must be shown.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. CHEMICAL & DRUGS CO., LTD., No. 2765, ante.

2842. Evasive affidavit—Leave to cross-examine given.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. CHEMICAL & DRUGS CO., LTD., No. 2765, ante.

2843. Copy of specification to be put in.]—On a motion for an injunction to restrain the infringement of letters patent a copy of pltf.'s specification should be put in evidence.—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO. v. MANDLER (1927), 71 Sol. Jo. 472.

D. Terms Imposed.

(a) Account in lieu of Injunction.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 34 & 1919 (c. 80), s. 10, sched.; & generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 387 et seq.

2844. When ordered—Validity disputed—Principle not clearly stated in specification.]—The specification should distinctly state the principle, as well as the mode of bringing it into operation. If the principle claimed be not clearly stated, but is only to be made out by construction, by comparing the several clauses of the specification, an injunction will not be granted, but deft. will only be put upon terms as to keeping accounts, etc., till the validity of the patent is tried at law.—BRIDSON v. M'ALPINE (1844), 3 L. T. O. S. 158; subsequent proceedings (1845), 8 Beav. 229.

2845. —— —— Defendant not put on terms to set aside patent.]—A trial at law for an infringement of a patent, in which pltf. was successful on all the pleas put in by deft., & in which the judge certified that the question of the validity of the patent came before him on the merits, & in which case also a second trial was refused, is not binding on another person who is alleged to have infringed the patent, even to the extent of precluding him from questioning its validity in a fresh action. Neither will deft. be put upon the terms of bringing a sci. fa. to set aside the patent, though his principal defence against the issuing an injunction to restrain him from making or selling the machine alleged to infringe the patent was the attempted proof of the invalidity of the patent, because of the existence of machines previously constructed on the same principle. An account ordered to be kept by deft., instead of an injunction, with liberty to apply.—CROSSKILL v. TUXFORD (1845), 5 L. T. O. S. 342.

—Apld. Bovill v. Goodier (2) (1866), L. R. 2 Eq 195.

2846. —— —— Defendant declining to keep account—Form of order.]—Motion for interlocutory injunction. Deft. disputing validity of patent, & declining to keep account. Order for account. Form of order.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. FRISWELL (1895), 13 R. P. C. 15.

2847. —— —— Patent not established.]—ZENITH MOTORS, LTD. v. COLLIER (H.) & SON, LTD., No. 2767, ante.

2848. —— Where undertaking to keep account.]—READ v. ANDREW, No. 2840, ante.

2849. —— —— Defendant person of substance.]—BONNELLA v. ESPIR, No. 2759, ante.

2850. —— Facts showing no necessity for injunction—Defendants disclaiming intention to infringe.]—In an action for infringement of a patent, commenced in Oct. 1896, against S. & C., pltfs., in Jan. 1897, gave notice of motion for an interlocutory injunction. The infringement complained of was a sale of a tyre which took place in June, 1896. At this date S. & C. were in partnership, but they dissolved such partnership in Aug. 1896, & notice of the dissolution was given to the solrs. of pltfs. Since the dissolution deft. C. had not manufactured tyres of any description, & stated that he did not intend to do so:—Held: on deft. S. undertaking to keep an account, there ought to be no order on the motion, but the costs were to be defts. in any event.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. & PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. STONE & CORSER (1897), 14 R. P. C. 263.

2851. —— Defendant offering account & discontinuance of word "patent."]—S. obtained a patent in 1902, & began to manufacture & sell articles under the patent as soon as the complete specification was accepted. Subsequently H. began to manufacture articles which were admittedly infringements of the patent if valid. S. commenced an action against H., & moved for an interlocutory injunction. H. alleged that the patent was invalid. H. stamped his articles "Patent":—Held: on deft. undertaking to keep an account & to discontinue using "Patent" in reference to his articles, the motion refused, & the costs would be costs in the action.—SPENCER v. HOLT (1902), 20 R. P. C. 142.

(b) Undertaking as to Damages.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 34 & 1919 (c. 80), s. 10, sched.; & generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 517 et seq.

2852. Condition of granting injunction.]—MUNTZ v. GRENFELL, No. 2815, ante.

2853. —— Action by foreigner.]—A patentee having obtained a decision in support of a patent & an injunction against one deft., commenced an action for infringement against present defts., & moved ex p. for an injunction a few days before the vacation. Pltf. was a foreigner, though on the writ an address in England was given:—Held: an injunction should be granted on proper security being given by pltf. for any damages which defts. might suffer, & subject to the condition that defts. might move to discharge the order on giving three clear days' notice.—MOSER v. JONES & Co. (1893), 10 R. P. C. 368.

——.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 518, No. 1238.

E. Breach of Injunction and Remedies.

See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 525, 527, 529, Nos. 1331, 1346–1348, 1369.

2854. Attachment issued—Terms of order.]—Pltfs., who were owners of patents for illuminant appliances for gas & other burners, instituted proceedings on Sept. 8, 1899, for infringement. By consent, dated Sept. 23, deft. submitted to an injunction. On Oct. 26, the consent was made a Rule of Ct., & further proceedings were stayed, without costs. On Nov. 13, 1899, deft. sold to W. a mantle for incandescent gas lighting, which was proved to be an infringement. Pltfs. moved for an attachment. Ordered, that an attachment should issue, unless deft., within a week, made an affidavit, stating on oath what mantles she had in her possession, which were infringements, or colourable imitations, of pltf.'s patents, delivered up all such mantles to pltfs. to be destroyed, & paid the costs of the motion.—WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. KEEGAN (1900), 17 R. P. C. 44.

F. Costs.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 7; INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 545, 546, Nos. 1526–1528, 1534.

2855. Motion ordered to stand over—With liberty to bring action—Plaintiff declining to bring action—Defendant entitled to costs.]—PERRY v. TRUEFITT (1843), 6 Beav. 418; 1 L. T. O. S. 384; 49 E. R. 887.

2856. Injunction refused pending trial at law—Costs of evidence of validity.]—WARD v. KEY, No. 2800, ante.

2857. Defendant promising to cease infringing—Plaintiff may bring suit to hearing & obtain costs—Whether account of damages given.]—GEARY v. NORTON, No. 2749, ante.

2858. Defendant giving undertaking—Costs of parties costs in action.]—RAPID STEEL CO. v. BLANKSTONE, No. 2818, ante.

SUB-SECT. 5.—DISCOVERY, INSPECTION AND PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS.

Jurisdiction of court to order.]—See DISCOVERY, Vol. XVIII., pp. 49, 50, Nos. 73–77.

See, generally, DISCOVERY, Vol. XVIII., pp. 42 et seq., 95 et seq.

2859. What documents must be disclosed or produced—Documents relating to particular ground of invalidity alleged.]—A bill of discovery insisted on the invalidity of a patent, on the ground that it had been assigned to more than five persons, & prayed a production of the documents, etc., "relating to the matters aforesaid":—Held: defts. were bound to produce those documents only which related to that point, & were entitled to seal up such parts as related to other matters.—FEW v. GUPPY (1836), 13 Beav. 457; 1 My. & Cr. 487; 51 E. R. 176, L. C.

Annotations:—Mentd. Irving v. Thompson (1839), 9 Sim. 17; Kerr v. Rew (1840), 5 My. & Cr. 154; Queen of Portugal v. Glyn (1840), 7 Cl. & Fin. 466; Richardson v. Hastings (1844), 7 Beav. 354.

2860. —— ——.]—CARNEGIE STEEL CO. v. BELL BROTHERS, LTD. (1907), 24 R. P. C. 82, C. A.

2861. —— ——.]—(1) An action for infringement of two patents having been brought, defts. alleged that both patents were invalid, & delivered particulars of objections. The specification of the first patent had been amended. As to this patent defts. alleged in their particulars want of novelty & want of subject-matter, alleging publication by certain specifications, common public knowledge & prior user, & stated in paragraph 1 (D) that they would rely by way of anticipation or, as showing the scope of the complete specification, upon the matters known to pltfs. or one of them, in consequence of which one of pltf. cos. applied for leave to amend the specification of the patent by (inter alia) striking out the then first claim for the reason that they were advised that the claim they desired to delete covered subject-matter of doubtful novelty. An order for discovery was made, & after pltfs.' affidavits of discovery defts. applied for further & better affidavits of documents, & in particular (a) in respect of the application to amend the specification of the first patent, & (b) the draft specification of the second patent & the correspondence passing between the Patent Office &/or appcts. &/or their agent in relation thereto. Pltfs. applied for an order on defts. to strike out paragraph 1 (D) of the particulars of objections or alternatively for better particulars:—Held: the issue in the action was not the validity of the patents generally, but as limited by the particulars of objections; it would tend to injustice if pltf. in a patent action were required to disclose every document in his possession suggestive of invalidity, wholly irrespective of the question whether or not PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 4.—D. (b).

1. Discretion of court—To grant reference to ascertain damages.]—When a pltf. on obtaining an injunction enters into the usual undertaking to abide by such order as the ct. may make as to damages, it is in the discretion of the ct. to grant or refuse a reference as to such damages where the injunction is afterwards not continued or is dissolved.—HESSIN v. COPPIN (1874), 21 Gr. 253.—CAN.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 4.—E.

g. Whether attachment issued—Six years after injunction granted—Patent re-issued.]—DETROIT FUSE & MANUFACTURING CO. v. METROPOLITAN ENGINEERING CO. OF CANADA, LTD. (1922), 63 D. L. R. 179; 21 Exch. C. R. 276.—CAN.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 5.

h. Fullest discovery must be made.]—In an action for damages for infringement of a patent deft. is entitled to the fullest discovery from pltf.—PARRAMORE v. BOSTON MANUFACTURING CO. (1902), 22 C. L. T. 415; 4 O. L. R. 627.—CAN.

k. What documents must be disclosed or produced—Foreign specifications.]—In an action to restrain the infringement of a patent, in which the defence set up that the supposed invention had been previously patented in the United States & England, copies of American patents material to deft.'s it related or referred to the particular grounds of invalidity relied upon by deft.; as regards paragraph 2 of defts.' application it must be dismissed.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sects. 5, 6 & 7, A. & B. (a).]

(2) An application was made by defts. in the course of the hearing for inspection by them, under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 68, of the report of the Examiner in reference to the second patent:—Held: this should be the subject of a substantive application.—AVERY, LTD. v. ASHWORTH, SON & CO., LTD. (1915), 32 R. P. C. 560, C. A.

2862. —— When infringement denied—Only documents material to infringement.]—DE LA RUE v. DICKENSON, No. 2397, ante.

——.]—See DISCOVERY, Vol. XVIII., pp. 102, 119, 175, 216, Nos. 535, 689, 1283, 1284, 1636.

2863. Right to seal up—Irrelevant parts of documents.]—FEW v. GUPPY, No. 2859, ante.

2864. At what stage of proceedings ordered—Before application for consolidation.]—A patentee filed separate bills against one hundred & thirty-four alleged infringers. Seventy-seven of defts. applied that pltf. might be directed to proceed with one suit either to try all the questions, or to try separately the validity of the patent; & that in the meantime the proceedings in the other suits should be stated, or the time for answering should be enlarged till further order:—Held: at this stage of the proceedings defts. could not be absolved from giving discovery by answer, but without prejudice to any application for consolidating the suits after answer.—FOXWELL v. WEBSTER (1863), 2 Drew. & Sm. 250; 3 New Rep. 103; 9 L. T. 362; 9 Jur. N. S. 1189; 62 E. R. 617; sub nom. FOXWELL v. WEBSTER, FOXWELL v. LEA, FOXWELL v. BRADBURY, FOXWELL v. STEAD, 12 W. R. 94; on appeal, 4 De G. J. & Sm. 77, L. C.

Annotations:—Refd. North British Rubber Co. v. Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Co. (1894), 12 R. P. C. 17. Mentd. Bovill v. Crate (1865), L. R. 1 Eq. 388.

2865. Grounds for resisting production—Joint ownership in patent—Nature of joint ownership must be shown.]—A person who is required to make an affidavit of documents in his possession, & who seeks to protect himself from being compelled to produce documents by an allegation of joint ownership [in a patent], is bound to show enough to satisfy the ct. what the nature of the joint ownership is.—BOVILL v. COWAN (1870), 5 Ch. App. 495; 39 L. J. Ch. 768; 22 L. T. 503; 18 W. R. 533, L. J.

Annotation:—Refd. Kearsley v. Philips (1882), 10 Q. B. D. 37, n.

2866. —— Trial of infringement subject to establishing validity—Postponement till validity established.]—(1) The patentee of a chemical process brought an action for infringement. In their affidavit of documents, defendants disclosed certain books, which they objected to produce, (a) as containing particulars of the materials operated upon by them, & the results produced by the manufacture alleged to be an infringement, & they objected to give such [illegible] until pltf. had established his legal rights, which defts. denied; (b) such documents contained names of customers & details of prices, & other information which, they submitted, pltf. was not entitled to know at that stage of the action. Pltf. took out a summons for production of the books in June, 1889. This was refused by the judge in chambers. Pltf. subsequently moved for inspection of defts.' works & of the books. Inspection of the works was offered at once by defts. Pltf., in Apr. 1890, brought on his motion for inspection of the books:—Held: this was an attempt to review the refusal of production in June, which was not appealable, & the motion was refused.

(2) Pltf. took out a fresh summons for inspection of such of the books as contained analyses of the materials operated on in defts.' processes:—Held: pltf. had not made out that he was entitled, at this stage of the action, to see the documents, as the question of infringement might never be tried if pltf. failed to establish the validity of the patent, & the application was refused without prejudice to any application by pltf. during the trial.—RAWES v. CHANCE (1890), 7 R. P. C. 275, C. A.

2867. —— Want of jurisdiction—Provisional specification of abandoned patent—Production allowed in interests of justice.]—An action for infringement of a patent having been brought, defts. set up (inter alia) the defence of prior user. On deft. being called & cross-examined, pltfs.' counsel called an official from the Patent Office to produce the provisional specification of an invention, in respect of which said deft. had applied for letters patent, but had subsequently abandoned the application. Deft questioned the jurisdiction of the ct. to allow production:—Held: notwithstanding 48 & 49 Vict. c. 63, s. 4, the ct. could allow production of, & reference to, such provisional specification for the purposes of the administration of justice.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. ENGLISH CYCLE & TYRE CO. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 851.

2868. —— Documents relating solely to case of deponent—& not supporting opponent's case.]—HEY v. DE LA HEY, [1886] W. N. 101, C. A.

Annotations:—N.F. Re Stahlwerk Becker Akt.'s Patent (1917), 34 R. P. C. 332. Dbtd. O'Rourke v. Darbishire, [1920] A. C. 581.

2869. —— Privilege—Communications between co-defendants — Claiming ownership of secret process.]—HEY v. DE LA HEY, No. 2868, ante.

—— —— Solicitor as patent agent.]—See DISCOVERY, Vol. XVIII., p. 122, No. 715.

2870. Further & better affidavit—Appeal after certificate that no argument required—Requisites before certificate given.]—Before the judge is asked to give his certificate, everything which is insisted on by one side, & objected to by the other, ought to be brought before him for his serious consideration.

In an action for infringement of a patent, defts. applied in chambers for the ordinary affidavit of documents, actually pressing for only a limited case, were procured by his solrs. of their own motion for the purposes of the action:—Held: such documents were privileged from production.—GUELPH C. CO. v. WHITEHEAD (1883), 9 P. R. 509.—CAN.

l. —— Where validity disputed — & agents employed.]—In an action for infringement of a patent in which the validity of the patent was disputed, the ct. granted diligence for the recovery of all letters, telegrams, reports, specifications, plans, sketches, memoranda & other written communications passing between pursuers & any one acting as their patent agent relating to the preparation of the specification or the grant of the letters patent, & all licences, permissions, agreements, contracts & business books of pursuers, tending to show the number of machines, or parts of machines, made or sold or licenced to be used or in use, in accordance with or under pursuers' specification & letters patent, & the names & addresses of all persons to whom such sales or licences may have been made or granted.—WALLACE v. TULLIS, RUSSELL & CO., LTD. (1920), 37 R. P. C. 43.—SCOT.

m. —— Defendants' books.]—BROWN v. EVERED & CO. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 501.—SCOT.

n. Production by Commissioner of Patents—Under subpœna duces tecum.

order, & a limited order only was made. Defts. appealed from this order, asking for a more extensive order. The judge had given a certificate that he did not require an argument in ct. On the appeal, pltf. offered to include in his affidavit certain other documents, but not all that defts. desired :—Held : no further order ought to be made.—THOMSON v. HUGHES (1889), 7 R. P. C. 187, C. A.

2871. —— Possession of certain documents admitted.]—CARNEGIE STEEL CO. v. BELL BROTHERS, LTD., No. 2860, ante.

Form of summons & grounds for order.]—See DISCOVERY, Vol. XVIII., p. 89, No. 403.

SUB-SECT. 6.—INTERROGATORIES.

See DISCOVERY, Vol. XVIII., pp. 183, 190, 201, 214-217, 221, 222, 227, Nos. 1345, 1346, 1391, 1392, 1486, 1617-1643, 1694-1699, 1739.

SUB-SECT. 7.—INSPECTION OF PROCESSES, APPARATUS AND MACHINERY.

A. In General.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 34 ; 1919 (c. 80), s. 10, sched.

2872. At what stage of proceedings ordered—Before delivery of statement of claim.]—An application to inspect deft.'s machinery may be made by pltf. under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 42, before the delivery of the declaration in an action for infringement of pltfs.' patent ; but such inspection will not be granted as of course or without the party applying for it showing that the inspection is material for the purposes of the cause.—AMIES v. KELSEY (1852), Bail Ct. Cas. 123 ; 22 L. J. Q. B. 84 ; 20 L. T. O. S. 115 ; 16 Jur. 1047 ; sub nom. AMMIES v. KELSIE, 1 W. R. 54.

Annotation :—Refd. Patent Type-Founding Co. v. Lloyd (1860), 6 Jur. N. S. 103.

2873. —— ——.]—EDLER v. VICTORIA PRESS MANUFACTURING CO., No. 2884, post.

2874. What affidavit must contain—Statement that machine in possession of defendant.]—An affidavit to obtain an inspection of a machine, supposed to be an infringement of a patent, must swear that it is in the possession of deft., & that it is believed to be an infringement.—SHAW v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1852), 22 L. J. Ex. 26 ; 20 L. T. O. S. 70.

2875. —— Statement of all the facts.]—Qu. : whether a ct. of common law, in making an order under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 42, that pltf. may inspect a manufacture alleged to be an infringement of a patent, has power to direct that he shall be at liberty to take specimens of the same for the purpose of analysis.

The affidavits in support of such an application should bring all the facts before the ct. precisely, & should be such as to satisfy the ct. that there has been an infringement, & that there is a necessity for their interposition.

In an action against a printer for an infringement of a patent for improvements in the manufacture of type, the improvements consisting in the use of lead, tin & antimony, in certain proportions, pltf. applied to the ct. under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 42, for leave to inspect, & if necessary, to take specimens of the type for the purpose of analysis. His affidavit stated that he had obtained from deft. specimens of the type & caused them to be analysed by a chemist who was dead, & that the type so analysed was an infringement of the patent ; but did not set out the report of the chemist or state its substance, or whether or not it was in writing. The ct. refused to make an order that pltf. should be at liberty to take specimens for analysis.—PATENT TYPE FOUNDING CO. v. LLOYD, SAME v. WALTER (1860), 5 H. & N. 192 ; 1 L. T. 382 ; 6 Jur. N. S. 103 ; 157 E. R. 1153 ; sub nom. PATENT TYPE FOUNDRY CO. v. LLOYD, SAME v. HARRISON, 29 L. J. Ex. 207.

Annotation :—Refd. Bennett v. Griffiths (1861), 30 L. J. Q. [illegible] — Statement of belief as to infringement.]—See Sub-sect. 7, B. (a), post.

—— Statement that inspection necessary.]—See Sub-sect. 7, B. (b), post.

2876. Effect of laches—No bar to order for inspection—Though sufficient to bar interlocutory injunction.]—PATENT TYPE FOUNDING CO. v. WALTER, No. 2915, post.

2877. Mutual inspection ordered.]—DAVENPORT v. JEPSON (1862), 1 New Rep. 307.

2878. Variation of order—Where defendants unable to obtain material.]—OSRAM LAMP WORKS, LTD. v. BRITISH UNION LAMP WORKS, LTD., No. 2885, post.

2879. Inspection already granted to other side.]—GERM MILLING CO., LTD. v. ROBINSON, No. 2890, post.

2880. Costs—Inspection had without order.]—In an unsuccessful action for infringement of letters patent, where a mutual inspection by counsel & experts of elaborate & heavy machinery was arranged between the solrs. without the expense of obtaining an order for the purpose under R. S. C., Ord. 50, r. 3, the costs of such inspection were allowed, but not defts.' costs of erecting machinery in London at the time of the trial, when it was not seen by either the judge or pltf.—ASHWORTH v. ENGLISH CARD CLOTHING CO., LTD. (No. 1), [1904] 1 Ch. 702 ; 73 L. J. Ch. 274 ; 90 L. T. 262 ; 52 W. R. 507 ; 21 R. P. C. 353.

B. When Ordered.

(a) Primâ facie Case of Infringement.

2881. General rule — Inspection ordered.]—BROWNE v. MOORE (1816), 3 Bli. 178, n. ; 4 E. R. 571.

2882. —— ——.]—Pltf., as patentee of an invention for improvements in the manufacture of felt hats, caps, & other head coverings, & in the apparatus employed in such manufacture, commenced an action against defts. for infringement, & moved for an inspection of defts.' processes, apparatus, & machinery ; defts. used several processes in their factory :—Held : (1) the question of disconformity will not be considered at this stage of a patent action ; (2) a primâ facie case of infringement will support a claim for inspection by a

—The Ct. of Equity has jurisdiction by subpœna duces tecum to direct the Comr. of Patents to produce all documents (excepting examiners' reports) lodged in connection with an application for the grant of letters patent.—BROADBENT & PARKS, LTD. v. BROADBENT (1925), 25 S. R. N. S. W. 406 ; 42 N. S. W. W. N. 70.—AUS.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 7.—A.

o. Inspection against Crown.]—MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. THE COMMONWEALTH, No. 2 & No. 3 (1913), 16 C. L. R. 178.—AUS.

p. Inspection of machine in defendant's possession — Anticipation.]—In an action for infringement of a patent the ct. has power, under Patents Act, 1883, s. 30, to order inspection of a machine in the possession of deft. relied on as evidence of publication of the alleged invention within the realm prior to the date of pltf.'s patent.—VAN BERKEL v. BOOTH, [1906] 1 I. R. 383.—IR.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 7, B. (a) & (b), & C.]

pltf.; (3) inspection must be limited to those of defts.' processes as to which a primâ facie case of infringement has been made out, & as pltf.'s evidence as to all defts.' processes, except one, amounted only to suspicion on his part that they constituted infringements, without the grounds of such suspicion being stated, inspection must be limited to such one process.—CHEETHAM v. OLDHAM & FOGG (No. 1) (1888), 5 R. P. C. 617.

2883. —— ——.]—Pltf., as owner of a patent for improvements in the manufacture of felt hats, caps, & other head coverings, & in the apparatus employed in such manufacture, commenced an action against defts. for infringement, & obtained a limited order for inspection. Defts. subsequently moved for leave to inspect pltf.'s processes, apparatus, & machinery, & to take samples of the finished & unfinished products of his manufacture: —Held: an order giving defts. liberty to inspect & take samples, ought to be made.—CHEETHAM v. OLDHAM & FOGG (No. 2) (1888), 5 R. P. C. 622.

2884. —— ——.]—In an action for infringement of a patent, pltf., before delivery of a statement of claim, applied for an order for inspection of a machine on the premises of one of defts. which he alleged to be an infringement of the patent:—Held: on the evidence there was at all events sufficient to justify the ct. in saying that the machine was one as to which a question might arise in the action; pltf. had bonâ fide reason to believe that the machine was an infringement of the patent, & he could not give proper particulars of breaches without inspection; & pltf. was, under the circumstances of the case, entitled to an order for inspection, & an order was made giving pltf., his solr., & not more than three experts liberty to inspect.—EDLER v. VICTORIA PRESS MANUFACTURING CO. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 114.

2885. —— ——.]—Pltfs. sued defts. for infringement of certain patents granted in 1904 & 1906 for the manufacture of incandescent electric lamps. The patents involved the use of carbon in the binding material & the subsequent removal of the carbon. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that for the purpose of manufacturing their lamps they were supplied from Germany with a binding medium made under a process patented by letters patent No. 7092 of 1909 into which the use of carbon did not enter. Pltfs. filed expert evidence to the effect that from examination of the filaments sold by defts. it was reasonably clear that they had been made by a process involving the use of carbon in the binding medium. Upon this evidence pltfs. obtained an order in chambers for inspection of defts.' process of manufacture. Defts. moved to discharge the order, first, on the ground that there was no primâ facie case of infringement, &, secondly, on the ground that they were unable to comply with the order as made, because they possessed none of the binding medium which had been supplied to them, & were unable to get any more owing to a disagreement with the patentee in Germany who refused to supply them. In consequence of this they had ceased to manufacture & had dismantled their works:—Held: (1) a primâ facie case of infringement had been established sufficient to justify an order for inspection being made; (2) the order made should be varied by directing that it should not be construed so as to oblige defts. to carry out the process with a medium obtained from the German patentee, & in the event of their being unable to procure such medium the process be carried out with a medium to be prepared by pltfs. under the specification of patent No. 7092 of 1909, or, at the option of defts., by some independent person to be agreed upon by pltfs. & defts. or, in default of agreement, to be nominated by the ct.—OSRAM LAMP WORKS, LTD. v. BRITISH UNION LAMP WORKS, LTD. (1914), 31 R. P. C. 309.

2886. Necessity for—In affidavits supporting application.]—SHAW v. BANK OF ENGLAND, No. 2874, ante.

2887. —— ——.]—PATENT TYPE FOUNDING CO. v. LLOYD, SAME v. WALTER, No. 2875, ante.

2888. ——.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent for a mode of making veneers or mouldings, the ct. refused to order an inspection by pltf. of deft.'s manufactory & machinery; it being doubtful on pltf.'s affidavit whether his patent was for the kind of veneering, or for the process by which it was done; & deft. positively swearing that he used no machinery in the process. —MEADOWS v. KIRKMAN (1860), 29 L. J. Ex. 205.

2889. ——.]—The ct. must be satisfied that pltf. has made out such a case as at the hearing of the cause he will obtain the relief prayed, & that the previous inspection required by him of defts. was material to such a case, before it will grant inspection of defts.' process by which an alleged infringement of a patent was to be made out.—PIGGOTT v. ANGLO-AMERICAN TELEGRAPH CO. (1868), 19 L. T. 46.

2890. —— Mere suspicion without statement of grounds insufficient.]—Pltfs., as owners of a patent for "improvements in the manufacture of meal & flour from wheat, maize, & other grain," commenced an action against defts. for infringement of such patent, & moved for an inspection of defts.' mills:—Held: as pltfs.' evidence only amounted to a suspicion on their part, without the grounds thereof being stated, defts. were infringing the patent, inspection would not be granted.—GERM MILLING CO., LTD. v. ROBINSON (1884), 1 T. L. R. 38; 1 R. P. C. 217; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 103; subsequent proceedings (1885), 55 L. J. Ch. 287.

Annotations:—Folld. Cheetham v. Oldham & Fogg (No. 1) (1888), 5 R. P. C. 617. Consd. Cheetham v. Oldham & Fogg (No. 2) (1888), 5 R. P. C. 622.

2891. —— ——.]—CHEETHAM v. OLDHAM & FOGG (No. 1), No. 2882, ante.

(b) Inspection Necessary for Purpose of Case.

2892. Inspection must be necessary.]—AMIES v. KELSEY, No. 2872, ante.

2893. ——.]—PATENT TYPE FOUNDING CO. v. LLOYD, SAME v. WALTER, No. 2875, ante.

2894. ——.]—PIGGOTT v. ANGLO-AMERICAN TELEGRAPH CO., No. 2889, ante.

2895. ——.]—Pltfs. in a suit for the infringement of a patent held by them for the manufacture of certain cartridges applied by motion for an inspection of the machinery & premises of defts., who were also large cartridge manufacturers. Defts. alleged by affidavit that the inspection was only asked for to enable pltfs. to see their machinery, & that they believed it to be unnecessary for the purposes of the suit:—Held: as there was no allegation by pltfs. that such inspection was necessary, & as there was an allegation by defts. that it was not necessary, the motion must be refused.—BATLEY v. KYNOCK (1874), L. R. 19 Eq. 90; 44 L. J. Ch. 89; 23 W. R. 52; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 36; subsequent proceedings, L. R. 19 Eq. 229.

Annotation:—Refd. Tilghman's Sand Blast Co. v (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 216

2896. .]—An action was brought to enforce the performance of a contract, providing that the parties should work together to improve a certain manufacture. By the terms of the contract all information & discoveries were to be shared; the parties were to be allowed to inspect each others' works; any patents for improvements in the manufacture obtained were to be vested in pltfs., & deft. was to be entitled to work them under a licence at a royalty; the profits from royalties & the sale of any patents were to be shared. Pltfs. claimed specific performance of the contract & alleged that deft. had made & was using certain improvements of which he had not given them information; that he would not allow them to inspect his works; & that he was using their patents without paying royalties. Deft. by his defence attached the contract on the grounds of fraud, misrepresentation, failure of consideration, abandonment by both parties & breach by pltfs. He also denied that he was using any processes which came within the terms of the contract. Pltfs. applied for inspection of deft.'s works. This was resisted on the ground that for the purpose of preparing for the trial of the action, no such inspection was necessary:—Held: inspection must be refused.—MCDOUGALL BROTHERS v. PARTINGTON (2) (1890), 7 R. P. C. 351.

2897. Previous inspection in discontinued action—Second inspection refused.]—Pltf., having brought an action against defts. for an alleged infringement of a patent for the use of certain machinery, was, in company of two scientific witnesses, allowed an inspection of the machinery complained of as an infringement. That action was afterwards discontinued, & a fresh action brought after the passing of Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), & pltf. applied, under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 42, for a second inspection. The ct. refused to make the order, on the ground that there had already been an inspection.—SHAW v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1853), 22 L. J. Ex. 210; 20 L. T. O. S. 227; previous proceedings (1852), 22 L. J. Ex. 26.

2898. Plaintiff in position to obtain inspection without order.]—RYLANDS v. ASHLEY'S PATENT (MACHINE MADE) BOTTLE CO. (1890), 7 R. P. C. 175.

2899. Plaintiff already in possession of specimens—Admitted to be similar to those complained of.]—In an action for infringement of a patent relating to spindles & bobbins, pltf., by his particulars of breaches, complained of certain spindles & bobbins used by defts.; specimens, admitted by defts. to be similar to those complained of, were obtained by pltf. from the makers. Defts. denied infringement, & contested the validity of the patent, alleging prior publication in certain specifications, upon the whole of some of which they stated that they relied, & prior manufacture, sale, or user in certain years by certain persons named, including the predecessors in business of the defts. Pltf. applied for liberty to inspect the spindles & bobbins mentioned in the particulars of breaches & the spindles & bobbins mentioned in the particulars of objections as having been used by defts.' predecessors in business, & also for further particulars as to the parts of the specifications relied on as anticipations:—Held: (1) under the circumstances pltf. was not entitled to inspect at defts.' works the articles said to be infringements; (2) pltf. was entitled to production, but not to inspection at defts.' works, of all alleged anticipations by defts.' predecessors of which defts had retained possession; (3) defts. were entitled to rely on the whole of a specification, if necessary, & could not be forced to point out special parts, unless it appeared that no attempt at discrimination had been made; (4) in stating instances of prior sale, manufacture, or user defts. need not specify more than the kind of article referred to, the names of the prior sellers, makers, or user, & the dates.—SIDEBOTTOM v. FIELDEN (1891), 8 R. P. C. 266.

2900. Plaintiff unable to give particulars of breaches.]—EDLER v. VICTORIA PRESS MANUFACTURING CO., No. 2884, ante.

2901. Defendant offering to admit facts.]—In 1909 a patent was granted for "improvements in & relating to the treatment of tungsten to facilitate working." One of the claims was for "the method of manufacturing wires or filaments of tungsten which consists in rolling, swaging or hammering a heated body of coherent tungsten until it becomes ductile at ordinary temperature & then rolling or drawing the ductile tungsten to the required size." In an action for infringement of the patent, pltfs., after the delivery of the pleadings, applied by summons for an order that they might be at liberty, by their general manager, their solrs. & scientific witnesses, to inspect the process used by defts. for the manufacture of their drawn wire. An affidavit in support of the summons was made by a scientific witness, who said that it was impossible to manufacture wire similar to that made by defts. without using the processes, or some or one of them, described in the specification of the patent. Defts. alleged that they had established a process for the manufacture of tungsten & other wire; that the details of the process had been kept secret; & that the inspection sought would result in handing over to defts.' trade rivals defts.' secrets of success. At the hearing of the summons defts. offered to make admissions of facts that would, they contended, give pltfs. all the information to which they were entitled:—Held: if an inspection were ordered, it ought to be carried out by not more than two experts, who ought to be allowed to take samples of defts.' product in various stages of its manufacture, & to report to the ct. upon the facts disclosed, & the experts' opinion founded upon them; the experts ought to be put under terms not to disclose, without order of the ct., any part of the secret process, but they ought to be allowed to report to pltfs., without giving details whether or not, in their opinion, defts.' process did, or did not, infringe the patent; before an inspection was ordered, the summons should stand over, with liberty to pltfs. to deliver questions in writing to defts. & after defts. had given their answers in writing, the summons could be restored. The costs were ordered to be costs in the action.—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. DURAM, LTD. (No. 2) (1920), 37 R. P. C. 121.

C. Who may Carry out Inspection.

2902. Expert witnesses.]—DAVENPORT v. JEPSON, No. 2877, ante.

2903. ——.]—In a suit to establish the validity of a patent, & to restrain infringement by deft., upon an application by pltf. for inspection of all the sewing machines of every kind on deft.'s premises, deft. was ordered to verify on affidavit the several kinds of sewing machines which he had sold or exposed for sale, & to produce at his solr.'s office, one of each class for inspection by pltf.'s solr., & two of their scientific witnesses.—SINGER MANUFACTURING CO. v. WILSON (2) (1865), 5 New Rep. 505; 12 L. T. 140; 13 W. R. 560.

2904. ——.]—SWAIN v. EDLIN-SINCLAIR TYRE CO. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 435.

2905. ——.]—EDLER v. VICTORIA PRESS MANUFACTURING CO., No. 2884, ante.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 7, C., D. & E.; sub-sect. 8, A. & B.]

2906. —— Named by plaintiff & not objected to by defendant.]—Pltfs. brought an action against defts. to restrain alleged infringements of a patent process for printing on metal plates. Pltfs. printed from dry lithographic stones put into relief. Defts. alleged that they defts. printed by the ordinary damp lithographic process from flat stones. Pending the proceedings, an order was made by the Ct. of Appeal that an expert named by pltfs. & not objected to by defts. should be at liberty to inspect the defts.' process, & the defts. gave an undertaking to show him the whole process. The inspector examined the process, & was shown twenty-seven stones used by defts., & reported to the effect that defts.' mode of printing was the same as the ordinary process of lithography, except that tin was used instead of paper. The action being tried on these materials, was ultimately dismissed by the Ct. of Appeal. Pltfs. shortly afterwards commenced an action to have it declared that the judgment on the appeal had been obtained by fraud, & for consequential relief. The alleged fraud was that defts., when the inspection took place, had in use not only the above twenty-seven stones, but also stones on which the designs were placed in relief—that they removed such latter stones from the place where the inspection took place, in order to conceal from the inspector the fact that they had stones on which the design was in relief—that they falsely stated to the inspector that they had no other stones than those shown to him—& that defts. stated to the inspector that the ink used by them was ordinary lithographic ink, whereas in fact they used ink specially prepared for pltfs.' use by a particular manufacturer for printing by the dry process. The Vice-Chancellor considered the case of fraud proved, & made a decree in pltfs.' favour, but the Ct. of Appeal was of opinion that no fraud was proved, & dismissed the action. Semble: an action to impeach a judgment on such grounds was not maintainable.—FLOWER v. LLOYD (1879), 10 Ch. D. 327; 39 L. T. 613; 27 W. R. 496, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Deake v. Muntz's Metal Co. (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 78. Mentd. Abouloff v. Oppenheimer (1882), 10 Q. B. D. 295; Boswell v. Coaks (1883), 52 L. J. Ch. 465; Baker v. Wadsworth (1898), 67 L. J. Q. B. 301; Cole v. Langford, [1898] 2 Q. B. 36; Wyatt v. Palmer (1899), 80 L. T. 639.

2907. —— On terms not to disclose secret process.]—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. DURAM, LTD. (No. 2), No. 2901, ante.

2908. Solicitors.]—DAVENPORT v. JEPSON, No. 2877, ante.

2909. ——.]—SINGER MANUFACTURING CO. v. WILSON (2), No. 2903, ante.

2910. ——.]—EDLER v. VICTORIA PRESS MANUFACTURING CO., No. 2884, ante.

2911. Parties—Plaintiffs.]—DAVENPORT v. JEPSON, No. 2877, ante.

2912. —— ——.]—SWAIN v. EDLIN-SINCLAIR TYRE CO., No. 2904, ante.

2913. —— ——.]—EDLER v. VICTORIA PRESS MANUFACTURING CO., No. 2884, ante.

2914. —— Defendants.]—CHEETHAM v. OLDHAM & FOGG (No. 2), No. 2883, ante.

D. Extent of Inspection Ordered.

2915. Inspection of competent portion.]—(1) In an action commenced by A. against B., the proprietor of a newspaper, for an alleged infringement, in the type used in printing the paper, of A.'s patent, the Ct. of Exch. refused to grant an order for the delivery to A. of a portion of the type for the purposes of analysis. Having subsequently filed a bill in equity against B., an order was made for inspection & the delivery of a competent portion of the type for the purposes of analysis.

(2) Laches sufficient to defeat pltfs.' right to an interlocutory injunction was no bar on the same motion for inspection & samples.—PATENT TYPE FOUNDING CO. v. WALTER (1860), John. 727; 8 W. R. 353; 70 E. R. 613.

2916. Whether of machinery in working—Machinery used in manufacture of disputed article—Referred to in affidavits.]—DAVENPORT v. JEPSON, No. 2877, ante.

2917. —— Inspection of machines produced—At all reasonable times—Production at trial.]—In the meantime all I can do is to order that pltf. has a right to inspection at the works of deft. co. of the machines which are produced, at all reasonable times, & as often as may be requisite, upon giving three days' previous notice, & then to an order to produce the machines upon any examination of witnesses in the action (BACON, V.-C.).—DRAKE v. MUNTZ'S METAL CO. (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 78; 3 R. P. C. 43.

2918. One machine of each class—Not all machinery in stock—Several kinds used to be verified on affidavit.]—SINGER MANUFACTURING CO. v. WILSON (2), No. 2903, ante.

2919. Inspection limited to processes primâ facie infringed.]—CHEETHAM v. OLDHAM & FOGG (No. 1), No. 2882, ante.

2920. Alleged anticipations by defendant's predecessors—If in possession of defendants.]—SIDEBOTTOM v. FIELDEN, No. 2899, ante.

E. Samples.

2921. When production ordered—Not for purpose of preparing defence.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent, pltf. will not be compelled to produce a specimen of the patent articles to enable deft. to prepare his defence to the action.—CROFTS v. PEACH (1836), 2 Hodg. 110; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 268.

2922. When leave to take granted—General rule.]—DAVENPORT v. JEPSON, No. 2877, ante.

2923. —— ——.]—CHEETHAM v. OLDHAM & FOGG (No. 2), No. 2883, ante.

2924. —— For purposes of analysis.]—PATENT TYPE FOUNDING CO. v. WALTER, No. 2915, ante.

2925. —— —— Expert reporting to court on facts & opinion—To plaintiff whether any infringement indicated.]—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. DURAM, LTD. (No. 2), No. 2901, ante.

SUB-SECT. 8.—THE HEARING.

A. In General.

2926. What issues tried—Validity alone—When numerous actions instituted.]—FOXWELL v. WEBSTER, No. 2864, ante.

2927. —— —— When proof of infringement expensive—Secret government processes.]—From the evidence & the documents which I have seen, the question of validity & the question of infringement are almost entirely separate & the expense of proving infringement will be very heavy &, having regard to the secret character of the government processes, will have, if & when it comes to be tried, to be tried under particular safeguards & circumstances; but, as the validity of this patent, before any infringement question can be discussed at all, will have to be substantiated, I am of opinion that, having regard to the particular circumstances of this case, it would be a fair & proper thing to direct the question of validity to be tried first (ASTBURY, J.).—HANKS v. COOMBES (1927), 44 R. P. C. 305.

of law before trial.]—BERLINER GRAM-O-PHONE CO. v. COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH CO. (1908),

2928. —— Infringement alone—Admission of validity.]—Unless defts. admit the validity of the patent, the question of infringement cannot be tried by itself. I decline to take a qualified admission that it was valid for the combination & not for the competent part (KAY, J.).—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. MATTISHEAD (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 230; 3 R. P. C. 213.

2929. Right of audience—Agent of company.]—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. WEST LONDON RUBBER & TYRE CO., LTD., No. 3278, post.

2930. Right to inspection of report of examiner—Necessity for substantive application.]—AVERY, LTD. v. ASHWORTH, SON & CO., LTD., No. 2861, ante.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 68; 1919 (c. 80), sched.

2931. One defendant not delivering defence—Whether motion for judgment granted.]—ACT. FÜR CARTONNAGEN INDUSTRIE v. REMUS (T.) & CO. & BURGON & CO. (1895), 12 R. P. C. 94.

2932. Defendant not appearing at trial—Necessity for plaintiff to prove case.]—Pltf. being the owner of a patent (No. 317 of 1878) sued deft. for infringement. Deft. put in a defence by which among other things he denied the novelty of pltfs.' invention, the sufficiency of the complete specification & that he had infringed. He also alleged prior user & publication of pltfs.' invention. Deft. at the trial did not appear:—Held: pltf. was not entitled to judgment without any proof of his case but that as his specification was good on the face of it & as he proved the infringement he was entitled to the relief he claimed.—PERONI v. HUDSON (1884), 1 R. P. C. 261; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 183.

2933. —— ——.]—This action was for infringement of a patent for "Improvements in & apparatus for recording & reproducing speech & other sounds. Deft. denied infringement, & by his pleadings alleged the invalidity of the patent on various grounds, but did not appear at the trial. Formal evidence was called to prove the validity of the patent & pltf.'s title. An injunction was granted with an order for delivery up of infringing articles & the usual certificates.—EDISON UNITED PHONOGRAPH CO. & EDISON-BELL PHONOGRAPH CORPN., LTD. v. YOUNG (1894), 11 R. P. C. 489.

2934. Effect of verdict for plaintiff.]—(1) Verdict for pltf. involves the validity of the patent subject to every legal consideration & the infringement.

(2) It is scarcely necessary here to observe, that a slight departure from the specification for the purpose of evasion only would, of course, be a fraud upon the patent; &, therefore, the question will be, whether the mode of working by deft. has or has not been essentially or substantially different (DALLAS, J.).—HILL v. THOMPSON (1818), 8 Taunt. 375; 2 Moore, C. P. 424; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 239; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 381; 129 E. R. 427.

Annotations:—Generally, Mentd. Brunton v. Hawkes (1821), 4 B. & Ald. 541; Campion v. Benyon (1821), 6 Moore, C. P. 71; Bloxan v. Elsee (1825), 1 C. & P. 558; Morgan v. Seaward (1837), 2 M. & W. 544; Bovill v. Finch (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 523.

2935. Ground for rehearing—New evidence since trial—Failure to direct as to extension of patent.]—In this case a verdict & judgment had been given for pltf. at the trial, & defts. moved for an order that the verdict & judgment should be set aside & a new trial granted on the following grounds: (a) that the verdict was against the weight of evidence; (b) that the judge misdirected the jury in the following respects, that is to say: (i) in leaving to the jury the question whether a sum of £26 1*s*., which was by a certain agreement payable to pltf. by one H., had been so paid by the said H., or had been allowed by him & credited to pltf. in an account stated between them; (ii) in leaving to the jury the question whether H. used his best endeavours in obtaining orders; (iii) in not directing a verdict for deft. on the ground that on payment of the £100 H. became absolute owner of half the patent; (iv) in not directing the jury that in point of law the last patent & the invention protected thereby was an extension or modification of the 1867 & the 1869 patents or one of them, or of the design or principle or of a matter of detail contained or involved therein; (c) on the ground of surprise; (d) on the ground that defts. have discovered fresh evidence since the trial. Motion refused with costs.—KING v. OLIVER & CO., LTD. (1884), 1 R. P. C. 42, D. C.

2936. —— —— As to manufacture of infringing articles.]—The owners of two patents for improved electric lamps brought an action against deft. alleging infringement. Deft. denied infringement. At the trial deft. applied to amend his statement of defence so as to put in issue the validity of one of the patents & of the assignment of the same to pltfs. The application being refused, deft. submitted to an injunction. Subsequently deft. applied for a rehearing upon the ground that he had, since the trial, ascertained that the lamps which were held to be infringements were not manufactured by him, & had within them filaments manufactured by pltfs. The application was refused.—EDISON ELECTRIC LIGHT CO. v. SHIPPEY (1887), 4 R. P. C. 471.

Jurisdiction of county court.]—See COUNTY COURTS, Vol. XIII., p. 480, No. 304.

B. Mode of Trial.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 31 (1); 1919 (c. 80), sched.

2937. General rule — Without jury — Unless special circumstances exist.]—In the absence of special circumstances the ordinary issues in a patent suit will be tried before the ct. itself without a jury.—PATENT MARINE INVENTIONS CO. v. CHADBURN (1873), L. R. 16 Eq. 447; 28 L. T. 614; 21 W. R. 745.

2938. —— —— ——.]—Pltfs. by their statement of claim asked for an injunction against the infringement of their patent, & for an account & damages. Only one instance of infringement was alleged. After issue joined pltfs. set down the action for trial & defts. then gave notice under R. S. C., Ord. 36, r. 3, that they required to have the action tried before a judge & special jury. Upon an application by pltf. under R. S. C., Ord. 36, r. 26:—Held: the case was not one in which defts. were entitled to insist upon a jury, & the case was ordered to be tried in this division of the ct. without a jury.—SPRATT'S PATENT v. WARD & CO. (1879), 11 Ch. D. 240; 48 L. J. Ch. 645; 40 L. T. 250; 27 W. R. 470.

*Annotation:—Refd. Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Loog (1879), 11 Ch. D. 656.

2939. —— —— ——.]—RHODES & EDMONDSON v. BRITISH COTTON & WOOL DYERS ASSOCN., LTD. (1910), 28 R. P. C. 67.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringe- . 8, B. & C.;

2940. When trial by jury granted—No right ex debito justitiæ.]—Deft. in a suit to restrain the infringement of a patent has no right to have the issues of the fact referred to a jury ex debito justitiæ; & where the issues raised have been already determined, such reference will in general be refused. But if it appear that there is a really doubtful question at issue, the ct. will not decide it for itself, if either party desire a jury.—DAVENPORT v. GOLDBERG (1865), 2 Hem. & M. 282; 71 E. R. 472; sub nom. DAVENPORT v. GOLDBERG, DAVENPORT v. PHILLIPS, 5 New Rep. 484.

Annotation:—Consd. Bovill v. Goodier (2) (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 195.

2941. —— ——.]—(1) Where, in a patent suit, questions of fact have to be determined, the parties have no absolute right to have those questions tried by a jury. It must be decided upon the merits of the particular case whether the assistance of a jury shall be required.

(2) The Ct. of Ch. being now compelled to decide legal rights is to decide them according to its own ordinary practice.—BOVILL v. HITCHCOCK (1868), 3 Ch. App. 417; 37 L. J. Ch. 223; 16 W. R. 321, L. J.

2942. —— Doubtful question at issue—On application of either party.]—DAVENPORT v. GOLDBERG, No. 2940, ante.

2943. When trial by jury refused—Issues already determined.]—DAVENPORT v. GOLDBERG, No. 2940, ante.

2944. Trial behind closed doors—Alleged secret process.]—(1) Where in a patent case the evidence is conflicting & indecisive on a scientific point, the ct. is at liberty to obtain competent independent scientific assistance in determining the matters at issue.

(2) Where in a patent case deft. denies infringement, but objects to state in open ct. the process he actually practises, on the ground that it is the subject of a valuable secret, of the benefit of which he would be deprived by disclosure, the ct. will first ascertain whether the defence fails in all other respects than infringement, & then, unless deft. prefers to submit to an injunction, will hear the evidence & arguments with respect to the alleged infringement by the secret process with closed doors, & with a view to further protecting the secret, will order the shorthand notes of the private hearing to be impounded until either an appeal is entered or the right to appeal is abandoned.

(3) Where a patent is obtained for the use of particular chemical materials for arriving at a particular chemical result, it is no infringement to arrive at the same result by the use of other chemical materials which were not known to be equivalents for the materials mentioned in the specification at the time when the patent was obtained.

(4) Where a patent is obtained for a new process for arriving at a known result, it is no infringement to arrive at the same result by a different process.

(5) Where a patent is obtained for a new result, & one process of arriving at that result is described in the specification, it is an infringement to produce the same result by any process.—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. LEVINSTEIN (1883), 24 Ch. D. 156; 52 L. J. Ch. 704; 48 L. T. 822; 31 W. R. 913; on appeal (1885), 29 Ch. D. 366, C. A.; (1887), 12 App. Cas. 710, H. L.

[illegible] [1892] A. C. 217. As to (4) Reid. Atkins & Applegarth v. Castner-Kellner Alkali Co. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 281. Generally, Reid. Easterbrook v. G. W. Ry. (1885), 2 R. P. C. 201; Haslam Foundry & Engineering Co. v. Hall (1887), 4 T. L. R. 154; Kurtz v. Spence (1887), 58 L. T. 438; Siddell v. Vickers (1887), 4 T. L. R. 191; Cole v. Saqui & Lawrence (1888), 40 Ch. D. 132; Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 5 T. L. R. 294; Lane Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424; Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369.

C. Reference to Expert.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 31; 1919 (c. 80), sched.

2945. Power of court to refer—Where contradictory evidence on scientific question.]—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. LEVINSTEIN, No. 2944, ante.

2946. —— For experiment.] — Pltf., being patentee of improvements in machines for cutting & trimming the hairs or bristles of brushes, sued deft. for using a machine which pltf. alleged was an infringement of his patent. Deft. alleged, (a) that pltf.'s patent was invalid because his specification was insufficient; (b) that deft.'s machine was not an infringement; (c) that such machine was in use before the date of the patent. It was held at the trial that the specification was sufficient, that deft.'s machine was an infringement, & that it was not in use before the date of the patent. Judgment was accordingly given for pltf., with costs. Deft. having appealed, Ct. Appeal, considering that it was necessary in order to dispose of the case, that the capability of deft.'s machine to cut brushes should be ascertained by experiment, made an order that M. should make such an experiment, & report the result to the ct. The hearing of the appeal having been adjourned for the purpose, the order was carried into effect, & M. was examined by the ct. on the resumption of the appeal. In the result the ct. allowed the appeal, reversed the judgment of the ct. below, & dismissed the action with costs on the grounds (a) that the specification was insufficient in not pointing out what was novel in the combination constituting pltf.'s invention, & (b) that deft.'s machine was not an infringement, because it did not comprise that part of pltf.'s invention on which pltf. rested his case. Pltf. having appealed to the House of Lords:—Held: (1) the specification was sufficient, because, where the claim is for a new combination only, & not also for subordinate elements included in that combination, then, if the combination & the mode of working it are properly described, it is not necessary to specify which of the subordinate elements are new; (2) there were differences between deft.'s machine & its operation & that of pltf. & its operation, which prevented deft.'s machine from being an infringement of pltf.'s patent; (3) the order of the Ct. of Appeal dismissing the action must be affirmed; but, as pltf. had succeeded in reversing that portion of the judgment of the Ct. Appeal which declared his patent bad, no costs of the appeal to the House of Lords would be given to deft.—MOORE v. BENNETT (1884), 1 R. P. C. 129; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 158, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Reid. International Harvestor Co. of America v. Peacock (1908), 25 R. P. C. 765; United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Fussell (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631; Lynch & Wilson v. Phillips (1909), 26 R. P. C. 389. As to (2) Consd. Useful Patents Co. v. Rylands (1885), 2 R. P. C. 255. As to (3) Reid. Sugg v. Bray (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–6), 210.

2947. —— —— Independent expert chosen by parties.]—The owners of two patents relating to the construction of incandescent electric lamps brought an action for infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the patents were invalid on the ground, (inter alia) of insufficiency of specification, want of novelty, & utility:—

Held : one patent was invalid on the grounds that : (a) the second claim was too wide ; (b) the specification did not describe a lamp which ever became, or could have become commercially successful ; (c) the directions contained therein for making the carbon required further experiment ; (d) one of the processes described was practically injurious ; (e) another of the processes described was, if not injurious, of no practical utility ; (f) the third claim was of no practical utility, but the other patent was valid & had been infringed ; an inquiry as to damages & delivering up of lamps infringing such patent was ordered on motion to vary the minutes.

At my suggestion the parties agreed that the experiments should be repeated in the presence of Professor Stokes, whom they chose as an independent expert, who should report the result to the ct. I have the report, which the parties have seen (KAY, J.).—EDISON & SWAN ELECTRIC LIGHT CO. v. HOLLAND (1888), 5 R. P. C. 459 ; 4 T. L. R. 686 ; on appeal (1889), 41 Ch. D. 28, C. A.

Annotations :—Refd. Heap v. Hartley (1889), 61 L. T. 538 ; Lane Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424 ; Haskell Golf Ball Co. v. Hutchison (No. 2) (1905), 22 R. P. C. 477 ; Jandus Arc Lamp & Electric Co. v. Arc Lamp Co. (1905), 22 R. P. C. 277 ; Layland v. Boldy (1913), 30 R. P. C. 547 ; Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369 ; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95 ; British Thomson-Houston v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1924), 41 R. P. C. 241. Mentd. Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 39 R. P. C. 3.

2948. ——.]—NORTH BRITISH RUBBER CO., LTD. v. MACINTOSH & CO., LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 477.

Annotation :—Refd. North British Rubber Co. v. Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Co. (1896), 12 T. L. R. 634.

2949. —— Discretion of court — Appeal.]—SAXBY v. GLOUCESTER WAGON CO., [1880] W. N. 28, C. A.

SUB-SECT. 9.—EVIDENCE.

A. In General.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 78, 79 ; &, generally, EVIDENCE, Vol. XXII., pp. 19 et seq.

2950. Evidence of validity of patent — Decision in previous action—Where facts not materially different.]—NATIONAL OPALITE GLAZED BRICK & TILE CO. v. GRAND HOTEL, BIRMINGHAM (1901), 18 R. P. C. 249.

2951. Application to amend specification made before action—Amendment after issue of writ—Amended specification proper one for trial.]—Where leave to amend the specification of a patent has been made to the Comptroller before, & leave to amend granted after, the issue of a writ in an action for infringement, the proper specification to put in evidence & refer to at the trial is the specification as it stands after amendment.—STEPNEY SPARE MOTOR WHEEL CO., LTD. v. HALL, [1911] 1 Ch. 514 ; 80 L. J. Ch. 391 ; 104 L. T. 665 ; 27 T. L. R. 283.

2952. Judge's notes for Court of Appeal—Duty of appellant.]—(1) Shorthand notes, taken by clerks of the solrs. in a proceeding, cannot be referred to in any way in the Ct. of Appeal ; the ct. only relies on shorthand notes when taken by an entirely independent person.

(2) When evidence taken orally in the ct. below has to be referred to an appeal, it is the duty of the applt. to apply to one of the judges of the Ct. of Appeal, through his clerk, to apply to the judge below for a copy of his notes to be sent to the Ct. of Appeal ; & if an applt. fails in this duty the appeal will be ordered to stand over at his expense.

(3) Costs on the higher scale should be allowed in patent cases where scientific witnesses are necessarily called.

(4) There should be no difference between the costs in the action of the validity of the patent & the costs upon the question of infringement (COTTON, L.J.).—ELLINGTON v. CLARK, BUNNETT & CO. (1888), 38 Ch. D. 332 ; 57 L. J. Ch. 958 ; 58 L. T. 818 ; 36 W. R. 873 ; 5 R. P. C. 319, C. A.

Annotations :—As to (3) Apld. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Wapshare Tube Co. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 433. Refd. Rivington v. Garden, [1901] 1 Ch. 561.

2953. Shorthand note by solicitor's clerk—Reference to in Court of Appeal.]—ELLINGTON v. CLARK, BUNNETT & CO., No. 2952, ante.

2954. Proof of infringement—Whether question for judge or jury.]—(1) The question of infringement peculiarly for the jury, who must say whether any advantage has been taken of the invention of pltf. Or, whether there is such a variation in substance as to constitute a new discovery.

(2) A specious variation in form or ingenious alteration in the mode of adaptation, an infringement of the patent.

(3) The plea that the invention is not a new manufacture known in England, admits the invention to be a manufacture, & puts in issue the novelty.—WALTON v. POTTER & HORSFALL (1841), 3 Man. & G. 411 ; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 585 ; 4 Scott, N. R. 91 ; 11 L. J. C. P. 138 ; 1 Goodeve's Patent Cases, 488 ; 133 E. R. 1203.

Annotations :—As to (1) Consd. Thorn v. Worthing Skating Rink Co. (1876), 6 Ch. D. 415, n. Refd. Hill v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288. As to (2) Refd. Bateman & Moore v. Gray (1853), Macr. 93 ; Edison & Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse (1886), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–6), 90. Generally, Refd. Betts v. Walker (1849), 14 Jur. 647.

2955. —— ——.]—DE LA RUE v. DICKENSON, No. 2397, ante.

2956. —— ——.]—SEED v. HIGGINS, No. 2372, ante.

2957. —— Of improvement—Necessity for proof of prior specification.]—If A. in 1818 take out a patent for " improvements in a machine for which L. took out a patent in 1815," it is necessary for A. on the trial of an action for the infringement of his patent to put in L.'s patent & specification ; but it is not material whether a machine made according to the specification of L. would be useful or not if it be shown that a machine constructed according to A.'s specification would be so.—LEWIS v. DAVIS (1829), 3 C. & P. 502 ; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 488 ; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 471.

Annotation :—Consd. Crane v. Price (1842), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 393.

2958. —— Where plaintiff's patents cover all known methods of manufacture.]—The S. Corpn., Ltd., brought an action for infringement of twenty-three patents, all relating to the manufacture of saccharin, alleging that such patents covered all the known ways of making pure saccharin. Deft. did not deny the validity of the patents, but denied infringement, & alleged that the saccharin sold by him was not pure saccharin, which is of 550 strength, but was saccharin of 330 strength ; that it was made abroad, & that he did not know how it was made :—Held : the saccharin sold by deft. was of 550 strength, & the evidence established that pltfs.' patent covered all known ways of making pure saccharin ; the sales by deft. were therefore infringements of those patents or some of them. Judgment was given for pltfs., but the injunction granted was limited to the existence of the patent earliest in date.—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. JACKSON (1903), 20 R. P. C. 611.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 9, A., B. (a) & (b), & C.]

Annotation:—Refd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1923), 40 R. P. C. 426.

2959. —— ——.]—The S. Corpn. sued M. & co. for infringement of seven patents. The defence was a denial of infringement:—Held: it must be assumed that the art. complained of was made by some process covered by pltfs.' patents, & judgment was given for pltfs. with costs.—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. MACK & CO. (1905), 23 R. P. C. 25.

Annotation:—Refd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1923), 40 R. P. C. 426.

2960. Proof of acquiescence.] — PROCTOR v. BENNIS. No. 2472, ante.

2961. Presumption against agent—As rival manufacturer.]—WHEATSTONE v. WILDE, No. 2786, ante.

2962. Presumption of infringement of chemical process—When admission of same chemical composition.]—SHARPE & DOHME INC. v. BOOTS PURE DRUG CO., LTD. (1927), 44 R. P. C. 69.

Commission to examine witness abroad.]—See EVIDENCE, Vol. XXII., p. 575, No. 6268.

Admissibility.

(a) In General.

See, generally, EVIDENCE, Vol. XXII., pp. 53 et seq.

2963. Evidence in rebuttal—After defendant's evidence closed—Particulars of objection exceeded.]—After defts.' evidence was closed, an application was made on behalf of pltfs. that the case might stand over to adduce further rebutting evidence on pltfs.' behalf as to Shaw's heel plate. The ground of this, as I understood, was that defts.' evidence on this point went further than was justified by their particulars of objection. I was most reluctant to yield to the application, but after hearing what other rebutting evidence pltfs. I allowed the case to stand over.—BLAKEY & CO. v. LATHAM & CO. (1888), as reported in 6 R. P. C. 29; on appeal (1889), 6 R. P. C. 184, C. A.

Annotations:—Mentd. Williams v. Nye (1890), 7 R. P. C. 62; Savage v. Harris (1896), 13 R. P. C. 364.

2964. Expert evidence—For what purposes admitted—Infringement.]—SEED v. HIGGINS, No. 2372, ante.

2965. —— —— Equivalents.]—TICKET PUNCH & REGISTER CO., LTD. v. COLLEY'S PATENTS, LTD., No. 2480, ante.

2966. —— ——.]—Expert evidence is admissible to explain technical terms, to show the practical working of machinery described or drawn, to point out what is old & what is new in the specification, & to show the particulars in which an alleged invention has been used by an alleged infringer, & the real importance of whatever differences there may be between pltf.'s invention & whatever is done by deft.—BROOKS v. STEELE & CURRIE (1896), 14 R. P. C. 46, C. A.

2967. —— ——.]—Pltfs., as the registered legal owners of letters patent granted to one N. for a "process for converting unsaturated fatty acids or their glycerides into saturated compounds," alleged that defts. were infringing their letters patent, & they claimed an injunction & the usual ancillary relief. Defts. denied the validity of the letters patent on the ground that N.'s specification did not sufficiently describe the manner in which the process was to be carried out:—Held: the specification was insufficient in this respect & pltfs.' action failed.

It is not competent in any action for witnesses to express their opinion upon any of the issues, whether of law or fact, which the ct. or a jury has to determine. The assistance of expert evidence in patent actions is generally essential. It is required for the purpose of explaining words, or terms of science or art, appearing in the documents which have to be construed by the ct. or to inform the ct. in case the import of a word or phrase differs from its popular meaning (NEVILLE, J.).—JOSEPH CROSFIELD & SONS, LTD. v. TECHNO-CHEMICAL LABORATORIES, LTD. (1913), 29 T. L. R. 378; 30 R. P. C. 297.

2968. Acts subsequent to issue of writ—Not admissible.]—Pltf. commenced an action for the infringement of 4 patents for certain mechanism in machines for lasting boots & shoes. One patent was withdrawn during the hearing. Evidence received de bene esse with respect to the alleged infringement after issue of the writ:—Held: defts. had infringed; the three patents were valid & the evidence as to alleged infringements after the date of the writ was inadmissible.—SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. CUTLAN (1895), 12 R. P. C. 342; on appeal, [1896] 1 Ch. 108, C. A.

Annotations:—Expld. & Apld. Welsbach Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. Dowle & London & Suburban Maintenance Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 391. Mentd. Poulton v. Adjustable Cover & Boiler Block Co., [1908] 2 Ch. 430.

2969. —— ——.]—Pltfs. sold mantles of their manufacture with a limited licence. It was alleged that defts. had infringed by breach of the limited licence. Evidence was offered of acts done after the issue of the writ to strengthen & explain the evidence prior to the date of the writ:—Held: the evidence of acts prior to the writ was not sufficient to prove pltfs.' case, &, where an action is for infringement & not to restrain threatened infringement, evidence of acts subsequent to the date of the writ is inadmissible.—WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. DOWLE & LONDON & SUBURBAN MAINTENANCE CO. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 391.

2970. Evidence of inventor.] — BATEMAN v. GRAY, No. 2974, post.

2971. Evidence of person not mentioned in particulars of breaches—Referred to in interrogatories.]—SYKES v. HOWARTH, No. 2286, ante.

2972. Specification—Proper notice not given.]—LISTER v. LEATHER, No. 2517, ante.

2973. Evidence affecting discretion of court.]—MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE CO. v. INTERTYPE CO., LTD., No. 3002, post.

Exemplification of patent.]—See EVIDENCE, Vol. XXII., p. 253, No. 2363.

(b) Defence of Want of Novelty.

2974. Evidence to explain specification—To show new combination of old matters.]—(1) In an action for the infringement of a patent, pleas which deny that pltf. was the true & first inventor, & that the manufacture was new, do not bind pltf. to the description of the invention as given in the specification so as to preclude him from giving evidence to show that the invention does not consist, as might be inferred from the specification, in the use of several new matters but in the new combination of several old matters.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 9.—B. (b).

r. Evidence of prior user.] — Particulars of objection on the ground of common public knowledge do not authorise deft. to give evidence of prior user as to anticipation. v. FULHAM (1910), 10 S. R. N. S. W 291; 27 N. S. W. W. N. 66.

(2) The use of equivalent means to effect the same end as that patented is an infringement of the patent.

(3) The man who made the invention may be called to enable you to ascertain what the invention was.—BATEMAN v. GRAY (1853), 8 Exch. 906; 1 C. L. R. 512; Macr. 93; 22 L. J. Ex. 290; 155 E. R. 1621.

Annotation:—Generally, Reld. Crossley v. Potter (1353), Macr. 240; Hancock v. Noyes (1854), 9 Exch. 388.

2975. Evidence of prior user—Discovered since closing of evidence.]—In a patent suit which had been set down for hearing, an application made by deft., after notice given to pltf., for leave to produce at the hearing of the cause the evidence as to prior user, stated to be very important, of a new witness discovered since the closing of the evidence, was allowed.—WILSON v. GANN (1875), 23 W. R. 546.

2976. Evidence by licencee.] — Pltf. having taken out a patent for improvements in the machinery for clipping horses, deft. offered, if pltf. would give him a licence for the manufacture, to pay the sum of 1*s.* 2*d.* on all horse clippers sold by him, deft., after a certain date, & pltf. accepted the offer. A bill was filed for specific performance of this contract, & a decree was made, declaring that the agreement ought to be specifically performed, ordering a licence to be granted, & directing an account.

On a summons on behalf of pltf. to surcharge deft. on account of certain clippers asserted to have been made according to pltf.'s invention, deft. denied that his clippers came within the limits of the patent, & produced the specification of an American patent as evidence of the construction to be put on the specification of the English patent:—Held: a licencee could not in any way dispute the validity of the patent, the evidence was inadmissible, &, further, that the clippers made by deft. were within pltf.'s patent.—ADIE v. CLARK (1876), 3 Ch. D. 134; 35 L. T. 349; 24 W. R. 1007, C. A.; on appeal, sub nom. CLARK v. ADIE (No. 2) (1877), 2 App. Cas. 423, H. L.

*Annotations:—Reld. Gosnell v. Bishop (1888), 4 T. L. R. 397; Crosthwaite v. Steel (1889), 6 R. P. C. 190; Eliot v. Bristol Corpn. (1894), 71 L. T. 659; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95.

See, also, Sub-sect. 3, C.

2977. Evidence outside particulars in defence—Objections not delivered.]—CROPPER v. SMITH, No. 2728, ante.

2978. —— Prior user.]—On Dec. 16, 1887, a patent was granted to H. for "An apparatus for opening & closing fanlights & skylights." H., in 1892, commenced an action for infringement against A., who, by his defence, alleged that H. was not the true & first inventor, & that his alleged invention was anticipated by the specification of A.'s patent of Dec. 2, 1887. In the course of the trial, evidence was given on behalf of deft. of the user of almost the identical thing claimed by both patentees prior to the date of both patents:—Held: upon this evidence both patents were bad; leave should be given to adduce this evidence; deft. ought to have an opportunity of having the objection to pltf.'s patent covered by this evidence raised; if he did not the action would be dismissed without costs, but if he did raise the objection then pltf. must have an opportunity of dealing with it, & all other questions must be reserved.—HILL v. ADAMS (1893), 10 R. P. C. 102.

2979. —— Want of subject-matter—Want of novelty alleged in particulars of objections.]—Semble: evidence may be given of want of subject-matter, though it is not alleged in the particulars of objections, the objection of want of novelty being sufficient to cover it.—ELECTROLYTIC PLATING APPARATUS CO., LTD. v. HOLLAND (1901), 18 R. P. C. 521.

Statements by deceased person accompanying act not in issue.]—See EVIDENCE, Vol. XXII., p. 59, No. 329.

C. Onus of Proof and Weight of Evidence.

See, generally, EVIDENCE, Vol. XXII., pp. 35 et

2980. Onus of proof—On plaintiff.]—BETTS v. WILLMOTT, No. 1588, ante.

2981. —— ——.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. WILD, No. 2590, ante.

2982. —— —— To show sufficiency of specification.] — A pltf. must give some evidence of the sufficiency of the specification unless admitted.—TURNER v. WINTER (1787), Dav. Pat. Cas. 145; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 77; 1 Term Rep. 602; 99 E. R. 1274.

*Annotations:—Reld. Boulton v. Bull (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 463; Hill v. Thompson & Forman (1818), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 239; Lewis v. Marling (1829), 10 B. & C. 22; Derosne v. Fairie (1835), 2 Cr. M. & R. 476; Bickford v. Skewes (1841), 1 Q. B. 938; Neilson v. Harford (1841), 8 M. & W. 806; Brown v. Annandale (1842), 8 Cl. & Fin. 437; Walton v. Bateman (1842), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 613; Wegmann v. Corcoran (1879), 13 Ch. D. 65; Re Alsop's Patent (1907), 24 R. P. C. 733; Hatmaker v. Nathan (1917), 35 R. P. C. 61.

2983. —— Shifted to defendant—By primâ facie case.] — In an action for infringement, deft. denied infringement, & in the alternative alleged that the article, the sale of which was complained of, was purchased from one, L., with whom pltfs. had some agreement not to take proceedings:—Held: pltfs. had made a primâ facie case of infringement by showing that deft. had sold the patented article, & deft. had not discharged the onus which lay on him of proving his alternative defence, there being no evidence of the agreement.—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. DAWSON (1889), 6 R. P. C. 387.

2984. —— —— ——.]—The action was to restrain infringement of a patent for improvements in rubber tyres & metal rims of wheels for cycles, etc. Defts. at first raised all the usual defences in a patent action, but after the decision in The Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. East London Rubber Co., No. 930, ante, almost all the issues were struck out, & at the trial the case was practically reduced to a single case of prior user. The judge held that defts.' case was not proved to his satisfaction, & granted an injunction, with solr. & client costs.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. MARWOOD & CROSS (1897), 14 R. P. C. 240.

2985. —— —— ——.]—A patent was granted for an improvement in welding aluminium. The claim was as follows:—In the autogenous union of aluminium the use of a flux consisting of a mixture of alkali chlorides. A second patent was granted for an improvement in welding or melting objects of aluminium. The claim was for the improvement in the process of welding objects of aluminium described in the specification of the first-mentioned patent, which consists in using as a flux a mixture of alkali chlorides &

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 9.—C.

2980 i. Onus of proof—On plaintiff.]—There is no presumption in law in favour of the validity of a patent.—Re ALLAN & REED (1888), 14 Q. L. R. 126.—CAN.

2983 i. —— Shifted to defendant—By primâ facie case.] — RUSSELL v. CRICHTON (1838), 16 Sh. (Ct. of Sess.) 1155.—SCOT.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 9, C. & D.; sub-sect. 10, A., B. & C. (a).]

of fluorides of the nature described. In an action for infringement of the patents defts. admitted that they had welded the article the welding of which was complained of by pltts., but alleged that they had not any knowledge of the composition of the flux used. Defts. alleged that the patents were invalid on the grounds of want of novelty & subject-matter, insufficiency & want of utility. They alleged that the inventions had been published in a treatise on chemistry by R. & S., & (inter alia) in two prior specifications. They also alleged that no mixture of alkali chlorides, whether alone or with the addition of fluorides, could produce a useful autogenous weld, or that if some mixtures of alkali chlorides, or alkali chlorides & fluorides, were useful for welding aluminium, there were other mixtures of either kind that were not useful for the purpose. Pltfs. alleged that the flux used by defts. consisted of a mixture of alkali chlorides with fluorides & sulphates; that the process mentioned by R. & S. was not welding but melting in a crucible; that, in the processes described in the two specifications, the aim was not to weld but to solder; that the directions in pltfs.' specifications had been sufficient to enable a workman, without experience in welding aluminium, to obtain autogenous welds; that welds could be made with fluxes of the kind claimed; & that there were not any mixtures that, as alleged by defts., were not of some use as fluxes:—Held: defts. not having attempted to show that the flux used by them was not an infringing flux, infringement of both the patents had been established; none of the defences had been established; & the patents were valid.—AKT. FÜR AUTOGENE ALUMINIUM SCHWEISSUNG v. LONDON ALUMINIUM CO., LTD. (1922), 39 R. P. C. 296, H. L.

2986. —— On defendant—Defence that patentee not true & first inventor.]—WARD BROTHERS v. HILL & SONS (1903), 20 R. P. C. 189.

2987. Weight of evidence—Question of prior user—Evidence of witnesses ignorant of user—Unavailing against positive evidence.]—R. v. ARKWRIGHT (1785), Dav. Pat. Cas. 61; Bull. N. P. 76; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 64; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 53.

Annotations:—Refd. Hil v. Thompson & Forman (1818), 2 Moore, C. P. 424; Morgan v. Seaward (1836), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 170; Neilson v. Harford (1841), 8 M. & W. 806; Hill v. Evans (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 288; Thomas v. Welch (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 192.

2988. —— —— —— ——.]—MANTON v. MANTON (1815), Dav. Pat. Cas. 333; 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 278.

D. Evidence on Appeal.

See, generally, EVIDENCE, Vol. XXII., pp. 617 et seq.

2989. Whether fresh evidence admissible—Document not included.]—(1) The general rule is, that no other evidence can be given at a rehearing than might have been given at the hearing. Therefore, where a document is not included in the order of course to prove exhibits viva voce at the hearing, or when pltf. has obtained no such order, he cannot obtain an order to prove an exhibit viva voce at a rehearing without a special application.

(2) Exhibit not proved at the hearing, upon special application allowed to be proved viva voce at the rehearing.—LOVELL v. HICKS (1837), 2 Y. & C. Ex. 472; 6 L. J. Ex. Eq. 85; 160 E. R. 482.

2990. ——.]—An action for infringement of two patents was dismissed on the ground that prior user at two places was established. Pltf. appealed, & asked for judgment or for a new trial, on the ground of surprise, improper rejection of evidence, & refusal by the judge to adjourn the hearing. He also moved for leave to adduce further evidence at the hearing of the appeal. The appeal & the motion were dismissed, with costs.—HAGGENMACHER v. WATSON, TODD & CO. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 631, C. A.

2991. —— Where admission would raise fresh issue.]—(1) Deft. in an action for infringement of a patent went to trial on a defence of non-infringement simply; he had previously pleaded want of novelty in the patent, but withdrew the plea. Pltf. obtained an injunction & deft. appealed. Deft. subsequently moved for leave to adduce fresh evidence on the hearing of the appeal as to some anticipation of pltf.'s patent which he alleged that he had discovered since the trial:—Held: the motion must be refused, because to admit the evidence proposed to be adduced would be to allow the patent to be attacked for want of novelty on the appeal when no issue as to novelty had been raised at the trial.

(2) What would be an infringement of the patent for that instrument? To make or sell an instrument which in some independent substantial part of it was the same, that is, substantially the same as either the whole or some independent substantial part of pltf.'s instrument, as described in his patent (BRETT, M.R.).—HINDE v. OSBORNE (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 125; 2 R. P. C. 45, C. A.

2992. —— Where adjournment at trial not asked for.]—B. & B. brought an action against S. for infringement of patent. S. set up the invalidity of the patent. At the trial, W. gave evidence for deft. On cross-examination, he deposed as to the manufacture & sale of a particular machine, not mentioned in the particulars of objections, which machine, as described by him, anticipated pltfs.' patent. Pltfs. did not ask for an adjournment, & the judge held the patent invalid on this anticipation. Pltfs. appealed, & applied for leave to adduce fresh evidence on the appeal as to this machine, which they alleged they had discovered since the trial, & had found not to be such a machine as described by W., & not to be an anticipation of their patent:—Held: leave to adduce fresh evidence be refused.—BARCROFT & BARCROFT v. SMITH (1897), 14 R. P. C. 172.

2993. —— Special circumstances—Or by consent of parties.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. WILD, No. 2590, ante.

2994. —— Consent of other side—& liberty to other side to rebut.]—FELLOWS v. LENCH, LTD. (1916), 34 R. P. C. 45.

Annotation:—Refd. Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. Mullard Radio Valve Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323.

2995. —— Petition alleging surprise—No application at trial on ground of surprise.]—HATMAKER v. NATHAN & CO., LTD. (1919), 36 R. P. C. 231, H. L.

2996. Written statement of expert assessor.]—H. & Sons, Ltd., brought an action against H., Ltd., for infringement of a patent. The patent was upheld by the Ct. of Appeal, & an injunction was awarded against infringement. Defts. then made an alteration in their apparatus, which they contended differentiated it from pltfs.' invention as defined by the Ct. of Appeal. Pltfs. then issued a summons for sequestration & committal against defts. & their managing director for breach of the injunction:—Held: defts.' altered apparatus was an infringement of pltfs.' patent, & an order for sequestration was made with costs. Defts. appealed, but the Ct. of Appeal dismissed the appeal with costs. At the commencement of the hearing of the summons the judge intimated that he required the assistance of an expert assessor, & B. was appointed such assessor by consent of the parties. B. furnished a written statement of his opinion to the judge, & the judge intimated that this statement ought to come before the Ct. of Appeal, & a copy of it was by arrangement supplied to each party. On the hearing of the appeal, the Ct. of Appeal said that in such a case they could not do justice unless they were able to look at what was said by the assessor to the judge, & therefore the written statement of B. could be read, & it was read accordingly.—HATTERSLEY & SONS, LTD. v. HODGSON, LTD. (1905), 22 R. P. C. 229.

---

2986 1. —— On defendant—Defence that patentee not true A patent carries of novelty, sufficiency & utility.—BITULITHIC & CONTRACTING, LTD. v. CANADIAN MINERAL RUBBER CO. & CALGARY (1915), 8 W. W. R. 207; 25 D. L. R. 827.—CAN.

SUB-SECT. 10.—RELIEF.

A. In General.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 32, 32A, 34; 1919 (c. 80), ss. 9, 10, sched.

2997. Ordinary form of relief—Injunction & account.]—LIARDET & ADAMS v. JOHNSON (1780), 1 Y. & C. Ch. Cas. 527, n.; 62 E. R. 1000.

2998. Alternative remedies of patentee—Account against manufacturer—Damages against person using.]—PENN v. BIBBY, PENN v. JACK, PENN v. FERNIE, No. 2545, ante.

2999. —— Damages or account of profits.]—AMERICAN BRAIDED WIRE CO. v. THOMSON, No. 3053, post.

—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 514, Nos. 1190, 1191.

B. Interlocutory Injunction.

See Sub-sect. 4, ante.

C. Perpetual Injunction.

(a) In General.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 32A, 33, 34; 1919 (c. 80), ss. 9, 10, sched.; & generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 361 et seq.

3000. Extent of injunction.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. DAWSON, No. 3267, post.

3001. ——.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. JACKSON, No. 2958, ante.

3002. —— Where some claims only infringed—Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 9.]—MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE CO. v. INTERTYPE CO., LTD. (1926), 42 T. L. R. 682; 43 R. P. C. 239, C. A.

3003. Duration—Duration of letters patent.]—BROWNE v. MOORE, No. 2881, ante.

3004. —— Alternation of specification after injunction obtained—Injunction not enforceable.]—DUDGEON v. THOMSON, No. 2775, ante.

3005. Against whom granted—Master of ship using infringing article.]—ADAIR v. YOUNG, No. 2298, ante.

3006. —— Manufacturer.]—The names of manufacturers should not be inserted in the injunction.—SHOE MACHINERY CO. v. CUTLAN (1895), 12 R. P. C. 342; subsequent proceedings, [1896] 1 Ch. 108, C. A.

Annotation:—Mentd. Welsbach Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. Dowle & London & Suburban Maintenance Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 391.

3007. —— Foreigner—In respect of transactions in own country.]—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. BASLE CHEMICAL WORKS, BINDSCHEDLER, No. 2317, ante.

3008. —— Co-patentee claiming entire interest.]—G., who was the inventor of certain devices for improvements in paper manufacturing machines, entered into certain agreements with M., & patents were taken out in the joint names of G. & M. Disputes having arisen between the parties, M. commenced an action against G. claiming damages, for breach of agreement, a declaration as to the rights of the parties, & an injunction to restrain G. from representing that he was the sole person interested in & having the right to deal with the invention and any patents obtained in respect thereof:—Held: the rights of the parties as to the patents were those stated in the judgment, & a declaration to that effect was made, & an injunction restraining deft. from misrepresentation was granted.—MARX (ROBERT) (TRADING AS MARX (J.) & CO.) v. GALT (1911), 28 R. P. C. 419.

—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 436 et seq.

3009. Form of injunction.]—DE LA RUE v. DICKENSON, No. 2397, ante.

3010. Defendant failing to appear—Injunction granted.]—Pltfs., owners of three patents, dated in 1888, 1889, & 1890 respectively, granted a licence to deft. to use the patents of 1888 & 1889. Pltfs. subsequently commenced an action to restrain deft. from infringing the patent of 1890 & for an account of the royalties due under the licence, & of the sales & profits made in infringement of the three patents. Pltfs. now moved for an injunction & for an account of royalties on affidavit of service, deft. not having entered an appearance. The judge granted an injunction & an account of royalties.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. FERGUSON & NORTH WESTERN CYCLE CO. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 459.

3011. —— ——.]—Where the infringement of letters patent was proved but deft., after delivering a defence, did not appear at the trial to speak to the anticipation by eleven prior specifications referred to in his particulars of objections:—Held: although pltfs. were entitled to an injunction restraining infringement & to the costs of the action, an inquiry as to damages & a certificate of validity ought not to be granted.—WEBB LAMP CO., LTD. v. ATKINSON (TRADING AS THE HEALTH FILTER CO.) (1902), 19 R. P. C. 599.

3012. Suspension of injunction pending appeal.]—The injunction having been dissolved, pltf. to bring an action to establish his patent right & defts. to keep an account in the meanwhile, a verdict having been obtained for pltf. on the trial

---

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 10.—A.

2997 1. Ordinary form of relief—Injunction & account.]—HUNTINGDON v. LUTZ (1863), 13 C. P. 168.—CAN.

2999 1. Alternative remedies of patentee—Damages or account of profits.]—A pltf. cannot pray for an account of profits & for damages. He must elect between the two remedies.—KINMOND v. JACKSON, KINMOND v. LAWRIE, 1 C. L. R. 66.—IND.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 10.—C. (a).

t. Jurisdiction to grant.]—The Ct. of Session has jurisdiction to interdict, at the instance of an English co., the infringement in Scotland of a patent belonging to them by another English co., although no arrestments have been used to found jurisdiction & personal service has not been made on resps.—TONI TYRES, LTD. v. PALMER TYRE, LTD. (1905), 7 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 477; 42 Sc. L. R. 352; 12 S. L. T. 707.—SCOT.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of ment: Sub-sect. 10, C. (a) & (b) i. & ii.

of the action, on application being made to revive the injunction it was objected that defts. intended to move for a new trial & the matter was ordered to stand over till the result of that application should be known; the parties continuing to keep an account in the interim.—HILL v. THOMPSON (1817), 3 Mer. 622; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 235; 36 E. R. 239, L. C.

Annotations:—Mentd. Russell v. Barnaley (1834), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 472; Kay v. Marshall (1836), 1 My. & Cr. 373; Curtis v. Cutts (1839), 8 L. J. Ch. 184; Crane v. Price (1842), 4 Man. & G. 580; Cook v. Pearce (1843), 8 Q. B. 1044; Electric Telegraph Co. v. Nott (1847), 2 Coop. temp. Cott. 41; Newall v. Wilson (1852), 2 De G. M. & G. 282; Harwood v. G. N. Ry. (1860), 2 B. & S. 194; Bovill v. Goodier (1866), 35 Beav. 427; Murray v. Clayton (1872), 20 W. R. 649; Clark v. Adie (1877), 2 App. Cas. 315; Coles v. Baylis & Lewis (1886), 3 R. P. C. 178.

3013. ——.]—CORNISH v. KEY (1837), 1 Jur. 235.

3014. ——.]—A., a patentee, had obtained a verdict at law establishing his right to a patent, & that such right had been infringed by C.; & the Ct. of Q. B. had unanimously discharged a rule nisi for a new trial obtained by C. C. applied, under C. L. P. Act, 1854 (c. 125), s. 35, for leave to appeal, & leave was granted by the Ct. of Q. B. to appeal upon one point only:—Held: notwithstanding the pendency of the appeal, A. was entitled to an injunction against C. to restrain the infringement of the patent, his right having been long enjoyed & established by the verdict of the jury, while an appeal under C. L. P. Act was allowed on grounds of law only, & not on questions of evidence.—LISTER v. LEATHER (1857), 29 L. T. O. S. 141; 5 W. R. 550.

3015. ——.]—PENN v. BIBBY, PENN v. JACK, PENN v. FERNIE, No. 2545, ante.

3016. ——.]—FLOWER v. LLOYD, No. 2906, ante.

3017. ——.]—NORTH BRITISH RUBBER CO., LTD. v. MACINTOSH & CO., LTD., No. 2948, ante.

3018. ——.]—This was an action for infringement of two patents for "an improved method of & means for securing glass plates to walls, ceilings, & the like," & "improved or improvements in connection with fancy or ornamental bricks, tiles, slabs, wallings, ceilings & the like" respectively. The defts. denied infringement & alleged that both the patents were invalid on the ground of (a) anticipation by previous specifications, (b) prior user, (c) want of the subject-matter, & (d) want of utility, & that one patent was also invalid as the specification was insufficient:—Held: the inventions contained in both patents were novel, useful and good subject-matter, & defts. had infringed the second patent. An injunction with an inquiry as to damages was granted accordingly, but the injunction & inquiry were stayed pending appeal on defts. undertaking to keep an account provided they gave security to the satisfaction of pltfs. for the amount of damages.—NATIONAL OPALITE GLAZED BRICK & TILE SYNDICATE, LTD. v. CERALITE SYNDICATE, LTD. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 649.

3019. ——.]—PRESTO GEAR CASE & COMPONENTS CO., LTD. v. SIMPLEX GEAR CASE CO., LTD., No. 2413, ante.

3020. ——.]—LEEDS FORGE CO., LTD. v. DEIGHTON'S PATENT FLUE & TUBE CO., LTD. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 233, C. A.

——.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 517, Nos. 1221–1232.

3021. Injunction granted on plaintiffs' undertaking—Extent of undertaking—Limited by intention of parties.]—The owners of a patent for telephones moved for an interlocutory injunction. Defts. admitted that they were using fifty-two infringing machines, but opposed the injunction on the ground that pltfs. had themselves broken a contract to supply defts. with telephones & were trying to cripple deft.'s business. This pltfs. denied.

An injunction was granted restraining infringement in general terms on pltfs. undertaking to supply defts. with telephones in the place of any the injunction prevented them from using.

Shortly afterwards defts. informed pltfs. that they had discovered they had in use forty-four more telephones to which the injunction would apply, & they asked to be supplied with telephones in the place of these also. Pltfs. contended that the undertaking was not meant to come there, & moved to vary the order, or restrict the undertaking on the ground of misrepresentation:—Held: the undertaking should have been limited by what was in the minds of the parties at the time, namely—the fact that there were fifty-two infringing telephones used by defts., & should not be extended to the additional forty-four.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. TASKER (1888), 5 R. P. C. 628, C. A.

3022. Defendant consenting to injunction—Whether injunction or perpetual undertaking granted.]—DOVER (H. W.) & DOVER, LTD. v. NEW TOWNEND CYCLE CO., LTD. (1903), 21 R. P. C. 135.

3023. —— ——.]—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. SPIVEY (1904), 22 R. P. C. 65.

(b) Grounds for Granting or Refusing.

i. In General.

See, generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 361 et seq.

3024. Patent held valid & infringed—Injunction granted.]—This was an action for infringement of a patent for "Improvements in electricity meters, parts of which improvements are also applicable to dynamo electric generators & motors." Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the invention was not useful, & having regard to the state of common knowledge was not subject-matter, that the amended specification described matters different & larger than those described in the provisional, & was insufficient, & that the invention was not new & had been anticipated by prior publication & prior user:—Held: the defence was not made out & the patent was valid & had been infringed. An injunction was granted, with costs on the higher scale, but the allocator to be given for three-fourths of such costs. Three counsel were certified for.—HOOKHAM v. JOHNSON (1897), 14 R. P. C. 525.

3025. Admission of infringement—Undertaking not to repeat.]—LOSH v. HAGUE, No. 2651, ante.

3026. —— ——.]—In an action to restrain the infringement of a patent deft., on being served with the writ, offered to undertake not to infringe, to give the other relief claimed by the writ, & to pay pltf.'s costs. Notwithstanding this offer pltf. delivered a statement of claim & particulars of breaches. Deft. then delivered a defence; & pltf. moved for judgment in the terms of the statement of claim:—Held: pltf. ought to have accepted the undertaking offered; &, on defts. giving the undertaking, the ct. declined to grant an injunction, giving to pltf. costs down to the date of the offer & the costs of the day's appearance, & to deft. the other costs subsequent to the offer.—JENKINS v. HOPE, [1896] 1 Ch. 278; 65 L. J. Ch. 249; 73 L. T. 705; 44 W. R. 358.

3027. —— ——.] — HUDSON v. CHATTERIS ENGINEERING WORKS CO., No. 3280, post.

3028. New trial pending—Action to try validity.] —Injunction that the validity of a patent might be tried at law; verdict for the patentee, subject to the opinion of the ct. upon a case; the ct. equally divided; the patentee must bring another action; but the ct. on the possession would not impose any terms upon him, nor dissolve the injunction in the mean time.—BOULTON v. BULL (1796), 3 Ves. 140; 30 E. R. 937, L. C.

Annotations:—Refd. Harmer v. Plane (1807), 14 Ves. 130; Hill v. Thompson (1817), 3 Mer. 622; Kay v. Marshall (1836), 1 My. & Cr. 373; Brown v. Annandale (1842), 8 Cl. & Fin. 437; Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 5 T. L. R. 294.

3029. —— ——.]—COLLARD v. ALLISON, No. 2797, ante.

3030. Omission to apply for interlocutory injunction.]—Where a bill is filed by a patentee for an injunction to restrain an alleged infringement of his patent, pltf. is not precluded from asking for an injunction at the hearing, by the fact of his not having applied for it on an interlocutory motion; but the not moving for the injunction imposes on pltf., in such a case, the obligation of making out a clear & unexceptionable title at the hearing; & if he fails in that, & has not previously obtained an injunction, he will not be allowed to use the facts proved in the cause, as evidence of a primâ facie case, giving him a right to further time, for the purpose of enabling him to establish more satisfactorily his legal title.

A patentee brought the cause to a hearing without having previously moved for an injunction, & the ct. being of opinion, that on the evidence then produced an injunction would not have been granted on an interlocutory application, refused to retain the bill, to give the patentee an opportunity of establishing his right at law, but dismissed it with costs.

Even if pltfs. should be entitled to an injunction against the co., they will not be entitled to any account. The bill alleges, that defts. have sold & used, it being the fact that they have sold for no profit, & it not appearing that they have used otherwise than by furnishing the burners to their customers (LORD LANGDALE, M.R.).—BACON v. SPOTTISWOODE, BACON v. JONES (1839), 1 Beav. 382; 3 Jur. 476; 48 E. R. 988; affd., 4 My. & Cr. 433, L. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Betts v. Clifford (1860), 1 John. & H. 74; Patent Type Founding Co. v. Walter (1860), John. 727. Refd. Ward v. Key (1846), 7 L. T. O. S. 338; Smith v. South-Western Ry. (1854), 2 W. R. 310. Mentd. Chappell v. Purday (1843), 1 L. T. O. S. 384; Cory v. Yarmouth & Norwich Ry. (1844), 3 Hare, 593; Ridgway v. Roberts (1844), 4 Hare, 106; Gray v. Liverpool & Bury Ry. (1846), 4 Ry. & Can. Cas. 235; Beaufort v. Morris (1847), 6 Hare, 340; Rodgers v. Nowill (1847), 6 Hare, 325; Norton v. Nichols (1858), 4 K. & J. 475; Davies v. Marshall (No. 1) (1861), 1 Drew. & Sm. 557; Mounsey v. Lonsdale, A.-G. v. Lonsdale (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 557.

3031. Delay in application.] — BRIDSON v. BENECKE, No. 2822, ante.

3032. Threatened infringement sufficient—Actual infringement not necessary.]—FREARSON v. LOE, No. 2293, ante.

Injunction quia timet.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 404 et seq.

3033. Infringement not made out—Evidence inadmissible—Injunction refused.]—In an action by a patentee claiming damages for an infringement & an injunction, deft. denied the infringement. He also denied the validity of the patent alleging, amongst other things, that it had been anticipated by certain specifications.

The ct. upheld the validity of the patent, but granted no injunction or damages on the ground that the evidence as to the alleged infringement was, under the circumstances, not admissible. In a second action between the same parties in respect of the same patent, deft. again denied the validity of the patent, alleging that it had been anticipated by certain specifications which were not before the ct. in the first action, & which he had discovered since that action:—Held: the validity of the patent was res judicata, & the judgment in the first action estopped deft. from again denying the validity of the patent.—SHOE MACHINERY CO. v. CUTLAN, [1896] 1 Ch. 667; 65 L. J. Ch. 314; 74 L. T. 166; 40 Sol. Jo. 336; 13 R. P. C. 141.

Annotation:—Refd. Humphries v. Humphries, [1910] 2 K. B. 531.

3034. ——.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. QUINCEY, No. 3078, post.

3035. One act of infringement sufficient—Presumption of future infringement.] — DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. NEAL, No. 2626, ante.

3036. Breach of agreement—Compromise of prior action.]—R. being the owner of a patent relating to revolving heel pads, & G. having filed a provisional specification relating to the same subject, R. & G. entered into an agreement by way of compromise of an action as follows: that R., admitting G.'s right to manufacture & sell his heel pads in accordance with his provisional specification, would undertake not to interfere with such rights, & would not, further, allege that G.'s heel pads were an infringement of any of R.'s patents or repeat threats to G. or his customers; & that neither party should be at liberty to question the validity of the other's patents for revolving heels or heel pads. R. subsequently brought an action against G. alleging that G. was selling heel pads not protected by the agreement, & claiming a declaration to that effect & an injunction against infringement:—Held: deft. was selling certain heel pads not in accordance with his provisional specification as construed by the parties in the agreement. A declaration was made & an injunction was granted accordingly.—ROBERTS v. GRAYDON (1904), 21 R. P. C. 194.

Plaintiff refusing defendant's undertaking.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 411, Nos. 363, 364.

ii. Expiration of Patent.

3037. Whether ground for refusing injunction.]—The ct. will not interfere by injunction to prevent the violation of an agreement, of which, from the nature of the subject, there could be no decree for a specific performance; as, for instance, to restrain deft. from imparting the secret of an invention which had been the subject of a patent long since expired.—NEWBERY v. JAMES (1817), 1 Carp. Pat. Cas. 367; 2 Mer. 446; 35 E. R. 1011, L. C.

Annotations:—Refd. Green v. Church (1823), 1 L. J. O. S. Ch. 203; Morison v. Moat (1851), 20 L. J. Ch. 513; Leather Cloth Co. v. American Leather Cloth Co. (1863), 4 De G. J. & Sm. 137; James v. James (1872), 20 W. R. 434; Amber Size & Chemical Co. v. Menzel, [1913] 2 Ch. 239.

3038. ——.]—Although a patent has expired, the ct. will grant an injunction to restrain the sale of articles manufactured, in fraud of that patent previous to its expiration.—CROSSLEY v.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 10, C. (b) ii., & (c), & D. (a) (b) i.]

DERBY GAS LIGHT CO. (1834), 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 119; 4 L. J. Ch. 25, L. C.

3039. ——.]—A patent was taken out in France, in 1858, by A., who, in 1861, obtained letters patent for his invention in England. The English patent was assigned by A. to C., who, in January, 1865, obtained, in a suit against E. for infringement, a decree by which the validity of the patent was declared, & an injunction was granted to restrain infringement. In Feb. 1866, a judgment of déchéance was pronounced by the French tribunal at Paris, declaring the French patent, & all rights under it, determined & void from Feb. 1864, on the ground of non-payment by A. from that time of the annual duties imposed upon patentees by the French law. Upon a motion by C., in Jan. 1867, to commit E. for breach of the injunction awarded by the decree of Jan. 1866:—Held: (1) A.'s English patent being identical with his French patent, it was determined in this country, by force of Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 25, from Feb. 1866, the date of the annulment of the French patent by declaration of the French ct., but no sooner; & although such declaration was in terms retrospective, yet, until actually obtained, the English patent remained in force, & there was no error calling for amendment by bill of review in the decree of this ct., by which its validity declared in Jan. 1866. Semble: if the English patent had comprised additional matters not protected by the French patent, the determination of the French patent would only have affected that part of the English patent which was identical, leaving untouched such additional matter; (2) the injunction granted in Jan. 1866, being only co-existent with the patent, expired when the patent was determined, & it was open to E., in answer to the motion to commit, to show that there was no longer any order of the ct. in existence which he could be said to have infringed.—DAW v. ELEY (1867), L. R. 3 Eq. 496; 36 L. J. Ch. 482; 15 L. T. 559.

Annotations:—As to (1) Reld. Murray v. Clayton (1872), 7 Ch. App. 570; Re Blake's Patent (1873), L. R. 4 P. C. 535; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. East London Rubber Co. (1896), 75 L. T. 488.

3040. ——.]—The ct. will not entertain a bill for the mere purpose of giving relief in damages for the infringement of a patent when the bill has been filed so immediately before the expiration of the patent as to render it impossible to have obtained an interlocutory injunction.—BETTS v. GALLAIS (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 392; 22 L. T. 841; 18 W. R. 945.

3041. ——.]—Pltf. was a gunmaker, who manufactured rifles, purchasing some of the different parts from various makers, & putting them together to form a complete rifle, which after having been viewed & approved by him, was stamped with his name & trade mark on the lockplate as a guarantee that it had been examined & approved by him. He also fitted to the rifles levers manufactured by himself, for which he had taken out a patent, & these levers were also marked with his name. Pltf.'s rifles so marked with his name had a great reputation.

Pltf. supplied rifles so marked & guaranteed by him to the Govt., & when they became unsuitable for Govt. purposes, they were taken to pieces & some of the parts mutilated & sold as old stores. Defts. bought some of these old stores, including levers & lockplates with pltf.'s name & trade mark upon them, & fitted them to old rifle barrels, which had been cut down to the size of carbine barrels, & were not suited to the action which formed part of the rifles as passed & guaranteed by pltf. At this time pltf.'s patent for the levers had expired:—Held: defts. might be restrained from making & selling such firearms.—RICHARDS v. WILLIAMSON (1874), 30 L. T. 746; 22 W. R. 765.

3042. ——.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. QUINCEY, No. 3078, post.

3043. ——.]—WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO. v. NEW INCANDESCENT (SUNLIGHT PATENT) GAS LIGHTING CO., [1900] 1 Ch. 843; 69 L. J. Ch. 343; 82 L. T. 293; 48 W. R. 362; 16 T. L. R. 205; 44 Sol. Jo. 262; 17 R. P. C. 237.

Annotations:—Rcld. Atkins & Applegarth v. Castner-Kellner Alkali Co. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 281; Kelvin v. Whyte, Thomson (1907), 25 R. P. C. 177.

3044. ——.]—KANE & PATTISON v. BOYLE (J.) & CO., No. 3080, post.

——.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 418; No. 436.

(c) Breach of Injunction.

See, generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 523 et seq.

3045. What amounts to breach—Sale of component parts—Where sale of machine restrained.]—Semble: an injunction granted to restrain the sale of a complete machine the subject of a patent, will be violated by a sale of the component parts of the machine in such a way that they can easily be put together by any one.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. DALE (1884), 25 Ch. D. 778; 53 L. J. Ch. 295; 50 L. T. 85; 32 W. R. 428; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 227.

Annotations:—Consd. Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Moseley, [1904] 1 Ch. 612. Mentd. D. v. A., [1900] 1 Ch. 484; Re Launder, Launder v. Richards (1908), 98 L. T. 554.

3046. —— Repurchase & resale of articles—In respect of which damages paid—Sale of similar articles.] — Pltfs., owners of several letters patent, obtained by consent an injunction against defts. restraining them from "manufacturing, selling, or exposing for sale 'Victoria Lamps' . . . & from in any other way infringing, etc." Subsequently deft. bought back & resold two "Victoria Lamps," for the sale of which damages had been paid to pltfs., & also sold certain lamps which pltfs. contended were practically "Victoria Lamps," though it was not contended that they infringed any of pltfs.' patents. Pltfs. thereupon moved to commit deft.:—Held: the resale of the "Victoria Lamps" was a technical breach of the order, & the sale of the other lamps was a breach for which deft. ought to be committed to prison.—BROCKIE PELL ARC LAMP, LTD. v. JOHNSON (1900), 17 R. P. C. 697.

3047. Who liable for breach—Directors of company—Where company restrained.]—The owners of a patent for vulcanised india-rubber springs, granted in 1877, brought an action in 1884 for alleged infringement, & asking for an injunction. Deft. co. at first contested the validity of the patent, but ultimately in 1885, a judgment was taken by agreement between the parties that deft. co. should be restrained from infringing the patent of 1877, with a proviso that nothing in the judgment should prejudice the rights of deft. co. to manufacture vulcanised india rubber springs of which pltfs. had been also owners. In Feb. 1888, pltfs. moved to sequestrate the goods of deft. co. & to commit certain of the directors for breach of the injunction contained in the judgment. Defts. denied infringement, alleging that what they were doing was under the protection of the proviso:—Held: the 1866 patent only contemplated the use of india-rubber already vulcanised before being applied to the metal, i.e. in situ, was known & used before 1877, & the 1877 patent claimed that process, & the real meaning of the proviso was to protect defts.' rights to make any of the articles described in the patent of 1866, however much they might resemble articles described in the 1877 patent, so long as the former were made in accordance with the specification & drawings of the 1866 patent, consequently, defts. had committed a breach of the injunction, & a sequestration was ordered to issue against deft. co. & committal against the directors: but if defts. within fourteen days, elected to account for profits, & to deliver up all infringing articles, the sequestration & committal not to issue.—SPENCER v. ANCOATS VALE RUBBER CO., LTD. (1888), 4 T. L. R. 681; 6 R. P. C. 46, C. A.

3048. —— Agent—Where servants & agents restrained — Proof of agency.] — INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO. v. SLUCE, SLUCE & CO. INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO. v. RIEMER (1900), 17 R. P. C. 173, C. A.

—— ——.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 528, 529, Nos. 1362–1370.

Defences to breach.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 525, Nos. 1333, 1334.

Remedies for breach.]—See CONTEMPT OF COURT, Vol. XVI., pp. 1 et seq.; INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 526 et seq.

D. Damages.

(a) In General.

3049. Proof of damage—Infringement by user of machine—Defendants alleging impossibility of purchase from plaintiff.]—Judgment was given in an action for infringement of a patent, by which an inquiry as to damages was ordered. The patent was for "Improvements in mechanical musical instruments." The only infringing instrument complained of was an organ purchased by defts. from a third party, which had been fitted with the patented parts; this organ had been used by defts. in their business on sixteen days. Pltfs. claimed £271 10*s.* damages, being the average profit made by pltfs. by transforming an organ & fitting it with the patented parts. The price charged by pltfs. on sale of their organs so fitted was £500. Defts. filed evidence to show that their means would not have allowed them to pay such a price, therefore that they would not have purchased an organ from pltfs., & contended that pltfs. had suffered no pecuniary loss. The master certified that pltfs. had not sustained any damages by reason of the infringement. Pltfs. applied to vary the master's certificate:—Held: there was no evidence that pltfs. had suffered any pecuniary loss by reason of defts.' user, & the application was dismissed with costs, including the costs of the inquiry.—GAVIOLI v. SHEPHERD (1899), 17 R. P. C. 157.

3050. —— —— —— Inference against defendant.]—Pltfs. were the owners of a patent for "Improvements in machines for inserting metallic fastenings in boots, shoes, & leather work." Deft. purchased & used a machine which in an action for infringement was held to be an infringement, & an inquiry was ordered before the master as to the amount of damages sustained. Defts. contended on the inquiry that under no circumstances would they have acquired pltfs.' machine, & the master found the damages to be one farthing. Pltfs. appealed by summons to vary this finding, & claimed £80 10*s.* damages:—Held: it must be inferred against defts. as wrongdoers that they would have taken pltfs.' machine, & the damages were assessed at £40.—BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. FUSSELL (A.) & SONS, LTD. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 205.

3051. —— Infringement by manufacture—Infringing articles alleged not to compete with patented article.]—Judgment having been given in chambers for pltfs. in an action for infringement of the Welch Patent relating to bicycle tyres, which judgment included an inquiry as to damages, & the master having certified £163 15*s.* as the damages, deft. applied to vary the certificate on the ground that the tyres made by deft. were fitted to low grade machines, &, although infringements, did not come into competition with pltfs.' tyres, which deft. alleged to be too expensive for fitting to low grade machines. Pltfs. alleged that their tyres were fitted to all grades of machines. There was also a conflict of evidence as to the number of infringing tyres:—Held: the damages found by the master did not exceed the proper amount.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. GREEN (1900), 17 R. P. C. 234.

3052. Exemption from liability to damages—Innocent infringers—Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 33.]—WILDERMAN v. BERK (F. W.) & CO., No. 2285, ante.

Alternative to account of profits.]—See Subsect. 10, A., ante.

Damages provable in bankruptcy.]—See BANKRUPTCY, Vol. IV., p. 251, No. 2390.

(b) Loss of Profits as Measure of Damages.

i. In General.

See, generally, DAMAGES, Vol. XVII., pp. 130 et seq.

3053. General rule—Limited to natural & direct consequence of plaintiff's acts.]—A patentee had obtained an injunction restraining defts. from infringing his patent, & an inquiry as to damages. The Official Referee found, as facts, that the patentee had from time to time, in consequence of previous reductions by defts., reduced his own prices down to, but never below, defts.' prices for the time being; that he had done so in order to prevent himself from being driven out of the market by defts.; & that, but for defts.' competition & underselling, the patentee would, subject to certain allowances for probable increase of sales in consequence of the reduction in price & the connection & industry of defts., have made the sales which were made by him & also those made by defts. at his own original prices:—Held: the patentee was entitled to recover by way of damages, subject to the above allowances, not only the sums found to represent the profits on sales made by defts., calculated at the patentee's original prices, but also the loss caused to the patentee by the reduction in price which he was obliged to make in consequence of defts.' illegal competition.—AMERICAN BRAIDED WIRE CO. v. THOMSON (1890), 44 Ch. D. 274; 59 L. J. Ch. 425; 62 L. T. 616; 6 T. L. R. 251; 7 R. P. C. 152, C. A.

Annotations:—Refd. Alexander v. Henry (1895), 12 R. P. C. 360; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Puncture Proof Pneumatic Tyre Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 405 Leeds Forge Co. v.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 10.—D. (a).

a. Setting aside patent — Whether condition precedent to recovery of damages.]—In order to recover damages for infringement of letters patent of invention, it is not necessary to have a subsequent patent, under cover of which the infringement has been made, set aside by sci. fa.—COLLETTE v. LASNIER (1886), 13 S. C. R. 563.—CAN.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 10, D. (b) i. & ii.

Deightons Patent Flue Co. (1907), 25 R. P. C. 209. Mentd. Boyd v. Tootal, Broadhurst, Lee Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 175.

3054. —— Limited to actual pecuniary loss.]—(1) A person who has in his possession, for the purpose of sale, an article which is an infringement of a patent thereby renders himself liable for infringement, however innocently he may have acquired the article, as, for instance, by an innocent purchase from an infringing manufacturer, notwithstanding that he may not have actually exposed it for sale. Exposing a patented article for sale is a "using & vending" of the invention.

Defts. were innocent purchasers in England, from an infringing manufacturer, of twenty-seven articles protected by letters patent for the United Kingdom only, in the Form D, in Sched. I. to the Patents Act, 1883 (c. 57), conferring upon the patentee the sole privilege to "make, use, exercise & vend" the invention. Eight of these articles they sold in England, & the remaining nineteen they sent to their branch business house in Paris, where they were sold to various foreign purchasers:—Held: as, upon the evidence, defts. had purchased the whole twenty-seven for the purpose of sale, that was a "user" of the invention constituting an infringement in respect of the nineteen sent abroad as well as of the eight sold in England, & pltfs. were entitled to damages, in addition to an injunction, to which the defts. had already submitted, in respect of the whole twenty-seven.

(2) The measure to be applied in assessing damages for infringement of a patent is the pecuniary loss actually sustained by the patentee through the infringement, & no more.

Qu.: whether mere transport from place to place of a patented article is an infringement.—BRITISH MOTOR SYNDICATE, LTD. v. TAYLOR & SON, LTD., [1901] 1 Ch. 122; 70 L. J. Ch. 21; 83 L. T. 419; 49 W. R. 183; 17 T. L. R. 17; 45 Sol. Jo. 43; 17 R. P. C. 723, C. A.

Annotation:—As to (1) Refd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Collier (1908), 25 T. L. R. 74.

3055. ——.]—In an action for infringement of a patent it was found that the patent had been infringed & proof was subsequently led as to damages. The Lord Ordinary without stating his reasons assessed the damages at £1,500. Pursuers reclaimed. It was held by the Inner House that while the assessment of damages in such cases was a jury question in the sense that it was a matter for estimation rather than for exact arithmetical calculation, the basis on which such estimation was made should be disclosed by the Lord Ordinary in a reasoned opinion & that if the Ct. of Appeal considered that the amount of damages awarded by him was substantially different from what should have been awarded it was proper for them to vary the award, also that primâ facie in cases of infringement a patentee was entitled in name of damages to the amount of the profit he could have made if he had himself effected the sales actually made by the infringers, but that this primâ facie aspect might be readily altered by other considerations arising on a purview of the whole circumstances, such as the nature of the trade in question, the area of its exercise & the volume of competition. The ct. recalled the Lord Ordinary's interlocutor & awarded £3,000 damages:—Held: the judgment of fact was open to review & the greater number of the machines sold by defenders had been sold on the merits of the pursuers' invention & the amount found by the Inner House was not excessive.—WATSON, LAIDLAW & CO., LTD. v. POTT, CASSELS & WILLIAMSON (1914), 31 R. P. C. 104, H. L.

Annotation:—Refd. British Thomson Houston Co. v. Naamlooze Vennootschap Pope's Metaaldraadlampenfabriek, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. King (1923), 40 R. P. C. 119.

ii. Number of Infringing Articles Sold or Used.

3056. Plaintiff deprived of sale of corresponding number.]—BRITISH MOTOR SYNDICATE, LTD. v. TAYLOR & SON, LTD., No. 3054, ante.

3057. ——.]—The B. T.-H. co., Ltd. commenced an action in respect of infringement of a patent against G., Ltd., H. G. & B. S. G., last two defts. being sued qua directors of G., Ltd. Judgment was entered against defts. by consent & (inter alia) an inquiry as to damages was ordered. On the inquiry an affidavit was made, & oral evidence was given by H. G., from which it appeared that defts. had had in their possession some one thousand four hundred lamps, the majority of which had been sold, but only sixty three lamps sold were proved to be infringements of pltfs. patent. The master assessed the damages at £500. Defts. applied to vary the master's certificate. It was contended on behalf of pltfs. that, since it had been established that H. G. was an untruthful witness, that he had dealt largely in lamps, some of which were infringements of pltfs.' patent, that he had offered such lamps in gross lots on his own billheads in his own handwriting, & that he had withheld from the ct. information which it was his duty to supply, pltfs. were entitled to more than nominal damages & that it was the duty of the master, acting as a jury, to assess such damages as he considered pltfs. had in fact suffered:—Held: to establish by cross-examination that a witness is untruthful does not obviate the necessity of affirmative evidence; pltfs. were entitled to damages only in respect of those lamps which were proved to be infringements; the measure of damage was the loss of profit to the patentee by reason of the patentee having been unable to sell lamps to a number corresponding to that proved to have been sold by the infringer.—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. GOODMAN (LEEDS), LTD. (1925), 42 R. P. C. 75.

3058. —— Allowance for sales due to exertions of defendants—Possibility of selling equal quantity of similar articles.]—In an action by pursuers, who were assignees of a patent for the manufacture of horse shoe nails, for damages caused by the infringement of the patent, it appeared that pursuers did not grant licences, but themselves manufactured & sold the nails made by their patented machinery, & it was admitted that a number of boxes of nails manufactured

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 10.—D. (b) i.

3054 i. General rule—Limited to actual pecuniary loss.]—Actual, & not exemplary damages, will be award for imitating a patented invention.—LAINER v. COLLETTE (1882), 5 L. N. 412.—CAN.

3055 i. ——.]—The measure of damages for infringement of a patent of invention, by using a patented machine purchased of a manufacturer of the invention, & not the inventor, is not the profit which the purchaser derived from the use of the patent. The true measure is the loss suffered by the patentee.—PINKERTON v. COTE (1886), M. L. R. 3 Q. B. 133; 10 L. N. 365.—CAN.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 10.—D. (b) ii.

3056 i. Plaintiff deprived of sale of corresponding number.]—BRITISH INSULATED WIRE CO. v. DUBLIN UNITED TRAMWAYS CO., [1900] 1 I. R. 287.—IR.

in such a manner as to infringe the patent had been sold by defenders :—Held : (1) to the extent by which their trade was injured by defenders' sales pursuers were entitled to substantial damages ; (2) the measure of damage was the amount of profit which they would have made if they had themselves effected such sales, deducting a fair percentage in respect of sales due to the particular exertions of defenders ; (3) the mere possibility that the defenders might have manufactured & sold an equal quantity of similar nails without infringing the patent was no ground for reducing the damages to a nominal sum ; (4) the fact that pursuers had in consequence of the unlawful competition of defenders reduced the price of nails which they had themselves sold did not entitle them to recover additional damages in respect of the reduction in the profits of such sales.—UNITED HORSE-SHOE & NAIL CO., LTD. v. STEWART (1888), 13 App. Cas. 401 ; 59 L. T. 561 ; 5 R. P. C. 260, H. L.

Annotations :—As to (2) Consd. Boyd v. Tootal, Broadhurst, Lee Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 175. Expld. British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122. Apld. Watson, Laidlaw v. Pott Cassels & Williamson (1914), 31 R. P. C. 104. Refd. Alexander v. Heurey (1895), 12 R. P. C. 360 ; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Puncture Proof Pneumatic Tyre Co. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 405. As to (3) Refd. Meters v. Metropolitan Gas Meters (1911), 104 L. T. 113. Generally, Consd. American Braided Wire Co. v. Thomson (1890), 44 Ch. D. 274. Refd. Clement Talbot v. Wilson (1907), 97 L. T. 328 ; Spalding v. Gamage (1918), 35 R. P. C. 101.

3059. —— —— Probable increase of sales by reduced price.]—AMERICAN BRAIDED WIRE CO. v. THOMSON, No. 3053, ante.

3060. —— Rate of compensation accepted from other parties.]—Certain machine makers, owners of a patent for improvements in machinery used in, amongst other trades, cotton spinning, brought an action against persons who had used machines which were infringements of the patent ; they had previously brought a successful action against the manufacturers, but the latter had proved unable to pay damages. The patentees had settled with other infringing users on terms which were less favourable to themselves than those which they claimed in the action. It was proved that no machines had been made by pltfs. for cotton spinning till after the purchase of defts.' machines, that there were other machines of a similar kind in the market, & that pltfs. had not given any notice to defts. that the machines purchased by them were infringements :—Held : (1) damages for infringement might be recovered from either manufacturers or users of a patented article, or from both, until the full damages had been recovered. (2) the measure of the damages was the amount of profit which pltfs. would have made had defts. purchased their machines from them. (3) the rate at which pltfs. had accepted compensation from non-litigants did not govern the assessment of the amount recoverable by action. (4) defts. having purchased infringing machines could not be heard to say that they might have bought others. (5) pltf.'s rights were not affected by their having given no notice to defts. before their purchase of the infringing machines.

(5) A patent had been supported in the House of Lords & the patentee brought a subsequent action against users of infringing machines for damages. Defts. admitted infringement & the validity of the patent, but contested the amount of the claim for damages, & were ordered to pay more than they had offered but less than pltf. claimed :—Held : pltf. was not entitled to solr. & client costs.—BOYD v. TOOTAL, BROADHURST, CO., LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 175.

3061. —— Patentee's establishment charges not increased.]—In an action for infringement of letters patent, judgment was given for pltfs., & an inquiry as to damages was ordered. Pltfs. claimed a sum of £86,970 14*s.* 9*d.* as damages, dividing it under three heads—first, reduction of their prices by reason of defts'. competition ; secondly, loss of profit which they would have made had they made & sold the infringing articles ; &, thirdly, further profits which they would have made, by reason of the fact that the infringing flues could have been made without increased establishment charges, thus increasing the profit per flue. The master certified that pltfs. had sustained damage to the amount of £13,950. Each party issued a summons to vary, defts. asking that the damages should be reduced to £5,000. On the hearing of these applications :—Held : the certificate could not be supported, the amount of damages certified having been arrived at on mistaken reasons ; the certificate must be discharged.—LEEDS FORGE CO., LTD. v. DEIGHTON'S PATENT FLUE CO., LTD. (1907), 25 R. P. C. 209.

3062. —— Sale of article containing infringing parts—Whether loss assessed on profit on parts or on whole article.]—Judgment was given in an action for infringement of two letters patent for an injunction, and an inquiry as to damages. The patents related to a carburetter & to control mechanism of motor cars. Defts. had imported into this country one car containing the patented parts. On the inquiry pltfs. filed evidence that they did not sell or licence the sale of these parts separately, but only sold cars, & they claimed the amount of the profit on a sale by them of a car. Defts. filed evidence that the price of a similar carburetter & control mechanism would not exceed the sum of £10, & paid £20 into ct. The master certified £10 as the amount of pltfs.' damages. Pltfs. applied to vary the certificate : —Held : the measure of damages was the loss of profit which pltfs. suffered by not selling the accessories in question, & the amount given by the master more than compensated pltfs. for the loss of profit which they sustained.—CLEMENT TALBOT, LTD. v. WILSON (1908), 26 R. P. C. 467, C. A.

Annotation :—Consd. Meters v. Metropolitan Gas Meters (1911), 104 L. T. 113.

3063. —— —— ——.]—Defts. sold nineteen thousand five hundred prepayment gas meters which contained two parts that constituted infringements of the two letters patent of pltfs. The profit on the infringing parts represented about one forty-fourth of the whole profit on a meter. Under a judgment by consent an inquiry was directed as to what damages, if any, pltfs. had sustained by defts.' infringements. The master certified that the profit lost by pltfs. must be considered to be the profit on the sale of the whole of each meter. He was of opinion that five thousand more meters would have been sold by pltfs. but for defts.' sale of infringing meters ; & he assessed the damages for loss of profit under this head at 13*s.* 4*d.* per meter, £3,333 6*s.* 8*d.*, & for loss of profit on actual sales by pltfs. in consequence of a reduction in prices from defts.' competition at £1,500. The total was therefore £4,833 6*s.* 8*d.* The defts. applied to vary the master's certificate by giving pltfs. only nominal damages ; & pltfs. applied to increase the number of meters they would have sold to ten thousand :—Held : the master had rightly certified that the profit on the whole meter was the proper factor to be taken into calculation,

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 10, D. (b) ii., iii. & iv., & (c).]

& had rightly fixed the profit on the five thousand meters at 13*s.* 4*d.* per meter; but that figure ought on the evidence to be reduced to three thousand five hundred, & the damages to £2,333 6*s.* 8*d.*; & the finding that pltfs.' loss on actual sales were £1,500 ought not to be disturbed. —METERS, LTD. v. METROPOLITAN GAS METERS, LTD. (1911), 104 L. T. 113; 28 R. P. C. 157.

Annotations:—Refd. Wason Laidlaw v. Pott Casels & Williamson (1914), 31 R. P. C. 104. Mentd. Akt. für Autogene Aluminium Schweissung v. London Aluminium Co. (No. 2) (1923), 40 R. P. C. 107.

iii. Reduction of Price by Illegal Competition.

3064. Whether considered in assessing damages.] —UNITED HORSE-SHOE & NAIL CO., LTD. v. STEWART, No. 3058, ante.

3065. ——.] — LEEDS FORGE CO., LTD. v. DEIGHTON'S PATENT FLUE CO., LTD., No. 3061, ante.

3066. ——.]—METERS, LTD. v. METROPOLITAN GAS METERS, LTD., No. 3063, ante.

3067. —— Probable increase of sales in consequence of reduction—Connection & industry of defendants.]—AMERICAN BRAIDED WIRE CO. v. THOMSON, No. 3053, ante.

3068. —— Price reduced by competing tender.]—In an action for infringement of a patent judgment was given by consent for an injunction & for an inquiry as to damages. The patent, No. 6210 of 1896 related to a machine for charging iron furnaces. D. L. & co. requiring a machine asked for tenders from pltfs. & defts. Pltfs.' price for a machine with a double movement made under the above-mentioned patent was £2,750. Defts. were a German firm making machines of the same double movement in Germany. This they were entitled to do, there being no corresponding German patent, & they offered to supply such a machine for £2,250. Owing to this tender of defts. pltfs. were only able to get the order from D. L. & co. by reducing their price from £2,750 to £2,375. Upon the inquiry as to damages the master certified that pltfs. had suffered £250 damages. Defts. applied to have the certificate discharged or varied:—Held: as no one but pltfs. could supply this machine, & as the purchasers required it, & as upon the evidence the only ground urged for reducing the price of £2,750 was the competing tender, pltfs. had established that they had suffered at least £250 damages by reason of the conduct of defts.—WELLMAN, SEAVER & HEAD, LTD. v. BURSTINGHAUS & CO. LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 326.

iv. Loss of Royalties.

3069. Damages assessed on loss of royalties—Plaintiffs manufacturers—Accustomed to grant licences—Infringers charged higher royalties.]—A patentee of an invention applicable to part of a machine, who is himself a manufacturer, has been in the habit of licencing the use of his invention by other manufacturers on payment of a fixed royalty for each machine, having obtained against an infringing manufacturer a decree, amongst other things, for damages, "by reason of the user or vendor" of the invention, is not entitled to claim, by way of damages, any sum beyond the ordinary royalty. Hence he is not entitled to claim, in addition to his ordinary royalty, a manufacturing profit; &, à fortiori, not such a manufacturing profit as he would have made if every unlicenced machine had been sent to him to be fitted with the invention. Secus, if he had been in the habit of charging infringers with a higher royalty than ordinary licencees. Pltf. having, in another suit, obtained a decree against certain wrongful users, not being manufacturers, of unlicenced machines fitted by deft. with his invention, had in some instances been paid his ordinary royalty by such users: —Held: in every such instance, no further royalty was payable by the manufacturer.—PENN v. JACK (1867), L. R. 5 Eq. 81; 37 L. J. Ch. 136; 17 L. T. 407; 32 J. P. 164; 16 W. R. 243.

Annotations:—Consd. Boyd v. Tootal, Broadhurst, Lee (1894), 11 R. P. C. 185. Dbtd. British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122. Consd. Watson, Laidlow v. Pott, Cassels & Williamson (1914), 31 R. P. C. 104; Akt. Für Autogene Aluminium Schweissung v. London Aluminium Co. (No. 2) (1923), 40 R. P. C. 107. Refd. Clement Talbot v. Wilson (1907), 97 L. T. 328; Meters v. Metropolitan Gas Meters (1911), 104 L. T. 113.

3070. —— ——.]—Judgment having been recovered for infringement of a patent, an inquiry as to damages was directed. It appeared that pltfs.' usual practice was not to sell, but to let out the patented art. at a rental or royalty:—Held: (1) the measure of damages was the profit rental of the article during the entire period from the time when it came into the possession of the infringer until the assessment of the damages or the date of its delivery up; & it was immaterial, for the purposes of assessment, whether the article had or had not been in actual use during any portion of that period; (2) defts. were not entitled to set off against the damages the value of any infringing article delivered up under the judgment of the ct., nor to set off any portion of an agreed sum for damages for infringement recovered by pltfs. in a previous action against the manufacturer from whom defts. bought the article, although the period in respect of the rental payable by defts. as damages commenced at a date antecedent to the commencement of the action against the manufacturer; but, if the damages, recovered by pltfs. from the manufacturer, instead of being an agreed sum, had been a sum representing the full rental or royalty, defts. would have been entitled to a set-off.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO., LTD. v. WALKER & OLIVER (1886), 56 L. T. 508; 4 R. P. C. 63.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Naamlooze Vennootschap Pope's Metaaldraadlampenfabriek, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth Peebles, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. King (1923), 40 R. P. C. 119. Generally, Refd. Boyd v. Tootal, Broadhurst, Lee Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 175.

3071. —— —— Defendant supplying low grade article—Assumption that orders would have gone to licencees.]—An inquiry as to damages having been ordered in a judgment by consent in an action for infringement of a patent relating to bicycle tyres, & the master having made his certificate, defts. moved to reduce the damages found by the master. They contended that the evidence showed that the damages ought not to be assessed on the basis that the orders given to them for tyres would have gone to pltfs., inasmuch as the infringing tyres had been bought for second-grade bicycles, & that pltfs.' tyres would not have been PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 10.—D. (b) iv.

b. Damages assessed on loss of royalties—What must be considered.]—In cases of infringement damages are not to be assessed solely on the basis of royalty or licence unless there is evidence that in similar circumstances certain defined prices have been charged & paid. It is proper to consider what was charged & paid in other circumstances as one of the factors in assessing damages, but it is improper to treat it as the sole determining factor.—CONSOLIDATED WAFER CO. v. INTERNATIONAL CONE CO., [1926] 4 D. L. R. 74; 59 O. L. R. 205.—CAN.

c. —— ——.]—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO. v. CHARLESWORTH fitted to such machines, but that pltfs. were only entitled to damages on the basis that the orders would have gone to the licencees of pltfs., from whom pltfs. would have been entitled to royalties: —Held: the proper measure of damages was the actual loss caused to pltfs., & the sum awarded correctly represented this loss.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. PUNCTURE PROOF PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 209.

Annotations:—Apprvd. British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, [1901] 1 Ch. 122. Reld. Meters v. Metropolitan Gas Meters (1911), 104 L. T. 113; Spalding v. Gamage (1918), 35 R. P. C. 101; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Naamlooze Vennootschap Pope's Metaaldraadlampenfabriek, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth Peebles, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. King (1923), 40 R. P. C. 119.

3072. —— Plaintiffs licencors.]—In an action for infringement of a patent an injunction was granted, & an inquiry as to damages directed. The chief clerk, by his certificate, found £1,080 as the amount of the damages. Defts. had sold nine infringing machines. It appeared that the market value of the patented machines during the period of infringement was between £170 & £180, & the cost of manufacture about 50 guineas. The chief clerk took about £120 as the difference between the value & the cost of manufacture, & gave pltfs. nine times that amount, i.e. £1,080. Defts. moved to vary the certificate by finding that pltfs. had sustained no damage by defts.' infringement. The judge required further evidence than that before the chief clerk, & such evidence was adduced. It appeared that pltfs. only sold their machines for export, & that at home they issued them under licences:—Held: the amount of damages ought to be ascertained by inquiring what amount of profits from licences pltfs. had been deprived of by the acts of defts., & under the circumstances the amount was £650, & the damages ought to be assessed at that sum, & the certificate varied accordingly.—ENGLISH & AMERICAN MACHINERY CO. v. UNION BOOT & SHOE MACHINE CO. (1895), 13 R. P. C. 64.

Annotation:—Reld. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Naamlooze Vennootschap Pope's Metaaldraadlampenfabriek, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth Peebles, British Thomson-Houston Co. v. King (1923), 40 R. P. C. 119.

3073. —— —— Prohibited conditions in licence.]—In an action for the infringement of two patents for welding aluminium by the use of certain fluxes it was held that the patents were valid & had been infringed. On the inquiry as to damages it was found by the master that (a) the amount of the damages was £716 19*s.* 8*d.*, calculated on a basis of a royalty of 4½ per cent. of the selling price of the articles manufactured by defts.; (b) damages ought not to be allowed in respect of goods welded during the existence of licences, not still in force at the date of the commencement of the action, containing conditions prohibited under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 38, & (c) damages ought not to be allowed in respect of articles supplied for use by the govt. Pltfs. applied to vary the certificate by substituting £1,506 15*s.* 1*d.* for £716 19*s.* 8*d.*; striking out the paragraph of the certificate relating to (b) above; & assessing the damages under head (c) at a sum stated. At the hearing of the application the Crown was represented, & it was admitted that the Crown had indemnified defts. in respect of all articles referred to under head (c). Pltfs. contended that there was not any reason for adopting the rate of 4½ per cent., & that the damages ought to be based on the royalty payable under a licence that had been granted, & that pltfs. were entitled to damages for infringements during the existence of the licences containing the prohibited conditions:—Held: pltfs. were not manufacturers, but only licencors, &, in such a case, it would be proper to award damages on the basis of the royalties provided for by the licence referred to.—AKT. FÜR AUTOGENE ALUMINIUM SCHWEISSUNG v. LONDON ALUMINIUM CO., LTD. (NO. 2) (1923), 40 R. P. C. 107.

(c) Inquiry as to Damages.

See, generally, INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 521 et seq.

3074. Whether granted—Judgment by default.]—WEBB LAMP CO., LTD. v. ATKINSON (TRADING AS THE HEALTH FILTER CO.), No. 3011, ante.

3075. —— Only one case of infringement.]—TRUE & VARIABLE ELECTRIC LAMP SYNDICATE v. BRYANT TRADING SYNDICATE. No. 3187, post.

3076. Stay of inquiry pending appeal—On undertaking not to sell.]—A patent having been granted to S. & others for "An improved apparatus for the electrical deposition of metals," the E. co., in whom the patent was vested, brought an action for infringement. Defts.' apparatus was constructed under a subsequent patent. Defts. raised the usual defences, &, among others, anticipation by a specification of Z.:—Held: (1) the patent was valid, & Z.'s specification was no anticipation, & defts. had infringed the first claim & probably also the third, & judgment was given for pltfs. for an injunction; (2) defts., although they used, had not sold, any infringing apparatus, & on their undertaking not to sell, pending an appeal, the inquiry as to damages was reserved. —ELECTROLYTIC PLATING APPARATUS CO., LTD. v. EVANS & SON (1900), 17 R. P. C. 733.

3077. —— Absence of special reasons—Consent of plaintiff.]—Stay of inquiry as to damages refused. In the absence of special reasons a stay of the inquiry pending an appeal will not be granted unless pltf. consents.—EVANS, TAUNTON (J. & J.), LTD. v. HOSKINS & SEWELL, LTD. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 675.

3078. Fact of infringement clear — Several patents—No proof as to which infringed—Inquiry directed.]—(1) In an action by patentees of an article exclusively manufactured abroad, claiming an injunction & damages for the user of the patented article in England, the only evidence of infringement adduced was that of an expert, who deposed that pltfs.' patents related to three separate & distinct modes of producing the article in question; that it was not possible to tell, from an examination of any particular parcel, under which process it had been produced, but that it must have been produced under one or other of these three processes. Deft. called no evidence, & claimed a nonsuit:—Held: pltfs. were not

---

PEEBLES & CO., [1923] S. C. 599.—SCOT.

3072 i. —— Plaintiffs licencors.]—Held: pltf. had been in the habit of licensing the use of his invention, the loss of the amount paid for such license was the measure of damages.—SHEEN v. JOHNSON (1870), I. L. R. 2 All. 368.—IND.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 10.—D. (c).

d. Whether granted.] — When the pltf. in an action for infringement of a patent obtains a decree, he is entitled to an inquiry as to damages, if he prefers that to an inquiry as to profits, unless the evidence at the hearing has established that no sensible damage can have been sustained.—WELSBACH LIGHT CO. OF AUSTRALASIA, LTD. v. LOCHHEAD (1904), 24 N. Z. L. R. 51.—N.Z.

e. Limitation of inquiry.] — Held: where the language of the decree is unambiguous, the allegations in the entitled to any injunction, as they had not proved that any particular patent had been infringed, & one of the patents had expired before the hearing.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 10, D. (c), & E.]

(2) On the question of damages, the ct. found as a fact that pltfs.' patents covered every possible mode of producing the patented article, & that one of these patents must therefore have been infringed, & that the nature & extent of the wrong done to pltfs. did not depend upon the particular patent infringed. An inquiry was therefore directed, without mentioning any particular patent, whether any & what damages had been sustained by pltfs. by reason of the user by deft. of the patented article.

Semble: it is not always essential to establish the particular alternative under which relief is claimed, provided that the rights of pltf. & the obligations of deft. are identical under each of the alternatives, & that the alternatives exhaust every possible contingency & are mutually exclusive. — SACCHARIN CORPN. LTD. v. QUINCEY, [1900] 2 Ch. 246; 69 L. J. Ch. 530; 82 L. T. 792; 64 J. P. 633; 16 T. L. R. 384.

Annotations:—As to (2) Consd. Saccharin Corpn. v. Dawson (1902), 46 Sol. Jo. 281. Distd. Saccharin Corpn. v. Wild, [1903] 1 Ch. 410.

3079. Limitation of inquiry—To admitted infringements—Motion for judgment on admissions.]—Where in an action for infringement of a patent, deft. in the defence admitted certain instances of infringement, but denied that he had committed any others, & pltf. thereupon moved for judgment upon the admissions in the pleadings:—Held: pltf. was entitled to an inquiry as to damages arising from the admitted infringements only.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. DONOHOE (1886), 31 Ch. D. 399; 55 L. J. Ch. 480; 54 L. T. 34; 34 W. R. 326; 2 T. L. R. 331; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 227, C. A.

3080. —— To exclude infringements before specification amended.]—The owners of a patent for "Improvements in & appertaining to the manufacture of candy" brought an action for infringement. The invention consisted in making candy, technically known as "hard crack" or "stick" candy, in a vacuum pan. The specification had been amended prior to the action. Deft. did not deny infringement, but contended that the patent was bad because of prior publication, want of subject-matter, misleading & untrue statements in the specification, & insufficiency:—Held: the patent was valid. Pltfs. were given damages; but, as the patent had expired before the date of the judgment, an injunction was not granted. A certificate of validity of the patent was granted. Pltfs. moved for an order that the damages be assessed in respect of the use of the invention prior to the amendment of the specification as well as subsequent thereto. The motion was refused with costs.—KANE & PATTISON v. BOYLE (J.) & Co. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 325.

3081. —— ——.]—The owners of a patent for "improvements in machines for inserting metallic fastenings in boots, shoes, & leather work," brought an action for infringement in which defts. relied at the trial upon the invalidity of the patent on three grounds: first, that the specification did not sufficiently distinguish between what was old & what was new; secondly, that as to claim 5 of the specification there was no subject-matter, there being merely an aggregation of old parts performing no new function in combination; & thirdly, that claim 12 claimed an invention which would not work & was useless. The last-named objection was founded on a mistake in one of the drawings showing a rod as rigid, & it was objected that, if the rod were rigid, the length of wire cut off would not be accommodated to the varying thickness of the leather used:—Held: (1) the combination as a whole was claimed, & there was a new combination producing an old result in a new & more profitable manner, & it was not essential to the validity of the patent to point out the novelty of any element in the combination; (2) there was good subject-matter in claim 5; & although there was a slip in the drawings of the rod, the portion of the machine in which this occurred was not the subject of the patent, & a competent workman would have introduced a known arrangement to correct the error; (3) the patent, which had already expired, was valid; but the specification having been amended, & the ct. not being satisfied that the original claims were framed in good faith & with reasonable skill & knowledge, an inquiry as to damages was granted so as to exclude damages for any infringement anterior to the amendment of the specification.—BRITISH UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. FUSSELL (A.) & SONS, LTD. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 631, C. A.

Annotations:—Apld. Lynch & Wilson v. Phillips (1909), 26 R. P. C. 389. Refd. Read v. Stella Conduit Co. (1916), 33 R. P. C. 191.

Election between enquiry & account of profits.]—See Sub-sect. 10, A., ante.

Inquiry on discontinuance of action.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 521, No. 1276.

Discovery on inquiry as to damages.]—See DISCOVERY, Vol. XVIII., p. 175, No. 1283.

E. Account of Profits.

See, now, Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 34; 1919 (c. 80), s. 10, sched.

3082. Right to account—Proof of profits made—Necessity for.]—BACON v. SPOTTISWOODE, BACON v. JONES, No. 3030, ante.

3083. —— —— ——.]—Where, after verdict in an action for the infringement of a patent, an order for an injunction & for an account to be taken of profits made by deft. is applied for under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 42, the ct. will not make an order for an injunction until it be shown that deft., after the verdict, has continued to infringe the patent; & before they will make an order for an account of profits to be taken, a strong case must be established that deft. has made profits by the infringement of the patent.—LISTER v. EASTWOOD (1855), 3 C. L. R. 1249.

3084. —— Loss by delay—Though action pending against one of several infringers.]—The right to a decree in equity for an account of the profits made by the manufacture & use of articles in infringement of a patent is incident to the right to an injunction to restrain future infringements; & where no case is made for the injunction the account will not be decreed. The owners of a patent for a peculiar mode of manufacturing iron wheels for railway carriages having discovered that several railway cos. were violating their patent brought an action for damages against one of such cos. only, but did not in any way give pleadings shall not be taken into account in the inquiry as to damages. —SMITH v. GOLDIE (1885), 11 P. R. 24. —CAN.

---

... of proof.]—On an enquiry whether any & what damage has accrued to the pltf. from the unlawful use by deft. of his patent the onus lies on pltf. of proving some special damage such as loss of custom & oth... — HARVEY v. MURRAY (1879), L. R. 183.—NFLD.

notice to the other cos. to discontinue their infringements of pltf.'s right. In the action the validity of the patent was disputed, & it was not decided until three years after the patent had expired, when a verdict was given for pltfs. with large damages. Thereupon pltfs. filed a bill for an account of profits, & an injunction against another of the cos. who had infringed their patent, complaining of acts done nine years before :— Held : the delay was not excused by the pendency of the action, but was fatal to pltfs.' case.— SMITH v. LONDON & SOUTH WESTERN RY. CO. (1854), Kay, 408 ; Macr. 209 ; 2 Eq. Rep. 428 ; 23 L. J. Ch. 562 ; 23 L. T. O. S. 10 ; 2 W. R. 310 ; 69 E. R. 173.

Annotations :—Refd. Price's Patent Candle Co. v. Bauwen's Patent Co. (1858), 4 K. & J. 727 ; Saxby v. Easterbrook (1872), L. R. 7 Exch. 207.

3085. —— Where damages recovered.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent, pltf. obtained a verdict for 40*s.* damages. Afterwards he obtained a rule, absolute in the first instance, ordering deft. to render an account of all the articles which he had before & since the commencement of the action made or sold in breach of pltf.'s patent, & pay to pltf. the moneys received for such articles. A rule nisi was obtained, on part of deft., to discharge this rule. By the affidavits it appeared that deft. had made profits by the sale of the pirated articles since the commencement of the action ; but that he had discontinued the manufacture since the verdict & before pltf.'s rule was obtained ; & it appeared that, shortly after the action commenced, pltf.'s attorney had told the other side that pltf. would take only nominal damages, & would, if necessary, file a bill in equity to obtain an account of the profits :—Held : (1) the action was still pending, so as to give the ct. jurisdiction under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 42 ; (2) there having been a verdict with damages, & there being no continuing piracy such as would give ground for an injunction, no account of the profits before action could be ordered : but, deft. might be considered a trustee for pltf. of those profits which he had made, pending the action, after notice that pltf. would require them ; & an account of those profits might be ordered.— HOLLAND v. FOX (1854), 3 E. & B. 977 ; 2 C. L. R. 1576 ; 23 L. J. Q. B. 357 ; 23 L. T. O. S. 230 ; 1 Jur. N. S. 13 ; 2 W. R. 558 ; 118 E. R. 1407.

Annotations :—Refd. Patent Type Founding Co. v. Lloyd, Same v. Walter (1860), 5 H. & N. 192 ; Elwood v. Christy (1865), 18 C. B. N. S. 494.

3086. —— After expiry of patent—Where no doubt as to validity.]—F. obtained a patent for umbrella ribs, & enjoyed it uninterruptedly to its conclusion, with the exception of an action for damages by H., another patentee, who recovered £300 & a manufacture & sale of the ribs by D. & D. six months before it expired. F. filed a bill & restrained D. & D., & the cause came to a hearing nine months after the expiration of the patent :—Held : the ct. could direct an account, notwithstanding the expiration of the patent ; but it must be a case where there was no doubt as to its validity.—FOX v. DELLESTABLE, FOX v. JONES (1866), 15 W. R. 194.

Annotation :—Refd. Poupard v. Fardell (1869), 21 L. T. 696.

3087. —— Infringement of minor details.]—Pltfs. were owners in England of a patent for phonographs granted to E., who remained possessed of an identical patent in America. Deft. purchased two of E.'s machines made abroad, & hearing of litigation concerning the patent, according to his evidence, he altered those two machines, so that in his opinion they were no longer infringements of the patent, by removing the recording point from the diaphragm, but he did not remove certain minor details of the machine which were covered by the patent. He used these machines, so altered, for public exhibition. Pltfs. brought an action for infringement & obtained an interlocutory injunction. The whole patent, including the claims for the minor details, had been held to be valid in an action decided just before the commencement of this action. After the granting of the interlocutory injunction, deft. removed the other infringing details. The action now came on for trial :— Held : deft. had infringed by using the minor details ; pltfs. were entitled to an injunction & an account of profits, with costs up to the trial.— EDISON BELL PHONOGRAPH CORPN., LTD. v. LONDON PHONOGRAPH CO. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 471.

Alternative to damages.]—See Sub-sect. 10, A.,

Dependent on right to injunction.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 514, Nos. 1188, 1189.

3088. Review of master's report.]—CROSLEY v. DERBY GAS LIGHT CO. (1838), 3 My. & Cr. 428 ; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 120, n. ; 3 Jur. 692 ; 40 E. R. 992, L. C.

Annotations :—Distd. Bacon v. Spottiswoode (1839), 1 Beav. 382. Refd. Price's Patent Candle Co. v. Bauwen's Patent Candle Co. (1858), 4 K. & J. 727.

3089. Multiplicity of suits in respect of same patent—Prior decision as to validity.]—FOXWELL v. WEBSTER, No. 2864, ante.

3090. Accounts in Privy Council proceedings—Necessity for filing.]—The Judicial Committee will refuse to enter upon accounts in a patent case if they have not been filed as required by r. 9.—Re JOHNSON'S & ATKINSON'S PATENTS (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 87, P. C.

3091. Action on amended specification—Account since date of amendment.]—WENHAM & CO. v. CARPENTER, TODD & CO. (1887), 5 R. P. C. 68.

3092. How profits assessed—Profits made by use of patent—Compared with means defendants would probably have used instead—Not with those used before infringement.]—In an action for infringement of a patent, judgment was given for pltf., & he elected to take an account of profits. On the application of pltf., it was ordered that defts. should give information as to the profits they had made immediately before they commenced to use pltf.'s invention, which was an appliance for turning large ingots. Defts. had been using manual labour previously. After they were restrained from infringing, they used a modification of pltf.'s invention, which was not an infringement. The Chief Clerk found the amount of profits was £250, basing his finding on a comparison with the appliance subsequently used by defts., on the ground that just before pltf.'s invention, their works were in an unfinished state, & that therefore manual labour was not the true test, but he found that if manual labour was to be taken as the test, that the profits were

---

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 10.—E.

3085 i. Right to account—Where damages recovered.]—Every sale of a machine infringing a patent gives the owner of the patent a separate right to recover profits made on the sale of that machine, & he has a right to an account showing details of the sale & cost of each individual machine.—LEPLASTRIER & CO., LTD. v. ARMSTRONG-HOLLAND, LTD. (1926), 26 S. R. N. S. W. 585 ; 43 N. S. W. W. N. 195.—AUS.

g. —— Period of limitation.]—In a suit for an account of profits obtained by the infringement of an

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 10, E., F. & G. (a) & (b).]

£2,000, basing his finding on the books of defts. It was held at the trial that the comparison had been directed to be made by his previous order with what defts. had been doing before they used pltf.'s invention, & that the Chief Clerk had taken, therefore, a wrong basis. The judge discharged the certificate & referred the inquiry to an official referee. Defts. having appealed, pltf. submitted that the test was with manual labour, but that the larger sum of £2,000 found by the Chief Clerk was not large enough, & that defts.' books were not accurate. The Ct. of Appeal laid down, during the argument, that the true test of comparison was with what defts. would probably have used instead of the invention, looking at all the circumstances of the case. The ct. then went into the details to save a further reference back, & the parties consented to leave all matters in difference to the ct. to determine. The Ct. of Appeal by their judgment, after expressing an opinion that an account of profits was extremely difficult to work out, & should rarely be chosen, discharged the order of the judge below & the certificate, & ordered defts. to pay pltf. £3,000 in satisfaction of all demands with all costs.—SIDDELL v. VICKERS (1892), 9 R. P. C. 152, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Ehrlich v. Ihlee & Sankey (1888), 4 T. L. R. 337.

3093. —— Rejection of entries in book tendered by defendant.]—The A. co., as owners of certain letters patent, brought an action for royalties against F., & an account was ordered. On taking the account, deft. delivered an account based on the entries in a certain book, but the Registrar treated the book as not reliable, & found deft. liable to pay a balance of £85 7*s.* 10*d.* & based his finding on certain estimated calculations which he made. The Vice-Chancellor of the County Palatine refused to interfere with this finding, & deft. appealed to the Ct. of Appeal:—Held: upon the evidence, the finding was right, & the appeal was dismissed, with costs.

I think we cannot say that the Registrar was wrong in arriving at the result that deft. had not accounted for all the hats in respect of which he ought to pay a licence & I am not called upon to criticise too closely the particular figure at which he has arrived (LORD RUSSELL, C.J.).—ALMA VENEER FELT CO., LTD. v. FISHER (1896), 14 R. P. C. 159, C. A.

Discovery in account of profits.]—See DISCOVERY, Vol. XVIII., pp. 67, 216, Nos. 249, 252, 1634–1636.

F. Delivery up or Destruction of Infringing Articles.

3094. Discretion of court to grant or refuse.]—MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE CO. v. INTERTYPE CO., LTD., No. 3002, ante.

3095. Purpose of order—To protect patentee—Not to punish infringer.]—MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE CO. v. INTERTYPE CO., LTD., No. 3002, ante.

3096. Destruction may be ordered—Though property in infringer.]—VAVASSEUR v. KRUPP, No. 2556, ante.

3098. —— Nature of invention.]—I am not disposed to make any order for the delivery or destruction of the appliances used by the deft. in infringement of pltf.'s patent. This I say, not because of the circumstances of the case, but by reason of the nature of the invention (KEKEWICH, J.).—SIDDELL v. VICKERS, SONS & CO., LTD. (1887), as reported in 5 R. P. C. 81; on appeal (1888), 39 Ch. D. p. 100, C. A.; sub nom. VICKERS, SONS & CO. v. SIDDELL (1890), 15 App. Cas. 496, H. L.

Annotations:—Mentd. Ehrlich v. Ihlee & Sankey (1888), 4 T. L. R. 337; Kelly v. Heathman (1890), 45 Ch. D. 256; Longbottom v. Shaw (1891), 8 R. P. C. 333; Gadd v. Manchester Corpn. (1892), 9 T. L. R. 42; Nuttall v. Hargreaves, [1892] 1 Ch. 23; Savage v. Harris (1896), 12 T. L. R. 187; Taylor & Scott v. Arnand & Northern Press & Engineering Co. (1900), 18 R. P. C. 53; Case v. Cressy (1901), 17 R. P. C. 255; Tubes v. Perfecta Seamless Steel Tube Co. (1902), 20 R. P. C. 77; Patent Exploitation v. Siemens (1904), 21 R. P. C. 541; Auster v. Perfecta Motor Equipments (1924), 41 R. P. C. 482; Benton & Stone v. Denston (1925), 42 R. P. C. 284; Mellor v. Beardmore (1926), 43 R. P. C. 361.

3099. When order may be made—On motion to vary the minutes.]—EDISON & SWAN UNITED ELECTRIC LIGHT CO. v. HOILAND, No. 2561, ante.

3100. Order may be limited—To infringing parts only.]—EDISON BELL PHONOGRAPH CORPN., LTD. v. SMITH & YOUNG (1894), 11 R. P. C. 389; 10 T. L. R. 522, C. A.

Annotations:—Reid. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95. Mentd. Hatmaker v. Nathan (1917), 35 R. P. C. 61.

3101. —— ——.]—MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE CO. v. INTERTYPE CO., LTD., No. 3002, ante.

3102. Order for delivery up—Not varied to order for destruction—On subsequent motion.]—This was a motion to vary minutes of judgment delivered on June 17, 1911, whereby defts. in the action were ordered, among other things, to make & file within fourteen days after service of the judgment upon them a full & sufficient affidavit, to be made by the secretary or other proper officer, stating what arc lamps or parts of arc lamps were in their possession or power made in infringement of the said letters patent, & within four days from the filing of such affidavit to deliver up to pltfs. the arc lamps or parts of arc lamps that should by such affidavit appear to be in their possession or power by adding to such minutes immediately after the words "deliver up to pltfs." the words or in the presence of pltfs. or their agents destroy or otherwise make unfit for use." The motion was refused.—BRITISH WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. v. ELECTRICAL CO., LTD. (1911), 55 Sol. Jo. 689; 28 R. P. C. 517.

G. Certificate of Validity.

(a) In General.

See, now, Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 35; 1919 (c. 80), sched.

3103. By whom granted—Supreme court.]—I am clearly of opinion that this is not a case in which solr. & client costs can be recovered under the statute because in my judgment the ct. which decided upon the merits of Bennis's patent was not a "ct. or judge" within Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57). "Ct. or judge" there means clearly a superior ct., & the "judge" must be taken to be a judge of such ct. (DAY, J.).—PROCTOR v. SUTTON LODGE CHEMICAL CO. (1888), 5 R. P. C. 184.

limitation, the taking of an account being only a mode of ascertaining the amount of damages, is the same as the period of limitation for an action or damages for the same ground.—[illegible] (1877), I. L. R.

b. Conditions precedent.]—In order to found an application for a certi-3104. Certificate must be put in evidence.]—Patent Law Amendment Act (c. 83), s. 43, enacts that it shall be lawful for the judge before whom an action for infringing letters patent shall be tried, to certify on the record that the validity of the patent came in question; & that "the record, with such certificate, being given in evidence in any suit or action for infringing the said letters patent," shall entitle pltf., on obtaining final judgment, to "his full costs, charges, & expenses, taxed as between attorney & client," unless the judge shall certify that he ought not to have such full costs. An action having been brought by a patentee, substantially, for the recovery of royalties under a due licence, a compromise was entered into before pltf.'s case was closed, & an order of Nisi Prius was drawn up, under which deft. was to pay an agreed sum, & a verdict was to be entered for pltf. in the action, for 40*s.* damages, & costs, with all "usual certificates." After the cause was thus disposed of, the presiding judge, upon an ex p. application, indorsed on the record a certificate that the record in a certain action wherein B. was pltf. & K. was deft., & the certificate thereon indorsed, was given in evidence at the trial of this action:—Held: this certificate was improperly granted, the record & certificate in the former action not having been given in evidence, & it not being under the circumstances a "usual certificate" within the contemplation of the parties.—BOVILL v. HADLEY (1864), 17 C. B. N. S. 435; 4 New Rep. 464; 10 L. T. 650; 144 E. R. 176.

3105. Defendant successful in action—Cannot obtain certificate that validity came in question.]—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. LEVINSTEIN, No. 3177, post.

3106. Whether certificate should be pleaded.]—This was a motion for judgment in default of defence in an action for infringement of a patent, a certificate as to the validity of which had been granted in a previous action. The statement of claim did not plead the certificate but asked for solr. & client costs. The proposed minutes provided for an injunction, an inquiry as to damages, & an order for payment of the amount awarded within 14 days after it was ascertained, delivery up of infringing arts., for taxation of costs up to & including the judgment, as between solr. & client, & payment of such taxed costs; the costs of the inquiry as to damages to be reserved & liberty to apply. An order was granted according to the terms of the proposed minutes, with two variations, the costs to include the particulars of breaches which the ct. certified to be reasonable & proper, & all subsequent costs to be reserved instead of only the costs of the inquiry, but expressed the opinion that the certificate of validity ought to have been pleaded.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. CHISHOLM & CO. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 488.

3107. Limitation of certificate—To one claim of specification.]—A patent was granted for "Improvements in receivers for use in wireless telegraphy"; claim 3 of the specification was as follows:—"A vacuum tube containing a hot filament, a grid formed as a closed cylinder completely surrounding the filament, & a third electrode in the form of a cylinder surrounding the grid substantially as described." In an action for infringement of that patent, & of another patent not material for the purpose of this report, pltfs.' alleged infringement of claim 3. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged that the manufacture & sale complained of had been, in part, by defts. as agents or contractors for His Majesty's Govt. They alleged that the patent was invalid by reason of (inter alia) want of novelty, & subject-matter. At the trial, defts. contended that the anode, as well as the grid, must be in the form of a closed cylinder completely surrounding the filament, & that the grid, which was a loose, open-ended cylinder, was not in that form. Pltfs. contended that the word "closed" meant "electrically closed," not "physically" or "geometrically closed." At the trial it was held, that, although the grid must be in the form of a closed cylinder completely surrounding the filament, the anode need not be in that form; that the word "closed" was used, not in the sense contended for by pltfs., but in its ordinary sense; & that, if that was so, defts.' valve contained no such grid as was claimed & was not an infringement; & that claim 3 was valid. A certificate of validity, limited to claim 3, was given:—Held: it was impossible to read the word "closed" in the claim except in its ordinary & natural meaning, physically or geometrically closed.

In Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Anderson, "Cordite" Case, No. 2441, ante, ROMER, L.J., pointed out that infringement must be of the invention claimed, not the invention which the patentee might have claimed if he had been well advised or bolder. It is therefore to the claim that one must direct one's first & chief attention, though of course the claim itself must be read in the light of what has been set out in the body of the specification (LORD DUNEDIN).—MARCONI'S WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. MULLARD RADIO VALVE CO., LTD. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323. H. L.

Annotation:—Mentd. Brown v. Sperry Gyroscope Co. (1924), 42 R. P. C. 111.

3108. Action on threat of legal proceedings.]—CRAMPTON v. PATENTS INVESTMENT CO. (1888), 5 R. P. C. 382.

Annotation:—Mentd. Kelvin v. Whyte, Thomson (1907), 25 R. P. C. 177.

Effect of certificate on costs in subsequent action.]—See Sub-sect. 11, E., post.

(b) Finality of Certificate.

3109. Certificate granted — Whether sufficient for subsequent actions.]—(1) When a certificate of validity has been granted in a former action it need not be again granted.

(2) The utility of a patent must be judged by reference to the state of things at the date of the patent; if the invention was then useful, the fact that subsequent improvements have replaced the patented invention & rendered it obsolete & commercially of no value, does not invalidate the patent (LINDLEY, L.J.).—EDISON & SWAN UNITED ELECTRIC LIGHT CO. v. HOLLAND (1889), 41 Ch. D. 28; 58 L. J. Ch. 524; 61 L. T. 32; 37 W. R. 699; 5 T. L. R. 294; 6 R. P. C. 243, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (2) Apld. Lane Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 424. Generally, Reld. Heap v. Hartley (1889), 61 L. T. 538; Jandus Arc Lamp & Electric Co. v. Arc Lamp Co. (1908), 22 R. P. C. 277; Layland v. Boldy (1913), 30 R. P. C. 249, 547; Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369; Gold Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia v. Golden Horseshoe Estates Co., Golden Horseshoe Estates Co. v. Golden Ore Treatment Co. of Western Australia (1919), 36 R. P. C. 95; British Thomson-Houston v. Charlesworth Peebles (1924), 41 R. P. C. 241. Mentd. Wallace v. Tullis Russell (1921), 38 R. P. C. 199.

---

ficate, the ct. must be satisfied, (a) that in the course of the action the validity of the patent was in bonâ fide contention; (b) that if a settlement has been arrived at the patent is primâ facie a valid patent; & (c) that there has been no collusion.—GANE MILKING-MACHINE CO. v. MACEWAN & CO. (1915), 34 N. Z. L. R. 908.—N.Z.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 10, G. (b), (c) & (d) i. & ii.]

3110. —— —— Certificate granted before specification amended.]—In an action for infringement of two patents relating to dyes defts. alleged that the patents were, or had become, invalid because, first, pltfs., the owners of the patents, had no intention to manufacture in this country; secondly, that they had not manufactured in this country, & had used the patents to prevent other persons from doing so; &, thirdly, that they had charged exorbitant prices for the patented articles, much in excess of those charged in other countries. Pltfs. alleged that these grounds of invalidity were bad in law, but that the excise duty on alcohol would prevent profitable manufacture in this country, & that their prices in this country were not exorbitant having regard to the circumstances, including the more complete protection against infringement as compared with other countries, in some of which chemical products cannot be protected by patents:—Held: pltfs. had never manufactured or intended to manufacture in this country, & the dyes were sold at a price considerably higher than in countries where they were not protected by patents, & higher than in certain countries where the protection was less complete; but even if exorbitant charges for the patented articles would make the patents invalid, the prices were not proved to be so exorbitant & unreasonable as to invalidate them; as the dyes had been used in this country, the invention had been introduced into this country for the public good, & manufacture in this country is not a condition of the grant of a patent. Judgment was given for pltfs. with costs against such of defts. as had infringed. A certificate having been granted in a previous action as to one patent, that the validity of the patent came into question, although the patent was then held to be, before amendment of the specification, invalid as to one claim on the ground of insufficiency, the ct. refused to go behind the certificate or entertain any question as to the jurisdiction to give such a certificate.—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. THOMPSON (W. G.) & CO., LTD. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 473.

Annotation:—Refd. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Chemische Fabrik Vormals Sandoz (1903), 88 L. T. 490.

3111. —— —— ——.]—BROOKS (J. B.) & CO., LTD. v. RENDALL UNDERWOOD & CO., LTD., No. 3276, post.

3112. —— —— Further grounds raised.]—FLOUR OXIDIZING CO., LTD. v. HUTCHINSON (J. & R.), No. 3259, post.

(c) On what Issues Granted.

3113. Want of novelty.]—GILLETT v. WILBY, No. 2643, ante.

3114. —— Subject-matter.] — Letters patent were granted for an invention of "Improvements in diaphragm horns & like sound-producing instruments." The first claim of the specification was as follows: "Sound-producing apparatus as hereinbefore referred to, comprising the combination of a chamber for the reception of the fluid injected, an open expansion chamber constituted by a bell-shaped mouthpiece of which the smaller end extends axially within the first chamber, a diaphragm constituted by a thin metal plate coaxial with said mouthpiece & held under tension on the smaller open end thereof & serving as an obturator for the fluid under pressure, & means for regulating at will the pressure with which the plate presses against the smaller end of the mouthpiece, substantially as & for the purposes hereinbefore set forth." In an action for infringement of the patent deft., a nominee of the govt. (inter alia), denied infringement & alleged that the patent was invalid on the ground of want of novelty & subject-matter:—Held: A.'s device was something quite novel, there was no evidence that it had ever been used, & under those circumstances there was no common knowledge which could be treated as conveying further information in addition to that conveyed by A.'s specification, & there was no common knowledge which would have given the patentees the materials for the variant which they made in A.'s device; such variant had resulted in patentable utility & it was not obvious & formed a distinct inventive step; & the patent was valid & had been infringed.

The means by which an object is attained may be perfectly simple & perfectly common, but yet there may be invention, if the patentee has discovered a variant which will render more useful that which has been previously described (WARRINGTON, L.J.).—TESTE v. COOMBES (1923), 41 R. P. C. 88, C. A.

3115. —— —— Utility.]—In an action for infringement of two patents by using & subsequently selling an unlicenced patented article deft. pleaded that the patents were invalid, one by reason of anticipation, want of utility, & want of subject-matter, the other by reason of want of utility & want of subject-matter. At the trial the only substantial issue was the alleged anticipation of the first patent:—Held: there had been no anticipation of the first patent, & in both patents there was utility & proper subject-matter. The patents were accordingly held valid. An injunction & an inquiry as to damages were granted with a certificate as to the particulars of breaches & a certificate of validity.—DE DION BOUTON (1907), LTD. v. MUSKETT (1909), 26 R. P. C. 404.

3116. —— —— ——.]—NESTLE (C.) & CO., LTD. v. EUGENE, LTD., No. 2386, ante.

3117. —— —— Disconformity—Prior grant.]—The owners of five patents commenced an action for infringement of the same, but subsequently withdrew one, & at the trial offered no evidence on another. Defts. denied infringement, & alleged as to C.'s patent that it was invalid on several grounds, relying especially on a prior grant to W. & on disconformity, &, as to two patents of S., on anticipation & prior grant:—Held: these three patents were valid, & had been infringed. Judgment was given for pltfs. on the three patents, certificates of validity being granted as to them.—BIRMINGHAM PNEUMATIC TYRE SYNDICATE, LTD. v. RELIANCE TYRE CO. (1902), 19 R. P. C. 298.

3118. Plaintiff failing on issue of infringement—Whether certificate granted.]—MORRIS & BASTERT v. YOUNG (1895), 12 R. P. C. 455, H. L.

3119. —— ——.]—In 1892, letters patent were granted to B. for improvements in sewing machines. In 1895, B. commenced an action against defts. for infringement. Defts. denied infringement, & denied the validity of the patent on the grounds (inter alia) that the alleged invention was anticipated by several old machines & prior patents, & that there was no invention:—Held: the patentee claimed a special arrangement acted upon as mentioned & described, & the specification, being so construed, the invention might be good subject-matter; as all the parts were old, the patentee could not claim to cover mechanical equivalents; & the defts. had not infringed. The appeal was dismissed, with costs, but a certificate that the validity of the patent had come in question was granted.—BIRCH v. HARRAP & CO. (1896), 13 R. P. C. 615, C. A.

3120. —— ——.]—M., the patentee of a new & improved machine for breaking up the surfaces of roads, commenced an action for infringement, in which one deft. denied infringement & the validity of the patent, but at the trial relied principally on infringement, & only alleged that the patent was invalid if it were so widely construed as to include what he did. The third claim of the specification, which was chiefly relied on by pltf., was as follows:—"In a road breaking machine in combination with a pivoted tool holder, carrying tools at either side, a frame in which said tool holder is pivoted arranged to slide vertically in guides substantially as described & illustrated herein." The machine complained of had no pivot, the frame of the tool holder resting loosely on a washer above a nut; the frame was capable of being raised or lowered by means of a screw, & was also capable of being raised or canted by reason of its loose fitting, but that movement was controlled partly by springs & was limited by the outer sides of the machine; subject to these the tool holder was during working free to swing, whereas in pltf.'s machine there was a locking lever to fix the angle of the tools to the ground; there were also differences in the arrangement for vertical adjustment. The second deft. had been added as a deft. by amendment, & at the trial no evidence was given of infringement by him before the date of the writ:—Held: the patentee claimed a combination, & claim 3 was a claim for the frame in combination with the pivoted tool holder, & the machine complained of had no pivot or the mechanical equivalent of a pivot; & the arrangement for vertical sliding was different from that described in the specification; & the machine complained of was not an infringement of the patent, & no evidence had been given against the second deft. of any infringement or intention to infringe at the date of the writ. Judgment was given for the defts. with costs, with a certificate that certain of the particulars of objections were reasonable & proper; but a certificate was given to pltf. that the validity of the patent came into question.—MORRISON v. ASPLEN (1904), 21 R. P. C. 557.

(d) When Granted.

i. In General.

3121. At time of trial.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent, brought on July 13, pltf., to entitle himself to treble costs, put in evidence the certificate of a judge on a previous trial, under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 3. He obtained a verdict, damages 1*s.*, but did not request the judge at the second trial to certify under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 24, s. 2, which received the royal assent on July 3, ten days before the trial:—Held: this latter Act applied to the present action; pltf. could not have his full costs, or treble costs, without the certificate of the judge who tried the cause; & a judge had no power to grant the certificate after taxation; qu.: whether a judge has power to grant a certificate after another cause has been called on.—GILLETT v. GREEN (1841), 7 M. & W. 347; 9 Dowl. 219; H. & W. 146; 1 Web. Pat. Cas. 271; 10 L. J. Ex. 124; 5 Jur. 9; 151 E. R. 799.

3122. Patent not declared valid.]—ACETYLENE ILLUMINATING CO. v. UNITED ALKALI CO., No. 3432, post.

3123. —— No serious contest as to validity.]—COOKSLEY v. CROWTHORN ENGINEERING CO., LTD. (1921), as reported in 38 R. P. C. 294.

3124. Defendants appearing at trial—But taking no part in proceedings.]—CONSOLIDATED PNEUMATIC TOOL CO., LTD. v. CHURCHILL (CHARLES) & CO., LTD. (1905), 22 R. P. C. 367.

ii. Defendant Consenting to Judgment.

3125. Whether certificate granted.]—If, in an action for the infringement of a patent, deft. plead not guilty, that the invention was not new, & that the specification is not sufficient; & deft. at the trial consent to a verdict for pltf., without any evidence being given, the judge will not certify, under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 3, "that the validity of the patent came in question before him."—STOCKER v. RODGERS (1843), 1 Car. & Kir. 99, N. P.

3126. ——.]—After the trial of an action for infringement of a patent, in which the validity of the patent was disputed by defts., had lasted several days, the parties agreed to a consent order. The terms of the order were judgment for pltfs. on the validity of the patent, judgment for defts. on the question of infringement, pltf. to pay part of defts.' costs & not to bring actions for infringement against defts. or their customers on the same patent. This order was read to the ct., &, on the application of pltfs., the judge granted a certificate that the validity of their patent had come in question.—DELTA METAL CO., LTD. v. MAXIM-NORDENFELT GUNS & AMMUNITION CO., LTD. (1891), 8 R. P. C. 247.

Annotation:—Folld. Gerbold v. Radnall (1913), 30 R. P. C. 283.

3127. ——.]—ACETYLENE ILLUMINATING CO., LTD. v. MIDLAND ACETYLENE (PARENT) SYNDICATE, LTD., No. 3142, post.

3128. ——.]—Pltfs., as the owners of three patents for improvements in various parts of the mechanism of motor cars, sued deft. for infringement. Deft. admitted infringement of each of the three patents, but contended they were invalid on various grounds. The case as to each of the patents was treated as a separate action. During the hearing of the action on the third patent deft. withdrew his defence:—Held: all the three patents were valid. The usual relief was granted, including a certificate that the validity of each of the patents had come into question.—BRITISH MOTOR TRACTION CO., LTD. v. VAUGHAN SHERRIN (1901), 18 R. P. C. 265.

3129. ——.]—A patent was granted to C. in 1894 for improvements in apparatus for transmitting orders, notifications, & the like from one part or station of a navigable vessel to another, & analogous purposes. A second patent was granted to C. & B. in 1898 for "Improvements in or connected with ships' & analogous telegraphic apparatus." At the trial of an action brought for

---

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 10.—G. (d) i.

k. Defendants withdrawing from court—After application for adjournment refused.] — WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. M'GRADY (JOHN) & CO. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 513.—IR.

l. Settlement of action.]—R. raised an action against the S. P. R. & E. co. for interdict against infringement of a patent. The record was closed & proof ordered, but two days before the date fixed for the proof the action was settled & accordingly no proof was ever taken. By agreement between the parties interdict was granted. R. applied for a certificate that the validity of the patent had come into question. The application was granted.—ROBERTSON v. STANDARD PISTON RING & ENGINEERING CO., LTD. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 266.—SCOT.

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 10.—G. (d) ii.

3125 i. Whether certificate granted.]—STEEL RAILWAY JOURNAL BOX CO., LTD. v. HURST, NELSON & CO., LTD. (1909), 26 R. P. C. 493.—SCOT.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 10, G. (d) ii. & iii., & H.; sub-sect. 11, A.]

infringement of both patents, defts., before any evidence had been given, submitted to an injunction on the second patent. Evidence as to the validity of the second patent was then given, defts. taking no part therein after all the evidence as to the first patent had been heard, defts. submitted to an injunction, with costs & agreed damages, with regard to that patent, pltfs. agreeing to grant them a licence. A certificate of validity in respect of each of the patents was given.—CHADBURN'S (SHIP) TELEGRAPH CO., LTD. v. ROBINSON (1905), 22 R. P. C. 468.

3130. ——.]—An action was brought for infringement of a patent, & in the defence it was alleged that the patent was invalid, grounds of want of novelty, want of subject-matter & want of utility being set out in the particulars of objection. At the trial, counsel for defts. stated, at the opening of the case, that they did not propose to contest the matter further & were willing to submit to an injunction. Thereupon, counsel for pltfs. asked to be allowed to call evidence as to the validity of the patent, as an application would be made for a certificate that the validity of the patent came in question. After argument, evidence was allowed to be given.

An injunction was granted & an order was made for delivery up & costs & a certificate as to validity was granted.—BROWNE v. CYKO MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. (1920), 37 R. P. C. 270.

3131. —— Consent on terms.]—The owner of a patent having brought an action for infringement, deft. pleaded non-infringement & invalidity, but during the trial he consented to an injunction on certain terms, including the grant to him of a licence on royalty, & judgment was given accordingly. The judge refused to grant a certificate that the validity of the patent came in question.—CLAUGHTEN v. FOSTER (1903), 21 R. P. C. 17.

3132. —— ——.]—FERGUSON SUPERHEATERS, LTD. v. ASKERN COAL & IRON CO., LTD. (1912), 29 R. P. C. 431.

3133. —— ——.]—In an action for infringement of a patent, in which defts. denied the validity of the patent & delivered particulars of objections, at the close of the evidence of the first witness for pltf. the case was settled & an order taken for an injunction without costs. A certificate that the validity of the patent came into question was, after discussion, granted.—GERHOLD v. RADNALL (1913), 30 R. P. C. 283.

3134. —— ——.]—An action was commenced by the owners of two patents in which deft. by his defence & particulars of objections originally alleged the invalidity of both patents, but on Jan. 28, 1919, shortly before the trial of the action, he withdrew that defence as to the earlier of the two patents. The action came on for trial on Mar. 19, 1919, but terms of settlement had already been agreed & embodied in minutes, which provided for an injunction. It was agreed that what pltfs. had complained of as regards the second patent was outside the claim. Pltfs. asked the ct. to grant certificates that the validity of the patents came in question, & asked to be allowed to adduce evidence as to validity:—Held: as regards the first patent, the defence of invalidity having been withdrawn, pltfs. ought not to be allowed to adduce evidence which would have been irrelevant & inadmissible if the action had gone on; & as regards the second patent having regard to the agreement, the case was not one for granting a certificate. Certificates asked for refused.—QUASI-ARC CO., LTD. v. ANDERSON (1919), 36 R. P. C. 218.

3135. —— ——.]—EMBREY (L.) & EMBREY (H. P.) v. BUCKLEY (J. W.), EMBREY (L.) & EMBREY (H. P.) v. GREENWOOD & SHARP (1919), 36 R. P. C. 221.

3136. —— ——.]—BLATCHFORD v. CORY & GRUNDY, LTD. (1921), 38 R. P. C. 412.

Annotation:—Folld. Auster v. Beaton (1919), Ltd. (1922), 40 R. P. C. 46.

3137. —— ——.]—AUSTER, LTD. v. BEATON (G.) & SON (1919), LTD. (1922), 40 R. P. C. 46.

iii. Defendant Not Appearing.

3138. Whether certificate granted.] — WEBB LAMP CO., LTD. v. ATKINSON (TRADING AS THE HEALTH FILTER CO.), No. 3011, ante.

3139. ——.]—GALL v. O'NEILL & BROWN (1909), 27 R. P. C. 18.

3140. —— Defence denying validity.]—PERONI v. HUDSON, No. 2932, ante.

3141. —— ——.]—EDISON BELL PHONOGRAPH CORPN., LTD. v. EDISON PHONOGRAPH CO. (1893), 11 R. P. C. 33.

3142. —— ——.]—ACETYLENE ILLUMINATING CO., LTD. v. MIDLAND ACETYLENE (PARENT) SYNDICATE, LTD. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 534.

3143. —— ——.]—SACCHARIN CORPN. v. SITOS (1899), cited in 17 R. P. C. at p. 536.

3144. —— ——.]—In 1886 a patent was granted to I. for "improvements in illuminant appliances for burners"; & in 1893 a further patent was granted to I. for "an improvement in incandescent gas burners." These two patents became vested in pltf. co., who brought an action against deft. for infringement. The 1886 patent was subsisting at the date of the writ, but had lapsed before judgment. Deft. raised the question of the validity of the 1893 patent in his defence, but did not appear at the trial:—Held: deft. had infringed the patent of 1893, & an injunction & a certificate that the validity of the patent had come in question were granted.—WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. KRUMM (1901), 18 R. P. C. 211.

3145. —— —— Evidence of validity given at trial.]—The grantee of a patent for improved machinery for making springs for shuttle pegs brought an action against defts., alleging infringement & asking for the usual relief. Deft. delivered a statement of defence, whereby he denied infringement & put in issue the validity of the patent, but did not appear at the trial:—Held: pltf. on proving his case was entitled to the relief prayed, & to a certificate that the validity of the patent came in question in the action.—HAYDOCK v. BRADBURY (1886), 4 R. P. C. 74.

3146. —— —— ——.]—This action was for infringement of a patent for "improvements in & apparatus for recording & reproducing speech & other sounds." Deft. denied infringement, & by his pleadings alleged the invalidity of the patent on various grounds, but did not appear at the trial. Formal evidence was called to prove the validity of the patent & pltf.'s title. An injunction was granted with an order for delivery up of infringing articles & the usual certificates.—EDISON UNITED PHONOGRAPH CO. & EDISON-BELL PHONOGRAPH CORPN., LTD. v. YOUNG (1894), 11 R. P. C. 489.

3147. —— —— ——.]—BROOKS (J. B.) & CO., LTD. v. LYCETT, LTD. (1903), 20 R. P. C. 390.

3148. —— —— ——.]—SODASTREAM, LTD. v. DAVEY (1907), 24 R. P. C. 763.

3149. —— —— ——.] — JACKSON BOILERS, LTD. v. FOURNESS LAMP CO. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 459.

H. Revocation.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 32.

3150. Flat of Attorney-General—Necessity for.]—The appeal was allowed, & an order for revocation was made, notwithstanding the fact that the flat of the A.-G. had not been obtained when the counterclaim for revocation was delievered, it being held, that, in the special circumstances of the case, the counterclaim was to be deemed to have been delivered after the flat had been obtained.

I desire to give a caution as to following what may be called the practice said to be followed or established by Re Dege's Patent, No. 2140, ante, Re Jameson's Patent, No. 2141, ante, & the like. I think a little more care & attention must be given to obtaining the authorisation by the A.-G. because Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 32, must be followed by deft. who is to obtain the relief by revocation (POLLOCK, M.R.).—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. BRITISH INSULATED & HELSBY CABLES, LTD., as reported in (1924), 41 R. P. C. 345, C. A.; affd. sub nom. BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. CHARLESWORTH, PEEBLES & CO., BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. BRITISH INSULATED & HELSBY CABLES, LTD. (1925), 42 R. P. C. 180, H. L.

Annotation:—Reld. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Horn (1924), 41 R. P. C. 502.

3151. Stay of order for revocation—Pending appeal to House of Lords.]—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. BRITISH INSULATED & HELSBY CABLES, LTD., No. 3150, ante.

SUB-SECT. 11.—COSTS.

A. In General.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 7; Ord. 65, r. 1.

3152. Motion for injunction—Granted as to part—Plaintiff awarded costs.]—Where a pltf. having applied for an injunction to prevent the infringement of a patent, but has obtained such injunction as to part only of the property sought to be protected, notwithstanding he had proved the whole of his case, he shall not thereby be deprived of his costs.

The question is really this, namely, whether pltf., having proved every part of his case, should be told that he must not have his costs, simply because the injunction had in part failed. Such a course would be grossly contrary to justice. With respect to every part of the case, pltf. is entitled to a decree, with costs, & also a perpetual injunction (SHADWELL, V.-C.).—ONYON v. WASHBOURNE (1850), 14 L. T. O. S. 503.

3153. Costs of motion to stay proceedings.]—Where a pltf., who, after the answers had been put in, found that it was unnecessary to proceed with a suit, moved that, on defts. delivering up certain chattels in their possession, all proceedings in the suit be stayed, & that defts. should pay the costs of the suit:—Held: such motion must be refused, but the costs should be costs in the cause.—VENTILATION & SANITARY IMPROVEMENT CO. v. EDELSTEN (1863), 2 New Rep. 52; 11 W. R. 613.

3154. Costs on question of validity—& on question of infringement—Not differentiated.]—ELLINGTON v. CLARK, BUNNETT & CO., No. 2952, ante.

3155. Successful appeal—Refund of costs paid—Though no application to refund.]—KAYE v. CHUBB & SONS, LTD. (1886), 5 R. P. C. 641, H. L.

Annotation:—Mentd. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429.

3156. —— Cross-action remitted—Time for application for stay of taxation.]—(1) An action for infringement of a patent & a cross-action under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, for damages for groundless threats of legal proceedings were set down together for trial. At the trial of the first action the judge gave judgment for pltf. & consequently dismissed the cross-action. On appeal:—Held: deft. had not infringed, & pltf.'s action dismissed with costs, & the cross-action remitted to the judge below for trial.

(2) Subsequently to the hearing before the Ct. of Appeal pltf. applied that exccution might be stayed until after the hearing of the cross-action, so that if deft. was directed to pay pltf. any costs of that action they might be set off against the costs of the first action, payable by pltf. Deft. had been ordered to give security for the costs of the appeal:—Held: deft. had a present right to the payment of a sum of money for costs, of which the court could not deprive him; semble: if an application for a stay of taxation of the costs of the first action until after the trial of the cross-action had been made when the Ct. of Appeal gave judgment in the first action, it would have been granted.—AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO. v. COMBINED WEIGHING & ADVERTISING MACHINE CO. (1889), 58 L. J. Ch. 647; 61 L. T. 536; 37 W. R. 636, C. A.

3157. Infringement only issue—Party & party costs only allowed.]—If the only issue was infringement or no infringement & the validity of the patent did not come in question, I should not allow solr. & client costs. The costs are for me & on your statement that the validity of the patent did not come in question at all there will be only party & party costs (FARWELL, J.).—EDISON-BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD. v. WATERFIELD CLIFFORD & CO. (1902), 19 R. P. C. 329.

Annotation:—Reld. British Vacuum Co. v. Exton Hotels Co. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 417.

3158. Costs of counterclaim for revocation—Plaintiff submitting to judgment for defendants on claim—Set-off—R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 20.]—In two actions for infringement of the same patents defts. petitioned by way of counterclaim for revocation of the patents. The actions were consolidated, & on their coming on for trial pltfs. at once submitted to judgment for defts. with the costs of the actions. Defts. stated that, in the absence of evidence in the actions, they were uable to proceed with the counterclaims. They contended that the counterclaims were in effect part of the defence, & that, on the actions being dismissed with costs, no order ought to be made with regard to the costs of the counterclaims:—Held: the case fell within r. 22 [now r. 20], namely, that the actions had not proceeded to trial, & the actions & counterclaims must be dismissed with costs, with a set-off.—BABCOCK & WILCOX, LTD. v. WATER TUBE BOILER & ENGINEERING CO., SAME v. EDWIN DANKS & CO. (OLDBURY), LTD. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 626.

Annotation:—Folld. British Foreign & Colonial Automatic Light Controlling Co. v. Metropolitan Gas Meters, [1912] 2 Ch. 82.

3159. Defendant consenting to judgment—Plaintiff entitled to costs of moving in open court.]—

PART XIV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 11.—A.

m. Costs of motion for costs.]—KNICKERBOCKER CO. v. RATZ (1894), 16 P. R. 30.—CAN.

n. Costs of motion to quash appeal.]—DRESCHEL v. AUER INCANDESCENT LIGHT MANUFACTURING CO. (1898), 28 S. C. R. 268.—CAN.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 11, A. & B. (a), (b), (c) & (d).]

Where pltf. in an action for the infringement of his registered design, or trade mark, or patent, is proceeding to obtain a judgment restraining the infringement, it is desirable that some publicity should be given to the order; & although deft. has consented to the order, pltf. is entitled to the costs of moving in open ct. & not merely to such costs as would have been incurred by applying by summons in chambers.—SMITH (J. T.) & JONES (J. E.), LTD. v. SERVICE, REEVE & CO., [1914] 2 Ch. 576; 83 L. J. Ch. 876; 111 L. T. 669; 30 T. L. R. 599; 58 Sol. Jo. 687.

Annotation:—Mentd. Performing Right Soc. v. Mitchell & Booker (Palais de Danse), [1924] 1 K. B. 762.

3160. Costs payable by innocent infringer.]—WHITEHEAD & POOLE, LTD. v. FARMER (SIR JAMES) & SONS, LTD., No. 2627, ante.

3161. Promise by one party not to enforce costs — Not evidence of reciprocal bargain.]—ELBORNE v. COOMBES (1924), 41 R. P. C. 308.

Costs of interlocutory injunction.]—See Part XIV., Sect. 2, sub-sect. 4, F., ante.

B. Apportionment of Costs.

(a) In General.

3162. Both parties partly successful—Costs apportioned.]—(1) Where deft. in an action for the infringement of a patent, succeeds on a plea which goes to the whole action, he will be entitled to the general costs of the cause, deducting the costs of the objections on which pltf. has succeeded & of the issues found for him.

(2) The certificate given by a judge under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 5, should be as to the determination of each objection of which notice has been given, & not as to the issues.—LOSH v. HAGUE (1839), 5 M. & W. 387; 7 Dowl. 495; 8 L. J. Ex. 251; 3 Jur. 409; 151 E. R. 164.

3163. ——.]—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. NEW IXION TYRE & CYCLE CO., LTD. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 389.

3164. ——.]—Letters patent were granted to pltf. in 1901 for "An invention for improvements in or relating to route or destination & like indicators for tramcars, road & other vehicles; applicable also for advertising purposes." Pltf. while retaining his rights to be the sole manufacturer of these indicators, which were to be known as the "Panorama Destination Indicators," appointed deft. his sole agent in respect of their sale. Pltf. in the action alleged that deft. had broken the agency agreement by devising, causing to be manufactured, & selling another destination indicator, & also by selling other indicators as "Panorama Destination Indicators" & passing them off as being pltf.'s indicators & that deft. had infringed the patent. Deft. denied the infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid on the grounds of want of novelty, subject-matter & utility. He denied the passing-off, but admitted selling indicators not of pltf.'s manufacture, pleading in justification that pltf. had previously broken the agency agreement by appointing other persons to be agents for the manufacture & sale of the patented indicators. He counterclaimed for damages for such breach:—Held: (1) the patent was invalid for want of novelty; the question of infringement need not therefore be considered; there had been no passing-off, but there had been a breach of the agreement by deft., as to which an inquiry as to damages was ordered; (2) as to costs, deft. was entitled to have three-fourths, & pltf. to have one-fourth with a set-off; pltf., therefore, was ordered to pay half the costs of the action.—GAWTHORPE v. MASON (1906), 23 R. P. C. 401.

3165. ——.]—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. HORN (1925), 42 R. P. C. 326, C. A.

3166. On appeal.]—MOORE v. BENNETT, No. 2946, ante.

3167. ——.]—HALE v. COOMBES (1925), 42 R. P. C. 328, H. L.

Annotation:—Refd. Tucker v. Wandsworth Electrical Manufacturing Co. (1925), 42 R. P. C. 531.

3168. Form of order.]—SIMMONDS v. HITCHMAN (1885), 2 R. P. C. 117, n.

3169. Procedure of taxing master—Costs of objections—Where part only certified.]—HASKELL GOLF BALL CO. v. HUTCHINSON & MAIN, No. 3402, post.

(b) Plaintiff Unsuccessful except as to Issue of Validity.

3170. Plaintiff awarded costs of issue of validity—Defendant awarded general costs of action.]—PARKES v. STEVENS, [1869] W. N. 269.

Annotation:—Refd. Hill v. Hibbit (1872), 41 L. J. Ch. 703.

3171. ——.] — AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO. v. KNIGHT, No. 2446, ante.

3172. ——.]—SUNLIGHT INCANDESCENT GAS LAMP CO., LTD. v. INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. (1897), 14 R. P. C. 757.

3173. ——.]—The action was dismissed & deft. was awarded the general costs of the action, except in so far as they had been increased by the issue of validity & pltf. was awarded the costs of that issue with a set-off. The counterclaim for revocation of the patent was dismissed with costs & a certificate of validity as to claims was granted.—GODFREY v. HANCOCK & CO. (ENGINEERS), LTD. (1925), 42 R. P. C. 407.

3174. ——.]—The judgment was varied, & the general costs of the action & of the issue of infringement were given to deft., & the costs of the issue of validity were given to pltfs., with a set-off. Pltfs. & deft. appealed to the House of Lords:—Held: the patent was valid.—ARMSTRONG (SIR W. G.) WHITWORTH & CO., LTD. v. HARDCASTLE (1925), 42 R. P. C. 543, H. L.

Annotations:—Mentd. Metropolitan Vickers Electrical Co. v. British Thomson-Houston Co. (1925), 43 R. P. C. 76; Mergenthaler Linotype Co. v. Intertype Co. (1926), 42 T. L. R. 682.

3175. ——.]—Costs to date of abandonment of plea.]—PYRENE CO., LTD. v. WEBB LAMP CO., LTD., No. 2630, ante.

(c) Plaintiff Unsuccessful except as to Issue of Infringement.

3176. Plaintiff awarded costs of issue of infringement—Defendant awarded general costs of action.]—POOLEY v. POINTON (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 199.

3177. ——.]—(1) A patentee failed in establishing the validity of his patent, but succeeded on the issue of infringement:—Held: pltf. must pay the general costs of the action, but deft. must pay the costs occasioned by the issue of infringement, the one set of costs to be set off against the other.

(2) A certificate under Patent, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 43, that the validity of a patent came in question in the action cannot be obtained by deft. in an action for infringement.—BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODA FABRIK v. LEVINSTEIN (1885), 29 Ch. D. 366; 53 L. T. 750; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 34; 2 R. P. C. 73, C. A.; revsd. on other grounds (1887), 12 App. Cas. 710, H. L.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Haslam Foundry & Engineering Co. v. Hall (1887), 4 T. L. R. 154. As to (2) Refd. Cole v. Saqui & Lawrence (1888), 40 Ch. D. 132. Generally, Mentd. Easterbrook v. G. W. Ry. (1885), 2 R. P. C. 201; Kurtz v. Spence (1887), 58 L. T. 438; Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland (1889), 5 T. L. R. 294; Vickers v. Siddell (1890), 7 R. P. C. 292; Lane Fox v. Kensington & Knightsbridge Electric Lighting Co. [1892] 3 Ch. 424; Re Martindale, [1894] 3 Ch. 193; Atkins & Applegarth v. Castner-Kellner Alkali Co. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 281; Scott v. Scott, [1913] A. C. 417; Osram Lamp Works v. Pope's Electric Lamp Co. (1917), 34 R. P. C. 369.

3178. —— ——.]—(1) Where deft. in an action for infringing a patent denied by his pleading the fact of infringement, which issue was decided against him, but judgment was given in his favour on the ground that a similar article to that of pltfs.' had been made & used before the date of pltfs.' patent:—Held: deft. was not entitled to the costs of the issue of infringement.

(2) Where deft. to an action for infringement of a patent relies upon common knowledge, as distinguished from anticipation, this defence should be pleaded distinctly.—PHILLIPS v. IVEL CYCLE CO. (1890), 62 L. T. 392; 7 R. P. C. 77.

3179. —— ——.]—CASSEL GOLD EXTRACTING CO., LTD. v. CYANIDE GOLD RECOVERY SYNDICATE, No. 1022, ante.

3180. —— ——.]—BINNINGTON v. HILL (1891), 8 R. P. C. 326.

3181. —— ——.]—KANE v. GUEST & CO. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 433.

3182. —— Though unsuccessful in claim for passing off.]—Where an action was brought for infringement of a patent & for passing off the goods of defts. as & for those of pltfs. & pltfs. succeeded as to the patent & failed as to the passing off, the costs were ordered to be treated on the footing of these being two separate causes of action & to follow the event in each.—HILL v. THOMAS & SONS (1906), 23 R. P. C. 375; revsd. on other grounds (1907), 24 R. P. C. 415, C. A.

(d) Actions on More than One Patent.

3183. Each party successful in respect of different patent—Costs apportioned.]—The costs of the action must be paid by defts.. except so far as such costs have been increased & occasioned by the claim, as to patent of 1878, in the sixth paragraph of the statement of claim. So far as the costs of the action have been increased by that claim, defts. are entitled to be paid by pltfs., for they have not pursued their claim (BACON, V.-C.).—HOCKING v. FRASER (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 129; 3 R. P. C. 3.

3184. —— ——.]—CONSOLIDATED PNEUMATIC TOOL CO., LTD. v. CLARK, SAME v. ARMSTRONG (SIR W. G.) WHITWORTH & CO., LTD., SAME v. INGERSOLL SERGEANT DRILL CO. (1907), 24 R. P. C. 593, C. A.; revsd. on other grounds, INGERSOLL SERGEANT DRILL CO. v. CONSOLIDATED PNEUMATIC TOOL CO., LTD., ARMSTRONG (SIR W. G.) WHITWORTH & CO., LTD. v. SAME, CLARK v. SAME, 25 R. P. C. 61, H. L.

Annotations:—Refd. British United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Collier (1908), 25 T. L. R. 74; Hale v. Coombes (1924), 41 R. P. C. 112.

3185. —— ——.]—Action for the infringement of three patents. Appeal as regards the first patent was dismissed with costs; but as regards second & third patents, it was allowed with costs, the costs to be taxed as if there were separate actions.—BROOKS v. LAMPLUGH (1897), 15 R. P. C. 33, C. A.; on appeal (1898), 16 R. P. C. 41, H. L.

3186. —— ——.]—L. co. brought an action for infringement of two patents & for passing off deft.'s lamps as pltfs.' Before the trial pltfs. abandoned their case on the second patent. At the trial the jury answered the questions put to them, in favour of pltfs. as regards infringement & in favour of defts. as regards passing off. The learned judge granted an injunction & refused to stay execution pending an appeal; but the Ct. of Appeal granted a stay upon defts. undertaking to pay £1,000 into ct. within a fortnight as security. A question arose as to the form of the order giving defts. costs in respect of the abandoned patent, & it was held they were entitled to the costs thrown away by reason of the claims against them for alleged infringement of such patent.—LUCAS (JOSEPH), LTD. & LUCAS v. MILLER & CO., LTD. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 165.

3187. —— ——.]—The owners of two patents for variable electric lamps brought an action for infringement of both of them. The particulars of objections alleged both inventions to lack subject-matter & to have been anticipated by prior specifications. It became clear at the trial that one of the inventions had been anticipated by one of the specifications cited, & pltfs. mainly relied on the patent for the other invention. Infringement was not contested. An objection was alleged against the second patent, viz. that, as the lamp was stated in the provisional specification to be specially applicable to lamps in common use, & it was clear that as shown in the drawings, it could not be used in lamp holders in which the plungers were placed at a certain angle to the bayonet joints, which holders were commonly used at the date of the patent, & that the invention lacked utility. A further objection was to a subordinate claim on the ground that it involved no invention as a claim in gross:—Held: the first patent was invalid for want of novelty; &, as to the second patent, the particular arrangement of the contact pieces shown in the drawings was a mere error which any workman could correct, & the contrivance was novel, useful, & involved invention; & the second claim was not a claim in gross but merely subsidiary; an injunction was granted as regards the second patent, but no inquiry as to damages, only one lamp having been sold. The costs were given to pltfs. except so far as increased by the claim in respect to the first patent, which costs they were ordered to pay.—TRUE & VARIABLE ELECTRIC LAMP SYNDICATE v. BRYANT TRADING SYNDICATE (1908), 25 R. P. C. 461.

3188. —— ——.]—I think the proper order is, that pltfs. shall have the costs of the action except in so far as they have been increased by the addition of the second patent, & defts. are to have their costs in so far as they have been so increased, & there will be a set-off (PARKER, J.).—CROSTHWAITE FIRE BAR SYNDICATE, LTD. v. SENIOR (1909), 26 R. P. C. 713.

3189. —— ——.]—OSRAM LAMP WORKS, LTD. v. "Z" ELECTRIC LAMP MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. (1912), 29 R. P C. 401.

3190. ——.]—Defts. were given costs of & occasioned by the claim for infringement of the patent in respect of which notice of discontinuance had been given, with a set-off.—TURNER v. BOWMAN (1924), 42 R. P. C. 29.

3191. One patent abandoned—Right of defendant to costs.]—In an action for infringement of two patents for producing artificial musk, one of which was abandoned at the trial, it was proved that defts.' produced the same result as pltfs.' process described in the specification of the patent relied on by them at the trial, & by a process which was substantially the same, although some of the steps were different, & some of the intermediate products different:—Held: deft. had infringed, & an injunction was granted, with costs, except that deft. was held entitled to the costs so far as the

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 11, B. (d), & C. (a), (b) & (c) i.] abandoned patent was concerned. A certificate of the validity of their other patent was given to pltfs., & a certificate was given to deft. that his particulars of objections to the abandoned patent were reasonable & proper.—FABRIQUES DE PRODUITS CHIMIQUES DE THANN, ETC. v. CASPERS (1897), 15 R. P. C. 94.

C. Certificate of Reasonableness of Particulars of Objections.

(a) In General.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 20.

3192. Requisites of certificate—Should relate to determination of objections—Not issues.]—LOSH v. HAGUE, No. 3162, ante.

3193. Jurisdiction of Court of Appeal to grant.]—The Ct. of Appeal in reversing the decision of the ct. below in favour of a patent, has jurisdiction to grant deft. under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 29 (6), a certificate that his particulars of objections to the patent were proven, or were reasonable & proper, so as to entitle him to be allowed on taxation costs in respect of such particulars.—COLE v. SAQUI & LAWRENCE (1888), 40 Ch. D. 132; 58 L. J. Ch. 237; 59 L. T. 877; 37 W. R. 109; 5 T. L. R. 84, C. A.

Annotation:—Consd. Shoe Machinery Co. v. Cutlan, [1896] 1 Ch. 108.

3194. Whether costs allowed in absence of certificate—Discretion of court.]—In an action in the Ct. of the County Palatine to restrain infringement of a patent defts. delivered particulars of objection. At the trial the judge held the patent invalid for an objection appearing on the face of it, & dismissed the action with costs, stating his opinion that defts. ought to have the costs of the witnesses brought up to support their particulars of objection, though they had not been called, as pltfs. virtually had been nonsuited. On taxation the registrar disallowed these costs, but the Vice-Chancellor held that they must be allowed. Pltfs. appealed:—Held: neither Chancery Amendment Act, 1858 (c. 27), nor 25 & 26 Vict. c. 42, made it obligatory on a Ct. of Equity to follow the rule as to costs of particulars of objections laid down by the Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 43, & that the rule which applied to cts. having no discretion as to costs ought not to be followed by analogy by a ct. which has discretion as to costs; the Vice-Chancellor had therefore power to give these costs, & they must be allowed.—PARNELL v. MORT, LIDDELL & CO. (1885), 29 Ch. D. 325; 53 L. T. 186; 33 W. R. 481; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 182, C. A.

3195. ——.]—MIDDLETON v. BRADLEY, No. 3234, post.

3196. ——.]—WILCOX & GIBBS v. JANES, No. 3238, post.

3196a. —— Certificate not applied for by defendant.]—HONIBALL v. BLOOMER, No. 3208, post.

3197. Procedure on taxation—Where certificate not granted.]—Where, at the trial of a patent action in which deft. has delivered particulars of objections pursuant to Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 29 (2), pltf.'s case breaks down at the opening on the sole ground that his specification shows that the alleged invention is not a proper subject for a patent, so that it becomes unnecessary to go into deft.'s case at all, & the ct. consequently gives judgment for deft. with costs, deft. is not entitled, on taxation, to the costs of his particulars of objections, since the ct. will not in such a case go into the particulars merely for the purpose of certifying for those costs under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 29 (6). But, semble, when the case has been decided upon the result of deft.'s cross-examination of pltf.'s witnesses, & not merely on the question of the validity of the specification itself, it may be proper for the ct. to look into the particulars with a view to certifying for the costs of them.—LONGBOTTOM v. SHAW (1889), 43 Ch. D. 46; 58 L. J. Ch. 734; 61 L. T. 325; 37 W. R. 792; 5 T. L. R. 704; 6 R. P. C. 510.

Annotation:—Folld. Mandleberg v. Morley (1895), 64 L. J. Ch. 245.

3198. —— ——.]—Where a patent action, in which deft. has pleaded no infringement & also invalidity of pltf.'s patent, is dismissed with costs on the ground of no infringement alone, the ct. not deciding the question of invalidity at all, & no certificate is given under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 29 (6), that deft.'s particulars of objections to the validity of the patent were "reasonable & proper," so that on taxation his costs of the particulars are disallowed on the ground of the absence of such a certificate; pltf. is not entitled, under R. S. C., 1883, Ord. 65, r. 27 (20), (21), to set off, as against the costs payable by him, costs incurred by him in consequence of deft.'s particulars, whether deft. may at the trial have called evidence in support of them or not. It is a condition precedent to a party being allowed under R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (20), the costs occasioned to him by improper proceedings of the other party that there must have been a disallowance of the costs of the other party either by the ct. or by the taxing master under that sub-rule on the ground that the proceedings were "improper, vexatious or unnecessary"; & disallowance of deft.'s costs of particulars on the mere ground of the absence of the statutory certificate is insufficient to entitle pltf. to the costs occasioned to him by them, & the taxing master cannot enter into the question whether the particulars were improper, as deft.'s costs relating to them being disallowed for want of a certificate, are not before him for taxation.—GARRARD v. EDGE (1890), 44 Ch. D. 224; 59 L. J. Ch. 379; 62 L. T. 510; 38 W. R. 455; 6 T. L. R. 253, C. A.

3199. —— ——.]—An action for infringement of a patent was discontinued by pltfs. after defence & particulars of objections had been delivered. On the taxation of defts.' costs pltfs. objected (inter alia) that certain items related to the particulars of objections, & that, as these had not been certified, such items ought not to be allowed. Among the principal items objected to were charges for perusing a report by defts.' patent agent, perusing specifications, & a payment to the patent agent & a fee to counsel for perusing papers. The taxing master reduced certain of these items & allowed part of the charges for perusing specifications as instructions for defence & in answer to the objections he stated that he had allowed such charges as were reasonable & proper to be allowed to defts. as instructions for their defence & not as particulars of objections. Pltfs. applied to review the taxation:—Held: the taxing master had acted on a right principle, & the summons must be dismissed with costs.—PIGGOTT & CO., LTD. v. HANLEY CORPN. (1906), 23 R. P. C. 639.

3200. —— Where certificate limited.]—In an action for infringement of a patent defts. denied infringement, & alleged want of subject-matter & of novelty by reason of a large number of alleged anticipations. At the trial the judge dismissed the action with costs on the ground of want of novelty in respect of two anticipations only :—Held : the taxing master, in taxing the costs, must not disallow costs incurred with respect to issues on which the judge found that defts. had failed, or tax the costs as if the action had been confined to proving the two objections on which defts. succeeded, but must tax the whole of defts.' costs, disallowing only the costs of those objections in respect of which no certificate was given pursuant to Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 29 (6). —HASKELL GOLF BALL CO. v. HUTCHISON & MAIN, [1906] 1 Ch. 518 ; 75 L. J. Ch. 270 ; 94 L. T. 731 ; 54 W. R. 330 ; 50 Sol. Jo. 257 ; 23 R. P. C. 125.

3201. —— ——.]—An action for infringement of a patent was, on appeal by defts., dismissed by the Ct. of Appeal with costs, the patent being held invalid, & a certificate was given as to four out of the six anticipations alleged in the particulars of objections. On the taxation of the costs pltfs. objected, in effect, that the master, in allowing a reduced lump sum for instructions for brief, had not disallowed costs relating to alleged anticipations in respect of which no certificate had been given, & secondly that he had allowed costs relating to experiments which were not relevant to any of the alleged anticipations certified. Defts. objected to the disallowance by the master of the costs of three counsel at the trial. On summonses by pltfs. & defts. respectively to review the taxation : —Held : the answer of the taxing master showed that he had taken into account in allowing a sum for instructions for brief none of the alleged anticipations except those which were certified by the Ct. of Appeal, & the objection to the costs of the experiments also failed ; & on defts.' summons the decision of the taxing master should not be interfered with. Both summonses were dismissed, with costs, but an application for set-off on the ground that defts. were in liquidation was refused.—MERCEDES DAIMLER MOTOR CO., LTD. v. F. I. A. T. MOTOR CAB CO., LTD. (1913), 31 R. P. C. 8.

3202. —— Action discontinued—Subsequent action against same defendants not yet heard—Stay of taxation.]—An action was brought for infringement of patents, but on a defence being delivered founded on the existence of certain contracts entered into by pltfs. contrary to Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), notice of discontinuance was given by pltfs. under R. S. C., Ord. 26, r. 1, with a view to bringing a fresh action, which was shortly afterwards brought against same defts. for infringement of the same patents. Pltfs. before the defence in the second action had been delivered applied for a stay of proceedings in the taxation of costs in the discontinued action on the grounds that the taxing master would not be able to exercise his discretion in considering the reasonableness of the particulars of objections unless pltfs. disclosed their case which would be the same in both actions, & also that if the second action came to trial the ct. would have to decide in it as to the reasonableness of the same objections : —Held : no ground was shown for granting a stay of taxation.—AKT. FÜR AUTOGENE ALUMINIUM SCHWEISSUNG v. LONDON ALUMINIUM CO., LTD. (1918), 36 R. P. C. 29.

(b) Application for Certificate.

3203. What must be shown—Not sufficient that particulars not unreasonable.]—GERM MILLING CO., LTD. v. ROBINSON, No. 2890, ante.

3204. When application should be made—At trial—Subsequent application allowed without costs.] —R. brought an action against M. for infringing his patent. M. denied the alleged infringement, & put in issue the validity of the patent on the grounds stated in his particulars of objections. The judge at the trial on Nov. 12, 1885, held that the patent was invalid, & dismisesd the action with costs. Deft. did not apply at the trial for a certificate under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 29 (6), that he had proved his particulars of objections, but on Mar. 29, 1886, he moved for such a certificate :—Held : deft. was entitled to apply within a reasonable time after trial for the certificate, & as he had applied within a reasonable time it should be given, but as he might have asked for it at the trial he was not entitled to the costs of the motion, & if pltf. had not opposed the motion he would have been entitled to his costs, but having opposed no costs would be given to him.—ROWCLIFFE v. MORRIS (1886), 3 R. P. C. 145.

3205. —— —— ——.]—In 1893, letters patent were granted to D. for "improvements in interceptors & the like." In 1898 an action was commenced against defts. for infringement. Defts. denied the validity of the patent on the ground of want of subject-matter :—Held : the letters patent were invalid on that ground, & the action was dismissed.

Application was subsequently made by defts. for costs of particulars of objections. Costs of objections were allowed but no costs were given of the application.—DUCKETT (JAMES) & SON, LTD. & DUCKETT v. SANKEY & SON (1899), 16 R. P. C. 357.

(c) Action Proceeding to Trial.

i. When Certificate Granted.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 20.

3206. When particulars gone into.]—The action was accordingly dismissed with costs, but the judge refused to give a certificate as to particulars of objections as they had not been gone into.—NEWSUM v. MANN (1890), 7 R. P. C. 307.

3207. ——.]—The costs of all particulars of objections put in evidence were allowed.—CROSTHWAITE v. MOORWOOD, SONS & CO. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 555.

3208. —— Procedure in case of nonsuit.]—Pltf., in an action for infringing letters patent, was nonsuited after proof of the first out of twelve particulars of objections delivered by defts., who did not apply to the judge for a certificate under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 43, to be allowed costs in respect of the particulars :—Held : defts. were thereby not entitled to be allowed such costs.

In the case of a nonsuit, the judge must give his opinion on hearing proof of the particulars, without the intervention of a jury ; & in order to obtain the certificate, the cause must be gone through by the judge alone, without the jury (PARKE, B.).—HONIBALL v. BLOOMER (1854), 10 Exch. 538 ; 3 C. L. R. 167 ; 24 L. J. Ex. 11 ; 24 L. T. O. S. 134 ; 156 E. R. 552 ; sub nom. HONEYBALL v. BLOOMER, 1 Jur. N. S. 188 ; sub nom. HONEYBALL v. PLUMER, 3 W. R. 71.

Annotations :—Distd. Batley v. Kynock (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 632. Dbtd. Parnell v. Mort, Liddell (1885), 29 Ch. D. 325. Refd. Greaves v. Eastern Counties Ry. (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 733.

3209. —— Admissions on cross-examination.]—The patentee of an invention for improvements in balancing weights for windows, etc., brought an action for infringement. Defts. denied infringement & put in issue the validity of the patent on the grounds (inter alia) of (a) want of subject-matter ; (b) anticipation ; (c) prior publication.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 11, C. (c) i. & ii., & (d).]

At the trial the ct., without calling for evidence from defts.:—Held: (1) there had been no infringement; (2) there was no subject-matter, &, upon the admissions in cross-examination of pltf.'s witnesses, granted a certificate that deft.'s particulars of objections as to want of subject-matter & as to anticipation & prior publication were reasonable & proper.—HEYES v. HALLMARK (1891), 9 R. P. C. 25.

3210. —— Whether court will inquire into reasonableness.]—LONGBOTTOM v. SHAW, No. 3197, ante.

3211. —— ——.]—Where an action for the infringement of a patent is disposed of without any evidence being given, & there is nothing before the ct. to enable it to determine whether deft.'s particulars of objections were reasonable & proper, it will not inquire into the facts of the case merely for the purpose of determining whether deft. ought to be allowed the costs of his particulars. Where, however, pltf.'s evidence has been given, & it appears from that that the objections were reasonable & proper, the ct. will give a certificate to that effect.—MANDLEBERG v. MORLEY (1895), 64 L. J. Ch. 245; 72 L. T. 106; 43 W. R. 266; 39 Sol. Jo. 201; 13 R. 322; 12 R. P. C. 35.

Annotations:—Folld. Acetylene Illuminating Co. v. United Alkali Co. (1902), 50 W. R. 361; American Steel & Wire Co. v. Glover (1902), 50 W. R. 284.

3212. —— ——.]—When in an action for infringement of a patent pltfs. offer no evidence & the action is dismissed with costs, the ct. will not hear evidence that defts.' particulars of objections were reasonable & proper, & will not grant a certificate under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 29 (6), to that effect.—AMERICAN STEEL & WIRE CO. v. GLOVER & CO., LTD. (1902), 50 W. R. 284; 46 Sol. Jo. 231; 19 R. P. C. 111.

3213. —— Certificate refused—Plaintiff not appearing at trial.]—Pltf. in an action for infringement of a patent obtained an interlocutory injunction against deft., but did not appear at the trial:—Held: there must be judgment for deft. with costs, & an inquiry as to damages sustained by deft. by reason of the interlocutory injunction, but no certificate could be given as to the reasonableness of the particulars of objections.—MAY v. YUILL & CO. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 525.

Annotation:—N.F. British, Foreign & Colonial Automatic Light Controlling Co. v. Metropolitan Gas Meters, [1912] 2 Ch. 82.

3214. —— —— Patent abandoned at trial.]—Two letters patent were granted respectively for "improvements in or relating to apparatus for stripping carding engines." The first claim of the first patent was as follows: "in a carding engine stripping apparatus of the type described the combination with a doffer nozzle rigidly mounted upon a carriage that is capable of angular displacement upon it supporting tube, of means—separate from the carriage—adapted to support or guide the nozzle as it traverses across the doffer." The first claim of the second patent was as follows: "in a vacuum card stripping apparatus the combination with a carriage & means for traversing the same across the carding surfaces of the machine, of a main cylinder nozzle & a doffer nozzle mounted upon the carriage & both connected to the suction producing means whereby the doffer & main cylinder may be stripped simultaneously, substantially as described." In an action for infringement of both patents defts. denied infringement & alleged that both patents were invalid (inter alia) for want of novelty & subject-matter; & defts. counter-claimed for revocation of both patents. At the trial pltfs. abandoned their claim in respect of the second patent & submitted to an order for revocation:—Held: as to the first patent, there was no infringement & the patent was invalid for want of novelty & subject-matter & the patent must be revoked. A certificate on certain particulars of objections was granted in respect of the patent relied upon by pltfs. at the trial, but was refused in the case of the patent abandoned by pltfs.—TEXTILE PATENTS, LTD. v. WEINBRENNER (1925), 42 R. P. C. 515.

3215. By court of appeal—Appellants succeeding on non-infringement.]—When applts. succeeded on non-infringement, the Ct. of Appeal refused to certify as to the particulars of objections.—PILKINGTON (PETER), LTD. v. MASSEY (1904), 21 R. P. C. 697, C. A.

ii. For What Particulars Certificate Granted.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 20.

3216. Whether certificate limited to objections proved.]—GERM MILLING CO., LTD. v. ROBINSON, No. 2890, ante.

3217. ——.]—On application by defts. for a certificate that their particulars were proved reasonable, a limited certificate was granted, not extending to objections which it was for them to prove, & which they had not proved.—ALBO-CARBON LIGHT CO. v. KIDD (1887), 4 R. P. C. 535.

Annotation:—Distd. Mandleberg v. Morley (1895), 64 L. J. Ch. 245.

3218. ——.]—The grantee of a patent for an apparatus for stretching & holding strips of leather for covering metallic rollers brought an action alleging infringement & asking for an injunction. Deft. denied infringement, & alleged that the patent was invalid on the ground that it was not the subject of a patent, & had been anticipated:—Held: no infringement of the stretching process had been proved, & that the holding process was not subject-matter, & the action must be dismissed with costs on the higher scale, but deft. was not entitled to the costs of the objections not proved by him.—ODDY v. SMITH (1888), 5 R. P. C. 503.

3219. ——.]—G. brought an action for infringement of a patent for improvements in metallic boxes or receptacles for holding alimentary & other substances. By his defence, deft. alleged that the patent was invalid on a number of different grounds, including anticipation.

At the trial pltf.'s first witness, in cross-examination, was unable to distinguish the alleged invention from a previous specification, & the action was dismissed on the ground of that prior publication. Deft. was allowed the cost of all particulars of objections involved in that decision.—GRIFFIN v. FEAVER (1889), 6 R. P. C. 396.

3220. ——.]—NETTLEFOLDS v. REYNOLDS, No. 2723, ante.

3221. ——.]—A certificate as to some of the particulars of objections was given, but the costs of an alleged prior user that had not been proved were given to pltfs.—BONNARD v. LONDON GENERAL OMNIBUS CO., LTD. (1920), 38 R. P. C. 1, H. L.

Annotation:—Reld. Bowen v. Pearson (1924), 42 R. P. C. 101.

3222. ——.]—A certificate as to the particulars of objections with an exception was given, & the costs of an application for leave to deliver a reply that pltfs. had not delivered were made costs in the cause. A certificate that the validity of the patent had come in question was refused.—HAMER v. HAWORTH (1921), 38 R. P. C.

3223. ——.]—SHAW v. BURNET & CO. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 432.

3224. —— Objections not put to plaintiff on cross-examination.]—The owner of a patent for improvements in combined manhole covers & ventilators for sewers brought an action for alleged infringement. Deft. put in issue the validity of the patent on the ground, amongst other things, of anticipation by prior user. At the close of the examination of pltf., who was called as first witness, deft.'s counsel undertook to prove user of articles admitted to be similar in all essential points to the patented article. A witness was accordingly examined on behalf of deft. who had superintended the manufacture of such articles for some years prior to the date of the patent, & the judge dismissed the action, with costs on the lower scale, & gave deft. a certificate that certain of the particulars of objections were reasonable & proper, which did not extend to alleged anticipations, which were not put to pltf. on cross-examination. —BADHAM v. BIRD (1888), 5 R. P. C. 238.

3225. —— Validity not decided—Objections relating to validity allowed.]—JARDINE v. KING, MENDHAM & CO., No. 2478, ante.

3226. —— Objection failing—Particulars necessary for purpose of trial.]—CASTNER KELLNER ALKALI CO. v. COMMERCIAL DEVELOPMENT CORPN., No. 3227, post.

3227. —— Objections to novelty—Patent held novel but bad for disconformity—Particulars assisting court on question of conformity allowed.]

(1) Particulars of an objection to a patent for want of novelty delivered by a deft. enumerated specifications of prior patents. Pltfs.' patent was held novel, but bad for disconformity. The ct. certified that the particulars of such of the specifications as had been of assistance in deciding the question of nonconformity were reasonable & proper, without regard to the general costs of the case.

(2) The cost of transcripts of shorthand notes of evidence for the purpose of appeal allowed.—CASTNER KELLNER ALKALI CO. v. COMMERCIAL DEVELOPMENT CORPN., [1899] 1 Ch. 803; 68 L. J. Ch. 402; 80 L. T. 476; 47 W. R. 534; 43 Sol. Jo. 436, C. A.; on appeal (1900), 17 R. P. C. 593, H. L.

Annotations :—As to (2) Reld. Osmond v. Mutual Cycle & Manufacturing Supply Co. (1899), 68 L. J. Q. B. 1027. Generally, Reld. Kelvin v. Whyte, Thomson (1907), 25 R. P. C. 177.

3228. —— Objections merely matters of evidence.]—ACETYLENE ILLUMINATING CO. v. UNITED ALKALI CO., No. 3432, post.

3229. —— Action dismissed on ground of no invention—Particulars as to subject-matter, vagueness & novelty allowed.] — Pltfs. sued for infringement of a patent for an invention for wire mattresses, which, according to pltfs.' expert witness, consisted in the combination of several parts, with a practical continuity from side to side of the framework, over which the wire fabric was stretched; the device of gaining strength by overlapping being admitted to be an old idea. In dismissing the action on the ground that no invention was proved, the ct. granted a certificate as to the particulars of objections delivered by deft. with respect to (a) subject-matter, (b) vagueness, & (c) novelty.—SIDDALL & HILTON, LTD. v. WOOD (1903), 21 R. P. C. 230.

3230. —— Action confined to one claim of specification.]—BRITISH OXYGEN CO., LTD. v. MAINE LIGHTING CO. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 176.

Annotation :—Reld. Harris v. Brandreth (1925), 42 R. P. C. 471.

3231. —— Objections unnecessary or not material.]—BOWEN v. PEARSON (E. J.) & SONS, LTD. (1924), 42 R. P. C. 101.

3232. Particulars of speculative inquiry—Not allowed.]—The costs of preparing for trial before notice of trial will in no case be allowed between party & party.

In an action for infringing a patent deft. got time to plead, taking short notice of trial, with liberty to pltf. to set down the cause at once. Pleas were delivered, & pltf. had a special jury nominated; but issue was not joined, & no notice of trial was given; pltf. then discontinued :—Held : deft. was not entitled to his costs of preparing for trial. Semble : in preparing particulars of objections to a patent, the costs of inquiring as to the use by others of inventions similar to pltf.'s should not be allowed, as they are the costs of a speculative inquiry.—CURTIS v. PLATT (1864), 16 C. B. N. S. 465; 4 New Rep. 152; 33 L. J. C. P. 255; 10 L. T. 383; 10 Jur. N. S. 823; 143 E. R. 1209.

(d) Action Not Proceeding to Trial.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 20.

3233. Whether certificate granted — Action abandoned.]—In an action for the infringement of a patent, defts. delivered, with their pleas, particulars of objections, pursuant to Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 41. Pltf. having abandoned his action before trial :—Held (1) defts. were entitled to the costs of the particulars; for sect. 43, which provides that pltf. or deft. shall not be allowed the costs of any particular "unless certified by the judge before whom the trial was had to have been proved," does not apply, so as to limit the ordinary right to such costs under Statute of Gloucester, except when the cause comes on for trial; (2) the cause not having been tried, defts., under 6 Geo. 4, c. 50, s. 34, were not entitled to the costs of a special jury applied for by them.—GREAVES v. EASTERN COUNTIES RY. CO. (1859), 1 E. & E. 961; 28 L. J. Q. B. 290; 33 L. T. O. S. 162; 5 Jur. N. S. 733; 7 W. R. 453; 120 E. R. 1171.

Annotation :—As to (1) Distd. Middleton v. Bradley, [1895] 2 Ch. 716.

3234. —— ——.]—Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 29 (6), is not confined to a case where the action is brought on for trial. Consequently, if, after deft. has delivered his statement of defence & particulars of objections, pltf. abandons the action without bringing it on for trial, deft. will not be allowed any costs of his particulars without a certificate of the ct. or a judge that they were reasonable & proper.—MIDDLETON v. BRADLEY, [1895] 2 Ch. 716; 64 L. J. Ch. 888; 73 L. T. 81; 43 W. R. 684; 39 Sol. Jo. 725; 13 R. 737.

Annotation :—Consd. Wilcox & Gibbs v. Janes, [1897] 2 Ch. 71.

3235. —— Action discontinued.]—This was an action for infringement of several patents. Defts. denied infringement, & the validity of the patents. The pleadings were closed in Aug. 1894. No notice of trial was given. Interrogatories were administered by pltfs. in Jan. 1895. In Feb., pltfs. applied by summons for an order that the action be discontinued, with taxed costs to be paid by pltfs. An order was so made in chambers that the action should be discontinued, pltfs. to pay defts.' taxed costs including costs of preparation for trial as the taxing master should think reasonable & also the costs of particulars of objections as if same had been certified. Pltfs. now moved to vary this order by striking out the direction as to costs of preparation for trial & of the particulars.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 11, C. (d), D. & E.]

The judge declined to vary his order stating that as pltfs. asked for leave to discontinue the judge had a discretion to impose terms.—BOAKE ROBERTS & CO. v. STEVENSON & HOWELL (1895), 12 R. P. C. 228.

Annotation :—Reld. Middleton v. Bradley (1895), 13 R. 737.

3236. —— ——.]—In two actions for infringement of letters patent, which had been set down for trial, pltfs. applied for leave to discontinue. Defts. asked that the cts. should impose as a term of such leave, that pltfs. should pay the costs of the particulars of objections as if the same had been certified to be reasonable & proper. Under R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 22, if such an action does not proceed to trial the costs of the issues raised by the particulars of objection are to be in the discretion of the taxing master :—Held : whether or not the rule compelled the ct. to leave the costs in question to the taxing master, it was the proper course, & accordingly the term asked for by defts. was refused.—BIBBY & BARON, LTD. v. STRACHAN & HENSHAW, LTD., BIBBY & BARON, LTD. v. DUERDEN (1911), 28 R. P. C. 305 ; 55 Sol. Jo. 235.

3237. —— —— Terms of leave to discontinue.]—Pltfs. in a patent action applied, after the pleadings had been closed, for leave to discontinue on paying the costs of defts. Defts. asked that leave should only be given on the terms of (a) pltfs. paying costs as between solr. & client ; (b) also paying the costs of the particulars of objection, as if certified ; & (c) not bringing any action against any person whomsoever in respect of the same alleged infringement. The judge granted the leave on terms (a) & (b) & on the terms of pltfs. undertaking not to bring any other action against defts. in respect of the infringement alleged in the pleadings ; in the event of pltfs. not accepting these terms the application was ordered to be dismissed with costs.—CHAMBERLAIN & HOOKHAM, LTD. v. HUDDERSFIELD CORPN. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 454.

3238. —— —— Evidence as to nature of patent necessary.]—Where pltf. in an action for infringement of a patent gives notice of discontinuance before the pleadings are closed, & there is no evidence before the ct. as to the nature of the patent, the ct. cannot inquire into the facts of the case merely for the purpose of determining whether deft. ought to be given a certificate that his particulars of objection were reasonable & proper, so that he may be entitled to the costs of them on taxation.—WILCOX & GIBBS v. JANES, [1897] 2 Ch. 71 ; 66 L. J. Ch. 525 ; 45 W. R. 474 ; 41 Sol. Jo. 469 ; 14 R. P. C. 523.

Annotation :—Consd. Cooper Patent Anchor Ry. Joint Co. v. British Electric Equipment Co. (1906), 95 L. T. 177.

3239. —— —— ——.]—ASHWORTH v. HORSFALL & BICKHAM (1903), 21 R. P. C. 47.

3240. —— —— ——.]—The owners of a patent commenced an action for infringement of it, but discontinued after defence. Defts. applied for a certificate that their particulars of objections were reasonable & proper. A previous action for infringement of the same patent against other defts. had been dismissed, & a certificate had been granted in that action as to some of the particulars of objection. Defts. in this action asked at the hearing of this application for a certificate only as to such particulars of objections as were similar to those certified in the previous action :—Held : a certificate that particulars of objections were reasonable & proper could not be granted.—NEW INVERTED INCANDESCENT GAS LAMP CO., LTD. v. GENERAL INCANDESCENT CO., LTD. (1905), 22 R. P. C. 614.

Annotation :—Apld. Cooper Patent Anchor Ry. Joint Co. v. British Electric Equipment Co. (1906), 95 L. T. 177

3241. —— —— ——.]—Where pltfs. in an action for the infringement of their alleged letters patent gave notice, after delivery of defts.' particulars of objections, of discontinuance of the action in consequence of another action against other defts. for infringement of the same alleged letters patent having been decided against them, the ct., having no materials before it to enable it to exercise its discretion as to granting a certificate under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 29 (6), that the particulars of objections were reasonable & proper, so that defts. might be entitled to the costs of them on taxation, declined to grant such certificate.—COOPER PATENT ANCHOR RAIL JOINT CO., LTD. v. BRITISH ELECTRIC EQUIPMENT CO., LTD. (1906), 95 L. T. 177 ; 23 R. P. C. 606, C. A.

3242. —— No evidence offered at trial.]—AMERICAN STEEL & WIRE CO. v. GLOVER & CO., LTD., No. 3212, ante.

3243. —— Action dismissed for want of prosecution—Reasonableness certified on affidavit evidence.]—Pltf. in a patent action having failed to give notice of trial, defts. applied by motion that the action might stand dismissed for want of prosecution with costs to be paid by pltf. & that the particulars of objections delivered by defts. with their defence might be certified to have been reasonable & proper. The ct. dismissed the action with costs unless pltf. should give notice of trial within ten days, &, being satisfied by affidavits which were filed in support of the motion that the particulars of objections were reasonable & proper, granted a certificate to that effect.—BATES v. HORSFALL & SLADING (1905), 22 R. P. C. 519.

3244. Discretion of taxing master to allow costs—Where action discontinued.]—This was a patent suit in which pltfs., after the briefs were delivered but before the hearing, took the common order dismissing their bill with costs :—Held : (1) on taxation of the costs & notwithstanding the judge had not certified what particulars had been proved, that defts. were entitled to allowances in respect of drawing & settling by counsel particulars of breaches. (2) They were entitled to an allowance in respect of the charges of scientific witnesses, & such allowance was not limited by the rules of taxation at common law, & also they were entitled to an allowance in respect of the cost of a model ; but the ct. followed the taxing master's decision as to amount.—BATLEY v. KYNOCK (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 632 ; 44 L. J. Ch. 565 ; 33 L. T. 45 ; Goodeve's Patent Cases, 36.

Annotations :—As to (2) Distd. Middleton v. Bradley, [1895] 2 Ch. 716. Reld. Mackley v. Chillingworth (1877), 2 C. P. D. 273 ; Turnbull v. Janson (1878), 3 C. P. D. 264. Generally, Reld. Tilghman's Sand Blast Co. v. Wright (1884), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884-1886), 216.

3245. —— ——.]—BIBBY & BARON, LTD. v. STRACHAN & HENSHAW, LTD., BIBBY & BARON, LTD. v. DUERDEN, No. 3236, ante.

3246. —— Where actions abandoned at trial.]—An action was brought by pltfs. for the infringement of three patents. At the trial pltfs. elected not to proceed with the action, so far as it related to two of the patents. The action was tried on the third patent & was dismissed with costs :—Held : the action did not " proceed to trial " on the two abandoned patents within R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 22, & the costs of defts.' particulars of objections to those patents were in the discretion of the taxing master.—BRITISH, FOREIGN & COLONIAL AUTOMATIC LIGHT CONTROLLING CO., LTD. v.

METROPOLITAN GAS METERS, LTD., [1912] 2 Ch. 82; 81 L. J. Ch. 520; 106 L. T. 834; subsequent proceedings, sub nom. METROPOLITAN GAS METERS, LTD. v. BRITISH, FOREIGN & COLONIAL AUTOMATIC LIGHT CONTROLLING CO., LTD., [1913] 1 Ch. 150.

D. Certificate of Reasonableness of Particulars of Breaches.

See R. S. C., Ord. 53A, r. 20.

3247. Plaintiff unsuccessful in action—Whether certificate granted.]—GERM MILLING CO., LTD. v. ROBINSON, No. 2890, ante.

3248. —— ——.]—KANE v. GUEST & CO., No. 3181, ante.

3249. Application for certificate—What must be shown—Not sufficient that particulars not unreasonable.]—GERM MILLING CO., LTD. v. ROBINSON, No. 2890, ante.

3250. Defendant no. appearing—Jurisdiction of court to grant certificate—Patents & Designs Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 29.]—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. PARR (J.) & CO., [1896] W. N. 88.

3251. —— —— —— Particulars examined by court.]—BROOKS v. HALL (1903), 21 R. P. C. 29.

3252. —— —— —— ——.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. SKIDMORE (1903), 21 R. P. C. 31.

3253. —— —— —— ——.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. HAY (1905), 22 R. P. C. 212.

E. Effect of Certificate of Validity.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 35; 1919 (c. 80), sched.

3254. Solicitor & client costs—In subsequent action.]—Semble: where the right has been established at law & the judge certifies that fact, the costs will be ordered to be taxed between solr. & client.—BETTS v. DE VITRE (NO. 2) (1864), as reported in 11 L. T. 533; 11 Jur. N. S. 9.

Annotation:—Refd. Penn v. Bibby, Penn v. Jack, Penn v. Fernie (1866), L. R. 3 Eq. 308.

3255. —— ——.]—BOVILL v. HADLEY, No. 3104, ante.

3256. —— ——.]—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. FAULKNER (1886), 3 R. P. C. 282, n.

3257. —— ——.]—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. FLEMING (2) (1886), 3 R. P. C. 282.

3258. —— ——.]—Pltfs. in the action were the owners of a patent claiming a combination for telephonic purposes of a diaphragm or tympan with electric tension regulators operating in a closed circuit. Deft.'s instrument, which was alleged to be an infringement, consisted of a disc of carbonised leather behind a mouthpiece & a ball of carbonised wood suspended by means of a flexible metallic conductor so as to rest lightly by gravity against the disc. Deft. denied the alleged infringement & contended that his instrument did not contain either of the elements of pltfs.' combination, & did not operate in a closed circuit:—Held: (1) deft.'s disc was a diaphragm within the meaning of the specification; (2) deft.'s disc & ball were tension regulators covered by the specification; (3) deft.'s instrument did operate in a closed circuit; (4) pltfs. were entitled to an injunction in the usual form, including, as they were holders of a judge's certificate that the validity of the patent had already come in question, costs as between solr. & client.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. ST. GEORGE (1886), 3 R. P. C. 321; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 230.

3259. —— ——.]—Costs were given on the higher scale, &, a certificate of validity having been given in a previous action for infringement, the judge refused to direct that the costs should not be as between solr. & client in this action.

It is the duty of the ct. not to upset a patent on merely theoretical objections. If there is a statement which may be substantially true, but which is doubted on scientific theory by scientific witnesses, the ct. ought to be very careful to be satisfied that the objection made is a real objection & not merely the opinion of a scientific man, but it is incumbent on the patentee to adduce evidence sufficient to satisfy the ct. that there were good grounds for granting him his monopoly. If the patentee claims certain results from his invention, & in fact the invention does not produce those results or even if it fails to produce any one of those results out of many, then the Crown has been deceived & the grant is void. But it is necessary to distinguish between the results which the patentee claims from his invention, & the purposes to which, in his opinion, it may be applied. If he says that an invention producing certain definite results may be applied for certain purposes & it then turns out that it cannot be applied for those purposes, that does not affect the validity of the patent (WARRINGTON, J.).—FLOUR OXIDIZING CO., LTD. v. HUTCHINSON (J. & R.) (1909), 26 R. P. C. 597.

3260. —— ——.]—MARCONI v. HELSBY WIRELESS TELEGRAPH CO., No. 2475, ante.

3261. —— ——.]—BRITISH THOMSON-HOUSTON CO., LTD. v. CORONA LAMP WORKS, LTD. (1921), as reported in 39 R. P. C. 49, H. L.

Annotations:—Montd. Act. für Anilin Fabrikation in Berlin v. Levinstein (1921), 38 R. P. C. 277; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. B. T. T. Electric Lamp & Accessories Co. (1922), 39 R. P. C. 167.

3262. —— —— Party & party costs in suit in which validity granted.]—PENN v. BIBBY, PENN v. JACK, PENN v. FERNIE, No. 2545, ante.

3263. —— —— Where validity not disputed.]—(1) Where in a suit for infringement of a patent the ct. had jurisdiction to grant an injunction at the time the bill was filed, but the patent expired before the hearing:—Held: the ct. had jurisdiction at the hearing to grant an inquiry as to damages.

(2) Full costs granted under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 43, to the patentee, though defts. did not contest the validity of the patent.—DAVENPORT v. RYLANDS (1865), L. R. 1 Eq. 302; 35 L. J. Ch. 204; 14 L. T. 53; 12 Jur. N. S. 71; 14 W. R. 243.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Betts v. Gallais (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 392; Fritz v. Hobson (1880), 14 Ch. D. 542. Refd. Frame Manufacturing Co. v. Morton (1922), 40 R. P. C. 33. As to (2) Distd. Penn v. Bibby, Penn v. Jack, Penn v. Fernie (1866), L. R. 3 Eq. 308. Generally, Mentd. Leeds Industrial Co-op. Soc. v. Slack (1924), 40 T. L. R. 745.

3264. —— —— ——.]—An action was brought for an alleged infringement of two patents, claiming an injunction & damages. Deft. did not dispute the validity of the patents, but denied the infringement. Deft., however, paid a sum of money into ct. in the alternative. At the hearing deft. did not oppose the claim for an injunction, & the usual inquiry as to damages was directed to be made. Pltfs. proved the certificate as to the validity of the patents having been questioned in previous actions under Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 43, & Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 31, & asked for costs as between solr. & client. Deft. applied to the judge to certify that pltfs. ought not to have costs as between solr. & client, on the ground that the validity of pltfs.' patent had not been disputed, & their claim to relief not seriously contested by deft.:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to costs of the action as between solr. & client, those of the reference as to damages being reserved; & the fact that deft. had not disputed the validity of the patent, & had by paying money into ct. so far admitted his liability, afforded no ground for granting him a certificate depriving pltfs. of costs as between solr. & client.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO., LTD. v. PATTERSON (1888), 60 L. T. 315; 6 R. P. C. 140.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 11, E., F. & G.]

3265. —— —— ——.]—FABRIQUES DE PRODUITS CHIMIQUES DE THANN & DE MULHOUSE v. LAFITTE (1899), 16 R. P. C. 61.

3266. —— —— ——.]—WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO. v. DAYLIGHT INCANDESCENT MANTLE CO., LTD. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 344; on appeal, 17 R. P. C. 141, C. A.

Annotation:—Mentd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Sterling Accessories, Same v. Crowther & Osborn, [1924] 2 Ch. 33.

3267. —— —— ——.]—In an action brought for an injunction to restrain the infringement of five patents, which covered all known methods of making pure saccharin, pltfs. were unable to prove which of the patents had been infringed. The evidence showed that the infringing articles complained of consisted of pure saccharin; that pure saccharin could not be produced by the use of the processes described in an expired patent for saccharin upon which deft. relied; & that one of the patents sued upon must have been infringed:—Held: an injunction & inquiry as to damages should be granted, but that the injunction should be limited to the period covered by the oldest of the five unexpired patents. Pltfs. were awarded the costs of both actions; but although they held a certificate of validity of one of the patents, the judge, as the only issue in the actions was infringement, certified for party & party costs.—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. v. DAWSON (1902), 46 Sol. Jo. 281; 19 R. P. C. 169.

Annotations:—Consd. British Vacuum Co. v. Exton Hotels Co. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 617. Mentd. Saccharin Corpn. v. Wild, [1903] 1 Ch. 410; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth, Peebles (1923), 40 R. P. C. 426.

3268. —— —— ——.]—Where a certificate as to validity of a patent had been granted in an action for infringement, the ct., having in a subsequent action in which validity was not denied, found infringement, refused to direct that pltfs. should not have solr. & client costs.

I will state that pltfs. offered to accept £60 by way of damages &, defts. not accepting that, I order an inquiry (WARRINGTON, J.).—BRITISH VACUUM CO., LTD. v. EXTON HOTELS CO., LTD. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 617.

3269. —— —— Defendants consenting to settle & pay party & party costs.]—In an action for infringement of a patent, the validity of which had been certified to have come in question in a previous action, pltfs. moved for an interlocutory injunction; defts. consented to settle the action & to pay pltfs.' costs as between party & party:—Held: defts. must pay costs as between solr. & client.—UNITED TELEPHONE CO. v. TOWNSHEND & MERCER (1885), 3 R. P. C. 10.

3270. —— —— Not in action commenced before certificate granted.] — AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO. v. INTERNATIONAL HYGIENIC SOCIETY (1889), 6 R. P. C. 475.

Corpn. v. Anglo-Continental Sacc

Co. v. Exton Hotels Co. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 617.

3271. —— —— ——.]—SACCHARIN CORPN., LTD. ANGLO-CONTINENTAL CHEMICAL WORKS, No. 2315, ante.

3272. —— —— Faulty specification causing ...ment litigation.]—(1) If the invention is such there is nothing new in it unless you have regard to the whole combination & all its parts as arranged, then nothing would seem to be an infringement which does not comprise the whole combination & all its parts as described, or the mechanical equivalents of such described parts respectively. But the invention may be such that you find novelty without having regard to the whole combination & all its parts as described; that is to say, you may find that there is an essence or substance of invention underlying or pervading the particular combination & arrangement described in the letters patent, so that the combination & arrangement may be regarded as a specific instance of the kind of invention underlying or pervading the patented combination. In the former case, as I said, there is in my opinion no infringement unless the alleged piratical machine takes the whole combination & all its parts or their respective mechanical equivalents. But in the latter case there will be or may be an infringement, though in the details there may be material parts or steps which are neither the parts of the patented machine as described nor the mechanical equivalents of such respective parts (VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, J.).

(2) As to the costs between solr. & client I think there is no sort of ground for it. The fact of the matter is, that although this case has been tried before, the necessity for this frequent litigation arises very much from the unhappy & lax manner in which the letters patent have been framed (VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, J.).—AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO. v. NATIONAL EXHIBITIONS ASSOCN., LTD. (1891), 8 R. P. C. 345; on appeal, 9 R. P. C. 41, C. A.

Annotations:—As to (1) Expld. Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co. v. Mullard Radio Valve Co. (1924), 41 R. P. C. 323. Reid. Automatic Weighing Machine Co. v. Fearly (1893), 10 T. L. R. 22; Ticket Punch Register Co. v. Colley's Patent (1895), 12 R. P. C. 1.

3273. —— —— Where extent of patent questioned.]—The owners of a patent granted in 1890 to Welch for "Improvements in rubber tyres & metal rims or felloes of wheels for cycles & other light vehicles," the validity of which had been certified, having brought an action for infringement, deft. by his defence (inter alia) denied infringement, & alleged that the patent only applied to the wires used in the manufacture of the tyres, & that such wires, when once purchased, could be used again. The specification had been construed by the House of Lords, & at the trial deft. relied mainly on non-infringement:—Held: deft. had infringed; judgment was given for pltfs., &, as deft. had raised questions as to the extent of the patent, pltfs. were not deprived of solr. & client costs.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. WILSON (1900), 17 R. P. C. 332.

3274. —— —— Validity & infringement denied —Set-off.]—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. WAPSHARE TUBE CO., LTD., No. 3286, post.

3275. —— —— —— Party & party costs on counterclaim.]—In an action for infringement of the patent a certificate of validity had been granted. A subsequent action for infringement was brought & pltfs. claimed costs as between solr. & client. Defts. denied infringement & validity & made a counterclaim for revocation of the patent. An injunction & an inquiry as to damages were granted with solr. & client costs of the action. The counterclaim was dismissed with party & party costs.—BRITISH VACUUM CLEANER CO., LTD. v. LONDON & SOUTH-WESTERN RY. CO. (1910), 27 R. P. C. 649; on appeal, 28 R. P. C. 77, C. A.; (1912), 29 R. P. C. 309, H. L.

3276. —— —— Certificate granted prior to amendment of specification—Subsequent action on

(J. B.) & CO., LTD. v. KENDALL, UNDERWOOD & CO., LTD. (1906), 24 R. P. C. 27.

3277. —— Necessity for express direction.]—In a suit for the infringement of a patent, where the ct. considers pltf. entitled to full costs as between solr. & client, the decree or order should contain an express direction that the costs be so taxed, notwithstanding Patent Law Amendment Act, 1852 (c. 83), s. 43, provides that he shall have such full costs unless the judge shall certify that he ought not to have them.—LISTER v. LEATHER (1858), 4 K. & J. 425; 70 E. R. 177.

Annotations:—Expld. Penn v. Bibby, Penn v. Jack, Penn v. Fernie (1866), L. R. 3 Eq. 308. Reld. North Metropolitan Tram. Co. v. L. C. C., [1898] 2 Ch. 145. Mentd. Printing & Numerical Registering Co. v. Sampson (1875), 32 L. T. 354.

3278. To what costs certificate extends—Costs of postponement.]—The P. co., as owners of a patent granted to W., the validity of which was established in a previous action, brought an action for infringement against the L. co. On the action coming on for trial, R. appeared as agent of the L. co. for the purpose of conducting their defence. The judge ruled that he was unable to do so, & the trial was postponed to enable the L. co. to instruct counsel. On the action coming on again for trial, the only defence relied upon was non-infringement, all other defences having been withdrawn:—Held: the L. co. had infringed, & judgment was given for pltfs., with solr. & client costs, such costs to include the costs occasioned by the postponement of the trial.—PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. WEST LONDON RUBBER & TYRE CO., LTD. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 129.

F. Undertaking or Arrangement Offered.

3279. Offer to withdraw appeal—Subject to variation of order appealed from—In conformity with decision favourable to appellant—Effect of refusal.]—Applts. gave notice to resp. that a decision favourable to their contention on one point of the pending appeal having been given in another case by a ct. of final appeal, they were prepared to withdraw from the remaining points of their appeal & pay resp.'s costs up to the date of their doing so, on condition that resp. would consent to a variation in the order appealed from, in conformity with the decision favourable to applts.' one contention which had been so given during the pendency of the appeal. Applts. added that in the event of resp. rendering it necessary to proceed with the appeal in spite of such decision they should, if successful, ask for the costs of the appeal. Resp. declined to consent to such variation:—Held: he must pay the costs of the appeal from the date of his refusal to accede to applts.' proposal.—DE VITRE v. BETTS (1873), L. R. 6 H. L. 319; 42 L. J. Ch. 841; 21 W. R. 705, H. L.; varying S. C. sub nom. BETTS v. DE VITRE (1868), 3 Ch. App. 441, L. C.

Annotations:—Reld. Watson v. Holliday (1882), 20 Ch. D. 780; Gill v. Coutts & Cutler (1895), 13 R. P. C. 136; British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Sterling Accessories, Same v. Crowther & Osborn, [1924] 2 Ch. 33. Mentd. Belvedere Fish Guano Co. v. Rainham Chemical Works, Feldman & Partridge, Ind, Coope v. Same, [1920] 2 K. B. 487.

3280. Defendant offering to submit & pay damages—Effect of refusal.]—H. wrote to the C. co., complaining of infringement of his patent, & a correspondence ensued. The C. co. admitted certain infringements in 1893 & 1895, stating that they had acted without knowledge of the patent. H. offered to accept a prompt payment of £150 on the co. undertaking to publish an apology. The co. sent a cheque for £150, but declined to make an apology. The cheque was returned by pltf.'s solrs., & an action for infringement was commenced. Defts. paid £150 into ct., which pltf. accepted in satisfaction of his claim for damages. The action came on upon motion for judgment:—Held: (1) pltf. was not entitled to an injunction, as he had not proved that defts. intended to commit any further infringement; (2) no costs ought to be given down to the time when pltf. accepted the £150 in satisfaction of damages, & pltf. must pay defts.' costs subsequent to that date.—HUDSON v. CHATTERIS ENGINEERING WORKS CO. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 438.

3281. —— ——.]—The owner of a patent brought an action for infringement, & defts. by letter offered an undertaking not to infringe, delivery up, & a sum for damages & costs down to the date of the letter. Pltf. accepted this offer, but desired an order of the ct., & defts. offered to submit to an order giving effect to the terms. They refused to consent to pay the costs of obtaining it, but were willing to leave the matter to the ct. Pltf. thereupon brought the matter before the ct. on a motion for an injunction. At the hearing the only question was as to the costs of an order to give effect to the agreed terms:—Held: pltf. had shown himself unreasonable, & the motion was wholly unnecessary, as it was only necessary to have mentioned the matter to the ct., & defts. were entitled under the circumstances to their costs since the date of the letter, with a set-off.—GILL v. PHILIPS (GEORGE) & SON, LTD. (1911), 29 R. P. C. 397.

——.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., pp. 545, 546, 547, Nos. 1526, 1527, 1534, 1541.

G. Costs on Higher Scale.

3282. Grounds for allowing—Costs of appeal—Costs allowed on higher scale in court below.]—CONSOLIDATED PNEUMATIC TOOL CO., LTD. v. CLARK, SAME v. ARMSTRONG (SIR W. G.), WHITWORTH & CO., LTD., SAME v. INGERSOLL SERGEANT DRILL CO., No. 3184, ante.

3283. —— —— ——.]—GADD & MASON v. MANCHESTER CORPN. (1892), 67 L. T. 569; 9 R. P. C. 516; 9 T. L. R. 42, C. A.

Annotations:—Reld. Pirrie v. York Street Flax Spinning Co. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 429; Cassel Gold Extracting Co. v. Cyanide Gold Recovery Syndicate (1895), 11 T. L. R. 345; Shrewsbury & Talbot S. T. Cab. Co. v. Sterckx (1895), 12 T. L. R. 122; Savage v. Harris (1896), 12 T. L. R. 187; Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Leicester Pneumatic Tyre & Automatic Valve Co. (1898), 16 R. P. C. 50; Taylor & Scott v. Annand & Northern Press & Engineering Co. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 547; Layland v. Boldy (1913), 29 T. L. R. 651; Norton v. Barker (1913), 30 R. P. C. 229. 741; Re Mertens' Patent (1914), 31 R. P. C. 373.

3284. —— Questions of unusual difficulty.]—GADD & MASON v. MANCHESTER CORPN., No. 3283, ante.

3285. —— —— Making scientific witnesses necessary.]—ELLINGTON v. CLARK, BUNNETT & CO., No. 2952, ante.

3286. —— —— ——.]—The action was dismissed with costs except so far as they were increased by the issue of invalidity, the costs of which deft. was ordered to pay. Costs on the higher scale & of three counsel were allowed & on the issue of invalidity pltfs. obtained costs as between solr. & client, a certificate of validity having been obtained in a previous action on the patent, a set-off of costs was ordered.

The questions I have had to consider have been very complicated questions of mechanics on which very skilled persons have had very great difficulty in arriving at a conclusion. I think that the case is one in which, upon special grounds, the costs ought to be allowed on the higher scale & costs of three counsel (BUCKLEY, J.).—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. WAPSHARE TUBE CO., LTD. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 433.

Sect. 2.—Legal proceedings in respect of infringement: Sub-sect. 11, G., H., I. & J. Part XV. Sect. 1.]

3287. —— —— ——.]—FLOUR OXIDIZING CO., LTD. v. HUTCHINSON (J. & R.), No. 3259, ante.

H. Costs on Discontinuance.

3288. Action dropped by tacit agreement—Subsequent motion to discontinue—Each party to bear own costs.]—Where an action set down in the list for trial has been dropped by tacit agreement between the parties without any special or express stipulation, & without any provision in the event, which happened in this case, of the agreement for the settlement of their differences subsequently going off:—Held: (1) on deft.'s motion, the action should be restored to the list, it was a lis pendens & could be restored; (2) on pltfs.' motion for leave to discontinue, owing to the tacit agreement pltfs. were entitled to discontinue it, if they chose to do so, each party to bear their own costs.—BROOKS (J. B.) & CO., LTD. v. LYCETT (1902), 19 R. P. C. 166.

3289. Notice of discontinuance bad—Action dismissed with costs.]—VICKERS, SONS & MAXIM, LTD. v. COVENTRY ORDNANCE WORKS, LTD. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 207.

Costs of motion for injunction & inquiry as to damages.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 521, No. 1276.

Costs of particulars of objections on discontinuance.]—See Sub-sect. 11, C. (d), ante.

I. Security for Costs.

3290. Appeal—Must be given within three months—Or reasonable time—Extenuating circumstances.]—The ct. laid it down as a general rule that when security for the costs of an appeal is ordered to be given, & three months or what the ct. considers a reasonable time has elapsed without such security being given, an order will be made for the dismissal of the appeal, unless there are extenuating circumstances, in which case the ct. will take such circumstances into consideration, & will, if it grants further time, fix that time itself. In the present case, a reasonable time having elapsed, & no extenuating circumstances having been shown, the appeal would be dismissed (per CUR.).—WASHBURN & MOEN MANUFACTURING CO. v. PATTERSON (1885), 29 Ch. D. 48; 54 L. J. Ch. 643; 52 L. T. 705; 33 W. R. 403; 1 T. L. R. 278; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 240, C. A.

—— Defendants becoming bankrupt pending appeal.]—See BANKRUPTCY, Vol. V., p. 1006, No. 8206.

3291. Against whom ordered—Plaintiff company in infringement action—Patent substratum of company.]—In an action by a limited co. for infringement of letters patent defts., after delivery of defence, applied for security for costs of the action:—Held: the patents were the substratum of the co., & under the circumstances of the case security ought to be given either in £100 cash to be brought into ct., or to the satisfaction of the master upon that part of the assets of the co. which consisted of buildings & machinery.—DIAMOND STEEL MANUFACTURING CO. v. HARRISON BROTHERS (1910), 27 R. P. C. 451.

3292. —— Not against respondent resident abroad—In petition for revocation.]—Resp. appearing to a petition for the revocation of letters patent presented under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 36, is not in the position of pltf. & ought not to be ordered to give security for the costs of the petition though resident abroad.—Re MILLER'S PATENT (1894), 63 L. J. Ch. 324; 70 L. T. 270; 11 R. P. C. 55.

Annotation:—Apld. Maatschappij voor Fondsenbezit v. Shell Transport & Trading Co., [1923] 2 K. B. 166.

J. Particular Items of Costs.

3293. Interrogatories & inspection of machine—Not included in general costs—Unless so ordered.]—In an action for infringing a patent, pltf. obtained judge's orders to interrogate a servant of deft., & to inspect a wheel, which was alleged to be an infringement of the patent. These orders gave no direction as to costs. Pltf. became entitled to the general costs of the cause & the master allowed him all the costs of the inspection & examination upon interrogatories:—Held: upon a review of the master's taxation pltf. was not entitled to those costs.—SMITH v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1856), 6 E. & B. 405; 25 L. J. Q. B. 279; 27 L. T. O. S. 122; 2 Jur. N. S. 668; 119 E. R. 916; sub nom. SMITH v. LONDON & GREAT WESTERN RY. CO., Macr. 228.

Annotation:—Refd. Nolan v. Copeman (1873), 42 L. J. Q. B. 44.

3294. Costs of special jury—Action discontinued.]—GREAVES v. EASTERN COUNTIES RY. CO., No. 3233, ante.

3295. Costs of third counsel—Discretion of taxing master.]—The case of Betts v. Menzies (1857), 3 Jur. N. S. 885, as I well remember, was imported into the argument as a substantive part of pltf.'s case. The evidence & the judge's notes in that case were proved & read. After that, it cannot be said to be unreasonable that a gentleman of the common law bar, who had been engaged in that case, should be retained to explain to the ct. what had occurred upon the trial of which evidence had been given in the cause. Therefore quite irrespectively of the weight & importance of the cause I think there are special circumstances to justify the taxing master's decision, which I am not disposed to vary (PAGE-WOOD, V.-C.).—BETTS v. CLIFFORD (1860), 1 John. & H. 74; 3 L. T. 36; 70 E. R. 667.

Annotations:—Refd. Mounsey v. Lonsdale, A.-G. v. Lonsdale (1870), 6 Ch. App. 141. Mentd. Davies v. Marshall (No. 1) (1861), 1 Drew. & Sm. 557; Gale v. Abbott (1862), 6 L. T. 852.

3296. ——.]—BRADFORD DYERS' ASSOCN., LTD. v. BURY, BRADFORD DYERS' ASSOCN., LTD. v. WILLIAMS (1901), 19 R. P. C. 125.

3297. ——.] — WILSON v. WILSON BROTHERS BOBBIN CO., LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 741.

3298. Costs of preparing for trial—Before notice of trial—Not allowed between party & party.]—CURTIS v. PLATT, No. 3232, ante.

3299. Costs of expert witnesses.]—BATLEY v. KYNOCK, No. 3244, ante.

3300. —— Fees for experiments.]—LEONHARDT & CO. v. KALLÉ & CO., No. 2513, ante.

3301. —— Assisting counsel—Not allowed unless specially ordered.]—CONSOLIDATED PNEUMATIC TOOL CO. v. INGERSOLL SERGEANT DRILL CO. (1908), 25 R. P. C. 574.

3302. Costs of preparing model.]—BATLEY v. KYNOCK, No. 3244, ante.

3303. ——.] — WILSON v. WILSON BROTHERS BOBBIN CO., LTD., No. 3297, ante.

3304. Costs of preparing particulars of objection—Action discontinued.]—GREAVES v. EASTERN COUNTIES RY. CO., No. 3233, ante.

3305. Costs of settling particulars of breaches—Allowed to defendants—Although particulars not certified.]—BATLEY v. KYNOCK, No. 3244, ante.

3306. Costs of shorthand notes—Solicitor & client costs.]—Where on the trial of a patent action it was agreed in open ct. between counsel for the parties with the sanction of the judge that a shorthand writer's note of the evidence to be taken on behalf of the parties jointly should be used as the record of the evidence for the purposes of the trial:—Held: the solr. of a party to the action was entitled to charge his client with money disbursed as his share of the cost of taking the shorthand note.—OSMOND v. MUTUAL CYCLE & MANUFACTURING SUPPLY CO., [1899] 2 Q. B. 488; 68 L. J. Q. B. 1027; 81 L. T. 254; 48 W. R. 125, C. A.

Annotations:—Consd. East London Ry. v. Thames Conservators (1904), 48 Sol. Jo. 492. Distd. Jones v. Llanrwst U. C., [1911] 1 Ch. 393. Apld. Re Roney, [1914] 2 K. B. 529. Consd. Seal v. Turner, [1915] 3 K. B. 194.

3307. —— Copies necessary for court—Allowed as between party & party.]—CASTNER KELLNER ALKALI CO. v. COMMERCIAL DEVELOPMENT CORPN., No. 3227, ante.

3308. Costs of preliminary inspection of machinery.]—ASHWORTH v. ENGLISH CARD CLOTHING CO., LTD. (No. 1), No. 2880, ante.

3309. Interest on costs—Where repayment ordered on appeal.]—Action for an infringement of a patent was dismissed with costs, & pltf. paid defts.' costs with interest to date. Upon pltf. successfully appealing to the Ct. of Appeal, deft. repaid the amount so received with interest to date. The House of Lords restored the original order, & pltf. repaid the original amount of costs & interest, but refused to satisfy defts.' claim for interest at 4 per cent. on the amount from the date of the repayment after the Ct. of Appeal decision to the date of the return after the House of Lords decision:—Held: defts. were entitled to this further sum in respect of interest.—ASHWORTH v. ENGLISH CARD CLOTHING CO., LTD. (No. 2), [1904] 1 Ch. 704; 73 L. J. Ch. 282; 90 L. T. 263; 21 R. P. C. 355.

3310. Costs of application to deliver reply—Reply not delivered—Costs in cause.]—HAMER v. HAWORTH, No. 3222, ante.

Costs of interlocutory injunction where motion ordered to stand over.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 549, No. 1565.

Part XV.—Legal Proceedings.

SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

3311. Discretion of court—Declaratory judgment that patent invalid ab initio.]—NORTH EASTERN MARINE ENGINEERING CO. v. LEEDS FORGE CO., No. 2211, ante.

3312. —— Application for leave to discontinue—Granted on terms.]—A patentee brought an action for an infringement of his patent. After he had delivered his reply, he discovered that he would probably lose his action unless he should first have corrected his specification. He therefore applied for leave to discontinue the action:—Held: inasmuch as the patentee could not, with any leave the ct. could give him, sue on a specification corrected during the action, it would not be fair, or in accordance with the intention of Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 19, to allow him to discontinue on such terms that he would be in a position to bring a subsequent action on the same footing as if in the previous action he had obtained leave to correct the specification. Leave to discontinue would be granted only on the terms that he should not bring any other action against the alleged infringer in respect of any infringement alleged in the particulars of breaches.—ROBERTSON v. PURDEY, [1906] 2 Ch. 615; 75 L. J. Ch. 685; 95 L. T. 330; 23 R. P. C. 79.

3313. Allegation that patent obtained in defraud of plaintiffs' right—Claim for injunction & damages—Statutory remedy for revocation not pursued.]—A patent having been granted to B., an action was commenced by T. C. against B. for a declaration that deft. had obtained the patent fraudulently & in fraud of pltfs.' rights, or, in the alternative, a declaration that the patent was bad on the ground of disconformity between the provisional & complete specifications; & for an injunction restraining deft. from dealing with the patent; & an inquiry as to damages. At the trial, deft. took a preliminary objection that the relief claimed was inappropriate, the statutory remedy being revocation of the patent:—Held: if the ct. were to make the declaration claimed, it could not give any consequential relief, & where that was so, it was not the practice of the ct. to make declarations; the injunction claimed could not be granted, because the appropriate remedy, if

PART XV. SECT. 1.

o. Jurisdiction — Of foreign court —Validity.]—The grant of letters patent is an exercise of the Sovereign power of the State, & therefore, as in the case of title to land, the validity of the grant is not examinable in the cts. of another State, except in cases where the question of that validity arises merely incidentally in an action otherwise cognisable by the cts. of that other State.—POTTER v. BROKEN HILL PROPRIETARY CO., LTD. (1906), 3 C. L. R. 479.—AUS.

p. —— Of Supreme Court — To entertain appeal.]—There can be no appeal to the Supreme Ct. of Canada in an action in respect to a patent of invention where the validity of the patent is not in question & it does not appear that the matter in controversy exceeds $1,000, the amount limited by 60 & 61 Vic. c. 34 (D), providing for appeals from the Province of Ontario.—MCLAUGHLIN v. LAKE ERIE & DETROIT RIVER RY. CO. (1903), Cout. 297.—CAN.

q. —— —— ——.]—VICTOR SPORTING GOODS CO. v. HAROLD A. WILSON CO. (1904), Cout. 330.—CAN.

r. —— Of Exchequer Court — In patent actions generally.]—The Exchequer Ct. has no jurisdiction at common law in actions respecting patents for invention, & where any relief is sought in respect of such matters the jurisdiction of the ct. to grant the same must be found in some statute. The ct. cannot entertain proceedings to obtain a declaration of the respective rights of parties inter se arising under assignments of a patent for invention; nor for a declaration that such assignments are invalid, & that the registration thereof should be vacated.—FELT GAS COMPRESSING CO. v. FELT (1913), 14 Exch. C. R. 311; 14 D. L. R. 395.—CAN.

t. —— —— ——.]—The Exchequer Ct. has jurisdiction to determine conflicting applications for patents notwithstanding the pending of a similar proceeding before the Comr. of Patents, by way of arbn., under Patent Act, 1906, s. 20; where jurisdiction is assumed the other proceedings will be stayed.—HUTCHINS CAR ROOFING CO. v. BURNETT (Ont.) (1916), 16 Exch. C. R. 391.—CAN.

a. —— —— To grant leave to appeal.]—Unless an order upon a demurrer be a decision upon the issues raised therein, leave to appeal to the Supreme Ct. of Canada cannot be granted under Exchequer Ct. Act, ss. 51, 52, as amended by 2 Edw. 7, c. 8.—TORONTO TYPE FOUNDRY CO. v. MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE CO. (1905), 36 S. C. R. 593.—CAN.

b. —— Of sheriff's court.]—GILL v. CUTLER (1895), 23 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 371; 33 Sc. L. R. 218; 3 S. L. T. 205.—SCOT.

c. Venue.]—In an action for the

it could be given, would be revocation ; & as there was no allegation of common law fraud, damages could not be given.—TRACTION CORPN., LTD. v. BENNETT (1908), 25 R. P. C. 819.

3314. Unpatented secret ideas—Alleged communication in breach of agreement—Particulars of ideas.]—Confidential information relating to the manufacture of coal gas was alleged by H. to have been communicated by him to the works committee of a municipal corpn. It was also alleged that by an agreement in writing the committee had undertaken not to disclose the information without H.'s authority, & not to use it until an agreement had been made with regard to it, & that a licence to use certain letters patent relating to the manufacture of coal gas had been granted by H. to the corpn. An action was commenced by H. against the corpn. for royalties under the licence for damages for breach of the agreement, & for an injunction to restrain defts. from using the information or ideas communicated to them by pltf., except at a gasworks specified in the agreement. Defts. made an application for particulars of the ideas referred to in the statement of claim : —Held : pltf. must give particulars of such of the ideas as were the subject of letters patent, & also particulars, subject to proper safeguards as to matters that were secret, of any other ideas alleged by pltf. to be secret, with liberty to apply. —HELPS v. OLDHAM CORPN. (1923), 40 R. P. C. 68.

SECT. 2.—IN RESPECT OF INFRINGEMENT.

See Part XIV., Sect. 2, ante.

SECT. 3.—IN RESPECT OF THREAT OF LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

3315. Necessity for existing patent.]—Upon its true construction, the Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 36, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 20, presupposes the existence of a patent, in respect of whose infringement legal proceedings are threatened ; so that a threat by a person who has applied for a patent & whose complete specification has been accepted, but to whom a patent has not at the time of making the threat been granted, & is ultimately refused, is not a threat within the meaning of that section in respect of which a remedy is provided.—ELLIS & SONS v. POGSON, [1923] 2 Ch. 496 ; 93 L. J. Ch. 16 ; 129 L. T. 524 ; 67 Sol. Jo. 657 ; 40 R. P. C. 179, C. A.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 36 ; 1919 (c. 80), sched.

3316. Whether plaintiff may raise question of validity.]—CHALLENDER v. ROYLE, No. 2273, ante.

3317. —— Amendment of pleadings—After lapse of time.]—In an action under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, to restrain a patentee from issuing threats, pltfs in their statement of claim alleged that defts.' patent was invalid. The judge ordered this allegation to be struck out, being of opinion that the validity of defts.' patent could not be tried in such an action. After nearly a year, the time for appealing against that order having long expired, pltfs. applied to the judge to whom the action had been transferred, for liberty to amend the statement of claim by inserting an allegation that defts.' patent was invalid. The judge refused the application, & pltfs. appealed :—Held : liberty to amend ought to be given but upon special terms, in order that defts. might not suffer any loss by pltfs. not having taken the proper course of appealing in due time from the order of the judge.—KURTZ v. SPENCE (1887), 36 Ch. D. 770 ; 58 L. T. 320 ; 36 W. R. 438 ; 3 T. L. R. 827, C. A.

Annotations :—Refd. Challender v. Royle (1887), 57 L. T. 734 ; Barrett v. Day, Day v. Foster (1890), 43 Ch. D. 435.

3318. Right to particulars — Of objections — Plaintiff alleging defendants' patents to be invalid.] —Pltfs. brought an action to restrain defts., who were holders of various patents for electric accumulators, from threatening pltfs.' customers with legal proceedings for infringement, & by their statement of claim alleged that defts.' patents were invalid. No specific statement had been made by defts. which patents they alleged to be infringed. Defts., who had not delivered a defence, applied for particulars of objections. The judge ordered pltfs. to deliver particulars of objections within a limited time after defts. had given to pltfs. a list of the patents on which the defts. intended to rely. Defts. appealed, asking for an unconditional order on pltfs. to deliver objections :—Held : the order under appeal was right, but defts. ought also to state that they relied on no other patents than those in the list, & pltfs. ought to undertake, when the list had been delivered, to amend their statement of claim so as to define the patents the validity of which they disputed.—UNION ELECTRICAL POWER & LIGHT CO. v. ELECTRICAL STORAGE CO. (1888), 38 Ch. D. 325 ; 59 L. T. 427 ; 36 W. R. 913 ; 5 R. P. C. 329, C. A.

3319. —— Of threats—Names of customers.]—In an action to restrain threats :—Held : defts. were entitled to particulars of the threats complained of, but not to the names of customers whom pltfs. had in consequence thereof promised infringement of a patent, pltf. laid the venue in H., while deft. was a resident of T. :—Held : regarding the language of Patent Act, 1872, s. 24, the venue should be laid in the county where deft. resided : & an order was made to change the place of trial to T.—GOLDSMITH v. WALTON (1881), 9 P. R. 10.—CAN.

d. ——.]—The venue in an action to restrain the infringement of a patent, must be laid at the place of sittings of the ct. in which the action is brought, nearest to the place of residence or business of deft.—AITCHESON v. MANN (1883), 9 P. R. 473.—CAN.

e. ——.]—In an action for damages for infringement of a patent, the writ need not be issued out of the registry nearest the place of residence or business of defts., but Patent Act, s. 30, is complied with if the venue is laid at the place of such registry.—SHORT v. FEDERATION BRAND SALMON CANNING CO. (1898), 6 B. C. R. 385.—CAN.

f. Jury.]—An action for the infringement of a patent should not ordinarily be tried by a jury.—VERMILYEA v. GUTHRIE (1882), 9 P. R. 267.—CAN.

g. Security for costs.]—Pltfs. & deft. each applied for a patent of invention in the Patent Office, & the Comr. having declared there was conflict, pltfs. brought action before this ct. to have the matter of this conflict decided & to have it declared who was the first inventor :—Held : as in such an action each party is seeking affirmative relief & as such each party is as much pltf. as the other, deft. becoming quasi pltf., if he resides out of the jurisdiction may be ordered to give security for pltf.'s costs.—ROWE v. THOMAS, [1925] Exch. C. R. 117.—CAN.

h. Action on contract—Invalidity of patent as defence—Claim for revocation.]—TODD & HIGGINBOTHAM v. O'REGAN (1859), 21 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 1320 ; 31 Sc. Jur. 725.—SCOT.

to indemnify.—LAW v. ASHWORTH (1890), 7 R. P. C. 86.

3320. —— —— Names of agents making threats.]—In an action to restrain threats of legal proceedings for infringement of a patent, pltfs. alleged that they complained of threats made by defts.' agents on certain specified dates to certain persons named. On an application by defts. for particulars:—Held: pltfs. must give the names of the agents of defts. by whom they alleged the threats to have been made.—DOWSON, TAYLOR & CO., LTD. v. DROSOPHORE CO., LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 536.

3321. —— Of infringement—Defendant not alleging infringement—Refusing to admit non-infringement.]—DOWSON, TAYLOR & CO., LTD. v. DROSOPHORE CO., LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 653.

3322. Service out of the jurisdiction.]—OVERTON & CO. v. BURN, LOWE & SONS (1896), 74 L. T. 776; 40 Sol. Jo. 620, C. A.

SUB-SECT. 2.—WHO MAY SUE.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 36; 1919 (c. 80), sched.

3323. Person aggrieved.]—KENSINGTON & KNIGHTSBRIDGE ELECTRIC LIGHTING CO. v. LANE FOX ELECTRICAL CO., No. 3399, post.

3324. Former licencee of patent.]—AXMANN v. LUND, No. 3353, post.

3325. Applicant for patent—Holding provisional protection.]—BURT v. MORGAN & CO., LTD. (1887), 3 T. L. R. 666.

Annotation:—Refd. Challender v. Royle (1887), 36 Ch. D. 425.

3326. Manufacturer whose customers are threatened.]—A. & co., B., & H. were all three rival manufacturers of blue & B. had in 1884 taken out a patent for a particular method of wrapping up his blue. In Aug. 1890, H. began using similar wrappers, & in Feb. 1890, B. brought an action against him for having passed off his goods as those of B., in which action B., in Nov. 1890, recovered £500 damages. About that time A. & co. began using wrappers something like B.'s. Between Aug. & Nov. 1890, B. sent out in his boxes of blue the following circular signed by his solrs.: Notice to grocers & others—Information of extensive violation of Mr. B.'s patent rights has been received, all parties are warned not to infringe these rights. This circular was received by some of A. & co.'s customers, though not by A. & co. themselves. In Dec. 1890, B. brought an action against A. & co. for fraudulently passing off their goods as his, & on Jan. 31, 1891, he amended his statement of claim by inserting a statement of his patent, & a claim for infringement. Meanwhile on June 16, 1891, A. & co. brought this action under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act of 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, to restrain B. from threatening their customers, amongst other things, by the circular. In June, 1891, B.'s patent was revoked by consent upon a petition presented by A. & co., & B. discontinued that part of his action:—Held: (1) B. had not prosecuted his action with due diligence; (2) A. & co. were persons aggrieved within the meaning of Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32; (3) the circular was not a mere general warning within the principle of Challender v. Royle, No. 2273, ante, but was a threat within Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32; & (4) A. & co. were entitled to an inquiry as to damages.

I think upon the true construction of this sect., the sect. might apply to an intended infringement provided that you could show that the intended infringement, if carried out, would be an actual infringement (LINDLEY, L.J.).—JOHNSON v. EDGE, [1892] 2 Ch. 1; 61 L. J. Ch. 262; 66 L. T. 44; 40 W. R. 437; 8 T. L. R. 289; 36 Sol. Jo. 230; 9 R. P. C. 142, C. A.

Annotation:—As to (3) Apld. Craig v. Dowding (1907), 97 L. T. 683.

3327. ——.]—A co. owned a patent for gas buoy lanterns that had expired, and also owned patents for improvements which were still running, & had for some years supplied B. with gas buoy lanterns made under the patents. B. having given D. an order for gas buoy lanterns, which were founded to some extent on the expired patent, the managing director of the co. wrote B.: I am much surprised at this. I am afraid that this matter will lead to a great deal of difficulty & unpleasantness, & you must not be surprised if my co. applies for an injunction against D. to restrain him from selling his gas buoy lanterns:—Held: under the circumstances the letter was a threat within the meaning of Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, & D. was accordingly entitled to an injunction against the co. in the terms of the sect. . . . It is quite true that the letter . . . does not specify in terms the patents which belonged at that time to the co., or refer to any patent in particular . . . but I think the natural effect on any ordinary person . . . receiving that letter would be that the threat referred to of proceedings concerned the rights of the co. as patentees (ROMER, J.).—DOUGLASS v. PINTSCH'S PATENT LIGHTING CO., [1897] 1 Ch. 176; 65 L. J. Ch. 919; 75 L. T. 332; 45 W. R. 108; 13 T. L. R. 5.

Annotations:—Distd. Beven & Alexander v. Welsbach Incandescent Gas Light Co. (1902), 20 R. P. C. 69; Diamond Coal Cutting Co. v. Mining Appliances Co. (1915), 85 L. J. Ch. 232.

3328. ——.]—Deft., the registered proprietor of a patent, threatened certain customers of pltfs., & they in consequence repudiated a contract with pltfs., who commenced an action to restrain the threats. Subsequently to the commencement of this action deft. amended his specification & pleaded infringement. It was contended for the defence that the ct. could not look at the unamended specification to decide whether the threats were justifiable or not. It was also contended that, inasmuch as pltfs. had a binding contract with their customers, which they could have enforced but did not enforce, they were not aggrieved persons within the meaning of Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32:—Held: pltfs. were aggrieved persons within the meaning of the sect. & deft.'s patent as amended was invalid, & pltfs. were entitled to an injunction and an inquiry as to damages. No decision was given on the point as to whether it was necessary to consider the specification as if it had been amended at the date of the threats.—HOFFNUNG & CO. v. SALSBURY (1899), 16 R. P. C. 375.

3329. Patentee in negotiation for assignment of patent.]—Pltf. had invented certain improvements in quick release mechanism for the draught attachment of road vehicles & such like, intended for use on tarring machines, in respect of which he had applied for patent rights, & had lodged provisional cognate specifications. A complete specification was left in Aug. 1920, & was accepted in May, 1921, & a patent was granted. Defts. were the owners of a patent in respect of an invention for a similar purpose. In July, 1920, pltf. was in negotiation with a co. for the sale or licence of the patent rights when acquired, & at

Sect. 3.—In respect of threat of legal proceedings: Sub-sects. 4 & 5, A., B. & C.]

Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, include threats by private letter, to the person charged with infringement, the words " or otherwise " not being restricted, on the ejusdem generis principle, to " or other means such as circulars or advertisements."

The solrs. to defts., a co., sent a letter to pltfs., another co., alleging an infringement of patents claimed by defts., & stating that unless pltfs. forthwith discontinued the infringement legal proceedings would be taken. Defts. not having followed up the letter by legal proceedings, pltfs. brought an action for an injunction, under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c 57), s. 32, to restrain them from making or continuing threats of legal proceedings. Defts. in their statement of defence alleged that pltfs. had infringed the patents, but afterwards, by amendment, struck out the allegation:—Held: that pltfs. were entitled to a perpetual injunction with costs.

(2) On receipt of the letters containing the threats pltfs. delayed the erection of certain new machinery, & incurred expense in employing engineers to enquire into the question of alleged infringement:—Held: the losses & expenses were not recoverable as damages under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32.—DRIFFIELD & EAST RIDING PURE LINSEED CAKE CO. v. WATERLOO MILLS CAKE & WAREHOUSING CO. (1886). 31 Ch. D. 638; 55 L. J. Ch. 391; 54 L. T. 210; 34 W. R. 360; 2 T. L. R. 314; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 80; 3 R. P. C. 46.

Annotations:—As to (1) Consd. Barrett v. Day, Day v. Foster (1890), 43 Ch. D. 435; Skinner v. Skew, [1893] 1 Ch. 413. Generally, Refd. Challender v. Royle (1887), 36 Ch. D. 428, n.

3343. —— ——.]—A " threat " within Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, may be contained in letters written bonâ fide in answer to inquiries about a patent. Such a letter cannot be considered as a privileged communication. The words " or otherwise " in the sect. are not to be classed as ejusdem generis with " circulars or advertisements "; they are extended by the words which precede them, & not confined by them.

In an action to restrain threats of legal proceedings under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 35, no defence can be based on the ground that what deft. did was done bonâ fide, or that it was done on a privileged occasion.—SKINNER & CO. v. SHEW & CO., [1893] 1 Ch. 413; 62 L. J. Ch. 196; 41 W. R. 217; 9 T. L. R. 84; 37 Sol. Jo. 65; 2 R. 179; sub nom. SKINNER & CO. v. PERRY, 10 R. P. C. 1, C. A.

Annotation:—Consd. Beven & Alexander v. Welsbach Incandescent Gas Light Co. (1902), 20 R. P. C. 69.

3344. Words spoken " without prejudice."]—KURTZ & CO. v. SPENCE & SONS, No. 3335, ante.

3345. Threats by private letter.]—Deft., who was the owner of a patent, wrote a letter to a firm who had brought certain articles from pltf., in which she said: " the article being sold & advertised by you is regarded as an infringement. We therefore request you to cease advertising & selling the article in question." Pltf. brought an action for an injunction to restrain the continuance of the threats, & deft. then brought an action for infringement, which action was discontinued:—Held: as the letter constituted a threat of legal proceedings within Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, pltf. was entitled to bring an action for an injunction to restrain the continuance of the threats, unless deft. with due diligence commenced & prosecuted an action for infringement; but as deft had bonâ fide commenced an action for infringement, in which the validity of the patent could have been tried, the proviso in sect. 32 of the Act applied, & pltf.'s action for an injunction was not maintainable; whether the action for infringement could or could not have succeeded was not a relevant issue.—CRAIG v. DOWDING (1908), 98 L. T. 231; 24 T. L. R. 248, C. A.

3346. —— Solicitor's letter.] — DRIFFIELD & EAST RIDING PURE LINSEED CAKE CO. v. WATERLOO MILLS CAKE & WAREHOUSING CO., No. 3342, ante.

3347. —— ——.]—COMBINED WEIGHING & ADVERTISING CO. v. AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO., No. 3379, post.

3348. —— ——.]—D. took out a patent in 1885 for an improved bottle for aerated liquids, & in Aug. 1886, granted an exclusive licence to use parts of the invention called the trigger opener to F., who was to pay royalties, & not at any time to dispute the validity of D.'s patent. In Nov. 1888, F. obtained a licence from B. & E., the owners of a patent of the year 1887 for improvements relating to means for facilitating the opening of internally stoppered bottles for aerated & other liquids. In 1888 D. discovered that F. was making trigger openers which D. alleged were made in accordance with his patent, but for which F. refused to pay royalties, claiming a right to make them under the patent of B. & E. D.'s solr., after some correspondence in Dec. 1888, wrote to F.'s solrs. that B. & E.'s specification was clearly an infringement of D.'s patent, & in the action against F. claims would be made in respect of this patent. B. & E., who were assisting F., & employing the same solrs., by their solrs., in Mar. 1889, required D. to withdraw such threats, or to commence an action to make them good. In Apr. 1888, D. commenced an action against F., alleging that F. was making trigger openers differing only colourably from D.'s patented article, & refused to pay royalties, on the ground that the trigger openers were covered by B. & E.'s patents. D. further alleged that the trigger openers of B. & E. did not differ materially from his own, & claimed a declaration that the trigger openers made by F. were within D.'s patent, & that F. was liable to pay royalties, an injunction to restrain F. from making trigger openers under B. & E.'s patent, or only colourably differing from D.'s articles, & an account of royalties. F. denied that the trigger openers made by him were an infringement of D.'s patent. B. & E. were desirous of being made parties to this action to dispute the validity of D.'s patent, but as D. refused to joint them, in Aug. 1889, they commenced an action against D., alleging that D. had threatened F. by the said letter, that he had continued the threats & commenced an action against F., in which he refused to join B. & E. as parties, that F. had infringed no legal right of D., because his manufacture was not an infringement, & because D.'s patent was invalid, & that they, pltfs., had suffered damage by reason of the said threats, & they claimed an injunction to restrain D. from threatening them or their licencees. Thereupon D. took out a summons to stay all proceedings in this last action, & F. applied to stay all proceedings in the first action till the second action was tried:—Held: there was no ground for staying the action by D. against F., & that F.'s summons must be dismissed; though the letter to F.'s solrs. gave a cause of action under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, to any person aggrieved thereby, yet D.'s action was an action for infringement within the proviso to that sect.; it was not necessary that the action for infringement should be brought after the action for threats, or that it must be an action in which the validity of the patent could be tried; D.'s action was brought with due diligence, & consequently B. & E. had no cause of action.—BARRETT v. DAY, DAY v. FOSTER (1890), 43 Ch. D. 435; 59 L. J. Ch. 464; 62 L. T. 597; 38 W. R. 362; 7 R. P. C. 54.

Annotation:—Apprvd. Skinner v. Shew, [1893] 1 Ch. 413.

3349. —— Not referring in terms to patent.]—DOUGLASS v. PINTSCH'S PATENT LIGHTING CO., No. 3327, ante.

3350. —— Letter written "without prejudice."]—KURTZ & CO. v. SPENCE & SONS, No. 3335, ante.

3351. —— Written bonâ fide in answer to inquiries.]—SKINNER & CO. v. SHEW & CO., No. 3343, ante.

SUB-SECT. 5.—RIGHT TO INJUNCTION.

A. In General.

3352. Discretion of court.]—EDLIN v. PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., No. 3381, post.

3353. —— Undertaking by defendant to commence action.]—The ct. will restrain a patentee from issuing circulars threatening legal proceedings against infringers unless he will undertake to commence proceedings to assert the validity of his patent; & the fact that the party seeking the aid of the ct. was formerly a licencee of the patent under the patentee, & had himself concurred in issuing similar circulars, does not prevent the ct. interfering after the expiration of the licence.—AXMANN v. LUND (1874), L. R. 18 Eq. 330; 43 L. J. Ch. 655; 31 L. T. 119; 22 W. R. 789.
Annotations:—Consd. Halsey v. Brotherhood (1880), 15 Ch. D. 514; Challender v. Royle (1887), 36 Ch. D. 425.

3354. Form of order—Interim injunction.]—The undertaking in damages usually inserted in an order granting an interim injunction should not be inserted in an interim order in a patent action restraining one of the parties from publishing threats of legal proceedings for infringement of his alleged patent.—FENNER v. WILSON, [1893] 2 Ch. 656; 62 L. J. Ch. 984; 68 L. T. 748; 42 W. R. 57; 3 R. 629; 10 R. P. C. 283.
Annotation:—Reid. Haskell Golf Ball Co. v. Hutchison & Main (1904), 21 R. P. C. 497.

3355. —— ——.]—WRIGHTSON v. TAYLOR, MADDOX & CO. (1907), 24 R. P. C. 347.

3356. Where only one threat—Defendants admitting non-infringement—Injunction in default of undertaking.]—The L. co., being owners of a patent, wrote to B. & co. a threatening letter in respect of certain glass vessels, which they were in fact making for W. W. brought an action to restrain the L. co. from threatening. The L. co., after being allowed by arrangement to inspect B. & co.'s works, admitted that what they were doing was no infringement of the patent:—Held: pltf. was entitled to an injunction, or an undertaking by defts. not to threaten in respect of the glass vessels specified in the letter, & defts. must pay the costs of the action.—WEBB v. LEVINSTEIN & CO., LTD. (1898), 15 R. P. C. 78.

3357. Breach of injunction—What amounts to—Issue of circulars as agent—Containing threats by principal.]—An order restraining deft., his servants & agents, from threatening pltfs., or any of their customers with "any legal proceedings or liability" in respect of the manufacture, sale, or purchase of a certain patented article is not disobeyed by the circulation by deft. of a pamphlet with his name thereon as agent for a third person, containing a notice signed by the third person, & stating that he was the exclusive maker of the article, & it was his intention to prosecute all infringers of his patents.—ELLAM v. MARTYN (H. F.) & CO. (1898), 68 L. J. Ch. 123; 79 L. T. 510; 47 W. R. 212; 15 T. L. R. 107; 43 Sol. Jo. 112; 16 R. P. C. 28.

3358. —— —— Action for infringement.]—An action against a co. to restrain threats was terminated by an order embodying an undertaking not to threaten. Subsequently pltfs. in the action moved for sequestration against the co. & to attach certain directors for alleged breaches of the undertaking contained in the order. The breaches complained of were (a) an action commenced by the co.; (b) certain letters written on its behalf in answer to inquiries:—Held: the undertaking had not been broken, & the motion was dismissed with costs.—BEVEN & ALEXANDER v. WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. (1902), 20 R. P. C. 69.

3359. —— —— Letters written in answer to inquiry.]—BEVEN & ALEXANDER v. WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD., No. 3358, ante.

Necessity for strict proof.]—See INJUNCTION, Vol. XXVIII., p. 525, No. 1331.

B. Necessity for Non-Infringement by Plaintiff.

3360. Whether necessary.]—On motion under the Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, to restrain the publication of advertisements warning the public that the invention claimed by appct. is an infringement of patent rights claimed by the advertisers, & that all necessary proceedings will be taken to protect such rights should any attempt be made to manufacture or supply the invention claimed by appct., appct. as a condition precedent to obtaining an injunction, must show that there has been no infringement on his part, & if in opposition to the motion a case of alleged infringement is raised by resps.' affidavits, an injunction will not be granted, although resps. decline to take legal proceedings in respect of such alleged infringement against appct.—BARNEY v. UNITED TELEPHONE CO. (1885), 28 Ch. D. 394; 52 L. T. 573; 33 W. R. 576; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–86), 48; 2 R. P. C. 173.
Annotation:—Dbtd. Challender v. Royle (1887), 36 Ch. D. 428, n.

3361. ——.]—CHALLENDER v. ROYLE, No. 2273, ante.

3362. —— Balance of convenience considered.]—In a motion by pltf. under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883, for an interim injunction to restrain deft. from issuing threats of legal proceedings for an alleged infringement of deft.'s patent, it is not necessary for pltf. to prove that he has not infringed deft.'s patent, but the question is one of the balance of convenience & inconvenience, & the ct. will decide according to its opinion whether more harm will be done by granting or refusing an injunction.—WALKER v. CLARKE (1887), 56 L. J. Ch. 239; 56 L. T. 111; 35 W. R. 245; 3 T. L. R. 297; 4 R. P. C. 111.
Annotation:—Apld. Challender v. Royle (1887), 36 Ch. D. 428, n.

C. Motive of Defendant.

3363. Whether plaintiff must prove malice or mala fides.]—Pltfs. were the makers of "Rainbow Water Raisers or Elevators," & they commenced an action for an injunction to restrain defts. from issuing a circular cautioning the public against the use of such elevators as being direct infringements of certain patents of defts. Pltfs. subsequently gave notice of a motion to restrain the issue of this circular until the trial of the action. Defts. then commenced a cross-action claiming an injunction to restrain pltfs. from infringing their patents:—Held: as there was no evidence of mala fides on the part of defts., they ought not to be restrained from issuing the circular until their action had been disposed of, but they must undertake to prosecute their action without delay.—HOUSEHOLD & ROSHER v. FAIRBURN & HALL (1884), 51 L. T. 498; 1 R. P. C. 109.

Sect. 3.—In respect of threat of legal proceedings: Sub-sect. 5, C. & D. (a) & (b).]

3364. ——.]—A patentee issued a circular calling attention to his patent for folding screens, & intimating his intention to take legal proceedings against infringers thereof. B., a maker of folding screens in Germany, commenced an action to restrain the issue of this circular to his customers or persons who might become his customers, whereupon the patentee commenced an action against B. & his agent in England, N. On the first action coming on for trial:—Held: at the time the circular was issued deft. had a right to advertise himself as patentee, & there was no evidence of malice on his part, & the action must be dismissed, without costs.—SHARP v. BRAUER, BRAUER v. SHARP (1886), 3 R. P. C. 193; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 205.

3365. ——.]—On Nov. 9 & 10, 1893, G., a patentee, threatened L. & a customer of L. with legal proceedings. L.'s solr. remonstrated, & challenged G. to bring an action for infringement. On Nov. 18, G. published an advertisement in a trade journal cautioning against infringement. On Nov. 23, L. commenced an action against G. to restrain the threats, & gave notice of motion. On Dec. 4, G. commenced an action for infringement of his patent against L. On Dec. 17, the motion in L.'s action was ordered to stand to the trial of the infringement action which G. undertook to prosecute with due diligence. Statement of claim was delivered by G. on Jan. 24, 1894. Defence & particulars of objections were delivered on Mar. 22. Further & better particulars were applied for in May, & an order made that further particulars be given. L., in June, applied for time to deliver the further particulars. At the same time G., who was late in delivering his reply, asked L. to grant extension of time to June 19. On that day G. discontinued the infringement action. L. then renewed his motion for an injunction to restrain the threats. L. contended (a) that G. had not prosecuted his action with due diligence; (b) that the effect of his threats was still continuing, & as he refused to recall his previous threats, he was, in fact, still making threats: & (c) that G. had made his threats malâ fide ab initio, & this was shown by his discontinuance:—Held: the right of action given by Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, to restrain threats was taken away by G.'s action, though discontinued; such action was prosecuted with due diligence; there was nothing to show that G. made his threats malâ fide, or was intending to continue them, & the action was dismissed with costs.—ENGLISH & AMERICAN MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. GARE MACHINE CO., LTD. (1894), 11 R. P. C. 627.

3366. ——.]—DREDGE v. PARNELL, PARNELL v. DREDGE (1896), 13 R. P. C. 392.

3367. ——.]—The I. co. & the S. co. being competing cos. in the manufacture of incandescent mantles, the S. co. brought an action for infringement of a patent. The action was approaching trial, when the S. co.'s solrs. issued a circular giving notice of the action & stating that they were advised that the I. co.'s mantles were infringements, & warning purchasers that they exposed themselves to like actions, &, in the event of the S. co. succeeding, that the purchasers would be liable to pay damages & costs & to have their mantles destroyed by order of the ct. The I. co. thereupon commenced an action to restrain the issue of the circular, & moved for an interlocutory injunction against the S. co., their solrs., & other agents. An ex p. injunction was granted, & the motion was now heard on evidence. The I. co. contended that the circular was issued malâ fide on the following grounds:—(a) that it stated more than the S. co.'s legal rights; (b) that the patent was an old one, & that the I. co. had been carrying on the same process for nine years to the knowledge of the patentees, & that the S. co. did not, bonâ fide, believe in their case:—Held: the circular was perfectly accurate if read carefully, but that ignorant persons might misread it; as it was strictly correct, no evidence of malice could be drawn from it; the circumstances explained the delay in bringing the infringement action; there was no evidence that the S. co. knew of any infringement; & there was no evidence of mala fides.—INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. SUNLIGHT INCANDESCENT GAS LAMP CO., (1897), 3368. ——.]—A counterclaim in a passing off action which alleges threats barely, & claims an injunction to restrain such threats, but shows no malice or bad faith on the part of pltf. who is maintaining the action which he has brought, can be struck out under R. S. C., Ord. 25, r. 4, as disclosing no reasonable cause of action under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, or otherwise. Leave to amend the counterclaim by alleging malice was refused.—RIPLEY v. ARTHUR & CO. (1900), 18 R. P. C. 82; 45 Sol. Jo. 165.

3369. —— Threat by licencees of patent.]—INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. NEW INCANDESCENT (SUNLIGHT PATENT) GAS LIGHTING CO., LTD., No. 3331, ante.

3370. —— Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 24), s. 36.]—CRAIG v. DOWDING, No. 3345, ante.

3371. Bona fides of defendant—Whether valid defence.]—HALSEY v. BROTHERHOOD, No. 2809, ante.

3372. —— ——.]—SKINNER & CO. v. SHEW & CO., No. 3343, ante.

3373. —— ——.]—TEMLER v. STEVENSON (H.) & SONS, TEMLER v. ACT. FUR CARTONNAGEN INDUSTRIE, No. 3330, ante.

3374. —— ——.]—(1) The H. co. were the owners of two patents for hair curlers. In 1894, P. & co. placed upon the market a hair curler which the H. co. alleged was an infringement of their patent rights. On May 10, 1894, the H. co. commenced an action against P. & Co. for infringement, but discontinued this action on June 18, 1895, on account of their having discovered that an amendment of the specification of one of their patents, which they thought had been made, had not been, in fact, completed, &, therefore, such patent was invalid. Thereupon P. & co. commenced an action against the H. co. for an injunction to restrain them from threatening, to which the H. co. raised, by way of defence, the action which they had commenced & discontinued as aforesaid. The threats action came on for trial before the judge & a special jury. The jury found that the threats of the H. co. to take proceedings against P. & co. were made in good faith, & that their action against P. & co. was commenced & prosecuted with due diligence.

(2) A question was then argued before the judge as to whether the H. co.'s action was an illegal one under the Statute of Monopolies. The judge held that it was not, & gave judgment for the H. co., with costs.—PECK & CO. v. HINDES, LTD. (1898), 67 L. J. Q. B. 272; 14 T. L. R. 164; 15 R. P. C. 113.

D. Commencement of Infringement Action as Bar to Right.

(a) In General.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 36; 1919 (c. 80), sched.

3375. Loss of right to injunction.]—BERLINER v. EDISON BELL CONSOLIDATED PHONOGRAPH CO., LTD. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 336.

3376. —— Action commenced by owner of patent — No injunction against licencees.] BARNETT & FOSTER v. BARRETT'S SCREW STOPPER BOTTLING CO., LTD. (1884), 1 R. P. C. 9; Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 47.

3377. —— —— ——.]—INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. v. NEW INCANDESCENT (SUNLIGHT PATENT) GAS LIGHTING CO., LTD., No. 3331, ante.

3378. —— Action commenced with due diligence.]—CHALLENDER v. ROYLE, No. 2273, ante.

3379. —— ——.]—(1) A solr.'s letter saying that proceedings will be instituted is a threat within Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32. The action for infringement pointed at by the sect. is an action by the patentee against the person whom he has threatened, not against any other person who may be infringing.

(2) Where there is an action to restrain threats deft. is not bound to assert his rights by defence or counterclaim, but is entitled to bring a separate action for the alleged infringement of his patent. But if he does so, arrangements ought to be made so that the proceedings in one action should be stayed to abide the result of the trial in the other.

(3) A. commenced an action under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, against B. to restrain threats. B. within ten days brought a cross-action against A. for infringing his patent. After pleadings had been delivered & notice of trial given in both actions, A. offered to stay his action for threats until B.'s action was concluded; but B. refused, & forced A. to proceed, & both actions came on together for trial. B.'s action having been dismissed with costs:—Held: on the true construction of the section, A.'s right of action was taken away by B. having within a reasonable time commenced & prosecuted with due diligence his cross-action for infringement; & A.'s action must be dismissed, but, under the circumstances, without costs.—COMBINED WEIGHING & ADVERTISING CO. v. AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO. (1889), 42 Ch. D. 665; 58 L. J. Ch. 709; 61 L. T. 474; 38 W. R. 233.

Annotations:—As to (1) Apld. Barrett v. Day, Day v. Foster (1890), 43 Ch. D. 435. As to (3) Apprvd. Skinner v. Shew, [1893] 1 Ch. 413.

3380. —— ——.]—MACKIE v. SOLVO LAUNDRY SUPPLY CO., LTD. (1892), 9 R. P. C. 465.

3381. —— ——.]—EDLIN v. PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. (1893), 37 Sol. Jo. 455.

3382. —— —— Whether action may succeed or fail immaterial.]—CRAIG v. DOWDING, No. 3345, ante.

—— —— What amounts to diligence.]—See Sub-sect. 5, D. (c), post.

When diligence runs.]—See Sub-sect. 5, D. (c), post.

3383. —— Action dismissed.] — COMBINED WEIGHING & ADVERTISING CO. v. AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO., No. 3379, ante.

3384. —— ——.]—METROPOLITAN GAS METERS, LTD. v. BRITISH, FOREIGN & COLONIAL AUTOMATIC LIGHT CONTROLLING CO., LTD., No. 3389, post.

3385. Refusal to bring action for infringement—Injunction granted restraining threats.]—ROLLINS v. HINKS, No. 2764, ante.

3386. —— ——.]—WILLOUGHBY v. TAYLOR, No. 3337, ante.

3387. Stay of proceedings in respect of threats—Pending trial of infringement.]—COMBINED WEIGHING & ADVERTISING CO. v. AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO., No. 3379, ante.

3388. —— Infringement action before proceedings for threats—Vexatious action.] —(1) An action to restrain threats in respect of an alleged infringement of a patent ought not, having regard to Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, to be commenced after an action to restrain the alleged infringement has been instituted & is being prosecuted with due diligence; & if it is so commenced, all proceedings in it may be stayed as being vexatious.

(2) An action by a patentee against a licencee brought bonâ fide for royalties in respect of articles manufactured, as the patentee alleges, but the licencee denies, in accordance with the patent, & for an injunction to restrain the licencee from manufacturing the articles, except subject to the terms of the licence, is an action to restrain the infringement of the patent within Patents, Designs. & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, notwithstanding that the validity of the patent cannot be contested by the licencee.—BARRETT v. DAY, DAY v. FOSTER (1890), 43 Ch. D. 435; 59 L. J. Ch. 464; 62 L. T. 597; 38 W. R. 362; 7 R. P. C. 54.

Annotation:—As to (1) Apld. Skinner v. Shew, [1893] 1 Ch. 413.

3389. —— At instance of plaintiff—Subsequent dismissal without costs.]—In Feb. 1911, pltfs. ascertained that defts. were issuing threats with reference to the alleged infringement of their patent. On Feb. 14, 1911, they wrote to defts. with reference to the threats. On Mar. 31, 1911, they issued their writ in the present action, & on Apr. 13, 1911, gave notice of motion for an injunction to restrain the issue of the threats. On Apr. 21, 1911, defts. issued their writ against the pltfs. for an infringement of their patent. On Apr. 25, 1911, the motion in the threats action came on for hearing, and by consent the action was stayed pending the result of the action for infringement, the costs being reserved, with liberty to apply. On Dec. 14, 1911, judgment was given in the infringement action dismissing the action, & that judgment was subsequently affirmed by the Ct. of Appeal. On an application by first pltfs. that their action might be dismissed, but without costs:—Held: pltfs. had adopted a proper course with a view of saving expense by staying their action pending the decision of the infringement action & not putting defts. to the expense of proving that they had complied with the proviso to Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 36, & they were therefore entitled to have their action dismissed without costs.—METROPOLITAN GAS METERS, LTD. v. BRITISH, FOREIGN & COLONIAL AUTOMATIC LIGHT CONTROLLING CO., LTD., [1913] 1 Ch. 150; 82 L. J. Ch. 74; 108 L. T. 151; 57 Sol. Jo. 129.

(b) What Amounts to Action.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 36, & 1919 (c. 80), sched.

t. 3.—In respect of threat of legal proceedings: Sub-sect. 5, D. (b) & (c).]

3390. Action against other than plaintiff—Any :son threatened.]—CHALLENDER v. ROYLE, No. 73, ante.

3391. —— —— For infringement to which 'eats relate.]—COMBINED WEIGHING & ADVERTIS-G CO. v. AUTOMATIC WEIGHING MACHINE CO.,). 3379, ante.

3392. —— —— Customer of plaintiff—Under-king to bring subsequent action against plaintiff.] Defts. being the owners of a patent for "an provement in eyelets," wrote by their solicitors B. & R., customers of pltfs., complaining of the le by B. & R. of eyelets alleged to be infringe-ents of the patent & threatening proceedings; & R. thereupon wrote saying that they had scontinued the sale. The solrs. of defts. also rote a similar letter to P., another of pltfs.' stomers, & an action for infringement was bsequently commenced by defts. against him, which he consented to a perpetual injunction. ltfs., who manufactured the articles complained abroad, had only an agent in this country. hey commenced an action against defts. to restrain reats, & moved for an interlocutory injunction. he judge granted an injunction. Defts. appealed. he appeal was settled on the terms that defts. ould bring an infringement action against pltfs.' gent, pltfs. undertaking to give security for costs, the injunction being dissolved with liberty to pply to restore it if the action were not prosecuted ith due diligence.—ENGELS v. HUBERT UN-HANGEABLE EYELET SYNDICATE, LTD. (1902), 9 R. P. C. 201, C. A.

3393. —— Against licencee—For royalties & estraint of manufacture.]—BARRETT v. DAY, DAY . FOSTER, No. 3388, ante.

3394. —— Users of infringing articles—No ction against makers.]—"Z" ELECTRIC LAMP MANUFACTURING CO., LTD. v. OSRAM LAMP WORKS, LTD. (1911), 28 R. P. C. 479.

3395. Action on one patent—Validity of four patents in issue.]—DOWSON, TAYLOR & CO., LTD. v. DROSOPHORE CO., LTD., No. 3321, ante.

3396. Action commenced & discontinued.]—PECK & CO. v. HINDES, LTD., No. 3374, ante.

3397. Counterclaim in action for threats.]—The E. co. were owners of a patent for improvements in the construction of chains for velocipedes, mainly consisting of making rivets by a particular process. In 1898 they published in various newspapers a letter alleging in effect that the A. co. was infringing their patent, & that they intended to take steps against this infringement. After some correspondence, the A. co. commenced an action against the E. co. for an injunction & £2,500 damages, raising a case under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, & also alleging that the letter was a libel on them in their trade or business. Defts. delivered a defence & counterclaim, the counterclaim being for an injunction & other relief in respect of infringement of said patent. The action was tried before a judge & a special jury, &, in answer to the questions put to them by the judge, the jury found (a) pltfs., the A. co., were not infringing defts.' patent; (b) defts. did not begin an action to enforce their claim with due diligence; (c) defts.' threats were made with a view to injure pltfs.; (d) pltfs. were entitled to £500 damages for the threats & £5 for the libel.—APPLEBY'S (ALFRED) TWIN ROLLER CHAIN, LTD. v. EADIE CHAIN, LTD. (1899), 16 R. P. C. 318.

3398. Action in which infringement may be tried—At some stage of proceedings.]—In Apr. 1903, defts., the owners of a patent, issued circulars warning persons dealing in, or using any of pltfs.' "saddles with four, six or more wires made in infringement" of the patent. They also subsequently made certain threats in respect of specific saddles of a pattern known as "L 5," "L 14" & "L 16." In May, 1903, defts. commenced an action against pltfs. for infringement of the patent, but the particulars of breaches did not mention these saddles; "L 5" & "L 14" had not been sold prior to the commencement of the infringement action, & defts. alleged that they did not then know of "L 16." In Nov. 1903, pltfs. commenced this action to restrain defts. from issuing threats in respect of "L 5," "L 14," & "L 16," & for damages. They based their action both on Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, & on a common law right, alleging mala fides on the part of defts. Defts. contended that their action against pltfs. was an action for infringement within the proviso to Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, & was a defence under that sect., & they denied mala fides. At the trial, pltfs. submitted that the issue whether the three saddles mentioned were infringements of the patent should be decided in the threats action, & contended that this question could not be decided in the pending action for infringement. The action for infringement had, at the date of the trial of this action, been stayed:—Held: the infringement action was an action for the infringement of the patent within the proviso to Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, & it constituted a defence to the threats action so far as founded on that sect., there was no evidence of mala fides in defts.' conduct, & under the circumstances it was unnecessary to decide the issue of infringement, which could be decided at some stage of the infringement action.—LYCETT SADDLE & MOTOR ACCESSORIES CO., LTD. v. BROOKS (J. B.) & CO., LTD. (1904), 21 R. P. C. 656.

3399. Action pending.]—A patentee agreed in writing, in July, 1890, to assign his patent to the L. co. In Nov. 1890, the patentee commenced an action against the K. co. for alleged infringement. In Feb. 1891, pending the patentee's action, the L. co. sent letters & circulars threatening customers of the K. co. with liability for an alleged infringement. The K. co. then commenced an action under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, [as persons aggrieved] against the L. co. for an injunction to restrain such threats:—Held: the fact of the patentee's action being pending did not entitle the L. co. to the benefit of the proviso that the sect. shall not apply if the person making such threats with due diligence commences & prosecutes an action for infringement of his patent; & the K. co. were entitled to an interlocutory injunction against the co.—KENSINGTON & KNIGHTSBRIDGE ELECTRIC LIGHTING CO. v. LANE FOX ELECTRICAL CO., [1891] 2 Ch. 573; 64 L. T. 770; 39 W. R. 650; 7 T. L. R. 471; subsequent proceedings, sub nom. LANE FOX v. KENSINGTON & KNIGHTSBRIDGE ELECTRIC LIGHTING CO., [1892] 3 Ch. 424, C. A.

3400. Action commenced before threats issued.]—Pltfs. brought an action against defts. for infringement of their patent. Pltfs. then published a circular to the effect that their patent was being infringed, & that they were bringing a large number of actions against specfied alleged infringers, including the action against defts. Defts. delivered a defence & counterclaim. The defence was, that the goods complained of as infringements of the patent were manufactures & sold under a licence granted by pltfs. to predecessors of the defts. By their counterclaim they claimed an injunction to restrain pltfs. from publishing, or representing by circulars, etc., that defts. were not authorised to make & sell such goods. Pltfs. contended that, though they had given a licence to certain persons to use their patent, there were no rights under the circumstances to assign to defts. without pltfs.' consent, a consent that had never been granted. Upon motion for an interlocutory injunction:—Held: the case was not within Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, because of the proviso at the end of that sect., in this case an action having been bonâ fide brought even before the circular was issued; there was no analogy between this case & where a tenant sued his landlord, for in this case the question between the parties was whether defts. were licencees at all; & although the publication of the circular complained of might greatly damage defts., they had no equity to restrain the plaintiffs from stating that they were taking proceedings.—DUNLOP PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., LTD. v. NEW SEDDON PNEUMATIC TYRE & SELF-CLOSING TUBE CO., LTD. (1897), 76 L. T. 405; 13 T. L. R. 246, C. A.

(c) Due Diligence.

See Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 36; 1919 (c. 80), sched.

3401. From when diligence runs—Time of threat—Not discovery of infringement.]—CHALLENDER v. ROYLE, No. 2273, ante.

3402. —— —— ——.]—On Apr. 19, 1904, the owners of letters patent commenced an action for infringement of the patent, in which they delivered their statement of claim on May 20, 1904. On June 8, they issued advertisements containing threats, which were circulated among the customers of defts. & referred specifically to their goods. Defts. moved in the action to restrain pltfs. from representing by advertisements or otherwise that defts.' goods were infringements of pltfs.' patent, & they relied on Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, alleging that pltfs. had known of the sale of defts.' goods for eighteen months; they also alleged that the advertisements were a contempt of ct. At the date of the hearing of the motion, on June 23, defts. had not put in their defence. Pltfs. had brought actions against other persons, who had submitted:—Held: "due diligence" in sect. 32 means after the threat & not after the acts complained of as infringements, & no want of due diligence on the part of pltfs. was proved.—HASKELL GOLF BALL CO. v. HUTCHINSON & MAIN (1904), 20 T. L. R. 606; 21 R. P. C. 497.

3403. Application of due diligence—To prosecution as well as commencement.]—HOUSEHOLD & ROSHER v. FAIRBURN & HALL (1885), Griffin's Patent Cases (1884–1886), 131.

3404. —— ——.]—In Dec. 1896, I. commenced an action against B. for infringement of a patent, which action was discontinued in Apr. 1898; in May, 1898, I. commenced a second action against B. for infringement of the same & of another patent, & in Feb. 1899, this action was dismissed on application by B., I. not having given notice of trial. In Apr. 1899, B. commenced an action against I. & others claiming damages for threats & in respect of other matters, & alleged threats prior to the commencement of the first patent action as well as during its pendency & also threats in a circular issued by defts. on June 1, 1898, after the commencement of the second patent action. Defts. pleaded (inter alia) that the patent actions were bonâ fide, & had been commenced & prosecuted with due diligence. The jury found at the trial (a) that the threats were made bonâ fide; (b) that the first action was brought honestly & bona fides; (c) that it was not prosecuted with due diligence, & they gave £80 damages; & (d) in answer to the question whether the second action was brought honestly & bonâ fide & prosecuted with due diligence, they found in the negative, & gave £135 damages, as well as giving further findings on other issues. Judgment was given for pltf. for £80 & costs, to be taxed, on that issue, & further consideration of the other matters was adjourned. On the further argument defts. contended that there was no evidence of any threats to support the verdict for £135; that the circular of June 1, 1898, was a legitimate answer to a circular issued by pltf., & also that it was a mere general warning; & that the jury had not found that it was a threat:—Held: there was some evidence of threats to go to the jury.—BISHOP v. INMAN (1900), 17 R. P. C. 749.

3405. —— ——.]—VOELKER INCANDESCENT MANTLE, LTD. v. WELSBACH INCANDESCENT GAS LIGHT CO., LTD. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 494.

3406. What amounts to "due diligence" Action commenced with due diligence—Subsequently discontinued.]—COLLEY v. HART, No. 3411, post.

3407. —— —— ——.]—ENGLISH & AMERICAN MACHINERY CO., LTD. v. GARE MACHINE CO., LTD., No. 3365, ante.

3408. —— —— ——.]—TEMLER v. STEVENSON (H.) & SONS, TEMLER v. ACT. FUR CARTONNAGEN INDUSTRIE, No. 3330, ante.

3409. —— —— ——.]—PECK & CO. v. HINDES, LTD., No. 3374, ante.

3410. —— —— ——.]—CRAIG v. DOWDING, No. 3345, ante.

3411. —— Defendant awaiting delivery of statement of claim—To raise infringement on counterclaim in proceedings for threats.]—(1) In order that an action by the owner of a patent for the infringement of his patent should be "prosecuted with due diligence" within the meaning of Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 32, so as to exclude the operation of the former part of that sect., it is not necessary that the infringement action should be prosecuted up to judgment. Pltf. will not lose the protection of the proviso by reason of his discontinuing the action before trial upon discovering that he has no cause of action. Semble, primâ facie, if a threats action under sect. 32 is commenced against the owner of a patent by an alleged infringer, deft. will not be wanting in "due diligence" if he waits a reasonable time for the delivery of the statement of claim, in order that he may, if possible, raise the question of infringement by means of a counterclaim in the threats action, instead of incurring the expense of an independent action for infringement. (2) A threats action under sect. 32 was commenced against the owner of a patent by an alleged infringer on Sept. 22, 1888. The threats were contained in a trade circular which had been circulated on Sept. 15. On Dec. 6, deft. in the threats action commenced an action against pltf. for infringement of the patent. On Feb. 8, 1889, a statement of claim was delivered in the threats action, & on Mar. 9 the statement of defence was delivered. On May 13 a statement of claim was delivered in the infringement action, the time for its delivery having been several times extended by consent.

[. 3.—In respect of threat of legal proceedings: Sub-sect. 5, D. (c); sub-sect. 6. Part XVI.]

Nov. 6 the patentee discovered, by means of report of an expert made under an order for pection in the threats action, that there had n no infringement of the patent, & on Nov. 7 gave notice of discontinuance of the infringent action, & paid deft.'s costs of it. At the l of the threats action:—Held: the infringent action had been commenced & prosecuted h "due diligence," &, consequently, the proviso sect. 32 applied, & pltf. in the threats action had cause of action under that section.—COLLEY v. RT (1890), 44 Ch. D. 179; 59 L. J. Ch. 308; 62 T. 424; 38 W. R. 501; 6 T. L. R. 212; 7 P. C. 101.

notations:—As to (1) Apld. Craig v. Dowding (1908), 98 . T. 231. Generally, Refd. Johnston v. Edge (1891), 36 ol. Jo. 110.

3412. —— Negotiations carried on continuously.] EDLIN v. PNEUMATIC TYRE CO., No. 3381, ante.

3413. —— Second action for infringement—lor action dismissed for want of prosecution.]—e J. co. commenced an action against W. & S. infringement of patent, & also actions against ir of their customers, which were to abide the sult of the principal action. The action against . & S. was dismissed on account of the default the J. co. The J. co. then, on July 26, 1900, ued a threatening circular. On July 31, W. & S. mmenced an action to restrain the J. co. from reatening, & on the same day gave notice of otion for an interlocutory injunction, which came for hearing on Aug. 8. In the meantime the co. issued & served a writ in an infringement tion against a customer of W. & S.:—Held: ere being no evidence that the last-mentioned tion was not being prosecuted with due diligence, order would be made on the motion, except at the costs be reserved.—WAITE & SAVILLE. TD. v. JOHNSON DIE PRESS CO., LTD. (1900), 18 P. C. 1.

SUB-SECT. 6.—DAMAGES.

See, generally, DAMAGES, Vol. XVII., pp. 78 et q.

3414. When given—Notice issued bonâ fide.]—ALSEY v. BROTHERHOOD, No. 2809, ante.

3415. When assessed—At trial—Not on reference.]—In an action to restrain the issue of threats y a patentee an injunction was granted & an nquiry ordered as to damages caused to pltf. In is statement of claim pltf. complained of threats ommencing in May, 1886, & no evidence was iven of any other threats at the trial. On the nquiry before the Chief Clerk, evidence was admitted of threats of earlier date. Shorthand notes f all the proceedings before the Chief Clerk were aken. The Chief Clerk substantially attributed o defts.' threats the whole of the falling off which e found to have taken place in pltf.'s trade, hough the pltf. had been obliged to take liquidaion proceedings about that time. He admitted vidence of the communication of defts.' threats o third persons, & found £1,348 as damages. Defts. moved to vary this report on the ground hat the evidence was improperly admitted, & that here was no evidence of threats prior to the hreats complained of in the pleadings:—Held: the Chief Clerk had improperly admitted hearsay evidence, & there was no evidence that the earlier threats had been authorised by defts., defts. were liable for the actual damages caused by the threats made by them, & not for damages resulting from mere rumours or threats unauthorised by them, the Chief Clerk was wrong in attributing the whole loss in trade of pltf. to defts.' threats, as it was clear that part of it must be attributed to the liquidation proceedings, the judge had taken a fair view, which was all that was possible, in the circumstances of the case. The question of damages should have been decided by the judge at the trial & not referred.—UNGAR v. SUGG (1892), 9 R. P. C. 114, C. A.

3416. Inquiry as to damages.]—JOHNSON v. EDGE, No. 3326, ante.

3417. —— Whether limited to threats pleaded.]—UNGAR v. SUGG, No. 3415, ante.

3418. —— What evidence admissible—Hearsay evidence.]—UNGAR v. SUGG, No. 3415, ante.

3419. —— —— Letter terminating negotiations for contract—In consequence of threats.]—Pltfs. having, in July, 1892, obtained an injunction against deft. in respect of threats with regard to cameras made & sold by pltfs., an inquiry as to damages was directed. Deft. brought his action for infringement, but discontinued it in May, 1893, & pltfs. then proceeded with their inquiry. The Chief Clerk found that through deft.'s threats pltfs. had lost a contract which was in negotiation between themselves & a co., under which pltfs. were to supply the co. exclusively with cameras for three seasons beginning in Mar. 1892, 1893, & 1894 respectively, the co. to guarantee orders up to a certain amount, & to have the option to continue sole licencees after that time. The Chief Clerk assessed the damages in respect of the loss of the contract at the profit on the minimum amount of orders for the years 1892 & 1893:—Held: the valuable part of the season of 1893 had expired when deft. discontinued his action for infringement, giving no damages in respect of the year 1894, when the market was open to pltfs. Part of the evidence before the Chief Clerk consisted of the correspondence & evidence on which the judgment at the trial had been obtained, & in particular of a letter from the solrs. of the co. to pltfs. referring to the correspondence, & saying, "Under these circumstances it is absolutely impossible for our clients to continue any negotiations for an agreement."—SKINNER & CO. v. SHEW & CO., [1894] 2 Ch. 581; sub nom. SKINNER & CO. v. PERRY, 63 L. J. Ch. 826; 71 L. T. 110; 11 R. P. C. 406; 8 R. 455.

Annotation:—Consd. Horne v. Johnston (1921), 38 R. P. C. 366.

3420. Measure of damages—Actual loss caused by threats made—Not loss resulting from mere rumours—Or authorised threats.]—UNGAR v. SUGG, No. 3415, ante.

3421. —— Not loss due to delayed erection of machinery—Nor expenses of inquiry into alleged infringement.]—DRIFFIELD & EAST RIDING PURE LINSEED CAKE CO. v. WATERLOO MILLS CAKE & WAREHOUSING CO., No. 3342, ante.

3422. —— Loss of contract—Assessed on loss of profit on minimum orders.]—SKINNER & CO. v. SHEW & CO., No. 3419, ante.

Ascertainment difficult.]—See DAMAGES, Vol. XVII., p. 93, No. 100.

k. When given.]—GILLESPIE v. YOUNG (1867), 5 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) (H. L.) 106; 39 Sc. Jur. 567.—SCOT.

Part XVI.—International and Colonial Arrangements.

Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), s. 91; 1914 (c. 18), s. 1; 1919 (c. 80), sched.; Patent Rules, 1920, rr. 15–18.

3423. To whom patent granted under International Convention—Person who has made foreign application.]—Application under the International Convention refused by Comptroller-General. The A.-G. confirmed the Comptroller's decision. A patent under the International Convention can only be granted to the person who has made the foreign application.—Re SHALLENBERGER'S APPLICATION (1889), 6 R. P. C. 550.

3424. —— ——.]—Application under the International Convention refused by the Comptroller-General. The A.-G. confirmed the Comptroller's decision. A patent under the International Convention can only be granted to the person who has made the foreign application:—Semble: a corpn. can apply under sect. 103.—Re CAREZ'S APPLICATION (1889), 6 R. P. C. 552.

3425. —— ——.]—On July 5, 1912, an application for a patent was made by L. & B., &, under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 91, the date claimed for the application was Mar. 30, 1912, on which date a patent for the same invention had been applied for in Germany by L. alone. It appeared that, under a deed of June 3, 1912, B. became in the view of the German Patent Office a co-patentee with L., & the German application was dealt with on that footing. The Chief Examiner refused to accept the application unless amended so as to make L. the sole appct. Appcts. appealed to the Law Officer:—Held: L., & L. alone, was the person entitled to make the application in this country, & the decision of the Chief Examiner was upheld.—Re LENTZ & BERNER'S APPLICATION (1913), 31 R. P. C. 71.

3426. —— Assignee of foreign inventor.]—"Assignee" under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 91, as amended by the Patents & Designs Act, 1914 (c. 18), means assignee of the benefit of the invention in this country or of the right to apply for a patent in this country. If appct. in the foreign state has assigned, the assignee should make the application in this country under the Convention. The Comptroller-General is entitled to ask an appct. whether he has assigned his rights in this country.—Re EISLER'S APPLICATION (1916), 34 R. P. C. 89.

3427. —— Foreign applicant not beneficial owner—What conditions may be imposed.]—Re WOHL'S APPLICATION (1924), 42 R. P. C. 45.

3428. —— Foreign applicants without equitable interest—Necessity for assignment of legal interest.]—NOTES OF OFFICIAL RULINGS, 1926 (B) (1926), 43 R. P. C. App. ii.

3429. How foreign corporation may apply.]—Re CAREZ'S APPLICATION, No. 3424, ante.

3430. ——.]—A foreign corpn. applied for a patent on form A., declaring that they were the true & first inventors of the invention. The Comptroller required the application to be amended. The Law Officer, on appeal, confirmed the Comptroller's decision. Form A. in the schedule to the Patent Rules is not applicable to the case of corpn., but is intended for personal appcts. who are true & first inventors. Form A. is intended for the use where there has been a communication from abroad, whether the communicator is a corpn. or private individual.—Re SOCIÉTÉ ANONYME DU GENERATEUR DU TEMPLE'S APPLICATION (1895), 13 R. P. C. 54.

3431. Date of English patent—Conclusive—No application to ante-date—Effect of publication during period for application.]—The protection against the consequences of the prior publication in this country of an invention patented in a foreign country, with which her Majesty has made international arrangements under the Convention of 1883, applies only in cases where the patentee has obtained the limited rights given by Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 103, as amended by 48 & 49 Vict. c. 63, s. 6. Consequently a patentee who has obtained a patent in this country for the full period of fourteen years cannot rely upon the statutory protection to relieve him from the effect of a publication in this country, prior to the date of his patent, of a description of the same invention as already patented in France.—BRITISH TANNING CO. v. GROTH (1891), 60 L. J. Ch. 235; 64 L. T. 21; 7 T. L. R. 205; 8 R. P. C. 113.

Annotation:—Reld. Acetylene Illuminating Co. v. United Alkali Co., [1902] 1 Ch. 494.

3432. —— Procedure by foreign patentee—Period for election as to date.]—(1) When a patentee has applied under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 103, for protection for any invention in any foreign state with which the British Govt. has made an arrangement & afterwards makes an application in this country for his patent, he has two alternatives: he may either take a patent to run from the date of his prior application to the foreign state, or he may take a patent to run from the date of his English application, but in either alternative the date of his application in this country for the patent to which he is entitled under the sect. if he asks for it must be within seven months from the date of his foreign application: in other words, he must elect from what date his patent is to run within seven months from the date of his foreign application.

(2) In respect of the fourth patent defts. had delivered particulars of objection, including (a) a reference to certain inventions which showed that the patent was void for want of novelty; (b) a specification & particulars referring to certain electric furnaces previously invented by other persons. The patent made no claim to an electric furnace as part of the invention, but claimed for a process in which electric furnaces were used:—Held: it was a matter for proof & not for particulars of objection to show what the furnaces

PART XVI.

1. Colonial registration of British or foreign patents.]—The grantee of an English patent applied on Feb. 2 for letters of registration for the invention for which he held the English patent. The letters were granted on Mar 2. Between Feb. 2 & Mar. 2 newspapers arrived in the Colony containing a notice of the English patent & a description of the invention:—Held: this did not invalidate the letters of the registration.—BRUSH ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING CO. v. KINGSBURY (1891), 12 N. S. W. Eq. 211; 8 N. S. W. W. N. 57.—AUS.

m. ——.]—Under West Australian Patent Act, 1888, s. 49, holders of patents obtained in Great Britain or any other country are enabled to obtain letters of registration in the Colony without the formalities & delay necessary on an application for a patent, but subject to all the incidents & conditions to which letters patent would be subject:—Held: prior publication, or even prior user of an invention in the Colony after the date were, & defts. were not entitled to a certificate under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 29, as to the particulars of objection.

(3) Pltfs. asked that, notwithstanding the fourth patent had been declared invalid, the ct. should give them a certificate, under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 31, that the validity of the patent had come in question :—Held : the certificate under the sect. could only be granted where the patent had been declared valid.—ACETYLENE ILLUMINATING CO. v. UNITED ALKALI CO., [1902] 1 Ch. 494 ; 71 L. J. Ch. 301 ; 50 W. R. 361 ; 19 R. P. C. 213 ; affd., 72 L. J. Ch. 214, C. A. ; (1904), 22 R. P. C. 145, H. L.

Annotation :—Refd. British Thomson-Houston Co. v. Charlesworth Peebles (1923), 40 R. P C. 426.

3433. —— Opposed by prior British patentee—Conditions for protection of prior patentee.]—An application for a patent was made by a citizen of the United States on July 6, 1920, claiming under sect. 91 of the Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 & 1919, the date Oct. 29, 1913. The claim was made under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks (Temporary) Rules, 1914, r. 3 (a), which were in force when the application in the United Kingdom was made. The claim for this prior date under the Temporary Rules was opposed by a co. on the ground that it was not a case in which the earlier date could or ought to be allowed under the powers given to the Comptroller by the Temporary Rules. The co. had a direct interest in the question as to what date should be allowed the application & the patent when sealed, inasmuch as they had a British patent dated Dec. 9, 1918, in respect of similar subject-matter which would undoubtedly be affected by the grant of the earlier date on the application :—Held : in view of the understanding with the United States of America, appct. should be allowed the benefits given by Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks (Temporary) Rules, 1914, r. 3 (a), but, in the exercise of the Comptroller's discretion, specific conditions for the protection of persons bonâ fide in possession of the invention prior to the date of application in the United Kingdom should be imposed.—Re ARMSTRONG'S APPLICATION (1922), 39 R. P. C. 146.

Part XVII.—Patent Agents.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 18, & Register of Patent Agents Rules, 1908, rr. 3–27 of 1919.

3434. Registration of patent agents—Effect of laying rules before Parliament—Statutory provision.]—The Board of Trade made certain rules known as the Register of Patent Agents Rules, 1889, which were laid before Parliament & no objection was taken to them within the forty days specified by Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57). They provided (inter alia) for the mode by which a patent agent practising before Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1888 (c. 50), should be entered in the register ; & also for the payment of an entrance fee, & an annual fee by all patent agents continuing on the register, & for erasure from the register of the name of any person whose annual fee was not paid :—Held : (1) the rule having been laid before both Houses of Parliament for forty days without being annulled were " of the same effect as if they were contained in Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), & as long as they remained in force it was not competent to question their authority ; (2) the right mode of procedure against an unregistered patent agent was by way of summary proceeding for the penalty.—PATENT AGENTS INSTITUTE v. LOCKWOOD, [1894] A. C. 347 ; 63 L. J. P. C. 75 ; 71 L. T. 205 ; 10 T. L. R. 527 ; 6 R. 219, H. L.

Annotations :—As to (1) Refd. Re London & General Bank (1894), 38 Sol. Jo. 682 ; Baker v. Williams, [1898] 1 Q. B. 23 ; Starey v. Graham, [1899] 1 Q. B. 406 ; Stephens v. Chown, Stephens v. Clark, [1901] 1 Ch. 894 ; Devonport Corpn. v. Tozer, [1902] 2 Ch. 182 ; Brightman v. Tate (1919), 35 T. L. R. 209 ; Barwick v. S. E. & C. Ry., [1920] 2 K. B. 387 ; Simmonds v. Newport Abercarn Black Vein Steam Coal Co., [1921] 1 K. B. 616 ; R. v. Electricity Comrs., Ex p. London Electricity Joint Committee Co. (1920), Ltd., [1924] 1 K. B. 171.

3435. —— Payment of fee—By person practising before 1888.]—(1) The Register of Patent Agents Rules, 1889, are valid & in force ; & therefore a patent agent who has been bonâ fide in practice prior to the passing of the Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1888 (c. 50), & who is consequently entitled under sect. 1 (3) of that Act to be registered as a patent agent, must pay before registration the fee prescribed by those rules.

(2) The right which a person had prior to the passing of the Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1888 (c. 50), to practise as a patent agent & describe himself as such, is not a " right acquired " which is saved from the operation of the Act by sect. 27.—STAREY v. GRAHAM, [1899] 1 Q. B. 406 ; 68 L. J. Q. B. 257 ; 80 L. T. 185 ; 47 W. R. 392 ; 15 T. L. R. 163 ; 43 Sol. Jo. 223 ; 16 R. P. C. 106.

Annotation :—Generally, Mentd. R. v. Tristram (1899), 47 W. R. 639.

3436. Duty of agent—To know law relating to patents.]—A patent agent is bound to know the law with regard to the practice of obtaining patents, & should watch the decisions of the cts. with some care.

Deft., a patent agent, nearly a year after the decision of the Lord Chancellor in Ex p. Bates & Redgate, No. 772, ante, obtained provisional protection for an invention of pltfs., his principals, & then allowed five months to elapse before taking final steps to have the patent sealed, in consequence of which delay a second inventor succeeded in obtaining a patent for the same invention, although provisionally specified at a later date, & the A.-G. refused to seal pltfs.' patent :—Held : there was evidence of negligence to go to the jury.—LEE v. WALKER (1872), L. R. 7 C. P. 121 ; 41 L. J. C. P. 91 ; 26 L. T. 70.

Annotation :—Refd. Ex p. Bailey (1872), 8 Ch. App. 60.

of its patent, affects the letters of registration.—AUSTRALIAN GOLD RECOVERY CO., LTD. v. LAKE VIEW CONSOLS, [1901] A. C. 142, P. C.—AUS.

n. Delay in filing application—Effect of Order in Council excluding war period.]—Re LOCOMOTIVE STOKER CORPN. LETTERS PATENT (1920), 20 Exch. C. R. 191.—CAN.

o. —— Application for foreign patent.]—RUSSELL v. PATENTS COMR., [1925] 4 D. L. R. 796 ; [1925] Exch. C. R. 15.—CAN.

p. Effect of Treaty of Peace (Germany) Order, 1920.]—CANADIAN WESTINGHOUSE CO., LTD. v. GRANT (W. W.), LTD., [1926] Exch. C. R. 164.—CAN.

3437. Negligence of agent—Delay in obtaining complete protection.]—LEE v. WALKER, No. 3436, ante.

3438. What amounts to description as patent agent—Signing specification as "agent for applicant."]—A complete specification was lodged & signed F. F., 85, G. Street, agent for appct. F. F. who was not registered as a patent agent, was prosecuted for unlawfully & knowingly describing himself as a patent agent. The magistrate dismissed the summons, but stated a case for the ct. :—Held : F. F. had not described himself as a patent agent, & the case was dismissed with costs.—GRAHAM v. FANTA (1892), 9 R. P. C. 164.

Annotation :—Reld. Graham v. Tanner (1912), 82 L. J. K. B. 119.

3439. —— Description as "patent expert."]—GRAHAM v. ELI, GRAHAM v. HUGHES, GRAHAM v. BARLOW (1898), 14 T. L. R. 370 ; 15 R. P. C. 259.

Annotation :—Apld. Hans v. Graham, [1914] 3 K. B. 400.

3440. —— Description as "experts & engineers"—In circular describing patent agents' work.]—The Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 84 (1), provides that a person shall not be entitled to describe himself as a patent agent, unless he is registered as a patent agent.

Resp., who was not a registered patent agent, issued a circular in which his firm were described as "experts & engineers," & in which it was stated in effect that the firm were prepared to do the class of work which is usually done by patent agents, but the circular did not in terms state that the firm were patent agents :—Held : resp. had not described himself as a patent agent.—GRAHAM v. TANNER, [1913] 1 K. B. 17 ; 82 L. J. K. B. 119 ; 107 L. T. 681 ; 77 J. P. 35 ; 29 T. L. R. 24 ; 23 Cox, C. C. 217 ; 29 R. P. C. 683.

Annotation :—Folld. Hans v. Graham (1914), 83 L. J. K. B. 1255.

3441. —— Calling office "patent office."]—GRAHAM v. ELI, GRAHAM v. HUGHES, GRAHAM v. BARLOW, No. 3439, ante.

3442. —— Calling office "patent agency."]—The Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 84 (1), provides that a person shall not be entitled to describe himself as a patent agent unless he is registered as patent agent.

Applt., who was not a registered patent agent, occupied premises on which were affixed the words "Patent Agency" & "Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks" :—Held : applt. had not described himself as a patent agent.—HANS v. GRAHAM, [1914] 3 K. B. 400 ; 83 L. J. K. B. 1255 ; 111 L. T. 551 ; 78 J. P. 455 ; 24 Cox, C. C. 381.

3443. Professional misconduct of agent—Powers of council of Chartered Institute to hear complaint.]—A person who has a judicial duty to perform is disqualified if he has a bias which renders him otherwise than an impartial judge, or if he has so conducted himself in relation to the matters to be investigated as to create in the mind of a reasonable man a suspicion that he may have such a bias. The mere fact that the Council of the Chartered Institute of Patent Agents have unsuccessfully applied to the Board of Trade under rule 8 of their charter with reference to a complaint by a third party against a member of the Institute does not preclude them from proceeding to rehear the matter on the same complaint under rule 32. But if the Council have taken a substantial share in the proceedings before the Board of Trade by preferring & supporting the charges before the Board, they are disqualified from afterwards adjudicating upon the same charges.—LAW v. CHARTERED INSTITUTE OF PATENT AGENTS, [1919] 2 Ch. 276 ; 88 L. J. Ch. 319 ; 121 L. T. 50 ; 35 T. L. R. 385 ; 63 Sol. Jo. 447 ; 36 R. P. C. 163.

Restrictive covenant not to practise.] — See TRADE & TRADE UNIONS.

Part XVIII.—Offences.

See Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), ss. 89, 90.

3444. Imitation of mark of patentee—Proof of offence required—Defence of want of novelty unavailable.]—In an action for a penalty under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 83, s. 7, for putting on an article made according to a patent the words, "K. & G. Patent Elastic," without the licence of the patentee, it is no defence "that the invention was not a new manufacture." But it is necessary to prove that such words did imitate, & were so put on by deft. "with a view of imitating" the mark of the patentee.—MYERS v. BAKER (1858), 3 H. & N. 802 ; 28 L. J. Ex. 90 ; 32 L. T. O. S. 133 ; 7 W. R. 66 ; 157 E. R. 691.

3445. Use of name after expiration of patent—No infringement.]—In 1862 a patent for improvements in filters was taken out by S. C. in the name of himself & of his son G. C., aged seventeen. After the death of S. C. in the same year, the business was carried on by G. C., who made & sold filters under the title, & marked with a label as "S. C.'s Improved Patent Gold Medal Self-cleaning Rapid Water Filters." The patent of 1862 was allowed to lapse in 1865. In 1867 G. C., who had then attained twenty-one, altered his label to "G. C.'s Improved Patent Gold Medal Self-cleaning Rapid Water Filters," above which was a medallion containing the royal arms, surmounted by the words "By Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent." Defts., who had been in G. C.'s employ, set up in business in the same town in 1876 as makers & sellers of filters, which were similar in appearance to those of G. C., & inscribed with "S. C.'s Patent Prize Medal Self-cleaning Rapid Water Filters, Improved & Manufactured

PART XVII.

3437 i. Negligence of agent—Delay in obtaining complete protection.]—In an action of damages against patent agents, pursuer averred that defenders had charge of two patents held by him, & that they had allowed them to lapse by failing to give him notice that certain payments were necessary to keep them in force. Defenders pleaded that there was no loss, as the patents were invalid by reason of anticipation by prior patents specified :—Held : the defence was irrelevant.—TURNBULL & CO., LTD. v. CRUIKSHANK & FAIRWEATHER (1905), 7 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 791 ; 42 Sc. L. R. 743 ; 13 S. L. T. 347.—SCOT.

Right of Chartered Institute of Patent Agents—To prosecute person—Wrongfully describing himself — As patent agent.]—LOCKWOOD v. CHARTERED INSTITUTE OF PATENT AGENTS (1912), 30 R. P. C. 108.—SCOT.

PART XVIII.

r. Article manufactured & sold in Canada—Patent taken out in America.]—It is not illegal to manufacture & sell an article in this country which has been patented in the United States, & put upon it a statement that it is so patented, as a recommendation of it, by W. & co." :—Held : (1) the label used by pltf. was not a trade-mark, but only a description of the article as made according to S. C.'s patent, which was common to all the public ; (2) there was nothing in defts.' label calculated to mislead the public by a fraudulent imitation of pltf.'s label ; (3) pltf.'s label, coupled with the medallion of the royal arms, constituted a false representation that the patent was still subsisting, & disentitled pltf. to relief by injunction.—CHEAVIN v. WALKER (1877), 5 Ch. D. 850 ; 46 L. J. Ch. 686 ; 37 L. T. 300, C. A.

Annotations :—As to (1) Consd. Re Palmer's Trade Mk. (1883), 24 Ch. D. 504. Apld. Reddaway v. Banham, [1895] 1 Q. B. 286. Refd. Powell v. Birmingham Vinegar Brewery Co., [1896] 2 Ch. 54. As to (3) Distd. Gridley v. Swinborne (1888), 52 J. P. 791.

3446. —— ——.]—Where the inventor of a new substance has given to it a name, &, having taken out a patent for his invention, has during the continuance of the patent, alone made & sold the substance by that name, he is nevertheless not entitled to the exclusive use of that name after the expiration of the patent.—LINOLEUM MANUFACTURING CO. v. NAIRN (1878), 7 Ch. D. 834 ; 47 L. J. Ch. 430 ; 38 L. T. 448 ; 26 W. R. 463.

Annotations :—Consd. Re Ralph's Trade Mk., Ralph v. Taylor (1883), 25 Ch. D. 194. Apld. Re Formalin Hygienic Co.'s Appln. (1900), 17 R. P. C. 486. Distd. Re Chesebrough's Trade Mk. "Vaseline," [1902] 2 Ch. 1. Refd. Orr Ewing v. Johnston (1879), 40 L. T. 307 ; Re Palmer's Trade Mk. (1883), 24 Ch. D. 504 ; Blair v. Stock (1884), 52 L. T. 123 ; Leonard & Ellis v. Wells, Re Leonard & Ellis's Trade Mk. (1884), 53 L. J. Ch. 233 ; Powell v. Birmingham Vinegar Brewery Co., [1894] 3 Ch. 449 ; Powell v. Birmingham Vinegar Brewery Co., [1896] 2 Ch. 54 ; Re Gestetner's Trade Mk., [1908] 1 Ch. 513 ; Brock "Crystal Palace" Fireworks v. Pain (1911), 105 L. T. 976 ; Edge v. Niccolls, [1911] 1 Ch. 5 ; Horlick's Malted Milk Co. v. Summerskill (1916), 34 R. P. C. 63. Mentd. Re Apollinaris Co.'s Trade Mks., [1891] 2 Ch. 186.

3447. —— Whether "false trade description."]—S., the original patentee, without fraud, sells, in packets, "S.'s patent refined isinglass," a well known article, which is really only gelatine :—Held : he ought not to be convicted, under Merchandise Marks Act, 1887 (c. 28), s. 2, of a "false trade description" merely because the description is not in the present strict sense of the words an accurate indication of the material in the packet.—GRIDLEY v. SWINBORNE (1888), 52 J. P. 791 ; 5 T. L. R. 71, D. C.

Annotations :—Refd. Starey v. Chilworth Gunpowder Co. (1889), 6 T. L. R. 95 ; R. v. Butcher (1908), 24 T. L. R. 797.

3448. Use of word "patent"—After application but before grant.]—C. applied for a patent for electric bells, & subsequently, but before the patent had been granted, sold several electric bells stamped with the word "patent." Thirteen summonses were applied for against him in respect of the sale of such bells by the Patents Investment co. One of such summonses was issued, & on its coming before the magistrate the other twelve were withdrawn :—Held : the full penalty of £5 ought to be imposed, with £1 3*s.* costs.—R. v. CRAMPTON (1886), 3 R. P. C. 367.

3449. —— —— Onus on defendant to justify.]—Deft. was selling a lamp as a patented article when no patent had been granted for it, although a provisional specification had been filed. On a summons taken out against him under Patents, Designs, & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 105 :—Held : the burden was on deft. to prove the patent under which he justified his use of the term "patent," that he was not entitled to use the term because a provisional specification had been filed, & not having justified his use of the term a fine must be imposed under Patents, Designs & Trade Marks Act, 1883 (c. 57), s. 105.—R. v. WALLIS (1886), 3 R. P. C. 1.

3450. False description of article as patented—After complete specification accepted but before grant.]—R. v. TOWNSEND (1896), 13 R. P. C. 265.

3451. False description of article as patented.]—E., Ltd., represented by advertisement that a stencil duplicator known as the M. D. was patented. E., Ltd., having been prosecuted by R., Ltd., on the ground that they had falsely represented the M. D. to be patented, relied on a patent granted to N. It was found by the magistrate as a fact that the main characteristic of N.'s invention was a perforated zinc or other metal plate with its edges turned down so as to prevent the underside of the plate coming into contact with the surface on which it rested ; that the plate with turned down edges was the only invention in N.'s patent ; that the apparatus covered by N.'s patent had proved unsatisfactory owing to a tendency of the metal plate to sag in the middle, & that the remedy therefor would be to put longitudinal strips or struts down the middle of the plate, which would constitute a mechanical equivalent of the M. D. except that the latter had also a tray ; that all the elements in N.'s patent except the turned down edges were present in the M. D. The magistrate was of opinion that N.'s patent could not be held to apply to the M. D. & accordingly convicted E., Ltd. On an appeal by way of case stated, it was contended on behalf of E., Ltd., that one integer in a combination patent had been changed by the substitution of a mechanical equivalent ; that the question which the magistrate should have asked himself was whether the article described as patented was within the claim of the specification ; that the magistrate had construed the specification in the light of prior art, whereas he was only entitled to consider the claim as it stood ; that the words "falsely represents" only applied to a statement as to an existing fact, & that where there was a question of mixed law & fact, viz. of construction, there could be no offence within Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 89 :—Held : Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 89, was expressed in perfectly clear terms without ambiguity or possibility of variations of meaning ; the magistrate had addressed himself to the question whether the M. D. was a patented article, he had not misdirected himself on any question of law.—ESCO, LTD. v. ROLO, LTD. (1923), 40 R. P. C. 471, D. C.

False description as patent agent.]—See Part XVII., ante.

so long as there is no infringement of a valid existing patent in this country.—KIDDER v. SMART. KIDDER v. SMART MANUFACTURING CO. (1885), 8 O. R. 362.—CAN.

t. Penalty of forfeiture — When —— There is no express provision in the statute imposing the penalty of forfeiture for importing into Canada the various parts of the invention in respect of which the patent was granted, much less for importing one of its parts. The words of the statute are "the invention for which the patent is granted," & they ought not to be extended beyond their plain meaning. In administering the statute, the minister can only apply the penalty to the offence which the statute forbids. He cannot apply it to an attempt to evade the statute.—ROYAL ELECTRIC CO. OF CANADA v. EDISON ELECTRIC LIGHT CO. (1889), 2 Exch. C. R. 576.—CAN.

PAUPERS.

See BURIAL AND CREMATION; POOR LAW.

PAVEMENT.

See HIGHWAYS, STREETS, AND BRIDGES; STREET AND AERIAL TRAFFIC.

PAVING EXPENSES.

See HIGHWAYS, STREETS, AND BRIDGES.

END OF VOL. XXXVI.

PRINTED IN GREAT BRITAIN BY WILLIAM CLOWES AND SONS, LIMITED, LONDON AND BECCLES.